

PEANUT FACTORY AT ABILENE.

After a considerable delay on account of not getting paper fixed up promptly, dirt was broken yesterday for a large, 1,000 bushel per day peanut factory for this city.

Eugene DeBogory is the promoter and owner, and when seen this morning by a reporter, stated that the factory would be in active operation by Oct. 1st and would begin to buy peanuts just as soon as the new crop was on the market and expects to buy this fall 100,000 bushels of peanuts turning loose among the peanut growers nearly $100,000 in cash and employing twenty or more hands, mostly women and girls.

Mr. DeBogory says the factory will buy all the peanuts raised in the West and will probably have to ship some in from other sections, but he hopes in a few years to so stimulate the growth of peanuts in this country that he can get all the nuts he can use in this immediate section.—Abilene Reporter.

The Annual State Reunion of the United Confederate Veterans will be held at Cleburne on the 3rd and 4th of October, and that city is making very extensive preparations to entertain a large number of the Confederates, their families, and friends. Many thousands of visitors are expected on this occasion.

One of the principal features of the program will be a big sham battle between the Ex Confederates and Regulars. Arrangements have already been made for this, and the details are being worked out. It is proposed to give a vivid exhibition of a real battle.

Any information will be gladly furnished by the Entertainment Committee, and parties desiring such should address Reunion Entertainment Committee, Cleburne, Texas.

Among the several amendments to the general basis schedule adopted by the state insurance board is one which provides a credit of one per cent on key rates for teaching in all public schools the principles of fire insurance and methods of fire prevention from some standard and reliable textbook or work on the subject.

For the maintenance of a solvent standing reward by any city or town, any civic or commercial or other organization, of a sum equal to one dollar for each hundred population, such reward in no case to be less than $100 for the arrest and conviction of any one guilty of arson a two per cent credit is given on the key rate.

This card is applicable only where placards are properly posted at all times, in all public buildings of the city or town showing that such reward is offered, by whom and the amount thereof. In case the reward is offered by any party other than the city or town, the party offering same must file a good and solvent bond guaranteeing the prompt payment of the reward.

A real estate deal was completed here Monday whereby Jim Cross of the Burkett country, becomes owner of the Central Hotel, now run by Mrs Mit Johnson, and Frank Bryson who has owned the hotel for some time, becomes owner of Mr. Cross' farm. Mr. Cross gets possession the first but has not decided when he will move to town.

He may rent the hotel out for a while. S. F. Knight negotiated the deal.

Stamford, Texas, Sept. — The third quarterly meeting of the Central Texas Agricultural Association held in this city has adjourned after an enthusiastic session. The gathering was more in the way of a get-together meeting in which the country and town people joined hands and worked for a common end. Peter Radford of Farmers' Union addressed the gathering and spoke highly of the co-operation given his organization by the Texas Commercial Secretaries and Business Men's Association in securing the support and assistance of the bankers of the state in lending six per cent money on distress cotton. Several other cities in Texas are contemplating holding these get-together meetings regularly in order to create a better understanding between the farmers and the merchants.

Saturday a week ago J. B. Cutbirth and wife were in town from their ranch. We should have mentioned this last week and wrote up an item with that view, but copy was overlooked somehow. Why the Review is particularly interested in this is that it is reported Mr. Cutbirth is contemplating building a home here. Mr. Cutbirth, as is well known, heretofore has had his headquarters at Baird, but Cross Plains is about 15 miles nearer his ranch than is Baird, and of course is therefore the logical point for his headquarters. We do not wish Baird any loss, yet we hope to be the gainer by the addition of Mr. Cutbirth and family as residents.

We acknowledge receipt of cash on subscription from Dr. Rush to his father in Ardmore, Okla. also from Barney Lindley of Burkett for himself and from Bob Norrell of Baird. May their tribe increase.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Mancill last Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, Mrs. B. M. James and D. E. Jones of Rising Star were united in marriage by Rev. E. Stubblefield Mrs. James arrived home from a visit in Colorado Sunday morning, and did not make her intentions known until an hour before the ceremony took place. Immediately after the ceremony they left in an auto accompanied by Miss Fay Davis and Mr. Spencer, for their future home in Rising Star. For many years Mrs. James was a resident of Cisco, and while living here made a host of friends who wish for her every enjoyment that can come to her in life. Mr. Jones once lived in Cisco and was engaged in the mercantile business, he is now a banker in Rising Star.—Cisco Round-Up

Mrs. Andy DeBuck, who lives over the line in Coleman county, was in town Saturday. Mrs. DeBuck said that her husband and sons Jack and Bid, were in the south part of Texas looking out for a new home. It has been commonly reported that Mr. and Mrs. DeBuck had sold their home, but she says that such is not exactly the case as they expect to find a suitable home before selling out.

Rube Lee, Saturday, bought out Charley Maugum's confectionery, which is located on 8th street just to the rear of the Farmers National Bank. Mr. Lee is re-arranging his place of business and is preparing to serve short orders. Mr. Maugum has not decided what he will do.

TO THE PEANUT GROWERS

I am writing this in response to requests from local peanut growers. If my experience in the cultivation and harvesting of this crop can be worth anything to the public, I will gladly give them advantage of said experience.

I notice that some farmers are now plowing up their peanuts. I am inclined to think that this is too early. Of course the continued dry weather in the summer months may have tended to mature the nuts rather early, but do not think that they are ready to harvest yet. Only the immature nuts are sprouting, and they would be no good if saved now. I do not think that the mature nuts suffer any danger from sprouting from the late rains, which may help develop the very young nuts. Of course the time to plow up the nuts depends somewhat upon time planted, rains, cultivation, etc., but think that this rather early for any crop that I have examined.

I would advise also that you shock your vines around an upright pole with nuts in, and not in wind rows as some are doing. My plan may be some more trouble, but it will more than pay you in the better quality of the nut and the hay, also, resulting from the protection thus given from sun, wind and rain.

Yours truly,
S. N. Strahan.

Those grain drills are here. Come and get yours.—Carter & Kenady.

Of course the Review wouldn't say so for anything, but Wednesday's chill winds reminded us that an exchange of subscriptions for a week would not be amiss. Newspapers do not suit us very well for fuel.

THE CROSS PLAINS REVIEW

Review Printing Company

One Dollar a Year. Strictly Cash in advance.

Entered at postoffice at Cross Plains, Texas as second class mail matter.

OUR ISSUES CONSTITUTE A MONTH

CROSS PLAINS, TEXAS.

If you are friendly toward us, speak a good word for your town—and the Review. If you like the Review, tell your neighbor about it. If you don't like it, why, please don't say anything, not even to us.

Statistics indicate that 40 per cent of the flour imported into Cuba comes from Texas. A mill at Wichita Falls and another at Galveston, ship the largest per cent of this amount. Texas is a great state, and not alone as a cotton producing state. The Cross Plains country is not without representation in the production of the State's wheat crop.

The State Experiment Station near Pecos, in the irrigated country, is doing well with a variety of the Egyptian long staple cotton. A bulletin from the Federal agricultural department recently issued states that the Pecos valley is perhaps among the best sections in the world for the growing of long staple cotton. This season's crop promises an average of more than a bale to the acre.

This editorial business is kind of a new calling to us. Upon our first taking charge of this glorious and highly remunerative (?) work, we deliberated with our inner-self whether to use the "editorial we," or use "the Review" or the third person pronoun as referring to it, when speaking editorially. But after trying out both methods we have decided to be a law unto ourselves and use either method, or neither, or both methods just as seems best.

Cotton has been bringing this week as high as 11:50, but the average for middling cotton has been from 11:30—40. Last Saturday, local buyers say there were fifty bales sold on the streets, from the Burkett country. The merchants have sold considerable cotton this week.

We wish to thank those of our friends who have been so thoughtful as to come to us and personally compliment our last week's issue of the Review. We feel that our readers were well pleased with our efforts, and just here we might say, that it does require "some effort" to put out a good paper, even if it is only a six column, four page sheet. It is our aim to give you a good local paper. Don't expect too much news—we had a two weeks run last issue.

The Review notes that the Smithsonian Institution will soon institute an investigation of the sun, our dear and familiar old sol. The scientists got one this time on the politicians, but it is a wonder for the sun is a sort of public service concern—a dispenser of light and heat, and sometimes discomodes those thinly clad on account of poor service, and again bringing the honest sweat from the toiling millions—politically, it should be a fit object of investigation.

That part of the work of the state insurance board proposing to lower the key rate of insurance in towns where the principles of fire protection are taught in the public schools and also in towns where a standing, solvent reward is offered for the conviction of any one guilty of arson, notice of which is made elsewhere in this issue of the Review, is to our way of thinking very commendable. This gives each town an opportunity in a measure to lower its key rate of insurance, and at the same time encourage both the teaching of a useful subject in our schools, and the punishment of a low crime entirely too prevalent.

Hico is going to pull off a big Fall Fair, Oct. 1-4 inclusive, according to information from that town. For the amusement and edification of the visitor there have been provided exhibits of farm products, live stock, art, etc., music, aeroplane flights, wild west and moving picture shows galore, etc. ad finitum. If you don't mean to be in Cross Plains during that period, why, do the next best thing—attend the Hico Fall Fair.

Good Roads.

The Review believes in good roads. All Review readers, in a way, likely believe in them. But the writer has particularly good reasons for his belief. If you had been reared in the black land belt and at an early and tender age, had have dragged your weary way (with several pounds of that black land attached) two miles over the public roads to school, to say nothing of late experiences in traversing the roads to market and elsewhere, you would also be a devout believer in good roads. In those black land sections far removed from any quantity of stone, and a great part of the county is located thus, no practical plan of road building has ever been hit upon. But not so in the West. The prairie belts here are near the stony hills. And the sandy belts can be clayed. So the West can get roads at a cost that is not prohibitive. The Review understands that the county is doing some claying on roads leading here, and supposes the work will continue. The community should be most heartily in accord with this work.

Business Hints

Don't waste money on general advertising; state something specific and keep a pounding at the public.

To be successful is not merely to accumulate wealth but to assist in the up building of your community also.

After all is said and done, it takes laboring men to build cities.

Hunt the buyer who wants to buy and the seller who wants to sell through "ad" columns; then your deal is two-thirds closed.

Scientific Farming

B. L. Nance, who is under the direction of the department of agriculture, lectured Saturday afternoon in the Gresham bld'g on the subject of scientific farming. He had a good sized and appreciative audience. Mr. Nance has spent his life on a farm but has taught school a large part of the time. He is therefore not altogether a theorist, and should speak as one with authority on the subject of farming. He organized a Farmers Institute here with the following officers: P. Smith, Pres.; J. H. Williamson, Secretary. Mr. Nance informed the Review that the fruit growers here could now, thru the agency of the Institute get State entomologist here to inspect their orchards, point out the harmful insects and give the plan of fighting same. This can be made use of to a good advantage, and orchardists should not fail to call for this help it needed.

From Burkett
As I have been requested to write up the local happenings down on this part of the bayou, I will send in a few notes that I hope will escape the waste basket, or the floor if the Review doesn't have a basket. I have never worked in this capacity before, and will, therefore not have much of a nose for news, (however, I do have a pretty good nose.)

The little village of Burkett is doing nicely, and there is not much happening down here at present, there seems to be marriages or rather rumors of marriages in the air, but nothing that can be reported as yet. Cupid seems to be busy all right, and it is to be hoped that his work will be to the great good and happiness or all those concerned. It is our hope that in our next letter we can give you more particulars.

We do not know whether he will work the place himself or not.
