CARBON COMING FRIDAY TO MEET LOCAL ELEVEN

According to announcements, the Carbon foot ball boys will meet local eleven in a game here Friday afternoon. Carbon is reputed to have a strong team—but when the game is over, the local fans can tell you more about it. Anyway, show the home boys that you are for them and encourage them with your presence—and a good yell now and then. It makes a team play hard when they realize the home folks are supporting them. That will apply in business, too—a thought we should keep in mind.

Caplan Wins From Patterson

Abe Caplan of Coleman defeated Jimmie Patterson, of Brownwood, in a hard match here Tuesday night, at the Ideal Theatre. Caplan won with his famous "flying mare" in 36 minutes. Patterson's neck was injured and the contest ended with the first fall. It was a fast and hard contest of brawn and skill all the way through. Patterson used the headlock with a telling effect on Caplan and both men were fighting desperately to win in the last five minutes, with both showing wonderful endurance.

Caplan's manager, Horace Brown of Coleman, announced that Caplan would meet Kai Pasha, the "Terrible Turk" at Coleman on Friday night.

Patterson challenged Caplan for a return bout at Rising Star at a later date and Caplan accepted.

There is a possibility that Caplan and Kai Pasha may meet here soon.

Mothers and Children

County nurse now has a nurse next Saturday Oct. 25 to 3 o'clock at Masonic Community nurse will meet with conferece on the health of Mothers and Children. Every mother with children under school age is urged to be present at this the very first conference, that the work may be organized and started in this community and plans made for its continuance. This is for all mothers with children under school age regardless of the present health of the children. The great problem for any mother is to know how to keep her child well, not to know how to treat it when it gets sick so much as to know how to keep it well. Every mother come at the very first meeting.

Children are examined, weighed, measured, etc. Eyes, tonsils, in fact a free Clinic. No cost to you whatever.

Mrs. S. P. Collins

Needed Most Today

Of all the things in all the world That's needed most to-day 'Tis that God's banner be unfurled Along life's rugged way.

There are many souls far out in sin Who don't seem to know or care That Jesus, died for fallen men On Calvary's hill so bare

It is not only a duty but a privilege That God does to us extend, To lost souls, even through sacrifice A helping hand to win.

So let us not shrink nor turn aside When they mock at the Savior of men But point them to Jesus the crucified Who cleanses from all sin.

Let's walk in the light both day and night And let our lives be each day That sinners might see we are in the right And turn from the crooked way.

While we are happy and made to rejoice For the blessings we have received There are millions who have not heard His voice Nor yet on him believe.

Then let us not then sit idly by While the harvest is so white But ever press forward with the battle cry That God is mighty and right.

—JOHN HOLDER

PARENT-TEACHERS INSTALL NEW PLAYGROUND EQUIPMENT

The Parent-Teachers Association has installed "slides" on the playgrounds at the school, and expect to have the "Ocean Wave" completed in few days. Other additions are contemplated.

Children are entitled to a certain amount of recreation and play, and the Parent-Teachers recognize the importance of properly equipping the playgrounds, that they may enjoy their play. "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy".

The Parent-Teachers are doing a splendid work and deserve much commendation.

$250 IN GOLD TO BE GIVEN AWAY SATURDAY

According to circulars distributed over this section, $50.00 in gold will be given away Saturday, in three sums, $25, $15 and $10. The circular states that a like amount will be given away each Saturday, by the business men through the Chamber of Commerce, for ten Saturdays, and on the 11th Saturday, which will be Jan. 3rd. a sum of $250.00 in gold will be given away here.

Autumn Picnic

One of the most enjoyable occasions of the season was given on Monday at the city park by Mesdames Williams, Bryant and Gwin. A number of families assembled around 5 o'clock, and after a little social visit, supper was served by placing automobiles in a circle and giving light, those enjoying the occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. Baker and children, J. W. Westerman, W. C. Wilkinson, Geo. B. Scott, R. B. McGowan, Rev. and Mrs. Littleton, Davanay and children, G. E. Nicholson and children, Jeff Clark and children, Hemphill and children, Bryn Bryant and children, W. A. Williams and children, Mayor and Mrs. Clyde and Mr. Taylor.

CROSS CUT CONTINUES TO SHOW NEW ACTIVITY

Fair Question

"Now children," said the teacher, "I want you to understand that the time to ask questions is whenever anything is said which you wish explained. Do not wait until I have finished, and then tell me you 'did not hear' or, 'did not understand' when I talked to you."

The children replied: "Yes, ma'am!" in chorus.

"Very well," said the teacher, "we will begin today with James I, who came after Elizabeth."

A scholar raised his hand. "Well," asked the teacher, "what is it?"

"What made him come after her?" —London Tit-Bits.

"Doll Up" the Old Home and Make It Young

Does the old home begin to look a little worse for wear? Has it lost its original CHEERY atmosphere? It's really surprising what an effect the outward appearance of the old home has on the occupants' feelings. Very much the same feeling a man has when his coat is out at the elbows and his trousers shiny.

WHY NOT DRESS IT UP AGAIN? SPRUCE IT UP with a NEW SUIT OF CLOTHES, as it were. It's a simple matter and a real economy, too. Makes it more attractive but more saleable and ADDS MATERIALLY TO ITS VALUE.

Give it a fresh coat of Sherwin-Williams paints—put a new MODERN roof on it—put new floor in it, of EDGE GRAIN FLOORING, add a PORCH or a few WINDOWS here and there. Any or all of this could be done at a very NOMINAL EXPENSE. Come in and let us give you ESTIMATES of anything you might have in mind. It will be a real pleasure to talk it over with you.

WOLF HUNT POSTPONED ACCOUNT FOOT & MOUTH DISEASE

Last week the Review carried an article about the big wolf hunt which was scheduled to start last Monday. Just before going to press however, F. M. Gwin, came into our office with a telegram which he had just received from an official of the Wolf Hunters Association, stating that owing to some circumstances the hunt on Parker ranch was called off, and moved to Parker ranch south of Cisco. This week we are reproducing an article from the Coleman paper, which gives further light and information. It follows:

"The annual hunt of the West Central Texas Wolf Hunters Association, announced to be held in Coleman county during the week beginning Oct. 20, has been postponed for the year as a precautionary measure against the spread of the foot and mouth disease.

This action was taken at a meeting of the board of directors at San Saba Wednesday morning and was announced by W. C. Gray of Coleman, who is a member of the board. J. E. G. Hillman of San Saba is secretary of the board. He states that a local hunt will be held eight miles south of San this week, to which local hunters are invited."

LAFOLLETTE MEN SPOKE HERE LAST THURSDAY NIGHT

Messrs Scroggins and Rhodes, state speakers for LaFollette, spoke here last Thursday night on the streets. It had been announced that they would speak on Wednesday, but they failed to get here, and only a small crowd turned out Thursday night, as it was not general known.

Mr. Scroggins stated that Coolidge was doing nothing to gain favor of the voters, while Davis was too familiar with Wall Street, so he adds that LaFollette is going to win, as he is backed solidly by organized labor. LaFollette is a friend to the laboring man, the speaker declared. He also referred to the "straw vote" which has been taken by leading newspapers, which shows LaFollette running next to Coolidge in many places and leading in others.

W. A. Williams and family motored to Cisco Wednesday, to meet his mother Mrs. M. L. Williams, of Lubbock, who will visit here.

W. J. Jeanes of Rowden was attending business here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Westerman spent the past week end visiting in Benjamin, returning Sunday.

Stomach Distress?

Galveston, Texas—"One year ago I was suffering with indigestion. Everything I ate hurt me and I had almost constant headache. I tried several remedies which did me no good. Then I decided to try Dr. Pierce's medicines. I took the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' which was highly recommended for stomach trouble, and the 'Favorite Prescription,' a celebrated feminine tonic, and I improved right from the start, and by the time I had taken a few bottles I was well."

—Mrs. Jas. J. McNamara, 723 Ave. 1.

Obtain Dr. Pierce's Remedies now from your nearest dealer. You will soon feel their beneficial effect.

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY AILMENTS

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a medicine for curable ailments of the kidneys, liver and bladder.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases. Swamp-Root makes friends quickly because its mild and immediate effect is soon realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.

Start treatment at once. Sold at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing, be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

SAVORY CORN DISHES

When the fresh corn may be obtained, gathered, husked and cooked within an hour from the garden one knows what delicious corn is. However, the canned variety will serve as a substitute after fresh corn is gone.

Corn on the cob should cook rapidly ten minutes; longer cooking toughens it and makes it less palatable. Serve on a platter covered with a napkin to keep it hot.

For those who like the corn cut from the cob, add one teaspoonful of salt, enough pepper to season and a teaspoonful of sugar; cook in a little water until the corn is tender, add cream or butter and a little milk and serve at once. The salt should be added just before going to the table.

Tomatoes Stuffed With Corn.—Wash, remove the seeds and pulp of as many tomatoes as needed, fill with corn prepared with seasonings as below and bake in a hot oven until the tomatoes are soft but not broken.

Chop one-half tablespoonful of green pepper, the same of onion and cook in two tablespoonfuls of butter; add two tablespoonfuls of flour, one teaspoonful each of salt and sugar, one-fourth teaspoonful each of mustard and paprika, one cupful of corn cut from the cob and one-half cupful of milk. Cook all together until thick before adding the corn.

Corn Chowder.—To the above mixture add two cupfuls of diced potatoes, a slice of salt pork diced and cooked until brown, four milk crackers soaked in milk. Cook the potatoes with pork and fat in water to cover, add the corn mixture and two cupfuls of scalded milk with the crackers. Seasoning may be added if needed.

Corn and Potato Salad.—Cut tender cooked corn from the cob—any leftover is good—add to one or more cupfuls of finely diced potatoes a bit of minced onion and one small cucumber finely diced. Mix with a good salad dressing and let stand for several hours to season before serving.

Scalloped corn with leftover chicken makes a most tasty dish which will be refreshing for a main dish.

COOKERY

Impossible to get a well-balanced (by measure) recipe from any of the old Southern cooks. Proportions are very hard to get, and one is indeed fortunate to be able to watch, measure and obtain an accurate one.

Calas.—This is an old New Orleans recipe: In a mortar pound one-half cupful of rice until fine, then cook in three cupfuls of boiling salted water, drain, cool to lukewarm and add one-half a yeast cake dissolved in one-half cupful of warm water. Beat well and set away in a moderately warm place overnight. In the morning add three well-beaten eggs, one-fourth cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt, three or four tablespoonfuls of flour, or ground rice, and a pinch of nutmeg. Beat the mixture hard and let rise for fifteen minutes, then drop by spoonfuls into deep fat. When a rich brown remove, drain and sprinkle with sugar and serve very hot.

Omelet fritters are prepared by cutting an omelet into sections; dip into fritter batter and fry as usual. A nice way to use leftover omelet.

Creole Bouilla Baisse.—Take three slices of red snapper and three of red fish, six large tomatoes, half a lemon, three onions, a small bunch of herbs, a clove of garlic, a bay leaf, a sprig of parsley, a pinch of thyme, three tablespoonfuls of olive oil, one-fourth teaspoonful of saffron, salt, pepper and cayenne to taste.

Place the head of the red snapper and the bones of the fish over the fire in two quarts of water, add one onion sliced and a bunch of herbs. Cook and reduce to one quart, strain and reserve the stock. Chop the parsley, garlic, bay leaf and thyme and mix well. Rub the fish well with salt and pepper, then with the herbs, until the slices are well permeated with them. Cook lightly in the olive oil, add the two remaining onions chopped fine. Place tomatoes with the lemon cut into slices, add fish stock and cook until the tomatoes are cooked; season and cook to reduce stock one-half. Add the fish and cook until done. Place slices of fish on fresh hot toast, add the saffron to the stock and simmer five minutes. Pour over the fish and serve at once.

Baked Apples.—Peel and core good-flavored apples and put to cook in a deep crock or bean pot. Bake with a little water added until the apples are tender; sweeten with brown sugar, cover and keep hot in the oven for half a day. They will be brown, delicious and well flavored.

BLOUSE AND TUNIC EXPLOITED; DAYTIME FROCKS IN VARIETY

A COSTUME made up of a plaited skirt worn with an overblouse, is as familiar as the A B C's and about as well established. The plaited skirt varies little, year in and out, but always pleads its cause with success, as a convenient companion piece to blouses of different sorts—for practical wear. But this fall we have plaited skirts constant to one overblouse, each wearing the sign of their union in pretty and novel decorations. One of these wholly charming and practical outfits is shown here and the chances most as forceful in the realm of children's clothes. There is diversity in fabrics, in colors and color combinations, in trimmings and considerable of it in styles themselves.

For everyday frocks, twills, flannels, jersey cloth, kasha and velveteen are presented in a variety of patterns which include stripes, plaids, cross-bar patterns, hairline stripes in two or three vivid colors and plain colors. Nearly all the frocks made of these cloths are cut on the simple lines shown here in a frock of striped han-are that many a woman will want to feel and many of them have collar and like it. It is of black satin with heavy coarse natural linen. Unique trimming that is made of the colors in the stripes are used pipings (Thus a navy-blue dress in red and black and ornate buttons). The frock usually has short bands or motifs and there are many flit lace seen a better any other—they are as chic pendable as the blouse they finish. Business women will find this model worth considering.

The last arrivals in day dresses show the tunic dress in many pretty versions. The tunic blouse has made a sweeping success and is developed in almost as many variations as the overblouse—it is usually worn with a plain, narrow skirt. By these means the dim, straightline modes are given further diversity.

Yes, we have no sameness in frocks or little Miss Eleven-or-So. Fashion says they must be simple, but may indulge in numberless ingenious "extras" to give them variety. The future for diversity which dominates the grown-up modes in all apparel is al-nate and long or three-quarter length sleeves.

Besides these utility dresses "little miss" has afternoon frocks of crepe de chine or velveteen in dark colors. They are miniatures of some of the very simple grown-up patterns and are amusing because so diminutive. In these, sleeves are often half or three-quarter length. But her party frocks are "something else again"—as different as can be from those of older girls or grown people. For these crepe de chine, georgette crepe, thin silks and the filmiest laces are used, with ribbons and chiffon or artificial flowers in finishing touches.

THE ERASER

"I am almost nothing," said the eraser.

"What do you mean by that?" the pencil asked.

"Just what I said," the eraser answered.

"You never were very big," the pencil remarked.

"True," the eraser said, "but I amounted to more than I do now."

"I had a nice little place here at the end of you, Pencil, and I was a pretty good eraser."

"But now I have been rubbed down to almost nothing. That is what I meant when I said I was almost nothing."

"I understand," the pencil answered. "You see," the eraser said, "I have been used so much. I couldn't keep in very good condition that way."

"Weren't you but there for use?" the pencil asked. "You weren't simply put there as an object of beauty, were you?"

"Now, don't be sarcastic, please," the eraser said. "I'm sad enough as it is."

"Of course I wasn't put here for beauty but for use, but I've been used almost too much—in fact I have been used too much."

"I'm all at loose ends. I'm shabby and worn. Bits of me are falling and I can't stay in the end place here very well.

"It Is Dreadful."

"I keep falling and have to be shoved back in again.

"I have been used so many times when I need not have been used."

"I have been used when a little thought would have saved me the effort and trouble."

"Not that I could have thought, but the one using me could have thought and that would have saved me."

"A mistake has been made and then I have been used to rub it out."

"Often that mistake would not have been made if a little thought had been used in the first place."

"Of course I'm willing enough to help about mistakes, but too much is too much."

"I suppose you're right," the pencil said.

"Well," the pencil added, "I've not always been treated as well as I might have been treated."

"I was a handsome pencil at one time, but I've been chewed and I've been bitten and I'm covered with teeth marks now. I'm rather shabby, too."

"Still, I heard one of the old pencils telling a little pencil family history."

"In the old days," said this pencil, "things were the same."

"Some of the grown-ups will say to the children now that it is dreadful the way they stop and chew their pencils instead of getting on with their work, and they tell them that that is no way to think."

"That is perfectly true of course, but when they were young they often did the same thing, too."

"Oh, yes, if you go back far enough in pencil family history you will find that many a mother and father did the very same when they were young."

"That was what the old pencil told us," the young pencil said. "But still that doesn't really excuse matters."

"We should be treated a little better."

"I think so," the eraser said.

"But it won't do us much good to think so," the pencil remarked.

"Not much," agreed the eraser.

"There are troubles that come to all of us, I suppose," the pencil said.

"I suppose so," agreed the eraser once more.

"Life isn't all fun," the pencil said, and felt it had made a very smart remark. From having written the answers to so many questions and from having done so many sums the pencil felt it was quite smart.

"But I do feel sorry for myself particularly," the eraser ended, "as I'm almost nothing now."

No Occasion to Refuse

Donald was invited to lunch upon his fourth birthday with his playmate next door, and was reminded by his mother of the small points of etiquette which she wished him to observe.

Upon his return home she asked him if he remembered to say "Please" and "No, thank you."

"I said 'Please,'" he said, "but I didn't say 'No, thank you,' because I took everything they passed me."

NERVOUS & HALF-SICK WOMEN

Relieved by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

These Three Letters Prove It

Lowell, Mass.—"I am sending you a few lines to let you know what good your medicine has done for me. I want you to let every one know that it has helped me in nervous troubles. I have four children and you know there is a lot to do where children are. They would come in from school and they would start telling me about their little troubles but I could not stand it. I had to send them away. I could not even walk on the street alone I was so nervous. I found one of your books and read it and then I saw in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got it and had taken one bottle when I saw a change in myself. I was surprised. The children can talk all they want to now and it does not bother me. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JOSEPH LEMERE, 84 South Street, Lowell, Mass.

Felt Like A New Woman

Springfield, Missouri—"For four or five months I was run-down, nervous, my back ached and I did not feel like doing a thing. Sometimes my legs ached and felt like they would break and I had a hurting in my sides. I had been reading in the newspapers the letters of other women who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the advertising of it appealed to me so I bought some and saw results in almost no time. I had hardly been able to do my own work and after taking the Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I recommend it to my friends who have troubles like I did, and hope they will find the same results."—Mrs. M. CARPENTER, 607 W. Chase Street, Springfield, Missouri.

40 Years Old, Feels Like 20

Hagerstown, Md.—"I was very bad off with backache, a bearing-down feeling in my body and a pain in my left side. I could not be on my feet at times and once I was so bad I walked bent over to one side for three weeks. My sister read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me a bottle. I got so much relief that I took more until I was well. I am 40 years old and feel like 20. I am sure this medicine will help all women."—Mrs. MARY E. SANDY, 436 W. Franklin Street, Hagerstown, Md.

Over 100,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 per cent of these replies are "Yes."

That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take this medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

All druggists are having increased sales of this medicine.

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. F. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean of the Evening School, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for October 26

THE STILLING OF THE STORM

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4:35-41.

GOLDEN TEXT—What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey Him?—Mark 4:41.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Story of a Great Storm.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Stills the Tempest.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Power of Jesus Over Nature.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Meet the Storms of Life.

Jesus was a great Teacher, as was shown in the parable of last lesson, but Mark's aim was to show Him as the Divine Servant doing mighty deeds. Hence after the parables are presented deeds which show Him to be the master of the forces of nature, lemons, diseases and death. His mastery of the forces of nature is the particular deed shown in this lesson.

I. Jesus and the Disciples Crossing the Sea (vv. 35, 36)

Wearily from the teaching of the day, He proposes that they take a ship to the other side of the sea, the aim doubtless being to escape the crush of the multitude. They did not delay, for "they took Him even as He was in the ship."

II. Overtaken by a Storm (v. 37).

Storms were frequent on Galilee, but this was an unusual storm. It was a furious tempest, so great that the waves beat into the ship so that it was full. Even though Jesus was in the boat with the disciples they were overtaken by a storm. To follow Christ does not necessarily mean smooth sailing or cloudless skies. Indeed, it rather implies that we will have to encounter storms. However, those who have Christ on their boat cannot sink.

III. Jesus Himself in the Storm-Tossed Boat (v. 38).

The day had been a very strenuous one and He was weary. In the midst of the turbulent elements He was resting in sleep. He who made the sea could well lie down and sleep though the storm did violently rage. His being asleep did not indicate that He was indifferent to the need of His disciples.

IV. The Terrified Disciples (vv. 38, 39).

In their minds not only the storm and death awaited them, but also an absolutely new and terrifying experience was unfolding before them. The storm was the danger. It was terrifying but the sleeping while the danger was so great. It was a presumption on their part that they should make a demand upon Him.

V. Christ's Rebuke (vv. 39, 40).

He arose and rebuked the wind. Unless we see Him as the God-Man we will be perplexed, for we see a human being sleeping because of exhaustion and then we hear the divine voice of the Creator and Ruler of the universe. He who was asleep has power to rebuke and calm the raging elements.

1. The Wind (v. 39). This showed that He had power over the elements of nature for at His command the wind ceased and there was a great calm.

2. The Disciples for Their Lack of Faith (v. 40). They were looking upon their circumstances instead of upon their Lord. For all the disciples had seen and heard they should have been without fear in the company of Jesus. Let us learn to trust Him for He has power over all things.

VI. The Effect Upon the Disciples (v. 4).

They were filled with great fear. A little while ago they were afraid in the face of a storm. Now they are afraid in the presence of the Lord. Frequently marvelous deliverances by the Lord so affect God's children that they are more alarmed over the presence of a divine being than they are by the threatening perils. Let us see that standing in our midst though unseen today is our Lord and that despite the raging of the storms we can hear His voice of peace.

Christianity

Christianity is a religion of the Spirit. And, whatever else a church may or may not have, possession of the Spirit of God is that which makes it Christian. Elaborate formalism, beautiful architecture, ornate discourses may be vehicles for the expression of the Spirit, but they must be understood to be secondary and contributory only. When so understood they are legitimate and praise worthy.—Charles B. Tupper.

Our Blessings

We fail to get much benefit from many blessings because we do not try to impart them to others.—Herald and Presbyterian.

The Wages of Sin

The worst of the sin is that they are always paid in part by the innocent.—Lucas Malet.

Riches of Friendship

A dollar is soon spent, but the of friendship are inestimable.

Wearily Rancher of Chile.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

Chile, which has come into the world news by the unusual procedure of banishing its President for six months, is as interesting geographically as politically. The best way to see this shoe-string of a country is to travel on the longitudinal railway, from its beginning in the dreary desert to its dropping-off place on the wooded shore of the Gulf of Ancud. Few, save the Chileans themselves, make this comprehensive journey, from the rainless region of the north to the rich agricultural heart of the country, and on through the magnificent forest and river lands, long held by the valiant Araucanian Indians, to that enchanting mountain and lake region unrivaled in beauty the world over.

The "longitudinal's" beginning is at Pisagua, a port north of Antofagasta. Arica, still farther north in disputed territory, is not yet connected with the Chilean railroad system, being beyond the nitrate zone.

It takes a drab pencil to draw a picture of the country crossed the first two days out from Antofagasta. One is in vain on the monotonous, treeless plain for so much as a cactus. The line is too far inland to glimpse the restless, blue waters of the sea. The desert is a gray, featureless expanse. The only relief seen is the white salt deposits, marking the sites of former nitrate works. Nitrate of soda, Chile's chief source of revenue, of which the country has virtually a world monopoly, is obtained from the rough rock known locally as caliche. It is dug or blasted from the earth, in some places lying near the surface, in others 20 to 30 feet below ground. The nitrate deposits lie from 15 to 90 miles inland from the coast, at an altitude varying from a little over 3,000 to 13,000 feet.

As one continues south from Copiapo, little by little the desert flora grows from tufts of grass and stunted bush to tall algarobas and cacti of many varieties, one with a great red bloom. At Valparaiso the railroad enters a wide, irrigated valley, emerald green with alfalfa, and vines heavy with luscious white grapes whose equal it is difficult to find in any other part of the world.

Coquimbo a Mining Center.

At the river Elqui the longitudinal railway gives a twist seaward to serve the charmingly situated town of La Serena and Coquimbo, its port. For a century and a half Coquimbo has been famed as a mining center. One of our North American steel companies has developed a remarkable iron property in the gigantic Tofo mines, where ore taken from a mountain of iron by steam shovels is conveyed by an electrically operated railroad to the pier and loaded directly, through chutes, into specially constructed steamers.

It takes six days of daylight travel from Antofagasta to Calera. Here we meet the lateral railway in the Aconcagua valley, connecting the town of Los Andes, at the foot of the mountains, with Valparaiso.

The Aconcagua valley is Chile's gem, a lovely vale where a merry little river, dashing down from crystalline heights, is bordered by velvety green hills. This is the rich agricultural region which stretches far south to the Bio-Bio river. This and adjoining valleys, the geologists tell us, are the remains of ancient rivers like those we see in far southern Chile.

Where the coast range of the Andes dips its feet in the sea, Valparaiso, South America's chief port on the Pacific, rises like an amphitheater from the crescent shore.

This city somehow does not seem typically South American or even distinctly Chilean. There are so many Britishers and Chileans of British blood here that the place has much in common with British colonial ports.

Like Hongkong, Valparaiso is formed of a few level streets on land in part reclaimed from the sea, and a residential section on the hills above. Elevators on inclined planes, known locally as "ascensors," connect the streets by the shore with those on the heights.

The situation of Santiago, Chile's capital, nearly 1,800 feet above the sea, is most attractive. It ranks in beauty among South American cities second only after Rio de Janeiro and equals La Paz, Arequipa, and Caracas.

Santiago's Hanging Garden.

Its most notable physical feature is Santa Lucia, a singular hill of volcanic origin in the heart of the city. This once barren knoll, 400 feet above the plain, has been transformed into a hanging garden. Over its tree tops one looks down on the great city of half a million souls—a city of low buildings and checker-board streets set in emerald meadows and encompassed by snowy mountains.

South of Santiago, "the longitudinal" passes through the long agricultural valley between the Coast range and the Andes. Wheat fields and vineyards border the track. Stately rows of Lombardy poplars and eucalyptus inclose the fields.

At the stations are female fruit sellers uniformed in white. They have melons for sale—big yellow melons—which, like grapes, take first rank. On all sides are indications that industrial growth, though slow, is certain. Besides possessing raw material for manufacturing, Chile has unlimited water power for hydroelectric plants. Excellent farming is being developed in browsing cattle the main part of Chile's main industry.

Few foreigners stop here at Santiago and Concepcion, a day or a night journey on the express. Concepcion, Chile's third city in importance, is on the north shore of the Bio-Bio river, not far from the sea.

Nine miles from Concepcion lies its seaport, Talcahuano, with the best harbor in southern Chile. It is the seat of the whaling industry, whales being found nearer the shore here than in most parts of the world.

Southward lie the ports of Coronel and Lota, where vast coal mines extend under the sea. Chile is the principal coal-producing country of South America, with an estimated coal reserve of two billion tons.

When one crosses the Bio-Bio river he enters that romantic territory known to the Chileans as the Frontera. Within the memory of the living, white men might not enter this region of great forests and noble rivers. It was the domain of the Araucanians.

Southern Chile Very Moist.

If the north of Chile has "gone dry," the south is certainly wet. Here Jupiter Pluvius reigns. Vapor-laden winds from the Pacific meet winter-chilled earth. The winds, ascending the Andes, pass through Nature's wringer and are hurled back in torrents. Annual precipitation must be gauged in feet instead of inches. Sixteen feet, even eighteen feet, farther south, is the official record.

There are now about 30,000 people of German stock in southern Chile, mostly between Valdivia and Puerto Montt.

The towns of La Union and Osorno show marked German influence, while Puerto Varas, on the shore of lovely Lake Llanquihue, is a typical Teutonic village.

From Puerto Varas, "the longitudinal" continues on to Puerto Montt, on the Gulf of Ancud, where it ends. The only Chilean railroads south of this point are the line which connects the towns of Ancud and Castro, on the Island of Chiloe, and a privately owned stretch of rail near Punta Arenas.

The latter city is reached after the traveler, forsaking railroad for coasting steamer, sails past many miles of unexplored wilderness. Situated on the mainland facing the Strait of Magellan, Punta Arenas is the most southerly town of any consequence in the world. Tributary to it in Tierra del Fuego is an exceedingly important sheep country to which the city with its 24,000 inhabitants owes its recent prosperity. For its size Punta Arenas is the most commercially successful of all Chilean cities. Its exports to the United States in a single year recently total $12,000,000.

Big Program

A big program for the Methodist. The last Sunday for the conference year.

The conference year for the Methodist church will officially come to a close Sunday night. In keeping in with the custom, a big harvest day program has been planned. Sunday morning every department of the Sunday School will have part in the program. At the 11 o'clock hour Rev. Brabham will speak from the theme "I have fought a good fight".

The program will climax at the evening service. All departments of the church will make their reports to the church. A musical program that will be a credit to any city will be featured. You are invited to be present at all services. Come early and be assured of a seat.

Mrs. and Mrs. Geo. Klutts returned a few days back from a few weeks stay at Marlin, seemingly improved in health.

In 100 Hour Non-Stop Run

Here's a test that will interest you:—

The Kilpatrick Motor Co. of Winters, Texas, carried out the test for this district, using a Chevrolet touring car of regular stock, running 100 hours without stopping the motor.

Auto covered 2,237 4-10 miles on 83 gallons gas, 6 quarts oil and only 21-2 pints of water needed to fill the radiator after the test was over. Average miles per gallon gas, 26 8-10. This test was over all kinds of roads. The first day the roads were muddy. Two punctures caused a delay of an hour, but the motor did not stop. It would have made greater mileage with better roads.

Chamber of Commerce Notes

The M. K. & T. Railway Co. through their industrial department, and with the assistance of numerous Chambers of Commerce, are compiling data on the undeveloped resources along their lines in West Texas. This data also includes factory needs, with quantity of raw materials now being produced; advantages offered by cheap fuel, labor etc. as well as advertising favorable openings for job wholesalers, jobbers and other lines of business that will further advance both the towns and rural districts. This information when compiled will be printed in booklet form and distributed in many thousand lots throughout the eastern and northern states. Considerable Cross Plains data has already gone forward and more will likely follow. Bring in your suggestions on what Cross Plains needs and can support.

Cross Plains merchants do co-operate. And that co-operation is usually one hundred per cent. This fact was well demonstrated last week when an advertising circular of the associated merchants came out with every firm in town co-operating.

Through an error of those compiling the circulars a few names were omitted on the printed list, but that was the fault of the secretary and not the firms that were left off. The West Texas Utilities Co. and the City Bakery two of our good boosters were among those who were thus badly dealt with but the fault was not their fault, for the sin of omission was committed against them and not by them.

A letter this week from Porter A. Whaley states that B. M. Whiteaker exhibit manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will again be on hand at the Waco Cotton Palace with the big all West Texas Exhibit. Mr. Whaley asks that any additional product of exceptional merit, produced in this section be forwarded to Mr. Whiteaker at Waco to be added to the big exhibit that has been making the rounds of the state and regional fairs the past several months. Cross Plains literature is being carried and distributed in connection with this exhibit and any one having products worthy of exhibition should bring them to the local Chamber of Commerce office to be forwarded to Mr. Whiteaker.

REPUBLICANS HOPE TO RAISE $3,000,000 CAMPAIGN FUND

NO ABILITY TO MASS FUNDS IN CERTAIN STATES, SAYS REPUBLICAN CHAIRMAN.

'DEBUNK' LA FOLLETTE

Object of Canned Editorials Paid for in Doubtful States, Says George B. Baker.

Chicago, Ill.—William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican National Committee, informed the special investigating committee of the Senate that it is the "hope" and "expectation" of his organization to raise a total of $3,000,000 for the national campaign, presidential, senatorial and congressional.

At the same time Mr. Butler denied charges of Senator Robert M. La Follette, the independent presidential candidate, that his committee would mobilize a large mass of funds in certain states during the last weeks of the campaign. His denial was in reply to questions by Senator Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota.

"We have no such intention, and have no such preparations," Mr. Butler said. "We have no ability to do it. We have no funds for purposes of that kind. There is no intention of doing anything of the sort. I want very much to conduct this campaign in such a way that when I get through it will be something to be proud of."

Under a grueling cross-examination by Senator Caraway (Dem.), Arkansas, regarding the budget plans of his committee, Mr. Butler testified that originally he had estimated $2,500,000 as the amount that would be required for the national presidential campaign. This sum was increased by $500,000 later, he added, after it had been decided to take care of the senatorial and congressional campaigns as well. Calling attention that evidence before the committee was that the Republican organization already had collected approximately $1,700,000, Senator Caraway asked if it was expected to collect an additional $1,300,000.

"Yes," Mr. Butler replied, "What are your plans for collecting it?" asked the Senator.

"Nothing, except the solicitations which are going on all over the country among our friends for funds," was the reply. "There is no special plan."

Pressed by the Arkansas Senator, Mr. Butler said the collection of funds was under the direction of the national treasurer, William V. Hodges.

"I have talked with the treasurer and I know what the general plan is," Mr. Butler added.

"Would you mind telling us what that general plan is?" pursued Senator Caraway.

"Why, the plan is simply to be in communication with our friends all over the country," Mr. Butler replied, "for them to send in their subscriptions, that is all. We have had committees appointed in various places for that purpose, I presume."

Senator Caraway developed that the national committee had assessed New York State for $1,000,000 of the proposed $3,000,000 campaign fund. Pennsylvania was assessed $600,000 and Illinois $300,000, so that, Senator Caraway said, three States were to raise two-thirds of the total. He added that on the same proportion of assessments among other states the committee would have raised something like $1,000,000,000, but Mr. Butler took exception to that conclusion.

VOTE!

Vote on Election Day, Tuesday, November 4!

Vote as you please—but vote! The suffrage is not your inherent, God-given right. The suffrage is a privilege given you by your country, the United States of America, the richest, the most powerful, the freest nation of earth and of all lands the most desirable. It is a privilege that carries with it the responsibility of the good American citizen to carry on the work of the patriots who gave us the Declaration of Independence.

Abraham Lincoln, fifty-nine years ago, asked for renewed vows of fealty to—"that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth." How shall that government live—if the people do not vote? "Don't be a slacker—in this duty of citizenship. Vote—or shut up!

UNIVERSITY HEADS MAY NOT GET RAISE

The Boards of Both University and A. & M. College Recommend $10,000 Salary for Presidents.

Austin, Texas.—It is known that the State Board of Control is not inclined to recommend $10,000 salaries for the presidents of the University of Texas and A. & M. College in making up the biennial budget of appropriations for the Legislature. The board members think the occasion does not demand it, since these institutions are not angling for new presidents of prominent reputation and that to recommend it would disrupt the entire scale of salaries in the several higher institutions of learning. The present able presidents received less than $10,000 until that figure was made possible for the head of the A. & M. College by adding Federal funds to the State appropriation.

In this connection it is also probable that the board will ask the Legislature to fix a maximum salary for the presidents of the institutions of learning so as to retain the relationship fixed between the institutions. The board adopted this scale in its last budget, which will probably be retained, State University president $7,500, president of the A. & M. College $7,500, president of C. I. A. $6,500 and the several teacher colleges $5,000.

A recommendation that maximums be fixed would carry with it the statement that these are State institutions and would not receive Federal funds, available funds or fees if they were not State supported. All of these institutions receive fees from students and the A. & M. College gets money from the Federal Government.

The board will submit a strict itemization of every dollar it recommends for the institutions of learning, and if the Legislature desires to make lump-sum allowances by departments, as it did two years ago, that will be its privilege, say the board members.

At this time the board is working on the budgets of the Texas Technological College and of the eight State teacher colleges. It is expected to rank with the C. I. A. for the present and later with the A. & M. College in salary basis.

The governing boards of both the University and A. & M. College recommended $10,000 salaries for their presidents. The A. & M. president was already receiving it through conditions from special funds. University president was on the Board of Control two years ago and adopted a scale ranking the institutions in salaries, placing them in this order: University, A. & M. College, C. I. A. and the teacher colleges. It has adhered to that rating and will seek to have the Legislature preserve it.

WILL SLAY ALL CATTLE IN INFECTED AREA

Order Given to Shoot 300 in Hoof and Mouth Quarantine District.

Houston, Texas.—Possibility that every cow within fence in the infected area where the hoof and mouth disease was found in Harris County will be ordered shot within the next few days loomed when the three milk cows belonging to Glen Peck, one-half mile from Webster, were found infected. They were ordered shot at once. Seventy-five head of dairy cows belonging to Mrs. Frank Peck, Glen Peck's mother, were shot.

Orders were given to shoot 300 head of cattle at Genoa. All of the 300 head have been under fence and, like Mrs. Peck's cattle were not killed with the range cattle last week because they were under fence when the disease was first discovered.

Infection in these cattle was caused, Dr. Marion Imes said, by contact through the wire fences with cattle of the open range.

Up to the present time approximately 8,000 head of cattle have been shot and buried. All of them have been buried in trench No. 1 on the Jacobs ranch, where the first cattle were killed, or in trench No. 2 on the McFaddin ranch.

McAdoo to Be Operated On.
Baltimore.—William Gibbs McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, will undergo an operation at Johns Hopkins Hospital here for the removal of gravel from the bladder. Mr. McAdoo has arrived in Baltimore and is now at the hospital.

Calles Stresses Cordial Relations.
Paris.—The cordial relations existing between the United States and Mexico were emphasized by Mexican President-Elect General Plutarco Elias Calles. "The evidence of my personal admiration for the people north of the Rio Grande," General Calles said, "may be found in the fact that one chief aim of the new Mexican administration will be to obtain for Mexicans economic and social conditions such as the people of the United States enjoy."

THE ZR-3 ENDS HAZARDOUS TRIP ACROSS ATLANTIC

Thousands See Dirigible Moored and Acclaim Commander, Crew and Passengers.

Lakehurst, N. J.—The ZR-3 slumbered Wednesday night, safely cradled in the Lakehurst air dome after a memorable flight across the ocean.

Her German crew slumbered also and her four American passengers. The dirigible, which had set a new record for sustained flight, appeared none the worse for the effort. She swayed crooningly and and fro to the tune of soft creaking tackle. Her luminous sides shimmered under the beams of a moon that penetrated her glass-domed hangar.

But the humans whom she had carried so far sheltered beneath her protecting bulk—they were red-eyed and weary. They had traveled 5,066 miles under hazardous circumstances and they had done it in a continuous flight of 81 hours and 17 minutes.

This was the official record as computed by Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the dirigible and president of the Zeppelin interests, and by Commander J. H. Klein, Jr., of Lakehurst Field, who made the transoceanic flight.

The approximate average of the British R-34 during her westward flight of 3,200 miles across the Atlantic in 108 hours, made in 1919, was 29.63 miles per hour.

As a further indication of the strides lighter-than-air aeronautics have taken during those five years the fuel tanks of the ZR-3 were one-quarter full when she berthed. They held seven and one-half tons, enough, according to Lieut. Commander S. M. Krauss, to have carried her 1,800 knots farther or a goodly part of the distance to the Pacific Coast.

When the R-34 reached her destination at Mineola, L. I., from East Fortune, Scotland, her fuel tanks held barely a half hour's supply. For her to have proceeded further would have been to court disaster.

The giant Zeppelin ZR-3 reposed in her berth at the naval air station air dome, Lakehurst, at 10:45 a. m. Wednesday. A mighty shout went up from thousands as the air vessel came down.

ELECTION PURPOSES DISCUSSED BY DAVIS

is Responsible to Electorate Candidate.

Ill.—Government administration is responsible to the people and all have an equal share as stockholders in a great enterprise. John W. Davis told Quincy voters in calling upon them to "review the report of your board of directors and either re-elect them with your officers for the ensuing term or wipe the slate clean and try another administration."

"That is the very purpose of a popular election," Mr. Davis said. "That is the reason why the founders who formed this Government and gave us this structure that has defended our liberties and our lives for more than a century, made it not optional, not by choice, but inevitable that your public servants should return to you at frequent intervals and give an account of their stewardship and to receive from you either the plaudits, 'well done, good and faithful servants,' or the converse of that approval, 'depart, we never knew you.'"

"Now, what are you going to answer to that problem? What have your board of directors to bring to you? There are ten of them in this particular corporation. And then they come back to you this year and say that one of those directors who had charge of all the real estate belonging to the corporation had disposed of the most precious part of the corporation's holdings, and when it was looked into it was discovered that he had taken bribes as a consideration for doing so. They called him a secretary of the Interior and his name was Fall."

Mr. Davis called attention to the responsibility which he said, faced the voters every four years in the election of "their chief magistrate."

"We occupy no segregated island," Mr. Davis said. Agitators Get Prison Terms. Honolulu.—Pablo Manlilit, the Filipino labor agitator and striker with his chief lieutenant, Cecilio Basan, were sentenced to from two to ten years in the Circuit Court for subordination of perjury.

New Tariffs Suspended.
Washington.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has ordered the suspension until Feb. 17, next, of new tariffs which the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, St. Louis-San Francisco and other roads proposed to put into effect in Southwestern territory. In order that an investigation may be made as to the possible injurious effect of the new rates upon the rights and interests of the public. The first of a series of hearings will be before Examiner Cassidy.

U. S. ROAD HEAD COMING TO TEXAS

Texas Must Conform to Highway Act to Get United States Funds.

Austin, Texas.—Gibb Gilchrist, State Highway Engineer, has returned from an extended trip to Washington where he conferred with the heads in the Bureau of Public Roads regarding the future course in Texas. Within the next few days H. K. Bishop, chief of construction of the bureau, will arrive in Texas and make an inspection of road construction and maintenance in this State.

There is nothing new with reference to the funds already allotted to this state for road construction, but T. H. McDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads, made it plain to Mr. Gilchrist that the State of Texas has until Nov. 9, 1926, to conform to the Federal highway act, and that failing to do so this State will not get Federal funds for road construction except under meager allowances.

Mr. MacDonald said that after Nov. 9, 1926, the Federal Government will match State money only, therefore, money voted by counties would not be matched. The State money is infinitesimal in amount compared to the bonds voted for road purposes by counties and road districts. The Federal Government wants no strings attached to funds in the State which it proposes to match dollar for dollar, hence the regulations which become effective Nov. 9, 1926, barring county money and matching that of the State only. In this way the requirements for construction and for road maintenance can be met.

Only one regular session of the Legislature is destined to meet between now and November of 1926, and it convenes next January. Mr. Gilchrist does not know whether Texas will have to amend its Constitution or its statutes to comply with the Federal law. Only a regular session of the Legislature is empowered to submit an amendment to the Constitution to comply with the Federal act, if that is found to be the only method of meeting the requirements and saving the Federal road money for Texas.

An amendment proposed in last Legislature was found to be unconstitutional and never voted on. It was to make Texas eligible for Federal funds. As a result of this, the Legislature is authorized to complete appropriations for the next Legislature in amend any of its laws so that they can not submit change of constitution.

Between now and January the State Highway Commission, favoring to keep within revenues and at the same time provide for enlargements at the State educational and eleemosynary institutions.

JONES URGES DEMOCRATS TO PRINT FUND TOTAL

Early Publication of Campaign Receipts Asked by Director Jones.

Houston, Texas.—In a statement to Texas newspapers issued from his New York headquarters, Jesse H. Jones, director of finance for the Democratic national committee, urges early publication of all campaign expenditures by local, county and State organizations, as well as by the national committees of all parties.

Mr. Jones bases his request on the statement that "the threatened exposure of a huge Republican campaign fund suggests that, as in 1920 that party expects to influence the election with the unlimited use of money."

The Democratic party will not accept donations from parties expecting to be paid in tariff favors or by gifts from the public domain, he declared. The total Democratic receipts have not yet reached the $300,000 mark, Mr. Jones stated.

Find Man Hanging From Tree.
San Antonio, Texas.—Barefooted and partially dressed, hanging from a small tree by four strands of wrapping twine, Amado Rivas, 65, was found dead by Patrolman Salinas while making his rounds on South Laredo street.

No Danger of Spread of Yellow Fever.
Austin, Texas.—Every possible precaution to prevent the spread of yellow fever in Houston has been taken and there is no occasion for alarm, State Health Officer Duggan stated. There has only been one case, that of a Fernando Perez, Mexican, who died in Houston hospital Oct. 5. Perez having been ill at the time he arrived in Houston. Dr. Duggan said that all persons who had come in contact with the case were being properly cared for and are under quarantine.

Condensed Austin News

State Commissioner of Banking Chapman issued a call for statements of condition of State banks at close of business Oct. 11.

After a week's successful run the Texas State Exposition has closed. It is estimated that total attendance will reach close to 100,000.

The State Treasurer issued a call for payment of warrants up to and including $2,366, amounting to $104,449. All warrants affected by the call were issued prior to Sept. 1.

Thomas B. Love of Dallas has been in Austin conferring with Attorney General Keeling and State Bank Commissioner Chapman. Mr. Love said his visit related solely to private business matters and had no connection with politics.

The Supreme Court, the Court of Criminal Appeals, after three months' vacation have reconvened for new terms, and in each court the docket was heavy. All members of the three courts were present when the new terms were formally opened. The docket of the Court of Criminal Appeals is the heaviest in the history of the court, numbering 660.

The Attorney General, through Assistant E. A. Wilson, has advised Judge Scott, Commissioner of Insurance, that no opinion will be given with reference to the Commissioner's ruling that Texas-licensed insurance companies can not split agents' commissions with non-licensed brokers, that if the insurance companies and others want the ruling tested they must appeal to the courts.

The alleged whipping of an Austin business' man is to be investigated by the Travis County grand jury which has just been organized. It is alleged that the whipping was administered in a tent at one of Austin's bathing resorts and that a woman was an eye-witness to the affair. Judge James R. Hamilton in empanelling the grand jury called special attention to the law against flogging.

During the month of September, $973,748 was spent under the direction of the State Highway Commission for road construction in this State and $419,314 for road maintenance. Of the former amount $424,113 was State aid and $549,635 Federal funds. Highway department last year aggregated $1,423,628, and balance on September 30 of 1925 was $1,007,333.

It is expected that the Legislature will be made by the State Board of Control to complete appropriations for the next Legislature in amend any of its laws so that they can not submit change of constitution. Between now and January the State Highway Commission, favoring to keep within revenues and at the same time provide for enlargements at the State educational and eleemosynary institutions.

Applications of candidates for the two Rhodes scholarships assigned to Texas for selection to enter Oxford in 1926 must be made to the committees of the educational institutions of the State not later than Oct. 18. Dr. T. W. Riker, chairman of the committee to pass upon the candidates from the University of Texas, urges that candidates from that institution submit their applications to him immediately.

As a result of the higher courts being in vacation for three months the population in the State penitentiary has been reduced to a new low level. It is 3,622, as compared to a high mark of 3,897 in early July. With the Court of Criminal Appeals starting on a new term and affirming scores of appeal cases, more prisoners will go to the penitentiary and the total will again climb. With the heavy docket before the court the number of State convicts is expected to reach about 4,000 by the first of the year.

If a man is opposed to woman suffrage and desires to prevent his wife from voting all he has to do is to move onto a United States reservation and declare it his place of abode. This is expected to be the decision of the Attorney General's Department in answer to a question propounded by a citizen of Eagle Pass. The decision is based on decisions already rendered in other States. If the Attorney General upholds this contention, as set forth in other States, it will affect many men and women in this State due to the fact that the largest Government reservation in the world is located at San Antonio.

Arthur A. Stiles, State reclamation engineer and member of the Red River boundary commission has returned from a protracted stay with the other commissioner, Arthur D. Kidder, and together they finished marking the boundary, setting the posts and reference monuments from the Big Bend section to the Electra bridge. Mr. Stiles says a few men will remain two weeks longer to complete the topographic mapping and that this finishes the entire field work. The completed report will be made to the court late this fall.

MAKING GOOD IN A SMALL TOWN

Real Stories About Real Girls

By MRS. HARLAND H. ALLEN

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

THE BAKER LADY

IS YOUR talent for baking? Are there, in your town, certain bachelors who are reputed to live solely on flap-jacks; bachelor girls who are popularly supposed to dine daily out of cans; society folks who have difficulty finding on Main Street just the baked dainties they would like to have for their parties and dinners?

If it is, and there are, your fortune is made, says one girl who is famed in her home town for her short and flaky biscuits, coffee cakes, cream puffs and cookies, her delectable corn bread and pie.

"My one talent is baking," she is fond of saying. "I always wondered whether such a homely household accomplishment had any commercial value. I settled the point by starting a bakery in the kitchen at home, and I have proved to my own satisfaction that my talent can earn something besides compliments from the family."

The girl who seriously desires to start in the business, must of course, be a good "bakeress." If she is, she knows probably about what ingredients, kitchen utensils, and equipment she will need. In general, she should remember that the best materials are always the cheapest.

There is more profit in fancy baking than in bread, though bread is the best stand-by; but few women customers can resist some of the tempting dainties which are revealed when they take the bread out of the basket. The baker lady should hire a small boy, for the job of carrying the baskets about to the prospective customer's door.

In preparation for her basket-boy's visits, the baker-girl should call at the homes of friends and acquaintances, telling them of her project and soliciting orders. If her sales are limited for a time, she may sell her wares to local confectionery stores and groceries, or have them displayed and handed on a commission basis. The woman's exchange usually provides a market. An advertisement in the newspaper is not a great expense, and will reach the people who probably would not hear of her project any other way.

But never, no matter how large her business grows, should she cease her personal supervision of every biscuit, pie or cake—for that's the only way she can honestly use in advertising the phrase that is her main stock-in-trade, "Personally cooked."

"WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

JUST as simplicity plus originality is what costs in clothes, so a work that is among the most simple and yet unique of jobs has a high cash value—selling lists of names.

"Any energetic small-town girl can get into this business, and have a monopoly of her field, providing it is not already occupied," says one little list-maker who is also a money maker. "The girl who undertakes this business," she told me, "should compile a list, as nearly complete as possible, of all persons in her neighborhood, town or township. This list is to be her own personal and permanent record; but it must, since changes are constantly occurring, be frequently brought up to date. Such a list, when carefully made is a real 'working capital' which will earn money for its owner."

Every year there are numbers of political candidates who want the names of all voters in a township; and they pay liberally for such a list when it is accurately compiled.

Banking institutions, constantly trying to educate people in matters of thrift, will buy names and addresses of persons who have no savings accounts. Even a list of names unclassified as to who have bank accounts and who have not is useful to the bank, but it will be worth more, of course, the greater the amount of propos information it contains. While getting information about savings, it is well for the compiler to note who carry insurance and what kind. Insurance agents will be glad to pay for this information.

Mail order houses are always on the lookout for new names to which they can address their catalogues and circulars. A business house which has once bought a list of names and has found it up-to-date and reliable, will be anxious to purchase a revision at least once in every two years. These "personally conducted" lists are the only reliable ones from which business men can get complete mailing lists for a given territory. Township voting lists and the rolls kept by the assessor are generally not only incomplete but out-of-date. The post office does not, as some people think, give out lists of names and addresses. That is the secret of the value of lists of names, and the reason why, when a girl is known to possess such a list, she will have frequent calls for it. Her prices should vary according to the amount of wanted information she can give the customer; mere names and addresses, while salable, are not, of course, as valuable as more detailed information is.

Selling lists of names may seem an odd way of earning a living; but there are tempting possibilities in the work, and it requires no capital to make the effort.

$3,000 in Small Bills Still Missing.
Pittsburgh, Pa.—Search continues along a three-mile stretch of railroad track near here for $3,000 still missing of the more than $60,000 in small bills that was scattered along the tracks when a Pennsylvania passenger train ran over a mail pouch containing the money. A total of $52,594 has been recovered. The pouch containing the money fell from a truck at the Ambridge station across the tracks and was cut to shreds by the train.

Judith of Blue Lake Ranch

By JACKSON GREGORY

Copyright by Charles Scribner's Sons

"CAN SHE RIDE?"

SYNOPSIS.—Bud Lee, horse boy of the Blue Lake ranch, convinced Bayne Trevors, manager, is a grate wrecking the property owned by Judith Sanford, a young woman, her cousin, Felice Hampton, and Timothy Gray, decides to throw up his job. Judith arrives and announces she has bought Gray's share in the ranch and will run it. She discharges Trevors.

"Well," Judith smiled, "I don't know. It will be a jolt to me if there's a square man left on the ranch! Go down to the bunk-house and tell the cook I'm here and I'm hungry as a wildcat. Tell him and any of the boys that are down there that I've come to stay and that Trevors is fired. They take orders from me and no one else. And hurry, if you know how. Goodness knows, you look as though it would take you half an hour to turn around!"

"Thank you, ma'am," said Bud Lee. "But you see I had just told Trevors here he could count me out. I'm not working for the Blue Lake any more. As I go down to the corral, shall I send up one of the boys to take your orders?"

There was a little smile under the last words, just as there was a little smile in Bud Lee's heart at the thought of the boys taking orders from a little slip of a girl. Inside he was chuckling, vastly delighted with the comedy of the morning.

"She's a sure-enough little wonderbird, all right," he mused. "But, say, what does she want to butt in on a man's size job for, I want to know?"

"Lee," called Trevors, "you take orders from me or no one on this ranch. You can go now. And just keep your mouth shut."

Bud Lee was turning to go out and down to his horse when he saw the look in Trevors' eyes, a look of consuming rage. The general manager's face had been hoarse.

"I—n you," shouted Trevors, "get out!"

"Cut out the swear-words, Trevors," said Lee with quiet sternness. "There's a lady here."

"Lady?" scoffed Trevors. He laughed contemptuously. "Where's your lady? That?" and he leveled a scornful finger at the girl. "A ranting tough of a female who brings a breath of the stables with her and scolds like a fish-wife. . ."

"Shut up!" said Lee, crossing the room with quick strides, his face thrust forward a little.

"You shut up!" It was Judith's voice as Judith's hand fell upon Bud Lee's shoulder, pushing him aside.

"If I couldn't take care of myself do you think I'd be fool enough to take over a little job like running the Blue Lake? Now—" and with blazing eyes she confronted Trevors—"if you've got any more nice little things to say, suppose you say them to me!"

Trevors' temper had had ample provocation and now stood naked and hot in his hard eyes. In a blind instant he laid his tongue to a word which would have sent Bud Lee at his throat. But Judith stood between them and, like an echo to the word, came the resounding slap as Judith's open palm smote Trevors' cheek.

"You wildcat!" he cried. And his two big hands flew out, seeking her shoulders.

"Stand back!" called Judith. "Just because you are bigger than I am, don't make any mistake! Stand back I tell you!"

Bud Lee marveled at the swiftness with which her hand had gone into her blouse and out again, a small-caliber revolver in the steady fingers now. He had never known a man—himself possibly excepted—quicker at the draw.

But Bayne Trevors, from whose make-up cowardice had been omitted, laughed sneeringly at her and did not stand back. His two hands out before him, his face crimson, he came on.

"Fool!" cried the girl. "Fool!"

Still he came on. Lee gathered himself to spring.

Judith fired. Once, and Trevors' right arm fell to his side. A second time, and Trevors' left arm hung limp like the other. The crimson was gone from his face now. It was dead white. Little beads of sweat began to form on his brow.

Lee turned astonished eyes to Judith.

"Now you know who's running this outfit, don't you?" she said coolly. "Lee, have a team hitched up to carry Trevors wherever he wants to go. He's not hurt much; I just winged him. And go tell the cook about my breakfast."

But Lee stood and looked at her. He had no remark to offer. Then he turned to go upon her bidding. As he went down to the bunk-house he said softly under his breath: "Well, I'm d—d. I most certainly am!"

CHAPTER II

Judith Puts It Straight

Wrinkled, grizzled old half-breed Jose, his hands trembling with eagerness, stood in the smaller rose-garden culling the perfect beans, a joyous rick running its zigzag way down each cheek.

"La senorita ees come home!" he announced as Lee drew near on his way to the bunk-house. "Jesu Maria!

Ben my heart it is like the singing of leetle birds. Mire, senior. My flowers bloom in the brighter, already—no?"

"You've known her a long time, Joe?"

"Seneca she ees born!" and Jose, unashamed, wiped a tear upon the back of a lathery hand. "Senior Sanford and me, senior, we teach her when she ees so leetle!" Jose's shaking hand was lowered until it marked the stature of a twelve-inch pigmy. "Never at all until one year ago does she leave us and the rancho. We, us two who love her, senior, learn her to walk and to ride and to shoot and to talk. You shall hear her say, 'Buenos dias Jose, mi amigo! You shall see her knees the cheek of old Jose. Madre de Dios! I would go down to h—l for her to bring back fire to warm her leetle feet een yeenster!"

Lee went thoughtfully on his way to the bunk-house. "I've got orders for you fellows," he said from the doorway. "The boss of the outfit, the real owner, you know, just blew in. Up at the house. Says you boys are to stick around to take orders straight from headquarters. You, Benny," to the cook, "are to have a man's size breakfast ready in a jiffy."

Naturally Benny led the clamor by a string of oaths. What in blazes did the owner of the ranch have to show up for anyway?—he wanted to know. He accepted the fact as a personal affront. Who was this owner?—demanded Ward Hannon, the foreman of the lower ranch, where the alfalfa fields were.

Lee explained gravely that the newcomer was some sort of relative of old Luke Sanford, who had recently acquired a controlling interest in the ranch. Ward Hannon granted contemptuously. "The Lord deliver us!" he moaned. "Eastern jasper! One of the know-all-about-it brand, huh. Bud? I'll bet he combs his hair in the middle and smokes cigarets out'n a box! The putty-headed loons can't even roll their own smokes."

"Don't believe," hazarded Lee differently, "from the looks of our visitor that—that the owner smokes anything!"

"Listen to that!" grunted Ward Hannon. "Softly, huh?"

"Well," Bud admitted slowly, "I don't sort of like a girl, you know?"

"Wouldn't that choke a horse?" demanded Carson, the foreman of the upper ranch, who had just come down on his service of "real" breakfast. "Buck up, you boys! Darned if you ain't a little bit downy. But old man Trevors' news dampening news, huh. He's a little bit butternutted his hot head, but he ain't carelessly: 'Something's afoot' around here. Just put two or three calibers into Trevors."

They stared at him incredulously. Then Carson's dry cackle led the laughter.

"You're the biggest liar, Bud Lee," said the old man good-naturedly, "I ever focused my two eyes on. I'll lay an even bet there ain't nobody showed a-tall up this morning."

"You, Tommy," said Lee to the boy at his side, "shovel your grub down lively and go hitch Molly and old Pie-the swift approach of Bayne Trevors. The general manager's face was black with rage and through that dark wrath showed a dull red flush of shame. He walked with his two arms lax at his sides.

"Give me a cup of coffee, Ben," he commanded curtly, slumping into a chair. "Hurry!"

Benny, looking at him curiously, brought a steaming cup and offered it. Trevors moved to lift a hand; then sank back a little farther in his chair, his face twisting in his pain.

"Put some milk in it," he snarled. "Then hold it to my mouth. For the love of heaven, hurry, man!"

Then no man there doubted longer the real tale Bud Lee had brought them. Down from Trevors' sleeves, staining each hand, there had come a broadening trickle of blood. Trevors drank swiftly, draining the cup.

"Get this coat off me," he commanded. "Curse you, don't tear my arms off! Slit the sleeves."

It was Lee who, pushing the clumsy cook aside, silently made the two bandages from strips of Trevors' shirt. It was Lee who brought a flask of brandy from which Trevors drank deep.

And then came Judith. They stared at her as they might have done had the heavens opened and an angel come down, or the earth split and a devil sprung up. She looked upon them with quick, keen eyes which sought to take every man's measure. They returned her regard with a variety of amazed expressions. Never since these men had come to work for Bayne Trevors had a woman so much as ridden by the door. And to have her stand there, composed, utterly at her ease, her air vaguely authoritative, a vitally vivid being who might, suddenly, have taken any form from the dawn, bewildered them.

"I am Judith Sanford," she said in her abrupt fashion, quite as she had made the announcement to Lee and Trevors. "This outfit belongs to me. I have fired Trevors. You take your orders straight from me from now on. Cookie, give me some coffee."

She came in without ceremony and sat down at the head of the table. Benny hastily brought the coffee. From some pocket he drew a tin of cream, but he certainly not clear to him he was not a little red. Perhaps the emotion of sheer embarrassment. She dabbed her cheeks with one hand and buttoned her dress with the other.

Hannon turned toward her. "You ain't got a horse, have you?"

"No, I don't," she said. "I haven't one. But I can learn to ride."

"You ain't got a horse, have you?"

"No, I don't," she said. "I haven't one. But I can learn to ride."

two kinds of ladies, my fine friend: the kind that can and the kind that can't! Thank God I'm none of your precious, sighing, hothouse little fools!"

Gulping down a last mouthful of coffee, she was on her feet and passed swiftly out among the men.

"You men!" she cried, and they turned sober eyes upon her, "listen to me! You've heard that big stiff rant; now hear me! I'm here because I belong here. My dad was Luke Sanford and he made this ranch. I was raised here. It's two-thirds mine right now. Trevors there is a crook and I told him so. He's been trying to sell me out, to make such a failure of the outfit that I'd have to let it go for a comic song. He got gay and I fired him. He tried to manhandle me and I plugged him. And now I'm going to run my own outfit! What have you got to say about it, you grumbling old grouch with the crooked face! Put up or shut up! I'm calling you!"

The men turned from her to Ward Hannon, the field foreman, who had been Trevors' right-hand man and who now was sneering openly.

"You saying it's no work for a kid of a girl," grumbled Hannon. "You run an outfit like this?" He laughed derisively. "It can't be did."

"It can't, can't it?" cried Judith. "Tell me why you ain't smart. Spit it out lively!"

Jake Carson's shrill cackle cut through a low rumble of laughter. "That's passing it to him straight," said the old cattleman. "What's the word, Ward?"

Ward Hannon shrugged his shoulders and spat impudently. "I ain't saying nothing," he growled, "only this: I got a right to quit, ain't I? Well, I'm quitting. Any time you ketch me working for a female girl that can't ride a horse 'thout fallin' off, that can't see a pig stuck 'thout fainting, that can't walk a mile 'thout getting laid up, that can't. . ."

"Slow up there!" called Judith. "Didn't I stick a pig already this morning, and have I keeled over yet? Didn't I ride the forty miles from Rocky Bend last night and get here before sunup? Listen to me, chief kicker. If you've got a horse on the ranch I can't ride I'll quit right now and give you my job! How's that strike you? I tell you the word on this ranch is going to be 'Put up or shut up!' Which is it, Growly?"

Again the men laughed and Hannon's face showed his anger.

"Mean that, lady?" he demanded briefly.

"You can just bet your eyes I mean it!"

Hannon turned toward her. "You ain't got a horse, have you?"

"No, I don't," she said. "I haven't one. But I can learn to ride."

gathering himself as he landed, averting with the quickness of light, plunging again to the right. And again he stood still. Judith, sitting securely on his rebellious back, laughed. Her laughter, cool and unafraid, sent a strange little thrill through Bud Lee—who, with fear in his heart, was watching her.

"Look out for him now!" he called warningly.

In truth the Prince had not yet begun. He plunged toward the corral, his purpose plain, the one desire in his heart to crush his rider against the high fence. But Judith's spurs answered him, and the bit, savage in his jaws, brought him about, whirling, sidling, striking, bucking as only a strong, fearless, devil-hearted horse knows how to buck. He doubled up under her; he rose and fell in a quick series of short jumps which tore and jerked at her body, which strove to fear her knees away from his sides and break the grip of her hand on the reins.

But Judith certainly can ride, but will the men stay and be bossed by a girl?

Judith certainly can ride, but will the men stay and be bossed by a girl?

Bucking as Only a Devil-Hearted Horse Knows How.

But it seemed to the men watching that the girl knew before the horse which way he would jump, that she knew how to sway her body with his so that she and he were not separate beings but just one, moving together in some mad devil's dance.

"Can she ride!" whispered Bud Lee. "I want to know!"

Again the maddened Prince reared and again she brought him to earth. Again he resumed the terribly tearing series of short, sharp bucks. And still her hair tumbling, blown about her shoulders, she rode him.

Suddenly, with a quick, concerted effort of spur, whip and rein, Judith brought the Prince about so that he faced toward the open valley, running toward the west, giving him his head only a little, driving him. He broke into a thundering run, snorting as, with mane and tail flying, he dashed through the men who fell away from his furious rush. And as he ran, Judith spurred him so that his only thought lay in running away from the menace upon his back.

Three minutes later she rode back to the bunk-house and slipped from the saddle. Bud Lee, going to her, had his hat in his hand.

"Now, Ward," she said quickly, her breathing hurried, her cheeks red, "what do you say?"

"I said I'd stick if you rode him," muttered Ward. "And—"

"And," cried the girl with quick passion, "I'll tell you something. You're a great big lumbering coward! Stick with me!" She laughed again, a new laugh, ringing with her scorn. "There's your outlaw; I've gentled him a bit. You ride him!"

His fellows laughed at Ward; for the field foreman was no horseman and the timorous way in which he had brought out this snapping, vicious animal had testified to the fact. He drew back now, muttering.

"Ride him!" cried Judith, her voice strident. "Ride him or get off the ranch! Which is it?"

Ward Hannon, glad of the opening, answered surlily. "Aw! think I want to take orders off'n a woman? You're right, I'll get off'n the ranch!"

"That's two down," said Judith. "Now, take this horse back to the stable; I'm going up to the office. You men come there in five minutes. If you want to stay, and are worth your salt, you can. Or I'll give you your time. It's up to you; it's a free country. But—" and she said it slowly, confronting them—"if you all throw me down and leave me short-handed without giving me time to take on another set of men, you are a pretty low-lived bunch!"

Then, without turning, she went swiftly to the ranch-house. Old Man Carson wiped the sweat from his forehead.

Resolutions

To the members of the Fourth Quarterly Conference, Northwest Texas Conference, Abilene, District, Cross Plains, Charge.

Dear Brethren:-
 In as much as our Presiding Elder, W. M. Lane, is closing out his fourth year on the district, and realizing that according to the law of our church it will be impossible for him to return to us as our leader and advisor for another year, and realizing under his leadership, for the past four years we as a circuit and as a station have gone forward and that his leadership and advice has been of untold worth to us in all our planning, and that in his going to other fields of labor we are losing a great leader. Be it therefore resolved that:

This Quarterly Conference now assembled by this means vote a card of thanks to him for what he has done for us during the year, and second: that a copy of these Resolutions be furnished the local paper for publication and filed in the Quarterly Conference records of this charge.
