HOSSE FLY MOST DANGEROUS PEST

The fly of world-wide distribution is perhaps the one most important insect pest known to man. As a direct pest it is a source of great annoyance, necessitating, with the mosquito, an estimated annual expenditure in the United States alone of more than $10,000,000 for the screening of habitations. But the importance as a menace to the public health through the dissemination of disease germs. In the maggot stage the fly thrives in all kinds of filth and as adult feeds upon similar materials, thus ingesting the deadly germs of enteric diseases, such as typhoid fever, cholera, cholera infantum, the tropical dysentery, to deposit them hours, or even days, later in fly specks, or these microscopic organisms may be collected on the feet of the fly and later adhere to some food supply over which the fly may crawl in its travel.

Typhoid fever is one of the most serious ailments to which man is subject. There are about 250,000 cases of this disease annually in America, about 35,000 proving fatal. Sixty per cent of the deaths in the Franco-Prussian war and 30 per cent of the deaths in the Boer war were caused by this disease. One investigator has found the bacilli of typhoid fever in the dejecta of house flies twenty-three days after feeding, while another records the presence of this bacilli in flies during a period of two weeks. The possibilities of transmitting typhoid fever are appalling to the layman, when it is remembered that the germs of this disease may be in the system several weeks before diagnosis is possible, continue in numbers six or eight weeks after apparent recovery, and in exceptional cases during a period of several years. There are authentic records of a patient distributing these germs for seventeen years and being the incipient cause of thirteen cases during fourteen years of that period. Other diseases conveyed by this fly are tuberculosis, anthrax, plague, trachoma, septicemia, erysipelas, leprosy, yaws and perhaps smallpox.

In an investigation of the source of bacteria in milk, the Connecticut experiment station studied the bacterial population of 414 flies and concludes that the domestic fly is a dangerous enemy of human health.

The numbers of bacteria on a single fly may range all the way from 550 to 6,000,000. Early in the fly season the numbers of bacteria on flies are comparatively small, while later the numbers comparatively very large. The place where flies live also determines largely the number that they carry. The average for the 414 flies was about 1,125,000 bacteria on each. It hardly seems possible for so small a bit of life to carry so large a number of organisms.

The adult flies feed greedily upon all kinds of filth and offensive offal, attack sores on all kinds of animals, swarm around the sputum and excreta of persons afflicted with loathsome and dangerous diseases, and then, whenever a chance offers, crawl eagerly over food, oftentimes leaving behind a trail of sickness and death.

As palliative measures—screen all doors and windows of dwellings, cover all milk, fruit and other food with netting and use poison and sticky fly paper liberally. To drive them from the house, darken all windows, open a door, and then burn some pyrethum powder, or evaporate a teaspoonfull of carbolic acid over a lamp.

Permanent preventive measures are, however, far less expensive in the end and much more effective than the use of temporary methods. Where horses are stabled, a closet to receive manure can be built at small cost. The effectiveness of fly-tight manure receptacles has been demonstrated beyond question.

BURKETT SOON TO HAVE NEWSPAPER

The Review man in company with T. L. Allison drove over to the beautiful little hamlet of Burkett, in Coleman county, last Sunday morning, and Mr. Allison remained there, basking in the cool breezes of Pecan Bayou and enjoying the hospitalities of the good people of Burkett while the Review editor drove on to Coleman and transacted business in the latter city.

Mr. Allison has so fallen in love with Burkett that he has about decided to go there and engage in the newspaper business. Should he decide fully to make the move the paper will be launched within the next few weeks.

LOCKED IN ROOM BY JEALOUS LOVER

Tulsa, Ok., May 26.—Locked in a room on the third floor the Reader office building, Lizzie Jackson, a seventeen year old girl, was rescued from the alleged forced attentions of her sweetheart, George Wright janitor of the building who was arrested and is held on a serious charge preferred by the girl.

Jealousy seems to have been the cause of Write's actions and the girl was discovered after she had reached a telephone in the office where she was detained and phoned for a messenger boy to carry a note to another suitor. The boy informed the police and the rescue of the Jackson girl and the arrest of Wright followed.

Chili served at the Yone.

FOUR ISSUES CONSTITUTE A MONTH

CROSS PLAINS, TEXAS.

Let a young man at 20 years of age put twenty dollars at interest instead of spending it for tobacco. Then at the beginning of the next year repeat it, and include also the principal and interest of the preceding year, and thus continue to do from year to year until he shall have reached the age of 70: the amount he would realize would exceed thirty thousand dollars. How many of our young men will try it?

Not long ago papers were jumping on Senator Bailey for merely announcing that he would vote against Statewide prohibition. Now, Senator C. A. Culberson comes out and goes further. He writes a strong argument against it, and is giving the "enemy" comfort and aid—and this in spite of the fact that his illustrious father in 1887 wrote one of the strongest arguments and pleas against saloons and in favor of statewide prohibition. Yet not one of the papers—or individuals, so far as I have seen or heard—has said one word against Senator Culberson. Now, this is written to ask why this difference of attitude? Is it possible that it is Senator Bailey personally and not in any manner his views upon prohibition that makes this difference? It looks like it.—Arlington Journal.

"I want the ministers of this conference to teach the people that it is as important for them to read good newspapers as it is to read their Bibles," said Bishop B. T. Raley in his Episcopal address before the Episcopal conference recently.

This the most practical period of our modern civilization and the more practical we make Christianity the greater will be our influence for good upon the masses.

It is right for Christians to talk about long white robes and golden slippers when we reach heaven, but it is useless to try to impress such doctrine when we have neither coat nor shoes down here on earth. This may sound a bit sacrilegious, but it is nevertheless a fact. The world is materialistic and just so long as men live in the world we will be confronted with materialistic ideas and problems which it is our duty to sanctify by applied Christianity."

The expression is made use of to convey the idea of the most extreme filthiness, "as filthy as a hog" is misapplied and is a slander to one of the most useful of all animals in the world. The hog is no filthier than he is forced to be, and if a man was treated as the hog was when "filthy as a hog" was first used, he, too would be about as filthy as the hog was.

The state agricultural station at Wooster, Ohio, has apparently proved the theory that if hogs were fed certain foods which would produce bigger brains they would become better mannered, more cleanly and would provide better pork than hogs treated and fed in the ordinary way in the past. The experiment was started over a year ago with forty head of selected pigs, which were placed in sanitary modern pens and reared on special food made from select grain. They were treated decently and fed properly.

Some month after this treatment and cleanly life, when let loose from the pen these hogs showed their breeding by not associating at all with common hogs on the station only for the hogs, how way of telling food had

Their meat has been pronounced by experts to be the most succulent and tender ever seen, and their carcasses have been sold at a big advance over the regular market price of pork.

The firm which can do the best for its customers, always advertise, and does so liberally. This will apply to dry goods, hardware, grocery, banks, drug, furniture, and all other lines of business. The successful dealer is the one who does a volume of business on a small margin and it was proven ages ago that advertising was necessary in order to serve a volume of business. Watch for those who advertise, and you can depend upon it, that it is the firm where you can get the best value, if you wish to purchase goods or sell farm products, or open a bank account, or borrow money.—Arlington Journal.

The highest duty of an editor is to battle with wrong. This of course brings him in conflict with wrong doers and they are apt to show their spite in various ways. It is quite common for the thin skinned or wounded to rush into the office and shout "Stop my paper!" This class is pointedly shown up in the following fashion: A certain man hit his toe against a pebble, and fell headlong to the ground. He was vexed, and under influence to anger and self-sufficiency he kicked mother earth right saucily. With imperturbable gravity, he looked to see the earth itself dissolve and come to naught. But the earth remained and only his poor foot was injured in the encounter. This the way of man. An article in the newspaper touches him in a weak spot, and forthwith he sends to stop his paper. With great complicity he looks to see the crash, when he finds he only hit his toe against a world that does not perceptibly feel the shock, and injuries no one but himself.

No sensible editor expects to please everybody. Such an editor lays no claim to infallibility and may at times even fall into error. But an outspoken independent journal aiming to support the right and attack the wrong, is such a power for good in any community that well-balanced minds will look over little faults in view of the greater benefits conferred. An editor who is afraid to speak out on public questions for fear of offending somebody, may have an easy time of it; but he will never amount to much as a leader of opinion. Thoughtful people will generally honor independence; and for every subscriber lost in battling for the right he will likely find two to take the place. This according to the law of compensation.—Ossining Republican.

The Callahan County Veterans without a single exception, so far as we have been able to learn, pronounce the Little Rook Reunion the best ever held from point of attendance and happy surroundings for the magnificent program of the occasion. The following Associated Press dispatch sums up the reunion at the close in a sympathetic manner that Callahan veterans say is just to the occasion:

"Confederate Veterans from many states joined in their Twenty-first annual parade here today amidst the blaring of bands and fluttering of banners. The fanfare of trumpets recalled to many spectators the stirring scenes of a war, the tale of which has been the subject of song and story for almost half a century. Following the parade the greatest part of the visitors left Little Rock. Those who remained did so either because of failure to secure places in the crowded trains or for fact that they wished to remain for the Confederate ball, the last event of the reunion. The ball was given in the Auditorium.

"To thousands of the survivors of the memorial conflict of the early sixties the last honors have been paid. Remaining are a few hundred and the fast thinning ranks of the Gray-clad grizzled veterans of many a battle field speak the silent appealing language of history.

"Many voices which at last years joined in giving the 'rebel yell" are now still. Those who are left joined in the famed war cry this year with a feeling betokening their knowledge that this may be for them the last earthly gathering of the soldiers of the Old South.

Under the surface of the 1911 reunion and often outcropped ran this rich vein of pathos, but today while the files of former fighters passed through the city there was evident the dominant spirit of a New South. While the descendants, relatives and admirers representing both present conditions vied with each other in doing honors to the memory of a cause lost by the fortunes of armed condition and surrendered at Appomattox, the reunion spirit typified in the parade, voiced by speakers and shown throughout the proceedings of the convention now ended, was probably best heard in one stanza of a song rendered daily by the Confederate choirs to the air of "Old Time Religion," closing with these words.

"Yes, our country is united, Its good enough for me."

The next reunion goes to Macon, Ga., and some of the Veterans are saying already, "if I'm living and able I'll be there," and let us hope that many of them may meet their expectations to again mingle with comrades of 50 years ago at Macon in 1912.

The following letter and comment was clipped from the Presbyterian Advance. John is a son of Rev. Shell of Sabanno.

Sabanno, Texas.

Dear "Corner:" I have never written before, but I love to read The Advance and the letters that others write. I am eleven years old and I have been going to Sunday-school a long time and love to go every Sunday and study the lessons. I live two and one-half miles from Sunday-school, but I go as much as I can. I have a pet goat which Dr. Nelson (who operated on me for appendicitis when I was eight years old) gave to me. I work him to my little wagon, and ride him, and run races with him, and have a fine time with him. I can write on the typewriter.

John Shell.

We are glad to have this letter from you John, and hope that you will write to us again, and do all you can to help make the "Corner" interesting for the other children. Your letter was well written. We have seen some letters written by professionals that looked no better than yours. You are the second little boy who has written to us about his pet goat. We know that you have a fine time with him and that you are also kind to him and will not ride him too hard.

Mrs. M. P. Campbell died at her home in the east part of town Wednesday afternoon from the effects of carbolic acid. Mrs. Campbell has been ill for sometime and it is supposed that in a moment of despondency she took the fatal dose. A doctor was hastily summoned, but life was extinct when he arrived. The body was prepared for burial by H. Schwartz and shipped to Eastland, where interment took place yesterday.

The deceased leaves a husband and several children to mourn her untimely death.—Baird Star.

"Maw!"

"Edwin?"

"Are we gonna have some strawberry shortcake soon?"

"Why do you ask, Precious?"

"Because it's in season, the paper says the short measure berry boxes are here again."

"Well I will try to make you some in a short time."

"Why can't you make some for supper?"

"Because the time is so short, but there are other difficulties—we are short of butter."

"Say, maw, if the butter is short, does it come from a Shorthorn cow?"

"It doesn't matter—any butter from any kind of cow for shortcake. The main thing is the strawberry."

"I guess it is the main thing maw. Take a shortcake with just one strawberry short and there ain't nothin' left but the cake—and there ain't even enough of that to tell which is short—the cake or the strawberry. Ain't that so maw?"

"I wish my son that you cut your questions short."

"Tell you what maw, you give me a recipe for strawberry shortcake."

"Oh, it is too long—I will let you copy one from the cook book."

"Never mine maw—I can't write shorthand."

"You will shortly make me short-tempered Edwin, with such talk. Go out and play shortstop with the boys while I read this short story entitled 'Short of Dough, or the Long Lost Heir's Strawberry Mark was Tattooed on the Wrong Arm.'"

"But maw—"

"You are annoying me Edwin. In short, you are too long-winded. What do you want?"

"If I was to ask for cake, could I expect a short answer?"

Then just to show that there was nothing short about her "maw" sent him to the store a short distance away for some shortcake, but her peace was short lived, because on Edwin's return in a short time she found he'd been short changed.

CUTS ARM WITH BOTTLE NECK ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Rusk, Texas May 26.—Tuesday morning Eugene Lucas made an attempt to commit suicide in the jail by cutting himself in the arm with the broken neck of a bottle. The attention of Sheriff Martin was attracted about five o'clock by an unusual noise in the jail cells, and on investigation it was found that Lucas had made an attempt to cross the river as stated above. Lucas had written a note to his family previous to cutting himself. The note read as follows

May 23rd, 1911.

Mama, dear darling one; to you and my children:

I will use a bottle neck, which is in my pocket, to cut my arm. Mr. Martin, please send me and my things home this morning to my wife and children and this note with me. Mama, I don't have to go to the penitentiary over her lies for her to rejoice over my troubles. I had rather die here with you and my children at 4 o'clock. Trouble will be over with me; the debt I owe will be paid God bless you all. Goodbye to my darling ones.

From your husband,
Eugene Lucas.

Lucas was tried at the last Nov. term of the District Court and given 8 years in the penitentiary for incest. He appealed his case to the Court of Criminal Appeals, which was affirmed last week, and he was awaiting the return of the mandate from the higher court before being sent to prison. Dr. Cobble was called and took several stitches in the arm of Lucas and he will soon be alright and will probably be sent to the penitentiary in a few days.

Mrs. Wright who has been visiting in Waco and Hico returned Saturday, her sister Miss Lyda Thompson of Hico returned home with her,

TEDDY'S SENTINEL.

Last night I woke up in the dark,
All shivering in my bed
For fear a giant would come in
And roar, "I want you, Ted!"

My sword was in the nursery,
My shield and helmet, too,
And, all defenseless as I was,
S'death, what could I do?

But all at once I sat right up,
As happy as a lark,
Because way down in our front yard
I heard old Rover bark.

And then I knew that I was safe—
The giant 'd never dare
To even touch our picket fence,
With Rover watching there!

NAPKIN RING IS HOME-MADE

Attractive and Pretty Little Souvenir
That Any Young Lady Can Make for Friends.

A very pretty napkin ring can be made from extremely simple materials, all of which are to be found in any household.

To make the ring you need a round piece of wood a few inches long, around which the ring it to be worked. A piece of curtain pole will fill the purpose admirably. A round bottle will do very well.

Now cut several strips of thin cardboard about two inches wide. These are to be pasted one over the other, in order to make a solid, stiff foundation for the ring.

Wherever the cardboard overlaps it must be shaved thin, so that, when glued together, the points will be perfectly smooth. Figure 1 shows just how this is to be done.

Each strip of pasteboard should be long enough to overlap about one-fourth of an inch. After the strips have all been glued together fasten the whole thing somewhere where it will be held tightly, until it is perfectly dry.

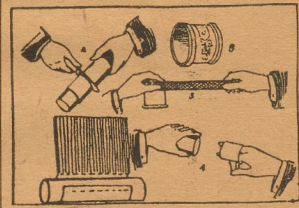

After this cut the ends of the pasteboard perfectly smooth with a very sharp knife. Figure 2 shows this operation.

The next step is to make the raised rims for the ring. This is done by pasting narrow strips of paper one-fourth of an inch wide on top of each other, in the same manner as the pasteboard strips were pasted.

After these strips are solid, they are to be covered with a narrow strip of gayly colored calico, as shown in Figure 3.

The rest of the napkin ring can be covered with a pretty colored paper or with some other pattern of calico. Gold paper makes a pretty covering. Another very attractive covering can be made from flowered crepe paper.

The inside of the napkin ring must be lined with smooth materials. A brown glazed paper is the best. Figure 4 shows the best way to insert the lining with the help of the index and third fingers.

Home-Made Napkin Rings.

Tumbler Through a Table.

Place the spectators at some little distance on a level on the opposite side of the table to where you sit, having spread unperceived a handkerchief across your knees. Take a drinking glass—a tumbler with no stem is preferable—and, covering it with paper, mold the covering as nearly as possible to the shape of the glass. While uttering some cabalistic phrases drop the glass into your handkerchief unobserved, and as the paper retains the shape there is no difficulty in making the lookers on believe the tumbler to be still beneath it. Passing the glass in the left hand beneath the table, you now crush the paper down with your right, when the glass will appear to have been sent through the table. If a cloth is over the table the trick can be more easily performed.

Little Pitchers.

Little Jack one day undertook to entertain a caller of his big sister until she came downstairs.
"Why, Mr. Carson, it isn't so at all. You're just as white as I am, and not one bit black."
"Black, my boy; what made you think me a colored man?"
"Why, I heard Sister Sue say you wouldn't even buy her a soda, you was so awful niggardly."

The Right Kind of a Mother.

Little Mary was inclined to be so stout that the doctor and her mother, greatly to the child's distress, forbade her to eat sugar and candy, of which she was fond.

"Mamma," she finally said, "what a kind mother that boy must have had."

CREAMERY NEEDED FOR CROSS PLAINS

Dispatches from Waxahachie state that the creamery recently established in that city is proving a decided success and the increase in the output of that enterprise since beginning operation has been remarkable. During the first month the creamery was in operation about forty pounds of butter was manufactured weekly; at this time the output is more than one thousand pounds. Creameries are being established in many parts of the state and in most cases are operating successfully and profitably.

A creamery would be a mighty good thing for Cross Plains. Let's investigate the proposition. Every enterprise of this kind helps to build up a town. It creates pay rolls, and that is what we need at present. Every man that spends a dollar in Cross Plains helps Cross Plains just one hundred cents worth.

QUALITY

Whatever reputation we may have made in fifteen years in the piano business we attribute to the QUALITY of the goods we have handled, together with what we could do in the way of fair dealing. ## PRICES.

Having always made our prices as low as the lowest on new goods we are now pricing our used instruments in strict accordance with this practice.

TERMS: Our terms need no comment. They are the best. Quality, Prices, Terms. We have combined these three considerations so as to form a thing you can not afford to ignore, OPPORTUNITY. Read the prices and the terms; come and have the quality demonstrated to you; then you will open the door to the opportunity of getting the best bargain ever offered in a piano.

LET'S GET BUSY AND TURN THIS ROAD THIS WAY

At the usual meeting of the stockholders of the Brownwood North and South railroad this afternoon, held at Carnegie library, Messrs Brooke Smith, Lee Watson and D. F. Johnson submitted a proposition, which as we go to press the stockholders are considering. The proposition is that Brownwood deliver free of indebtedness the work already done on the Brownwood North and South road, which included right-of-way, grade work and station grounds at Owens and May, the party or parties taking over the stock obligating themselves to complete the work as far as May not later than January 1st, 1912, and further agreeing to make an extension north of May if an agreement can be reached with the interested.

It was stated by these gentlemen that they were not at liberty to announce the names of the purchasers at the request of those taking over the road, but said that as soon as all matters were arranged and exchange of papers made they were of the opinion that ample publicity would be made. These gentlemen said they had been working very hard on the proposition for months and that they were not chasing rainbows when they said they were ready to make a transfer of the property and thereby secure a completion of the line as far as May. They were perfectly satisfied with the ability of the prospective purchasers to carry out their part of the contract, otherwise they would not be bothering the people with propositions.

An opportunity was given every subscriber to carry out the original agreement by paying in the full amount of their subscriptions within thirty days. A similar opportunity will be given to every one who has not paid in their thirty per cent of the subscriptions and if they avail themselves of the opportunity a compromise will be effected. In all cases where parties have paid in sums in excess of the thirty per cent of their subscriptions the amount will be refunded in order to equalize the entire burden. If every subscriber pays his thirty per cent there will be no need for raising additional money however, this will be necessary in order to take care of the outstanding indebtedness and deliver the property clear of liens and claims of all kinds.

This kind of an arrangement is not what many Brownwood people had hoped for but when we consider that we have gone through two crop failures, met with adverse legislations, and had the property in such a condition as to depreciate in value, it is very likely that it is the best thing that can be done. There may be some objection even after it is known who the parties are, but the gentlemen promoting the plan have scoured the country in an effort to complete the road and they believe this is the most practical plan. The acceptance or rejection of the proposition is with their individual subscribers. —Brownwood Bulletin.

BANK ROBBED AT DURANT OKLAHOMA

Durant, Okla., May 31.—Two masked men entered the State Bank of Albany, twenty miles from here, yesterday morning at 8.30 o'clock, surprised President P. L. Cain, who was alone, locked him in the inner vault and took $2,000.

After forty minutes in the vault Cain, by pounding on the door, attracted passers by.

BIG-BUGS MUST SERVE THEIR TIME SAME AS OTHERS

Washington, May 31.—The case of Charles W. Morse and John R. Walsh show moral turpitude of the insidious and dangerous kind, to punish which the national banking laws were especially enacted.

President Taft gave this as his reason in refusing to pardon or either grant paroles to the two most prominent bankers ever convicted under the Federal statute. The President announced his decision in a long opinion made public last night.

In denying the Walsh application the President sketched the grounds upon which the pardon is asked, including lack of moral turpitude, technical violations of the law, because he attempted to build up industries which would benefit the country and finally because he is old and not liable to live long, the President says;

Many influential and prominent persons have petitioned for his pardon. They do not fully appreciate, it seems to me, the high importance to society that such criminal breaches of trust as this be severely punished.

"Walsh is 73 years old. His health is not good, but I do not think from the evidence that his condition is alarming or requires his release before the time when his case may be brought before the parole authorities.

In the Morse case the President says the petitioner for pardon used the funds of the bank of North America and other institutions of maintain the price of a certain stock. Severe losses followed and the bank of North America was forced into liquidation.

"Morse exhibited the same fraudulent and criminal disregard to the trust imposed in him in exercising control over the bank that Walsh did," continued the President.

"Indeed the methods taken by Morse tend to show that more keenly than Walsh did he realize the evil of what he was doing, and resorted to more subtle methods to accomplish and conceal them.

"One of the chief arguments made in Morse's behalf is that since the commission of offense he has, out of his own estate, made good the losses inflicted upon the bank. In the first place, the evidence does not sustain the claim that all the losses of the bank have been made good by him, but even if his estate had met all the obligations growing out of his fraudulent transactions, it could not change the necessity for his lawful punishment for the crime he committed.

"Walsh received a sentence of five years; Morse fifteen years. I have no doubt from a consideration of the facts in each case that Morse should have received a heavier sentence than Walsh. Whether fifteen years is too great sentence, I do not now propose to decide. It will depend somewhat upon Morse's future conduct in prison.

This application, therefore is now denied as premature but may be renewed at some subsequent date.

"One point is made that Morse was for ten months confined in the Tombs after he had been convicted and sentenced to imprisonment pending his appeal to the court of appeals and this is said to have been a hardship because he was not permitted to give bail. If this gives him any claim to the reduction of the sentence it can be considered on another application.

"The number of prominent and influential members of society who have asked for clemency in Morse's case is quite as great as in that of Walsh. In my denial of the application in each of these cases I have no desire to minimize the weight of the opinion and prayer in favor of clemency of the petitioners, but for the same reason that I have given above for differing from them in Walsh's case, I must differ with them in Morse's case. The application for clemency in the case of Charles W. Morse is hereby denied, with leave

Daly Doings.

Mr. Daly, the great theatrical manager, was often very sarcastic and personal in directing a play. He would give one actor an imitation of himself which, from Daly's peculiar, slouching manner of swinging about, was grotesque, yet would have the effect of emphasizing the actor's awkwardness or fault. Once an actor had come into Daly's company and being paid a good salary and having had a rather pleasant and easy time thitherto, was mightily pleased with himself. Therefore, when he was first subjected to Mr. Daly's discipline he was considerably perturbed. It was quite evident to the members of the company that Mr. Daly was disappointed in this man. "Will you step down here Mr. A?" said the manager during the rehearsal. "I will show you how you are playing the scene." Then Mr. Daly went through those gyrations, exaggerating the man's mistakes and caricaturing the whole thing. When he had finished he stepped down into the auditorium, where the actor was seated and said: "That is the way you are playing the scene." Mr. A's face glowed with pleasure and he said: "Is that really the way I do it?" "Yes," said Daly. "Well then," exclaimed the actor, "I don't wonder you are paying me two hundred a week!"

The following story of Robert Craig who was with Daly for a short time, also illustrates Daly's attitude toward the actor. Craig was quite a genius in his own peculiar style of acting. One day he started rehearsing and there was nothing he did that suited Mr. Daly. At last, in desperation, the manager rushed up the incline from the auditorium to the stage, exclaiming: "Go down here and I will show you how to do it." Then he went through the pantomime as he wanted it acted. When he had finished he said: "That is the way I want it done." "Just like that?" asked Craig; and then, to the horror of the company, he mounted the stage and gave an absolute imitation of Daly's long, swinging arms and lolling head and telescopic legs, exactly as Daly had done it. The manager never said a word.

APPEARANCE PLUS SERVICE.

Things Are Not Always What They Seem!

For instance when you walk into a drug store and hand a prescription to the man behind the case, it may be filled right, or it may not be. How are you going to tell the difference? You can't tell by the looks, smell, taste, immediate effects, or foace, always; so you must leave it to the druggist who does the work. We are here to fill your prescriptions in case you trust us with them, and we promise to make as close a price as is consistent with good business principles. We will never in any way use impure drugs in filling a prescription for you or your loved ones.

You May Want a Cheap Prescription

But we don't do that kind of business, hence you will have to seek elsewhere. The price of prescriptions has changed less in the past few years than anything you use in your home. We are making the same prices today that we made a year ago. We never boast of having the cheapest prescription men in town. We claim to give you the service and purity first. Then our price is made accordingly, ann not according to what the other fellow charges you. We assure you, however, that if any store fills a prescription for you cheaper than we do, you may know he has used a cheaper preparation than we.

Respectfully,
