The publisher asked me to insert the following in my "Corner" this week. So here it is, from his typewriter.

Apologies need to be made to many of you who have contributed to the content of the Review and errors have been made in the items or they have not even appeared in the columns, that I do not know where to begin offering these apologies.

Other apologies must be extended to those businesses and other concerns and individuals who support the Review with their advertising dollars. Many errors have recently appeared in numerous ads for which we apologize. The mistakes are corrected as quickly as possible when discovered or brought to our attention. Please bear with us, as we attempt to work out the bugs between us, originators of the copy for the weekly publication known as the Review, and the type setters, proof readers, make-up people and printers located in another city.

The heat has really been something lately and air conditioners have certainly been in use and of course that means higher electricity bills.

Following are some tips from home economists in which consumers can control their electricity bills during the air conditioning season.

· Weather-strip doors and windows and keep tightly closed.

 Close all unnecessary openings such as fireplace dampers. Turn off electrical lights and appliances when they are not needed.

 Don't use heat producing appliances, such as irons and ovens, simultaneously. Avoid cooking, bathing, or using laundry equipment during the high heat hours. • Clean or replace filters frequently. • If you have a choice, at 10 a.m. at the library to locate the unit on the north prepare for five other trips, or east side of the house.

the crop said as a matter of fact it was "beter than most expected." According to reports, yields are averaging anywhere from 20 to 40 bushels per acre from field to field. Some of the lower yields suffered heavy to light hail damage, and some varieties of wheat are affected by the malady.

Again on the plus side, most crops are grading good, however, top grade wheat was bringing only $2.80 per bushel here Saturday. One local buyer stated that price is not likely to go up, according to predictions of a bumper crop in the north. Most locally produced grains, however, is going into the government loan program which means the pro-

Braves are still looking for first win of the season in Pee Wee action, recording a third straight tie in first game Thursday. Braves and Cubs battled to a 2-2 draw. In second contest the Angels won for a second time over the Giants 6-4.

AUSTIN-Texas lawmakers neared an accord on the state budget by giving conference committee approval to a new twist on motor vehicle inspections.

If approved by the full Legislature before adjournment at midnight, Memorial Day, inspection sticker prices will go up from $5.25 to $7.75, an increase of $2.50.

chairman Bob Saunders, D-LaGrange, moved to dilute Hightower's power to regulate pesticide use, particularly his protection of stoop laborers in the Rio Grande Valley, he found himself not only up against the Mexican-American Caucus, but enough handfuls of conservatives from both parties to warrant surrender.

He abandoned his proposal which was backed by chemical lobbyists and the Texas Farm Bureau, two groups which Hightower angered earlier with his new, stringent pesticide regulations.

Abortion Foes Defeated

Also abandoned last week was the attempt to pass stricter abortion regulations. Abortion foes L. B. Kubiak, D-Rockdale, and Jan McKenna, R-Arlington, tried to build their measure into other legislation renewing the Texas Department of Health, but some key lawmakers threatened to filibuster.

The Speaker asked Kubiak and the others to retreat and avoid a confrontation that could lead to a special session this summer.

pathy backlash, finally won commission, including McKenna. House and Senate leaders When House Agriculture pronounced it dead for this session.

Mauro Big Winner

Land Commissioner Garry Mauro came out a big winner this session, when the governor signed new law giving him added land management authority, not only over public school lands, but all other state-owned lands as well.

Mauro will have added powers to trade low-revenue state land for property bringing more money to public schools. His new responsibilities call for him to assess and make "best use" recommendations for land owned by other state agencies.

Mauro, a Democrat, owes much of his success to a quiet bipartisan effort headed by the bill's Republican sponsor, state Sen. John Leedom of Dallas.

Vet Tracts Easier

Another approved bill gives the Veterans Land Board, also chaired by Mauro, the authority to make veteran loans on 5-acre tracts, much easier than the present 10-acre minimum requirement.

Rowden Sector News

By Mrs. N.V. Gibbs

Most of us could say we were aware of the hot, hot weather this week. Temperatures usually wait until June to get above the 100 mark. Mrs. Robert Watson said their hottest day was 107 degrees, which sent Robert off to town to purchase a new air conditioner. Dorothy was busy canning chickens and needed a cooler house.

Field crops, milo, corn and hay grazer have really grown this week as well as the gardens, but today's (Saturday) winds has dried out plants and ground.

Are you aware of all the big jumbo grass hoppers everywhere? I noticed them first on the highway to Baird, crawling on the pavement.

This recalls to memory a few years after our family moved to Rowden, and my father planted cotton which the big jumbos feated on each day. My father made paddles for the four of us girls to walk the edges of the cotton and kill the grasshoppers. It got to be a never ending chore, then mixtures of poison in grain took the place of paddles.

Recent visitors in the Gene Mauldin home were Walter and Lorene O'dell of Abilene, and a friend and co-worker of Roland Mulding, Fred Hochreitcher, of Abilene came out with him while families. It kept the busy for a day or two.

Saturday slipped up on this writer about dark I happened to remember my column had to be done today and some of the people are not home.

Emma Johnson and Lizzie Burks reported their only visitors were the Narses from Brownwood, Linda Tabor and Linda Mayfield, who have been in their home this week.

Bob and Cathy Dye were in the field combining their grain. Tony Steele had his machine in the Jimmy West field. Lora Fay Harris said that's all they had done this week. Bill Coots was harvesting grain on the Bayou place of Warren Price. Yields are good but prices are down. The farmer spends money for fertilizer, seed, weed killer trying to make profit, but each year he starts again hoping for a better year. Vicky Odom was sowing sudan to help out Sterling Odom who wasn't feeling well Saturday. Ivon Little Chris Reynolds spent a day or two with his grandparents, James and Dorothy Reynolds, and attended Vacation Bible School with her in Cross Plains.

Tuesday of last week I was by the Baird rest home to visit Mrs. Leila Gibbs and also had short visits with Ima Gibbs and Jimmy and Bessie Smedley in Baird.
