Soaking Rains Cover reritory

* Cottonwood Area Gets Over Five Inches Of Moisture Tuesday

Gentle, soaking rains which started falling here early Monday morning have totalled more than six inches in some communities of the Cross Plains trade territory and all the surrounding area has received sufficient moisture to term the drought ended, according to reports coming in early Wednesday morning.

The rains are in plenty of time to save row crops and to place a value on the precious precipitation would be impossible.

S. F. (Fos) Bond, local gauger for the U.S. Weather Bureau, reports that a total of 2.03 inches was measured here and the fall varied over the territory from 1.50 in the Burkett community to nearly six inches in the Cottonwood area.

The rain fell slowly over most of this area and the parched earth soaked it up almost as fast as it fell. The Cottonwood community received the only hard rain reported. when nearly five inches was recorded in a short time late Tuesday afternoon.

According to farmers in town Wednesday morning, the moisture is Ben Porter of this city, wrote his Dillard of Cross Plains; two sons, sufficient to make the peanuts, cot- parents August 3, that he is now Bobby Dillard, stationed at Fort ton and castor bean crops in this stationed near the Buffer Zone in area and for the first time in three Korea but expects to be moved soon in California; five brothers, Boyd, years a big harvest is expected. Merrill recently said that in his opinion there should not be a return to wind erosion conditions of the 1930's. He gave the following reasons 1. farmers and ranchers have the 'know how" to prevent widespread erosion;

2. owners cooperating with soil conservation districts are using sound erosion control practices on hundreds of thousands of acres of farm and ranch lands;

3. owners have more and better machines with which they control erosion:

4. larger areas have irrigation facilities available for growing plant cover, and 5. farmers and ranchers have to much "horse sense" to let the conditions return.

-tpa-Another Texas law under attack is the driver responsibility act. The test is going to the U.S. Supreme Court.

D. C. Gillaspie of San Antonio is contesting the law, after registration of his family car was suspended because his son, who was driving it, figured in a traffic accident.

Under the law as it now stands, the son must show financial responsibility before the car can be driven by anyone.

The Texas supreme court upheld validity of the law, but Associated Justice G. B. Smedley cleared the way for the case to go to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Gillaspie argues that the sections of the law applying in his case are harsh and unreasonable and nullify the entire statute.
