Strahan have the ominous distinction of having been bit by a brown recluse spider.

Spider Bites in Common

By VANDA KING Editor

Ora Breeding, Harold Strahan, and Donald Strahan were attending a meeting of the Cottonwood Historical Society when they realized how rare it was that they had all been bitten by brown recluse spiders and suffered the effects.

Ora was bitten on her arm several years ago and experienced a terrible ordeal. Harold reported that he was bitten when he was about 11 years old, and would have had more serious complications if Dr. Powell hadn't lanced it 10 minutes after the bite. He said it still took 6 months to 1 year to heal.

Donald was bitten on the foot and has had ten or more surgeries due to the fication.

Brown recluse venom is not too different from snake venom. However, the fiddleback's venom is said to be 18 times more poisonous than a rattlesnake. It is mostly enzyme proteins, which destroy tissue and lead to inflammation.

Local reaction is confined to the site of the bite and causes swelling, inflammation, and a blister.

The blister then become dark reddish-purple then a dark red spreading lesion. The central part forms an ulcer and the skin is obviously dead. The bite develops a craterlike appearance; ranging from the size of a dime to a half-dollar and can extend into the muscle.

Venom injected into the blood stream poisonous venom. It resulted in the loss can result in malaise, fever, chills, of part of his leg.

The trio would like to make everyone aware of the danger this little creature possesses. The spider is about the size of a quarter and ranges from light yellowish-tan to dark brown. Older specimens are almost black. The most distinctive physical features are six eyes arranged in a semicircle of three pairs on the front of the head, and the black, fiddle-shaped marking on the back.

If you are bitten by a spider, it would be wise to take the specimen with you to the doctor's office for positive identi-nausea, vomiting, shortness of breath, hives and dizziness. In severe cases, patients have required temporary kidney dialysis.

It is estimated that 50 to 100 people experience serious bites in Texas each year. There are occasional reports of death or loss of a limb from a brown recluse spider bite. Very young and elderly people usually suffer the most serious consequences. The medical resulting from a bite disorder Loxosceles reclusa, can be unpleasant, painful and disfiguring.

PIONEER NEWS

By ESTHLOY S. DICKSON

Right off the top, my neighbors are reminded of the Reunion at Pioneer Tabernacle on Saturday, June 6. This is for friends from Cook, Crocker, Curtis, Gunn, Hickman, Liberty, Peak and Pioneer, specifically, and visitors from other places are welcome.

I hope others have more news than I have. I stopped by Mrs. Dale Gary's one day to have a skirt fitted - she is still elated over the visit of her sisters from California - they "had a ball"!

Mrs. Ethel Brown's niece, Ms. Mozelle Rhymes, of Gorman visited her on Sunday. Lou Grider visits her often, also her neighbors, Cole and Helen Tillotson.

On Wednesday of last week, Betty Beggs and her brother, Floyd Russell, of Fort Worth took Ms. May Bell Odom for a ride out to Cottonwood and all around. Thursday they visited Billie Beggs and granddaughter, Tammy, at Morton Valley. After church Sunday evening, Betty visited briefly with Jeanette and L.W. Mitchell.

Marianne Taff spent Mother's Day weekend in Mason, stayed through Tuesday. To celebrate her father's birthday, she took her aunts, Vanita Roberson and Ruby Monzano, to Mason. Last Friday she took cupcakes to school to celebrate Nick's 7th birthday. Later Friday she took granddaughter, Vanessa, to San Saba and spent the weekend.

Sally and Bobby Roady are gardening (I'll know where to go if I get hungry)they appreciated the rain. Bobby's cousins, Zada and Glenn Gipson of Garden City, Kansas visited them recently. On Friday they all went to Brownwood Lake and had lunch with the Gipsons' sons. They visited Gene Hicks in Rising Star one day - they visit often with Ms. Nettie Roady and with Mr. Howard Hicks.

was just great, Jean Fore reported. I've noticed that my young neighbors, the Goble's, have a new friend in our pasture, a big black stallion with a blazed face - he is so pretty!

My sister, Opal, called one day last week to inquire about the floods she had heard about - for Callahan County. Fortunately, Cross Plains area hasn't suffered any serious damage. My gauge registered 1¹/₂ inches.

Beginning May 9, a new 65-mph speed limit went into effect on rural Interstate highways in Texas.

"The public is excited about this," said Byron Blaschke, deputy engineerdirector of the highway department, and we are doing all we can to make a smooth transition to the new speed limit. Last Friday, the highway commission established the new maximum speed limit of 65 mph for cars and light trucks on rural Interstate highways. In this context, "rural" means outside urban areas of 50,000 or more people. The governor concurred Wednesday with the new speed limit which becomes effective at 12:01 a.m. Saturday, May 9, where signs are posted. Some rural Interstate sections will continue with speed limits posted lower than 65 mph for traffic and engineering reasons. These reduced speed zones existed before the 1974 federally mandated reduction to 55 mph. The department will examine each of these areas and determine the need to continue or discontinue the lower speeds. Blaschke emphasized that the new limits apply only to rural highways with Interstate designation. The speed limit on all other roadways, including urban Interstate, remains 55 mph.

The department was working Saturday to put up the new signs.

"With more than 1,300 signs going up statewide, it will take us a few hours, but we will get the job done as quickly three percent of the total statemaintained system. "Texas has 71,000plus miles on the state system where the 55-mph speed limit will be retained," Blaschke said.

Blaschke also pointed out that the current action does not change longstanding Texas law that sets maximum speeds. Under that law, the maximum speed for large trucks is 60 mph during the day and 55 mph at night, and these limits will once again be in effect May 9

Treasures Of Truth

The government of the Lord's church is a unique arrangement which shows the infinite wisdom of God. Unlike the governments of the human devised churches; the Lord's church has no earthly head or headquarters.

Jesus is the one Head of His one Body, His church (Eph. 1:22,23; Col. 1:18). and each individual church of Christ anywhere in the world is to be governed by a plural group of men; who meet every God given qualification (I Tim. 3:1-16; Titus 1:1-11).

In the New Testament the terms elder, bishop, shepherd, presbyter, pastor, overseer, all refer to one and the same God given organization of men as leaders of each individual church.

Thus, if all the churches of Christ in the world except one were destroyed, the one remaining church would be a complete body of Christ.

The authority of that plural group of leaders, usually called elders, is the Holy Word of God. They are authorized by God to oversee and lead one church where they are members. The arrangement is perfect and cannot be improved

An Interesting Look At Newspaper And TV Production

By C.A.

With the year drawing to a close, almost all of their articles written, and some practice with the video camera, the journalism class decided they wanted to see some professional journalists at work.

Thus, a field trip on Wednesday, May 13, to the Abilene Reporter-News and on Thursday, May 14, a trip to K-TAB TV Station in Abilene.

The trip to the newspaper plant involved not only the journalism class, but the high school accounting class. Beginning at 9:00 a.m., the combined group of 14 students along with myself met with James Sadler, (from the advertising dept.), who led us on a complete tour of the facilities explaining the roll of each department in the production of a daily newspaper.

We were able to see a majority of the necessary equipment ranging from an ordinary small quarter-size magnifying glass used to check color qualities of photos to the very sophisticated 7.5 million dollar printing press used to do the actual printing of the paper.

After the general tour, the group divided. The journalism class was able to meet with city editor, Bill Whitaker, where they were given an opportunity to ask questions about the field of newspaper journalism.

The accounting class, meanwhile, met with Jesse Vasquez from the accounting department where they had the chance to ask about the paper's

The trip to K-TAB the following day was equally as valuable in opening eyes to the complexity of producing daily news programs and the running of a television station.

David Caldwell, who (among many other duties) handles public relations for K-TAB, led our tour through the station. We were able to see the various technical aspects of producing or airing programs ranging from National Network News to airing short (only a few seconds) live newsbreaks.

Career opportunities, training, etc., were also discussed during the course of the tour. We were also able to see and/or briefly speak with some of the familiar personalities from K-TAB such as Bill Chaney, Fran Atkins, Ned Austin, and Frank Healer.

Everyone at both the Newspaper and TV Station were very courteous, friendly, and helpful to the students making the two trips. It was not only informative, but very pleasant.

Those students in Carol Atchley's accounting class were Clay Richardson, Julie Atchley, Dana Schaefer, Deana Conlee, Tammie Lane, and Scarlett Harrell.

The journalism students were Leann Webb, Sheila Payne, Paula Kennedy, James Ames, Robbie Wheeler, Darlene Hinesly, and Paul Burnett.

Cross Plains' Elementary student, Gene Fortune, recently competed in 4-H shooting competition. The competition was held in Brownwood over the weekend of May 2.

Gene is a 12 year old 6th grader. He competes in the 6-14 year old category. Gene said he has been shooting since he was 9 and has 2 more years to compete at this level.

In this latest competition Gene placed first in skeet and took a second place in the rifle competition. For the skeet competition he said he uses a 20 guage shotgun and used a .22 caliber in the rifle competition.

This was not his first competition, Gene says he competes quite frequently in area competition.

COTTONWOOD NEWS

By BEVERLY BROWN

Rainfall totals around the community varied from 2.6 to 3.3 plus up to 5 inches at the Blantons' place. Heavy downpours of rain, severe lightning, strong gusty winds and loud, long rumbling thunder accompanied the storm. Roads were washed out in areas south of Cottonwood on County Road 177 and 210 and other areas.

The Cottonwood Spring Festival received $600 from the day's activities on Saturday. We want to thank everyone for their support, participation, donations and coming out to Cottonwood. The grand prize drawing of the Proctor-Silex automatic shut off iron was Laura Williams. Proceeds from the day's festival will benefit the Cottonwood Regional Community Center.

Special thanks to the Cross Plains Review and Vanda for their great help in placing our article and ads for the day's festivities. To Wanda Grable who came only to browse and shop, and was quickly pressed into overseeing the Hords Creek Lake was named "Project of the Year" by the Southwestern Division U.S. Army Corps of Engineers this month. The division governs more than 140 lakes over an eight-state region.

Tommy Halfmann, lake manager, and his staff were cited by the Corps for nproving the parks and making Hords Creek, located in Coleman, more attractive. The lake is now entered in the national contest and the winner will be announced later this year.

"I believe if you give visitors a quality product, they'll take care of it and will come to the lake again and again," Halfmann said. Hords Creek had more than 400,000 people come to the reservoir last year.

Hords Creek Lake was completed in 1948 to provide flood control and water for Coleman, but little foresight was given to recreational facilities.

Inadequate park facilities combined with increasing visitation in the 1980s led to deterioration of project land. The Hords Creek staff decided to put new life into an old lake.

The Hords Creek staff completely revamped their three parks (Lakeside, Friendship and Flat Rock). No swimming beaches existed, picnic tables were randomly scattered, boat ramps didn't extend into the lake and some water fountains were as far as one-half mile from the nearest table.

Extensive improvements were made. The only sandy swimming beach near Coleman is in Friendship Park. Picnic tables are placed under shade trees closer to the lake. Boat ramps have been extended to allow usage at all elevations which are safe for boating. Large group shelters and new restrooms have been added. Native one-ton rocks, quarried during the construction of Hords Creek Lake, line the roads, thus keeping vehicles off park land.

"I thought using these rocks would be more appealing instead of cabling off the parks," Halfmann said. "People can still use the parks as they always have, but they can't drive their cars onto the grounds. Grass and trees can be scarce around this part of the country."

Swimming and fishing are popular at Hords Creek, but hundreds of hunters boys in the last two years and requests from the public have made this hunt an annual event. The project received the Presidential Take Pride in America award for their role in the hunt.

A nature trail in Lakeside Park creates hiking adventures for local Boy Scouts and the Chisolm Trail Council of the Boy Scouts have cleaned the lake as part of their scouting jamborees held at the reservoir in 1984 and 1986.

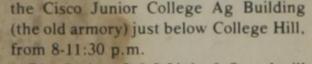

The lake, which is operated by the Fort Worth District Corps of Engineers, is about eleven feet below conservation level. However, that represents about a 14-foot increase from this time last year. With the approaching Texas summer. Hords Creek will be a welcome relief for thousands of recreationists.

Cisco has an active group of parents. Parents for Teens, who have sponsored monthly parties for Cisco High School students for the past two years. Senior Class parents who work with Parents for Teens, will serve as chaperones, in addition to other interested Senior parents, or parents from other classes. Parents from all surrounding towns are also invited to help chaperone.

Definite rules have been established for high school students, as follows:

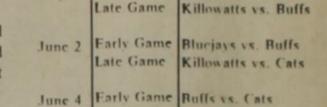

1. Only high school students will be allowed to attend the dance.

2. Students may leave the dance at any time, however, once a student leaves, they may not return.

3. No drugs or alcohol will be allowed. According to a "spokes parent" for the Senior Class, "High school parents should be assured that the dance will be well chaperoned, and our definite rules will be followed. Please feel secure in allowing your teenager to attend our dance, and feel free to join us if you can."

AUSTIN-The compromise tax agreement blew up in the legislative leadership's face after only a few days' life, and at last week's end, no popular solution was in sight.

The House, in fact, dashed hopes of raising a few quick dollars by crushing a bill allowing Texas voters to decide whether to create a state lottery.

That action leaves the beleaguered budget in conference committee where the House and Senate have about two more weeks to hammer out a compromise spending figure that appears, the way things are going, to be unacceptable to the governor.

It was Gov. Bill Clements' apparent reversal on enlarging the tax base to create new revenue that killed the Big Four compromise. What actually happened may never be known.

Some parties, Gov. Clements, for one, said the agreement was never there in the first place. He said the press distorted his role, making it seem he had caved in to

They were on the brink of losing the main issue of their comeback: no new taxes.

It was the first time in a long while that one can remember Texas Republicans breaking ranks to leave one of their own stranded in an awkward position, much less a governor.

Clements took the chastisement, ripped the press a bit, and then cancelled his weekly news conferences for the balance of the session.

Annual Sessions

The Senate passed and sent to the House a proposal that the Legislature meet once a year instead of every two years.

The constitutional amendment, if voters approve, would add a 60-day session in even-numbered years to consider only fiscal issues.

Supporters argued that in reality Texas already has annual sessions, citing 17 special sessions in the last 11 bienniums.

In other action, the Senate gave final passage to bills outlawing fishing for striped bass, tarpon and snook in the Gulf and allowing counties to collect a fee for hot check writers.

The House targeted violent of fenders with a life sentence without parole, and outlawed the wearing of masks by the Klu Klux Klan and other secret societies.

Also, a House committee advanced a bill to validate the current school finance system, which opponents charge is an attempt to undermine the "Robin Hood" school finance lawsuit.

House sponsors put together a tort reform package tougher than the version sent over from the Senate, despite warnings it could sink the entire issue, and passed it through committee.

new taxes.

Angry Republicans Lots of people distorted many of the issues in this affair.

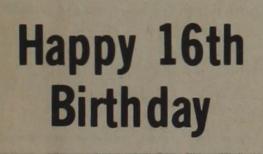

Only after a shocked, angry Republican Party moved in to stop him did the governor actually restate his position that he had not erased the spending line he drew during his campaign.

Maybe, when Clements sat with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Speaker Gib Lewis and Comptroller Bob Bullock to explain their plan to the press, his real position just got lost in the conversation.

Some surmise that House Republicans had gone soft on their support of his potential budget veto, and rather than risk an embarrassing defeat of his veto, Clements decided to take his half a loaf and make the best of it.

Tax Issue Regained

But after GOP party chief George Strake and some top committee members wrote to House members to stay tough on taxes, the original Republican plan seems back on track.
