Local Church Better Bargain

By DON TABOR
Publisher

Look at it practically. Your local church is a much better bargain.

The next time one of these TV conman evangelists gets you all fired up, think about your local church before you sign that check. And, be assured, that check is the main target of those TV preachers.

Think about it. When you or some member of your family is flat-of-back in the hospital, is Jim Bakker going to come visit and offer comfort?

When you and your spouse are having problems, is Jerry Falwell going to be there to counsel you?

Is Jimmy Swaggart going to bind your kids in Holy matrimony?

Is Oral Roberts going to ease your grief with his words at a loved one's funeral?

No, but your local minister, and friend, will.

Your local preacher is a good, moral, honest person. Or, compared to the TV evangelist, the odds are a whole lot better that he or she is.

Maybe our local preachers ought to hype themselves like their TV opposition (Maybe "opposition" isn't the right word, but it seems to be).

Can't you just see it:

The TV screen lights up with a full-orchestra fanfare in the background. The excited voice of the announcer shouts, "NOW! AT FIRST METHODIST! IN CLYDE! IT'S LYNN MOORE!"

Or, maybe take the Johnny Carson approach: "Heeere's Lunnye."

You can substitute your own preacher's name where I put mine.

But that's not going to happen, and it shouldn't. Our preachers are serious about their work, very serious.

We all can remember ministers who were special and had an impact on our lives.

I remember Marvin Gregory, who left the Methodist church here about a year ago to go to Anson.

He and I had a number of long talks in which he explained God to me in ways I'd never thought of.

I also told him things I'd never told anyone.

I told him things I'd certainly never tell Jerry Falwell.

PIONEER NEWS

By ESTHLOY S. DICKSON

My Mother's Day began early with a call from my daughter (Joanie) at Cleburne. My son, C.V., Karen, Lisa and Chesley were with the family at Cleburne.

We had beautiful services, recognizing and honoring Mothers at First Baptist Church. After church, I drove directly to Cisco to the home of my big sister, Bernice Carter. Our sister, Opal Cox, from the ranch near Breckenridge, joined us for dinner there. Later our brother, Max Satterwhite, who lives in Cisco, and his family joined us.

In the church service Sunday evening, a dear friend, Ovella Johnette moved her membership back here from California. She is a dear — and it is good to have her "back home".

Betty and J.T. Beggs' son, Rex, Edith, Connie, Ashley, and Nikki had supper with them Sunday. This Monday and Tuesday, Floyd Russell of Fort Worth visited the Beggses — and did some fishing.

Mr. Paul Harlow of Lovington, N.M. spent a week here with his sister, Jean Fore. Jean reported that Mr. B. Bedingfield of Artesia, N.M. had hip surgery in Roswell, N.M. He is well known by friends here.

Visiting with Mrs. Ethel Brown were Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Lee Payne and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Grider of Cross Plains. Also Mrs. Ronnie (Ruth) Hutchins and son of Odessa, and Bill Burleson of Houston. Mrs. Brown said she received so many cards, flowers and calls, she had a very good Mother's Day.

Bobby and Sally Rody had a telephone call from their son, George, in Buffalo, N.Y. They talked about two hours. Another son, Joe, of Brownwood, Beverly and Kari were here. They all had dinner with Ms. Nettie Rody in Cross Plains. Present were all her children, most of her grandchildren and great-grandchildren, twenty-five in all.

Mrs. Dale Gary enjoyed visits of two sisters, who spent three weeks with her. They are Mary Lee Murray of Pinole, and Bonnie Mulherin of Sonoma, Calif. They left for California on Monday morning. Also visiting Mrs. Gary were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Callaway of Denison on Sunday. Also Gena and Charles Fleming of Fort Worth.

I called several numbers which did not answer — others simply did not have news to report.

I want to comment on the beautiful wild flowers I've enjoyed — on my place and on the road-beds near the highways. They are fantastically beautiful. I plucked some wine-cups growing between here and the highway. They are so "cute".

The Growing Exotic Livestock Industry

By Mike Moeller
Deputy Commissioner
Texas Department of Agriculture

It is no secret that our state leaders are caught in a political quagmire. An unholy alliance of shrinking revenue, rising costs of basic state services and a still-sluggish economy have left the state's budgetary cupboard bare. A number of lawmakers have gone hunting for new revenue with various proposals to encourage the development of new industries. Many of those lawmakers might be surprised to find out that one of the new industries with the greatest potential is the growing market for exotic venison.

Exotic game is not new to the Lone Star State. Texas ranchers began importing axis deer from Europe more than 50 years ago. Today, according to some unofficial estimates, there are more than a half million exotic game animals roaming the state. This menagerie of imported wildlife includes sika deer and fallow deer from Europe, axis deer and blackbuck antelope from India, nilgai antelope from Africa and wild boar from Russia.

These exotic animals may appear to be a zoological oddity to most Americans, but raising exotic animals for slaughter is a large and profitable business in West Germany, New Zealand and Great Britain. In New Zealand, where the government promotes the business, there are almost 2,000 deer farmers who devote one-tenth of that small nation's agricultural land to raising red deer. New Zealand venison is sold in some of the finest restaurants around the world.

The market for wild game meat is also growing in the United States among calorie-conscious consumers. Exotic deer ranchers point to the fact that a six-ounce serving of venison or antelope has one third the caloric content of beef. Wild game meat is only three percent fat, and most types of exotic game meat are lower in cholesterol than any domestic meat including chicken. A growing number of consumers on restricted diets have found wild game meat to be a healthy substitute for domesticated meat.

Many exotic game ranchers also say their livestock is one of the few agricultural products for which demand exceeds supply. Ranchers say the capital investment, overhead and labor costs for exotic game are relatively modest compared to more traditional types of agriculture. Because most exotic game can survive on mostly grass diets, ranchers do not have to use antibiotics or steroids to fatten their livestock. What about the prices these ranchers receive for their work? Exotic game ranchers say the average price for wild game meat is about $2.00 (dressed) per pound. That figure looks impressive when one considers that prices for most traditional crops have fallen by 50 percent over the last six years.

The small cadre of Texans who have jumped into the exotic game business face stiff competition not only from major game meat exporters in New Zealand, but they are having to hurdle some bureaucratic roadblocks at home. Although the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission considers exotic game to be livestock, the State Health Department is not required to inspect exotic game meat. Game ranchers say those inspections are needed to keep unscrupulous salesmen out of the exotic game business. The health inspectors would also provide necessary guarantees to the nation's restaurant buyers who are the chief customers for exotic game meat.

Another problem facing exotic game ranchers comes from their local taxing authorities. Many county appraisal districts now assess land used to raise exotic game based on its market value rather than its agricultural value. The resulting property taxes virtually prohibit the establishment of new exotic game-only operations. The Texas Legislature will consider legislation to correct this problem during the current session.

Despite these problems, the future for the exotic game industry remains bright. Raising exotic game animals is proving to be a profitable alternative for ranchers. Exotic game animals, like some other immigrants to Texas, have adapted well to the terrain of Central and South Texas. In fact, Texas has the largest number of exotic game animals in America. According to some private estimates, raising exotic game animals in Texas is at least three times more profitable than raising any type of domesticated livestock. At a time when some so-called experts are ready to bury agriculture, exotic game ranching is one business in which farmers and ranchers can bag some badly needed dollars.

Treasures Of Truth

"And He said unto them, Verily I say unto you, that there be some of them that stand here, which shall not taste of death, till they have seen the Kingdom of God come with power." (Mk. 9:1) "And I say unto thee, that thou art Peter... And I will give unto thee the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven." (Matt. 16:18,19)

"But Peter, standing up with the eleven, lifted up his voice, and said unto them...." (Acts 2:14) "Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven." (Matt. 6:10) "And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place...." (Acts 2:1-47)

And thus the building of the Lord's church, beginning on the first Pentecost after His spectacular ascension unto His throne in heaven. Three thousand are more souls added to the "set in" twelve (1 Cor. 12:28) on the first day the gospel of Christ was preached. (Rom. 1:16)

I love you,
Ed Will

Swimming Pool Rip-Offs

Summer is coming and it's the season when most people who want swimming pools will get them installed. You can have a lot more headaches than you ever imagined.

TYPES OF POOLS

There are at least three different types of large pools. The oldest type is the custom-built, concrete-poured pool. This is generally the most expensive kind. Fiberglass pools, which are made of molded fiberglass and installed in much the same way as the concrete pools, have become popular recently.

Also requiring excavation is the metal pool with a vinyl liner inside steel or aluminum walls. And, of course, there are less expensive above-ground pools.

FLIM-FLAM SALES

According to a study by the Federal Trade Commission, the swimming pool business has had more than its share of bad operators, with many using the old "bait and switch" routine.

•The first rule to remember in choosing a swimming pool is to pick a reputable local business. Don't be taken in by a salesman who tries to talk you into purchasing a larger and more expensive model than you had originally wanted. My Consumer Protection Division recommends that you shop elsewhere if you suspect you are being lured into a more expensive purchase than you had planned.

•One inducement that the seller may offer you to switch to a more expensive model is a longer guarantee. Your best guarantee, however, is a business that will stay around long enough to answer your complaints if you have them. Too often, consumers find that their guarantees cover only specific (and unlikely) problems, such as a defective liner seam.

•Ask your swimming pool dealer for the names of some satisfied customers and talk to them. Try to find someone who bought the pool a year or more ago. That way, you can judge whether your pool will make you happy in the long run.

SAFETY

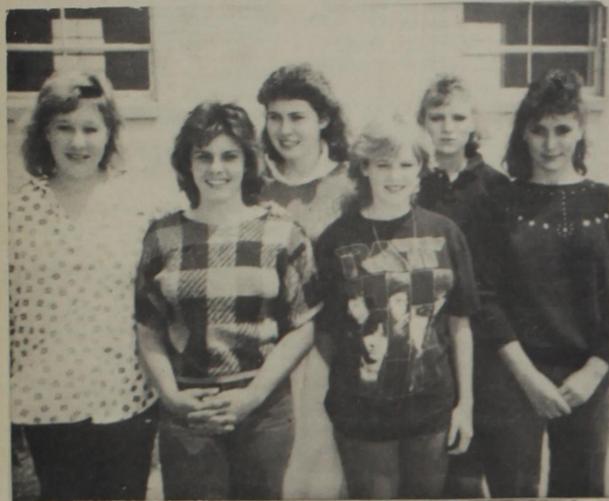

If you are planning on having a pool, of course, you will have to make some provision for safety of children. Many communities require that swimming pools be surrounded by fences. You should also plan to use non-slip materials around the pool and on diving boards and ladders. Finally, shop carefully and read a little bit about pool ownership before signing your contract.

What You Need For Retirement

People planning to retire in the near future should not wait until the last minute to get answers to the questions they may have about Social Security. This may lead to a delay in benefits or Medicare coverage, or even the loss of benefits in some cases.

The people at any Social Security office can answer a person's questions about retirement benefits. In addition, a special leaflet entitled "Thinking about Retiring?" is available for the person contemplating retirement. The leaflet gives answers to questions most frequently asked by people planning to retire.

Many people retire at the beginning of the year because it permits them to wrap up their affairs more conveniently. However, you may retire at any time during the year without affecting your right to benefits or the benefit amount.

Social Security generally suggests that people apply 2 or 3 months before the month they wish their Social Security checks to begin. This gives the office time to process the claim and take care of any problems that may crop up.

You may apply by telephone or in person. Once a person is interviewed by phone, the rest may be handled by mail. The best time to call the office to assure prompt service is during the latter part of the month.

A person applying for retirement benefits should have his or her Social Security card or record of the number; an official record of birth or baptism recorded early in life or other evidence of birth; a copy of his or her W-2 form for the last year; or if self-employed, a copy of the self-employment tax return for the last year since recent reports may not yet be in the records. If spouses and children are also eligible, evidence may also include a marriage license for a spouse and birth certificates of spouse and children.

People who have questions about retirement should call the Abilene Social Security office. That number is (915) 698-1360.

Employee Sickness Can Be Employer Liability

DEAR COMMISSIONER NABERS: Can I fire someone who is sick all of the time and consequently is missing a lot of work?

—RUNNING BEHIND, AMARILLO

DEAR RUNNING BEHIND: Sure, you can fire an individual ...but you may have some unemployment compensation liability!

Illness is not misconduct. Under the law, we can disqualify an individual for benefits only if he was fired for misconduct or left voluntarily without good work connected cause. Your tax account cannot be protected from chargeback if benefits are paid under these circumstances.

If you suspect that your employee is not really sick, you might consider requesting doctor's statements whenever he/she is absent. This may curtail unnecessary absenteeism. Otherwise, you must simply weigh the advantages and disadvantages to your company in laying this person off and make your best business decision.

COMMISSIONER Mary Scott Nabers

DEAR COMMISSIONER: The Texas Employment Commission office in my area has contacted me. They want to audit my books. Why are they doing this? Do I have to comply?

—RELUCTANT, HOUSTON
DEAR RELUCTANT: The TEC is mandated by law to collect taxes under the Texas Unemployment Compensation Act. The most common circumstances under which business may be audited are:
1. Random audits: TEC conducts random audits among those businesses that have established tax accounts.

2. Wage Credit Audits: TEC must audit the wage records if an ex-employee of yours is attempting to claim unemployment benefits and there are no wages on file.

My best advice is to be as accommodating as you can. Our tax representatives will work with you to accomplish the audit as quickly as possible, with a minimum of disruption to your business. If you refuse to comply, an assessment of your tax liability will be made based on the available information. Legal action may also be taken. Neither of these alternatives are in your company's best interests, so do not make the process unnecessarily burdensome or problematic. We want to work with you, not against you.

DEAR COMMISSIONER NABERS: An employee of mine just gave me his written two weeks notice. Frankly, the guy is really a problem in the workplace and I am glad he is going. Do I have to let him work out the two weeks or can I let him go now? Does this change the situation from a quit to a discharge?

—GLAD TO SEE HIM GO, GRAND PRAIRIE

DEAR GLAD: As regards unemployment compensation law, you may accept an individual's resignation at your convenience. This does not change the nature of the work separation; it is still regarded as a resignation.

Be sure to confirm that your company's policy or hiring contracts do not themselves prohibit you from taking this action.

BURKETT NEWS

By JAN POPE
And GLENDA CALLAWAY

Time does fly and it is only a few weeks until our Burkett-Adams Cemetery Association will be holding its annual Memorial Service. It will be a special treat and very convenient to have our newly constructed tabernacle at the Burkett Cemetery to be the site of the event.

Mr. Virgil Adams of Houston will be speaker for the occasion. He is the son of the late Walter V. Adams and Mrs. Virgie Adams of Burkett. He was a 1943 graduate of Burkett High School, served in the Army in World War II, and worked in the West Texas oil fields after the war.

He has spent the past 27 years employed with the Engineering Dept., of Schlumberger Well Services in Houston. He is now lead design technician in the mechanical engineering section of the nuclear engineering department of the company.

It will be a pleasure to have Virgil as speaker and he is looking forward to seeing his friends again.

This weekend passed with turbulent weather. A little hail and some much needed rain.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Strickland and daughters, Donna and Daphne, and their children visited with Delbert and Emma Boyles Saturday.

Donna and Daphne also visited with Glenda Callaway Saturday afternoon.

Tom and Betty Byers and Larry and Esther Hohn of Abilene visited with Velma, Dan and Esther Byers Sunday.

Misty Strickland of Cross Plains spent Saturday with her cousins, Cory and Landon Pope.

Visiting over the weekend with the D.R. Goulds were Russell and Alisa Gould of Abilene. The Gould family enjoyed a fish fry Saturday night.

Virgil and Freeda Burkett had as their guests Sunday afternoon a week ago to Monday morning their friends, Homer and Rose Lee McCasland of Goldthwaite.

Lovera Strickland accompanied by Betty Duus of Rockwood, Mary Hamon of Goldsboro and Bonnie Rankin attended a U.S. Postal Service Career Awareness Conference in Killen last Saturday and Sunday.

The Jack DeBusks were privileged to be guests in the lovely country home of Jerry Charles and Mary Lynn Andis while in Nacogdoches for the O.V. and Clara Angeley family reunion.

Jack and Zora were accompanied to Nacogdoches by Jerry Charles' mother, Susan Andis, of Coleman.

Pat DeBusk of Houston was also a guest there at the same time.

We want to "Thank" Roy Clark for fast action and quick thinking in retrieving a small boy's arm from a cellar vent. George was visiting his aunt and uncle, Rocky and Jesse Callaway, and was reported to be fine, just a little scared from the accident.

Willie Henderson is on the sick list. It's reported that he is out of I.C.U. and doing somewhat better. Get well greetings to Willie for a speedy recovery.

We would like to extend our sympathy to the family of Gene Garrett. Gene was the son of the late Monte Garrett of this community.

Our report was short this week and urge everyone to give us a call with your news items.

STATE CAPITAL

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Each giving a little and taking a little, the Big Four of legislative politics is forging perhaps the most dramatic turnaround in recent history.

The situation remains delicate and can still collapse as the session winds to its June 1 close. Not everyone is happy with the deal, particularly the Texas Republican Party, but many lawmakers see bluer skies.

A compromise forged by Gov. Bill Clements, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Speaker Gib Lewis and Comptroller Bob Bullock promises to dispel the clouds of crisis, indecision, confrontation, and bankruptcy which have darkened the legislative agenda for over a year.

A few days ago, conservatives and liberals were locked on a collision course to the poorhouse with the prisons, mental hospitals and public education seemingly falling down around them.

Now the plan is to broaden the sales tax base and lower the rate, increase tax revenues, save the institutions with adequate funding and give the governor new emergency budget authority.

Pressure for Tax Hike

The obligation is on the Legislature to adopt all the elements in the next two weeks without short-changing any players. Many business lobbyists are working behind the scene to halt the tax reform, because it means their services will include a sales tax for the first time.

If all goes right, Hobby and Lewis will get a tax hike, Clements gets budget authority to eliminate spending he doesn't favor, and Bullock will have the pleasure of knowing that his tax reform package has brought Texas government back to some semblance of solvency.

The surprise turnaround was Clements, who had just ended his no new taxes tour and had polled House Republicans on upholding a tax veto.

The pressure to raise taxes is enormous. The House and Senate have already passed budgets requiring additional taxes, and they have only to work out the differences in conference. Meanwhile, a group of prominent Texans, mostly Democrats, urged the Legislature to increase funds for public education.

And Clements apparently found some of his House Republicans were for a tax hike, too. Not many, but maybe enough to override his tax veto. The old Clements would have vetoed the bill and used the time before a special session to solidify the one-third majority bloc he needed to hold a veto.

But time is running out on the state Treasury. The new Clements saw that if he changed his stance, he would get half-a-loaf and Texas could move on to some new problems.

Clements Blasted

Immediately, the governor was blasted by the Texas Republican Party for reversing his stand against new taxes.

His own party sent over a resolution urging him and the 56 House Republicans to stand fast against new taxes. It prompted Clements to say he may still veto the tax bill, but not before Houston Rep. Randy Pennington called his actions "disgraceful."

Quite a few House Republicans were miffed because he did not tell them first about his reversal. "Hung out to dry" was a phrase used by Garland Rep. Anita Hill.

Mason Rep. Gerald Geistweidt has become the closest to being an apologist for Clements: "We believe he's been right all along and should continue to stay that way. But if you don't start talking somewhere, we won't be any further along at the end of this five-month session than we were at the beginning."

Hobby Plan Passed

Meanwhile, the Senate passed two of three bills in Hobby's "Build Texas" economic program, labeled by some as similar to the depression-era public works program.

The Senate okayed $400 million in bonds for water and flood projects and $400 million again for local public works projects.

Open Container Bill

Clements signed the open container bill into law, making it illegal to drink alcoholic beverages while driving.

The prohibition applies only to the driver, not to passengers.

Other Highlights

• Former Secretary of State Al Haig visited the Capitol last week seeking the Republican presidential nomination.

• The governor, neutral thus far, planned to attend a Houston fundraiser for Vice President George Bush's presidential bid.

• The foresight of two legislators last summer, San Angelo Sen. Bill Sims and Sanderson Rep. Dudley Harrison, led Texas to beat federal red tape last week in raising the rural highway speed limit to 65 mph and the governor signed the proclamation.

STRAIGHT TALK FROM TDA

MIKE MOELLER
DEPUTY COMMISSIONER
TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

If your yard has a fluffy dirt mound that swarms with aggressive ants every time it's disturbed, welcome to Texas... you probably have fire ants. A well-established fire-ant mound looks like a crusty cone up to about two feet in diameter and up to one and one-half feet high.

Fire ants spread by flying into your yard on mating missions from late spring through fall. They can also be carried in on infested nursery stock or sod.

The Texas Department of Agriculture inspects nurseries to help keep fire ants from spreading. Every Texan can help by reporting any ant-infested nursery products or sod to the nearest TDA district office.

Once established, fire ants are territorial. Old colonies will keep new colonies from moving into your yard. So if your property has only a few mounds that aren't causing problems, it might be wise to leave them alone. By putting up with a few fire ants you can keep potential invaders at bay and help limit spreading.

On the other hand, if you have to work around fire ants, take a tip from experienced ranchers and wear rubber boots dusted with talcum powder. The ants can't crawl up the powdered surface.

There is a safe, non-chemical way to get rid of fire-ant mounds that are keeping you from enjoying your property. It's economical, too. Pour two to three gallons of almost-boiling water straight into the middle of a mound.

Be sure not to disturb the mound when you apply this treatment or it may not work. To kill a fire-ant mound you have to kill the queen. But the queen is protected by worker ants that quickly lead her deep inside the mound whenever it is disturbed. For this reason, you should avoid touching the mound prior to pouring the water, and walk softly up to the mound to minimize the ground tremors that can send the queen scurrying. The hot-water treatment may have to be repeated the following week if the queen got too far underground the first time.

Numerous chemical products are available for fire-ant treatment if the boiling water doesn't do the job.

CARD OF THANKS

Card Of Thanks
We would like to express our appreciation and gratitude to every organization and each individual which has contributed to the Multi-Purpose Center recently. Without community support our efforts would be useless.

Multi-Purpose Center

Bait formulations involve the passage of a toxin among the ants in the colony. Because the toxin is slow-acting, control may take from two weeks to more than two months, depending on the bait and the size of the mound. If you use a bait, don't expect the ants to go away immediately. Just because you still see a mound after two weeks doesn't mean the bait isn't working.

Mound drenches are chemicals diluted in water and poured over the mound. They work over a period of days by poisoning the mound. Though they work more quickly than the baits, they are also more toxic.

If you choose a chemical fire-ant treatment, be sure to follow the label directions carefully. Use only the amounts and concentration recommended, and avoid contact with clothing, eyes and skin. (TDA inspectors always wear rubber gloves when treating fire ants.) If you use a drench, don't use the container you mix it in for any other purpose.

In the spring, the best time of day to treat a mound is from mid-morning to early evening, when the ants and queen stay close to the sun-warmed surface. During the summer months, the ants descend deeper into the mound to escape the intense heat. They stay close to the surface only during the cooler parts of the day—the early morning or late evening—so it's best to treat then.

Texans who live in fire-ant country tend to forget that many of Texas' more than 200 non-fire-ant species benefit mankind. They help work the soil and feed plants by bringing up to the topsoil nutrients in lower layers of soil. They slow the spread of fire ants by competing with them. As scavengers, they help clean up dead animals and other decaying materials. (Even the dreaded fire ant has its good side; it feeds on ticks, cockroaches, and numerous other insects.) So don't panic if you see ants; they may not be fire ants. If they are, follow the directions for any treatment you use. Improper treatment will just make the problem worse.

Child Welfare Board Meets

The Callahan County Child Welfare Board took advantage of the beautiful spring evening, Thursday, April 16, and held its meeting on the shaded east side steps of the courthouse lawn. Alvin Hutchins from Cross Plains was welcomed as a new member to the board.

Bill Davis, the Child Protective Services agent for the county, gave the statistics for the months of February and March. In February there were 8 referrals of child abuse: 1 emotional, 3 physical, 1 sexual, 2 lack of supervision, and 1 for medical neglect. In March there were 6 referrals: 3 physical, 1 sexual, and 2 for physical neglect.

Bill Davis is also the secretary for the Mend-A-Child program that has started in Clyde. This is an organization that pays for emergency minor medical and dental exams for needy children in the Clyde School District. Although this program serves the Clyde School District area, Mr. Davis said it could possibly extend to adjacent communities or countywide. That would be great! Another means of helping the children in need of Callahan County.

The Child Protective Services agent was really "hopping" before Easter Sunday. Yes, Bill Davis was the county Easter Bunny as he distributed baskets to children in Callahan County.

These baskets were given by the employees of the Eastland Wal-Mart. The store held a contest for the best decorated Easter basket. After the contest, the baskets were donated to the Eastland County Child Protective Services. Eastland County Protective Services thanks the employees of the Eastland Wal-Mart. What a terrific idea!

As Child Abuse Prevention Month ends, remember throughout the year that many of our future adults need our present help.

ROWDEN NEWS

By MRS. N.V. GIBBS

Summer's heat has beamed this Saturday. A few clouds are showing in the west, but otherwise it is a beautiful day. The area is in need of rain.

Three grandchildren, Chris and Colby Reynolds of Midland and Drew Flippin of Stephenville, have spent part of the week with James and Dorothy Reynolds.

James and Dorothy Reynolds will be attending a spaghetti supper at their church in Clyde Saturday night.

Robert and Dorothy Watson attended graduation exercises at Cisco Junior College Friday night where their son, Brad, was a graduate. They also visited in the home of the Carl Bray family in Cisco.

Joyce Odom and this writer, along with other Cross Plains Garden Club members, drove to the Bevo Webb ranch for an outdoor meeting and fish dinner. The lunch tables have been in this location for many years and Pecan Bayou is nearby.

One spot that all wild flower lovers should see is north of the Webb ranch on the country road. Indian paintbrush, daisies in two or three colors and many more varieties of flowers are beautiful at this time. These flowers have spilled over into pastures that makes the drive even more attractive.

Cody Watson is spending the weekend in Baird with a friend, Michael Bailey.

Visitors in Lizzie Burks and Emma Johnson home were Leona Gary of the community and nurse, Lorana Sargent of Desdemona, who came by to check on them.

Renee Neff Lambert of Crosbyton, a niece of Lizzie and Emma called to wish them a Happy Mother's Day Sunday. Emma related that Renee was the first pupil to attend the Hillside School here in the community. They had fun remembering those days of long ago. Hillside at one time was a two teacher school located below the hill from the Sterling Odom place. It later consolidated with other nearby schools in the 1930's when Bayou School was established near the Crossroads of Highway 36 and 283.

Sterling and Joyce Odom will spend Mother's Day in Snyder with their daughter and family, the Ralph Treveys.

The community supper was delicious, but many had other plans and could not be there. There has been discussion about having a rummage sale at the Center to help with maintenance of the building. If anyone in the area would like to donate items for the sale, contact these numbers 725-7439, 854-1711 or 725-7560. A date will be set later for the day of the sale. The highlight of this meeting Saturday night was Robert and Dorothy Watson taking Gene and Vernie Belle Mauldin, Claribel Gibbs, Tonya and Connie Steele to see the new house they are building for Bud and Nancy Young off the Baird highway. Robert, his sons and other workers are to be commended for the beautiful trim and decorative wood throughout the house. Dorothy is not to be left out as she drew up the plans for the house

Federal Land Bank Lowers Interest Rates

AUSTIN — The Federal Land Bank of Texas will offer long-term loans to purchase rural real estate beginning May 1. These loans will feature a 10-year fixed rate.

Donald R. Rogge, president of the bank, which is the state's largest agricultural lender, said the interest rates on these loans will be 8 7/8 percent for farm loans and 9 1/8 for farm related business loans and rural home loans.

Rogge said the program, the first of its kind offered by the bank, should encourage new purchases of agricultural real estate, thereby helping to strengthen declining land values in Texas.

The bank official also announced a reduction in the bank's variable interest rates for existing borrowers. The new rates, to take effect June 1, 1987, will be 10.25 percent interest on farm and ranch loans and 10.50 percent on rural residence and farm-related business loans.

The new program will fix the rates for 10 years and be matched by a 10-year security purchased by the bank at the time the loan is made. The rate will convert to the bank's variable rate at the end of the 10 years.

Farmers must qualify under the Land Bank's usual credit standards and use the money for new land purchases only.

Rogge said he hopes other lenders would follow the Land Bank's lead and develop programs of their own to provide credit at reasonable rates and terms for the purchase of Texas rural land.

The Federal Land Bank and 44 Federal Land Bank Associations located throughout Texas have $2.38 billion in loans outstanding on 37,000 loans to approximately 100,000 Texas farmers and ranchers.

Those interested in more information should contact their local Federal Land Bank Association, the bank president said.
