LOCAL MEN AT FARMERS CONFERENCE

HOME TOWN GOSSIP

Honorable mention for the cleverest idea of the yuletide goes to Mrs. Louis Helms.

She is launching a movement to collect discarded toys, dolls and childrens clothing. Such articles would be repaired by the personnel of the local W.P.A. cannery and distributed to unfortunate children on Christmas morning.

Can you imagine how heart-breaking it must be to some children to arise on Christmas morning and find that old Santa forgot them?

This little plan of Mrs. Helms' will prevent such an unhappy episode being experienced in Cross Plains this year. Do your bit, bundle up those old toys and take them down to the cannery today. We'll wager two to one it will make your own Christmas a bit happier.

If our arithmetic is correct Wilburn Barr has less than a month more of bachelorhood. He's due to trip to the altar with one of Burkett's most comely maidens on or about January 1, 1937.

The young lady who has been telephoning Ralph Baum during business hours will confer a great favor on the enterprising young chap by refraining from further practice of the habit, which is quite unpopular with his employers.

Congratulations are now in order to Eddie Graham, who last week claimed as his bride Miss Georgia Cox. The couple, both of whom have lived here for a number of years, will continue to make their home in Cross Plains.

Basket ball season is here and lovers of the indoor sport are to be treated to some first class entertainment at the Cross Plains high school gymnasium. With prospects for one of the fastest teams in this section of the state, formidable opponents from several of the larger nearby cities will no doubt be invited to the local court.

Take a tip from this column and see the Cross Plains quintet in action the very first time you have an opportunity. Watching D. C. Hargrove and Cornelius Elliott handle a basket ball is a fine show. Those boys have grace, accuracy and plenty of natural ability.

Cross Plains is now enjoying the largest Saturday afternoon crowds in recent years. No town in West Texas the size of ours is so favored. There's a reason: local merchants are on their toes and the buying public knows it. We predict greater buying this Christmas than Cross Plains ever saw before, the balmy days of the boom not excepted.

As these lines are written there is much turmoil in England concerning the proposed marriage of King Edward to the American born divorcee, Mrs. Wallis Simpson. Its merely a guess, of course, but we expect to see the monarch abdicate his throne before Sunday.

It is well known that he never particularly cared about being King and if the English people attempt to tell him whom he shall, and shall not marry, we expect Edward to assert his independence.

All right now, what's your guess? This is the national pastime you know.

CALLAHAN SINGERS TO MEET AT BELLE PLAIN

The Callahan county singing convention will meet at Belle Plain Sunday, December 6th the Review was informed in a communication from C. W. Fowler, yesterday.

GRETNA WRIGHT NAMED SWEETHEART OF F. F. A.

Gretna Wright was elected Future Farmer Sweetheart by receiving 702 votes. Bobbie McKinney was second, Dorothy Johnson third, Wallena Barclay, fourth and Marjorie Hise fifth.

Contest Program At Auditorium Tonight

CHANCE AT MOVIES, RADIO BROADCAST, DRESS, ARE PRIZES

A contest program sponsored by the Cross Plains fire department and home demonstration club, will be presented in the high school auditorium here tonight under the direction of a Warm Springs, Georgia, producing concern.

The program will include three contests: amateur, Shirley Temple and beauty pageant. Winner of the amateur contest is to receive an expense paid trip to a state convention of amateurs to compete for a radio broadcast. Winner of the beauty pageant will be crowned "Miss Cross Plains" and given an opportunity to compete in a statewide event. According to information received by the Review, the winner of the beauty pageant will also receive a screen test. The Shirley Temple contest is to adjudge what local child most nearly resembles the well known juvenile actress, the prize for which is a dress.

Local business houses are to be represented by the various contestants in the three events.

The production is under the direction of the "All State Beauty Features," of Warm Springs, Georgia. The firm claims to have secured movie contracts for several contestants.

Proceeds from the play, for which the admission charge will be 10 and 15 cents, will go to the local fire department and home demonstration club.

LOCAL COUPLE WED IN COLEMAN SUNDAY

Eddie Graham and Georgia Cox, both of this city were married at the home of Rev. J. R. McCorkle of Coleman, Sunday.

They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Nichols, grandparents of the groom, Misses Joe Ben Cox and Thelma Younglove.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Nannie Graham and the bride is the daughter of J. W. Cox, both of this city. The couple plan to make their home here.

TRUSTEES BANQUETED WEDNESDAY EVENING

Members of the board of trustees of the Cross Plains independent school district, their wives, Superintendent and Mrs. Nat Williams and Lewis Norman, high school principal, were honored at a fish banquet in the home economics building Wednesday night, to which Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Underwood were hosts. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Vestal, Mr and Mrs. V. C. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Erwin, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Nat Williams, Lewis Norman and the hosts.

Cross Plains Coach Gives His Opinion Of District's Best Football Players

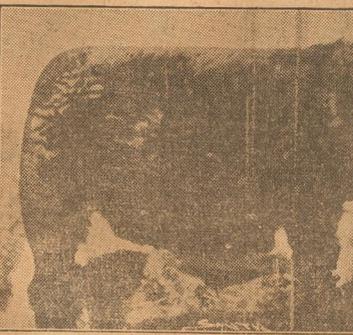

Coach Bill White of the Cross Plains high school Buffaloes this week makes known his choice of an all-conference team for district 23-B.

White named two full teams, with five of his proteges on the number one squad and four on the second team. His selections appear hereunder:

First team: ends: Bertrand, Cross Plains, and Rogers, Winters. Tackles: Flahea, Cross Plains, and Wiesapape, Ballinger. Guards: Blitch, Cross Plains, and Usrey, Cross Plains, Center, Jackson, Winters. Halves: Childs, Cross Plains, and Sheffey, Ballinger. Quarterback: Stoup, Coleman. Fullback: Smith, Rising Star.

TEXAS 4-H'ER WINS $200 SCHOLARSHIP

MEET the champion 4-H livestock boy of the southern states, J. D. Jordan, 15, of Mason, Texas. Each year since his 10th he fed and showed baby beeves. His prizes on the 40 head handled total $1,116.85, and his sales return $5,420.15. For this record and his work as assistant leader and other activities he was awarded second national honors by club leaders in the seventh Thomas E. Wilson annual contest, and prizes including a $200 cash college scholarship presented at the 15th National Club Congress in Chicago. The boy had won state honors in 1934 but was too young to qualify for higher awards. This year's state award fell to Carl Martin, 18, Menard County, who fed 21 baby beeves in five years, winning $354.77 in prizes and returning proceeds of $2,107.22.

TO STUDY BIBLE'S APPLICATION TO 20 CENTURY PROBLEMS

What does the Bible say of Communism? Can teachings of the Nazarene nearly 2,000 years ago be applied to twentieth century problems? These questions and others like them will be discussed roundly next week at the Presbyterian church, in a full week of non-sectarian study of the "book of books"—the Bible.

The series of study will open Sunday night at seven o'clock and continue each evening of next week. The entire public is cordially invited to attend each of these studies, which are believed to be the first of their kind ever held in Cross Plains.

Rev. S. P. Collins, who recently returned from Dallas where he attended a conference regarding the "National Preaching Mission," a movement sponsored by most all churches espousing the Christian faith, will conduct the study. He told the Review Thursday morning that sometime during the week he would like to have an open forum discussion of such questions as may prove most interesting.

The focusing of attention to the Bible and its application to the present social order is in cooperation with the "National Preaching Mission," which was begun in September in 28 of the larger cities.

"The situation in Spain today is clearly prophesied in the Bible. This teaching needs to be brought home to the masses of Americans if the liberties and freedom of worship are to remain a sacred heritage," the Rev. Mr. Collins stated.

BURY MRS. HARWELL AT BURKETT MONDAY

Funeral service for Mrs. Mary Jane Harwell, about 83 years of age, was held at her home at Burkett Monday afternoon with Rev. Shaw officiating. She died at her home Sunday. She had been a resident of Coleman county for 46 years.

A native Texan, Mrs. Harwell was born September 23, 1853. She was a member of the Baptist church.

Survivors include her husband, W. O. Harwell; two sons, Carl of Oklahoma City, and Luke of Burkett; and five daughters, Mrs. Eula Colvin, Cross Plains; Mrs. Ruby Miller, Burkett; Mrs. Henry Stroser, Coleman; Mrs. R. H. Barber, Colorado; and Mrs. J. E. Murray of Brownwood.

Cannery Averaging 500 Cans Per Day; Storage Is Scarce

An average of 500 cans daily is the output of the local W.P.A. cannery, the Review was told Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Louis Helms, supervisor. 20 women and eight men are now employed regularly.

Mrs. Helms pointed out that there are several thousand cans in the cannery that belong to people throughout this trade area for whom canning has been done on a toll basis. She urged that the people who have cans in the cannery be reminded to call for them at once, as storage space is already at a premium. Mrs. Helms stated that a number of sacks have also been left at the cannery. Owners are requested to call for them as conveniently possible.

CITY IS HOST TO 40 HIGGINBOTHAM PEOPLE

Higginbotham employees from Rising Star, Coleman and Cross Plains were to meet at the local store Thursday night, in one of the firm's regular store meetings, at which time ideas of improving service and securing greater business are discussed. About 40 were to attend the meeting last night.

LENGTHY YAM SHOWN IN TOWN SATURDAY

An 18 inch Porto Rico sweet potato was shown in Cross Plains Friday by John Swafford, who grew the lengthy specimen on his place Northwest of town, in the Rowden vicinity.

Mr. Swafford reports that he had about one acre planted to sweet potatoes and that the small tract produced more than 100 bushels of marketable potatoes. The 18 inch yam was one of the longest ever shown here.

BUFFS SCORE 187 POINTS AGAINST 39 FOR OPPONENTS

Football uniforms have been put in moth-balls at Cross Plains high school and attention is centering upon a forthcoming basket ball campaign which looms bright for Coach Bill White's thundering herd. Before closing the records, however, on the 1936 grid season a few reminiscences may prove interesting.

The Buffaloes concluded their schedule with a percentage of 71.4, a tie for third place with Rising Star. First place honors went to Winters and second to Ballinger. Coleman, Bangs, Santa Anna and Mozelle finished in the order named. Cross Plains scored 186 points in seven games to 39 for all of their opponents. The Santa Anna game which was forfeited to the locals, however, increased the year's scoring record to 187—forfeited games county one to nothing.

Some kind of a distinction is that the largest scores run up against Mozelle, Rising Star, Coleman and Bangs, were made by Cross Plains. Standing in this district follow:

| Teams— | W. L. T. Pct. |
|--------------|---------------|
| Winters | 6 1 0 .857 |
| Ballinger | 6 1 0 .857 |
| Cross Plains | 5 2 0 .714 |
| Rising Star | 5 2 0 .714 |
| Coleman | 3 4 0 .429 |
| Bangs | 2 4 1 .357 |
| Santa Anna | 1 5 1 .214 |
| Mozelle | 0 7 0 .000 |

PIONEER TEAM RINGS DOWN CURTAIN WITH 26 TO SIX TRIUMPH

A much improved Seranton high school football team furnished the opposition for the season finale at the Pioneer campus last week. Although overwhelmed by the experienced Panthers, Seranton scored one touchdown and yielded not half as many to Pioneer as in an earlier meeting this season. The score was Pioneer 26, Seranton six.

The first half ended 13 to six. The game was the last on a high school gridiron for the following Pioneer athletes: Anline Plumlee, Howard Tyler, Alvie Clark and Junior Mobley; all have been outstanding this year and will be sorely missed when another Panther team is mobilized.

BASKET BALL TEAMS TO PLAY AT BUFFALO

Cross Plains high school girls and boys basket ball teams will enter an invitation basket ball tournament at Buffalo next week, December 11 and 12.

Cannery Force To Re-Work Old Toys And Clothing To Spread Cheer At Christmas

Christmas will be a happy occasion for scores of children throughout the Cross Plains trade territory, to whom it might otherwise be merely another day, if plans instituted by Mrs. Louis Helms, supervisor of the local W.P.A. cannery, run true to form. Mrs. Helms is making an appeal for old toys, dolls and clothing to be brought to the cannery; promising that the articles will be worked over, decorated, and on the day before Christmas eve distributed to underprivileged children. Already several little "trinkets" have been turned into Mrs. Helms, and they have been re-worked to gladden some youthful heart during the yuletide. "I am sure that there are hundreds of toys in Cross Plains that their owners no longer treasure, yet if re-painted, or possibly mended, would spread a great deal of happiness in unfortunate homes", Mrs. Helms said to the Review. "We plan to devote as much time as is necessary to the assisting of Santa Claus this year and the cooperation of people throughout this trade territory by bringing us discarded toys, clothing and etc. will be deeply appreciated," she concluded.

COUNTY AGENTS TO MINERAL WELLS FOR FARM CONFERENCES

George Clifton of Cross Plains and Roy Kendrick of the Denton Community went to Fort Worth Tuesday morning to attend a three day conference of agricultural leaders gathered from all over Texas with important agricultural men from the nation's capital.

Those men are representing Callahan County for the first time in an official capacity since they were sent as representatives of the four organized community associations, viz: Cottonwood, Oplin, Denton, and Enla. These associations are composed of many smaller communities but take the name of the leading community in each group.

Messrs. Kendrick and Clifton went to this conference uninvited as to any policy to pursue but were left to use their judgment in casting the votes for Callahan County.

"Agriculture has been greatly benefited during the last three and one-half years by governmental aids and it is the hope of the association that it can bring a greater realization to the minds of the farmers of this state that only with their continued cooperation will their permanent benefits be derived," stated County Agent Ross B. Jenkins.

Jenkins, and home demonstration agent, Miss Vida Moore, left Wednesday morning to be in conference at Mineral Wells with other farm and home demonstration agents.

During the conference the agents will have outlined to them the proposed program for 1937. They will study the new community planning that is designed to reach every individual farmer in this state and in these United States.

They will return home Saturday afternoon.

NO QUAIL HUNTING IN COLEMAN COUNTY

While quail season was thrown open in the majority of the counties of West Texas on December 1, nine counties remained closed to quail hunters by special laws enacted by the state legislature.

West Texas counties in which quail hunting is banned are Andrews, Coleman, Ector, Gains, Martin, McCulloch, Midland, Terry and Yoakum.

SATURDAY LAST DAY TO RETURN BLANKS

Tomorrow is the last day for Cross Plains employees to return their social security blanks to the local post office. The blanks, distributed last Thursday, should be filled in and handed to one of the post office staff, or they may be placed in an envelope addressed: "Postmaster, City," and mailed; no postage is required.

It is necessary that all information requested in the blanks be given before the employee can secure an account number.

When an account number has been given, a card certifying that the account has been set up in the name of the employee, will be addressed to him.

"How would you yourself describe your interview?"

Walter considered the matter with an appearance of great conscientiousness. "I would say that in psychology it was characterized by all the emotions and in diction by all the phrases of two men who were ready to beat each other's faces off."

"I get you perfectly," Patrick commented. "In other words, you had an argument."

"Yes." Patrick let silence seep into the room for a considerable interval. Then he said, "I've got to do something now, that I don't any more enjoy doing than you'll enjoy having me do. I hate to ask the questions I've got to ask. Of course, you know as well as I do, what my first question is going to be. I want to ask you what you and Ace were quarreling over."

Something apparently leaped suddenly into his mind for he turned like a shot to Molly. "Molly," he said, "I must remind you that as Walter's wife, you would not be compelled by any court of law to give testimony that concerned him."

"But I want to tell everything," Molly replied with her splendid candid fearlessness. "If there's any detail which Walter can't remember and I can, I shall be very glad to supply it to you."

"Ace and I," Walter said, "were talking about Molly."

"You had quarreled and were quarreling about Molly?" Patrick suggested.

"Yes, we had! We were!" Walter stopped short and looked at Molly. She looked at him. For a perceptible interval, the glances from those two pairs of young eyes interlocked. Never in any human gaze had I seen such a passion of adoration and assurance as was in Walter's look; never such a worship and faith as was in Molly's.

Patrick and I watched that beautiful phenomenon, silent. I felt the tears prickling behind my eyeballs. Patrick's look grew, as I knew it always did when he was touched, definitely more non-committal.

"I think, Pat," Walter started, "that the time has come for me to tell you about my whole relation with Ace Blaikie. It concerns Molly of course."

"Go on!" Patrick said.

"You will remember," Walter said and strangely enough he addressed himself to me, "that I acted as Ace's secretary for two years. You will perhaps remember, Aunt Mary, if you remember dates, that Molly and I became engaged while I was Ace's secretary; that six months later Molly broke the engagement and that, six months later, she became engaged to Ace."

"I remember all that," I said. "I understand," Walter went on, "that Satuit had rocked with rumors about that broken engagement. Almost every theory has been advanced to account for it and almost everything that could be said has been said. None of them is true. Oh, I do think that one or two people conjectured that Ace Blaikie deliberately set himself to the work of breaking our engagement. That was true. But how it was done, nobody but Molly and I have the remotest idea."

Walter paused and his look hardened. I was astonished at the change that came over him. Suddenly he looked, not so much ten years older, as ten years wiser, more knowledgeable, I would put it. His air became hard and unrelenting. I had the feeling that if Ace Blaikie had not been dead, there would have been hatred in it, bitter, biting hatred.

"The exact truth of the matter is that Ace fell desperately in love with Molly. I didn't blame him for that." Here Walter's smile came back. "I have never blamed any man for falling in love with Molly. The wonder to me is that every man in the world is not at her feet. I am not naturally a jealous person and I wasn't and never have been the least bit jealous of Ace. I have known from the moment that we became engaged that Molly loved me and would always love me. But after a while, I could see that Ace was making a genuine play for Molly. I realized that the first thing I had to do was to resign as Ace's secretary. Then I thought I'd have a talk with him and warn him to lay off Molly. I didn't go much further than that in my mind. But I had a dim suspicion that if he didn't keep off, despite the disparity in our ages, I was going to beat the face off him."

"Was Ace conscious of the change in your attitude?" Patrick asked.

"I'll say he was. I did my work, but we never exchanged a word which did not concern business. Now I have to go back and tell you something about myself. It happens that I have a faculty for imitating signatures. When I worked for Ace, I signed two-thirds of his letters and nobody ever noticed the difference. Several times when Ace needed money, he had asked me to make out the check and sign his name to it. Then I would beat it down to the bank and cash it for him. The checks all went through. Naturally I gave Ace the money. Anyway, one Saturday night I gave Ace notice that I was quitting my job. He said he was glad that I'd come to that conclusion because he had several weeks before come to the same conclusion. And then to my astonishment, he said that I'd got to leave town if I wanted to keep out of jail. Naturally, I asked what he meant by that. He said that because he respected my father and mother so much he would lodge no complaint against me if I left Satuit, but if I stayed, he would have me arrested for forgery—on the score of those checks. He said he had a whole sheet of paper on which I had practiced writing his name. That was most likely true. He said that he had taken the checks I had signed to a handwriting expert, all shuffled up with checks which bore his genuine signature and that the expert had picked out the forgeries. I said, 'But you know very well I gave you the money.' He said, 'Yes, but prove it!'"

Walter paused.

I looked from the expression which was wiping out all the young contours of his face, to Molly. Molly's Botticellian hues had turned steely.

"What happened?"

"Well, Pat, I'm telling you about the epoch in my life of which I'm most ashamed," Walter admitted. "I have to admit to you that—that—that—" Walter choked back the epithet and began again. "I have to admit to you that Ace Blaikie put it over on me. I was frightened, not on my own account, but for my father and mother, I did not know what to do."

"Did you tell Molly?"

"At once. She didn't know what to do. We were like the babes in the wood. We clung to each other, but we did not know what to do; and because we were so inexperienced, we lay down to the situation. Molly and I pretended to break our engagement. In reality it was never broken. I left Satuit and went to New York where I got a job, and a good one. I've given that up. I can always get a job. In the meantime, Ace was devilling Molly. I did not know how much, of course. After a while she realized that in order to protect me, she must get engaged to Ace. She wrote me that. But she said, 'I'll die before I marry him.'"

"Have you those letters?"

"All of them. Then one day, I waked up with the realization that, in spite of my feeling for my mother and father, I would rather go to prison and work out my sentence than submit to what I was submitting to. I wrote that to Molly and she wrote back that she agreed with me absolutely. She said in effect, 'Let's get married. If Ace Blaikie chooses to act in this horrible way, let him do it. If you are arrested and tried and sentenced, I'll stand by. And when you come out of jail, we'll take up our life just where we left it and go all the way together.' So I made up my mind to that. First of all, I came back in May to have another fight with Ace."

"Do you remember what you said to him when you met him in Locust Lane?"

"Not all of course. Nobody ever remembers the whole of a long conversation, but I remember telling him that I'd kill him before I'd let Molly marry him."

I drew a long hissing breath of warning. All three looked into my direction and smiled, Patrick in a grim amusement, Walter with a detached humor, Molly in a soothing tenderness.

"I returned to New York. However, Molly and I made our plans. We agreed that just as soon could wind up my job, I'd slip back. Then we'd walk off and get married."

"How did you happen to choose the time of the Stow party?"

"Just because it came at the right time. I had the money I needed. Then I knew everybody in Satuit would be thinking of the masquerade. Besides Molly and I had had so many swell times at the Stow masquerades, that we wanted to go. So, as I told you the other day, I came on secretly and stayed in Aunt Mary's Little House."

"And you had no contact with Ace at all?" Patrick inquired.

"None."

"You did not see him all day Friday?"

"Not until the masquerade."

"And did you speak to him at the masquerade?"

For the first time there was a little asperity in Walter's tone. "I think I told you before that I did not."

"Then I am to understand," Patrick summed it up, "both from you and Molly that you saw Ace Blaikie only once between the time you left Satuit and the night of the masquerade—and that one time was in Locust Lane on Decoration day?"

"That's correct," Walter said. Patrick looked inquiringly at Molly.

"That is correct," Molly said. Patrick bent forward until his elbows rested on his knees. He contemplated with a steady, down-shot gaze his neat and well-polished shoes. "Well," he said after a while, "go home, children! But I'll have to repeat, Walter, stick around! I don't know when I'll need you."

THURSDAY

Again I spent a troubled night. It was not so much that I did not sleep. I slept fitfully; for now exhausted nature was demanding her toll. It was more that dreams bothered me—broken dreams without logic or continuity, great, looming, shadowy scenes which glided with an incredible ease and rapidity, one into the other, blended for an interval and then by some inconceivable magic separated and changed again. Worries! And all major worries! Walter and Molly! Margaret Fairweather! And—my thoughts always broke here and melted into a kind of dim, troubled confusion.

However, I was up and dressed as soon as I had finished my breakfast. When I came downstairs, I found Sylvia occupying herself with Dorinda Belle on the piazza.

"How does it happen that you're not down at the Merry Mere?" I demanded.

"Nancy isn't coming over today," Sylvia informed me. "And I thought I'd stay up here. I think I'll make a new dress for Dorinda Belle."

She was sitting on a little footstool beside one of the Gloucester hammocks. Beside her was her little work-basket.

Over the cushions lay bits of dress material which I had given her from time to time; patches of silk and chiffon; snippets of ribbon; tags of lace. She was threading an enormous darning-needle. I took it that Dorinda Belle's sorry wardrobe—much the worse for play near the water—was about to be replenished.

"This child hasn't a thing to wear!" Sylvia announced in the accents, faintly disgusted, faintly indignant, which I had heard so many times from her mother's mouth. "She is a perfect disgrace. I'm ashamed of her. She's got to have a whole new wardrobe. She doesn't take care of her clothes at all. She gets them dirty. She spills her oatmeal all down the front. She catches her clothes in the blackberry vines. She's a perfectly terrible, terrible child sometimes."

Energetic nodding and vehement emphasis accompanied this diatribe. Of course, like all mothers, Sylvia was enjoying the utter unregeneration of her offspring and of course, like all children, she was quoting grown-up violences of expression. Indeed, when she had finished, she looked up at me with a sunny smile. Then she set her lips again. "She ought to be sent to a reform school."

I wondered where Sylvia had received her education in regard to reform schools and then I remembered that that was a pet phrase with Bessie in regard to naughty children.

"But after all," I remonstrated, "it seems to me, Sylvia, that Dorinda Belle is a pretty good child. She's very quiet about the house.

She treats your other dolls very well."

Compunction apparently hit Sylvia hard. "She's a beautiful child!" she admitted remorsefully. She picked Dorinda Belle up from the hammock. She was still kissing the china face when Patrick drove up to the door.

"I left pretty suddenly yesterday, Mary," he apologized, "but it gave me such a—what my old grandmother used to call—a turn to hear that story from Walter and Molly."

Patrick's eyes had narrowed. Never had I heard silkier accents than those which emerged at that moment from his throat. "Come over here, Sylvia," he wheedled. "I want to talk with you. Bring the buckle with you."

Sylvia pattered over to him and he lifted her onto his lap. She opened her little fist and they surveyed the paste together.

"How it sparkles!" Patrick commented. "How lucky you were to find it! When did you say you picked it up?"

"Saturday afternoon," Sylvia answered with a childish explicitness. "Right after lunch!"

"And where did you say you found it?" Patrick asked, turning the buckle this way and that, so that it flashed fire.

"Near the path to the Spinney." "Where were you going?" Patrick asked in the most casual of tones.

"I was going to the Little House and I saw this buckle in the path. So I ran right back to get a ribbon to tie it on Dorinda Belle."

"Now, who do you suppose," Patrick went on, "that buckle belongs to?"

"Oh I know now," Sylvia announced. "Doctor Marden wore it on his shoe."

"Sylvia," Patrick went on, "did you see anybody go out of the Stow house the night of the masquerade—I mean anybody besides Molly Eames and Walter Treadway?"

I remembered now that Patrick (Continued next Week)

Wheeler-Woolsey Go Hawwye In The Wild West

Kidding the wild and woolly days of the Old West, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey offer an innovation in screen fare with their newest picture "Silly Billies," which is booked at the Liberty Theatre for a midnight preve Saturday night and is to run through Sunday and Monday.

The mad rush of fortune-seekers to the newly discovered California gold fields in '49 forms the background of this hilarious offering, in which the famous nitwits outdo all previous efforts to make the nation laugh-conscious.

Through force of circumstances they find themselves involved with the fate of a covered-wagon train crossing the Indian Territory. The ensuing complications of treachery among the guides, jealousy among the pioneers, Indian attacks and other items, keep the comics in continual hot water.

Their experiences with a band of Indians who set out to torture them at the stake and end by adopting them into the tribe, form one of the funniest sequences ever filmed. The entire picture is crammed with similar side-splitting situations.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Hancock are visiting in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Travis here at present.

Drought Feed Rates Extended

The drought freight rates on feeds was scheduled to expire in this county on November 12 but due to the fact that many farmers and ranchers are yet planning to order feeds in car lot quantities the railroad commission has extended the time for these reduced rates until February 12, 1937.

Several ranchers have already taken advantage of this reduced rate and have made a very substantial saving. The form may be obtained for this reduced rate in the office of the county agent.

1936 Turkey Crop

It is estimated that there are more turkeys being grown this year than in many years and notwithstanding the improved buying conditions the crop is going on the market at much less than 15 cents.

In order to be able to contribute some real information and help in formulating possibly a marketing association for turkeys and chickens the county agent would appreciate having the names of every turkey grower and large chicken producer in the county. If you produce as many as 100 turkeys or more and 300 or more laying hens won't you drop a card to this office and tell how many that you have. You will be put on the mailing list so that you may be sent the most current information that is issued concerning your business. Send in your name at once.

Cotton Supply

The world supply of cotton is the largest in three years according to the outlook report being released from Washington. This vitally affects the farmers of Texas because we are always subject to the law of supply and demand. If the supply is greater than the demand the price is going to go down. Many farmers this year increased their acreage of cotton hoping to clean up on a high price hoping that the outside world would not find out that they were producing more cotton than usual before the crop had been sold.

The crop reporting bureau in the Department of Agriculture, however, keeps such an accurate check

MAKE-UP KIT IS GOOD LUCK OMEN FOR ASTOR

Mary Astor owns a make-up kit showing at the Liberty Theatre her debut on the screen. She considers it lucky and refuses to start a picture unless it is in her dressing room. Once she did not bother about it and she suffered a badly twisted ankle that day. She had it with her during the production of "And So They Were Married," which shows at the Liberty Theatre Thursday night. The critics call it her best film.

Texas Wild West Is Gone; Centennial Did The Trick And Southwest Will Benefit

The wild and woolly Texan, as pictured by his more worldly brethren, is passe.

Before the Texas Centennial, it was conceded there was some excuse for strangers' thinking the natives in these parts were rude creatures, addicted to bowlegs and 10 gallon hats.

But, now that Eastern and Northern visitors by the thousands have had a chance to see the real Texan and his works, Centennial Exposition officials feel no further cause for misunderstanding exists.

As the $25,000,000 exposition went into its closing week, its director general, Harry A. Olmsted, in praising accomplishments to point out that its "intangible benefits" had been enormous.

"Eastern and Northern people, expecting to find the wild, rude West depicted as they envisioned it, found instead great thriving cities in the Southwest and the finest exposition plant ever built in the United States," Olmsted said.

"Not merely Dallas but the entire Southwest will benefit from this revision of conception. The Texan no longer will be pictured as a rough, uncultured cowhand and his homeland, capable of staging only rodeos."

"I take more pride than anything else in this and the fact that there were no disturbances on the exposition grounds to disturb the wholesome, fine serious-minded people who have come here to be entertained.

Some 6,500,000 had passed through the exposition's gates when closing time came at midnight Sunday and the prosperity they have stimulated over the entire Southwest has given exposition officials and business men alike their happiest thoughts in years.

Department store sales up to the highest level of any federal reserve district in the country, rail travel increased 25 to 35 per cent, air travel 20 per cent, hotel business jumped 35 per cent, bank debits up to 25 per cent and tourist travel spread millions of dollars through the region during the exposition's six-month run.

Olmsted was a trifle vague about when they would be able to pay off the bonds through which part of the construction work at the exposition was financed but he indicated bond-holders wouldn't mind if they never were liquidated.

It was the understanding, anyway that the exposition wouldn't make profits for anybody, but would simply serve as a fitting tribute to the Lone Star State's one hundredth anniversary and, at the same time boost business as many another World's Fair has done.

In its first year, the Centennial didn't come close to the attendance enjoyed by a Century of Progress at Chicago but, just the same, it ran well ahead of other recent ventures along the same line.

Chicago had some 22,000,000 visitors the first year and attendance dropped off to 17,000,000 the second year but the Illinois city staged a big recovery with the aid of its fair.

At San Diego, they had 4,784,973 last year and only 1,700,000 this year, while Cleveland, in its Great Lakes exposition, could draw in no more than 2,700,000. Cleveland's show already has closed but will be running again next year.

The new year at the Texas Centennial Central Exposition will open June 12 and probably will run for a year.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Westerman and Jay Mayes visited Mrs. Westerman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Thorn, near Paintrock, Sunday.

L. D. Westerman returned Monday night from a trip to West Texas.

CLYDE JOHNSON IS PRESIDENT OF EULA AGRICULTURE UNIT

At a meeting called at Eula by the County Agent and Home Demonstration Agents Tuesday night Clyde Johnson was reelected president, Robert Stephenson, vice-president, and Lee Smith, secretary-treasurer.

This association was organized earlier in the year but had not begun to function as planned. There were 35 or 40 men, women, and children at the meeting.

President Johnson appointed on his permanent committee, R. L. Payne, Mrs. Herbert Johnson, and Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Thomas as the program committee. On the executive committee he appointed Mrs. L. E. Allen, Mrs. Ross Farmer and Willis Baulch. Lloyd Farmer, Mrs. Pete Owens, and Mrs. J. P. White were appointed to serve on the entertainment committee.

The association elected to meet each second Thursday in every month. At the December meeting it is planned to serve refreshments and to have a lively program of entertainment to be followed by a discussion of community planning for 1937.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Williams Jr., of Brownwood visited here over the week end with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Haught and son of Colorado, Texas, were week end visitors here.

DIX DUELS FOR LOVE AND FOR 'YELLOW DUST'

An alluring mining camp songstress and one of the richest mines discovered in California's mad gold rush are prizes in a duel to the death with gun and stratagem in Richard Dix's new RKO Radio Picture, "Yellow Dust," which is now showing at the Liberty Theatre here.

Leila Hyams is the singer who risks her life and reputation to counter-balance the tremendous odds against the man she loves. Suave Onslow Stevens portrays a merciless gold camp boss as Dix's rival.
