Loboes Open Season With A. C. C. Fish Saturday Night

FORMER CISCO STAR TO PLAY WITH VISITORS

The Cisco Loboes will begin their 1932 football schedule here tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock under the floodlights of Chesley field.

185-pound Line

The Abilene team is reputed to have a line averaging 185 pounds. In that department, if the reported statistics are correct, the collegians will outweigh the Loboes by 10 pounds to the man.

The ball-carrying department of the visiting aggregation will probably include a face well known to Cisco fans. The face is owned by Johnny Connel, speed merchant of the Cisco eleven of 1929 who was ruled ineligible along with O. C. Ray in an eligibility fracas that practically wrecked the Lobo team of that memorable season.

BULLINGTON TO SPEAK HERE ON THURSDAY

Orville Bullington, Wichita Falls, republican candidate for governor of Texas, will speak in Cisco Thursday, October 6, at 3:30 p. m., according to an announcement from his headquarters.

In refusing to receive callers of any nationality, the Pope (shown here in his most recent photo) is credited with another slap at Mussolini. The action is said to be based on the Pope's desire to avoid granting an audience to the famed Bersaglieri Corps.

"ENDURANCE" REVIVAL THEME THIS EVENING

Last night Dr. G. C. Schurman preached a searching sermon on "Doing Our Best." Tonight he will preach from Jeremiah 12:5. The subject is "Endurance." This will be the last service before Sunday as there will be no Saturday night service. Dr. Schurman urges all the members of the Bible school to have the best attendance of the year on Sunday morning and the Men's Bible class will have the evangelist as their teacher. Dr. Schurman has been preaching great sermons and Sunday morning he will bring a message on "The Ever-present Christ." Sunday night will be the closing service of the series and Dr. Schurman's last message will be on "Opening The Books." This will not only be the last sermon but the crowning message of the meeting. Mrs. Schurman will be present and sing. Every one who has heard Mrs. Schurman will be anxious to hear her again. Last night Mrs. Latham rendered special music which was appreciated by all present.

Promotion Day At Church of God

The Church of God will hold its annual Sunday school promotion day and rally Sunday, October 2, it was announced today. At this service certificates of promotion will be awarded.

In connection with the service a short program will be presented at 11 a. m. by the children of the school. After the program the church members and friends will motor to Lake Cisco where a basket dinner will be served. Friends and visitors are invited to join in this program and all members of the church are especially urged to be present.

719 PERSONS ARRESTED NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 30.—The men who look after the liquor law violators in U. S. Prohibition agents have arrested 719 persons in Middle Tennessee in the past six months, they report. In addition, 305 distilleries have been destroyed. April was the largest month of the period, with 154 arrests and seizure of 72 stills.

39 DIE WHEN SHIP IS LOST DURING STORM

VICTORIA, British Columbia, Sept. 30.—Wind-whipped raging seas that sent the steamer Nevada to a watery grave in the north Pacific, brought death to 39 seamen and passengers, radio messages from the liner President Madison said today. The Madison proceeding here with the three survivors of the catastrophe, related a tale of heroism and horror in brief radio messages. Although the survivors had not slept in the 48 hours before their rescue and had eaten only some dried flour, they were said to need only rest and sleep. William R. Robertson, the radio operator, locked himself in his cabin and continued to send out messages for help long after the Nevada had crashed ashore and mountainous waves pounded over her, breaking her to bits, the survivors said. Robinson died at his post. The Nevada hit hard on a fog-swept uninhabited island Tuesday night. There was a shudder and lights went out. Some sailors drowned as lifeboats were smashed in launching. Others dove overboard, trusting their own strength to get them to the jagged shore. Forty-two fought for their lives. Only three won.

FORTUNE FOR CLAIMANTS IN STATE BANKS

By PAUL H. KING United Press Staff Correspondent ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 30.—More than 3,000,000 musty American dollars that could purchase cotton, food, shoes, build bridges and create jobs, remain unclaimed in New York banks—strange as it may seem. The dollars have been forgotten by depositors over a period of years. Secretary of State Edward Flynn has sent out a "SOS" to the rightful owners to drop around, obtain them—then put them into circulation. Thousands of persons, including a prince, a former inmate of Sing Sing Prison and the Brotherhood of Bulls, have forgotten they have money in the banks. Flynn says the situation is simply perplexing but that a whole lot cannot be done about it. Prince Lei Lan, of what land no one seems to know, but who formerly lived in Coney Island, has money in the bank, but apparently doesn't know it. Then there is the Hungarian Free Burial association, which has forgotten to claim its deposited dollars. The Down and Out Club of Brooklyn has forgotten funds in a bank, despite its name. Annie Roosevelt, who is probably no relation to the Democratic Presidential nominee, is listed among those who apparently do not need their dollars. Savings bank accounts in New York were dormant after 20 years while unclaimed deposits in trust companies and state banks are published after five years during which there has been no presentation of the bank book. Quite a buyers' drive could be started should the money be thrown into circulation, Flynn declared. He said scores of jobs could be provided if the money was utilized to that end.

Missionary Program At Nazarene Church

A missionary program will be presented at the Church of the Nazarene, corner 8th street and A avenue, Sunday evening, October 2, at 8 o'clock, it was announced today. The program will be given by the Nazarene Mexican Missions of Abilene and Cisco. Rev. S. Salcedo and wife, formerly of El Paso, have charge of the work in Abilene. Better-talented and more capable workers are not to be found among the Mexican people. Everybody welcome.

Charges Filed in Assault on Farmer

McKINNEY, Sept. 30.—Charges of assault to murder were filed here today against Roy E. Crawford, 38, after officers had questioned Elmer Tingle, young farmer, at the home of his father at Randolph. Tingle told officers he fled after the attack to a nearby highway where he obtained a ride to his father's farm. The youth was wounded in the back and shoulder.

Aids Science

Vincent Astor, young millionaire with a bent for explorations and scientific field work, is shown here on his yacht, Nourmahal, returning with a cargo of rare fish, taken from Bermuda waters and destined for the New York Aquarium.

Special Services For Presbyterians

Sunday School rally and promotion day services will occupy the entire morning hour at the First Presbyterian church Sunday, the pastor, Rev. J. Stuart Pearce, announced today. A special program will be presented. At 7:30 p. m. there will be services for young people at the church.

SECOND MAN IN GAS STATION ROUT IS HELD

The second of two suspects in the attempt Wednesday evening to burglarize the I. D. Smith Service station at 21st street and D avenue is in jail at Eastland after voluntarily surrendering to officers, the police department here announced today. The man was not injured, however. His companion, who received a blast of birdshot in the legs as he fled from the station, is in the Graham sanitarium recovering from the experience. No charges were reported filed this morning.

"SQUARE OF THE DAMNED" HIDES GUILLOTINE'S VICTIMS

By MARY KNIGHT United Press Staff Correspondent PARIS, Sept. 30.—There is a certain graveled square on the outskirts of Paris, the suburb of Ivry, over which hundreds of people walk unconsciously of the fact that they are treading over the bones of all the murderers who have been guillotined here at Sainte Prison. It is called the "Square of the Damned." Few people know of its existence outside of the little dried-up old man who drives a boney horse to the lugubrious spot from time to time, and unostentatiously unloads the long wicker basket that contains the body and severed head of the victim who has paid a debt to society. A few grave-diggers working in that section of the cemetery at Ivry know of its existence, but they seldom divulge their information. There are not even mounds of dirt to denote the spot where rest the bodies of these outcasts. The ground under which they lie is leveled off and sprinkled with gravel—just a widened path to the casual observer. By law, the "damned" are deprived of a tombstone or an epitaph, and those whose lives have been cut off by the guillotine haven't even a spear of grass to mark their graves. Among many buried in this "Square of the Damned" is a young Geneva boy, executed at the age of 20; a young Frenchman named Carre, who committed an atrocious murder; the millionaire grocer, Louis Ternaux, who chopped his wife to bits; of Philippi, whose 19 year old head was severed from his body for taking the life of another. Here lay also, for a time, the body of Georges Gouchet, the rich youth of a prominent family who killed a Jeweler following a robbery and an attempted escape. He asked for the guillotine and the government obliged him. By special dispensation, however, his family was granted permission to have it exhumed and transferred to the Thais cemetery where those whose morbid curiosity impels them to search it out may find a marble slab bound in an iron chain. There is neither name nor date upon the slab—its bleak blankness tells its own sad story. And there also lies the body of the man who assassinated President Doumer, the Russian Paul Gorgoulouff.

VOTE CONTEST MOVES AWAIT ACTION UPON MANDAMUS PLEA

AUSTIN, Sept. 30.—District Judge W. F. Robertson today announced he would make no decision before Monday on an application of Gov. R. S. Sterling's attorneys for the appointment of commissioners to take testimony in various parts of Texas in the contest of Mrs. Ferguson's nomination for governor. An application to file a mandamus requiring Mrs. Ferguson's name to be placed on the ballot was to be argued before the state supreme court this afternoon. "If the supreme court grants the mandamus asked by Mrs. Ferguson's attorneys," Judge Robertson said, "there will be nothing for this court to do." The proposal for commissioners was presented in a written document today. It asked that an indefinite number of commissioners be named by Judge Robertson to go to various localities, take oral testimony, open ballot boxes and afterward have them sealed and sent to the district court here after determining of the validity of votes in them. Luther Nickels, one of Mrs. Ferguson's counsel, asserted the procedure is not only beyond the power of the court, but would be a gross violation of rights. "We are going to take the position," he said, "that there is no contest—that there are merely some papers on file and that the court has no jurisdiction."

SCHEDULE FOR LOBOES TO BE ARRANGED SAT.

The final move in the contest to restore the Cisco Loboes to the schedule of the Oil Belt district—a contest that has wound through district and state committee council rooms, private negotiations and finally the district court—was made yesterday, according to a story in the Abilene newspaper. It was a forced move, a move known in checker cant as "punching." According to the news story the district committee will meet at Eastland at 9 o'clock Saturday morning to rearrange the schedule so as to include the Loboes. The announcement, credited to Chairman L. E. Dudley of the district executive committee, complies with the order of Judge George L. Davenport of 91st district court which was entered Wednesday afternoon. The order directed the district committee to immediately rearrange its 1932 schedule to restore the expatriated Loboes to league standing and ordered the state committee to give approval to the revised schedule. Will Appeal. At the same time it was announced the state and district committees would appeal the decision of the district court, but without a supersedeas bond. A supersedeas bond is necessary if the judgment of the court is abated during the period of appeal. Such a bond, its proportions fixed by the trial judge, is required to insure the Cisco high school of recovery of gate receipt losses in the event the trial court's opinion is upheld. The committees will be required to post only a bond sufficient to guarantee the costs incurred in the event the lower court's decision is sustained. With an appeal of that character the decision of the 91st court remains in effect and the Loboes must be regarded as members of the league in regular standing and included in the schedule as if no suspension order had ever been issued. The case will come up for appellate action in its order and several months will be required to complete the appeal. This assures the Loboes of playing throughout the schedule this season. In the event the decision in the case is reversed the games which the Loboes will have played with other members of the district will become "null and void" so far as their official results are concerned, Mr. Dudley is reported as saying.

TICKETS FOR NEXT SMOKER BEING SOLD

Committees in charge of tickets for the merchants' smoker to be held at the Mobley hotel next Tuesday evening at 7:30 are busy canvassing the business men this week-end. Prospects are that the attendance will be as large as that at any previous smoker. The program committee is at work upon entertainment that will make the evening an enjoyable affair as well as instructive one. Among the matters to be taken up will be the arrangements for the next rodeo to be held Saturday, October 15. Tickets for the smoker will cost only 35 cents this time.

Judge Enjoins Rate Ordinance

EL PASO, Sept. 30.—Federal Judge Boynton, sitting at Pecos today issued a temporary restraining order preventing the city of El Paso from enforcing an ordinance reducing telephone rates $120,000 a year. The ordinance was to have gone into effect tomorrow.

Boy Is Freed

Eleven hours after John Russell, aged 8 son of a New York broker, had been kidnapped and three phone calls demanding $25,000 had been received by the frantic father, the snatchers became alarmed and liberated the lad. He was found riding on a trolley car.

PATRONS ASKED TO COOPERATE WITH SCHOOLS

Reorganization effected in parts of the Cisco public school system in order to adjust the system to the leanness of the treasury at present is explained in the following article by Supt. R. N. Cluck:

At the beginning of the present school year it was necessary that certain modifications and rearrangements be effected throughout the entire school system in order that the greatest benefit could be derived in the present financial circumstances. It was expedient for the sake of the future school years that the school be adjusted to the present revenues and be operated on the present decreased income. Starting with the low first, a reorganization of their schedule was made whereby they are dismissed from school at 12:30 instead of 2:30. This is a plan which many city schools use; and when it is examined carefully it will be seen to be a benefit to the small child rather than a detriment and handicap. Gradual Initiation. Now, the beginning six-year-old starts to school. He has not been accustomed to concentrating on one thing for any length of time. He has been eating a hot lunch each day, and, probably, he has been taking a nap each evening. By being dismissed at 12:30 he has the same number of intermissions as under the old plan, and has only a few minutes less time in the school room since we are starting the school day earlier this year. He has a hot lunch and the afternoon for a nap and recreation, whereas many of the grade would take their lunches to school. After mid-term this low first probably will remain until 2:30. By that time the little fellow will be accustomed to coming to school and will be able to concentrate for a longer period of time. This gradual initiation of the beginner into the classroom seems to be the proper plan for his mental and physical welfare. Aside from this benefit for the child, this plan aids the school in a financial way. Two primary teachers who are relieved of the low first at 12:30, take one period each of other work thereby helping to eliminate necessity for extra teachers.

McKee May Run As Independent

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Mayor Joseph V. McKee, faced with an adverse decision in his court fight to retain his position until 1934, may seek election in November as an independent candidate. According to reports in political quarters today.

NAMED FOR PIONEER

ALBANY, Ore., Sept. 30.—The new bridge spanning the Santiam, between here and Salem, has been named the "Jacob Conser," after a Linn County pioneer.

DAMAGE TOLL OF TORRENTS DISASTROUS

EL PASO, Sept. 30.—A loss of at least seven lives and damages estimated in hundreds of thousands of dollars was the toll today of one of the most disastrous floods in the history of Northern Mexico. All traffic between Juarez and Mexico City was paralyzed. Telegraph wires were down. A $200,000 railway bridge over the San Pedro river at Ortiz was washed away. The river Chihuiscar in central Chihuahua was a raging torrent that swept lowlying villages and farm crops before it. Inhabitants were fleeing to higher ground. One village has disappeared, it was reported. Thousands of cattle and other livestock were lost. Walls of the San Martin dam north of Monterrey were threatened by water that filled the dam to the brim. Floodgates were opened to prevent damage to the great irrigation project there. Six persons were dead in the state of Hidalgo. One was reported dead at Monterrey.

Disastrous Fire Is Investigated

GLADEWATER, Sept. 30.—Fire which raged through the Gladewater Refinery company plant last night, destroying a battery of 26 oil storage tanks, and caused a property loss of $118,000, was investigated today. The fire started after a mysterious explosion in a 3,000-barrel tank of oil. No lives were lost and none was injured.

YANKS, CUBS TRANSFER TO CHICAGO SITE

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—The New York Yankees' heavy artillery was silent today and the rout of the Chicago Cubs was interrupted while the World Series cast was moved from Yankee Stadium to Wrigley Field here. The wearisome, one-sided World Series of 1932 will be resumed tomorrow with the Yankees holding two victories and needing only two more to capture their fourth World championship. The Yanks may find the Cubs at home a radically different opponent from the blundering almost pathetic ball club which fell before the American League champions at Yankee stadium 12 to 6 and 5 to 2.

FINISH OF A GREAT ENGINEER.

Col. John R. Slattery is dead at the early age of 55. He was one of the world famous engineers. In 1925 he abandoned a distinguished career of 25 years in the engineering corps of the United States army to assume the tremendous task of building for New York City the new Eighth avenue subway. For seven years he had labored day and night for the construction of this $450,000,000 project. After the click of the first turnstile sounded the start of the subway he retired to his home, he died in his sleep, a victim of the vast machine he had built. For years he was the pride of the engineering corps of the army. He was drafted for the great work of building this gigantic and costly subway. He finished the job. He retired to his home. He turned his eyes to the wall and he passed out of the picture. Yes, "life is the queerest of propositions after all."

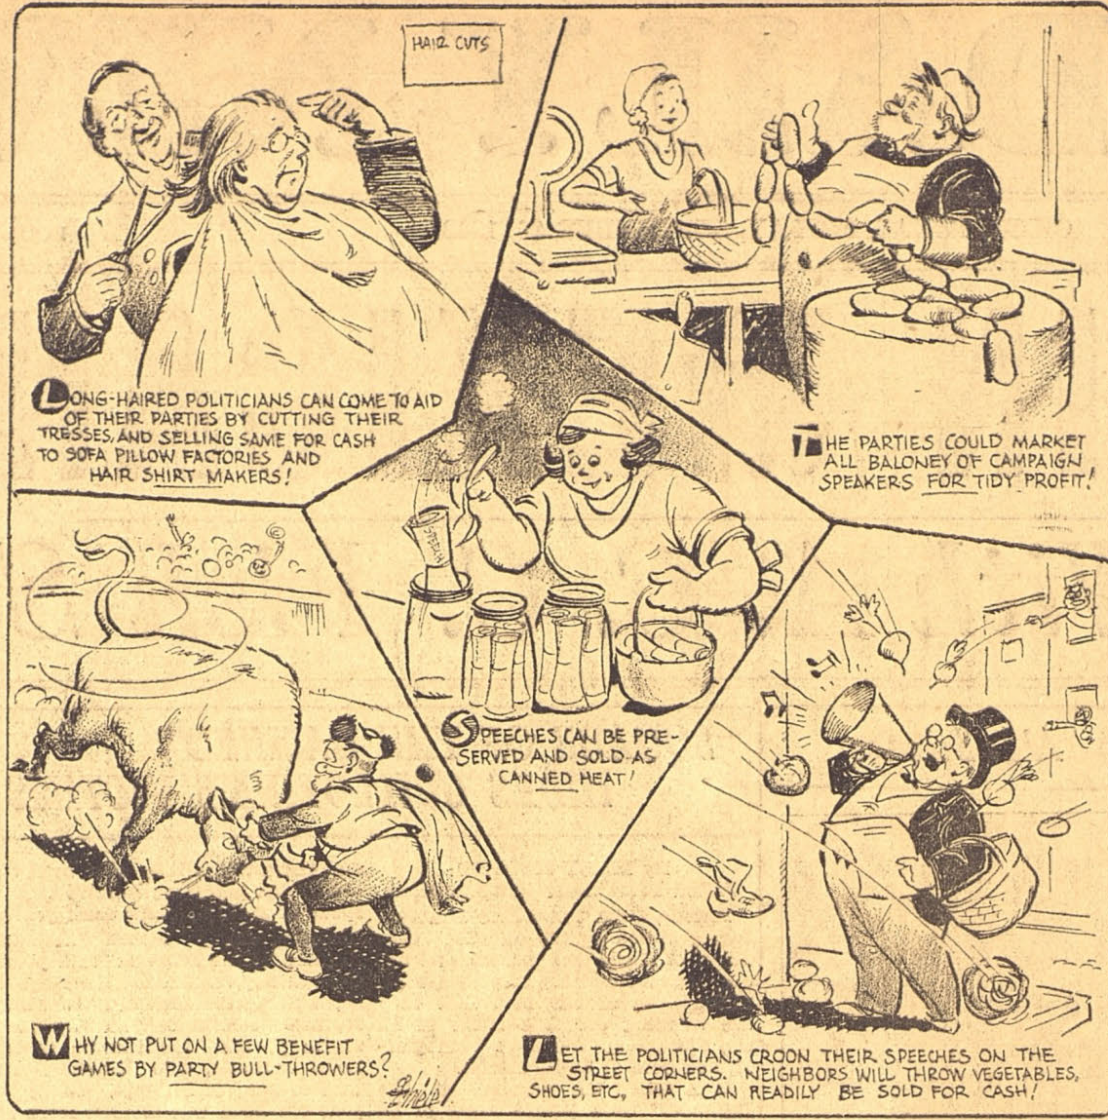

CRY FOR THE RETURN OF THE INSULTS.

Disgruntled bondholders are demanding the return of Samuel Insull from Paris to explain the details of how the collapse of his utilities caused a billion dollars to melt away. They are demanding the return of Martin Insull from Canada to tell how the concern under his management dwindled from a $239,000,000 giant to a hopelessly insolvent orphan. Now the spotlights of the bankrupt courts of the federal government and Illinois state investigators are turned on the bankrupt concerns. These concerns three years ago had an approximate value of three billions. In adjudging several of the companies or subsidiaries bankrupt Fed. Judge Walter C. Lindley told the stock holders to abandon hope of any recovery, that there was no chance of reorganization, no possibility that assets of sufficient character or amount to bring the stockholders any return whatsoever will ever be realized. Furthermore, he said that the most that can be hoped for is a distribution of dividends amongst creditors.

GREAT MEN AND THEIR MOODS.

America has three distinguished as well as outstanding citizens who are men of many political moods. Sen Borah of Idaho has a clear alibi for his latest. Mrs. Borah has parrot fever. Latest advice from Idaho is that her recovery is due in the very near future. Alfred E. Smith has not made preparations or arrangements for a political speech in the near future. He does not know when he is going to make a speech. He is the editor of The Outlook. Away back in the dead years Henry Ward Beecher was editor of The Outlook. Years after the passing of the famous pulpit orator and writer, Theodore Roosevelt was the editor of The Outlook. Again after a lapse of years the Happy Warrior became the editor of The Outlook. A very busy man is Alfred E. Smith. He is said to be one of the chief promoters of a huge project to dismantle the slums of the East Side and substitute for the unsightly tenements modern homes or apartments for the toilers, white collar men and others of his native city. Last but not least, Washington correspondents declared that Pres. Hoover would journey to Des Moines not far from the town where he first saw the light, for a heart to heart talk with the people of his native state. If he is given a chilly reception, he is going to return to Washington and use the radio for talking purposes until the big day in November when the ballots will decide his political fate. Great men have a right to their peculiar moods. Why not charity for all as well as a huge democratic victory in the near future?

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

The Lions club, in "buddying" its membership for an attendance campaign, has torn a leaf out of the experience of a preacher I once heard about. It is amusing to reflect upon the circumstances which probably inspired this expedient. Speeches are darn glad he doesn't belong to any outfit that prompts its members to spy upon each other. Such internecine tactics sooner or later may bring the rollocking juveniles to grief.

Now the Rotary club, staid and sober enough to welcome a typical Englishman for its president and sedate enough to believe that a Presbyterian makes a good song leader, would not be guilty of such a questionable expedient. The Rotary club has confidence in its membership. In the select company of its individuals one gathers week by week an intellectual refreshment that nourishes appreciation of the fine and genuine in life and encourages dignity of character. The Rotary club are the bearers of the Ark of the community spirit. In their hands reposes the solemn obligation to maintain respect for maturity among all the flippancy and persiflage of the younger spirits.

For that reason I have privately doubted the appropriateness of the Rotary club's name. "Rotary" sometimes lends the impression of an adolescent group skipping "Ring Around the Rosie" and nothing could be further from the sensation one gets in looking in upon a Rotary club at its gastronomic devotions.

They would better to have been named "Owls."

But back to the story. A certain preacher with as much practical wisdom as he had divine inspiration was troubled in his heart because two pillars of his church invariably went to sleep in the pews. Humanly, the preacher was nettled that the two deacons or stewards or whatever they were, should find his sermons more soothing than inspirational and, religiously, he sorrowed that the two were missing the spiritual food upon which he held forth.

But the minister was equal to the occasion. In an attitude of deepest confidence he approached one of the two and commended with him upon the other's unfortunate habit.

"I wish, Brother So-and-So," he suggested, "that you would take a seat as close to him as you can during the service and when you notice that he has begun napping, gently urge him back to wakefulness. Not only is he missing the significance of the services, but his snoring is a serious handicap to the interest of the rest of the congregation."

Pillar No. One agreed willingly, whereupon the pastor approached Pillar No. Two and transposed his request.

Each was kept so busy keeping the other awake that the minister was interrupted by no more snoring.

A few paragraphs in the Abilene paper this morning will interest Cisco. They serve to clear up the uncertainty that has hung about the Cisco football suspension case despite the order of re-instatement issued out of 91st district court.

The uncertainty was created by the fact that the state and district committees had not announced whether they would appeal from the court's decision with a supersedeas bond to keep the Lobos from playing while the appeal is pending or with mere cost bond which would not keep the Lobos from playing during the appeal.

The committees are going to appeal without supersedeas bond, according to a reported statement of L. E. Dudley, chairman of the district committee. Therefore, the district committee, heading the order of the court, is going to meet Saturday morning at Eastland to rearrange the district schedule to include the Lobos, the story reveals.

TEXAS TOPICS

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Sept. 30.—The University of Texas, by constitutional amendment, now has authority to issue bonds and to buy them in from its permanent fund, for buildings and improvements on the campus. The authority does not extend to using the permanent fund toward paying any part of the operating cost nor to any other use of it except buying bonds, to be paid back out of interest and revenues of the fund, and revenues of such buildings as the dormitory.

The university now has pending a constitutional amendment that would take away the present authority to issue and buy in its own bonds for building purposes. The available fund will be absorbed for the next bonds for the present $4,800,000 construction program.

It may be an open question whether the university should not retain its present limited powers of borrowing from the permanent fund. No one can tell how great a growth there will be, nor how soon the educational system may be reorganized to bring to Austin a great number of students now being educated elsewhere.

At some future date, it is expected the revenues from interest and other available funds will become sufficient to operate the university without appropriations from general revenue. That will be a long time. No one would want to dissipate the permanent fund of invested money; but along with the question whether it is wise to close the gate to future speeded-up building requirements, friends of the university will also consider how slow a matter it is to submit and have voted upon a constitutional amendment granting the same latitude that will exist unless the present abrogating amendment should be adopted.

Mrs. Ferguson appointed the first woman secretary of state, Mrs. Emma Grigsby Meharg. Gov. Moody appointed Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum, and Gov. Sterling reappointed Mrs. McCallum. It seems now an established policy that a woman shall hold this particular office. Mrs. McCallum announced before the election that in event of Mr. Sterling's re-election and if the office were offered her again, she would decline it.

Mrs. J. M. Loving of Austin, long secretary of the Travis county executive committee, a delegate to the Houston, Lubbock and Chicago conventions this year — vice chairman of the Lubbock meeting — has been regarded by many of the Ferguson supporters as a likely selection when the Ferguson had a turn in the executive office.

Vices of the Texas election laws are being exposed by the gubernatorial contest, that apparently will be remedied at the first session of the legislative. These vices are apparent without respect to how much illegal voting there was in August. The election code has been built up by an accretion of amendments, until neither lawmakers nor courts can be entirely sure of the original intent. It is now a fact that enough aliens enough out-of-state trans-

Can You Get a Laugh Out of the Fact That—

OWNERS of teams participating in the world series declare they really do not make an awful lot of money out of the games? Seats in the reserved sections of the grandstand during the world series are sold only in blocks of three, which means a fan has to part with either $16.50 or $19.50?

Watson, My Watch! THE shift in football is illegal unless the players come to a stop for at least one second before the center releases the ball, and a pause of only 9-10 of a second is supposed to draw a 15-yard penalty? The White Sox actually defeated Lefty Gomez? Pitchers still persist in passing Babe Ruth only to face Lou Gehrig? Poker players who raise a pot on two pairs inevitably run into some guy with pat threes?

Take That! Colonel! MANAGER Al Mamaux won a pennant as manager of the Newark Bears, when Colonel Jack Ruppert wanted another man for the job last spring? The Yankees refused to pose for a group picture, even after the pennant was clinched, until they got back to New York (probably fearing a railroad wreck)?

Dizzy Dean complains that he can't get enough work? Brooklyn fans were afraid that Dizzy Vance, the year's best as a pitcher, would be a holdout last spring?

THE kittens finished with their meal of milk and they all seemed to feel real good. They stretched out on the ground to take a little nap.

The zoo man, when they licked their paws, explained that they did that because they liked to be real clean. Then Scouty held one on his lap.

When he began to stroke its fur, he said, "Gee, listen to it purr. That means the kitten likes me. See! It wants to cuddle tight."

The bunch then had to laugh at it, because it meowed a little bit. "It's going to sleep," said Windy. "That is how it says good night."

THE other kittens crawled around until at last each one had found a cozy place to snuggle. Then they closed their little eyes.

"It's growing dark," the zoo man said. "I'm going to rest my weary head. Come, join me! We will get up when the sun begins to rise."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Stan Ball, an agent for cattle interests, faces Asper Delo in his office. Ball accuses Delo of having men shot who are sent out to check his timbering activities at Three Rivers. Ball says he is making a personal check. Delo says he will personally see that Ball does not make the check.

Upon leaving Delo's office, Ball saves a girl from kidnapers. She proves to be Delo's daughter, Dona. When Ball learns her name he tells her he is Stanley Black and slips away.

Dudley Winters, in love with Dona agrees to go to Three Rivers and get Delo to come back. Dona goes with him and at their first stop Dudley produces a marriage license and urges Dona to marry him, arguing that Delo will go on a manhunt if they do. Dona barely misses the marriage by meeting Ball on his way to Three Rivers.

At the camp, Swergin, Asper's timber boss, tries to make Dona stay in camp. She slips away from men he has ordered to watch her and rides. She sees her father attacked and shot. Swergin comes to her rescue. Dudley and Swergin both warn her not to ride alone as Ball will attack her as he has her father. Dona goes out again and when she starts back finds she is followed. Her pursuer proves to be Swergin, who takes her back to camp in spite of the fact that she lashes him across the face. Asper is much worse.

Guard Judge After Bombing

After threatening letters had been received, following the bombing of his home in which two persons were seriously injured Judge John P. McGority, police guard. Detectives accompany him to and from court every day and keep a constant watch on his home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIV

Asper spent a restless night and Dona was forced to stay at his side most of the time. Toward morning she was relieved by the doctor who sent her to bed. She fell asleep with an uneasy feeling and a wish that she and her father were safely away from Three Rivers.

A yellow hammer awakened her by drumming on the casing of the window in a hungry search for wood borers. Dona blinked at the gaily decorated bird for a few moments then sat up.

"Good morning, sir," she called sleepily.

The yellow hammer cocked his head on one side, flicked his tail twice and soared away. Dona watched him go and wondered if he knew where Ball might be hiding. This thought roused her to find out if Swergin had made the bad man a prisoner. She arose and splashed in a bowl of cold water. The few hours of sleep had freshened her except for two dark patches on her soft cheeks just below her eyes.

Making a hasty toilet, she slipped into her father's room. He was sleeping soundly so she quietly let herself out on the wide porch. No one was in sight except Malloy down at the corral. Dona crossed to the mess cabin and entered. The cook greeted her with a smile and set about shaking down the fire in the range.

When he came to take her order she asked about the hunt. "Did they get Ball?" The girl's words were eager.

The cook stopped moping his hair on his apron. "No miss. They ain't nobdy set a hand on that boy yet."

"You speak as though you didn't expect them to catch him," Dona said coolly.

"They'll get him, all right, an likely hang him to a spruce up in the hills but there ain't been no luck so far." The cook waited for Dona to order.

She ate a hearty breakfast, then went in search of the doctor. She found him with his shirt sleeves rolled up working on an old man who had a bad cut on the head. The doctor glanced up from his patient and nodded grimly. His little office was cluttered with papers and medical supplies, mostly first aid materials.

"How is Dad this morning?" She put the question a little uncertainly.

"The doctor straightened. "Your father is all right, but he must be kept from being irritated." The doctor pointed to the old man. "He mustn't hear about this or anything else connected with this crazy man hunt."

"Did Ball shot this man?" Dona's eyes began to glow dangerously.

"Hit him with something hard, Simms here is the storekeeper. Evidently that young fire-eater came in after supplies and cracked Simms to get him out of the way." The doctor bent over his patient and prepared to take another stitch.

"I'll see Swergin and Mr. Winters and we'll tell him we've caught Ball, if necessary," Dona turned toward the door.

"That wouldn't be safe. I know your father! Better tell him you shot Ball and buried him in 'the hills." The doctor spoke grimly.

"Should he be moved out of Three Rivers?" Dona asked the question as though fearful of the answer.

The doctor nodded. "Most decidedly yes," he said without looking up. "Tomorrow if possible."

Dona turned and walked out of the room. She crossed to the office building in a thoughtful mood. She could not tell why she did not want to leave Three Rivers. She had had troubles enough since arriving there and should have been glad to get away but yet she was not.

On the porch she met Dudley. He had been riding and was on his way out of Three Rivers and he must keep all this talk about the man hunt away from him." Dona laid a slim hand on Dudley's arm.

He patted the hand and looked out across the clearing. Dudley seemed to be taken back a little by this turn of affairs. "D" he began. "I am pretty keen on getting this fellow. Couldn't you take your father down and let me come later?"

"I couldn't let you stay and run any risks that would be unnecessary. Besides I'll need you to help me with Dad." Dona missed the look of disappointment on Dudley's face.

"I believe you're learning to like the wild west," she smiled.

"You bet I am," Dudley confessed. "Think I'll come back and stay a while."

"I like it, too," Dona smiled. "That will make it just right." Dudley squeezed her hand and they entered the building.

Asper was awake and the doctor had him propped up with pillows when Dudley and Dona arrived.

"Got me back in bed again," he greeted them with a sour smile. "Even thinks he's going to ship me back to town." Asper grunted and eased himself over on one elbow.

"No trying to get up!" Dona warned. "You might have stayed up if you had behaved."

"That fool bonesaw has been coaching you," Asper protested, but he allowed her to pat his cheek and straighten his pillow.

"He simply wants to get you on your feet," Dona spoke soothingly. Asper grunted and eyed Dudley. "You're going to take this young lady and return to the city," he informed Dudley in a voice that held much of its old authority.

"What about you? I'm having arrangements made to ship you along with us," Dona patted his hand.

"I'm staying here. There will be a trained nurse in tonight by stage and then you kids can clear out."

Dona bent over her father and shook her head firmly. "We three are going together. If you don't go—we stay."

Asper grinned. "I knew that before you spoke. Well, you and Winters stay then. But you stick close to camp! No more jaunts like you took yesterday, young lady."

"Has Swergin been in to see you?"

Asper nodded. "And I told him plenty! If he doesn't have that whippersnapper strung up, or tied up tomorrow I'm going to get up and that doctor can go hang!" Asper's face flushed and Dona clapped a hand over his mouth to stop further words.

"Dad, you must be quiet! You couldn't get up if you wanted to!"

"That's what comes of having a woman and a doctor around," Asper grumbled. "If this was the old days I'd have been on a horse two days ago and had that whelp's hide by now."

"Swergin will bring him in," Dona assured him soothingly. To Dudley she added, "Wait out in the hall I want to talk to you."

Dona told Dudley what the doctor had said and sent him to find Swergin. Dudley hurried away and Dona sat down outside the open door of her father's room to think. She had to act rapidly and she would have to keep her father from guessing her plans.

The upper reaches of Folly Mountain are rugged and covered with scrub growth that has no commercial value. Tumbled rocks lie at the foot of towering granite walls and the spires above the walls etch themselves against the sky.

A lone rider mounted on a black horse slipped through the dense growth, keeping always to cover. His black mount seemed to know that they must proceed carefully. She picked her way daintily through the down timber and heavy undergrowth, scarcely making a sound.

Folly Mountain had become a place of death for Stan Ball. His dark eyes peered out from under heavy brows and his handsome face looked drawn. For two days he had been trying to leave Folly Mountain and get over to Blue River but he had found men posted at every pass and along every trail. He would have to wait until the moonlight nights were over. He was aware that, once he was outside, the Blind River outfit could give him only temporary shelter. He was branded. Swergin had posted him as a murderer and made him a hunted man.

Stan patted the black's neck and whispered to her as they entered a slash in the great rock wall they had been following. "We've got a lot of killings to our credit and we may add a few more. Tonight we ride down into Three Rivers for a few more supplies."

There are sufficient reasons for saying that things are getting better. Conferences among nations have not been entirely without results.

If the civilized nations of the world do not run away with the idea that they are virtuous because they have taken some sensible measures to preserve themselves, conditions will continue to get better.

Of course, their virtue is in fact only that of the little boy who, having long refused to eat oatmeal, eats it at last because the pangs of hunger overcome his obstinacy.

The nations have not been like the good little boy who, threatened with serious illness, takes castor oil with a minimum of protest but have waited to take the medicine until they were too desperately ill to resist.

It is not being cynical; it is only facing the facts to observe that the recent results have been the results of compulsion rather than conciliation.

It will not be the first occasion in which men and peoples have been budgeoned into a sense of loving kindness and mutual necessities.

relieved by Black-Draught

"I decided to take Theford's Black-Draught, as I had been having bilious spells," writes Mr. Chas. E. Stevens, of Columbus, Ind. "When I got bilious, I feel sleepy and tired and do not feel like doing my work. I get awfully dizzy. I know then that I had better take something. After I found how good Black-Draught is, that is what I have used. I guess it rids me of the bile, for I feel better—don't feel like I am dropping off to sleep every time I sit down; that, to me, is a very bad feeling. THE Swiss chard, or "spinach beet" as it is often called, is one of the most delicious, succulent summer vegetables on the market. There are several varieties, some with dark green curly leaves and others with broad, light-colored leaves. Each variety has a thick white mid-rib that is cooked and served like asparagus. The leafy part is used like spinach or "greens."

The composition of chard rivals that of the much lauded spinach. It's especially rich in iron. This makes it a perfect vegetable to serve during hot weather when meat is used sparingly. The vitamin content is good and chard is a cheap source of vitamins. It has the peculiar virtue of supplementing the protein deficiencies of other vegetables and cereal foods and contains a certain substance which enables the body to make use of all the mineral content available.

The same rules of cooking hold good for Swiss chard that are applied to other delicate vegetables. Cook in a little water as possible and for a short period of time.

The seasoning is important, because chard will be criticized as "flat" if not pepped up with a dash of lemon juice.

The person who is eating to reduce will find chard a good friend because of its remarkable palatability when it's dressed simply with salt and lemon juice. The person who is eating to gain can add many calories to his diet by dressing his serving with butter or Hollandaise sauce. The vegetable is at its best served in a smooth Hollandaise sauce.

An attractive way to serve chard

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Cantaloupe, rice omelet, buttermilk scones, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Cream of pea soup, egg and lettuce salad, baked sweet apples with cream, fruit punch.
DINNER: Salmon and potato croquettes, baked cucumber with brown mustard sauce, tomato and green pepper salad, poor man's rice pudder with blackberries, milk, coffee.

is to cut the thick center part of the leaves in uniform lengths and tie in small bundles. Cook in boiling water, adding salt after the first ten minutes of cooking. Cook the thin part of the leaves just as you would spinach—in the water that clings to the leaves. Chop the leaves finely and arrange them in a border on a deep serving platter. Garnish with hard cooked egg and fill the center with the thick ribs in Hollandaise sauce. This is an exceedingly nourishing and economical main dish for a summer meal.

The tender, small leaves of chard can be used without cooking in salads. The taste is rather like romaine in case you have never used it this way.

Heart Trouble

What is the PRICE OF BEAUTY?

Without health there can be little natural beauty. The wise woman knows that the condition of her body shows itself on her face, her complexion, and in her eyes.

She takes care to avoid constipation. This treacherous ailment frequently causes headaches, sallow skin, pimples, premature aging.

Try the pleasant "cereal way" to protect yourself from constipation. Science has provided that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, gives "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron, which helps build up the blood.

The "bulk" in this delicious cereal is much like that of lettuce. How much safer than abusing your system with pills and drugs—so often habit-forming!

Two tablespoons daily will correct most types of constipation. ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL SOUTHWEST ELEVENS WILL BE IN ACTION

By D. B. HARDEMAN
AUSTIN, Sept. 30.—All seven Southwest conference football teams swing into frenzied action this week and in a card dotted with three inter-sectional contest and four set-up games.

Heading the card this week will be the clash between the Texas Aggies, Southwest conference dark horse, and the Tulane Greenies, last year one of the greatest football teams in America. Last season the Aggies held the Greenies to a 7-0 score on a muddy field, and with a considerably improved team this season and a weaker Tulane team, it would not be surprising to find the Aggies victorious in the coming fray. Aggie fans still are bothered about Charley Malone, great end, who injured his knee and may be out for the season. If the injury is as serious as it was reported, it looked like the death knell for the Aggies' pennant hopes.

Next to the Aggie-Tulane scrap, the fracas between Rice Institute and Louisiana State university will hold the spotlight. Last week the highly touted Owls trampled the Texas College of Arts and Industries while the L. S. U. Tigers were fighting to a 3-3 tie with the T. C. U. Horned Frogs. As the Owls and Frogs are two of the three teams in the conference chase, the comparison of scores after Saturday's game should throw some light on the conference situation. The Owls will enter the game favorites to win the battle.

The third interesting game on the weekend card is the clash between the Texas university Longhorns and the Centenary Gentlemen in Austin. Last year the Steers beat the Gents 6-0 in a hard-fought game at Shreveport, and this season the Gents are particularly anxious to take the Steers to a cleaning in their own back yard. The game will probably be used as a testing period by Coach Clyde Littlefield as he casts about for a pair of good ends, a capable quarterback, and a good punter.

Southern Methodist dribbled along through a slow game last Saturday against the North Texas Teachers to a scoreless tie, and failed to open up with any drive or any new formations. This week they meet the Texas Tech Matadors a far sturdier foe, and before they come out on the big end of the score, Morrison may have to unleash his aerial attack. However, the game is not important and will serve principally to acquaint Morrison with the condition of his various players.

The University of Arkansas will play the Missouri School of Mines at Fayetteville this week, and Coach Fred Thomson will probably use every man on the squad as the Razorback team of 1932 tries to find eleven capable men for the tough games that make up the Pocker schedule.

Bayler will tangle with St. Edwards at Waco in another set-up game, although this season the Saints may cause the Bears some trouble because of the woefully weak team that Morley Jennings is working with this fall. But taking into consideration that the Bears beat the Saints 32-0 last season, the Bears should collect their talent sufficiently to pull a victory out of the game.

All in all the only thing that can come of this week's games will be the pleasure of grading the T. C. U. and Rice teams according to the faulty standard of comparative scores. Other than that, the coaches and their strings of substitutes who will not see service again this season, are the only ones who will benefit from the week's card.

MANY INDIANA OFFICE HOLDERS FACE CHARGES

By JOHN L. CUTLER
UNITED PRESS Staff Correspondent
INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 30.—Indiana again is in the limelight as the result of convictions against office holders.

During the past year criminal charges have been lodged against no less than nine public officials. They involved a congressman, three mayors, a sheriff, two state senators, a county surveyor and a former police chief of the capital city.

New Era

The new era of corrupt charges against officials recalled the days when D. C. Stephenson's Klan empire crashed with his conviction and charges against numerous associates; when Governor Warren T. McCray was convicted on a federal charge of using mails to defraud; when Mayor John L. Duval of Indianapolis, was convicted of violation of the corrupt practices act; and when Governor Ed Jackson pleaded the statute of limitations and was released from a bribery charge.

Still other instances in which public officials have been charged with criminal actions include convictions of a mayor and a sheriff at Terre Haute and numerous other Terre Haute and Vigo county office holders on liquor conspiracy charges in 1926.

County Officials

In 1930 Vigo and Vermillion county officials came under the scrutiny of federal investigators during gathering of evidence in a liquor conspiracy case.

One of the recent cases of corruption is that of Congressman Harry E. Rowbottom, Evansville, convicted of accepting money in exchange for his recommendations for postmasterhips. He was sentenced to one to five years in a federal prison. He was released after serving nine months.

In Indianapolis only a few months ago Claude M. Worley, former police chief, pleaded guilty to income tax evasion. He was sentenced to prison terms totaling six years.

Sheriff Sentenced

Ira Barton, former Blackford County sheriff, is serving a 10-20 year prison term as a result of his conviction on a charge of conspiracy in connection with Hartford City bank robberies.

Mayor George R. Dale, of Muncie, against whom several ouster movements have been instituted since his conviction on liquor conspiracy charges in federal court last June, has an appeal pending. He was sentenced to form two to 14 years.

Two state senators have been charged with embezzlement. One of them, Rollo N. Walter, LaGrange, has been convicted and sentenced to from two to 14 years, but is seeking a new trial. Oliver Holmes, Gary, still is awaiting trial.

Miss Doris Van DeMark is leaving today for her home in Houston, after a several weeks visit with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Cooles and daughters, Edna and Betty Jane, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Coplin, and daughter, Sandra Jean, Charles Sandler, M. E. Goldberg and daughter, Berna Marjorie, are spending tomorrow in Breckenridge.

Mrs. W. J. Armstrong left today for a weekend visit with her daughter Miss Jourdain, who is a student at T. C. U. in Fort Worth.

cent of the grading will be upon painting and repair activities; ten per cent of the grading will be upon the beautification and improvement activities of the city government, and ten per cent of the grading will be upon the county and rural beautification activities sponsored directly or indirectly by the contesting towns.

Mrs. C. H. Fee is a member of the beautification committee in this city which is charged with the responsibility of sponsoring Cisco's participation in this contest. In a statement this morning Mrs. Fee asserted that cooperation is an essential factor for success in this contest, and it is hoped that every section of the city will have a representative at the garden club meeting tomorrow.

H. E. CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS.

At a meeting of the Home Economics club of the Cisco High School, held yesterday afternoon, the following officers were elected: Miss Odessa Turknet, president; Miss Hazel Agnes, vice-president; Miss

COUNTY FEDERATION TO MEET TOMORROW

The Eastland County Federation will meet tomorrow in an all day session at Bass Lake, Gorman. Everyone attending is requested to bring a basket lunch. Prizes will be awarded for the best reports given by delegates from the various clubs on the work to be done by the club during the ensuing year.

GARDEN CLUB TO HAVE MEETING SATURDAY

The Garden club will meet tomorrow, Saturday, afternoon at the clubhouse on West Seventh street at 2:30 o'clock. This is the first meeting of the fall season, and officers will be elected for the ensuing year. All members and everyone who wishes to join the club are urged to attend this meeting.

Plans for the West Texas Inter-Community Beautification contest will be discussed. This beautification contest, being sponsored by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, has been announced for a five-year period, and contesting cities will be judged annually, thus making five annual contests with five annual awards. At the end of the five years the cities that have attained outstanding results during the entire period will receive other distinctions. Cities will be judged and will receive scores as follows: fifty per cent of the grading in the judging will be upon home planting and beautification of individual homes in the contesting cities; thirty per certain time. But, parents, since your child will be benefited instead of intellectually handicapped by the plan and since the school will profit, surely you can make the best of the inconveniences that arise. Each teacher in your school is inconvenienced because she cannot get her money to pay her bills regularly, business men are consequently inconvenienced. Each teacher has taken on an extra amount of work in order to bear her part of the financial strain. We ask you to cooperate with us in relieving this situation; endure your share of the inconveniences and help us make this the best school year in spite of the depression.

Electric Refrigeration Offers You Greater "Bargain-Day" Savings

Your grocer each week offers Friday and Saturday prices that give you an opportunity for real cash savings—provided you buy for the whole week and are able to keep the perishables in fresh, healthful condition. Many times these savings amount to more than 25% . . . always they will aggregate several dollars each month!

With modern Electric Refrigeration you can capitalize on these "Week-end specials," for the new Frigidaire enables you to buy in quantity and refrigerate your week's groceries safely and economically. Spoilage is eliminated, so you gain the double advantage of eliminating loss from spoilage and profiting by exceptionally low prices.

Frigidaire users have found that this grocery saving alone bears out the truth of the statement, "It Pays for Itself." Then think of the many additional economies, conveniences and superiorities by which you'll benefit!

See one of our Trained Representatives for an interesting and valuable demonstration—or call in at your Electrical Dealer's. . . . Your investigation will involve no obligation, of course.

Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule . . . and adds only a small amount to your total bill?
