

HOME TOWN GOSSIP

This column is always dabbling in somebody's business more or less, but this week we've thrown out our chest and are choosing a couple of sure enough big boys to pick on. Messers, Roosevelt and Hoover.

Citizenry of the United States will decide between those two, Tuesday for the most elevated position this government has to offer, the presidency. Of course there are others in the race—four more in fact—but they won't get much further than six bits in a Jew store.

The contest is really between Roosevelt and Hoover and our prediction is that the Democratic standard bearer will make the grade, while Herbert stumbles by the wayside.

Roosevelt's orations on 'The Forgotten Man' have won over millions of doubtful voters, who feel that the New York Governor really knows more about their wants, needs and necessities, and how to achieve them, than the great engineer.

However, no hard feelings to Joe Miller and Ike Kendrick. Don't give boys. We may be wrong. In fact was this column that predicted the election wouldn't last 18 months.

Did you know that: D. C. Pratt was once a barber; John Westerman a swab and grocery merchant; Fred Outbirth a delivery boy; E. D. Priest a football coach; Tom Bryant a painter; Dr. J. H. McGowan a tire salesman; Tom Woods a country printer; Professor William V. Wheeler a mechanic; or that Rox Middleton, Pioneer, was once a big league ball player?

Had a chance to see many of our village belles Monday night in dresses their mothers used to wear back in the gay nineties or perhaps a little later. Yes sir, Hallowe'en is probably worth something after all.

'Shortie' Neeb looked right cute with a bustle; Lucille Burkett was very dignified and quite charming with a hoop skirt and flowers on her hat; Juanita Westerman was more than attractive with her hair knotted and tied on top of her head; Zora Mae Webb imitated a pioneer school teacher perfectly; Leta Neeb looked like a shy little maiden, in her costume; Wilma Pratt was quite alluring in a dress styled with the customs of the dress files; and there were many others parading around Hallowe'en evening that we would like to have pictures of to publish herein.

Some were rather spooky with their grotesque make-ups but generally we were convinced that the modern maiden wouldn't be so unattractive in yesterday's mode of dress.

Turkeys, Peanuts, Potatoes, Pecans And Cotton Sell Briskly

Harvests from five different crops were being marketed in Cross Plains Thursday morning, they were; cotton, pecans, turkeys, sweet potatoes and peanuts. Although prices are beneath that of average years heretofore, the crops are moving actively and bringing thousands of dollars of new money into this section daily.

Peanuts were selling at 30 cents a bushel Thursday, cotton at about six cents, sweet potatoes between 40 and 50 cents per bushel and pecans varying from three to four cents per pound. Local buyers were somewhat hesitant about announcing their price on turkeys, due to the fact that picking companies have not definitely stated their quotation. However one local buyer was quoting 12 cents a pound on the birds the first of the week.

J. A. Caton Will Vote For Garner His Boyhood Friend Next Tuesday

A difference in political opinion will not cause J. A. Caton, local merchant, to vote against John Nance Garner, his boyhood friend, for Vice-President of the United States.

"I have always been a hot headed prohibitionist, while John Garner has been a champion of the other side, but I will vote for him next Tuesday because I know him to be an honest, capable man," Mr. Caton told a Review reporter Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Caton and the vice-presidential candidate were born 10 miles apart

GEORGE W. KLUTTS, CALLAHAN PIONEER DIES HERE SUNDAY

George W. Klutts, 80, pioneer Callahan County citizen, died at his home here shortly after noon Sunday. Interment was made in Dressy cemetery Monday afternoon. Funeral services were conducted from Cross Plains Baptist Church by Rev. Graves Darby, Pastor, with Rev. H. T. Dennis assisting. Cross Plains merchants closed their doors during the services.

Mr. Klutts had been in failing health for more than a year but was not taken dangerously ill until Thursday afternoon.

He had been a resident of this immediate locality more than 45 years, coming here in 1887. Mr. Klutts was born in Gleason, Tennessee, August 17, 1852. He had been a member of the Cross Plains Baptist Church more than 40 years and was a devoted worker those four decades.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. G. W. Klutts, Carl Klutts, Mrs. Martin Jones, all of this place, and Mrs. Diff Jones, Floydada, and Mrs. Doris Odom, Clyde.

Hundreds of friends crowded the Baptist Church here Monday afternoon and floral tributes were heaped on all sides, in tribute to one of the earliest settlers of this place.

LOCAL GIRL WEDS

BUFFALOES PRIMED FOR MORAN BUT POINT FOR 'WILDCAT' CLASH

W. Spencer And Davidson Show Marked Improvement In Last Two Encounters

Cross Plains 'Buffaloes' stimulated by Rising Star's decisive triumph over Baird last week end, will go to Moran Saturday afternoon with an enthusiastic desire to mutilate the Shackelford county delegation as completely as their bitter rivals Rising Star, did Baird, Friday. The herd sensed in the first practice workout this week, that if they were to defeat the powerful Rising Star 'Wildcats' in the traditional game, three weeks in the

EXPECT G. O. P. THREAT IN TEXAS TO BRING OUT MILLION VOTERS

Anderson-Dodson Building Will Be Election Headquarters In Cross Plains

One million Texas voters are expected to go to the polls Tuesday and cast their silent voice in one of the most spirited national campaigns this country has ever seen. Another issue that will bring out voters of this state is the Governor's race. Never before has the Republican candidate for this office been considered a serious threat. But this year the anti-Ferguson element has placed Orville Bullington in the heat of the running, however he is considered little chance to win.

In Cross Plains, Anderson-Dodson Chevrolet Company building will be Carried over on page 8

Which Will It Be?

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

HERBERT HOOVER

There may be a new President of the United States after the first week in March, if Cross Plains citizens correctly in their politics. Out of 32 local men interviewed Wednesday, 27 guessed Roosevelt, the democratic, in the balloting Tuesday.

There are four other candidates in the race as well as the favored two, they are: Thomas, Socialist party; Foster, Communist; Upshaw, Prohibition and coxey, Farmer-Labor.

According to government reports there are 47,000,000 citizens qualified to vote in the general election Tuesday. Should they all turn out, the voting strength of four years ago would be increased by 11,000,000, 36,000,000, voted when Hoover was chosen over Alfred E. Smith in 1928.

Bright Spots

Local potato growers canvassed the town Tuesday morning in an effort to employ idle men at a $1.00 a day in gathering crops. Scores were hired but farmers still declare that they can use many more cotton pickers than they are available. They are paying 50 cents per hundred for pickers.

Deposits at the Citizens State Bank, here, continue to swell as a result of four crops being marketed in the Cross Plains trade territory at present.

Higginbotham Brothers and Company is adding another department to their store here, due to increased business.

November turkey market opened Monday morning at least a higher than had been anticipated by local produce men and

Thousands of pounds will be gathered from newly planted pecan orchards in this locality within the next few weeks, bringing a noticeable amount of new money into this section, according to pecan experts.

Cotton, peanuts, sweet potatoes and turkeys are moving more than average switch has been anticipated. Cross Plains ginners, however, expect at least one half of the cotton yet to be picked.

John Garner's Name On Ballot Is Expected To Swing Texas Back In Columns Of The Democrats

Because of the name John Nance Garner, of Uvalde, Texas, appearing on the general election ballot for Vice-President, Texans are expected to give the Democratic party the largest majority in history in the presidential races, politicians of statewide prominence have declared.

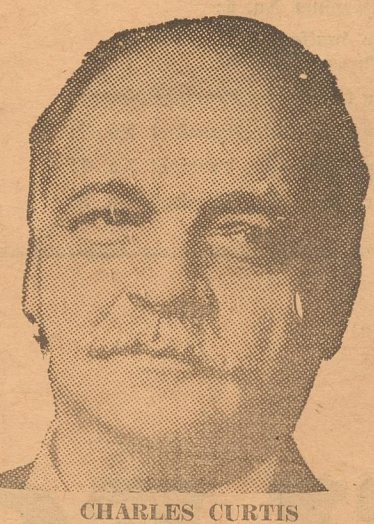

Garner's opponent for the vice-presidency is Charles Curtis, of Kansas, incumbent. Curtis has committed himself as being in hearty accord with the Eighteenth Amendment as now being practiced, although the Republican party platform calls for submission of the matter to states. Garner is supporting the Democratic plank for repeal.

JOHN NANCE GARNER

Both men have been prominent in political circles for more than a quarter of a century. Garner is at present Speaker of the House of Representatives, while Curtis performs the same duties in the Senate, which he assumed automatically when he became Vice-President in March, 1929.

Both Garner and Curtis have been taking active roles in the campaigning as outlined by their respective party heads. Garner has completed his itinerary in the East and is headed back for Texas, to cast his vote, as a citizen, in the balloting Tuesday. He will vote at Uvalde, Texas. Curtis winds up his speaking engagements this week end also.

OBITUARY

E. G. ADAMS

E. G. Adams, who is remembered by friends of this place as Glenn, was born November 21, 1900, Taylor County, Texas. He moved with his parents to Cross Plains in 1903, this being his place of residence until the Master called him home—home from the earthly walks of man.

Virtually all of Glenn's life was spent in Cross Plains and those who remember him best, know that a radiant spark of loyalty burned continuously within him for his family, loved ones and friends. He attended Cross Plains schools until he attained young manhood, when he entered the employ of the M.K.&T. railroad here. He was soon to become affiliated with the Cross Plains Review, however, with which he remained 12 years, until swept into eternity.

June 17, 1922, he was married to Miss Mamie Ruth Brewer, of this place, acquaintance since 1919, and sweetheart soon after.

Those 10 years of married life were perhaps Glenn's happiest. His love for home, his wife and family was that of a devoted husband and faithful father. His duties toward them and their happiness seemed to envelope every thought his brilliant mind generated.

As a citizen of Cross Plains, he dreamed of better things for his home town and its people. Civic pride and community betterment were one of his strongest sterling characteristics. Glenn was converted and united with the Baptist Church here in the Hogg revival in the Summer of 1928.

Friends to him, were unnumbered, as evidenced by the vast crowd that assembled at the Baptist Church on the rainy afternoon of October 20, to pay a parting, final tribute to a man the entire town admired. Cross Plains merchants closed their stores during the funeral and interment services in honor to a man, who had planned and worked with them toward business prosperity. Glenn's remains were laid to rest in the family plot in the Cross Plains cemetery, where an infant son was interred in 1923. Surviving are; his wife, six year old son, Wayne Laniero, parents Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Adams, six sisters and two brothers, as well as a host of near relatives and admiring friends.

We told him 'adios' not long before he died and he aroused from his stupor of illness long enough to wish us well and extend the same parting salutation. Some day we hope to meet him on Heaven's boulevard and grasp that sturdy right hand and tell him, that he was missed a lot down here on earth.

Thanks Judge

A man who has befriended Cross Plains people so often that he merits a voice of appreciation is County Judge J. H. Carpenter. Last week he made a trip to Austin with Jesse McAdams, of this place, and met with the state highway commission in the interest of securing better roads, employment for idle men and generally, improvement for this county.

No visible results have yet been obtained from the conference with highway commissioners but at least our pleas have been heard and will be familiar to the personnel of the commission when the time is riper.

Thanks, Judge Carpenter; we appreciate beyond measure the interest that you have shown. The same goes for Mr. McAdams too, however he's one of the home boys and you will have a chance every day or so to whisper your gratitude to him.

Our idea of a soft job would be that of tester in a mattress factory. Truth is stranger than fiction, and also scarcer.

A STRONGER RIGHT ARM

Stung by his taunt, Jesus' accusers hesitated when he told them by what authority he had driven the money-changers from the Temple, and in their moment of hesitation were lost. The soldiers turned their backs; it was nothing that they cared about. But the crowd burst forth with a mighty cheer and rushing forward, bore him out of the Temple, the priests and the money changers scurrying before him. That night his action was the talk of the town.

It is a very familiar story, much preached upon and pictured. But almost invariably the pictures show Jesus with a halo around his head, as though that was the explanation of his triumph. The truth is so much simpler and more impressive. There was, in his eyes, a flaming moral purpose; and greed and oppression have always thrived before such fire.

But with the majesty of Jesus' glance there was something else which counted powerfully in his favor. As his right arm rose and fell, striking its blows with that little whip, the sleeve dropped back to reveal muscles hard as iron. No one who watched him in action had any doubt that he was fully capable of taking care of himself. No money-changer or money changer cared to try conclusions with that arm.

There are those to whom it will seem almost irreverent to suggest that Jesus was physically strong. They think of him as a voice, a presence, a spirit; they never feel the contagion of his laughter; nor remember how heartily he enjoyed good food, nor think of what his years of hard work must have done to his arms and back and legs. Look a minute at those first thirty years.

There was no soft bed for his mother on the night he entered the world. He was brought forth in a stable, amid animals and the animal-like men who tended them.

When Jesus was still an infant the family hurried away to Egypt. On the long trip back, some years later, he was old enough to walk, for there were younger children; and so, day after day, he trudged beside the little donkey, hard life.

Early in his boyhood Jesus, as the eldest son, went into the family carpenter shop. The practise of carpentry was a easy business in those simpler days. Doubtless the man who took a contract for a house assumed responsibilities for digging into the rough hillside for its foundations; for felling trees in the forest, and shaping them with an adze.

In after years those who listened to the talk of Jesus by the Sea of Galilee, and heard him speak of the "man who built his house upon a rock" had no doubt that he knew what he was talking about. Some of them had seen him ending his strong clean shoulders to deliver heavy blows. So he "waxed strong" as the narrative tells us—a phrase which has rather been buried under the too-frequent repetition of "the meek and lowly" and "the lamb."

Go into a certain men's shop in New York, buy a suit of clothes, and you'll be invited to have—without charge—haircut, shave, shower bath and clothes pressed. Men leaving that shop feel prosperous.

HEAT AS A REMEDY

THE "infra-red ray" is one of my stand-bys in giving local, office treatments where heat gives beneficial results. In long experience in the application of heat to the body, I am able to state the following facts:

There is a vast difference between LIGHT and DARK heat when applied to the body. There is also great contrast in the effects of CONTACT heat, and heat coming from a distance. Heat in contact with the body cannot be tolerated by the skin, if it is really hot enough to produce lasting effect; therefore I prefer heat coming from a luminant eighteen or twenty inches distant.

The infra-red ray is of positive value in treating diseases of deep seated glands. The heat should not come through a glass bulb in its passage to the patient, but should come from an electrically heated body direct.

There is all the difference imaginable in DRY heat and MOIST heat. I prefer dry heat in reducing chronic inflammations of stubborn kinds—such as arthritis, and chronic congestions.

Heat-waves stimulate circulation locally, in organs over which they are applied. Fat patients with synovitis in the knee-joints are greatly benefitted by DRY heat, from a distance of twenty inches, 25-minute sittings, daily. Wet heat in contact does little or no good. It is possible to heat tissues two and a half inches deep from the surface, with the infra-red ray apparatus. One cannot bear contact heat with volume enough to reach deeper tissues.

Sunlight is dry heat, and is one of nature's greatest health-givers; it has a definite percentage of the ultra-violet ray. Modern apparatus gives sun-ray treatments on cloudy days.

Milk Production Per Cow Smaller

While milk production per cow in the United States on October 1 was still low on account of poor pastures and light feeding in most areas, there was less than the usual decline in total milk production during September, due to larger proportion of cows freshening, reports the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Daily production average 12.12 pounds per cow in October 1, compared with 12.17 a year ago and a five year average of 12.73, but the 4 per cent more cows in milk on farms brought total production to more than 2 per cent greater than a year ago. Texas dairy reporters were getting an average of 8.6 pounds per cow against 8.93 a year ago and 9.3 the average. Dairymen were feeding 8 per cent less grain per cow than a year ago. Pasture condition in dairy States 35.2 a year ago, and October 10-year average 64 per cent of normal against average of 79 per cent. Milch cows were securing about 65 per cent of their feed from pastures about the same as last year.

IN DEFENSE OF THE INSULLS

(From Abilene Reporter)

Samuel and Martin Insull's Unpardonable sin was in running out from the consequences. They cannot be forgiven that. But whatever may be said of the Insulls, they have never run out on West Texas. Out here the most significant counter picture to the vast and reverberating fall of their house of holding-company cards is the going condition of the operating companies that were the real heart of the structure.

During this deluge of Insull news—all about Martin in the $20-a-week boarding house, Samuel's flight to Paris to Florence to Athens, Martin in jail, of Samuel the expatriate and fugitive—it is well to remember that the brothers dreamed of dependable electricity in small towns, on the farm; and that the West Texas Utilities Company remains, with the other operating units, to fulfill the dream. West Texas is not willing to put that company on the spot for offenses of which it was ignorant.

It has not missed on the promise to pay, a few weeks ago distributing $117,000 in hard coin of the realm to its holders of $6 preferred stock of whom 2,000 are West Texans. Last year it paid taxes amounting to $1,160 per day, and salaries and wages of $3,000 per day. More can be said. The West Texas Utilities Company has, every year, spent more money in the development and expansion of its properties than it has received in profits from their operation. In efficiency and good conduct it is one of West Texas' finest assets. Last week its operation, viewed for the first time, won the admiration of two hard-headed business men from Chicago, the receivers of the Middle West Utilities Company, Messrs. Hurley and McCulloch. Those gentlemen issued an enthusiastic statement in which, however, they only said what the West Texas already knows.

The News pays it this tribute because, in the present emergency, its personell have taken their medicine without complaint or whimper. Not one, from the president down to the porter in the general offices, has asked this newspaper, or any newspaper, to "go easy" or "give us a break."

The Comal Home Demonstration Club met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. E. Koenig.

11 members were present, and two visitors, Mrs. Merlin Garrett, who was added to the membership list and Miss Mamie Coppinger.

An interesting program was rendered, the main feature being a debate. The subject was resolved that a blanket is more satisfactory covering than a quilt. The debators were Mrs. A. J. Koenig, and Mrs. E. P. Watson on the affirmative, Mrs. S. D. DeBusk and Mrs. E. E. Rich on the negative. The judges, who were Meses, C. B. Edington, Jess Bell and Merlin Garrett made their decision in favor of the affirmative. Miss Coppinger acted as time keeper and chairman.

The wardrobe demonstrations started a foundation pattern for Mrs. W. E. Koenig which will be finished later. Next meeting will be with Mrs. A. J. Koenig November 10.

Whipped cream, peaches, cake and coffee was served by the hostess.

CUPID CONQUERS CASH

Complete Short Story BY PAUL HAWK In This Space

"With your beauty and my brains," Dave laughed, "we'll get you a most suitable husband."

"Partnership accepted," Kay agreed, "but it understood this is one deal tagged 'Requires cash to handle.'"

And that was in the beginning.

Kay was a young woman whose dark hair, gray eyes, and general demeanor by day announced "I am a smart, competent business woman" and by night proclaimed "I am beautiful, alluring and utterly desirable." She had learned equally well to be a capable private secretary, to manage efficiently on forty dollars a week, to desire better things than she had, and to give a convincingly reluctant negative to admiring swains of uncertain financial rating who persisted in discussing matrimony.

Dave was young man whose tilted hat said plainly "Oh, well," whose appearance admitted "Yeah, I used to play football," whose chin declared "If you happened to be in his way in a subway rush or a business deal—" "I'm coming through," and whose grin told "And you'd better like it."

"Yes sir," Kay had said emphatically, either "The man must have money, or else I remain without benefit of clergy. No cottages for two, if I'm expected to be half of that delightful number."

"Wise woman," Dave nodded sagely. "No eternal love and kisses with empty pockets for me either. And since mainly pride prevents my accepting pecuniary aid from one of the weaker sex, I'll pursue my single solitary way alone. If I make myself clear."

And they looked at each other with new respect and understanding.

Dave was panting as he slipped into the seat ahead of a fellow passenger. He returned the man's glare with a grin and turned to Kay.

"It's the last sport that counts," he explained between breaths. "Up late last night—deciding your future name."

"And?" Kay prompted.

"Rockwall," Dave explained smilingly.

Kay gasped. "Rockwall—Why—you mean the boss?"

"Sure," said Dave. "The trouble with most people is that they look too far afield. Usually there is opportunity right under your nose. Now I don't miss such opportunity."

"But," Kay protested, "he doesn't know I exist as—"

"Ha!" Dave waved the exception aside. "Leave that to me. He's just at that impressionable age of forty, and the admiration of a young and beautiful woman will turn his head. I'll prepare him. When I give you the wink, slip him a sweet oh-you-wonderful-man look. And I'll get him sold on the subject in my own inimitable way."

"And where," Kay asked him, "do YOU come in?"

"Who—I'm merely the future general manager of the Rockwall interests. Old Montgomery's about ready to retire, and the boss'll need a good man to take charge while he shows you around the world two or three times. I'm that good man. Of course you'll whisper in his ear."

At the office, Dave gave Kay a meaning look and passed into the inner sanctuary of the boss. For once he appeared embarrassed.

"Why—er—Mr. Rockwall, you see it's like this he said hesitatingly, digging one toe convincingly into the rug. "I'm thinking of getting married—and well, I want you to pay special attention to my work to see if I don't merit promotion to Montgomery's place when he leaves. As manager, I could afford to marry."

"Hm-m," said Mr. Rockwall. "And who is the lucky lady, Dave?"

"It's Kay—er—Miss Merrill." Then Dave went on with an enthusiastic rush of words. "That is—I haven't really asked her yet. And, of course she DID say she cares for another older, more successful man. But she admitted that he never notices her. And I have hopes that if he keeps on being unaware of her, and if I get a promotion, maybe I can win her over. Why—she's beautiful, and a successful man a wonderful wife—Sorry—" he apologized abruptly.

Mr. Rockwall appeared to think it over. "Rather unusual, isn't it? Who is this—other man?"

"Well, she wouldn't tell me his name," Dave said craftily. "because she said 'I know him too well. I can't imagine any older man. I know that it could be. You see, all my friends are my own age.'"

"I—er—wish you luck, Dave," the boss said absentmindedly.

Dave winked elaborately at Kay, who met him on her way into the office. The door remained closed unusually long.

"He's taking me to dinner tonight," Kay whispered when she came out.

"Great!" said Dave. "It worked didn't it?"

From that day on, things happened swiftly. Kay reported the progress on the way to the office each morning. "Mr. Rockwall's really human, Dave!" she concluded enthusiastically.

It was exactly three weeks after first plotting that Dave was called into the office. Rockwall appeared happy and well pleased with himself.

"Good news for you, Dave. Montgomery's retiring immediately. And I—well, I'm leaving on a little voyage myself. It's a—sort of affair of the heart, you see. And," he added, his eyes twinkling, "anybody who is as shrewd a planner—Well, starting tomorrow, you will be in complete charge. And by the way, Dave, try out a new secretary for me, will you. Miss Merrill—well, she's going to be—er—married."

Dave leaned dazedly on Kay's desk in the outer office. "Say, Kay, I was wondering if we shouldn't do something together tonight—sort of a final celebration or something?"

"Sorry, Dave. I'll be frightfully busy."

"Well, g'luck," Dave muttered, and moved on.

Somehow his success wasn't exhilarating. He felt, instead rather numb. But not until nine o'clock that night did the panic hit him. Then he dashed wildly out of his room. He caught a taxi and ordered full speed ahead.

But Kay's windows showed no welcome lights. Gone! Frantically pacing in the dark, he bumped into somebody.

"Kay!" he exclaimed. "Look here, Kay—I've got to tell you," he blurted. "I suppose you'll think I'm silly, but—Well, I've been promoted to general manager—and I don't want it. I want YOU. Hang on all. I LOVE you!"

Without knowing how, he had got her in his arms. "What if Rockwall does get mad?" he argued breathlessly. "I can make good somewhere else. You can't marry him! Even if it does mean just a cottage for two, will you marry me?"

"That's an engaging idea," she said.

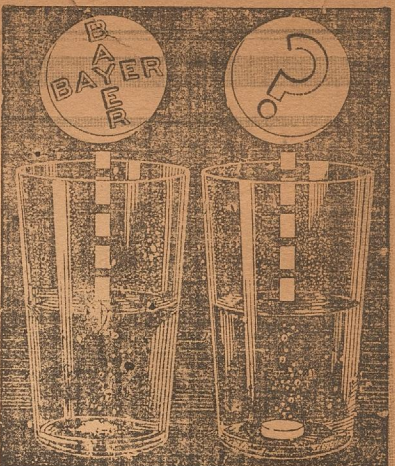

"You mean—you WILL?"

"As you once told me, there is," Kay pointed out, "opportunity right under my nose." She held up her lips.

That opportunity needed only a single little rap.

"What seemed so so funny to me," Kay murmured later, "you didn't know the boss already has a wife somewhere. He's going to her tomorrow. And he thought it awfully funny too when I told him how you were plotting against him."

According to guests who attended the party it was a joyous occasion from beginning until the end, with a new thrill or unique entertainment 'popping up' every few seconds.

A big surprise was given the host and hostess, when guests rolled in a 'wagon load' of nice gifts. In speaking of the pleasant surprise, Mrs. Longbotham told the Review, "We appreciated the gifts very much, but the spirit that prompted is appreciated more than words adequately express. duced in Congress, Garner voted against it. However since that time he has supported all laws and measures intended to strengthen it. I know him to be the type of man who believes laws should be enforced or either wiped from the statutes," Mr. Caton continued.

"In his home town, I recently talked with men who had known John for years as have I, many of them have always voted against candidates opposed to their views on prohibition, but everyone of those men told me they were going to support Garner with "teeth and toenail." They're for him 100 percent in his home county."

HOME TOWN GOSSIP

Nature does funny little things to keep mortals interested, it seems.

L. Jackson dug 28 pounds of sweet potatoes from one hill, on his farm two miles East of Cross Plains, the past week. Three local potato growers told a Review reporter they had never before heard of such an abnormal yield.

Buell Hargrove brought three ears of bright yellow corn that had grown together making Siamese triplets into the Review office Wednesday. The oddity is on display at the newspaper office now.

Doc Ensor, who lives three miles North of Cross Plains, recently cut from a Spanish oak tree, on the Bayou near Oplin, the crookedest tree limb ever shown in Cross Plains. The branch is in reality two very crooked limbs grown into one, multiplying its unusualness. The limb is grown so that it can be turned to an angle to make almost any letter in the alphabet.

Cross Plains Defeats Santa Anna

The Cross Plains Buffaloes defeated the Santa Anna Mountineers here last Friday 20 to 0.

The first quarter was very close with neither team threatening very seriously to score. In the second quarter Cross Plains was very slow starting off but put on a drive from mid-field that resulted in a touchdown. Taking the ball about the fifty yard line they went off tackle and around the ends to the eight yard line where Davidson went off tackle for a touchdown. Walker failed to kick goal and the score was 6 to 0 at the half.

The Buffaloes came back hard in the third quarter and immediately drove to the fifteen yard line only to be stopped by a fumble. They threatened continuously the whole third quarter but were never able to put it over.

Taking the ball on their own twenty five yard line in the fourth quarter Cross Plains carried it to the fifty yard line where W. Spencer went off tackle and ran fifty yards for a touchdown. Walker kicked goal, making the score 13 to 0.

Santa Anna received their own 10 yard line where they were downed. Ward broke loose and ran 70 yards before being downed. That was the closest Santa Anna came to scoring. They were held for downs and Cross Plains drove back up the field to Santa Anna four yard line where B. Spencer went over for the third touchdown of the day. B. Spencer kicked goal making it 20 to 0.

W. Spencer was the outstanding man on the field making many brilliant runs. Davidson, Walker and Halbert also stood out for Cross Plains. Ward was the outstanding for Santa Anna.

offing, their offense would have to click faster and their defense more stubbornly, according to testimonials of several squadmen.

Kick-off for the Moran game, there, Saturday afternoon, is set for three thirty. Coach 'Goober' Keyes' thundering herd is expected to run rough shod over the weaker conference member, piling up a lead of at least three touchdowns, according to comparative figures of games already played this season by both teams.

Starting line-up for the Cross Plains squad tomorrow will be: ends, S. Walker and Mack Bingham; tackles, Halbert and Lacy; guards, Captain Tommie Webb and F. Walker; center, J. Lackey; quarterback, Leonard Davidson; half backs, W. Spencer and T. Holden; fullback, B. Spencer.

Perhaps the most optimistic feature for the locals in pointing to the Rising Star game, yet three weeks away, is the brilliant showings made by Warren (Hungry) Spencer in the last two also shown marked improvement in games. His flashy, elusive spurts off tackle and around end have ranked him as a shining light in the herd backfield. Davidson, at quarter, has also shown marked improvement in the last two contests and should his squad win the remainder of their games, will more than likely receive an all conference berth.

until 17 years of age, when he left to seek his fate in the land of the setting sun. He is a nephew of Jess Byrd at Cross Cut.

Before the Cross Plains Lions, 'Cactus Mack' sang melodies of the Western range and old time cattle songs. Included in his program were several songs of his own composition.

Cross Plains clubmen applauded his enthusiastically after every selection and at the close of his program made the film star an honorary member of the club.

Franz and Harold Freeman assisted 'Cactus Mack' in the musical program. Franz played the violin and mandolin, and Harold the guitar.

'Cactus Mack' had intended to leave Cross Plains Monday night but he was prevailed upon by G. E. Morgan to wait and appear before the Lions the following day. Morgan and McPeters became acquainted recently at the Dallas Fair, where 'Mack' was announcing for Hoof Gibson's rodeo.
