WORK ON HIGHWAY TO START AT ONCE

J. B. Early, division engineer and Mr. Arbuckle, Supt. of maintenance of the State Highway Department, were here Monday in consultation with Geo. Clifton, local commissioner and F. M. Gwin, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and they stated that the Commission would grant $7,500.00 for reconstruction work on Highway No. 23, east of town, to the Eastland Co. line, and work of reshaping the road bed and re-surfacing with gravel will start at once. When that is completed it is hoped to get the highway just southwest of town completed.

Mr. Gwin went to Brownwood Tuesday and met with Mr. Morrison, Brown County road commissioner, who promised to start work soon on the Cross Cut road between here and Brownwood. It will be most pleasing to see the highway crew at work on the road leading toward Pioneer, east, a distance of some three miles that has been neglected for years. Highways are very important factors in the business, social and commercial life of today. The world is moving on wheels—and it moves slower where the roads are rough. We need more and better highways, and it is hoped that Cross Plains will get its share.

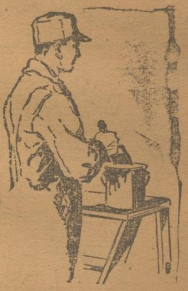

FUNDS RAISED FOR FLOOD SUFFERERS

About $200.00 was raised here the past week for flood sufferers. The Liberty Theatre gave a benefit show which netted about $45.00. The Masonic Lodge contributed about $100 and the American Legion gave proceeds from wrestling match here last Thursday night, all of this with other private offerings will exceed $200.00 it is stated. And other contributions will be made later no doubt, as the call sent out by the Red Cross and other relief organizations indicates urgent need of more help. The situation is deplorable with countless thousands of homeless, covering thousands of square miles along the Mississippi. The worst flood of history along this great river.

STATE HEALTH MAN HERE THIS WEEK

E. G. Eggert, sanitary engineer, of the State Board of Health, Austin, was here Tuesday and Wednesday, inspecting the sanitary condition of the business district, for the city. Several were warned to dispose of unsanitary conditions about their places of business, and were given a limited time to comply with requirements, while others were advised of move old out houses and connect up with sewer system at once. Mr. Eggert was polite, yet firm and thorough in his work. Each place of business was inspected and a report made on each. Dr. John Rumph is City Health officer, and W. R. Wagner and Jim McMillan are special deputies and will assist in making the City more sanitary. This is the season when flies and germs of all kinds which West of town the Mook Texas Co. and M. E. Wakefield are completing their E. E. Baum No. 1, and it looks like it will be a good well breed disease are becoming more numerous and active, and those interested in the City's welfare are urged to cooperate in cleaning up the town, not only in business section but in residence section too. An unhealthy as well as unpleasant atmosphere will predominate where sanitary conditions are not enforced, and that is the purpose of Mr. Eggert's presence here and after he is gone, the local health officers will carry out instructions, in the interest of the City's welfare, and it is hoped that every citizen will assist in the work and not try to hinder the enforcement and the work will be more pleasant for all.

SCHOOL EXERCISES MOST INTERESTING

The Commencement exercises of the Cross Plains Schools are being carried out here this week, beginning with the baccalaureate sermon last Sunday and closing with senior exercises at the Methodist Church Friday night, when Miss Mary Popplewell, chief Supervisor of High Schools, Austin, Texas, will address the class.

The High School Senior Class gave an interesting program Tuesday night, and on Wednesday evening grammar school exercises were given, and each exercise was well attended and much interest was shown by faculty, students and parents, as well as the public at large, and many favorable comments were heard relative to the progress of the school work here this year. The next school term will open in the new buildings now under construction.

Jim Settle and family spent week end visiting with relatives in Dallas.

ELECTION ORDERED FOR NEW COURT HOUSE

The election has been ordered for June 11th to vote on a $175,000 bond issue for a new court house at Baird. There is considerable speculation here as to whether or not the issue will carry. Many believe the amount asked for is too much, others think the present building will do for the time being and some think the present building should be repaired, while still others will favor the bond issue.

The Review is not sufficiently conversant with the facts and figures involved to pass on the merits of the issue, but from information at hand there should be an improvement of some kind. As a matter of record Callahan County is not noted for its wealth, and just at this time, Baird Clyde and Cross Plains are taxing themselves for city improvements. There will probably be considerable opposition to the bond issue here, but every voter should give the matter due consideration before he or she casts their votes one way or the other.

In the Cross Cut section, E. H. Ramsey is on sand on Henson No. 3, E. M. Curry is fishing at 1130 n his Pickett well.

Some hope prevails that the market will be stronger soon, and drilling activities will begin on a large scale. But just now it is quiet.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

METHODIST PASTOR WILL GO TO PAMPA

Rev. Tom W. Brabham Methodist Pastor here, will go to Pampa, as pastor. He will preach his farewell sermon to the Church here Sunday. He will be succeeded here by Rev. Hendricks, Methodist pastor of Shannon it is stated, who begins his pastoral work immediately after Rev. Brabham leaves for his new work.

Pampa is located northeast of Amarillo, and is growing rapidly as a result of oil developments there. The Methodists have a large $25,000.00 Church structure, there with a membership of 400 it is stated.

Rev. Brabham and his family have been here for several years and have a warm place in the hearts of Cross Plains people, and all will regret to see them go, but will join in wishing them success and happiness in their new home.

Rev. Hendricks, who succeeds Rev. Brabham, is said to be a fine preacher and a worthy citizen, being recognized as one of the ablest ministers of that section of the state. He will find a warm welcome here.

Miss Opal Mitchell, who was operated on at Brownwood first of the week is said to be doing nicely.

CHAPTER I

Doctor Carpy's Story.

The mining camp of Sleepy Cat was rapidly filling up. Traders were building—the coming of the railroad was close at hand, the real estate offices were bustling, and the unquenchable optimism inspired by the only pure air in the world was everywhere in evidence.

With the rapidity common to such places the town had lost its earliest leisurely air, imparted by the vagrant adventurer and the philosophic trader—men that penetrated the West without any very definite idea, or a great amount of care, as to just where or how they should eventually bring up.

"Just when did this happen?" asked Wentworth, leaning forward in his chair, and dragging the chair forward with him—like a man quite ready to listen.

"The Fourth of July," repeated Carpy, surprised at the interruption. "You sure heard about it?"

"Forty kinds of stories!" exclaimed Wentworth, somewhat irritably. "Every mule driver between here and Medicine Bend has a different one. You say you saw it?"

"Saw it?" The doctor in his turn echoed the words with a touch of scornful gusto. "Saw it?" he repeated, with an emphatic twang of vanity. "Man! I was in it."

Doctor Carpy was sitting with Benjamin Wentworth in the morning sunshine on the narrow porch of the doctor's new hotel in Sleepy Cat.

"There was a suicide that night," he continued reminiscently, "a girl down in the river quarter. They went for me, I couldn't do anything. She was lying on the bed on her back with her arms stretched out over her head. She'd caught two of the old-fashioned wood spiders at the head of the bedstead with her hands and lay there with her eyes shut, moaning. While I was trying to find out what she'd taken, she went into a tetanic convulsion. I tried what antidotes I had, but it wasn't a bit of use; I saw right away I had been called too late.

"Of course, everybody sneaked out. I didn't like it, myself; and I'm pretty thick-skinned. About all I could do was to wipe off her forehead and wipe the froth off her lips; and every time a spasm was coming on, she'd draw herself up with her lips quivering and cry out: 'God have mercy on my soul!'

"'God!' I says to myself sitting there listening to her, and like as if I was talking to myself, 'You sure picked a hard death.'"

"She heard me. She looked up, with the water dripping through the point on her face. 'I picked a hard life! Oh, Doc,' she says, moaning-like, 'could you get me a priest?'

"'Hi—, girl, I says, 'there ain't a priest this side Gunlock reservation. But no matter,' I says, 'don't you worry too much. They ain't a-goin' to be too hard on you up there. Mary Magdalen's there—talk to her; you'll be a blamed sight better off there than you ever been in this country.'"

"Well, I wished you'd seen that girl's eyes when she began to go. They'd got pretty hard in Sleepy Cat; they turned all soft—kind of pleading—kind of like a youngster's looking to take a hard licking. After a while I managed to get her hands loose from the spindles—and there I set like a dum fool, holding 'em myself—seemed like when she was going, she wanted to keep hold of something. But I'll swear you'd never known her when I got her straightened out and laid her hands across her breast, and smoothed the spread up over her face—you wouldn't, I'll declare. Everybody'd stunk clean out of sight, so I stayed—that's all a doctor's good for, anyway.

"Well, I walked down the blamed stairs doing some thinking. You remember that joint of Buntie Bartoe's? It's down close to the lower river bridge. The saloon is pretty big. Next to it is his barber shop, with a big arch opening into the barroom. I stopped in the saloon to tell Bartoe his wife was dead—hoping that some fine day I'd have a chance to hang him and that partner of his, Atkins. Then I took a drink—he's got the meanest stuf 'tween Council Bluffs and Salt Lake—but I was fair desperate.

"Being Fourth of July night, the place was pretty well filled up. About the first bunch I noticed was Frank Sanger's gang of horse-thieves from Calabasas—they were makin' most of the noise. I knew they were in town that day and Bartoe's place was their hang-out. Frank Sanger and Buck Boyd were the brains of the outfit; they bossed the stealing, and George Osage and a couple of cowboys from the Panhandle got rid of the horses. They were all handy with their guns, and they'd got so bold they'd try to sell a man's own horses back to him—everybody was afraid of 'em. For a couple of years they'd been running the Spanish sinks to suit themselves.

"You remember old Dave Tracy from Thief River? Dave's been running a kind of one-horse freighting outfit between Thief River and Sleepy Cat. About six months ago Frank stole a team of mules from him, not thinking Dave would be much trouble. Dave is an old soldier. He's a gambler, too—his young mining partner at Thief River set him up in a big place here in Sleepy Cat—everything well—up street this side the hill—but Dave's a square gambler and he ain't afraid of nobody on earth.

"So next day Dave rides down to Sanger's dugout at Calabasas, seen his two mules in the corral, and starts for Thief River with 'em. About half way home Frank meets him and Frank said they'd talk afterward—and pulled on him. He wasn't quick enough, Dave knocked him off his horse with a bullet through his shoulder; but, unluckily for Dave, he rode away from Sanger without making a job of it. Sanger come to me. I told him I'd have to take his arm off—he said if I did he'd blow my head off; so away he went—and got well with his arm on; that's the way a doctor gets treated out here.

"Well, that was Tracy's start with the Calabasas bunch. After that they were laying for Dave. He know'd it. He'd been up to see me in the spring about a young fellow—this mining partner of his—that he said was in the last stages of consumption. I gave him some medicine and told him to tell the fellow to drink plenty of good whisky. Dave said that was the trouble, he wouldn't drink any kind of whisky. I told Dave, Boyd and Sanger were in town with their gang, and warned him to keep away from Bartoe's—that's all the good it did.

"So Fourth of July night, when I came down the stairs, I walked from the bar out through the archway into the barber shop to get shaved—would you believe it, the only barber shop we've got in town is down there in Bartoe's den—and there was Tracy at the cigar stand paying for a haircut. And there in the first chair was a slim young fellow getting lathered up—there was only one barber on duty. I spoke to Tracy again, friendly-like, and told him to lay low. But he wouldn't pay no attention to me. He just stepped out like a fellow twenty-five years old, into the saloon.

"I wasn't in at the start. But they said Tracy didn't see Frank Sanger. He walked up to one of the Panhandle men and asked where Sanger was. Sanger was right behind Tracy and he drew. He meant to shoot Tracy through the head, but Tracy saw the move in the eyes of the man he was talking to. He swung round quick and the bullet caught him in the neck and partly paralyzed him.

"I was standing talking to the barber. When the first shot was fired he was lathering the man in the chair. That man was out of the chair—well, you might say before the barber actually heard the shot, or before I heard it. The chair faced the saloon, and the man wasn't jumped six feet the first clip; he was through that opening into the barroom 'fore you could say 'Bingo!'

"Tracy pulled when he was falling or had pulled when he swung round; anyway, he pinched the trigger on Sanger from the floor and the blamed cartridge missed fire! Tracy was up on his elbow full of fight, but he was going, and Sanger covered him again to finish him—and that shot was never fired. I ran into the doorway myself and there, three feet to one side of me, the man with the lather on his face was cutting in. He had his gun down on Sanger before Sanger could pull the trigger the second time, and he just naturally threw a bullet right across the room into Sanger's middle. More than that: before Sanger struck the floor, the slim man in the lather put another bullet through Sanger's head—if I hadn't seen it I couldn't've believed it. No man could ever told me two shots could be fired so close together from one gun.

"By this time the whole Calabasas bunch was shooting at Slim and there I was like a dummy, not three feet away from him; one bullet glanced off the jamb and nicked me right here in the ribs." Doctor Carpy put the forefinger of his right hand dramatically into his right side to indicate the exact spot.

"Hang it, Wentworth," he resumed, "I'm sorry you didn't see it. There I was, and there was the man in the lather dancing around like a happy-jack, shooting faster'n you could think and actually for a minute taking the fire of five men; and every time his gun went off the cuss knocked one of 'em down. It was too fast to watch—I just kind of saw 'em reeling around like tenpins and I watched the slim fellow, paralyzed. He was shooting with his right side turned to the bunch and his left arm straight out behind him, crooked up in the air—and dancing on his toes!"

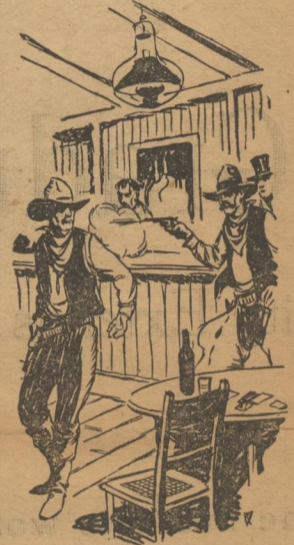

Carpy laughed at the recollection. "I heard him shout something, but of course I couldn't get it; Dave Tracy got it, though. The slim fellow capered all the time nearer to Tracy, and Tracy, all the time, had been dragging himself toward the slim fellow. What he shouted was—so he told me afterward—'Your gun, Dave, your gun.' And, by hokey, when he'd emptied his own gun, he dropped it like a hot potato and grabbed Tracy's out of his hand. But there wasn't any need of another gun—four men were down—three of 'em never did get up. Sanger—well, he was sentenced twice—once through the heart and once through the head; it was against the law, for no man's life ought to be put in jeopardy twice for the same offense. Two of the bunch were on their feet—one man's gun was empty and his hands were up so high he broke his fingers trying to poke 'em through the ceiling; the other fellow was legging it for the door, and a shot from Tracy's gun fired by his partner nicked the yellow man in the leg—down he went.

"Wentworth, the room was so full of smoke I couldn't see the middle at all. And there was the slim fellow on one side—gun in hand and watching the room with eyes as green as a cat's—stooping and helping Dave with his left hand to crawl behind a table that was knocked over.

"I stepped forward to the end of the bar and put up my hand. 'Boys, I says, 'I call this fight fit! Whoever you are, partner; I calls out to the slim fellow, 'put up your gun. You've done the job and done it right!' Then the spectators that hadn't spectated crawled out from under the chairs and tables and began to peek in at the doors and windows. 'This has been a pretty fast celebration,' I said, loud as I could. 'But I want to tell you all something. This place is closed for the night; finish up somewheres else. There's a young woman—well known in this town for the good was in her and more particular for the bad was in her—lying dead by her own hand, upstairs—let us have peace!'

Doctor Carpy had spoken. He sat silent. Wentworth smiled. "It's a kind of curious thing," said he reflectively, "but I came up here to Sleepy Cat this time, Doc, to buy that freighting outfit of Tracy's—and I suppose now it can be bought right. However, after all that hard luck, I'm going to give the old man what his stuff is worth.

"The Bullet Caught Him in the Neck and Partly Paralyzed Him."

"But I never did expect," continued Wentworth, "to hear of Frank Sanger, George Osage, and Buck Boyd going down in a one-man fight. Was the slim fellow hit bad?"

"Wentworth, I was the only man hit on that side the house. The slim fellow wasn't so much as scratched."

"Poor shooting."

"Well, yes—and no, Wentworth. Mind you, they were standing right in the center of the room—in the full light of a big lamp hanging from the middle of the ceiling. Slim was over to one side, and I noticed afterward, when he jumped from the doorway he jumped away from the bar side and toward the dim corner. You see, there's another ceiling lamp in the barber shop that shines right through the arch, and outside that shine there's more or less shadow. The bar, of course, has its own light, so Slim just picked the shadow side of the archway and worked from that corner. I set the leg of the thief that was hit running out. He told me he thought it was a ghost shooting from the corner. You see they'd got all ready for a good time with Tracy. It must have been a surprise party for 'em.

"Then, they were bunched, too. They tried to scatter, but they had to shoot at the same time, and, by gum, as fast as they scattered, down they went. I looked that room over since, Wentworth, to figure it out—and if one man had to make a fight with a gang he couldn't pick things better than the boy picked 'em."

"But I want to tell you, Mr. Slim was about pestered when it was over. He helped Jim McAlpin and me get Dave up to the hotel after Jim brought a wagon from the barn; and he watched Dave like a hawk till we got him in bed and fixed up—acted as if he thought I was going to poison Dave myself; however, I made him sit down in a rocking-chair and stick to a quart of champagne—wouldn't drink nothing else—till he pretty well finished it. That steadied his nerves and he was all right again."

"What did you say the slim fellow's name was?" asked Wentworth. "Who is he?"

"Why, it's the sick fellow Tracy came to me to get the medicine for— he's a gambler—a mining partner of Tracy's. Tracy staked him in a claim at Thief River, so when he struck it, he staked Tracy here—and staked him right. I don't rightly know just who the young fellow is. He's got some good blood in him—somewhere. How do I know? Look at his nose and his ears—just like you would at a horse—or at his hand—long and slim—I can come pretty close to spotting them fellows. There's some story behind him, maybe. He goes out here by the name of Selwood—John Selwood—and trains with old Dave."

Little wreaths of smoke from Wentworth's cigar curled up from his fingers; he was looking into the sunshine from under the broad brim of his hat, out across the Spanish sinks. "I wonder," he said, after a pause, "whether he knows anything about freighting?"

"Freighting?" echoed Carpy. "Why, Tracy claimed that man's in the last stages of consumption!"

"We shouldn't need him very long," responded Wentworth, undisturbed; "the railroad will be in Sleepy Cat inside a year—"

"Glory to God!"

"Maybe," continued Wentworth, reflecting, "I can get this young fellow you're talking about to run our freighting business between Medicine Bend and Sleepy Cat. Why, Doc, they steal our mules, here on the West End, faster'n we can ship 'em in from St. Louis. It's something scandalous."

CHAPTER II

Christie Fyler.

When the title of Sleepy Cat was throwing its excited head over its no less excited heels in a rapid growth, there were few quiet stretches along the Overland trail.

It was on one of the long, winding stretches of this trail, between Point

Nye's First and Last Job as Paper Hanger

I decided to economize in the matter of paper hanging, thinking that I would save the paper hanger's bill and put the money into preferred trotting stock. So I read a household hint, which stated how one should make and apply paste to wall paper, how to apply the paper, and all that. The paste was made by uniting flour, water and glue in such a way as to secure the paper to the wall and yet leave it smooth. First the walls had to be "sized." However, I took a tape measure and sized the walls.

Next I began to cook the paste in a large milk pan. It looked very repulsive, but it looked so much better than I smelled that I did not mind. Then I put about five cents' worth of it on one roll of paper and got up on the chair to begin. My idea was to apply it to the wall mostly, but the chair tipped, and so I papered the piano and my wife on the way down. My wife gasped for breath, and then she laughed at me. That is the reason I took another end of the paper and repaired her face. I cannot bear to have anyone laugh at me when I am unhappy.—From "Bill Nye, His Own Life Story," by Frank Wilson Nye.

Ay, That's the Rub

The word "scrape," meaning a difficulty or some unfortunate predicament, has several synonyms, as "rub," a "squeeze," a "pinch," etc., all of which are younger than the term "scrape," and of slightly different interpretation. "Getting into a scrape" came from Scotland, and the expression is as old as the ancient and honorable game of golf. In Scotland a rabbit's hole or burrow is called a "scrape." When a player's ball rolled into one of these holes it was manifestly impossible to play it, and the rules of the game recognized this fact by naming a slight penalty for the player. He merely "got into a scrape."—Chicago Journal.

Well-Trained Horses

Visitors to a circus or fair are always much impressed by the clever acting of the horses which prance around the ring, and rise up on their hind legs and dance to the music of the band. In fact, so highly have horses been trained that at the circus of Cortz Altdorf, a famous continental ring, a horse made a number of balloon ascents alone. The ancients are said to have been great masters of horse training. The people of Italy taught their horses to dance to the music of the pipe. In the Thirteenth century there was shown a famous rope-dancing horse, while the artists of the Fourteenth century found plenty of scope for their talents in depicting the different methods employed in the instruction of performing ponies and horses, one of which was taught to tap his forelegs and hind legs on a board like a man playing a drum.

Section 4 (of Article V): The Court of Criminal Appeals shall consist of five Judges, provided that the Legislature may increase the number to not more than nine, and a majority of the Judges shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of five Judges shall be necessary to the decision of any case. The Court of Criminal Appeals and the Judges thereof shall have the power to issue the writ of habeas corpus and, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, issue such writs as may be necessary to enforce its own jurisdiction. Section 6 (of Article V): The Legislature shall, from time to time, divide the State into such number of Supreme Judicial Districts as to it may seem necessary, not exceeding twelve at any one time, and shall have the power to re-district the State at any time, and shall establish a Court of Civil Appeals in each of said districts, which Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and not less than two Associate Justices as the Legislature may provide, who shall have the qualifications as herein prescribed for Justices of the Supreme Court, provided that the aggregate number of Judges of the Courts of Civil Appeals shall never at one time exceed thirty six. The Judges of the Courts of Civil Appeals who may be in office when this amendment takes effect shall hold their office until their respective terms shall expire under their present election or appointment.

Section 7 (of Article V): The State shall be divided into as many judicial Districts as may now or hereafter be provided by law, which may be increased or diminished by law. For each District there shall be elected by the qualified voters thereof, at a general election, a Judge, who shall be a citizen of the United States and of this State, who shall have been a licensed lawyer for four years next preceding his election, and during that time shall have been a practicing lawyer or Judge of a Court of record or such practicing lawyer and Judge together, who shall have resided in the District in which he was elected for two years next preceding his election, who shall reside in his District during his term of office, who shall hold his office for the term of four years, and shall receive for his services such compensation as may be prescribed by law. He shall hold the regular terms of his Court at the County Seat of each County in his district at least twice in each year, in such manner as may be prescribed by law. The Legislature shall have power, by general or special laws, to authorize the holding of special terms of the Court or the holding of more than two terms in any County for the dispatch of business. The Legislature shall also provide for the holding of District Court when the Judge thereof is absent, or is, from any cause, disabled or disqualified from presiding. The Supreme Court or the Chief Justice thereof may assign any District Judge to any district in the State other than that for which he was elected, with all the powers of a resident District Judge of the District to which he is assigned under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Legislature, or by the Supreme Court in the absence of such regulations enacted by the Legislature. The District Judges who may be in office when this amendment takes effect shall hold their offices until their respective terms shall expire under their present election or appointment.

"For the amendment to the State Constitution, amending Sections 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 of Article V of the Constitution of Texas, for the purpose of providing a more efficient judicial system"; and each voter favoring said amendment shall scratch off the ballot in the same manner, the following words printed thereon:

"Against the amendment to the State Constitution amending Sections 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 of Article V of the Constitution of Texas, for the purpose of providing a more efficient judicial system".

If it shall appear from return of said election that a majority of the votes cast have been cast in favor of said amendment it shall become a part of the Constitution of the State of Texas.

Sec. 3: The Governor shall issue his proclamation calling said election and have the same published and said election held in accordance with this resolution, and the Constitution and laws of this state; and return shall be made and the votes canvassed and counted as provided by law; and if said amendment is adopted by the required vote of the qualified electors of this State, the Governor shall issue his proclamation as required by law.

Sec. 4: The sum of twelve thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of the State Treasury to pay for publication of the proclamation calling said election and any expense of the State in submitting said amendment and holding said election.

Bunaed Up, Yes

Two of our fellow townsmen, J. E. Henkel and Willie Woods, carry evidences of being in some kind of a smash up, and according to statement made by Mr. Henkel, it happened on Thursday night of last week, while they were returning from Fort Worth. They drove to that City the night before, being up all night, after loading up the truck in which they were riding which belonged to Mr. Woods, they started for home, neglecting to take time for sleep, and to make a long story short, they went to sleep on the road and collided with a big truck, which wrecked Mr. Woods truck, and injured both occupants. Many cuts and bruises were sustained, but both are able to tell what happened after they had their sleep disturbed so rudely. To add humor to the incident on party drove by and looked them over and remarked "drunk again" and drove on. However the boys don't drink.

GETS RECOGNITION

Post Bond, local banker and gin man was one of three who came within 4 per cent of correctly estimating the 1926 cotton crop according to the Commerce and Finance, a New York publication. His estimate of the crop was only beat by three others, who came within three per cent, the production was given at 17,680,000.

Mr. Bond is noted for being a "good guesser", but he is a close observer and makes a study of the cotton business. He usually estimates the cotton production here—and he seldom misses the marks very far.

YES, BUT Cross Plains has sewer system, adequate water supply, fire department, and will soon have new school buildings paved streets, white-way and concrete sidewalks, but we need that big brick hotel. It would be a good investment, and would mean much to Cross Plains. Other small cities are getting big, fine, modern hotels—and why can't we? Well, we can, and we will—but why delay? We need it now. Don't you think so? If you think so, tell it.

Ike Kendrick, who resides out in the eastern suburbs of the City, in the Kendrick addition, is coming into the limelight as a gardener, with aspirations that (if carried out) will discount all the professionals and amateurs of the City, including all those previously mentioned in the Review. Ike has taken a front seat. He has a new garden plot, and forty acres of land. If he needs more, his neighbors will probably accommodate him. We will all know where to secure NICE LARGE fresh vegetables. Ike is free hearted—and he will have lots of 'em—we guess.

DO YOU KNOW HIM?

A hypocrite is a pretender, one who pretends to be one thing, but in his heart is something else, one who simulates virtue for pity, one who plays a part — any part to gain favor. Have you ever seen one? You say that you know one who is a member of your church, perhaps you do, but you also may know of one who is in your lodge. You may find one anywhere. Usually he is recognized but he doesn't realize it. He thinks he is fooling people. No one appreciates him — not even other hypocrites. He doesn't even like himself. The hypocrite hinders the progress of christianity more than any other cause, because of the protection and prestige afforded by church membership. That reminds us that a local minister spoke a great truth recently when he declared that "Church membership was a very popular thing — but real christianity was not so popular." That's why the risen Christ said "take up your cross and follow me!"

AL SMITH

Al Smith, governor of New York, in all probability will seek the democratic nomination for presidency in 1928, but close observers, who are conversant with conditions and the trend of politics, don't think he would have a chance. He's wet, decidedly and pronounced. Too wet to be elected president. Being governor of New York, is not to be compared with being President of the United States.

The Democrat who runs against Coolidge, if he seeks re-election, is going to have to run a real race: he's going to have to be popular in the South, west and north as well as in the east, if he hopes to win.

TWO WOMEN FOUND HELP

Their Sickness Banished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

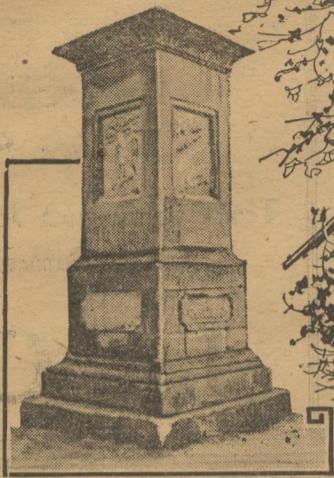

Mrs. Nina Matteson, Box 206, Oxford, N. Y., writes—"If it had not been for your medicine, I could not have done my work as it should have been done. Mother told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I had read in different papers what it had done for different women. She wanted me to try it, so my husband got me one bottle at first; then I took two others. Now I am feeling quite strong again."

Mrs. Ernest Tanguay of Adams, Mass., says she was ill for four years and could not sleep nights or go out on the street. She read about the Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking eight bottles she was able to do all her work and go anywhere and is quite herself again.

This dependable Vegetable Compound is a household word in thousands of homes. The fourth generation is now learning the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than half a century, this reliable medicine has been used by women with very satisfactory results. If the Vegetable Compound has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you?

Where Is Daniel Boone Buried?

BOONE'S MONUMENT, FRANKFORT, KY.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

HERE is Daniel Boone, the great frontiersman, buried? Ask a Kentuckian that and he will probably answer, "Why, in our state capital, Frankfort, of course!"

Tell a Missourian what the Kentuckian has said, and his comment may possibly be the traditional, "Show me!"

Read any of the dozens of biographies of Daniel Boone and you'll probably find a statement something like this: "He was buried in Missouri but in 1845, at the urgent request of Kentucky the bodies of Boone and his wife were removed to Kentucky and reburied in Frankfort." But it's just possible that all of the histories are wrong and that Daniel Boone still sleeps beneath the soil of Missouri! Instead of the blue grass of Kentucky. Surprising as that statement may be, there seems to be some foundation of fact for the belief that "somebody blundered" in 1845 and that, as a result, the body of an unknown stranger, instead of the body of the famous pioneer, rests beside that of Rebecca Boone in the Kentucky capital.

All of which came about through the discovery recently in an old hair trunk in the attic of a farmhouse near Boonville, Mo., of several letters written to Capt. Nathan Boone, Daniel Boone's son, by the governor of Kentucky and other distinguished men in that state, asking his permission for the removal of the bodies of Daniel Boone and his wife to Frankfort for burial. The discovery of these letters started a representative of the Kansas City Star upon an investigation which has raised the question of where Daniel Boone is actually buried and has uncovered evidence which indicates that it is in Missouri and not in Kentucky.

As a necessary background for a consideration of this startling theory, it may be well to go back into some of the familiar history of Daniel Boone. It will be remembered how the infant state of Kentucky, displaying an ingratitude not at all unusual in the history of America, failed to confirm Boone's title to lands within its borders. So the old pioneer took his family to Missouri, which was then Spanish territory. The news of his coming had preceded him and the Spanish governor gave him a grant of a thousand acres of fine bottomland on the Femme Osage creek and made him syndic (an office combining the duties of judge, jury, military commander and sheriff) for his district. Here he lived happily for several years, but when Missouri, as a part of the Louisiana purchase, came under the American flag, misfortune overtook Boone. The federal government refused to recognize the title to the acres granted him by the Spanish and again he found himself landless. He sent in memorials to both the Kentucky legislature and congress but it was not until six years had passed that congress took action to confirm his Spanish land grants. After the death of his wife, he made his home with his son, Nathan, in St. Charles county and there he died September 26, 1820, at the age of eighty-six.

When Rebecca Boone died in 1813 she was buried in a cemetery on a knoll upon the bank of Teague creek about a mile and a half north of the present town of Marthasville in Warren county, Mo. It had been Boone's oft-repeated request that he be placed beside her when he died and by the side of her grave he had marked a place for his own. It is at this point in the narrative that the possibility that "somebody blundered" enters, according to descendants of Boone who live in Missouri and who have made a careful investigation of the circumstances connected with the burial and removal. One of these is Jesse P. Crump, vice president of the Kansas City Title and Trust company, director in Missouri of the Boone Family association and an authority on the life of his illustrious ancestor. From his statements and from those of David Gardyne of Marthasville, Mo., who has spent years tracing up every item connected with the life of Boone, as presented by the Kansas City Star writer, the evidence sums up as follows:

When the grave diggers had nearly completed the grave beside that of Rebecca Boone, they uncovered a human skeleton. So the grave was re-filled and this unknown preoccupied was left in possession. They then attempted to make a grave on the other side of the Rebecca Boone grave. But here the hill sloped sharply away, making it unsuitable for a grave. So they had to try again and a grave was dug either at the head or the foot of Rebecca's grave (no one knows for certain which) so as to carry out his request to lie beside his beloved. There Daniel Boone was buried and there, his descendants believe, he sleeps today.

The next chapter in the "somebody blundered" chain of events occurred a little later when headstones were placed at the Boone graves. The stones were dragged to the graves by a yoke of oxen, driven by a man whose name is lost to history. When he arrived there he was not certain as to the placing of the stones and went to a farmhouse nearby. The woman there returned with him to the graves and after discussing the situation for a time, finally pointed to the two graves side by side and said "I think those are the graves." Accordingly the headstone for Rebecca Boone was placed correctly but the one for Daniel Boone was placed at the head of the grave occupied by the unknown stranger.

The final "blunder" (if such it was) was made in 1845 when Kentucky, in an effort to pay its tardy honors to the man to whom it owed so much, started the movement to have the bodies of Boone and his wife returned to the Blue Grass state. As the result of the letters from Kentucky officials to Nathan Boone such as those recently discovered, the Boone family finally gave its consent to the removal. A delegation of Kentuckians arrived to obtain the bodies. They opened the grave of Rebecca Boone and found the coffin in an excellent state of preservation but when they opened the grave beside her, which they believed to contain the body of the old pioneer, they found only a few pieces of the coffin and the larger bones of a human skeleton.

Apparently no one at the time was struck by the inconsistency of this fact: how could Rebecca's coffin be in such perfect state of preservation, while the other, supposed to contain the body of her husband, who was buried seven years after her, had so nearly perished? At any rate the contents of the two graves were placed in elaborate coffins and carried to Frankfort. The ceremony of reburial at the Kentucky capital as described in an article in Harper's Magazine in 1859 tells us that:

Having obtained the consent of the surviving relatives of the pioneer for the removal of the remains, a committee, charged with the execution of the will of the legislature, appointed the 13th of September, 1845, as the day when public funeral honors should be paid to the illustrious dead and their remains be deposited in the bosom of Kentucky. The events of that day will ever form an interesting page in the annals of the state. On that occasion historic men—men whose names will never be forgotten—gathered around the coffin of a more eminent historic character and bore it to the grave. The pallbearers were fifty chosen from among the elders and the honored men of the commonwealth.

Thousands of people had gathered from all parts of the state to participate in the solemn funeral rites. A procession was formed, consisting of military companies, Masonic and other societies in regalia, and a great number of citizens on horseback and on foot, making the line more than a mile in length. The broad grave for the two coffins was dug in a lovely shaded hollow near the banks of the Kentucky river and around it the multitude gathered. The religious ceremonies were performed by Rev. Mr. Giddell of the Baptist church and were followed by an oration by Hon. J. J. Crittenden, the able representative of Kentucky in the senate of the United States. When the closing prayer had been offered, and the benediction pronounced, the coffins were lowered into the grave and over them was piled a mound of earth—yet the only monument that marks the spot where the noble pioneers are buried.

What was true in 1859 was still true 20 years later—that this mound of earth was "yet the only monument that marks the spot where the noble pioneers are buried." For, strange to say, having paid these signal honors to its great pioneer, Kentucky again showed a strange indifference to him and it was not until 1880 that the present monument was erected in Frankfort.

Daniel Boone has been honored by memorials in many other places—in the monument which marks the site of Boonesborough, the "station" which he established in 1775; in the statue of him in Cherokee park in Louisville; in the monument which stands in Cumberland Gap, where Boone stood and looked into his land of promise, even though it was the "Dark and Bloody Ground," and which may some day be replaced with a heroic statue of the great pioneer; and in the Boone Trail highway which follows his path into the West. Last year he became one of America's immortals when a bust of him was unveiled in the Hall of Fame at New York university.

But to Kentuckians the monument in Frankfort (an unpretentious one, it would seem, considering the worth of his services to that commonwealth), is something of a state shrine. It will be startling news to Kentuckians if it is ever definitely proved that Daniel Boone does not sleep beneath that monument. There were times during the bloody years of the Revolution in the West that Kentucky owed her very existence to the strong right arm and stout heart of Daniel Boone. Yet for all that he did for her she allowed him to be defrauded of his lands and saw him, saddened by her ingratitude, set forth to seek a new home in another state. A quarter of a century after his death she paid him tardy honors, then neglected his memory for another 35 years.

If, as the Missouri descendants of Boone believe, it is not only possible but probable, that Daniel Boone still sleeps in Missouri and not in Kentucky, how Fate must smile at the delicious irony of the situation—Kentuckians of today making a pilgrimage to this state shrine, unconscious of the fact that they are standing in reverence at the last resting place of an unknown stranger and not that of their great hero whom the Kentuckians of yesterday denied the full measure of honor and the rewards which he so richly deserved!

Nothing else has ever done me so much good, and I would not take worlds for what it did for me. In three months' time, after using eight or ten bottles, I was entirely relieved of all the distress which had troubled me. I really did not expect much of Tanlac, in view of how other remedies failed. But the results it gave surprised and delighted me."

"Now I have no trouble about my food; can eat or digest anything, sleep naturally and have built my weight

"Purges" and "Physics" Bad for Old Folks

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps "regulate" the bowels of old folks. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but each dose helps to strengthen the bowel muscles, shortly establishing natural "regularity." It never gripes, sickens, or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

The long-horned cattle are the descendants of the old Spanish cattle brought to Mexico by the early explorers (known as the Conquistadores). Some of these cattle were brought into the region now known as Texas and Mexico and became wild and formed the start of the long-horned cattle. They were numerous in the Southwest until a few years ago. Modern beef-bred bulls have been used with these herds until now the old long-horns are practically extinct in the United States.

What Shape Face?

If your profile is concave, says Popular Science Monthly, you are likely to be a slow but determined thinker. If it is convex, sloping either way from the tip of the nose, your thinking is apt to be quick, but indecisive. But if a line drawn from the forehead to the chin indicates a plane profile, you are both quick and steady. You combine the best qualities of the other two.

CHIC BLACK AND WHITE EFFECTS; CUTE GINGHAM ROMPER SUITS

REVERSE the order of black-and-white and you have white-and-black. The mode is doing just that. White with just enough black not to destroy its daintiness is the promise of summer apparel. The vogue extends to footwear, headwear and all the accessories which go to make up a perfect ensemble.

Adorable for summer frocks are the white-with-black georgettes printed in entrancing floral patterns. These are forecasted to enjoy a tremendous vogue. If a frock should, perchance, escape being made of a white-and-black transparency of some sort or uffs are elaborately black embroidered, or later still, beaded; hats of white violets or for mid-summer, the transparent black or white wide brimmed capeline—these are all included in fashion's white-with-black program.

A modern playground, where children of the well-to-do are wont to congregate presents rather an appearance of a Lilliputian style-show, with miniature mannikins all "dolled up" in fetching frocks and rompers, with cunning socks to match and amusing little sweaters, or perhaps a protecting coatee, with possibly a hat other, it will be because the designer preferred to work out the combination by using black as a trimming on white. The accompanying illustration demonstrates how the designer has done now and then. Even their little tin pails and shovels, their jumping ropes, dolls—all everything seem selected from the standpoint of fitting into the color figure. Mother does not say any more of her child's simple play frock: "I'll just run it together in a hurry." She goes about her sewing preparedly—seeks the latest patterns, studies up on newest embroidery and applique ideas. As to choosing materials, that is the most important thing of all.

Of course with most mothers "gingham first" is the sentiment. If wise standards are on petals piled one upon another, so that when milady steps her frock expresses a very "poetry of motion." The manner in which the drapery of this dress is brought to the front in a bow tie is very enlightening as to a popular style trend. For the matron no more appropriate costume can be conceived of than this combination afternoon and dinner dress. We say "combination" advisedly for it is designed with a coat which, removed, reveals a charming after-six-o'clock gown.

An interesting interpretation of white-with-black is given in the model to the right. It is of handsome white crepe satin, an applique of black supplying the decorative note. The coat is silver gray with a blended twin beaver collar.

And the shoes, the gloves, the hats to wear with frocks such as these! Slippers of suave white kidskin, piped or appliqued with black, gloves whose as to fashion's trend these dotting mothers will make it a rule to always buy a solid color for trimming. Even the simplest rompers exploit the composite idea nowadays. The gay-patterned gingham rompers in the picture cleverly takes unto itself raglan sleeves made of a solid color, with pockets to match. It is well to remember in selecting patterns for tots' frocks and rompers that raglan sleeves are the "last word." Note, too, the touch of smocking across the front neckline of this romper model. Few coats or frocks, these days, escape the smocking vogue.

Lesson for May 15
PETER AT PENTECOST

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2.
GOLDEN TEXT—Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.—Acts 2:38.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Preaches About Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Gift of Power.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Peter at Pentecost.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Source of Spiritual Power.

1. The Day of Pentecost Fully Come (vv. 1-13).
1. Significance of the day (v. 1). Pentecost is from a Greek word meaning "fifty." It was the feast held fifty days after the wave sheaf offering (Lev. 23:16). The wave sheaf typifies the resurrection of Christ (1 Cor. 15:20-23).
2. The gift of the Holy Spirit (vv. 2-4).
On this day the Holy Spirit descended upon the disciples. From that time forth He would work on a new basis, having the crucified, risen and ascended Christ to present to the world.

3. Upon whom the Spirit came (v. 1; cf. 1:13-15).
The twelve and others, both men and women to the number of one hundred and twenty, showing that the gift of the Holy Spirit was for all believers, not merely the apostles.
4. The marks of the Spirit (vv. 2-4). These marks were external and internal.

(1) External.
(a) The sound of a mighty wind (v. 2). This is suggestive of the mysterious, pervasive and powerful energy of the Spirit.
(b) The tongues of flame (v. 3). Each of the one hundred and twenty was crowned with such a tongue. Tongues show the practical purpose of the Spirit's gift—warning.
(c) Speaking in foreign tongues (v. 4). This was a temporary endowment for a special purpose.

(2) Internal.
This is seen in the transformation wrought in the disciples. Peter, who shortly before this, covered before a Jewish maid, now with lion boldness stands before the chief rulers and declares that they had murdered their King, therefore guilty before God.
5. The effects (vv. 5-13).

(1) The multitude were filled with amazement and wonder. The gift of the Spirit transforms common men into men of power and influence.
(2) Some mocked and foolishly attempted to account for this remarkable occurrence. They accused the disciples of being intoxicated.

11. Peter's Sermon (vv. 14-47).
Peter's sermon is as wonderful as the gift of tongues. His analysis is perfect.

1. The introduction (vv. 14-21).
(1) Defense of the disciples against the charge of being drunk (v. 15). This he does by citing Jewish custom showing that they would not be drunk at such an early hour of the day.
(2) A scriptural explanation. He showed that this was a partial fulfillment of that which Joel predicted would come to pass (vv. 16-21; cf. Joel 2:28-32) before the messianic judgment, viz., an outpouring of the Holy Spirit and the salvation of all who call upon the name of the Lord.

2. The proposition, or theme (v. 36). This was the messianic of Jesus.
3. The argument (vv. 22-36). It was threefold.
(1) From Christ's works (v. 22). He was approved of God among the Jews by His miracles, wonders and signs which God did by Him in their midst with which they were familiar.
(2) From His resurrection (vv. 23-32). The Old Testament Scriptures had foretold the death and resurrection of Christ (Ps. 16:8-10). The disciples were living witnesses of Christ's resurrection for they had seen and talked with Him, and handled Him since the resurrection (v. 32).
(3) From His ascension to be on the right hand of God (v. 32). The proof that He had ascended on high was the wonderful miracle of the Spirit's operation in their midst; for He had said that upon His ascension into heaven He would send forth the Spirit.

4. The effect of the sermon (vv. 37-42).
Many people were convicted of their sins, some three thousand of whom repented and were baptized. The daily life of these believers was proof of the Spirit's gift.
(1) They continued steadfastly in the apostolic teaching (v. 42).
(2) They continued in fellowship with the apostles (v. 42).

Slowing Up?
OVERWORK, worry and lack of rest, all put extra burdens on the kidneys. When the kidneys slow up, waste poisons remain in the blood and are apt to make one languid, tired and aching, with dull headaches, dizziness and often a nagging back-ache.
A common warning of imperfect kidney action is scanty or burning secretions. Doan's Pills assist the kidneys in their eliminative work. Are endorsed by users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

My back ached constantly and I had attacks of dizziness. Doan's Pills were prompt in helping me and I shall never cease to be grateful to them."

EDITORIAL

Mr. Eggert, with the State Board of Health who has been in our city this week, investigating the sanitary and health conditions, naturally found some conditions which will have to be corrected, but as a whole he found conditions better than he anticipated, he states and added that the people evidenced a desire, and a willingness as a rule, to co-operate in perfecting and carrying out sanitary regulations, and he expressed a belief that there would be little difficulty in getting all to meet the requirements. He insists that not only those in the business section should comply, but in the residence district as well. And it is understood that the residence section will be inspected soon and a report made on the sanitary conditions.

There are many reasons why we should have a clean town. We must safeguard our health—and we appreciate cleanliness, and the Review urges that the citizenship, meet the conditions of the sanitary laws, where such has not been done, so that when the health inspector calls to investigate, he will find everything in order. The local health officers are going to be on the job and there will be a man here again soon from the State Board of Health to check up on reports turned in this week and to extend the inspection into the residence district. If you wish to know what the sanitary requirements are, get in touch with local authorities and they will be glad to furnish you that information.

COOLIDGE TO WIELD KEY

The golden telegraph key which four presidents of the United States have used to inaugurate important events throughout the Country, will be pressed by President Coolidge at the White House on May 21 as a signal for opening to traffic the new $6,000,000 bridge across Carquinez Strait, near San Francisco. The huge structure is 4,482 feet in length, rises 325 feet above mean high water and contains about 14,000 tons of steel. The telegraph wire connecting the golden key in the White House with the bridge near San Francisco will be furnished by the Western Union Telegraph Company.

Mr and Mrs. Elson and children of Dallas were visiting last week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A J Gensley.

ATHLETIC CLUB

Billie Dixon, physical culture director, has formed an athletic club here, and he states that much interest is being shown, and a large membership has already been enrolled. No smoking drinking or profane language is permitted in the training quarters. That's good. Healthy, active bodies don't thrive on smoke and drink, as dosed out these days. Dixon is enlarging his club room and adding more features to it.

PIONEER NEWS

I. N. Carey, and Mr. and Mrs. V C Carey of Pioneer, motored to Blanket last week and joined Mr. and Mrs. Ben Nix, D. W. Robinson and W. J. Lacops in a fishing party on Clear Creek. They report they caught lots of fish.

GOOD BALL GAME

Cottonwood's fast ball team defeated the Cross Cut team again Sunday, by score of 9 to 6, but it was a good game and was played before a large and enthusiastic crowd.

"SOMEBODY BLUNDERED" WHEN THEY BURIED DANIEL BOONE?

Where is Daniel Boone buried? Kentuckians believe that the great Pioneer sleeps beneath the blue grass of their State. But Missourians will tell you a different story. They say "somebody blundered" when the bodies of Boone and his wife were supposed to have been removed away back in 1845 and that Boone still lies in Missouri soil. Recent disclosures in regard to this indicate that the Missourians may be right.

So it looks as though there's a new one added to the roll of "mysteries of history." You'll be interested in the article "Where is Daniel Boone Buried" written by Elmo Scott Watson, which appears in this issue of the Review.

Read the evidence which it presents and see how you would answer the question in that title.
