THREE DEAD IN BROWNWOOD STORM

Means Names Two Men as Kidnapers of Lindbergh Baby

TELLS COURT PLOT WAS TO GET COLONEL

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Gaston B. Means, declaring that he knew who kidnaped the Lindbergh baby and what became of the $50,000 ransom paid by Charles A. Lindbergh, testified in district supreme court today that the original kidnap plot called for the abduction of the famous flier himself.

Means named as the kidnapers two underworld characters whom he called "Irving Fenton" and "Wellington Henderson."

The former department of justice investigator cloaked his testimony with considerable mystery and in direct examination did not further identify "Fenton" and "Henderson."

Means was testifying in his own defense. He is charged with defrauding Mrs. E. W. McLean on a promise to effect the return of the kidnaped baby.

"They planned to hold Lindbergh for $500,000," Means testified. "The night the baby was kidnaped it was carried to a cave which had been used to store whiskey for seven or eight years."

"Henderson told me he expected Lindbergh to rush out in search for the baby and they would grab him."

HEALTH WILL BE KEYNOTE OF PTA PROGRAM

Health will be the keynote of the program when the West Ward Parent-Teachers association holds its last meeting of the year at the school building tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

The program will consist of a talk on health by Dr. Hubert Seals, a piano selection by Alice Slicker, and a talk on children's teeth by Dr. Charles C. Jones. New officers will also be installed at the meeting.

In view of the fact that this is the last meeting of the year, all parents have been urged to attend, together with parents of pre-school children who will enter the system next fall. The health program is in keeping with the examination system sponsored by P.-T. A. organizations over the entire state.

Tomorrow is also information day in all the Cisco schools, and parents have been invited to visit their children's rooms and then attend the P.-T. A. meeting, where refreshments will be served.

West Texas C. of C. Opens Convention

BIG SPRING, May 11.—Delegates to the three-day annual convention of the West Texas chamber of commerce, expected to number 6,000 before registration is completed, today gathered for the opening session.

The first meeting was a group conference on public works and emergency relief. Lawrence Westbrook, of Austin, director of the Texas Relief commission, and E. N. Noyes, Dallas, Texas representative of the R. F. C., were principal speakers.

Ten district directors will be chosen during the first day's session.

Spencer Wells, of Lubbock, and Walter Cline, of Wichita Falls, both vice-presidents, were prominently mentioned as candidates for president.

President Wilbur C. Hawk, of Amarillo, announced achievement awards prior to the convention opening as follows:

John M. Hendrix, of Sweetwater, most useful and active chamber of commerce secretary.

Ahrens public expenditure committee and the Eastland county relief committee, headed by J. E. Spencer, of Cisco, most efficient groups of their kind.

Anton, peppery west Texas town. Dalhart, the town best carrying out the program of the W. T. C. C. Post, the best membership city.

Dr. J. T. Davis, from John Tarleton college, Stephenville, the most useful and active director.

BIG SPRING, May 11.—The fifteenth annual convention of the West Texas chamber of commerce opened here today with registration of delegations from most of the nearly five-score towns and cities in the chamber area.

The crowded three-day program got under way with the important public works and emergency relief session this afternoon. Invited to this and other group conferences were county relief committees, local beautification groups, and city, county, school and chamber of commerce officials.

By the time registration is completed it was expected the records would show thousands of leading citizens from all over the chamber district attending and participating in the conference meetings and general sessions. Citizens of Big Spring were providing accommodations to delegates under an arrangement by the Big Spring chamber of commerce through which convention registrations were sold at $1 each with the quota of 1,200 assured.

At today's conference of local relief agencies Col. Lawrence Westbrook of Austin, director of the Texas Relief commission, explained the procedure that must be followed in seeking self-liquidating loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

On the program for tonight and tomorrow night were preliminary contests in the "My Home Town" speaking competition, entered by 37 boys and girls who will describe the many virtues of their home communities for the benefit of delegates from other points. The finals of the contest will be held Saturday morning in the municipal auditorium.

Second Conference.

The second group conference will be held Friday afternoon with 900

West Texans representing local committees cooperating with the chamber meeting to review the financial conditions of local and state governments.

Directors will be elected during the general session Friday morning at a breakfast the directors will elect officers for the chamber.

Among distinguished visitors and speakers were James E. Ferguson, former governor, scheduled for an address Friday morning and President Bradford Knapp of Texas Technological college who will speak Saturday on "A New Constitution for Texas."

Thorough preparations were made for entertainment and accommodation of delegates and the families of delegates at the convention. Sports events, dances, musical shows at night and bridge teas for women visitors Friday afternoon and breakfast programs have been arranged.

One of the features of the convention will be the town exhibits from the various communities in the chamber area. The exhibits will be forwarded to the Century of Progress exhibition at Chicago if plans of Vice President Spencer A. Wells of Lubbock and General Manager D. A. Bandeen of Stamford are carried out.

Prepared Display.

Sterling C. Evans, district extension agent, has prepared for display at the convention an exhibit of extension projects now under way in West Texas.

The Harle beautification trophy will be awarded Saturday morning to the community winning first place in the chamber's five-year community beautification contest. Scores of towns entered in the contest sent local committees to the convention.

Retiring president of the organization is Wilbur C. Hawk of Amarillo.

President Hawk in his annual report for 1932-33 said:

"Action has been the outstanding characteristic of the West Texas chamber of commerce during the past year, and I am gratified to be able to report that in the fourth year of this unprecedented economic depression, our regional chamber is moving ahead under full steam."

Concerning the chamber's activities he reported that "Our most popular and foremost activity this past year was obtaining for West Texas cities and counties relief funds from the Reconstruction Finance corporation through the governor of Texas. This resulted in West Texas receiving $2,026,675 during the period from November 1 to April 30, inclusive."

Budget System.

Of the chamber's activity in introducing the budget system to local governmental units he said:

"The program of budget making has been successful in a majority of the affiliated cities. . . . Reports to our office disclose that over $10,000,000 has been cut from the current budget of local units of government as a result of the introduction of budget making procedure."

Hawk stated the forty-third legislature is following recommendations of the chamber relative to economy in state government "in that it is re-

CISCO HOST TO FT. WORTH WTCC PARTY

Fort Worth's business men's delegation to the West Texas chamber of commerce convention in Big Spring spent an hour and 15 minutes in Cisco today for lunch.

The most of the party of about 125 were entertained on the roof garden of the Laguna hotel during the period. Seventeen of them were the guests of the Cisco Rotary club whose regular meeting day it was.

Plans had been made to carry the party by automobile to Lake Cisco, many of the visitors having yet to see the lake, but the inevitable delays that occur despite all the efforts of peering, harassed marshals and officials consumed too much of the brief period allotted the visit to permit of the trip. Instead there was a little program on the roof garden and from there the trippers returned to the station to board their train for the remainder of the trip.

Numbers of Cisco business men and friends of many of the visiting party met the train at the station and extended personal welcomes to the Fort Worthians. Led by the T. C. U. Horned Frog band, a column marched up and down D avenue, breaking up at the hotel for the luncheon.

Chauncey Weller, chairman of the special train committee, was in charge of the group. Assisting him were Charles G. Cotton, manager of the trade extension department of the Fort Worth chamber of commerce, and R. O. Dulaney, past president of the Fort Worth chamber.

At the conclusion of the meal on the roof garden Mr. Weller introduced R. L. Poe, president of the Cisco chamber, to his group, who in turn presented W. H. LaRoque for a brief address of welcome.

In order to entertain such members of the visiting delegation as were Rotarians, the Cisco club delayed its regular meeting time from 12 o'clock to 12:30.

BRECKENRIDGE YOUTH DROWNS AT EASTLAND

EASTLAND, May 11.—Virgil Jay Brooks, 23, of Breckenridge was drowned in Leon power plant lake here yesterday. Brooks and a companion were fishing on the lake about dusk when Brooks dived from a boat for a swim.

He drowned in about 10 feet of water. Grappling hooks were used to drag the body from the water about an hour later. An injury to the mouth led authorities to believe in his dive he had struck a snag and was knocked unconscious.

Employees at the power plant worked for an hour and a half in an effort to revive him by artificial respiration methods.

The body was sent to Breckenridge for burial this morning. Brooks' father is a barber in the Burch hotel barber shop at Breckenridge.

Senate Considers Oil Tax Amendment

AUSTIN, May 11.—An amendment to the Daniel's oil tax bill to place an intangible assets tax on Texas oil pipeline companies was considered by the senate today.

The amendment was offered after the senate had adopted a tax of 2 cents a barrel until the price reaches $1 a barrel, after which the tax will be 1-cent a barrel.

Rising Farm Prices Cheer Southwest

SANITARY CONDITIONS NOT SATISFACTORY SAYS COMM'R

Sanitary conditions in Cisco are far from satisfactory, a notice by Comm'r Bible, of the department of sanitation and public health, said today.

The notice, published in this issue of the Daily News, asserts that many residents are disposing of their garbage in such a manner that the health of the city is threatened. Much of it is being thrown upon the bare ground to form breeding places for flies, the commissioner said.

He appealed to the public to cooperate with the health authorities in remedying this situation.

Requirements under existing ordinances governing garbage disposal are set out in the statement.

These requirements are: Horse and cow lots and stables must be kept clean. Barrels, tin cans or any receptacle which catches water in which mosquitoes may breed must be emptied and kept empty. Wet and dry garbage must not be mixed. Where citizens have

POPPY SALE TO BE HELD HERE SAT., MAY 20

Men of the American Legion have asked the citizens of Cisco to wear a memorial poppy on Saturday, May 20, in honor of their comrades who died in the world war.

The Philathea class of the First Methodist church Sunday school will sell the poppies on the streets for the American Legion Auxiliary. Mrs. Crigler Paschall, president of the auxiliary, will have charge of the sale.

The local poppy corps will be a part of an army of 100,000 women who will work throughout the nation on poppy day to recall to America the services of the world war dead and to raise funds to aid the war's living victims. During the day they expect to place the flower on 10,000,000 coats and to receive contributions which will enable the American Legion Auxiliary to carry on its relief and rehabilitation work for disabled veterans and needy families during the coming year.

The poppies for the sale have been made by disabled veterans, who were thus given employment during the winter and spring months. These disabled men are the only workers in the Auxiliary's poppy program receiving pay, it was pointed out.

Legion to Meet at 7:30 This Evening

Presence of every ex-service man in the city is desired. Plans for the convention will be perfected at this time.

Community Program Changed to Saturday

The Community program of the Cisco public schools, announced for Friday evening at the high school auditorium, has been postponed until Saturday evening, Supt. R. N. Cluck announced. This was done as a concession to the revival meeting in progress at the First Methodist church.

The exhibit of school work, planned for Friday and Saturday in the building formerly occupied by the Statham Pharmacy, will be open as planned, however.

This Community program will be the last of the 1932-33 series conducted by the schools. In connection with the work exhibit it will form a visual cross-section of the public school life of the city.

RECEIVERSHIP ORDERED FOR CROSS PLAINS

The city of Cross Plains has gone into voluntary receivership, according to information to the Daily News today.

Voluntary application for receivership was filed in 42nd district court at Baird Monday and the application granted that day by Judge M. S. Long, who named S. M. Buit, clerk of the city of Cross Plains, as receiver.

This action followed a suit in federal district court at Abilene by Brown, Crummer and company for the collection of about $5000 in interest coupons and payments on bonds allegedly due the plaintiff by the city of Cross Plains, the News was informed. A judgment in favor of the plaintiff was handed down in federal court some time ago. Yesterday application for the plaintiff for a writ of mandamus requiring the city of Cross Plains to pay over to Brown, Crummer and company what money it has in its treasury and also to levy a tax sufficient to make up the remainder of the $5,000 was denied in federal court which also granted a plea in abatement for the city of Cross Plains.

Mr. Buit told the Daily News in a telephone conversation that he understood the federal court had approved the receivership arrangement. This report could not be confirmed either by the federal district clerk at Abilene or by Abilene newspapers which covered proceedings of the federal court.

Unofficial estimates of the storm damage approximated $100,000.

3 SUSPECTS IN KIDNAPING OF OFFICER TAKEN

HOUSTON, May 11.—A squad of highway patrolmen and deputy sheriffs raided a house here today and captured Floy Seay, notorious west Texas bandit, his cousin, Loran Seay, and Ralph King.

The men were sought as suspects in the kidnaping of Highway Patrolman M. L. Berry near Conroe late yesterday. Berry was fired upon and disarmed and taken into the woods after he had halted an automobile in which four men were speeding toward Houston.

Berry was forced to abandon his motorcycle and ride with the four into the woods. The men drove off after promising Berry his revolver would be mailed to him. A large posse began searching for the men after two youths rescued Berry.

A wide search for Seay began after he and four other prisoners slugged a deputy sheriff at jail at Decatur on December 23, 1932. The break was made two days after Seay had been given sentences aggregating 56 years by criminal district court at Fort Worth, where he had pleaded guilty to two charges of theft and three charges of burglary.

OTHERS OF 8 INJURED MAY NOT SURVIVE

BROWNWOOD, May 11.—The most severe storm since 1910 struck this area late last night and early today demolishing warehouses, farm buildings and homes.

Three persons were killed by falling timbers. The injured toll was eight or more.

The death toll included the two small children of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Richardson, farm family, in the little community of Delaware, east of Brownwood. The victims, Arthur, 11, and Marjory, 3, died last night. Richardson may die.

Mrs. J. W. Arant, middle-aged farm woman, died in a hospital here today from injuries sustained when the twister demolished her farm home. Her husband was injured and his recovery is doubtful.

The storm struck without warning, dipped over the eastern part of this city, then sweeping eastward to the community of Delaware. Ten farm homes in the path of the storm were damaged, the barns, warehouses and outbuildings being demolished or carried away by the force of the wind.

Caught Unawares.

The Richardson family, caught unawares by the storm, was helpless until rescue workers pushed their way through the debris.

Richardson had lain in mud and mire for three hours while rain beat down upon him. The rest of the family lay nearby, not knowing the two children had been killed.

The rescue of the family was by accident. Charles King, of Brownwood, heard cries and groans while he was removing a tree that had fallen across the highway. He notified residents here and seven ambulances were rushed to the scene.

The Richardson home was picked up from its foundations, tossed 50 yards by the wind and then demolished as it struck the earth.

Mud, gravel and sand worked into the open wounds of the injured persons, increasing the severity of their injuries.

Unofficial estimates of the storm damage approximated $100,000.

SUBSTITUTE IS PRESENTED FOR RELIEF BONDS

AUSTIN, May 11.—A plan for relief of the unemployed without a state bond issue, was presented in the Texas house of representatives today. It was offered by Rep. Robert Calvert, Hillsboro, as a substitute for the $20,000,000 bond issue which the senate has voted to submit to popular vote next August.

Calvert proposes instead to submit a constitutional amendment that will permit direct relief appropriations for two years.

Before the Calvert plan was presented the house voted down an amendment by Rep. Sarah Hughes, Dallas, that would have required any relief bonds to be retired by proceeds from a state income tax.

DOING HIS PART.

Cisco has a splendid public health officer. He is Dr. W. P. Lee. He should be praised for the able and conscientious manner in which he is attending to the very important duties of this office. No health officer in the state of Texas takes his job so seriously and is so anxious to meet all its obligations, even if it means going beyond the bounds of what he might be technically required to do.

He agrees with the Daily News that it is shameful for Texas to be the only state in the 48 of the union excluded from the federal area for the registration of vital statistics. He is doing all he can to meet the requirements in his own district. He is going out of his way to see that all births and deaths are registered promptly. He is even going outside of Cisco to assist in this work.

The law requires that the birth of every baby born in Texas be reported to the local registrar. Those born inside Cisco should be reported to Dr. Lee. Those born outside the city limits should be reported to county authorities at Eastland. The same requirement prevails in the case of a death. The importance of registering a birth or death with the authorities is not sufficiently realized. Most of the trouble which keeps Texas out of the federal area is found in the sparsely settled rural areas. There birth and deaths frequently occur without a single official word being recorded.

A birth certificate may be needed to do any of the following things: Prove right to property inherited; prove citizenship; prove school age; prove age under child labor laws; prove legal age for marriage; prove right to vote; prove right to hold public office; prove age for military service; prove nationality, in foreign countries; secure passports; prove qualification for jury service; establish proof for pensions, insurance, compensation, etc., and determine birth rate in state, counties, and cities. In the oil belt it is probably well to add another contingency. It is often necessary to prove eligibility to participate in high school athletics.

A death certificate may be needed to establish property rights; establish insurance claims; establish pension claims; establish legitimacy of children; settle inheritance claims; settle genealogical disputes; establish death rate in state, counties and cities; estimate value of measures for the control of disease; guide homeseekers, industries and investors in the selection of healthful locations.

Every family in Texas should cooperate with the health authorities to help the state meet the federal requirements for inclusion in the registration area.

FORD STEPS UP.

Henry Ford has issued a statement in which he declared: "We have made a complete turn around and at last America's face is toward the future." He has inaugurated a new advertising campaign for the new V-8 car "employing daily and weekly newspapers throughout the country." In his first advertisement Ford will announce his faith in Roosevelt's new deal for industry.

This is the first advertising campaign undertaken by the Ford company since March of 1932. The responses from the industrialists of the country to the appeal of the president are coming in. To say the least, they are heartening. They indicate the reforms implied in the gospel of the new deal are on the way. They recognize first and foremost that

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—What American voters were thinking about when they went to the polls last November is the subject of a unique survey and report by Edward S. Robinson, professor of psychology at Yale University.

Professor Robinson has long doubted that the public stupidity is as great as the public seems to think it is. He suggested to the National League of Women Voters last year that they get together on a study of political opinions of voters. Last fall they obtained from about 8500 men and women in 37 states their reactions to the candidates and to 24 typical political statements that were being used in the campaign.

The professor is still unable to assert any faith in the sort of public omniscience which has been claimed by some of the more ardent worshippers of democracy. But he is reassured in his faith that "our present tendency to dismiss the public mentality as a thing of extreme simplicity is probably far from the truth."

THE voter is becoming more liberal in his political thinking, Robinson demonstrates. Retaining some of the principles of Mr. Hoover's rugged individualism and still vague as to what socialism may be, he is nevertheless veering slightly toward socialist doctrines. He believes, for instance, that:

"The rich should bear a larger proportion of the burden of taxation."
"It is the duty of the federal government to place farming on an equal footing with industry."
The Hoover voters, the Roosevelt voters and the Thomas voters all cast majorities for those two propositions. They were chosen from five groups—professional; semi-professional and managerial; clerical, skilled and semi-skilled trades, retail and minor business and minor clerical positions; farmers; factory workers.

The five other propositions that majorities from all parties favored called for federal protection of states wishing to retain prohibition, drastic reduction of government expenditures, keeping the currency "sound at all hazards," adjustment by the farmer of his production to the law of supply and demand, and government support for only those veterans disabled by the World War. These convictions and a strong opposition to bonus payment, Robinson says, "represent the political philosophy of voters as a whole just before election."

THE only clear case in which the Roosevelt voters took a more decided stand than the supporters of one of the other candidates was on the plank calling for repeal of the eighteenth amendment in unqualified terms.

The Hoover voters were principally distinguished for their endorsement of the principle that "federal aid in the economic crisis should be confined to state and local governments, and to government-supervised institutions such as banks and railroads."

The Thomas vote was associated with the most decided political opinions and only "that group was there a majority for joining the World Court, for leading the way to world peace by reducing army and navy, and for recognizing Russia.

Stirring Up the Bear

idle hands must be put to work, that steady employment at a fair wage must be universal. They recognize that the way to restore the purchasing power of the farmer is to create a larger army of consumers in the urban and industrial centers of America. There can be no prosperity with 12,000,000 idle workers in the land.

MAKE THEM PAY.

State Treasurer Charles Lockhart has issued a blistering indictment to the effect that evasion of cigar tax by dealers is costing the school children of Texas approximately $750,000 a year. The treasurer and Comptroller Sheppard are organizing a statewide investigation of alleged cigar and gasoline tax evasions. Sheppard is positive that Texas is losing annually about three millions in gasoline tax evasions. A part of this tax goes to the schools—a third of it, to be exact. The law enforcement agencies of this state, with the support of every loyal citizen, should crack down on these racketeers with a forked whip. If these evaders were compelled to pay, it would make the imposition of new taxes on the people of Texas unnecessary.

The criminal jurisprudence committee of the Texas senate has voted a favorable report on the house bill to fix criminal penalties for violations of oil production orders of the Texas Railroad commission. Under existing statutes only civil penalties are provided. The bill should be enacted without delay.

New Orleans Publisher Argues Ably for Inflation As Only Cure for Depression

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

Col. James H. Thomson is the publisher of the New Orleans Item and The Morning Tribune. Mrs. Thomson is the gifted daughter of the late distinguished Champ Clark of Missouri and the sister of U. S. Sen. Bennet Clark, the only son of a lion hearted leader of democracy of other years who was speaker of the house of representatives and defeated for the presidential nomination by William Jennings Bryan and his cohorts in the city of Baltimore when Woodrow Wilson became the choice of the American democracy and was elected president of the United States.

Col. Thomson attended the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt and was a looker on or participant in the new deal legislation which followed the inauguration of a democratic congress and the inauguration of a democratic president.

ON THE FIRING LINE

At the capital of the nation, Col. Thomson had abundant opportunity to become familiar with general financial conditions the country over. His articles as printed in The New Orleans Item attracted wide attention and "evoked so much comment among thoughtful men and women that the many requests to have the articles made available in reprint form have been acceded to by the colonel."

They covered the "need for refutation and why refutation is the need," they advanced arguments as to "why only inflation will now serve." They declared that the situation, speaking of economic conditions, "was worse than war, that budgets could not be balanced with conditions as they were" when the democrats assumed the reins of government; they advanced the remedy; they told of unfair deflation not only in New Orleans and Louisiana but the country over; and lastly, the New Orleans publisher declared inflation a matter of detail only.

DEPRESSION IN FOREIGN LANDS

Financial conditions in foreign lands were reviewed. Letters of commendation were printed, and it is interesting from every section of the south the foremost men in public life declared that the hour for a new deal had come for a change in the financial legislation and control of the American republic. He devoted considerable space to and to help the new administration work the job out."

WORK HERE AT HOME

Texas has 600 state banks. There are many among them the strongest in the state. Sen. W. K. Hopkins' bill was given approval by an overwhelming vote. It merely confers on Texas state banks wider benefits given by congress to national banks. Well, the Hopkins measure was passed on to the house. It was given approval by the house committee on banks and banking Monday.

Its sponsors agreed to put the bill on the uncontented house bill calendar to be called up and passed at one of the early night sessions before final adjournment.

Now what are the provisions of the Hopkins bill? It extends to the state bank commission the authority to liquidate banks, when desired by the bank directors, without declaring the institution insolvent. It generally extends to state banks the principle already adopted for federal banks of naming a conservator for carrying on their affairs. It has the endorsement of the administration, the banking commissioner, the senate, and now it is for the house to take decisive action and carry on the New Deal principal as applied to the national banks for the protection of state banks under the skies of this historic empire commonwealth.

It is a people's protective measure as well as a protective measure for state banks and banking.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

W. J. Leach, Cisco merchant, has a tale to tell of the cyclone that strafed a farming community three miles east of Brownwood early last night. Leach and Jerry Jordan, an employe, were returning to Cisco from Lampasas, where Leach has a store. On a detour approaching Brownwood a few minutes after 9 o'clock they ran into a blot of activity of a distinguished financier of the southwest that today at least 50 per cent of the deposits of the country are controlled by the state banks of the 48 commonwealths.

CARTER GLASS OPPOSITION

Again speaking of state banks and the system, Col. Thomson placed this in the record. "In the emergency which presented itself when all the banks shut down, it was extremely desirable that these state banks should receive the benefit of the direct lending facilities of the United States government through the federal reserve system. This program was violently opposed by Sen. Glass and by a number of others finally the law was amended."

It was amended and it was possible by the president and senators from the South and the Southwest and the Far West and other champions of the new deal policies of government which threw the strong arm of protection around the system and its institutions. In conclusion the colonel says, "Refutation prior to bank reform would have saved nearly every bank in America. Too many have been lost already. Every local and national effort should be directed toward saving those that are left. All the power of the federal government should be directed to aiding the state banks of America. The important thing for us here to do is to study, think, contrive, find out what is best to do and put ourselves in line both to help to do the job for ourselves recognized as the most efficient of that in any county in west Texas. President Wilbur Hawk, of the West Texas chamber of commerce, in an official statement released prior to the opening of the regional organization's annual convention in Big Spring today, has said so.

Hawk, reviewing the activities of the chamber during his tenure, took occasion to announce awards for meritorious service during the year.

He designated the Eastland county federal relief committee as the outstanding relief committee in West Texas. Members of that committee are: J. E. Spencer, Cisco, chairman; W. E. Tyler, Rising Star, secretary-treasurer; J. T. Elliott, Cisco; Milburn McCarty, Eastland; W. D. Conway, Ranger; O. P. Newberry, Gorman; E. R. Yarbrough, Carbon; and O. H. Kountz, Desdemona.

Eastland county, it was not said but it is true, has received more relief per capita than any other county in west Texas. This due to the energy and persistent activity of the committee. The administration of this relief has been model.

CISCO DAILY NEWS

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, May 11.—A small news item from Washington recently carried great political significance for Texas.

SHEARER
AUSTIN, a fellow townsman.

Those who remember the enthusiasm with which the junior Bailey was received on the stump in Texas last summer, at once began to figure on what else he may run for.

Suppose he should announce for the United States senate against Morris Sheppard. Suppose he should enter the race for governor. Either move would cause some quick readjustment of the prospects.

Bailey's entry into either race might also determine Attorney General James V. Allred's decision on what office he will next seek. Allred, with his big anti-trust suit against major oil companies still pending, would like to finish up that bit of business. It may not be over when the governorship race gets under way. He probably will be free for the next senatorial race.

When Rep. Sarah Hughes of Dallas, referred to him in the house of representatives as "the next governor of Texas," Stevenson was quick to come out with a statement that Stevenson will be an announced candidate.

Stevenson, canny as he is witty, merely looked wise.

The personal and political strength of former Governor James E. Ferguson was excited to elect Stevenson speaker. Stevenson has not been a Ferguson stalwart, in fact he had scratched that name. But Stevenson was preferred to Rep. A. P. Johnson, whose admiration of governor Ross Sterling approached close to hero-worship.

With Bailey and Stevenson both in the governor race, the Ferguson forces would split. Bailey was a law partner of the late Luther Nichols, drafter of the Ferguson sales tax plan and counsel for Ferguson in litigation.

In any event, the next gubernatorial race seems to be rounding into shape with no room for Mrs. Ferguson in it. Indications point to there being several such outstanding candidates, that there will not again be an opportunity for the Ferguson "vest pocket vote" to slip Mrs. Ferguson into second place for a run-off.

The entry of Congressman Bailey into the race for the United States senate would be more interesting. Senator Morris Sheppard's term expires in 1937.

Sheppard succeeded Bailey's father in the place when the latter resigned and was not a candidate. In his recent campaign speeches, Joe Bailey, Jr., expressed the hope he might follow the principles and views of his father.

"I can't hope to match him," he said.

The man who runs against Senator Sheppard is not going to have an easy time of it. Despite the present trend away from prohibition, public feeling has a habit of swinging like a pendulum.

If the regulated liquor traffic falls to show a big improvement over the speak-easy type of three-quarters by the summer of 1936, when the senatorial campaign is on public opinion may have swung back stronger than ever to prohibition.

Senator Sheppard, too, has for 20 years been looking after matters for Texas constituents, whether they were political friends or foes. Many times when all other means failed to untangle Washington red tape, the Texarkana senator got results. Twenty years of that sort of service builds up a friendship that will stand him in good stead.

Sam Johnson, motor division of the state railroad commission, has a son, Lyndon B. Johnson who is speaker of the "Little Congress," composed of secretaries to senators and congressmen.

Lyndon Johnson is secretary to Rep. Richard Kleberg of the 14th Texas district. In honor of his fellow-Texan's election, Vice President Garner presented the speaker of the "Little Congress," a gavel made from a tree planted by Sam Houston.

With practical assurance that Speaker Coke Stevenson of the Texas house will be in the race for governor next year, Albert G. Walker of Vernon, is being put forward as a candidate for speaker of the 44th legislature. His important bill of the present session was one providing penalties for violation of oil regulations.

Walker, born near Mineral Wells, has lived also at Denton and CISCO.

A recent visit of former Governor Ross S. Sterling to Austin led to a reported "political conference."

First it was reported he conferred with former Governor Dan Moody, then that he had conferred with Attorney General James V. Allred. It developed neither Moody nor Allred had conferred with Sterling so the "conference" was a one man affair.

Advice Offered Brides Sister Mary Gives Useful Hints On Equipping Kitchen

This is the first of three articles by Sister Mary giving advice to young brides on how to begin housekeeping.

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer
IT'S in the kitchen that the bride is put up on her mettle and must "earn her spurs" so to speak and unless her equipment is adequate and suitable she will be hard pressed to achieve perfect results. If the necessary tools are not at hand she will find it twice as difficult to serve meals that do her credit.

This is as true for the bride who will not do her own cooking as for the one who will. The kitchen is the workshop of every home and its efficiency is determined by its equipment.

Strike a Medium
Undoubtedly, most of your cooking will be done for two. Materials are wasted and success cannot be assured if saucepans and spiders and baking dishes are too large. A cup of sauce made in a two-quart saucepan is lost. Two rashers of bacon and eggs cooked in an eight-inch spider are next to impossible. The same holds true regarding pudding pans and baking dishes.

You will find a rather bewildering array of materials offered in all kinds of utensils. Glass, iron, steel, enamelware, cast and sheet aluminum, wood and earthenware all find places in the kitchen. In many articles the materials can be used interchangeably, personal preference being the deciding factor.

Economy in Quality
Standard equipment that will be in daily use will prove most satisfactory and economical if made of a material that will withstand heat and rough usage. Iron, steel and cast aluminum are practically indestructible, and utensils made of these materials will actually "last a lifetime."

Steel does not hold the heat as the other two metals do, but it is quick to heat through and excellent for quick cooking and hurry-up dishes. It is also light to handle and easy to care for.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Shredded fresh pineapple, cereal, cream, sour cream waffles, sirup, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Asparagus cream salad, toasted cheese sandwiches, spice cup cakes, milk, tea.

LUNCHEON: Salmon loaf, potatoes au gratin, new beets, ginger ale salad, strawberry sandwiches, milk, coffee.

Sheet aluminum, enamel ware, glass and the heat-proof pottery are not affected by heat—unless they are abused—but they will not stand hard knocks. Aluminum will dent, glass and pottery will break and enamel ware will crack and chip if carelessly handled. However, these materials are easy to keep clean, light to use and the case of pottery and glass can be sent straight from the oven to the table.

The copper utensils are durable and make a beautiful kitchen. They are easy to care for and a joy to use.

TEXAS TOPICS

By RAYMOND BROOKS
AUSTIN, May 10 — Trivial, perhaps to everybody else, this is not trivial to the unnamed Lockhart man whom it cost a suit of clothes—

BROOKS

That is, Gov. Ferguson's chauffeur's private, reserved, boldly-lettered "keep out" parking zone in front of the capitol.

In her first act in a legislative session the sign "reserved for governor" declared preempted the No. 1 parking place in the capitol grounds. When Mrs. Ferguson left office, the paint was allowed to grow dim, and the special privilege was no longer claimed.

When Mrs. Ferguson was sworn in again this year, a detachment of state police were used to keep everybody out of the zone until painters could be found to put the signs back.... Now Treas. Charley Lockhart also has a private parking area marked off.

It cost a man a suit of clothes when capitol police were so busy ordering visitors to get out of the governor's private parking zone that a bunch of car prowlers had been watching for look advantage of the situation and stole a suit of clothes out of a car parked across the walk.

Bankers of Texas are beginning to show interest in the early appointment of a new banking commissioner and to discuss the various prospects for the important state office.

Reports here indicate that Charles O. Austin, who was made commissioner in the James E. Ferguson administration and again in Mrs. Ferguson's first term, is being urged by a number of his friends for a third appointment. Mr. Austin is now at the head of a bank at Cleveland, Texas.

James Shaw, fellow-townsman and close personal friend of Dan Moody was appointed in the Moody administration, and is serving now the final months of his reappointment by Gov. Sterling. In the early March bank holiday crisis, Mr. Shaw and Mr. Ferguson worked shoulder and shoulder throughout the trying period of extraordinary administration, and no word has ever indicated either took time off from the hard job to mention partisanship or politics.

"It costs the state $200 a year to keep a convict in prison and a little less than $20 to keep a child in school."
This vivid comparison was pre-presented the house in debate over the rural aid bill.

It is a reminder that there are several hundred men locked up in prison their families hungry at home, convicted on a fee basis of having or making a pint of liquor—convicted at a time the prohibition laws were flagrantly, openly and with impunity violated throughout the state. When Texas has modified, if it does, its stringent prohibition law, it may consider whether it wants to tax people $300 to keep these bootleggers up or send them back to their own responsibility and the hope they will go to work and support their dependents.

Pecan Field Day at Price Ranch Tuesday

The Brazos Valley Pecan Growers association will have a field day on the W. S. Price, Jr., ranch, of Mackville, four miles northeast of Gules, Tuesday, May 16, according to an announcement by County Agent J. C. Patterson today.

There will be more demonstrations than speeches, said the county agent. "The program will include a tour of the orchard, demonstrations on various methods of budding, top-working, grafting, killing timber and other practical pecan work."

Instructors will be Oscar Gray, of Arlington; J. F. Rosborough, A. and M.; J. T. Kelley and J. H. Burkett, Austin; A. C. Easley, Waco; H. G. Lucas, Brownwood; Charley Denny and N. A. UTAH TO GET SCIENCE MEET THIS SUMMER

By IRVIN L. DAVIES
United Press Staff Correspondent
SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, May 11.—Several hundred nationally renowned scientific men will gather here, June 13, 14, and 15, for the annual convention of the Pacific division of the American association for the Advancement of Science.

Dr. William Frederick Durand, professor of mechanical engineering, emeritus, of Stanford University, California, and president of the Pacific Coast Division of the association, will head the group.

One feature of the convention will be an extended study of Great Salt Lake, famed "dead sea" of America, located 20 miles west of here. Papers and speeches will be made to the group on this subject, including Dr. J. Fred Pack's "Anatomy of Great Salt Lake," and "Climatological and Hydrological Problems," by Dr. T. B. Adams, professor of metallurgy. Both texts are recognized as authoritative.

The convention also will touch on evolution. This phase may come under the programmed list of "Animal Life and Relations," a report of Dr. W. P. Cottam, professor of botany. Others will include the observation of artemia and chemical deposits and problems, all of which will, indirectly at least, be based on the study of the lake.

It was expected the convention would attract thousands of scientifically interested people of the world.

HOUSE PASSES MEASURE TO REVAMP GOV'T

AUSTIN, May 10.—An "administration code" setting up a state government of 19 departments, the heads of which will form a governor's cabinet, was sent to the senate Tuesday with house approval.

The bill was finally passed by the house by vote of 101 to 24. If passed by the senate also and approved by the governor it will not become effective for two years.

Meantime appropriations under the present system of 138 bureaus, commissions and boards are being cut 25 per cent.

Departments in the new state government will be state, law, taxation and revenue, finance and administration service, buildings and grounds, education, public welfare, public health, public safety, militia, labor, banking, insurance, agriculture, forests, fish and game, water supply and reclamation, lands, highways and public service.

Departments are made appointive except those whose election is required under the state constitution.

New Commission. All functions now vested in the elected state railroad commission are put in the department of public service, whose head will be appointed by the governor.

A department of taxation and revenue is established by the bill, which includes much of the functioning of the comptroller and treasurer and will take over the highway department motor vehicle registration.

The commissioner to head this department is made appointive, the governor to make the election.

A financial department is authorized, which would set up a state financial policy and make budgets, taking over many of the functions of the board of control, and some from the comptroller and all of the functions of the state auditor.

A building and grounds department will take over some of the functions of the board of control.

Education. As to the department of education, there will be three agencies in command, the state board of education, bureau of public schools and bureau of higher education.

The latter will supplant the various boards of regents for the various state colleges.

A state department of public welfare will take over work of the state prison board, eleemosynary institutions, and pardon board, the commissioner of which will be appointed by the public welfare board, having six members.

New Public Safety Body. A new department of public safety would be established, taking over the Texas rangers, highway motor patrol, fire insurance commissioners and state fire marshal.

The proposed labor department would take over functions of the Industrial accident board, industrial commission, state mining board and state labor commissioner.

The agricultural department, banking department and livestock sanitary commission come out with new names and with changes in duties but in some respects their present work is retained.

CELEBRATION FOR JULY 4 TO BE PREPARED

Some kind of a celebration will be prepared for July 4 at Lake Cisco the chamber of commerce Tuesday night voted. The only item of the proposed program already promised is a baseball game. D. E. Perry, manager of the Cisco Red Sox assured the board of directors he would arrange a game for that day.

The board agreed to take five memberships in the West Texas chamber of commerce. It authorized J. E. Spencer, its secretary, to attend the convention of the WTCC at Big Spring this week, and also tentatively decided to participate in the expense of sending a sound car, advertising Eastland county, to Big Spring. Cisco's lake and recreational facilities are the biggest single attraction in the county and will give opportunity for considerable ballyhoo, promoters of the sound car project told the board.

E. H. Varnell, vocational director, reported upon the results of the rat poisoning campaign recently conducted in cooperation with the county agent and representatives of the federal department of agriculture. The campaign, he said, was very successful.

LEGISLATURE WILL REMAIN IN SESSION

AUSTIN, May 11.—Tuesday would have marked the closing of the 43rd Texas legislature if the session were limited to the normal 120-day period set aside for it.

Instead prospects are that it will continue until near the end of May. Wednesday members went on half pay or $5 a day.

Appropriation bills for state departments, for colleges and for aid of rural schools have not yet been agreed upon.

Taxation bills are also unacted upon. An income tax bill has passed the house and is now resting in a senate committee.

Relief measures include a $200,000, 000 bond issue which the senate had approved and which the house has yet to act upon.

House and senate have failed to agree on fee bills reducing the amounts county officers may retain as their pay.

Liquor measures still lie on the governor's desk although assurance has been given she will sign.

To date a statistical reporter has computed that new laws have cost $625 a word if the whole half million dollars appropriation for legislative expenses is exhausted.

COMMITTEE PLANS TRADES DAY MAY 20TH

Members of a chamber of commerce committee, appointed to consider feasibility of a trades day coincident with the convention of the 17th district of the Texas department of the American Legion May 20 and 21, voted Saturday morning to promote such a trades day for Saturday, May 20, the first day of the convention.

An executive committee, consisting of W. J. Leach, Mitt Williams, Jack Anderson and Charles Sandler, was chosen to direct promotion of the event.

The committee plans to decorate the business district for the day and will urge all merchants to participate by offering special inducements, in the way of merchandise bargains, to their customers and to visitors. It authorized the necessary publicity, including a double-page advertisement and 5,000 circulars which will be scattered over the Cisco trade territory.

Assistance of the American Legion will be sought in putting over this trades program.

Members of the general committee are: Jack Anderson, Nick Miller, W. J. Leach, Don Burger, Ed Huestis, Herman M. Wood, Mitt Williams, Sam Lipschitz, Charles Yates, Criger Paschall, H. S. Drumwright, W. H. LaRoque and Charles Sandler.

WAGES BEING INCREASED BY MANY FIRMS

(By United Press) A wave of wage increases raising the buying power of 50,000 workers in 25 states was industry's answer today to President Roosevelt's vigorous attack on the depression.

Henry Ford, announcing his faith in the "new deal" by his first advertising campaign in more than a year, echoed the sentiments of other manufacturers in the words:

"We have made a complete turn around and at last America's face is toward the future."

The most impressive move toward restoration of buying power was made by the E. L. Cord corporation which announced wage increases of five per cent, effective May 10.

"Changed conditions are to a great extent due to the President's persistence to balance the budget and restore purchasing power," Cord said. "There is definite evidence that the president's program is well on its way toward its goal. It behooves all American business to support his program."

The Columbian Peanut company increases wages 10 to 20 per cent for its 2,000 employees.

The Artistic Shirt company, of Albany, N. Y., with more than 2,000 employees, announced wage increases of 10 per cent.

J. S. Bache and company, one of the largest stock exchange houses, announced 10 per cent increases.

Fifteen cotton mills in South Carolina advanced all wages 10 per cent.

TEXAS DEMOS RESPONDING TO DEFICIT DRIVE

AUSTIN, May 11.—Definite results are beginning to be obtained in the campaign to raise Texas' share of the deficit of the democratic national campaign in 1932. $75,000, or nearly 10 per cent of the national committee's deficit was assigned to the Texas organization headed by Roy Miller and Senator Margie Neal, and for which Frank Scofield is director of finance.

The best showing to date has been made in the sixteenth congressional district, which is represented by Representative Ewing Thomas. W. F. Boggs, committee member, from Del Rio, has remitted the quota in full for Val Verde, his home county, and the counties of Kenedy, Edwards and Jeff Davis. The amounts allotted to each county were on the basis of a dime for every democratic vote cast in each county.

Navarro county, for which A. A. Allison is chairman, is the first of the larger counties to have its quota guaranteed. The democratic organization there was given a quota of $800, of which more than $700 has been raised and the balance pledged. Hood county was the first county in the 12th district to complete its quota, represented by Representative Fritz Lanham. In the 11th district, Bosque county has practically completed its quota, and the chairman of several other counties in the district say that the amount expected of them is in sight.

Some 70 counties in all have notified Scofield that they are nearing the completion of their task. Results in Dallas, Harris, and other of the counties having the largest population, have not been as satisfactory, Scofield stated, but with the improvement in business conditions the state headquarters believe that the campaign will be successful.

County Chairmen are being urged to remit all sums raised by them by May 15th, at which time a substantial amount from Texas has been promised to Chairman Farley.

House Revises Hunting Licenses. AUSTIN, May 11.—Instead of a universal Texas hunting license of $2 the Texas house of representatives Tuesday voted to raise the license to $3 for hunting outside the hunter's home county and leave hunting in the home county free. The bill now goes to the senate in this form.

Fishing license is made $1.10 with the privilege of fishing in the fisherman's home county and streams touching it without a license.

WON THEIR FIGHT. AUSTIN, May 11.—When the Texas legislature proposed cuts aggregating 41 per cent in the appropriations for the state agricultural and mechanical college, more than a thousand farm residents came to the capital and won a continuation of the college extension work in farm demonstrations and home economics. Many farm women were in the group "We paid for the trip by selling canned goods," they told the legislators.

SNAKES SOLD FOR $10 YARD IN ODD MARKET IN FRANCE

By LAMAR MIDDLETON. United Press Staff Correspondent. PARIS, May 10.—Snakes for $10 a yard, and other reptiles, whose glands aren't requisite for the march of civilization, in the medical eye, may be bought today at the reptile and animal market.

Originally this odd market was a private exchange center here for the benefit of Dr. Voronoff, high priest of gland surgery. The present stock is such, however, that Parisians crowd around to buy these reptiles as pets.

Half a yard of cobra, in reasonable condition, costs $500, provided you require only the disinteresting half. An entire rhinoceros, however, you may have for merely $25,000, if he, or she, is gladiolously useless.

Baboons are chiefly cherished by Dr. Voronoff's agent and hence expensive. But in light of the depression his dealer will sell you, F.O.B., a Guinea chimpanzee for $15,000, if useless in the laboratory. On the other hand, a first-rate, odoriferous Cameron gorilla will cost you $25,000.

Other types whose glands are uselessly medically cost as follows: Lion, $4,000; medium elephant, $3,500; Amazon parrot, hood shark, $1,500; Okapi antelope, Congo breed, $10,000.

But you may have a graffe in your living room, if its glands aren't essential to medical progress, for only $8,000.

MUSCLE SHOALS PLAYED IMPORTANT ROLE IN EARLY HISTORY OF AMERICAN CONTINENT

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series dealing with the geological and political history of Muscle Shoals, written by Jim Walton, 80-year-old veteran southern newspaperman, who believes he is the only man now alive who heard Lincoln's first inaugural address. Walton is a columnist on the Webster Progress, at Europa, Miss. He was born in Westmoreland County, Virginia, August 31, 1852, took part in the famous Hampton campaign in South Carolina in 1876, later fleeing the country to escape arrest and for ten years thereafter "I roved the seven seas of the world," he said. "I think these are the best times in which I have lived—more brotherly sympathy and Christian charity in the world than ever has been before—and I think Franklin Delano Roosevelt is one of the world's great men—great in thought, in action and in human sympathy." Walton said in submitting his series to the United Press.

By JIM WALTON. Written for the United Press (Copyright 1933)

EUROPA, Miss., May 9.—More than 22,700,000 years ago—if scientists have figured correctly—a raging torrent of icy water suddenly roared across a tilted rock ledge and thunderingly plunged into the tepid water of a narrow arm of the Gulf of Mexico.

Today we call the once dreaded icy monster the broadbosomed Tennessee River, and we know the place where the river fell into that narrow neck of the Gulf of Mexico as Muscle Shoals.

Dinosaur and mastadons, accustomed to swim across that narrow arm of the thermal salt sea into which the gurgling flood was pouring, avoided the chilling deluge, and tropical gold-fish and purple mullet darted away from the icy waters.

Torrent Gets New Dress. Rhododendrons and wax-leaved mountain laurel later began to line and ragged cliffs, and the flinty slopes above the cliffs on either side of the teardrop shaped upriver gradually became clothed with oak spruce and hemlock. Mocking birds, now the official Tennessee bird, and gold finches from the magnolia groves drifted in to nest.

The ice has crawled several thousand miles north, and the rim of the Mexican salt sea has retreated hundreds of miles south. The dinosaurs and mastadons are no more. But the rhododendrons and the wax-leaved mountain laurels still are there. The song of the mocking birds and gold finches can be heard in the groves of oak at the present, above the main and rear of mad waters that waken the sleeping echoes of the mountain valleys above, and banish the gripping silence.

Trail for Canoes. Long after all this had transpired and the Tennessee had turned and flattened on its sinuous way to the Ohio, envoy from the Inca and ambassadors from Montezuma, followed a winding wooded trail from the great kingdoms of the far south to visit savage, viking-like chiefs among the Iroquois and the wilder tribes of Canada. These envoys, messengers and ambassadors in the birch bark canoes and cypress pirogues, ferried the flood below the Shoals.

The trail used by these tropical representatives is, in all probability older than the Apian Way. The Daughters of the American Revolution are erecting rough granite boulders at many points to mark the course of the trail. These Daughters have named the trail the Natchez Trace.

Jackson Knew Muscle Shoals. Andrew Jackson, later the hero of the Battle of New Orleans and President of the United States, rode north on this trail with his bride, Mrs. Rachel Robard, behind him on a pillow. Bride and groom were ferried across below the Shoals. Years afterward Jackson superintended the ferrying of his victorious army below the Shoals on their way home from New Orleans to Nashville.

Tecumseh—great Indian orator that he was—ferried at the Shoals on his way to confer with Red Eagle and against the Lower Creeks to butcher the garrison at Fort Mims, which led to the extermination of the Lower Creeks at Horseshoe Bend.

Famed Bandit's Headquarters. John A. Murrell, the most colorful and daring bandit from the Revolution to the Civil War, made his headquarters in the neighborhood; Frank and Jesse James once crossed the Tennessee at the Shoals on their only trip to New Orleans.

Such, in brief, is a part of the colorful and intriguing history of Muscle Shoals up to the end of

68,719 FARMERS IN SOUTHWEST SOUGHT LOANS

DALLAS, May 11.—Farmers of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona applied for a total of 68,719 loans during the 1933 spring crop loan period which closed with the advent of May, said Owen W. Sherrill, manager of the southwestern office of the government aid agency.

Sherrill said the extension period granted farmers in the Texas Panhandle and in New Mexico because of storm damage done to wheat crops probably will begin May 15, by which date special application blanks and other forms are expected from Washington.

Farmers Ass'n Urges Widespread Strike. DES MOINES, Ia., May 11.—The National Farmers Holiday association appealed yesterday to every planter and cattlemán in the country to join the strike called for May 13, ignoring reported plans of President Roosevelt to provide emergency relief to avert the embargo.

Milo Reno, association head, predicted the strike "will end in 10 days if 75 per cent of America's farmers join the movement." He is confident the strike will "starve congress into submission."

The association has demanded a guarantee of production costs and a reasonable profit for farmers.

Thieves Now Strip Cars on Spot

Professional car thieves have now reached such a stage of boldness that they strip a machine without the trouble of removing it from the premises of the owner.

Two such cases were reported to police Saturday. In one of them a machine belonging to Will Stroebel was stripped at his residence while Mr. Stroebel worked in his field a few hundred yards away.

Parts were removed from a Ford car belonging to Mrs. Olga Schaefer, of near Nimrod, while it stood in the garage Friday night. Mrs. Schaefer was asleep in the house.

BURNT HOUSE UNNOTICED

HARVEYVILLE, Kan., May 11.—When a house burns down in this locality no one knows about it—except those in the house. During a recent lightning storm the William Pringle farm was destroyed by fire, but no one noticed the house was missing until two days later. The Pringle farm was unoccupied.

Our community was grieved Sunday night to learn of the death of T. N. Prater known to most people as "Uncle Tom". He had passed away at his home at Lorenza after an illness lasting for some time. At the time of his death he was 91 years old having been born in Arkansas on August 4th, 1841 but having come to Texas in his youth and residing in Desdemona many years. His old home place which is one of the landmarks of our town still stands on the hill just west of the bridge in the western part of town. During boom days he was fortunate in having a number of good wells come in on his land but he was never changed in his friendly nature by his wealth. He took an active interest in his business affairs though he left a good deal of the details to be looked after by his grandson, Gerry Grace of Stephenville. Funeral services were conducted at Howard cemetery north of town Tuesday afternoon by the Desdemona Masonic Lodge of which he was a charter member in his youth. The funeral procession started from the home of J. H. Rushing, whose family was connected by marriage with "Uncle Tom". The large crowd of sorrowing relatives and friends and the beautiful and numerous floral offerings bore mute testimony to the love and esteem in which he was held. Sympathy is extended to the family.

DARLING FOOL

BEGIN HERE TODAY MONNIE O'DARE, 20 and beautiful, helps to support her young brother and sister by working in a dress store. Monnie is in love with DAN CARDIGAN, rich and handsome, but he seems to neglect her for SANDRA LAWRENCE, a member of his own set. JETTY, Sandra's maid, suspects her of "snatching JIMMY the chauffeur. CHARLES EUSTACE, new in town, is kind to Monnie and Kay, her younger sister. Kay makes a "pick-up" acquaintance with CHESTER BIGELOW, traveling man, who flatters her, telling her she ought to be in New York. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHARLES said "Hot!" and smiled. He wore no hat and the pallor of his skin was a thing Monnie noted unconsciously. Unlike Dan, who wore his sunburn with a swagger, Eustace never tanned but wore always, in spite of hatless horseback riding and mornings at golf, a kind of tropic indolence which suited him well. He wore, just now, the most elegant of careless white flannels and a blue coat. "You look awfully cool," he said to the girl sitting on the low step, in the shadow of the honeysuckle vine. "Monnie scarcely stirred. She felt the smile with which she answered him to be a prodigious effort. There seemed to be no life in her at all these days. Tonight after a cold supper and after a shower she had slipped into one of her oldest party frocks—a blue lace of two seasons ago, unsuitable she felt for anything but the warmest night in Belvedere. She had not expected visitors but here, on her very doorstep, was the most elegant young man in town! She said with an effort, "Thanks. I don't feel at all cool."

She glanced up at him in the half dark, one flushed cheek resting on a slim, long-fingered hand, her breath coming and going quickly beneath the folds of soft lace. The bodice was cut rather low and the creamy skin of her neck and bosom glimmered above it. Her eyes, shadowed with weariness and heat, looked big and dark under their fringe of heavy lashes. She asked him to sit down. He made a gesture toward the car in the shadows outside the gate and said slowly, "I'd thought perhaps you'd come for a drive—out where it's cool."

"Mother and Mark have gone to a strawberry festival," Monnie said with apparent irrelevance. "And Kay—Kay's over at Rissy's. I wonder if I ought—" "We'll be back in an hour," Charles said. "Why not?" She debated this. She had refused to go to the festival. She had said she was too tired but the real reason was her desire to avoid people. Prying people who would ask questions. About Dan. About everything. With this man it was different. She could be easy with him. He was—well, a friend! She felt that. Splendid in his way, of course, but not, Monnie thought, the type to stir her pulses.

AS he held out his hand to assist her, she gave him her own. A child's class, Charles Eustace felt, half piqued and half amused.

"Believe I will," Monnie murmured softly. "If you'll excuse this—this ridiculous costume." He gave her a mocking bow, practiced eyes taking in every detail of her appearance. The lace had been adroitly cut to show every exquisite line of the girl's figure. "It's a lovely dress," he told her. Monnie widened her eyes at his tone. There was something not quite cordial about it. Did he think she was fishing for compliments?

She reddened to the roots of her hair and in that instant Charles Eustace regretted his discourtesy. Used as he was to the finished wiles of more sophisticated women, he had carelessly bulked this young girl with the crowd. "I'm sorry," he said awkwardly. "I really mean it. It is a lovely dress—" "Of course, it is old," Monnie faltered, hurt by she knew not what. "It's a party dress, too, and unsuitable—but I was so hot—I had nothing else so cool—I didn't expect anyone—" She hated herself for it, but suddenly she was in tears. "Do forgive me. I'm an idiot—but seem to be all tired out and we were so busy today at the store—" A big clean handkerchief was pressed into her hands. She straightened herself, mopping at the persistent tears, trying to smile again. But it had not been just that. Both she and the man knew that his tone was the lash which had cut her deeply. Charles Eustace said, slowly, "Monnie, you do know I'm your friend, don't you?" She stared at him. "I hope so. Of course!" He flicked at the bushes beside him with a willow switch he had picked up. "It's only—only that I get into one of my bad moods now and again and say things I don't mean. I did mean your frock was lovely. But some devil of sarcasm put that edge on my voice. I don't know why. Or yes, I do. I'm used to the sort of woman who invites comment on her attire. I thought, for an instant, that was what you were doing. I ask your pardon."

"But even if I had," Monnie began, puzzled, "it's no crime, surely, to want compliments?" He laughed on an uncomfortable note. "Of course not. Monica, you don't know anything about me. I've got a wretched temper. I've been through some bad times. Some day perhaps I'll bore you by telling you about them."

"It wouldn't bore me in the least," the girl told him demurely. Her tears had dried now. The little flare up had only served to heighten her color. "Wait just a minute. I'll get a scarf for my hair," she said, going back into the darkened house. She paused to scribble a line for her mother and in that instant the telephone rang brightly. Her instant thought, as always, waking and sleeping, was "Dan!" She put one hand to her breast with an unconsciously dramatic gesture and called out to the man in the shadows, "I'll answer that. Hope you don't mind waiting."

LIFTING the receiver, she was conscious of an almost unbearable feeling of tension. But it was not Dan's deep voice that came to her over the wire. "Oh, Miss Anstice. Yes. How are you?" She put cordiality into her tone. Miss Anstice was an old family friend.

Charles Eustace, lounging against the pillar outside, heard a note of alarm in the quick, terse words that followed. "What? Yes—yes. Please tell me. Outside Miller's garage just five minutes ago? There must be some mistake. She's at Rissy's! Thank you. I know you won't. Yes, I'll do something about it—at once—good-by—" All the color now drained from her cheeks, she returned to Charles Eustace. "Something terrible—I don't know what to do!" He put out a brown, lean hand, touching hers. "Tell me. I'll help you."

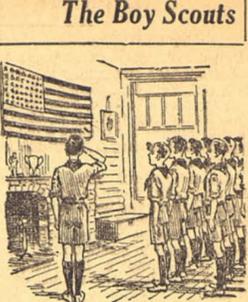

Eyes big and dark and unseeing, she stared at him. "It's Kay. She's gone—with some man. Miss Anstice happened to see them. She's not a gossip. She's a real friend. They had bags, she said. The man was asking the best way to Waynesboro."

"Good Lord!" Charles said. "Jump in. I know that road well. We can catch up with them." Binding the scarf she had picked up from the hall table about her head with stumbling fingers, Monnie obeyed. The scent and sound of a June night received them, as the motor purred and the powerful little car plunged down Denny street. Everywhere—everywhere were little groups on porch and lawn. Lights in little houses. Laughter. The music of a radio. Monnie thought, blindly, "Little Kay, Little Kay. I've got to save her."

"Miss Anstice didn't happen to mention what sort of car it was, did she?" inquired Charles, expertly swerving to avoid a boy on a bicycle. "No, she—she—" Monnie's teeth were chattering now, as if with cold. "I'm so I-frightened," she interposed. "What if we don't catch up with them? I never can face Mother!" The calm voice of the man in the driver's seat came to her. "We'll find her," he said. "Don't you worry!"

AHEAD, miles ahead, on the country road, Bigelow grinned down at the girl beside him. "Cooler now, baby? That sure is a hot burg you live in." Kay said, "Yes, lots cooler." She cast an apprehensive glance back over her shoulder. "Sure nobody saw me when you stopped for gas?" He had a big, booming laugh—empty, meaningless. He employed it now. "Baby, don't think about that old burg any more. You've shaken the dust from your shoes. You're slated for big times." He slipped an arm around her shoulders. Kay shrank from it. "Hadden't you better watch the road?" The laugh boomed again. "Don't like one-armed drivers, do you, Baby?" Kay grimaced to herself in the darkness. She'd been a fool to come, she told herself, but she was no quitter. She'd burned her boats. She'd have to keep on going. (To Be Continued)

Keeping Up With The Boy Scouts

New Road To Camp

Through the cooperation of the citizenship of Richland Spring and certain individuals in the different towns, plans have just about been completed whereby the last five miles of the road leading to Camp Billy Gibbons will be made new, graded and about one and one-half miles cut off of the distance. A new crossing just below the swimming hole will be made. It has been mutually agreed that those who desire to travel the old road may do so and those who want to try out the new one may have that privilege. At any rate Camp Billy Gibbons is expected to have the largest number of visitors in camp this summer than in any previous year. There were over five hundred on visitors day last year.

The fact that the last five miles of the road is to be made so much more agreeable to the operator of a car, we feel that no parent or friend of scouting will object to aiding in the transportation of boys to and from camp during the camping period. Hugh L. Stewart, chairman of the camping committee and the scout executive made a trip to the camp last Saturday and found the camp looking in excellent shape. There are a number of new things that we hope may be possible to be worked out for the camp this summer. Don't forget the camp dates. July 11th to 18th and 19th to 23th. Scouts start now to saving your nickels and dimes so that you will not miss this enjoyable and instructive experience.

Wins Swimming Meet

Here comes Homer Tudor, scoutmaster of Troop 23 in Stephenville with a report that his swimming team, composed of G. Wilson, E. Bryant, G. Bryant, T. Gordon, W. Phillips, L. Phillips, Capt. T. Blakeney, and Phillip Bridges walked off with a swimming meet held at Glenrose last Saturday week ago, which was participated in by troops from Fort Worth, McGregor and Stephenville. Three Hoes for Homer and his team.

Received Scout Cabin

Mrs. H. B. Furr, chairman and other members of the Mother's Auxiliary of the Boy Scouts of Breckenridge presented the scouts of the Breckenridge district with a scout cabin last Saturday night. It is located on the Furr ranch about one and one-half miles from Breckenridge. A program was held out at the cabin. Russel B. Jones, scout commissioner of the Comanche Trail council made the acceptance speech and the scouts put on stunts and demonstrations, making a very nice and enjoyable affair for all of those in attendance.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

The PORPOISE IS BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN THE CAUSE OF THE ANCIENT SEA SERPENT STORIES! PORPOISES, SWIMMING IN SINGLE FILE, RESEMBLE A HUGE, WINDING SERPENT! ONE OF THE WORLD'S MOST DANGEROUS JOBS IS THAT OF FILLING RADIUM NEEDLES FOR HOSPITAL USE. AFTER THREE MONTHS EMPLOYED AT THIS TASK, A WORKER MUST TAKE THREE MONTHS' VACATION! THE PORPOISE travels in schools of from six to twelve, and a single file of six or more of these creatures could easily be mistaken for a great monster, 50 or 60 feet long, looping its way through the seas. The porpoise is not a fish, but a mammal, and many of its curious, rolling antics are done in the spirit of play.
