METHODIST PLAN TO BUILD NEW CHURCH EDIFICE

The Review is informed that the Methodist are planning to build a new church building, the nature of which has not yet been agreed upon, it is said. It is also understood that a location for the new structure has not been definitely selected. The new building will be a modern one, and it is very likely that it will be a modern brick structure, however no information to that effect has been given out yet. Full announcements will probably be ready within a few days. Watch the Review.

Baptist Church

Sunday 11 A. M. and 7:15 P. M. President Godbold of Howard Payne will lecture. President Godbold is a very prominent speaker. Come.

Mr. R. D. Baum and family and Mr. John Westerman and family, with others whose names we failed to learn, attended a special church service at Burkett, Sunday. They heard a prominent visiting preacher.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS AND ELECTS NEW TRUSTEES

The school board met Tuesday evening and elected Martin Neeb to fill the vacancy created by Alfred Williams. Mr. Butler will fill the office of secretary of the board. Uncle Bill Neeb was re-elected tax collector of the school district. Mr. Williams who resigned is leaving this week for Lubbock where he will spend the most of his time until school is out here at which time his family will join him to make their home there.

The Men's Bible Class which was organized in the Odd Fellows Hall Sunday, started off with good interest and attendance, it is reported. There were 19 men present for the initial lesson. The purpose of the men's bible class is to interest men who do not attend Sunday School, the Review is informed. Those who attend Sunday School are not expected to attend this class.

Bill Harder was called to Fort Worth Tuesday night to be at the bedside of his mother who is not expected to live.

EASTERN STAR ORGANIZED CHAPTER HERE LAST WEEK

An Eastern Star Chapter was installed here last Friday night with 25 charter members. Mrs. Jones, state deputy, of Colorado city was here to install the Chapter. The week previous on Jan. 25, Mr. and Mrs. Howard of Rising Star, came over and assisted in the organization. Interest is lively, and a number have applied for membership in the last few days. They will meet on Thursday night of this week. Visiting members invited.

The following officers were elected: Mrs. F. M. Gwin, W. M.; Jeff Clark, W. P.; Mrs. Moragne, A. M.; Mrs. A. F. Lutgens, Warder; Mrs. Clyde Derringer, Sect.; Miss Anna Myrl Scott, Treas.; Rev. Tom Brabham, Chaplain; Mrs. Melvin Crabb, Marshal; Miss Vernie Crabb, Conductress; Mrs. Maggie Cook, ass't Conductress; Mrs. Mauldin, Mrs. Searly, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Wilkinson, and Mrs. Kendrick, Star Points; Ralph Chandler, Sentinel.

Announcement

To the People of Callahan County

In making my announcement as a candidate for reelection to the office of County Attorney, I first wish to express my gratitude to the people for their support in the last election and for the hearty cooperation that I have received in every section of the county in my efforts to enforce the law. I have tried earnestly to fill the office with credit to myself and to the people who have honored me with its duties. I submit my candidacy on my record. If the people see fit to elect me for a second term, I will continue to devote my energy and time to their interests.

Respectfully,
B. F. Russell

NATIONS MOURN DEATH OF EX-PRESIDENT WILSON

A great and good man has passed from this life, and the nations of the earth join in mourning. Woodrow Wilson, the great wartime president peacefully resigned this life Sunday morning at 11:15. He had never recovered from his breakdown in 1919.

"I am ready" said the former president shortly before he expired, as he realized that his hour of departure was near.

The departed President was very close to the hearts of the American people. His was a life of service. He piloted this nation wisely and safely through years of turmoil and has achieved the distinction of being one of the greatest men the world has ever produced.

High tribute is being paid Wilson from all parts of the civilized world. He is referred to as "the apostle of peace" and others "the lover of mankind" and other similar phrases. William Jennings Bryan says "he can not be denied a place among the immortals." while McAdoo says, "He was a rare combination—a charming companion, a ripe scholar, a christian gentleman, a consummate leader, a superb statesman, a disinterested figure, a noble idealist, a lofty soul, a genuine lover of mankind." While many others pay high tribute to this great man. Truly a great and good man has passed.

Calhoun-Strackbein

A. A. Calhoun and Miss Nela Strackbein, were united in wedlock on Thursday, Jan. 31. They will make their home here. Mr. Calhoun is employed at the Red Motor Inn as mechanic. Their many friends will join the Review in wishing them happiness and success.

LOCAL OPERATORS REMAIN ACTIVE IN LOCAL FIELDS

Stone & Co and T. B. Slick are running the 6 inch casing at 2200 feet on the Chess Barr well just south of town.

The Pennant Oil & Gas Co. are rigging up on the W. J. Bryson west tract this week.

Schaffner Bros are building rig on north side of James tract for new well.

Crabb & McNeel and Tom Bryant have skidded rig from McDonough No 5 to new location and will spud in soon. They have also moved their Star machine from McDonough No 1, to No 2, and will start drilling in near future.

C. O. Moore is reported progressing nicely on his Fankner No 2 and Acker No. 4, but failed to learn at what depth he was drilling today.

The price of crude has advanced another 25c, which puts it on $2 level. This advance is expected to put new life in to the local fields.

HAD TO LET HOUSEWORK GO

So My Husband had to do the Work. Completely Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

South Bend, Indiana.—"I was all run-down, tired out, and had pains in my back and bearing-down pains. I was so sore I could hardly drag myself around and was not able to do a bit of housework. My husband worked all day in the shop, and then came home and helped me at night. The doctor said I had female weakness, and there was no help but to be operated upon, and of course that would cost us a great deal. My husband heard about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at the factory and one night he stopped at the drug store and bought me a bottle of it. I had begun to think there was no help for me, but I took three bottles of it and now I feel like myself once more. The price for three bottles wasn't so much as the doctor had charged. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough."—Mrs. DONA OSBORNE, 430 Sherman Avenue, South Bend, Ind.

Women troubled with female weakness should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial—now. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Caught the Post

Pat was walking along the road when, hearing a whir, he looked back and saw Larry flying fast and furious on a bicycle. "Hi, wait a minute," shouted Pat. "I want to speak to you." "I can't; I'm in a hurry. I want to catch the post," cried Larry, flying by. Suddenly the bicycle swerved and crashed into a telegraph pole and Larry and the machine lay in a helpless tangle. When Pat came up Larry was extracting himself from the wire puzzle. "Begorra," said Pat, with a grin. "I see you caught the post."

Impressive Statue of Lincoln

This splendid bronze statue of Abraham Lincoln stands in front of the Court House in Newark, N. J., and is regarded as one of the best in the country, although many cities have wonderful Lincoln memorials.

Lincoln Was Not So Mild and Meek

Great Liberator Could Bare Teeth and Fight When Necessary

By PROF. B. J. CIGRAND, in Chicago Evening American.

There is a tendency in recent writings to picture Lincoln as mild and meek; that his red-bloodedness and his emphatic methods of rebuke are lost in the real value of the great statesman.

Several recent biographies and many orations and magazine articles of late years have given the impression that Lincoln was not master of his cabinet. It is said he often laughed and told stories when his opinion was needed. If any president endured intrigue at the cabinet board, Lincoln did. Not a single other man who ever sat in the presidential chair would have permitted the bold, personal campaigning of his personal associates.

But Lincoln seemed to let these men go on, gradually disclosing not only to himself but the public their selfish personal ambitions and then at the right time and in an inimitable way he would grab the official by the coat collar and bring him back to the straight and narrow path of Lincoln ideas.

Lincoln's manner of dealing with men was entirely different from that of any other president.

He even "ran after" General McClellan and permitted offensive correspondence and no end of "slights" to come to light.

Ultimatum to Plotters.

To show he was not intimidated, I give a copy of a letter which he read at a cabinet meeting during the time when Stanton, Chase and Seward were secretly condemning one another and suggesting removals so that they might all the better conduct their campaign to prevent Lincoln's re-election and seat themselves.

The letter reads:

"I must be the judge how long to retain in, and when to remove any of you from his position. It would greatly pain me to discover any of you endeavoring to procure another's removal, or, in any way, to prejudice him before the public. Such endeavor would be a wrong to me; and much worse a wrong to the country. My wish is that on this subject no remark be made, nor question asked by any of you, here or elsewhere, now or hereafter."

One day early in Lincoln's administration, Mrs. Lincoln said to him:

"It is common rumor about the capital that Seward and not you will be the president—that he will rule you."

He replied:

"I may not rule myself, but certainly Seward shall not. The only ruler I have is my conscience, following God in it, and these men will have to learn that yet."

At another time Lincoln was visited by a congressional committee headed by Thad Stevens, who burst in on Lincoln with the accusation:

"The way you are running this country is causing it to be approaching hell, and very fast."

Lincoln asked: "About how far from that place are we now?"

Stevens sharply replied: "I would say about a mile."

Lincoln smiled and replied: "About a mile—why that's about from here to the capitol." And everyone save Stevens roared.

Stepped Out of Beaten Path.

Seward, who had for years talked to subordinate Lincoln, finally came to his wits. "Excellent idea," Lincoln said. "I will do it." The President to the best of us.

On July 30, 1863, Lincoln issued a public letter, designed especially for the soldiers and sympathizers of the Confederacy:

"It is the duty of every government to give protection to its citizens and especially those who are organized as soldiers in the public service. It is, therefore, ordered that for every soldier of the United States killed in violation of the laws of war, a rebel soldier shall be executed; and for every one enslaved or sold into slavery, a rebel soldier shall be placed at hard labor on the public works."

This likeness of the Emancipator, taken when he was practicing law, is regarded one of the best ever made.

Formation of Coal.

The general theory regarding the formation of coal is that it results from the decomposition of vegetation in swamps under tremendous pressure at a high temperature. The first state is peat; second, lignite; third, bituminous; fourth, anthracite; and the final state is graphite from which pencils are made.

More prying personal curiosity, if applied to the sciences, might unravel the most of the secrets of nature.

ENGLAND ACCORDS RUSSIA RECOGNITION

Note to Minister Tchitcherin Urges That Russia Cease Propaganda

London.—The Labor Government of Britain has stretched out the hand of friendship to the workers' Government of Russia and granted full de jure recognition to the Soviet regime. British Trade Representative Hodgson, now in Moscow under the Anglo-Russian trade agreement, handed Foreign Minister Tchitcherin a note in which Britain recognizes "the Union of Socialist Republics as the de jure rulers of territories of the old Russia Empire which acknowledge their authority."

A note which was made public in a Foreign Office communiqué here urged that Russia cease propaganda, and notified Russia that Hodgson would not act as Charge d'Affaires for Britain pending the appointment of a British Ambassador to Moscow.

It stated that Britain would be glad to receive a Russian Charge d'Affaires in London.

The note stated that it would be necessary to conclude definite and practical agreements on a variety of matters for the purpose of creating normal, friendly relations. These include the adjustment of questions of pre-war treaties and the problem of settling economic claims and restoring Russian credit.

The note stated that Britain therefore invited Russian representatives to come to London at the earliest possible moment, empowered to draw up a treaty settling all outstanding questions.

It is understood that Capt. James O'Grady, a Laborite who has had frequent contact with Russian affairs, will be British Ambassador to Russia.

Russian circles assume that Christian Rakovsky, who was a member of the Russian delegation to the Genoa conference, and who is now in London, will be Russian Ambassador here.

It will be a remarkable exchange of Ambassadors. O'Grady has been a Labor member of Parliament for the southeast division of Leeds since 1918, and has also served as secretary of the National Federation of General Workers.

Rakovsky comes of a family famous in Bulgarian revolutionary history. He was born in 1872. While still only a boy he was expelled from school for organizing a group of revolutionary students. Compelled to flee to Western Europe, he studied at universities in Switzerland, Germany and France, eventually under police surveillance.

His arrest in 1907 by the Roumanian Government was the cause of serious riots in which fifty police and workers were killed. When the Roumanian Government attempted to deport him, workers tore up the railway tracks in front of his train.

HAS DECIDED GREGORY IS NOT TO BE COUNSEL

Employment "Might Be An Embarrassment," Says White House

Washington.—As the result of the testimony of E. L. Doherty, California oil magnate, that Thomas W. Gregory of Austin, Texas, former Attorney General of the United States, was employed by a number of oil companies and that he has been counsel for the Island Oil Company, President Coolidge has definitely made up his mind not to retain him as counsel in the oil cases. The executive taken over the matter with Chairman Lenroot and Senator Curtis of Kansas, the assistant Republican leader in the Senate. He will see Mr. Gregory upon his arrival here from Texas.

A formal statement issued at the White House said that such employment "might be an embarrassment to Mr. Gregory and perhaps otherwise would be improper."

Ratifies Claims Convention

Mexico City.—By a vote of 23 to 14 the Mexican senate has ratified the general claims convention with the United States. The text of the convention was approved without modifications. The action completes the Mexican ratification of the work of the mixed commission which provided the agreements for the recognition of Mexico by the United States. The special claims conventions were ratified several weeks ago by a vote of 42 to 5.

Bloviate, a New Word

There is a word which, so far as I know, is local to Washington, and largely to its newspaper and political fraternity. The word is "bloviate." It is not in the dictionary. (I have just looked and found there is no word of which the first four letters are "blow.") You pass from "blowing" immediately to "blow." But although the word is not in the dictionary, those whose ears have quick apprehension of the meaning inherent in sounds, will already have guessed its significance. When a public man, especially one rather given to speechmaking, is invited to inform and address the annual dinner of this or that, we say he has gone out of town to bloviate. The word carries an implication of ornate, round speech and partly of expansion of the ego.—Mark Sullivan in McNaught's Monthly.

Carnauba Wax

Scales of wax form on the under side of the young leaves of the Carnauba palm of South America. This wax drops off when shaken. Being collected in this way, the wax is naturally massed and is often used as adulterated beeswax. It is exported and used in the manufacture of candles.

Duke Has 12 Tons of Silver

The duke of Cumberland is selling his silver, they say, which weighs over twelve tons, and is judged to be priceless, the collection including, as it does, some of the rarest specimens of antique silver known.

Walburga, Lady Paget, in one of those books of memoirs of her, tells how in the way from London to Berlin as lady-in-waiting to the then princess royal, the seventeen-year-old bride of the crown prince of Prussia, she stopped at Hanover, where a court banquet awaited them. The long table goaded under the famous dinner service, which for so many years, with other heirlooms, had been the object of a great lawsuit between the English queen and king of Hanover, and which the English crown lawyers gave in his favor.

The princess royal recognized the service at once and was much hurt.—Detroit News.

One Reason for Nervous Disorders

YOUR doctor can tell you that nervous disorders are very common among Americans. One reason for this is found in the fact that they are great coffee drinkers.

Coffee contains caffeine, a drug, prescribed by doctors as an emergency stimulant for the heart and nervous system. It has a tendency to increase blood pressure, develop heart irregularities and cause digestive disturbances.

If you feel that coffee is not good for you, serve Postum as your meal-time drink.

Postum is a pure cereal beverage that refreshes and satisfies. It is absolutely free from caffeine or any other irritating drug.

Try a cup of Postum with your dinner or supper tonight. Postum is sold everywhere.

Postum for Health

"There's a Reason"

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tin) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

THE DENBY OUSTER PROCEEDINGS START

Late Development in Inquiry Is Subpoena Issued for Doheny

Washington—Adopting the Walsh oil lease annulment resolution by the unanimous vote of the eighty-nine Senators present, the Senate has plunged into what promises to be a historic and extremely bitter fight over the Robinson resolution requesting the President to call immediately for the resignation of Secretary Denby.

As the verbal battle got under way, it was conceded that a sufficient number of Republican insurgent votes might be joined with those of the Democrats to insure adoption of the resolution. Such a coalition repudiated all efforts of administration Senators to modify the language of the Walsh measure which, as finally adopted, declares the leases, signed by Mr. Denby to have been made without authority and contrary to law.

Meantime, Mr. Denby continued to stand pat on his declaration that he would not resign.

"No one has advised me to resign," he declared in response to suggestions that he had been urged to give up his Cabinet post to avoid embarrassment to the administration.

It came to light that after the Robinson resolution was introduced Mr. Denby called on Chairman Lenroot of the senatorial committee and Chairman Hale of the Senate Naval Committee and other administration leaders in the Senate, and that they had left it to him to decide whether he should resign.

Supporters of the Denby resignation resolution are giving close attention to the proceedings before the House Naval Committee, which was told by Rear Admiral J. K. Lattimer, Judge Advocate General of the navy, that Mr. Denby had told him that he had initiated the transfer of the naval reserves to the Interior Department, after investigating the question and consulting with various experts.

President Coolidge again devoted much of his time to the oil lease muddle, giving attention both to the various phases of the evidence adduced by the Senate committee and the question of the qualification of the special counsel he has selected to prosecute the cases.

The executive had an early morning meeting with Chairman Lenroot and Senators Lodge of Massachusetts, and Curtis of Kansas, the Republican leaders and later called in Democratic Senators for the first time, talking over the whole subject with Senators Robinson of Arkansas, the minority leader, and Walsh of Montana, who has had the dominant part in the oil inquiry.

A new development in the situation Thursday was the issuing of a subpoena for the appearance Friday of E. L. Doheny before the Senate Committee. The subpoena was sent out by Chairman Lenroot after Senator Reed (Dem.), Missouri, had demanded in the Senate that the oil magnate be subjected to a "searching examination" as to whether he had advanced any money to any other public official aside from former Interior Secretary Fall.

WOMEN FAVOR U. S. IN WORLD TRIBUNAL

School of Democracy Also Protests Sale of Arms to Mexico

Cleveland, Ohio.—Democratic women attending their "school of democracy" here were asked to make formal protest against the sale of arms to the Federal Government of Mexico by the United States and to approve entrance of the United States into the world court. Resolutions embodying such declarations were submitted to the gathering and will be acted upon immediately.

In addition, they will have before them a proposal that they extend to Senator Walsh of Montana their thanks for his "brave and wonderful service" in the exposure of corruption in the Teapot Dome investigation.

All the resolutions submitted so far were greeted with applause, and it is believed that all will be approved. The women also sent a telegram to former President Wilson expressing hope for improved health and congratulating him upon his accomplishments.

The League of Nations was discussed by former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker.

Couple Die in New York Fire New York.—Theodore Bauer, manager of a cabaret, and his wife, Louise, who before her marriage was Miss Louise Hart of Atlanta, Ga., died Thursday night, overcome by smoke fumes as they were attempting to escape from a fire in their apartment near the cabaret. The couple, the club proprietress, known as Mrs. Bauer, and her husband, were the first two persons to be killed in which an apartment building in New York City was destroyed.

TO REDUCE INCOME TAX 25 PER CENT

Chairman Green Says Slice Is Aimed at Immediate Relief for People

Washington.—Income taxpayers would receive a reduction in their 1923 taxes payable this year under a provision voted by Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee.

The amount of reduction has not been determined but Chairman Green, author of the proposal, said it might be as high as 25 per cent.

It would apply to the taxes after they have been computed and to all personal income taxpayers. Treasury experts estimated that a 25 per cent cut would mean a saving to taxpayers of $225,000,000.

Mr. Green explained the reduction was aimed at immediate relief, whereas, application of the rates in both the Mellon and Garner plans would begin on this year's taxes.

The action was the first taken on new income dates, which the Republican members of the committee decided to write themselves and put through in committee by a majority vote.

Under the plan adopted the reduction will be made a part of the revenue bill. If it is approved after March 15, Mr. Green said, provision will be made to allow refund on those taxes already paid.

The decision of Republican members to write their own income rates was explained in a statement by Chairman Green as resulting from the "refusal of Democratic members of the committee of our offer of compromise and their evident intention to support unchanged the so-called Garner plan." The latter plan, of which Representative Garner, (Dem.) of Texas is the author, proposes to reduce the surtax rates, which the committee reached just before adjournment, to a maximum of only 44 per cent from the present 50 per cent, instead of to 25 per cent, as proposed in the plan of Secretary Mellon.

Mr. Green's statement brought a retort from Representative Garner, who declared the former's "promise that we have refused to consider a compromise is not correct."

"They have offered no compromise. We asked what they had to offer the other day and they adjourned without offering anything and also they adjourned today with nothing said about the matter. The chairman's statement is not based upon the picture as it is or upon the facts."

The Mellon plan was prepared by the Treasury under a Republican administration and propaganda for it was distributed thirty days before we ever saw it.

"The only suggestion ever made on taxes except by the Democrats was a so-called radical plan of Mr. Fryar and others. The Democratic plan is in between the Mellon plan and the Fryar plan and we think our plan is the only compromise offered to date."

Understood Berlin Acted After Being Informed of U. S. Sentiments

Mosbach, Germany.—Although aware that strong efforts were being made to obtain his pardon, Lieut. Corliss Griffin, arrested and held in a German prison for an alleged attempt to kidnap Grover Bergdoll, was the most surprised man in this place when informed by his jailer that he could pack up his belongings and go. Neither the State's attorney nor the jail warden was apprised until late that the release of Griffin had been granted, as the appeal in his behalf was still strongly opposed on the ground that it should not be acted upon until the United States Government announced its attitude toward Frederick W. Bischoff, convicted in 1918 of conspiracy against the American Government, who, it was thought, was to be traded against Griffin.

The American Lieutenant lost no time in leaving the jail and he took a train for Stuttgart. His departure was so hurried most of the villagers first learned of it after he was on his way. Vice Consul Magnuson accompanied him.

It is understood that the Berlin Government acted after it had been informed of sentiment in the United States.

Mercaned as Sea Takes Husband New Bedford, Mass.—A tragedy of No Man's Land, a little island ten miles off the coast, became known here when Mrs. George W. J. Cook, wife of the caretaker on the island, was brought to the mainland and told of her husband's loss. He was carried out to sea in a small boat by a heavy wind when an our broke. Mrs. Cook left alone on the island, raised a flag as a signal of distress and was rescued by fishermen. The island is the summer home of Joshua Crane of Boston.

Why You May Need— CHEVROLET

There are three main groups of prospective buyers of Chevrolet automobiles and commercial cars. First, are all who know from comparison or through the experiences of friends that Chevrolet provides the utmost dollar value in modern, economical transportation of people or merchandise. Second, the large group of people with modest incomes who have the false impression that so good a car as Chevrolet is beyond their means. They do not realize that due to engineering excellence and full modern equipment, Chevrolet operating and maintenance costs average so low that during the life of the car, it delivers modern, comfortable, fast transportation at the lowest cost per mile, including the purchase price. Third, the smaller but very important group of car owners of ample means, only a small percentage of whom as yet realize that Chevrolet as an extra car virtually costs them nothing, due to the reduction in their transportation expenses effected by it. We respectfully suggest consideration, investigation and comparison of Chevrolet with any other car at any price.

"SHE'S A GOOD LOOKING GIRL!"

You can't expect people to say that about you as long as your appearance shows you are careless about keeping your skin free from pimples, rash, "breaking out" and eczema. You may feel like you have no hope of getting rid of these things, but you should not give up because Black and White Ointment is proving to thousands of people every day that they can depend on it to keep their skin clear, smooth and lovely. Black and White Ointment is economically priced, in liberal packages. The 50c size contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have it.—Advertisement.

Is Winter Time Your Backache Time?

DOES every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you lame, achy and all worn out? Does your back throb and ache until it seems you just can't keep going another day? Do you know these troubles are often due to weakened kidneys?

Winter's colds and chills throw a heavy strain on the kidneys. The kidneys are apt to weaken and fall behind in filtering the blood. Poisons accumulate and upset blood and nerves. Then comes constant backache, rheumatic pains, headache dizziness and kidney irregularities.

Don't wait! Delay is often serious. Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's have helped thousands. They are recommended by users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Good Folks:

C. B. Bickers, brakeman, 104 S. Paris St., Ennis, Tex., says: "My back was weak and hurt all the time. It ached for hours and when I moved around, sharp catches took me. My kidneys were irregular and acted frequently. The kidney secretions were scanty and burned in passage, too. After using Doan's Pills the trouble was removed entirely."

Mrs. M. J. Hockaby, 403 N. Ritchie St., Gainesville, Tex., says: "My back pained so I couldn't do a thing. Every move sent sharp twinges all through my back and I was never free from headaches. I had a dizzy feeling and my sight was blurred. I sent for Doan's Pills and after I started using them it was almost no time before I was entirely over the trouble."

A cynical philosopher has said that no man can be great until he is dead. He is wrong; he has the wrong conception of life. However, great men are often greater after they are gone. It is then that their true value and greatness is fully recognized, and appreciated. Woodrow Wilson was a great man. But some who criticized his life are now paying tribute to him, extolling his virtues and recounting his many worthy achievements. His greatness will grow with time. History will record his greatness and all people will come to realize his worth and fully appreciate his services to his country.

Some men seem to figure that the good wife can look after the religious interest of the home. Some even hope to reach heaven on the strength of the wife's religion. But when God calls all men into judgment, every one will be called on to give an account of HIS life. The good wife can not answer for you. Better think it over.

Citation by Publication

THE STATE OF TEXAS
To the Sheriff or any Constable of Callahan County—
Greetings

You are hereby commanded to summon Dee Pritchard by making publication of this Citation once in each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in any newspaper published in the 42nd Judicial District; but if there be no newspaper published in said Judicial District, then in a newspaper published in the nearest District to said 42nd Judicial District, to appear at the next regular term of the District Court of Callahan County, to be holden at the Court House thereof, in Baird, on the First Monday in March, A. D. 1924, the same being the 3rd day of March A. D. 1924, then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 25th day of June A. D. 1923, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court as No. 2442, wherein Ida Belle Pritchard, is Plaintiff, and Dee Pritchard Defendant, and said petition alleging and being as follows: to wit:

THE STATE OF TEXAS
COUNTY OF CALLAHAN
In District Court of Callahan County, Texas, October Term, A. D. 1923.

To the Honorable W. R. Ely, Judge of Said Court:

1. Now comes Ida Belle Pritchard who resides in Callahan County Texas, hereinafter called plaintiff, complaining of Dee Pritchard, who resides in Callahan county, Texas, hereinafter styled defendant, and for cause of action represents to the Court that heretofore on the 18th day of June, A. D. 1919, Plaintiff acquired a fee simple title in and to certain tracts of land, situated in the county of Callahan in said State, described as follows, to-wit: Being lots One (1) Two (2) Three (3) and Four (4) in the town of Putnam, Callahan County, Texas.

2. Plaintiff alleges that at the time she acquired title to said land on the aforesaid date, she was married to the defendant, but that thereafter on the 14th day of Feb. A. D. 1923 the District Court of Callahan County, Texas, granted a divorce to Plaintiff from the defendant herein, which decree of divorce made no disposition of any property held either by Plaintiff or Defendant. Plaintiff further alleges that the aforesaid described property is in her separate estate the said property being paid for by Plaintiff out of her own earnings, and that defendant has no interest claim or title to said property.

3. Plaintiff further alleges that Defendant made no claim to Said Property until on or about the 21st day of June, A. D. 1923, and that said claim by Defendant hampers and prevents the proper control and management of the said property by the Plaintiff.

Wherefore, Plaintiff prays the Court that Defendant be cited to appear and answer this petition, that said claim of defendant to aforesaid property be divested of the defendant and invested in the plaintiff; and that all claims or title to said property be quieted and the title to said property be invested in the plaintiff, for costs of suit, and for such other and further relief, special and general, in law and in equity, as to the Court shall seem meet and just, Etc.

COURT UPHOLDS PATENT SALE

U. S. Suit Against Chemical Foundation Dismissed by Judge Morris.

CONSPIRACY CHARGE FAILS

Conduct of Chemical Foundation Praised in Use of Former German Patents for Benefit of American People.

Wilmington, Del.—In a sixty-two page decision which swept away every one of the Government's major contentions as being without basis in fact or law, Federal Judge Hugh M. Morris dismissed its suit to set aside the sale of seized chemical and dye patents by the Alien Property Custodian to the Chemical Foundation, Inc.

The decision rebuked the Government for including in the bill of complaint a series of conspiracy charges unsupported by evidence at the trial and refuted by the defense as well as by documents filed by the Government.

In declining to compel the Foundation to restore the disputed patents, numbering some 4,700 and bought for $271,000, from the Government, Judge Morris held there was no evidence bearing out allegation of a conspiracy by American manufacturers to effect a monopoly through the Foundation. The court ruled that there was no evidence of fraud or deceit practiced on President Wilson, Mr. Polk, Under Secretary of State, Attorney General Palmer and other high officials of that Administration.

Garvan's Course Upheld

The opinion praised Francis P. Garvan, president of the Foundation, and its trustees, as having met the most severe of tests in their conduct of the Foundation—"the test of actual trial." They were declared by the court to afford, through their high integrity and unquestioned patriotism, a thorough assurance of loyalty to their trust. "It has kept the faith," said the court of the Foundation's work.

Judge Morris found without merit the Government's contention that the criminal laws were violated in that Mr. Garvan, as Alien Property Custodian and thereby a public trustee, sold to himself as president of the Foundation the patents in question. He had acted by direction of President Wilson and his acts, supervised by the President under the latter's wide war powers granted by Congress, could not be brought to court. Congress had not delegated legislative powers to President Wilson, as maintained by the plaintiff, and the courts could not pass judgment on the wisdom or lack of wisdom of Presidential war acts.

Judge Morris recited that although Colonel Thomas R. Miller, present Custodian, who had approved two of the sales involved, verified the complaint, in his testimony he admitted that he could not enumerate any of the facts alleged to have been withheld and suppressed from him.

"In view of this testimony and the obvious fact that the power to charge persons with fraud and conspiracy is a weapon with which serious irreparable injury may be done to innocent persons if such charges are lightly made, it is difficult to understand why the specific charges to which the foregoing testimony relates were made," wrote the court. "Yet the remaining like charges were equally lacking in evidential support. In fact, at the argument, the plaintiff seemed no longer to press these charges against the persons alleged to be conspirators, but it sought to have the charges sustained as against the officers of the Government who formulated and carried out in the public interest the plan of sale. . . . While I know of no case where by implication of law the duty of clearing itself from imputed fraud rests upon the defendant, yet the defendant has met even this burden."

Holdo Wilson Had Full Power

While the Trading With the Enemy Act at first merely authorized confiscation of German properties in this country, it was later amended, recalled the Court, to give power of sale under such conditions as the President, in the public interest, should determine upon. In effect, this made the President, as agent of the nation, possessed of powers as broad as though he were absolute owner of the seized properties. Under the provisions of the act, the President was empowered to make any conditions of sale he considered necessary in the circumstances.

The sales in dispute were not made by the Custodian in his capacity as a common-law trustee, but under the extraordinary powers devolving upon him as the President's representative, under the additional sections of the act. "Because a trustee with only the usual powers may not ordinarily sell trust property at private sale for less than its fair market value, it by its nature follows that the Custodian, acting under supervision and direction of the President, may not do so," held the Court. "Obviously, the primary purpose of the act was the protection of the nation, not the benefit of the estate. The trust was for the benefit of the nation—a public not a private trust. The trustee re-

Sick for Ten Years
Gained 60 Pounds
by Use of PE-RU-NA

Read This

Mr. John Wick

No matter how long you have been sick or how much you have suffered, you must not give up hope. Mr. John Wick, of Monomonee Falls, Wisconsin, did not and is a well man today. In September, 1918, he wrote: "I have been a user of Pe-ru-na for nearly twenty years. I had catarrh of the stomach for ten years. Nothing did me any good. I grew worse until a friend advised me to try Pe-ru-na. While using the first bottle, I felt I had found the right medicine. I am entirely cured. My weight was down to 135 pounds and now I weigh 195 pounds. I have used very little medicine for the last ten years."

The condition known as catarrh is not confined to the nose and throat. It may be found wherever there are mucous membranes and is responsible for a multitude of troubles. Coughs and colds are catarrhal as well as stomach and bowel disorders.

Do as John Wick did. Keep Pe-ru-na in the house. It stimulates digestion, aids in throwing off the poisonous secretions, enriches the blood, increases the resistance to disease and promotes good health generally.

Insist upon having genuine Pe-ru-na in either tablet or liquid form. Your dealer has it.

COLDS

Break a Cold Right Up with
"Pape's Cold Compound"

Take two tablets every three hours until three doses are taken. The first dose always gives relief. The second and third doses completely break up the cold. Pleasant and safe to take. Contains no quinine or opiates. Millions use "Pape's Cold Compound." Price thirty-five cents. Druggists guarantee it.

DEATH COMES TO WOODROW WILSON

WAR-TIME PRESIDENT'S CAREER ENDED PEACEFULLY BY DI-GESTIVE ORGAN DISORDER.

LINGERED FOR A LONG TIME

Nation Turns Head Toward Washington in Memory of Former Chief of U. S.

Washington, — Former President Wilson died Sunday at 11:15 a. m. Fatigued and worn by the battle with death, which began before he left the White House in 1921, the war President of two terms, eight of the most momentous years in the history of the world, closed his eyes and slipped peacefully away.

As Mr. Wilson died, prayers for him were being offered from hundreds of pulpits and from the hearts of thousands of devoted followers. The end came when vitality no longer could retard the steady dissolution which set in with the stroke of paralysis that laid Mr. Wilson low on his return from the western speaking trip in 1919, in which he declared he was glad to give his life for the League of Nations if that would make it a success.

The cause of death, as officially announced, was general arterio-sclerosis and haemiplegia.

The general arterio-sclerosis had been progressively hardening Mr. Wilson's arteries since he was first stricken in 1919. The haemiplegia, which refers to the paralytic condition of his left side, manifested itself principally in his left arm and leg.

A digestive disorder, which developed on week ago, hastened death by a new and vicious attack on the waning vitality of the former President. He took a sudden turn for the worse Thursday night and his physicians found that thereafter it was only a question of how long they would be able to prolong life.

The passing of the former President was announced in the following statement issued by his physician and friend, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson:

"Mrs. Wilson, his daughter, Margaret, and Dr. Grayson only were in the death chamber at the end. Dr. Grayson, restraining tears with obvious difficulty, gave the formal announcement to waiting newspaper men. Worn with the strain, his voice was barely audible when he said that the former President's last moments had been peaceful.

First word of the seriousness of Mr. Wilson's condition was given by Dr. Grayson Friday morning after he had spent Thursday night at the bedside. He called in at once two other physicians and members of the family were summoned by telegraph.

From then on he lingered on the verge of eternity. He slept fitfully and toward the last refused nourishment, but before extreme weakness overtook him he talked with those about him and told Dr. Grayson he was "ready to go." Step by step he lost ground and his physicians knew that the end was but a question of a short time.

As the news of his death spread throughout the city and was flashed around the world, messages of sympathy poured in a great flood tide to the widow who so long had kept him in a tender care.

One of the first to send a message of condolence was President Coolidge, who on Friday when the serious nature of the illness became known conveyed to Mrs. Wilson the hope of himself and Mrs. Coolidge that the former President would recover.

The scene in front of the house when the death was announced was heart-rending. Here were gathered several hundred persons, their eyes red with weeping, testified that were drawn by affection, not by curiosity. Some remained gazing at the house. Others, feeling a personal loss for this man to whom they had never even spoken, walked slowly down the hill wiping their eyes.

A young woman clerk, poorly dressed, went up to the door just after Admiral Grayson had returned inside. She carried a single white lily and handed it in, her humble tribute to departed greatness.

Wilson Planned Aid for Germany
New York—Woodrow Wilson planned to aid needy intellectuals of Germany just before he died, James W. Gerard, former ambassador in Berlin, revealed. Gerard said he received a letter from Mr. Wilson's secretary in which the former President offered to become a member of a committee to raise funds for writers, doctors, artists and other German intellectuals. "It is characteristic of Mr. Wilson that in the midst of his own personal distress, he should make this effort to help the starving."

Wires France Remembers
Paris—Georges Clemenceau, former French premier, declined to make a statement on the death of Woodrow Wilson, but gave a copy of the telegram he had addressed to Mrs. Wilson. It read: "Please accept my heartfelt regrets for the President's unexpected death. All through the states, when I read his name, I found nothing but the highest respect and gratitude for his noble part in the war. He will remain one of the greatest figures of American democracy. France will not forget him."

DEATH TAKES WOODROW WILSON, OUTSTANDING FIGURE OF THE AGE

Remarkable Career of the Man Who, After Gaining Fame as an Educator and Author, Became President, and During the Great War Was the Most Powerful Individual in the World—Originator of the League of Nations.

Woodrow Wilson, twenty-eighth president of the United States of America, was the most prominent world-figure of the events growing out of all wars. His place, as history will fix it, can only be conjectured. Hundreds of millions placed him at the zenith, as they placed the ex-kaiser at the nadir.

The great war brought to the front many men whose names will live in honor. In the last analysis three men stand out: Wilson, Lloyd George, Clemenceau. Of these three it was Wilson who held the world's eye—Wilson, the human phenomenon of the times, until fifty-four or more than a college president and political writer and at sixty-three on a pinnacle of fame and honor and power unsurpassed if ever attained by any man in history.

It is impossible now to differentiate between Woodrow Wilson the man and Woodrow Wilson the head of the most powerful nation of earth in wealth, material and fighting men. Certainly he could not have reached the place he held without great ability and extraordinary capacity for leadership. By virtue of his place he became a focus of world attention as soon as the great war began. Before the armistice was signed he had become a great moral leader with the ear of the peoples of the world. Only as such could he have forced upon the allied world the unofficial acceptance of his project of a League of Nations, with its the poles, Senator J. Thomas Heflin (Dem., Ala.), when representative spoke on the floor of "Woodrow Wilson, the greatest apostle of world liberty and democracy since Jesus Christ."

Senator Thomas W. Hardwick (Dem.) of Georgia, said January 21 in the senate: "I believe in a written constitution. I believe in a strict interpretation of it . . . and I believe that unless we leave and abandon this mad saturnalia of imperialism here at home and return to the ancient principles of our fathers there will be no safety nor happiness for the people of this republic."

Senator Albert B. Cummins (Rep.) of Iowa expressed the half-way view when he said in the senate January 23: "I think President Wilson is the most intensely practical statesman of this or any other day. He began his administration in the belief that the executive office had not the power that it ought to have. He has accomplished more in the direction in which he set his face and his mind than any other man, either in this generation or in any former generation; and the only criticism, if it is a criticism, is that he has not marched in the right direction and has done things that he ought not to have done."

In the process of wresting from congress all the powers he believed the Constitution conferred upon the executive, President Wilson made many political enemies who questioned not his ability, but his motives and methods.

MRS. AND MRS. WOODROW WILSON

fourteen points as set forth to congress January 18, 1918.

Abroad and at Home.

The enthusiasm evoked by President Wilson's visits to Paris, London and Rome was proof of his unique place in the regard of the people. It was evident that he was to Europeans not so much a man as a voice—a voice putting into words what they wanted and had not been able to express; his ideas and ideals were a sort of religion to them.

But he showed himself a statesman as well as a voice. He played the game masterfully. He established sympathy between himself and his man or his crowd. He made few if any mistakes in taste or judgment. He "matched his mind," to use his own expression, with the best of Europe and he got his league of nations before the peace conference and got it adopted.

President Wilson's two months in Europe may be divided into phases. When he landed the attitude toward the league of nations was this: The government of France was antagonistic; Great Britain's was suspicious; Italy's was skeptical. The first phase, his triumphant progress through France, England and Italy opened the eyes of these governments to his hold on the people. The second phase, the preliminary work of the peace conference, convinced these governments that President Wilson had an idea rather than a set plan which he purposed to force upon them. This simplified the situation and the road to climb on the bandwagon began.

Contemporary estimates of President Wilson at home were as wide apart as

To particularize would be largely to review the political history of the last six years. The railroad situation, however, may be cited as an example. Representative E. E. Denson (Rep.) of Illinois said January 15, 1919, "Government ownership of railroads will be the dominant political issue in the next national campaign and Mr. McAdoo will of course expect to be the candidate of his party. He will hope to capitalize what has been done for the railroad men."

President Wilson was re-elected in 1916 upon a peace platform. October 25, 1918, just before the congressional elections, he issued an appeal to the voters of the United States asking them, if they had approved of his leadership and wished him to continue to be their unembarrassed spokesman in affairs at home and abroad, to express themselves unmistakably to that effect by returning a Democratic majority to both houses. The result of the elections was to change the political complexion of both houses as follows: 65th congress—Senate, 51 Democrats and 45 Republicans; house, 215 Republicans and 213 Democrats. 66th congress—Senate, 47 Democrats and 49 Republicans; house, 239 Republicans and 193 Democrats.

President Wilson in attending the peace conference made several new departures. He left the country during office. He took the office with him, signing acts and making appointments while in Paris. He ignored the senate, though he is empowered by the Constitution to make treaties "by and with the advice and consent of the senate." He appointed as the American representatives himself, Secretary of State Robert Lansing, Henry White, Edward M. House and General Tasker H. Bliss. He sailed December 4, 1918, and arrived at Paris December 14. The French capital was en fete for the occasion. December 24 he went to England and thence to Italy. He returned to Paris January 8, after a journey that resembled a "triumphal procession."

After the preliminary sessions of the peace conference President Wilson returned to the United States in February, returning to Paris March 15, 1919. He signed the peace treaty June 28, 1919, and returned to the United States July 8. His second term as president expired March 3, 1920.

After his retirement from the presidency Mr. Wilson lived quietly, making a partly successful fight to regain his health. He occasionally went to the theater and rode much in his car about the environs of Washington. He bought a home in Washington and in 1921 formed a law partnership with Bainbridge Colby, who had been his secretary of state, succeeding Robert Lansing. He took part in the funeral procession of President Harding in Washington and was the recipient of much public attention.

Mr. Wilson's last public utterance was last fall. November 10, 1923, the eve of Armistice day, he spoke by radio to the American people, defending his peace policy and saying that the American people had withdrawn into a "solitary and selfish isolation which is deeply ignominious because manifestly cowardly and dishonorable."

Armistice day Mr. Wilson briefly addressed thousands from the front steps of his home, concluding thus:

"I am not one of those that have the least anxiety about the triumph of the principles I have stood for. I have seen fools resist Providence before and I have seen their destruction, as will come upon these again—utter destruction and contempt. That we shall prevail is as sure as that God reigns. Thank you."

Chronology of Wilson.

Woodrow Wilson was born December 28, 1856, in Staunton, Va. He was the son of Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, a Presbyterian minister, and Jessie (Woodrow) Wilson. In 1855 he married Ellen Louise Axson. They had three daughters—Jessie (Mrs. Francis B. Sayre), Eleanor (Mrs. W. G. McAdoo) and Margaret. Mrs. Wilson died August 16, 1914, in the White House. December 18, 1915, Mr. Wilson married Edith (Holling) Galt, a descendant of Pocahontas. The first 29 years of Mr. Wilson's life covered his boyhood and education. The next 25 were devoted to teaching and writing. With his election to the governorship of New Jersey in 1910 began his active political career. His chronology follows:

- 1878—Family removed to Atlanta, Ga. Student in private schools.
- 1879-82—Student at Princeton.

Little Willis.

Little Willis tried to swing aboard the caboose as the south-bound freight pulled out Saturday morning. The doctor says he will be able to attend school Monday.

Last May Mayor Cottle secured passage of an ordinance by the town council forbidding women and girls to wear knickers. The state's attorney said he wasn't sure, but thought that to be constitutional the law should apply to both sexes.

The other day came another majority election. Knickers were the issue. T. W. Lattimer, who favored the rights of women to dress as they please, got 78 votes to Cottle's 77. He announces he will not enforce the anti-knickers law.

Operation Avoided

Elkhart, Kan.—"About two years ago I began to suffer so with pain and soreness in both sides, (especially my right side,) that I was almost unable to do any housework. I was also very nervous. Doctors advised an operation, but this I wished to avoid if possible, so I wrote to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, describing my condition, and was advised to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Ironic Tablets, and before I had finished one bottle of each I was feeling much better. I took seven bottles of the 'Prescription' and two of the 'Ironic Tablets' and weighed more and felt better than I had for some time. There is no doubt about it, Dr. Pierce's medicines cured me, for I took no other."—Mrs. W. E. Dean, Route B.

"YOU COWARDLY DOG!"

SYNOPSIS.—Winton Garrett, twenty-five and just out of college, calls by appointment on Archie Garrett, his New York cousin and executor, to receive his inheritance of $100,000. Archie, honest, an easy man and a fool for luck, assures Winton that he is practically a millionaire, as he has invested all but $10,000 in a rubber plantation in either the East or West Indies and in a controlling interest in the Big Malopo diamond mine, somewhere or other in South Africa, and him as a special favor by a Dutch promoter named De Witt. Winton, en route to his mine, finds the town of Tanga wildly excited over a big strike at Malopo, including the 25-carat "De Witt diamond." Two coach passengers are a disagreeable old prospector, Daddy Seaton, and his daughter Sheila. On the journey a passenger, who turns out to be De Witt himself, insults Sheila. Winton fights De Witt and knocks him out. Sheila tells him to turn back. She says that her father is a broken English army major, who has killed a man, and is therefore in De Witt's power, that De Witt is all-powerful, being backed by Judge Davis, president of the diamond syndicate and also the resident magistrate and judge of the native protectorate. Winton finds Malopo in a turmoil, both over the strike and the theft of the De Witt diamond. He discloses his identity. He finds Sheila in a restaurant. She declines his friendship. De Witt's men slip the De Witt diamond in his pocket. He flees from arrest. Sheila takes him into her home, tends his wounds and saves him from his pursuers. He convinces her that he is president of the Big Malopo company. The next morning he breaks into the company meeting and declares himself. Winton succeeds in saving control. He asks Sheila to marry him. She refuses. Judge Davis tells Winton the syndicate will work with him or smash him. Winton works alone.

CHAPTER - I -

For Sheila's Sake.

"What's your opinion, Ned?" asked Winton, two or three evenings later. Much had transpired during the brief interval. The gangs of natives had arrived at the compound and started operations, under the immediate charge of Seaton, who had turned up sober at the appointed time. The old man worked diligently and showed that he knew his business. He had not touched a drop of liquor. But Sheila had not accompanied him to the cottage, and Winton had asked no questions. What surprised Winton was the fact that the natives seemed to regard old Seaton with an exaggerated deference which they did not extend to him. Old Seaton, slung under his lead of liquor, was very different from Seaton, standing erect in the center of the compound, shouting commands to his obsequious workers, who flew to obey him. "You couldn't have got a better man than old King Seaton, if he'll stay sober," said Ned. "But it's hard on his girl."

"Why do you call him that?" asked Winton, interrupting because he could not endure any reference to Sheila. "There was something in his tone that sneaked Burns on the threshold of his sciences."

"Why, I supposed you knew, Mr. Garrett. The old man used to be a sort of chief among these Kafirs. Lived among 'em for years, they say. I suppose there ain't much to that story, though," added reflectively.

"You realized that there was something more behind the story than Ned wished to disclose. And it came to him with a sudden shock that Ned knew of his episode in Sheila's house on the night of the chase, and was unwilling, on that account, to be as frank as he might have been."

"On the night of the natives' arrival, when there was confusion and something of an uproar over the allocation of quarters, Winton was a little surprised to perceive the Hottentot Boetjeh in conversation with his compound manager. There was a rule forbidding the presence of strange natives in the compounds. Winton did not feel in a position to be a stickler for the present, but the manner in which the Hottentot passed him without recognition struck him as odd.

"The ground had been struck, the matrix of the diamond. The news spread all along the reef, and crowds flocked out from Malopo to see. Ned was hopeful that the main pipe would be found on the Malopo claim. Everything depended on its location. As the Big Malopo was in the center of the fields, Winton shared Ned's enthusiasm. The capital of the claim had been largely exhausted in the outfit for machinery, construction material, and laborers. Davis had given Winton three months, but Winton realized that he would have to choose between two cover, or arriving at the claim, that the water was running again. The incident disturbed him a good deal, and made him realize that the syndicate had a good many cards to play. On the next morning he started down town with the intention of catching Sheila on her way to the Continental. At the corner of the market square he came upon Sam Simpson, making his rounds. The negro had a great heap of papers under his arm. "Good morning, Sam!" called Winton. "Get a paper for me?" "Good morning, Mr. Garrett. I must supply my regular customers first," responded Sam evasively. "No spare copies, eh?" "I'm afraid not, sir," said Sam, looking about him uneasily. "All right, I'll get one somewhere else," said Winton, wondering a little at Sam's appearance, which was that of a man extremely anxious to get into other company. He strolled over to a small general store with a pile of papers in front of it, and picked up a Chronicle. He scanned the cable and telegraphic news, and turned to the personal column. This was a feature of the paper. It began with authentic news, and records of arrivals and departures, gradually falling into gossip and reflections upon the doings of the applicants, which afforded intense amusement to those acquainted with what was going on in town. Near the end of the column Winton read: "Rumor reports that one of the fairest of the employees of the Continental, whose home was formerly open to a certain would-be financial light from overseas long beyond the conventional hours, has now transferred her interests to another. Those in the know declare that the self-constituted ignate in question, being mistaken on one occasion for a certain notorious law-breaker, was hidden by the lady in question in her own home, under circumstances that furnish both amusement and chagrin to those formerly among her friends."

Winton stood perfectly still, staring at the paragraph. Then he looked up. The busy market square swam before his eyes. The cruelty of life here, the selfishness and self-absorption of the crowds, the absence of any public opinion working toward good came to him with vivid realization. Then he felt a pulse hammering in his temple, and a mad rage in his heart that concentrated all his thoughts, with terrific energy, upon the desire for vengeance. Across the square, presented to him with vivid delineation, as if a finger had picked it out, he saw through the crowds the figure of Sam Simpson entering the Chronicle office. He pushed his way through the mob and made for the building. It was a single story brick edifice, consisting of two rooms, the parlor and the editorial office. Through the one window of the former Winton saw the single linotype at work, under the charge of Malopo's single operator. Through the doorway he saw the editor, Hanson, seated at a table, bent over a pile of proofs, and Sam Simpson standing beside him. Winton entered and slammed down the paper upon the table. "I'm looking for the man who wrote that," he said. Hanson looked up, saw his face, and sprang to his feet quickly. "Now, now, Mr. Garrett, it was only a joke," he protested. "You must not take it seriously."

"Did you write that?" inquired Winton with ominous calm. "No!" shouted Hanson with timid ferocity. "Did you write that?" asked Winton, wheeling upon Sam. "Mr. Garrett," responded the negro with dignity, "the Chronicle is an entity, not an agglomeration of personalities. It claims and exercises the privileges of anonymity as—"

Winton's fist smashed into Sam's face, and he toppled over. He picked himself up and ran into the street, screaming at the top of his voice. A crowd collected quickly. Winton found himself the center of it, with Sam facing him accusingly, blood streaming from his lip. Then Judge Davis came bustling through the throng. "This is your doing, you miserable old scamp!" raved Winton, holding out the paper. "Is this what you call fraternity, attacking a woman who earns her living in a decent way? You infernal old hypocrite, thank your stars you are too old to be thrashed!" "Hooryay for the judge! How about it, judge?" yelled one of the bystanders. Judge Davis took the newspaper from Winton's hand, put on his glasses, and read the passage aloud.

Good morning, Sam! called Winton, "Get a paper for me."

"When you speak of a lady, my friend, I presume you refer to the young woman in question," he said coolly; and the spectators snickered. Winton felt some hidden meaning in their mirth. He writhed under it. "What does this mean, Mr. Hanson?" Judge Davis continued. "It's part of the personal news, judge," answered the editor. "Quite so," answered Davis. "It is unfortunate, Mr. Garrett, if you are the gentleman referred to. But the passage has my approval." His voice began to quaver. "It's our policy," he went on, "to promote temperance, purity, and fraternity by publicity. Woe to those who harbor designs against the well-being of the people of Malopo! Woe to you, young man, if you are a wolf in sheep's clothing! The people of Malopo will tolerate nothing that cannot bear the full light of day."

"Go it, judge! Give him h—l, judge!" yelled the citizen who had spoken before. Judge Davis looked about him unctuously and smacked his lips. He knew well how to take advantage of the admiration which his gallery play aroused. "The Chronicle will not be intimidated in its policy of public justice," he pursued. "Do you wish to lay a charge of assault and battery against Mr. Garrett?" he inquired of Sam. "I want him arrested!" yelled Sam. "He cut my lip. I'm a British subject and I demand justice."

"And you shall have it," answered the judge. "White or colored, every man is entitled to the full protection of the law. Go home, young man, and reflect on that," he said to Winton. "I made a mistake," said Winton hoarsely. "That's better, my friend."

"Yes, I made a mistake," he shouted, slinking his flat in the judge's face. "Next time this happens it's you who will pay the penalty. I'll take the hide off your bones, you cowardly dog, old as you are! Understand me," he continued, looking so frantic that the judge stepped back to avoid the anticipated blow, "powerful as you may be in this town, you'll attack any woman through the medium of your paper at your personal peril!"

Pushing his way through the crowd, he went at a great rate until he found himself unaccompanied. He began to realize that he had made a fool of himself. He had given Sheila exactly that publicity which he desired to avoid. He had played into his enemies' hands. He must find her now before anything else was done. He strode into the Continental. The men were just going into the dining room. Winton accompanied the crowd; but at the cashier's desk he saw a stout blonde, with rouged face and penciled eyebrows, and Sheila was nowhere in the room. The entrance of Winton, glaring about him and showing all the evidences of his agitation, attracted universal attention. The manager recognized him as one of his disappointments. Winton's removal to the European had angered him, and he had a sneering remark at the tip of his tongue which died away as he saw the look on Winton's face. "Where's Miss Seaton?" demanded Winton. "She ain't here today," answered the man. "This ain't no drawing room. If you want dinner, sit down. If you don't get out!"

The girls were watching the argument, which had every aspect of developing into an altercation. The diners, who knew all about the paragraph, were smiling broadly. "I asked you where she was," said Winton doggedly. Winton's former waitress took pity on him. She had liked Winton, and admired him as different from the crowd who flocked into the place. "She's gone to the races," she whispered. Winton left the hotel. He knew that he had made a fool of himself for the second time. The story of his infatuation would be all over Malopo. He had not known that there was any racing that day. He had noticed nothing absorbed as he was with his one thought. But now he saw that a procession of carts and wagons, horsemen and pedestrians, with here and there a smart dog-cart, was making its way toward the south side of the town. Winton tramped along in their wake, until Malopo was left behind, and he saw the race course in front of him, crowded with spectators.

"Dear, I love you. Let that suffice. I can make you love me—"

A Sure Thing.

They were a sly pair, the cashier and the waitress. One day, however, they met their match. A gentleman called for his bill and, upon receiving it, he carefully added it up and found that he had been charged 50 cents too much. "How does this come about?" he asked, looking sharply at the waitress. "Well, you see, sir," she returned, a trifle out of breath, "the cashier bet me $2 that you wouldn't see it and I bet him you would."

With a smile the customer wrote something on the back of the bill, folded it and said: "Take that to the cashier."

She did so, and on opening it the two were startled to read: "I'll bet $5 I shan't be here when you get back."

And he wasn't.

Virtue.
The more virtuous any man is, the less easily he suspects others to be vicious.

PARTY LINES ARE MOSTLY WIPED OUT

FACTIONS SUPPLANT POLITICAL ORGANIZATIONS, TO THE DISTRESS OF LEADERS.

By EDWARD B. CLARK

Washington.—The situation in congress this winter resembles that in many of the legislative bodies of Europe. In the place of two well-outlined political parties striving for the mastery, there are really six or seven schools of thought represented in both houses, and each is striving for the domination of its own economic and legislative ideas.

Party names this year seem to matter nothing. The old lines of demarcation between the Republicans and the Democrats for the present at least seem largely to have been wiped out. States rights and to a less degree protection vs. free trade are in limbo. There are scores of Republicans who seem to feel legislatively just as a score or two of Democrats feel. Then there are some Republicans so-called, and some Democrats, so-called, whose feelings are alike and entirely different from those of other groups in all matters pertaining not only to ultimate legislation but to the means of securing it.

Efforts at leadership in both houses and in both parties is like the attempts at shepherding of the guardians of a flock of sheep of which the constituent members seem to be headstrong in their attempts to get through the fence on one side, to jump into the river on a second, or possibly to tumble down the side leading to the pasture of peace, concord and presumed plenty.

Disturbing to the Leaders.
Not long ago Secretary of Commerce Hoover wrote a letter to William Allen White touching on the danger of this tendency to coalition in congress between the parties and parts of parties. In his letter the secretary dwelt upon the similarity of conditions abroad and those in the congress of the United States at the present time.

Mr. Hoover is not the only prominent one in official life who has called attention to the same thing. It is known that the Democratic party leaders outside of congress are immensely disturbed over the condition, fearing that it means damage to the party, and it is also known that Republican national committeemen and others also are anxious over the possible outcome of the divisions in their party ranks in house and senate.

Both Democratic and Republican politicians who are not in congress are asking themselves how really solid party endeavor can be stressed in convention platforms when the endeavors have been not of parties, but of factions within parties.

Each party organization is anxious to go before the people next summer with something constructive to present and with a record of construction, attempted at least, to prove that it is the intention in the future to complete the plan and thereby to deserve the thanks of the voters. The Democrats have one legislative plan to lower taxes, the Republicans have another and certain factions in both parties have others. What is going to come out of it nobody knows.

Peace Plan and the Senate.
In the senate the so-called irreconcilables on international matters still are declaring openly that the Edward Bok peace plan has killed all chance that the Harding World court membership proposal can be enacted into law.

The irreconcilables go further than this and say that the plan not only killed the World court plan, but has put the League of Nations, so far as American participation therein is concerned, on a mountain ledge that cannot be reached by the most enthusiastic scaler of peaks.

Are these things that the irreconcilables say true? Naturally enough they seemingly form their opinions on the subject of the future of the plan from the reception which it has received in partisan circles in Washington. Washington is not the United States, although congressmen seem to take it for granted that the voice of the cloakroom is the voice of the country.

A referendum is being taken on the Bok peace plan. Opponents of the League of Nations and anything pertaining thereto say that the referendum will result in just-panning the plan. However, they probably will know better after a little thought. The seemingly saner thinkers here believe that the result of the referendum will be approval of the plan and yet they know that this will not and cannot make it certain that the country en masse gives its approval to the presented scheme to bring about peace.

Opponents Lose Interest.
The friends of a movement intended to make peace take up permanent lodging in the world are not deceiving themselves as to the effect of the pronouncement on the present plan which is likely to come as the result of a referendum. They know, as well as opponents of the plan know, that the people who are enthusiastic for anything are the people who respond to the call for voting. The opponents of anything fenching the League of Nations, or at least those of them who are outside of the circles of political partisanship, have, to a considerable extent, lost interest in the matter. It is not expected that they will respond in great numbers to the referendum appeal. The result, therefore, naturally, as even friends of the plan view it, will be an endorsement for the proposed Bok endeavor.

This view of the case, the view of friends of the plan, is given in order that the ordinary layman espouser of the proposal shall not take the result of the referendum too seriously. The proponents of the plan know well enough that the senate as at present constituted never will give endorsement to the plan after it has been put in resolution, bill or treaty form for submission to congress. The supporters of the plan here in Washington and who give voice on the subject, therefore, seemingly want it to be known that they have no great hope that congress will give its endorsement, no matter what the referendum may seem to show.

Real Referendum at the Polls.
So far as the Washington viewpoint is concerned, it seems that the referendum on a World court and on a gradual approach to a direct way into the League of Nations, is to be held next summer and fall—that is in the election. The feeling of the friends of a modified Woodrow Wilson plan seems to be that a change has come in the country since the election of 1920 and that today there are hundreds of thousands of voters who, in a sort of despair because Europe cannot get straightened out any other way, now are willing that something shall be tried to bring order out of disorder, even if once they objected to the trial of anything that looked as if it might lead into the field of European troubles.

It is not determined yet definitely whether the senators actually will endorse a resolution of inquiry to determine whether or not the Bok peace plan competition was instituted for the purpose of coercing the senate of the United States. Of course everybody here knows that such an inquiry would prove nothing, and that the very suggestion of it is simply a mark of resentment that anybody should have the temerity to attempt to try to find out whether the American people are in favor of something which some of their representatives in the senate look on with hatred. It would be something of a blow to the self love of a good many senators if they should be made to know that the humble ones who sent them to the senate do not hold them to be infallible because of their high place.

Some days have passed since the Bok peace plan was made public. The senate, in part, has done nothing but attempt to pour contempt on Mr. Bok's pride of achievement. The wish, of course, is rather to the thought that the plan will not amount to anything. It is held here as certain that it will take a referendum result of Niagara-like power to move the irreconcilables from their place of antagonism.

Patriots Vs. Yellow Students.
In round numbers there are 75,000 officers of the Reserve corps of the United States. Probably ninety-five per cent of these officers served during the great war and by expressing their willingness to stay in the reserve they simply served notice that their patriotism is of a kind which will cause them willing to serve again in case of their country's need.

There is an organization called the Reserve Officers' Association of the United States with headquarters in Washington, of which John Ross DeLafield, brigadier general in the Reserve corps, is the president. This association, composed as it is of men who have served, and self-sacrificingly are willing to serve again, is looking with dismay and disgust—disgust in the word—on the action of a group of several hundred delegates to a recent convention of an organization of students of the United States who, after their convention was over, as a minority insisted that a meeting should be called later to discuss the question of whether or not the students of America should pledge themselves to refuse in the future to aid in the prosecution of war, either directly or indirectly.

The members of the Reserve corps are civilians and not professional soldiers. They are in every walk of life. Through the president of the association has gone a telegram of protest to Dr. Joseph C. Robbins, chairman of the recent convention of students, saying that those delegates to the convention who insisted that a meeting should be called to discuss the question given above were guilty of treason to their country.

Denounced by DeLafield.
Now it must not be understood that this convention of students which was held recently endorsed the plea of many of the delegates that a pledge should be taken to refrain from any act of helpfulness in a war in which their country might become engaged. The main body of the delegates declined to consider the thing, but there were several hundred of them who, over the protest of the convention's chairman, called a meeting to be held on Armistice Day, 1924, for the express purpose of discussing the question given. It is known that virtually every one of the young men who denigrated that this meeting be held is of a mind to refuse any kind of aid to his country in the day of its possible peril.

In the telegram, signed by General DeLafield, to the chairman of the students' convention this among other things is said: "I wish to state that every patriotic citizen condemns men or groups of men who have pledged themselves not to join in the defense of their country and its people as guilty of treason and such men are viewed with the contempt that Benedict Arnold faced not only in America, but also in England where he died in exile."

Forecasting A Tremendous Spring Demand more Ford cars and trucks were produced last year than the previous year, an increase of over 50 per cent.

In spite of this tremendous increase in production, it was impossible to meet delivery requirements during the spring and summer months when orders for 350,000 Ford Cars and Trucks could not be filled.

This year winter buying for immediate delivery has been more active than ever before—and in addition 200,000 orders have already been booked through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan for spring delivery.

These facts clearly indicate that the demand during this spring and summer will be far greater than ever, and that orders should be placed immediately with Ford Dealers as a means of protection against delay in securing your Ford Car or Truck or Fordson Tractor.
