VOL. XXII 4 PAGES THIS WEEK CROSS PLAINS, TEXAS, "When The One Great Scorer Comes To Write Against Your Name He Writes Not If You Won Or Lost But How You Played The Game" FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1932 5c PER COPY No. 25

HOME TOWN GOSSIP

Some of the big shots of football in this circuit got together last week and arranged—or rearranged—the conference playing schedule. And we must admit that they made the biggest mess of it possible. Cross Plains and Rising Star received the consideration of a step-child at a family reunion.

The 'Buffaloes' are slated to make their debut against Albany, there, the first week of activities; whereas it had been generally understood here that the Lion engagement would not come up until late in October or about the first of November.

In lieu of the fact that this understanding prevailed and that Coach 'Goober' Keyes has had insufficient time to groom his inexperienced material the early meeting of two normally equal teams, looks very lopsided this year.

Rising Star also got a tough break in the arrangement of the calendar. They were posted to meet Albany November 18 and Cross Plains the following Thursday, which is Thanksgiving. Acknowledging that Albany Lions are stronger than any other delegation in this circuit, and that a strong rivalry exists between Rising Star and Cross Plains and that the two teams usually battle on more or less equal terms, the 'Wildcats' would be at a better disadvantage for the game here after meeting Albany so soon before. Jack Gingrich, Rising Star Coach, apparently highly displeased with the schedule, has announced that he will forfeit the Albany game.

The schedule has been made however and the only thing to do is to come out and watch those 'Buffaloes' avenge on the gridiron the injustice that was done them in the conference room.

W. C. Wilkerson, Agent for the K. & T. railroad here, has a sign nailed on the handle of the depot safe reading: "Notice Yeggs, this safe is open. Pull knob and help yourself."

Dee Barr was in Austin last week and states that he would have gone around and spent the night with Ross Sterling but he was afraid that it might make Jim Ferguson angry. That's oolities, Dee.

In Memoriam

The 'Angel of Death' crept into our midst Tuesday and claimed one of the sweetest flowers that ever blossomed along the paths of life.

Miss Dorothy Chandler has passed from mortal midsts into the presence of immortality. But if the feeble eyes of man could look behind the curtain of eternity, I fancy they would see today a glorious reunion on the streets of Heaven. For one of the sweetest smiles and kindest hearts that ever graced the streets of Earth has joined the ranks beyond the ties.

To her family, loved ones and friends, who have been left behind, words fail miserably to relieve their burdening sorrow. Yet to them it should be said; that although she has passed on, a memory of her, true, sincere and sacred—shall live aglow as long as do those who knew her.

SMITH DRUG STORES MERGES STOCKS AND BEGINS SALE FRIDAY

Smith Drug Store begins Friday morning a 'consolidation sale'. Special prices on all varieties of standard merchandise will be in effect until October 8, when the sale ends.

J. P. Smith merged the stocks of the Cross Plains Drug Store and that Smith's Drug Store, into the building of the latter, and is announcing the event with a sale.

An advertisement listing a few of the special prices that the store will have is carried on page four.

Mr. Smith told the Review yesterday that he believed he now had one of the largest stocks of drugs to be found in this section and that he would appreciate people throughout this territory coming into look it over whether their had needs in that line to be purchased or not.

ASSOCIATION TRANSFERRED

Callahan County Baptists Association did not meet here Wednesday as scheduled, because of bad weather and impassable roads. The convention was transferred to Baird.

Reports from the assembly were not available at press time Thursday.

Rising Star Announces 'Wildcats' Will Forfeit Contest With Albany

A revision of football schedules for cross E schools in district 11 the past week made material changes in the playing program from last year. Cross Plains will open conference play this year with the championship Albany Lions, whereas last season that game was played the last week in October.

Rising Star was scheduled to meet Albany on November 18, but announced they would forfeit the contest in lieu of the fact that the 'Wildcats' are slated to meet Cross Plains here six days later for the season's finale. The schedule is said to have met with the disapproval of at least three schools effected.

Cross Plains playing calendar follows. September 30 the herd goes to DelLeon for a nonconference game. October seventh they travel to Albany to take on the championship Albany 'Lions'. October 14 Caddo will furnish the opposition on the gridiron here.

The following week the Buffaloes go to Baird. October 28 is yet an open date. Then November 24, Coach Keyes escorts his charges over to Moran for their fourth conference match. The remainder of the games will be played on the local field. Putnam, Clyde and Rising Star providing the opposition. The contests will be on November 11, 18 and 24 respectively.

HENRY THATE BRINGS IN FIRST BALE HERE 3RD, STRAIGHT YEAR

Cross Plains' first bale of cotton was ginned and sold here Saturday. Henry Thate, Jr, raised the staple. It was bought by E. I. Vestal and brought seven and one-fourth cents. Local merchants contributed a premium of $25.00 in cash and merchandise. Planters Gin Company ginned the first bale.

Mr. Thate has marketed the first bale of cotton in Cross Plains for the past three years. His farm is nine miles South West of here, near the Comal school. The Thate family has lived in this section more than 40 years.

Out of 1,440 pounds of lint, a bale of 502 pounds was ginned.

"It certainly makes me proud to be able to bring the first bale of cotton into Cross Plains. The people here are among the finest on the face of the earth and I thank everyone of them for their part in the generous premium that they made-up for me", Mr. Thate told the Review Saturday.

Another bale was ginned here shortly after the Thate cotton. It was brought in by John Swafford. Nine other bales had come in here at 'press time' Thursday.

LEONARD DAVIDSON WINS 3 ROUND BOUT AT FAIR

Leonard Davilson, high school athlete here, gained a decision in a three round boxing match with D. Bowman, of Rising Star, at the annual fair and farm exhibition there Friday night.

The first two rounds were about even with Davidson getting the better of the first and Bowman the better of the second, but at the sound of the bell for the last round, the Cross Plains boy began to place heavy and effective blows to the head and body of his opponent.

Referee Bill Pancake lifted Davidson's hand as winner at the close of the third.

LOCAL BOY RECOVERING FROM TONSIL OPERATION

Herman Bryan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Bryan here, was reported Thursday convalescing normally after a tonsillectomy operation at the Blackwell Sanatorium, Gorman, Tuesday.

Mrs. Bryan and a brother, Lloyd were in Gorman at the time of the operation and remained at the bedside.

Mr. and Mrs. James Alexander, of Coleman, visited Mr. and Mrs. Fred Burgin Sunday.

Garner's Mother

Mrs. Sarah Garner, aged mother of Speaker John Nance Garner, died Tuesday at her home in Detroit, Texas, after a lingering illness. Her famous son, who in addition to being Speaker of the House of Representatives, is the nominee of the Democratic party for the vice-presidency of the United States, was at her bedside when the end came.

COTTON PRICES SHOOT UPWARD $3.00 A BALE AS WHEAT ALSO GAINS

Cotton prices shot upward again Wednesday after two weeks of declining quotations. The advance Wednesday was approximately $3.00 a bale. Radio market calls at 11:30 Thursday indicated that prices had taken another hike.

Tuesday's spurt was the highest single day activity in almost a year. Spot cotton gained 57 points.

Stocks, bonds and other securities also showed renewed life the first of the week as if to indicate greater demand and more buying.

Good middling cotton was quoted on the streets of Cross Plains Thursday at noon as being worth seven cents.

Wheat prices were also boosted with the bullish movement Wednesday. It gained two and one-half cents a bushel.

CROSS PLAINS MAY ERECT CURING PLANT FOR SWEET POTATOES

Cross Plains may have a sweet potato curing plant with a capacity of 10,000 bushels.

Plans for the erection of a 'klln' for the potatoes have been completed by Rex S. P. Collins, I. M. Howard, S. C. Barr and others interested in the movement. They state that the building and equipment would cost approximately $3,000.00 and that it would be necessary to form a stock company to finance the deal.

"It would not take more than three years for the plant to pay out completely and in the meantime this section will have paved the way for an industry that mean thousands of dollars of extra income each year", said Rep. Collins Tuesday.

Rev. Collins is chairman of a committee working on the plan. He is securing extra data about 'killying' this week and as soon as he is ready to present the idea publically, a mass meeting of potato growers, business men and interested individuals will probably be called.

Men that have been studying the potato industry for years told the Review Thursday that if a plant the size of the one that is being contemplated, were located here that there would be less in locating a market for sweet potatoes. "Buyers will be interested in a community with 10,000 bushels of sweetpotatoes whereas it does not pay them to visit ship from places with less", I. M. Howard said Tuesday.

BURKETT BAPTISTS CLOSE SUCCESSFUL MEETING SUNDAY

Burkett Baptists closed their annual meeting Sunday night. There were 23 additions made to the church. Rev. Graves Da by did the preaching.

Baptismal service was held Sunday afternoon at the Bayou near Burkett. In commenting upon the revival, Rev. H. T. Dennis, pastor of the Burkett church, said, "We are indeed grateful to Brother Darby, who did some of the most wonderful preaching that it has ever been our privilege to hear. We are also thankful for the splendid cooperation of the other churches during the meeting."

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Chappel of Baird visited Mrs. Chappel's sister, Mrs. Gene Adams here Sunday.

NATURE'S ODDITY THIS WEEK IS CANNA LEAVES GROWN IN HORN SHAPE

Canna leaves grown into the shape of a horn, are natures odd contributions to the news columns of the Review this week.

The leaves are large with the top end of them resembling that of a powder horn. They are grown in circular shape about the bottom completely closed and quite unusual according to flower experts here.

The cannas were grown at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Henkel.

DOROTHY CHANDLER SUCCUMBS TUESDAY MORNING IN TEMPLE

Mrs. Bob Young's Father Dies At Putnam; Ike Kendrick's Uncle Expires At Angelo

The death Angel cast a dense shadow over three Cross Plains homes the past week. Miss Dorothy Louise Chandler, 21, succumbed early Tuesday in a Temple hospital of blood poisoning after a brief illness. T. L. Hamlin, father of Mrs. Bob Young, of Cross Plains, died at his home in Putnam Monday afternoon. S. Roach, 81, uncle of Ike Kendrick, postmaster here expired Tuesday at his home in San Angelo.

Funeral service for Dorothy Chandler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Chandler, was conducted from the Methodist Church here Wednesday afternoon. Rev. C. C. Armstrong, pastor of local church of which Miss Chandler was a member conducted the rites. Interment was made in the Cross Plains cemetery.

Dorothy had lived here virtually all of her life. She was born July 27, 1911 in Winnipeg, Canada. She was a graduate of Cross Plains high school and popular among local social and civic circles.

News of her death shortly after six o'clock Tuesday morning came as a shock to the entire city of Cross Plains. She had left here several weeks ago to visit her fiance W. E. Vilha and family at Rosebud. They were enroute to Cross Plains when Miss Chandler took ill and was carried to a Temple hospital where she died.

Mr. and Mrs. Chandler were called to the bedside Friday night. Her father gave blood for a transfusion Saturday but the treatment failed to rally her. Another transfusion was given by her sister Miss Phyllis Chandler Monday but it was also failed to revive.

Friends crowded the Methodist Church here beyond capacity at the funeral Wednesday afternoon. Hundreds more joined the procession following the body to the Cross Plains cemetery, where interment was made.

Pall-bearers were; E. D. Priest, Dr. J. H. McGowen, Louis Norman, Elliott Bryant, Stanley Clark and Jack Scott.

Flower escorts were; Misses, Rosalie Cutbirth, Fanoria Neeb, Clara Nell McDermitt, Bobbie Lee Westerman, Zelah Pittman, Wanda Owen, Opal Young, Helen Grace Gray, Eva Freeman, Tommie Kate Mayes, Lorena Childs, Leora Gaines, Cheryl Lutgens, Leota Loving and Louise Placke.

She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Chandler; one sister, Miss Phyllis Chandler and two brothers, Ralph and Albert.

All Cross Plains business houses closed their doors during the funeral and interment service. School here was also dismissed.

Among the out of town people present at the funeral were; Miss Kathleen Coombs and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gardener, of Walnut Springs; Miss Vida Little, Junction; Seaborn Collins and Joe Snodgrass, Brownwood; Misses, Edwina Anderson, Wilma

YOUNG GIRL BURIED TUESDAY AT ADMIRAL

Interment service for Miss Pansy Walker, 15, who died in an Abilene hospital Tuesday were held that afternoon in the Admiral cemetery, 16 miles North West of here. Miss Walker was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newberry, who formerly lived at Admiral but moved to Abilene about a year ago.

New York has a motion picture theatre which shows nothing but news reels. It is a very popular house.

The man who has been put to work, after being idle for months, no doubt is enjoying the experience more than any vacationist in the land.

The latest pet to be adopted by a society hostess is an alligator. We understand that the creature's yawns are remarkably effective in reminding late-staying guests that their departure is long over due.

A monument is proposed for the man who invented post cards. The inscription might appropriately be "Wish you were here."

There are more men and women in New York who make a living by writing than any other city in the world.

THE LOST SEA

CHAPTER 4 The Rebellion Of The Tigers

The current drew us on across the sea, on and on, until we could not see land in any direction. The tigers became frantic. They thought we were being borne on to the end of the world, the jumping off place.

It did seem peculiar; being in a sea that was not charted and was unknown sea, an uncharted sea, and a lost sea.

The outside storm had now quieted down and was rumbling off in the opposite direction from which it had come. The current still bore us on.

The tigers were pacing the deck, for they were so scared that they could think of little else to do. I had not thought much about it yet, and was neither scared or thrilled. I was standing in the bow smoking my pipe. One of the tigers strolled up to me.

"Billie," began the tiger sailor in a gruff voice. "We ere goin' ter oust ther captain, and we would like ter have yer help. He ertn't er hev been sailin' on dis sea. When ye hear ther first growl ye may know that we ere redy, and if ye don't help us, ye will get th' fate of de cap'n."

So this was open mutiny. Seven tigers on the warpath. I knew instantly what my answer would be; so clearing my throat I said:

"Ye blasted swabs, don't ye know it's again' the rules to rebel on the captain. I am a law respectin' citizen, and ye may lay to that!"

CHAPTER 5 The Battle on the Ship

"Then ye mean that ye won't join us?" continued the tiger.

"Exactly," I said, and I moved around to command a view of the deck. "I would never join a rebel army, and ye may lay to that. I am a respectabl' citizen, so I yam, by thunder. I'll stick by ther captain, so I will—ye dirty swabs."

"Very well," said the old tiger, and he walked off smoking his pipe and singing an old sea song something like this:

Oh, I'm getting old and feeble,

And my days are nearly o'er,

But I'll live to see der day,

When th' captain is no more,

If's with a rebel army,

That always I'll roam,

Whether on th' land,

Or over the ocean foam.

Teedle-dee-dee-dee-dee.

A rebel I'll always be—

Whether it's here, or there,

On land or sea,
You can always take it from me,
Always a rebel I'll be,
Teedle-dee I'll always be—
A rebel I'll always be—
I walked boldly down the deck to the captain's private room. Here I stopped and knocked on the door. I listened for a moment after I had finished.

"Come in," said the captain in a raucous voice. I complied by opening the door and walking in. "What do you want?" he added.

"I want to warn you against a mutiny," I said, "and we must bar the door immediately." I rushed to the door and slipped the huge wooden bar in place. We now had them out temporarily.

I heard a shuffle outside, the battle was on. I heard a pounding at the door.

CHAPTER 6 Two Against Seven

"Open this door!" they shouted, "or we will break it down."

I rushed to the other side of the room, picked up a chair, and hurried back to stand behind the door with it upheld. The captain was doing nothing but pacing the floor.

"Come on, captain," I said encouragingly, "get you a chair and get on the other side of this door. We can hold them off if you will." He jerked up a chair and rushed in front of me.

"Are you the only loyal one of the crew?" he asked. I told him I was and he lowered his head and muttered, "Two against seven; we stand no chance, whatever."

The little room was about six feet square; and in the center stood a desk. This was the largest room on the schooner, and naturally it would be the captain's. It was decorated with a wall paper which had peculiar designs inscribed on it. The room itself was made of hard wood.

I heard the battering of the marlin spikes and battering-rams against the door. I heard it giving. They would soon have the door smashed and would be in the cabin. I held my chair higher above my head. I saw the jack-rabbit captain do the same. We would at least put up a fight to the last.

The door crashed in and three tigers rushed into the room. I came with my chair and hit one. I heard the captain cry out. I had brought down one of the rebels. I brought the chair around again and another fell. I saw a marlin spike swinging at me. Bright stars floated before my eyes; I heard birds singing and bells ringing. Then all turned dark.

THE FEUD

BY PAUL HAWK

A tall hedge separated the spacious grounds surrounding Centreville's two prettiest homes. And there at that hedge Gregory Lansing, just arrived from four year's schooling in the East, found his father, Mr. Lansings' lean frame was quivering with rage. He seemed about to leap over the hedge. On the other side and no less angry old Daniel Baldwin, squat and bald-headed, stood glaring upward at his tall antagonist.

The subject of this surprising and appoleptic debate, Gregory could not find out. It seemed to consist mostly in their vieing with each other in the application of such terms as "squat little shrimp" and "skinny old reprobate."

"What was all the fireworks about, mother?" Gregory asked, after he finally got them separated.

"It don't know, Greg. They've been going on like that for ages. And Mrs. Baldwin doesn't speak to me any more either. I've never seen your father act so."

"That beats me," Gregory mused. "You four used to be together all the time before I left—and always making me entertain that darned little Valerie."

One week later, Valerie arrived home from the finishing school she had been attending. She also found the two old men at the hedge shouting and fuming at each other. She caught hold of her father's coat tail and dragged him away.

"A nice reception for the returning offspring!" she scolded him. "What's the matter, anyway?"

"That—that—" Mr. Baldwin sputtered inarticulately; then he whirled and shook his finger in Valerie's face and looked up at her fiercely. "And I don't want any of my family having anything to do with any of his! Understand? If I catch you with that young upstart of his—"

Valerie tossed her head. "Humph!" Mr. Lansing strode purposefully into the house, still raging.

"That Valerie Baldwin's back," he announced to Gregory. "An' let me tell you something. If I ever catch you even talking to her, I'll—I'll disinherit you!"

"Humph!" said Gregory.

The next time the battle at the hedge was resumed, both Valerie and Gregory went to act as pacifiers. Both started to speak; then they stopped and stared.

The Valerie that Gregory knew had been a chubby, freckled kid with stringy hair—a regular nuisance because his mother had made him play with her. This Valerie was tall. She wore clothes that must have come straight from Paris. She had a delicate, transparent skin. She had golden-brown hair. She had blue eyes. This Valerie was enough to make one stare!

The Gregory that Valerie knew had been a rough, unkempt kid who was always interested only in dogs and machines. This Gregory, this tall, well-groomed man with sleek black hair and sharp brown eyes was a new one. He was decidedly attractive!

So they got rid of their respective fathers and sauntered and meandered until they met at the hedge once more. They met, of course, to talk about the feud.

"What in the world has happened to them, Greg? They're positively savage."

"Yeah, we've got to do something. It's not right that neighbors be so un-neighborly."

After a while, Greg said, "I say, hadn't we better meet and discuss this matter—privately—after we investigate a little?"

Valerie thought they should. They did. They met, they dined, they drove to the city, they danced—and discussed—all in one night.

But the investigation proved to be slow. Neither could get much information as to the cause of the enmity between their parents. Other clandestine meetings were required, for the matter was assuming serious proportions in their minds. What must the people of Centreville think of such actions of their two most prominent citizens?

Nor did talking with the old men help:

"Look here, Dad. Hadn't you better soft pedal the ire a bit? Ya know, it's indecent that two old friends should be on the outs. Why not declare a truce?"

"With that—Never!" said Mr. Lansing firmly.

Valerie tried too. "But, Daddy, won't you make up with him for me?"

"No!" roared Mr. Baldwin. So six more meetings of consultation went by—with no visible results. Then, at a luncheon one afternoon when they had slipped away carrying a lunch basket, Gregory said, "Val, I'm gettin' tired of this sneak' out to see you. But I can't get the governor to give in."

She looked at him in a way that made his heart leap at the thought he had. "I can't get mine to quit quarrelling either," she told him.

Gregory's heart did another somersault as he leaned forward. "I know a way," he said huskily.

"Tell me," she commanded breathlessly, her eyes on his.

"Let's elope!"

"Let's!" she said. "But how—"

"Leave that to me," Gregory said masterfully.

It was romantic carrying a ladder to her window, Gregory thought. But it was practical, too, for it would be ticklish business if they were discovered. But they weren't. At midnight exactly, they eased out of the driveway in Gregory's car, which he had slipped out of the garage before going for her.

At exactly five seconds after midnight, two figures emerged from the hedge. They stood there, the tall one and the short one peering after the departing car until they saw the tail light come on and then disappear around a corner. Then the two figures executed a little dance.

"Oh boy! Did they fall for it hard, Ben!" exclaimed Mr. Baldwin.

"Did they!" exulted Mr. Lansing. "And they never woulda married if their mothers kept thrusting them at each other like they used to. I'm glad I thought of us gettin' mad, Dan."

"You mean you're glad we thought," Dan said affectionately, punching Mr. Lansing in the ribs. "Let's open that bottle."

THE END.

Lady Took Cardui And Got Rid of Pain In Her Side

"Last summer, my health was bad, so I began taking Cardui," writes Mrs. H. E. Slaughter, of Norman, Okla. "My mother had given me Cardui in girlhood, so naturally I turned to it when I felt I needed it. I felt run-down and a general weakness. I had had, dizzy headaches when everything would seem to dance before my eyes. My right side pained me so much, but since taking Cardui the pain has left me. I have taken several bottles of Cardui and have improved a great deal."

Cardui is sold at drug stores here.
