The assassin's plea specifically was that he intended to shoot Roosevelt and that in the attempt he did shoot and kill Cermak. He denied intent to kill the Chicago mayor, but under Florida law his plea constitutes a plea of guilty to murdering Cermak.

During the testimony the prisoner seemed far more interested in the telegraph instruments immediately behind him than in the testimony which was believed would send him o the electric chair.

Texas Utilities company said, was charged with 66,000 volts. The comparatively slight injuries to the child were explained by the fact that the copper wire used as a kite string was so small that it melted instantly in contact with the line and by the further fact that tennis shoes which she was wearing helped to insulate her against the force of the current. The kite evidently dipped bringing the wire into contact with the line. The current was grounded through the girl's body, causing shock and severe burns on the right hand with which she held the wire, and the right foot, with which she stood on her improvished kite string. A doctor was summoned and when he arrived said that the entire right side of the body was "ablaze" with electrical energy. The muscles, he said, are still in bad condition.

No trace was found of the kite wire near the child. It was thought that, due to the fact that it was light, it was destroyed instantly when the current was grounded, perhaps saving Bobbie Jack's life. the current passed through her left side, the doctor said, the injury would have been more severe. WASHINGTON, March 9. -The bill embodying President Roosevelt's plan to thaw out the frozen banking structure was introduced into congress today. The house planned immediate consideration under drastic gag rules limiting debate. The senate awaited a report from its banking committee due at 4:30

The bill gives the secretary of treasury almost complete power over the nation's banking structure during the emergency, and permits additional issuance of federal reserve bank notes secured by sound assets.

It also provides penalties for hoarding gold and authorizes reorganization of impaired banks and ratifies the steps already taken by Pres. Roosevelt in the crisis.

The bill was the outcome of a four hour series of conferences between treasury officials, congressional banking authorities and some of the nation's leading banking officials.

EDUCATIONAL ECONOMY.

The senate has killed a bill by Sen. W. R. Poage to abolish eight state educational institutions in the name of economy. The finance committee of the senate had reported the measure adversely but the senate could have kept it alive by an order to print. The body refused to print by a vote of 16 to 10 after spending hours in debate upon the merits of the proposal. The bill would have abolished four state teachers colleges, North Texas, at Denton; Southwest Texas, at San Marcos; Sul Ross, at Alpine, and Stephen F. Austin at Nacogdoches. It would have done away with the College of Arts and Industries, at Kingsville; the College of Mines, at El Paso; John Tarleton college, at Stephenville, and North Texas Agricultural college, at Arlington.

It is a serious question whether or not the abolition of these schools would be a matter of economy. Sen. W. R. Hopkins, the man who wrote the 25 per cent cost reduction plank into the democratic platform, was the senator whose motion resulted in the death of the measure. Probably Sen. Hopkins considers that the elimination of these schools would in the education of their children.

At any rate, there is a logical argument for retaining the schools, although it is possible that a considerable economy could be effected at no cost of efficiency through a radical reorganization of the state's system of higher education. Many leaders of educational thought in the state are given to the opinion that the state university should be made a graduate school, rather, a graduate school in the sense that the two lower classes—freshmen and sophomore—are eliminated and the university above the present senior rank devoted to colleges of post-graduate work.

The present crowded condition of the university, particularly in the two lower classes, presents a problem that is grave not only from an educational standpoint but from a social standpoint. The major aim and purpose of the university is badly hampered by the necessity of dealing with the thousands of young men and women from the high schools of the state who crowd its halls every fall.

If the university could be rid of this flux of callow youth by having it distributed among a closely integrated system of junior colleges governed by the university, it would be the official family of the new demfreed of a serious handicap, and at the same time insure to ocratic administration at Washingthe new students a character of educational supervision which would make for more effective training. Under the present system the university is of necessity dominated more by the natural law of the survival of the fittest than it is ington correspondent, and more redominated by a purpose to develop the individual qualities cently a vice-president of the American Airways in charge of public reand capacities of its students.

Such a program of reorganization might prove more economical than the mere abolition of the subordinate institutions named in the Poage bill. HOUSTON CLUB HEAD BELIEVES YOUTH FACTOR

By STUART E. JONES

Unied Press Staff Correspondent HOUSTON, March 9.-Fred Ankenman, president of the Houston Buffaloes, believes youth is an important factor in successful baseball and around that belief will be moulded his 1933 team.

When the Buffs take the field for spring training March 13, their ac-tivities will be directed by Carey Selph. Upon this personable young second baseman Ankenman has staked most of his hopes for a prosperous season and, perhaps, the capture of the Texas League pennant.

Selph, who played with the 1928 flag-winning Buffs and again in 1930, was obtained from Columbus and this year will make his debut as playing manager. He has played for the St. Louis Cardinals and the Chicago White Sox.

"Carey Selph," said Ankeman, "has what it takes to make a good baseball player. He is a good hit-ter, a smart infielder and a capable executive. With all that, he's a gentleman, and the fans like him."

Ankenman believes Selph will be responsible in large measure good crowds at Buffalo Stadium during the 1933 season.

The Buffs will start the season with a squad of about 30 players. Three of these at present are hold-They are Harlan Wysong Mike Cvengros and Ralph Judd, all pitchers. Ankenman believes all will have sent in their signed contracts before training starts.

Aside from this trio, the Buffs will have three seasonal hurlers who are holdovers from last year They are George Washington Payne, Elmer Hanson and Bill Beckman, all capable moundsmen.

New members of the pitching staff will include Ed Greer, farmed out to Houston by the St. Louis Cardinals who obtained him from Denver; Joe Sims, bought from Greensboro, N. C., and James Rollins, purchased from the Springfield, Mo.,

The catching department will be handled by Harold Funk, holdover from last year, and James O'Day, from Columbus, O.

First base will be held down by Lee Stebbins, another of last year's Selph will be at second base. Eddie Hock, poular third baseman of past seasons, will be back at that position.

At shortstop probably will be George Binder, from Denver. As candidates for utility man Ankenman has signed Kelly Scott captain of the 1932 Rice Institute basell team and erstwhile football at that school. Scott was one eight athletes suspended from Rice for dishonesty in mid-year examinations. Lindsay Brown, of Mason, Tex., will be another utility man.

Three new faces will be seen in the outfield. They are Gene Moore who played for Dallas in 1930 and last year; Ernie Parker, sent here by the Cardinals on option from Denver, and Leon Riley, who was with Omaha and Rochester, N. Y., last year. Not the least of Ankenman's outfield candidates is Elmer Dean brother of none other than the famous Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, formerly of the Buffaloes and now of the St. Louis Cardinals. Elmer played last season for Dardanelles, Ark., deep in the Ozarks.

Elmer, according to Fred Ankenman who has signed him as rookie outfielder for the Houston Buffaloes, dizziest of the Deans.

Elmer is more than six feet tall weighs 180 pounds, has hands like hams, and is either 20, 26 or 38 years old-he doesn't know which. Last year he played with the Dardanelles team, deep in the Ozarks of Arkansas. Citizens of Citizens that country remarked the similariy of his name with Dizzy's and

Elmer admitted the relationship. Shortly after that A. M. (Paw) Dean brought Elmer into Ankenman's office. A contract was produced and Elmer was told to sign. It developed he had never learned to read or write. Ankenman wrote Elmer's name for him, then told him to make his Elmer, according to Ankenman, could not even do that. The elder Dean revealed Elmer had been lost to the rest of his family for four years when discovered in the Ozarks.

The Korean Republicans, scattered in Korea, Manchuria, Japan, Siberia, Hawaii, Mexico and the United States, sent Dr. Rhee to Geneva in an attempt to get the League to declare that any situation brought about by violation of treaties "either in Korea or Manchuria" should not be recognized.

Any recognition of Japanese occupation, first of Korea and then of Manchuria, nullifies the principal of self-determination, which is one of the foundations of the League, they argue. In concluding his letter to Sir Eric, Dr. Rhee asks the voice 23,000,000 "suffering and protesting" Koreans be heard in an explanation of Japan's "misrule and barbarous methods of oppression and suppression existing under the Japanese alien government in Ko-

JANET HILL is engaged to ROLF CARLYLE but they do not have enough money to marry. Janet is secretary for BRUCE HAMILTON, advertising manager of Every Home Magazine, and Rolf works for the Atlas Advertising Co. Janet insists they must have $500 in a sayings account hefore they can be married.

She hurries home from the office one Saturday to prepare a surprise hirthday dinner for Rolf. On the way she sees a couple entering the fashionable Brewster Hotel Coffee Shop and at first thinks the young man is Rolf. Afterward she decides she was mistaken.

The dinner party is a success. Rolf tells Janet he cannot see her next day because he is entertaining an out-of-town friend. Sunday, proves to be a gloomy day. Janet visits with MOLLIE LAMBERT, who lives across the hall. Returning to her room, she encounters a young man she has never seen before. He introduces himself as a new roomer in the rooming house and says his name is GRANT.

Rolf takes Janet to lunch and later breaks a dinner engagement. That same night Mollie tells Janet she saw Rolf entering a theater with another girl. Janet tries to convince herself Mollie was mistaken. She meets Rolf the next day after work and tells him what Mollie has said. Rolf exclaims angrily, "What of it? He was speaking again. "Then I'll leave you," he said. It might have been any stranger using that clipped, formal tone.

For just the fraction of a second the young man paused. For just the fraction of a second Janet's eyes raised hopefully. Then with a quick gesture Rolf touched his hat brim. "Good night," he said, and was gone.

SHE stood where he had left her for several moments. She put one hand to her face and brushed away the tears. She did the same thing again without realizing that she had done it. A man and a gir were coming toward her and Janet saw that the girl looked at her curi-ously. Why not? People didn't stand in the middle of the sidewalk on Lombard street wiping tears from their eyes. People who were sensible didn't do such things. No wonder that girl was staring at Pressing her lips together tightly, Janet turned and entered the restaurant. She found a seat at the side of the room. A waitress, short and stout and with very pink cheeks, handed her a menu card.

"Would you like the special dinner?" the waitress asked glibly. 'Veal steak with hashed brown potatoes, string beans, combination salad and choice of desert." Janet nodded. "Yes." she said. "That will be all right."

"Coffee to drink?"

"Yes. Coffee." The waitress disappeared and reurned with the food. Fifteen minutes later she was back again. "Is there anything wrong with the steak?" she asked. "Don't you like it?"

Janet looked down at her plate.

She raised the cup of coffee to "Aren't you making yourself her lips and drank some. It was "If you don't like it I can get you something else," the waitress
