TEXAS CENTRAL WILL BUILD TO ABILENE

Eugene DeBogory, Esq., of this city returned over the Texas & Pacific Friday afternoon from Dallas Breckinridge, Cross Plains and other points, where he spent several days on a business trip. He reported light rains on the way home with corn conditions good, bad and indifferent. While in Cross Plains Mr. De-Bogory talked with a Texas Central contractor who told him he had secured contract on ten miles of the route from Cross Plains to Abilene. This contract stated positively that the Texas Central would build into Abilene, indicating that his information was from Mr. Webb the manager.—Abilene Reporter.

CROSS PLAINS, TEXAS.

Cold November will soon be here with its spare ribs and sausage, coughs and croup.

Every good road leading into a town means that many more dollars profit to every merchant in that town.

Incorporation means progress along all lines. It means a clean town. It means better health in the community. It is the longest possible step we could take in the direction of city improvement. Vote for incorporating Cross Plains.

Burbank, with possibly no more brains and energy than Rockefeller has by properly directing his energy gained from his labors the love and respect of all mankind. Burbank will live in the love and affection of the people long after any monument Rockefeller's money can buy has crumbled.—Farm and Ranch.

The great historian, McCauley, says: "Of all inventions, the alphabet and printing press are excepted, those inventions which abridge distances have done more for civilization of our species.

"Every improvement of the means of locomotion benefits mankind morally and intellectually as well as materially.

If the railroads of the country can spend millions annually in straightening their roads and lessening grades and curves, cannot the farmers, aided by the people of the cities, as they would be by bond issues, spend a few thousand on good roads? Highways are the farmers' railways, and easy transportation is as essential to the farmer as it is to the railroad.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—Each citizen of the United States, under an equal division, would have had $34.35 per capita circulation on October 2, according to the circulation statement of the Treasury Department. The total money in circulation amounted to $3,243,182,715, an increase over the preceding month, when it was $3,228,913,634.

On October 1, 1910, the money in circulation totaled $3,164,827,681.

Judge Harmon looks good to us. As a candidate for the Democratic party for governor of Ohio three years ago—a state nominally Republican by 75,000—he carried the state by a substantial majority. As a candidate for the Democratic party for the same exalted position at the last election in that state he increased his majority to more than 100,000. This testifies to the high esteem in which he is held by his neighbors and the voters of his own state. It testifies to his greatness as a political factor throughout the Central North.

In building good roads the first thing to be learned is to make every dollar count. Nothing is so discouraging as a misguided application of funds and this can be avoided in road building by employing competent men as constructors. Because a man is honest and sincere in his work he is not necessarily a good road builder. There are engineers all over the country who make specialties of building roads along scientific lines and their work is the cheapest and most satisfactory. They have made a study of this kind of work, they know what they are doing every foot of the way and they should be consulted.

Dr. Wiley's war on the use of deleterious chemicals or harmful substances to cheapen or preserve food products seems to have finally resulted in a coalition of these food manufacturers and in an actual invasion of the department of agriculture by these interests. Apparently they have brought about the creation of the semi-official board of experts which has been nullifying much of the head chemist's work. They even seem to have Secretary Wilson standing around. Wiley they would dispose of altogether. The question naturally suggested is who is running the department of agriculture, anyway, the government or the food manufacturers?

An intelligent, willing farm hand left a place of employment because as he stated, "for lack of facilities for taking needed baths and place and suitable light for reading during spare time." The farm hand who has pride in his personal appearance and recognizes the necessity of bodily cleanliness for health and comfort and possesses a desire to read for pleasure and profit when he has spare time is sure to find the place he seeks. Such places, it is true, are unfortunately few and far between, but so are farm hands seeking them.—Farm and Ranch.

Last Sunday, October 8, the Chicago Examiner carried what is considered the largest and most expensive newspaper advertisement any store ever used in one newspaper. The ad was twenty pages for The Fair, one of the great department stores of Chicago. The price paid was $22,000.

That is a lot of money to pay for one day's publicity even in a great paper like the Examiner in a great city like Chicago. And yet the Fair management would not as business men do so unless they expected to get returns far in excess of the expenditure for this ad.

And they will, for this ad will make this store the most talked-of store in Chicago and throughout the country for many days to come.

And it is definite recognition of the fact that newspaper advertising is the most valuable to a business that is seeking publicity.

"Railroad Smith," of Atascosa county, is the latest entry in the race for the senatorial toga that Mr. Bailey says he is willing to relinquish. That makes six running—Randell, Ball, Sheppard, Alexander Wolters and Smith. We have tried to enumerate them in the order they came forward. And somehow we have an idea that the list is not complete yet. The six named will each have a following, some a more extensive following than others. That is always the case. But it might develop that the man who could command the greatest following of all has yet to make known his willingness to serve Texas as a United States Senator. We shall see. Stranger things have happened.—Waco Tribune.

Meaning of course that the "Sage of Palestine" may decide to "Bow to the will of the people" and represent Texas at the National Capitol.

The four new counties which the Legislature carved out at the last session, make a total of 249 counties in Texas at present. The new counties are, Culberson, Jim Wells, Brooks and Willacy, and their total area approximately, 8,000 square miles. The new counties are equal in area to the State of Massachusetts, and are larger than either of the five smaller of the thirteen original colonies.

DIVERSIFICATION COMING

A. C. Hindman of several miles north of Spur, was in the Saturday on business. He brought in two bales of cotton and after ginning had the staple stored awaiting a price more consistent with his views of its worth. The one who produces cotton should know more than the other fellow as to what it is really worth. We notice figures with reference to the cost of growing twenty acres of cotton, considering time, labor and average harvest, which places the actual cost at seventeen cents per pound. If it costs 17 cents to grow a pound of cotton, what is the sense in a farmer continuing to grow the staple and selling it for nine and ten cents? Farm diversification is bound to come. So mote it be.—Texas Spur.

WILL MAKE ALL COTTON OPEN BEFORE FROST COMES

Rev. J. A. Newcome, who has had considerable experience in raising cotton, was in to see us one day last week and he said that cotton can be forced to open by plowing deep and close to the roots of the stalk. This, he says should be done about fifteen days before frost is expected in order that the sap may leave the stalk and there will be no water in the boll to freeze. He says the fruit will continue to mature and that the frost or a freeze will not injure it in the least, but will cause it to open so that it will be easily picked. Mr. Newcome has used this system for years and pronounced it a success.—Graham Leader.

EDUCATION

Is the one Great Influence that raises the individual Above the Common

No person, at this late date, can be considered to be truly educated without, at least some training in the art of music.

The coming scholastic year will shortly begin. You should not neglect to allow your child the opportunity to further its musical knowledge. To do this it is of prime necessity that the pupil have a suitable instrument with which to pursue its studies. The CABLE PIANO is an exemplification of all that is Best in a musical instrument, both for the student and the accomplished musician.

It possesses to a superlative degree those splendid and lasting qualities which should tend to encourage the student and help to inspire the artist.

CO-OPERATION OF THE BANKERS AND BUSINESS MEN NECESSARY

Fort Worth, Oct. 9.—Fort Worth Bankers have received advices that there is to be some concert of action on the part of banks of Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City in loaning money to Texas banks to aid in moving Texas crops. Wholesalers and manufacturers are trying to develop new trade in Texas and the plan to lend financial support to Texas interests in handling crops is proposed as a vehicle of reciprocity.

Figures show that Texas buys annually from other markets about $400,000,000 worth of merchandise. St. Louis has enjoyed about 30 per cent., New York 40 per cent., the remaining 30 per cent being divided. The banks generally get the collections or exchange of these heavy purchases.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

By A. W. M. J. Y.

NEWSPAPERS DURING THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR.

At the outbreak of the Revolutionary war thirty-seven newspapers were being published in the Colonies. Most of them were published in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts. Of the thirty-seven, twenty-three were devoted to the cause of the patriots; seven, possibly eight, favored the English, and the balance were supposed to be neutral. Of the twenty-three patriotic papers, five went over to the loyalists in the course of the war. Thus not quite one-half of the total number supported the cause of the Revolution from start to finish. Most of the editors and proprietors whose papers deserted the patriots' cause fled across the border into Canada toward the close of the war, and forgot to come back.

PROFIT IN PEANUTS

Money Making Crop Anywhere They Will Mature.

No Other Single Article of Human Consumption, Not Regular Staple of Steady Diet, So Popular as Little Goober.

Where peanuts are grown as a crop they prove as satisfactory as a money-maker as the staple crops of any kind elsewhere, and I sometimes wonder why more people scattered over the country do not grow them, at least for home use.

There is no other single article of human consumption that is not a regular staple of steady diet that is so universally popular as the peanut, says a writer in the Farm Progress. It is seldom that you find anyone who does not eat them; and the rule is that when a person gets a small bag of peanuts and eats one or two, he will go on eating them till he finishes the bag.

Peanuts are grown commercially in several states, but mainly in Virginia and Tennessee. There is no reason why they should not be made a profitable crop in any other states of the same latitude or farther south.

They will grow very well in almost any part of the country, but owing to the long time they take to make their growth they do not mature in ordinary seasons farther north than the latitude of southern Virginia.

But it is possible that the plant may become acclimated to regions much farther north; or, rather that a more quickly growing variety may be developed that would mature in the shorter seasons farther north.

If corn can be made a profitable crop in the Dakotas, it seems to me that peanuts might be also made to comply with the conditions that are normal in that latitude. Or, if no change can be made in the peanut itself, probably some other treatment in the cultivation may be adopted that will practically lengthen the season.

For instance, if the nuts that are to be planted are sprouted either in a hotbed or by artificial heat in the house, before the weather is normally warm enough to plant them in the regular way, there may be a gain of several weeks in the growing season of the nuts.

This is a very small matter, if it can be made to really gain two or three weeks of time, and would carry the peanut as a special crop, if not a staple, several hundred miles farther north.

But why cannot the department of agriculture develop a new variety of peanuts with a growing season much shorter, that they will mature even as far north as the north line of Missouri? This would add a crop to a wide region of country that is valuable in more ways than almost any other single crop of this country.

While the lowly peanut is not much thought of as a staple crop or staple article of food, it is really entitled to more serious consideration. It should not be considered in a trivial light merely because it is mainly a favorite delicacy with children.

It is my opinion that peanut butter will be found a cheaper and more sustaining food for laboring people than meat, and the one that possesses the advantage of keeping qualities far superior to animal food of any kind. Moreover, owing to its high content of actual food values, it requires less of it to create a number of units of energy than any sort of animal food.

So I think the peanut is entitled to the serious consideration of those who study food values, and teach the rest of the world how to practice the soundest economy.

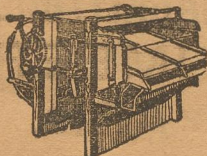

FANNING MILL IS VALUABLE

By Judicious Use of Machine Farmer Is Enabled to Increase Crops and Destroy Weeds.

No farmer can get anyone to take the same pains in grading his seed that he would himself. Some farmers claim that it does not pay to clean grain.

It is a fact that it does not pay very large returns to clean and grade grain before selling it, but by grading our own seed we can materially increase the yield of our small grain crops.

The corn crop of this country has been increased millions of bushels by intelligent seed selection. All other grain crops can be improved by grading the seed, so that only good, plump, healthy grains, free from all foul weed-seeds may be sown.

Fanning Mill.

The fanning mill, judiciously used, will do much to increase the yield of every small-grain crop and assist in keeping our fields free from noxious weeds.

It will take cockle out of wheat, buck-thorn, plantain out of clover, in fact it can be adjusted so as to handle all kinds of grain and weed-seeds.

If you decide that it pays to sow good seed and to keep your fields free from noxious weeds, then do not hesitate to invest a few dollars in a fanning mill.

PERILS OF MODERN LIFE

Aviator Cites Case of Jorkins to Show Walker Is in as Great Danger as Flyer.

Miss Harriet Quimby, after one of her daring aeroplane flights at Mineola, L. I., smiled lightly at a reporter's mention of the danger of flying.

"Oh, there's danger everywhere," she said. "The walker is in as much danger almost as the flier. Did you never hear about the fate of Jorkins?"

"Jorkins, poor fellow, came from the country to New York. The noise and confusion of New York quite upset him. Threading his way across the busy street, he thought he would go mad.

"Clank! Clank!"

"Jorkins leaped to the right just in time to escape a motor car.

"Ding-a-ling! Ding-dong."

"He darted to the left from under the very wheels of an automobile fire engine.

"Hum-m-m!"

"Jorkins, looking up in the air, now saw a monoplane, its tail smashed, falling straight upon him. He glared wildly round, caught sight of a manhole, lifted the cover and jumped down into a black hole just in time to be cut in half by an underground electric train."

STRADIVARI.

Antonio Stradivari, the Italian violin maker, was born in 1649 and died in 1737. He was the pupil of Nicoli Amati, in whose employment he remained until about 1679, when he began making violins on his own account. He settled the typical pattern of the Cremona violin, and his instruments, for tone and finish, have never yet been excelled. His improvements consisted chiefly in lowering the height of the arch of the belly, in making the four corner blocks more massive, in giving greater curvature to the middle ribs, in altering the setting of the sound holes and in making the scroll more massive and prominent. He reached his greatest perfection in his art about 1714. He also made many other kinds of musical instruments, but it is on his violins of all kinds that his fame rests.

There are many so-called Stradivari violins in existence, but few, if any of them, are genuine.

NATIONAL AIR FOR CHINA.

The last expiring act of the board of rites was to recommend a change in official music, which the emperor approved by decree of July 15. It appears that the Marquis Tseng evolved a national air when in London as minister thirty years ago, but it has never been officially notified to the army and navy. The western nations, and even Japan, all know each other's airs, which they strike up at banquets and solemn occasions; the make-shift air now semi-officially used by China is far from being suited to her dignity. It is not proposed to abandon entirely the old Chinese principles of music, but the envoys abroad have been directed to send all foreign national airs to the musical department of the board of rites, when competent trained ears will judge how best to combine Chinese notions with foreign and evolve something really good.

A SHINING METAL.

There is a legend among the peasants of Cornwall in England that at night there may be observed a faintly-shining mineral among the rocks brought from the mines. That this is not pure fancy has been proved by Professor Strutt. A specimen of the mineral autunite, which is also found in Wales, was sent to him from Portugal because of its luminosity. He finds that it closely resembles artificially prepared salts of uranium, and that its luminosity is due to spontaneous radio-activity. The light it sheds is stronger than that of nitrate of uranium. Upon parting with its water of crystallization the mineral loses its luminous property.—Scientific American.

Magnate Makes Wrong Guess on College Man Who Applies for Job.

The young man entered the magnate's office.

"So you want a job, do you?" the latter gruffly remarked. "Just out of college, no doubt?"

"Yes."

The magnate sized him up.

"Think you know it all, eh?"

"No, sir."

"Imagine you own the earth, no doubt?"

"No."

"Believe yourself to be a much better man than your father?"

"No."

"What was the subject of your graduating essay?"

"Human Dynamism."

"Remarkably practical. Too clever to do any real work, of course?"

"No. I want to learn the business."

The sneer on the magnate's face deepened.

"O, I've heard of you college smarties. The newspapers are all on to you. If I gave you a job in a week you'd be showing me how to run the business, wouldn't you?"

"No, sir."

The magnate stared at him.

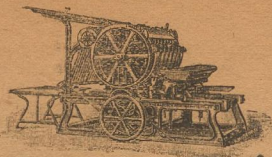

"All right, son. That will be your desk over yonder. You'll get $25 a week as a starter, with an increase as soon as you familiarize yourself with the work. Good luck to you."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

around a pool hall is generally a job hunter and remains so. He is not wanted, because there is nothing in him.

What makes you say he is a job hunter? He isn't. A job is the last thing he wants. He would rather mow grass with his teeth in his mother's back yard than work. He would rather let his sister support him by taking in sewing. The healthy young loafer who spends his days rolling cigarets with his fingers and rolling smut out of his mouth with his tongue is quite the sorriest specimen any town can show to prospectors. In fact, towns which have many such ought to be careful to lock them up until the company leaves. Little boys should be seen and not heard, but idlers in long pants should be neither heard nor seen.—Dallas News.

On Friday evening of last week
Miss Ollie McGowan entertained a few friends at the Coffman home.
The guests were met at the door by the hostess and ushered into the hall where Miss Mable Hall presided at a beautiful hand painted punch bowl. After many enjoyable games of Rook and Mr. Jim Lawrence winning high score, dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.
Those present were Misses Gibbs,
Tyson, Davis, Mable and Nelle Hall Messers Carter, Neeb, Taylor and Parker Bond, Clapp, Releighford, Reeder and Lawrence. All declared Miss Ollie a most charming hostess.

A young woman recently sent this extraordinary request to the editor of the religious journal subscribed for at her home: "Do you think it right for a girl to sit in a man's lap even if she is engaged?"

The editor spent some time in prayer, and then answered her as follows:

"Yes, if it were our girl and our lap. Yes, again, if it were some other fellow's girl and our lap. But if it were our girl and some other fellow's lap, emphatically no. We don't approve of such frivolity.

"I am glad to commend the work of the country newspaper. It can be owned by the editor who edits it and therefore, has behind it a conscience and character which can be identified, which is close to the people and can give voice to the sentiments of its readers. We have to depend more and more upon the country papers for an educational work that is necessary to a correct understanding of public questions.
There is a lot of difference between a man who writes what he is told to write and a man who writes what he believes is a message to his readers
At this time when the great dailies are becoming more and more business enterprises rather than ex-ponents of opinion, and especially when a number of them have become the property of predatory interests, the country newspaper increases in importance. — William Jennings Bryan.

The Review is for incorporating Cross Plains. We believe it is the very best thing we can do at present Cross Plains has the name of being one of the most progressive towns in Central West Texas. Outsiders look on her as one of the wonders in the town building line. Probably no other town in the state experienced such a rapid growth as this one has. We don't believe the voters will turn down this proposition when correctly presented. The taxes will never be noticed, and the good derived from incorporation will so far overbalance any small evils that might arise under city government, that we can see no argument against incorporating. Do your duty toward your home town.

TO MY PATRONS AND FRIENDS

On the account of contracted sickness through the entire summer I have not been able to attend to my practice. However I am now able to work. Calls filled promptly day and night. I came to your aid in sickness, please return the favor and prove your appreciation by coming and making settlement at once, as I have obligations to meet. I assure you that I'll treat you right. It has been falsely constructed by some insignificant being in regard to my prices. I make my prices to suit the hard times. I know not how to extend my appreciation to those that have proven friends by telling me these things.
Come to me and see for yourself before listening to gossipers. I have also learned a great deal that has been told on me in regard to various things which is absolutely false, for I strive to do right in all things.

All examinations and general consultations, especially ladies, are done at my residence, and if requested strictly private and confidential.

Should you call for me at the City Drug Store and not find me ring my residence, when wife is away from home I will leave notice with central as to my where abouts.

Thanking my patrons and friends
for their many favors shown me,
I am yours to serve at any hour, so please call,

NEW AUTO RULES FOR NINETEEN-TWELVE

1. Upon discovering an approaching team, the autoist must stop off side and cover his machine with a blanket painted to correspond with the scenery.
2. The speed limit this year on country roads will be a secret and the penalty for violation will be $10 for each mile an offender is caught going in excess of it.
3. In case an automobile makes a team run away, the penalty will be $50 for the first mile, $100 for the second and $200 for the third, etc., that the team runs, in addition to the usual damage.
4. On approaching a corner where he can not command a view of the road ahead, the automobile must stop not less than 100 yards from the turn, toot his horn, ring his bell fire a revolver, halloo and send up three bombs at intervals of five minutes.
5. Automobiles must be reasonably painted—that is, so they will merge with the pastoral ensemble and not be startling. They must be green in spring, golden in summer, red in autumn and white in winter.
6. Automobiles running on country roads at night must send up a red rocket each mile and wait ten minutes for the road to clear. They must then proceed carefully, blowing their horns and shooting Roman candles.
7. In case a horse will not pass an automobile, the autoist will take the machine apart as rapidly as possible and conceal the parts in the grass.
8. In case an automobile approaches a farm house when the roads are dusty, it will slow down to one mile an hour and the chauffeur will lay the dust in front of the house with a hand sprinkler worked over the dashboard.—Carrollton Chronicle.

OLD WAX AND I

Old Wax and I lived side by side and never had a row; until one day he lammed the hide off my old brindle cow. He said she ate a suit of clothes that hung upon his line, and so I biffed him on the nose and he soaked me on mine. We owned our homes, were out of debt had money in the bank that day he lammed my brindle pet, and I gave him a spank. Awhile we stood around and cussed and wagged the fluent jaw, until, surcharged with deep disgust, we turned and went to law. Oh, that was bum and beastly sport! Our lawyers, smooth and deft, conveyed the case from court to court, and taxed us right and left at the poor farm. We saw our fading years! I leaned back and heave a sigh and he bursts in. Sometimes we ramble up the road, where once we did our biz; a lawyer lives in my abode, another lives in his. Then to the poor house back we go, and seek our couch of straw, and think of joys we used to know before we went to law.—Walt Mason.

While Texas had made remarkable progress in the last twenty-five years its development has hardly been in keeping with that of the press of the state," said Will H. Mays, editor of the Brownwood Bulletin and former President of the National Editorial Association, in addressing the Commercial Secretaries and Business Men at Dallas.

"Not many years ago," he continued, "the average country paper was published in a dingy, dirty building around the corner in the rear of some abandoned shack. It was printed from an equipment that could readily be loaded into a one horse wagon and moved on to the next county when the publisher's credit was exhausted and he could no longer get his 'patent insides' from the express office because it took cash, nor fill his tables at the saloons.

"Now most of the papers of the state are published in their own buildigs, as good buildings too, as can be found in the towns where they are published; the best presses are used, typesetting machines are worth thousands where they were formerly worth dollars—were mere junk heaps, in fact.

"In my town, it used to take three banks to support three newspapers; now two newspapers support five banks and appear to do it pretty well, too.

"Whatever has been accomplished by the Commercial Secretaries has been through the co-operation of the press of the state.

"A few years ago when it looked as if the entire state would be eventually planted continuously in cotton, the press began to preach diversification, until now nearly every farmer is a diversifier.

"The movement for good roads would have died in its infancy had it not been for the press of the state. Until the press took up the campaign for civic improvement but little had been done in Texas to improve conditions in cities.

"Do you realize, gentlemen, that in newspaper offices in every section of this nation Texas papers, in their respective classes are regarded as the highest type of American journalism? And when that is said it means the highest type of journalism in the world for the American press leads the world."

Are you thinking of papering your house soon? If you are, come to the City Drug Store. We have a large stock of wall paper and some as pretty patterns as you ever saw too. We are going to sell at cost. Come, see and be convinced.

DON'T GROW COTTON ALTOGETHER. DIVERSIFY

Let no one imagine that the South western farmer must continue to grow cotton to succeed on his farm. There was a time when perhaps it was necessary to grow cotton in the South and Southwest. That time has passed. So long as the country was new, transportation facilities poor and market for other crops inadequate, cotton growing was almost imperative. It was the only staple. But conditions have changed; the South has gained marvelously in urban population; railroads are more numerous; manufacturing plants have been erected and our commercial life is prosperous. This makes a good market for meat, milk, fruits, truck, grain, etc.

The demand for other crops is increasing and this is favorable for diversification. Farm labor, too, is scarce and this is in favor of intensified farming, that is, making a few acres produce large crops, crops that bring large returns for the labor needed in production.

The speculators are "boosting" the cotton crop this year for the purpose of hammering down prices. The idea is to get this crop at low prices and perhaps cause an increase next year, upon the supposition that it will take more bales to produce the same money next season. But the best authorities in the Southwest estimate the probable yield much lower than the speculators and at figures within the apparent demand. Be the estimate as it may, there are many reasons why diversified farming should be practiced next year. When the farm produces feed for the animals and products for the family table the manager is independent and can market his cotton at his pleasure. Moreover, if he is clear of debt and has full barns and products for the home he will have little interest in cotton because there are generally surplus crops, animals, etc., that will afford the cash needed to run the farm until the next crop can be gathered.

There are many crops that may be grown as a staple and these are usually as profitable as cotton. Those who find cotton profitable will have no reason to change to other crops, but let no one think that there are no other crops that pay profits in the Southwest.—Frum and Ranch.

MOVEMENT TO DIVERT TOURIST TRAVEL THROUGH TEXAS.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 13.—At the convention of the Commercial Executives which closed here today, a movement was inaugurated by the Texas representatives for diverting the large tourist travel from the East to Pacific coast points through Texas cities and towns. Attractive inducements will be offered and the movement will be furthered by the Commercial Secretaries and Business Men's Association of Texas. A special effort will be made to turn the tide of travel en route to the Panama Exposition through Texas.

EL PASO TRADE EXTENSION TRIP.

The Business Men of El Paso have just finished their first Trade Excursion among the people of West Texas, and a large section of Mexico, including the Pecos Valley, and are very enthusiastic over the success of the trip. They are unanimous in the belief that such events will do more to cement the business and friendly relations between El Paso and the neighboring towns than anything else they can do. They entertained and were entertained and made scores of business and personal friends.

It is impossible to comprehend the lasting benefits to be derived from these trips and many commercial clubs of the state are making them a permanent feature of their work.

TRADE WITH MEXICO GROWING.

Reports from Brownsville indicate that the trade with Mexico, since the restoration of peace in that Republic, is increasing by leaps and bounds and that the traffic of freight and passengers to and from that city is so heavy that extra forces are necessarily employed by the railroads practically all the time. Mexico is a heavy importer of Texas products and a large per cent of the produce shipped into Mexico goes through the city of Brownsville. Reports from other towns along the border show that trade between the two countries has resumed its former proportions and that no evidence of the recent revolution is in evidence on either side of the River.

CITIES TO HAVE SPECIAL DAYS AT LAND SHOWS.

Houston, Texas, Oct. 14.—Invitations have been issued to fourteen cities of Texas, granting them special days at the Land Show to be held at Houston in January, 1912. Each city, having a special day will have charge of the ceremonies on that day. Speeches of welcome and response will be made by representatives of the Exposition and the Mayor and citizens of the city having the special day.

One of the prominent features of the land show will be the display of "Made in Texas" articles. This will give Texans a chance to see just what goods are manufactured in their own state and promises to be one of the most attractive exhibits.

It is well for the residents of any community to strive constantly for road improvement, good roads mean continuous growth of the community.
