HOME TOWN GOSSIP

The newspaper has never been printed that failed to make a mistake. But since country weeklies have for years been the victim of the most glaring errors, we can not pass the opportunity to call attention to a "most conspicuous shortcoming", on the part of a contemporary daily, which occurred this week.

The Brownwood Bulletin, Brown county's great metropolitan daily, it is July 15 issue printed incorrectly the publication's name. The paper has borne the title "Brownwood Bulletin" for nearly 40 years but Monday the printers transposed the heading thusly; "Bulletin Brownwood."

It is this columnist's opinion that the dailies make just as many errors as the weeklies but they are more frequently overlooked due to the fact that they are not read as closely.

In looking over a 1910 issue of the Review handed this department by Carl Klutts, the following advertisement was found this week: "What is the use of paying 15 cents for a skinning when you can get an up to date shave for 10 cents, W. J. Cross."

J. T. Hammett, this locality's bid for golf prominence, has been invited to participate in the team play at San Angelo country club's invitation golf tournament July 24. Only the ranking players of West Texas are invited to compete in this event.

The fact that J. T. has been chosen arguments the fact that he is one of the most outstanding Texas amateurs in the game today.

And speaking of golf, we beg your indulgence while results of a match between Jim Settle and W. S. Ramsey versus F. R. Anderson and this scribe are told.

Ramsey and Settle challenged the auto and paper men Tuesday afternoon. Needless to say they were decisively trimmed. Their ego not completely deflated, the cleaner and usury collector repeated the challenge the following day and were again squelched.

We only mention this to keep you aright when Ramsey and Settle come heralding their superiority.

Being a grocerymen, hatchery owner, bank director and citizen of note, Porter J. Davis' versatility has been sectionally acclaimed. But this week he entered a new field; that of pinch hitting for Dan Cupid, the god of love.

Porter's car became a honeymoon conveyance. The groom was apparently so enraptured in the entanglements of his mate's affections, that little reluctance was shown in "making off" with the prominent Cross Plains citizen's automobile.

Friends were jesting Porter more than a little about the incident Saturday and believe it or not, he seemed to enjoy it.

From Fort Worth comes a poem written by Norris Chambers, our former Cross Cut correspondent, who is attending a business college.

The poem, dedicated to Juanita, literally drips with affection. Our guess is that Norris has either fallen for some girl by that name in Fort Worth or left one behind to pursue his schooling.

Other cities have been having their insect battles, mostly of which black widow spiders were pitted with others of their kind, grass hoppers, ants, wasps, dirt daubers and of cetera, But this week this columnist staged a battle of this type for Cross Plains.

A prize black widow, which had-

Freak Windstorm Hits Here Late Friday

PROPERTY DAMAGE SEVERAL HUNDRED DOLLARS IN CITY

A freak windstorm which swept down on Cross Plains from the East shortly after five o'clock Friday afternoon, unroofed buildings, broke windows, snapped trees and demolished several outbuildings. The twister followed a wake of excessive heat in which temperature was recorded at 103 degrees. It was accompanied by a deluge of rain which lasted more than 20 minutes and netted nearly a half inch of moisture.

The S. R. Jackson home in the West part of town suffered a damage to the roof and the garage top was also partially demolished.

A large plate glass window in the Sims Drug Company and another of virtually equal size in the Citizens State Bank were broken. The Ed Bush residence in the Northwest part of town sustained damage to the porches.

A large overground cistern was blown to the top of the garage at the J. P. Smith place. The tank ricocheted off and struck Dave Lee's car, which was parked on the lawn.

Roof damage was also done at the O. M. Causey, next door to the Smith residence. J. L. Settle fence, just South of Smith's—was demolished.

Calhoun Motor Company on North Main Street had the entire roof in the back of the building blown in.

Trees were snapped in all portions of town. Numbers of unusual accounts as to the freakness of the breeze are also being recounted.

No one was injured. The damage done was estimated at several hundred dollars.

MRS. ADAMS HURT WRINGING CLOTHES

Mrs. W. C. Adams was painfully hurt Tuesday morning when her hair was caught in the wringer of a washing machine.

She had just a few minutes before washed her hair and was admitting it to hang down while wringing. Mrs. Bill Davidson, Mrs. Adam's daughter, was washing clothes at her mother's place and had stepped out for a moment. Mrs. Adams decided to finish while her daughter was away. She turned her back to the wringer momentarily and in some manner her hair was caught. She was seriously bruised about the head and a large quantity of hair was pulled out. One of her fingers was also lacerated. Her neck was also slightly wrenched.

The attending physician did not regard her condition as critical, however, yesterday morning.

PHILPECO GOLFERS TAKE LIONS SHARE OF COLEMAN PRIZES

Philpeco country club golfers were prominent among the prize recipients at the Coleman annual invitation tournament the past week end. Six players registered from the local links and three of them claimed four of the tourney awards.

J. T. Hammett, Philpeco ace, was medalist in the tournament. After losing his first round match to Oscar Cheney, of Santa Anna, he entered the championship consolation and breezed through victoriously. A gold watch was the award for medal honors and a pair of golf shoes was the consolation prize for the championship flight.

Johnnie Gregg, Philpeco's wood shot artist, won the driving contest at Coleman, with three balls down the middle for a total of 781 yards.

W. F. Burris was the third Philpeco to share in the prize gathering. He won the first flight consolation after losing in the initial round to his fellow townsman Bill Wright.

Others from the local club who played in the Coleman tourney were: Porter J. Davis, who lost his first match to Bob Sikes, of Eastland, who came through for the championship; W. A. Wright and E. J. Hughes. Byron Wright, of DeLeon but formerly of the local club, was also entered.

Man Who Stole Automobile For Honeymoon With Burkett Girl Arrested In Enid, Oklahoma

Enid officers became suspicious of the car when it was noted the license numbers were bent and discolored as camouflage. The fact that the wheels, originally yellow, had been recently painted black augmented their suspicion. When arrested and questioned, the girls are said to have told the entire story. They also revealed that two spare tires and a wheel had been sold along the route.

Deputy Sheriff Nurdyke in returning the car collected the stolen property and when arrived here Monday night it was in virtually as good condition as before, save for the difference in the color of the wheels and about 1,000 miles recorded on the speedometer.

FARMER WHO HAS SPENT 42 YEARS ON SOIL IS ADVERTISING BOOSTER

No better advocate of the merits of advertising is to be found than J. H. Rone, who has farmed in the Dressy community 42 years.

Last year Mr. Rone had a large crop of Elberta peaches. He was repeatedly told that there were so many peaches in the country he would be unable to sell half his crop. Mr. Rone came to town and inserted an inserted advertisement in the Review which read: "For Sale: Nice Elberta Peaches, $1.00 bushel at orchard."

He sold the entire crop and still the people came.

Proving he's a strong believer in advertising Mr. Rone came in to the Review office again this week and inserted an ad. for this year's crop of peaches. He used the exact wording as last year, for luck.

LOCAL GOLFERS TO MEET SANTA ANNA SUNDAY AFTERNOON

The league leading Philpeco country club golfers will complete their Heart o' Texas Golf Association schedule on the local links Sunday afternoon with Santa Anna.

The Philpecos defeated Santa Anna on the latter's home course earlier in the season and is therefore expected to breeze through Sunday's engagement with no undue difficulty. Should the locals take the match, they will definitely clinch the 1935 flag for this association and will be entitled to meet the winner of the Oil Belt Golf Association in a play off match, to be arranged by the two champions.

ACCIDENTAL SHOT FROM OWN GUN IS CAUSE OF DEATH

Dr. Roy E. Longbotham, 47, was accidentally killed at his home here shortly after nine o'clock Tuesday morning when a pistol he was removing from his automobile discharged, sending a bullet through his stomach and upward into the heart. Death was almost instantaneous.

Dr. Longbotham had just returned from a drive to the Elbert Pierce farm, three miles North of town. He was a proficient marksman and a gun enthusiast and had taken the pistols with the hope of shooting a rabbit along the way. Returning home he parked the car in the garage and did not remove the weapons. A few minutes later his 16 year old daughter Mary Ruth backed the car out and was preparing to drive to town, when he went out to get the pistols to take them into the house. A .38 calibre automatic discharged through the scabbard as he lifted it, sending the bullet into his abdomen. It took an upward course striking either the heart or one of the major blood vessels, according to Dr. I. M. Howard, who examined the body.

Eye witnesses to the tragedy were both of the doctor's children, Mary Ruth, 16, and Roy, Jr., 12. Mrs. Longbotham was in the house but heard her husband's scream and rushed outside before he died.

Dr. Longbotham and his wife—Dr. Maude Longbotham—are both graduate chiropractors from the Carver school. They have resided here a number of years.

Justice of the Peace Drew Hill rendered a verdict of accidental death from gunshot.

Funeral services were conducted from the Baptist church Wednesday morning with Dr. C. A. Voyles, pastor, officiating, assisted by the Rev. W. A. Ashford of Abilene. Interment was made in the Cross Plains cemetery.

Friends crowded the church beyond capacity at the funeral service. Cross Plains business houses closed their doors during the rites.

Pall bearers were: Willis Brown, Elbert Pierce, A. O. Harris, M. F. Dill, B. B. Huntington and Alfred Dallas, of Baird. Honorary pall bearers were: Earl Montgomery, Tom Bryant, Roy Cowan, Loyd and Olan Montgomery and M. R. Fredeck, of Abilene.

New Cotton Rulings

At a meeting of Assistants in Cotton Adjustments and the County agents at Eastland Tuesday July 16th, many new rulings designed to speed up the issuance of exemption certificates and also means of finishing 1935 compliance were given. The meeting was called to order by T. E. Wood, District Agent No. 3.

Some of the highlights of the meeting include new method of disposing of surplus certificates this fall. They will be sold only through the office of the county agent and before the eyes of the Adjustment Assistant. The certificates will be sold at 5 cents per pound and the Assistant must see the money, checks, or bonds paid before surrendering the certificates. No bartering will be allowed by the government. The certificates will not be transferred but new ones will be issued in the place of the old ones.

Persons who have a certain base acreage established by the past cotton history will receive certificates on about 65% of that acreage provide they plant 40% of same this year before it is measured by the supervisor. Those who plant less than 40% will be given certificates on the actual number of acres planted at a yield of one and one-half their adjusted yield as certified by the county committee.

Persons who have planted no cotton this year will not receive bale exemptions even though they have a base.

It is not permitted to transfer the base of one contract to another, that is each contract is only allowed its assigned quota. Producers can not have one farm under contract and farm other land under a non-participating contract, with out violating the voluntary contract.

Exemption certificates are expected far in advance of any ginning needs this year. Callahan has a notice today that all her contracts are in at the State Review Board and will be ready for issuance as soon as the counties in South Texas have been given theirs, since cotton is open there now.

Court Rulings

Some people are deeply concerned when the papers announce that certain of the New Deal legislation is found to be unconstitutional. Such has been going on every since the Congress began enacting laws but at this time it concerns the farmers and therefore, the future of the farm programs. Not long ago one of the courts upheld the provisions of the processing tax, another court disagreed in a decision of 2 to 1. That will enable the government to get the case brought before the Supreme Court probably by Christmas. The government wants to know definitely if the processing taxes are to stand up or shall some other plan be advanced to pay the farmers benefit checks, as the Congress is agreed that the farmers are going to be given Federal Aid in the control of crops. Bankhead votes of 9 to 1, Corn-Hog votes of 7 to 1, tobacco votes of 20 to 1, wheat votes 8 to 1; all go to show the congress that the farmers are awake to their needs and will be demanding equal protection that has been given the manufacturing interest.

All benefit checks are from contracts with the government and will be paid regardless of whether from the processing tax, an inheritance tax, or from a direct appropriation from the government. Just now 11 benefit checks are paid from the processing tax.

The Senate has just agreed to continue the Bankhead law for another year and that the AAA will go along side by side. There are errors that will necessarily be ironed out but the AAA is accepted by all parties as one of the best laws ever to be made for the farmer. Naturally it has opposition from the cotton handlers, what handlers, and the packers as each separate group derives profit from large and cheap supplies of the farmers law materials. But farmers are not going to be hoodwinked by such poppycock as loss of foreign markets and an increase of unemployment when foreign markets will pay but 5 cents for cotton, 25 cents for wheat, and 3 1/2 cents for pork not to mention 20 cent corn and 8 cent oats. They instead ask the question if such prices didn't become real before the government started to control crops and thereby raise the price to where it is now. Farmers won't soon forget the lessons learned in 1932, when prosperity was just around the corner. It was around the corner but it took the wise leadership of Roosevelt and a determined and inspired congress to with stand the assaults of the mighty moneyed interested to turn the corner. Now that the farmers have slipped back stage and have found out some of the secrets of the dressing room, they want to see more and wise observers say they are to get more and more attention from now on as they have proven to themselves that they can profit from cooperating with one another and with the government.

Amendments Explained

Editor's Note: This is the first of series of articles written especially to acquaint voters with the contents of the seven proposed constitutional amendments to be voted on August 24. Other articles, dealing with other amendments will appear in the Review next week.

The first proposition to be found on the ballot in the August 24th Special Election on Constitutional Amendments is the so-called Old-Age Pension Amendment. This year, for the first time, the amendments will be numbered, according to Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann.

The Old Age Pension Amendment proposes to give the Legislature the authority to pay these pensions to persons over the age of 65, who are not habitual drunkards nor habitual criminals, nor inmates of any State Supported institution. Those who are eligible must have lived in Texas at least 5 years, during the nine immediately preceding application and in the State continuously for one year.

All other restrictions and limitations would have to be set up by the Legislature.

The Amendment authorizes the Legislature to accept money from the Federal government for the same purpose. It is presumed that Federal funds would match State funds. The maximum amount to be paid by the State would be $15 per person per month. It is presumed that the Federal government would match State Funds. The total pension per person per month in this case it is presumed would be $30. The amounts might be smaller, however; but not larger.

It is estimated that the cost of this pension to the State would run between forty and fifty million dollars annually. No provision is made for the income. It would be up to the Legislature to determine where the money came from. The Legislature would have to enact such laws as it deemed proper to utilize the right granted by the amendment. The Legislature might do this at once, or some time later—or for that matter not at all. The amendment is permissive and not mandatory, though few doubt that some form of old age pensions would be enacted if the amendment is adopted in August.

Proposition No. 2 on the August 24th special election ballot has to do with the temporary commitment of insane persons, preliminary to a trial by jury. Under the present Constitution whereby everyone is guaranteed a jury trial, it is impossible to commit a mentally ill person to an institution for treatment or observation without the necessity of a jury trial. It has been pointed out that this is often very inconvenient and embarrassing.

The proposal, according to Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann, if passed, would authorize the Legislature to pass such laws as would permit mentally ill persons to be confined by County Courts in institutions, presumably, or under the care of physicians or experts for a period of ninety days prior to a jury trial. It is presumed that the ninety day period of confinement would be for the purpose of observing such person.

The provisions would apply only to persons not charged with a criminal.

The Amendment specifically sets out that the right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate, but that in the particular case of insane persons a confinement period of ninety days for observation may be prescribed without the necessity of a jury trial. At the end of that time a jury trial would be had.

The War Clouds Gather

The war clouds are gathering thickly over Europe, Asia and Africa. All of the efforts in behalf of peace on the part of nations who have already got a satisfactory slice of Mother Earth seem to have no effect upon the nations which are bent upon grabbing off more territory for themselves.

Japan continues its incursions into Chinese territory. Germany is speeding up its rearmament plans. Italy seems determined to make its invasions of Africa as vigorous as any of the campaigns of the old Roman Empire.

England has signally failed as a peace-maker. Mussolini has spurned the British advances, and practically defied the English to do anything about his attempt to seize Abyssinia. By her efforts to bring about a peaceful understanding with Germany, Great Britain seems have reopened the scars of the ancient enmity of France. Russia's protests against Japan's activities on the continent of Asia go unheeded.

All the instrumentalities set up to insure world peace seem to have failed. The League of Nations seems to be letting Ethiopia, one of its members, go to its doom without more than a feeble protest. The famous Kellogg Pact, America's scheme for insuring world peace, turns out to be just another scrap of paper. When the Emperor of Abyssinia applied to our Government to take some action under that Pact, the only reply he got was a pious hope that the League of Nations might do something about it.

We hope that when the world-wide conflagration, which seems to be impending, gets under way, we may be more successful in keeping our country out of it. In it or not, we are bound to feel the effects of any important war.

If about 25,000,000 people would go off in a corner and die, the capitalistic system could go on for a while—Up-ton Sinclair.

We Are Drinking Less

The population of the United States is 26 million more persons in 1935 than it was in 1917. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1917, the people of the United States consumed 85,248,000 gallons of whiskey. In the fiscal year just ended, a population more than one-fifth larger drank a third less whiskey—only 55,500,000 gallons.

The Government's Internal Revenue statistics, from which those figures are taken, tell a similar story in regard to beer and wine. We drank, the 26 million more of us, 322 million fewer gallons of beer, as compared with 18 years ago, and 15 million fewer gallons of wine.

We have no comment to make at this time on the moral aspects of the repeal of the Prohibition amendment and the laws enacted under it, but we do think it pertinent to point out the disproof of the oft-heard assertion that the habit of drinking intoxicating liquors was greatly increased under Prohibition. If that were true, then certainly the volume of alcoholic drinks consumed now, by a much larger population, would not show a decline, but an increase.

There probably is a considerable volume of bootleg liquor still being peddled. That would not show, of course, in the Government's revenue tax figures. But it is hardly likely that such illicit traffic can be large enough to account for the wide gap between the figures of 1917 and those of the first full fiscal year since Repeal, the year just ended.

The plain fact seems to us to be that the American people are doing less drinking than they used to do. Moreover, we believe that the use of alcohol will continue to decline, as the younger generation begins to discover for itself that booze and motoring, liquor athletics, don't mix.

Nostalgia Unhappiness

The country got a laugh out of yesterday's story concerning the young CCC worker who had been sent to his North Carolina home because he was suffering from an "acute attack of nostalgia."

The boy's mother, so the story went, filed claim against the corps alleging that before joining up her boy had never suffered from such a disease as nostalgia.

It is all very well to laugh, but the old lady wasn't as ignorant as she seemed. Nostalgia is a disease, recognized as such in medicine. It is plain and fancy homesickness, and it leads in certain cases to a melancholia which ends in death.

Anyone who has suffered nostalgia can testify that it runs neuralgia, colic, ingrown toenails, indigestion, rheumatism and other assorted diseases a close second for painfulness. Homesickness, whether suffered by the child spending its first night away from its mother, or the mother, or the middle-aged wanderer overtaken far from home, is nothing to be taken lightly. It calls for intelligent and immediate treatment. A few kind words will work wonders with the sufferer. Most unhappiness is brought on by longing for something we haven't got —(Abilene Morning News.)

More divorces and more unhappy homes are caused by women who talk too much than by any other thing. —Charles Claypool, Seattle justice of the peace.

Sunday School Lesson

DAVID Lesson for July 21st. 1 Samuel 26:5-12. Golden Text: Phil. 2:4.

We are impressed by the extraordinary versatility of David. "In his own person," writes Wm. Lyon Phelps, "he represents the athlete the shepherd the poet, the musician, the mystic, the man-of-war, the father, the friend and the statesman."

David is perhaps best known as the resourceful, courageous athlete who dramatically defeated Goliath the heavy weight champion of the Philistines. This famous tale vindicates the value of long training. The young lad had become so skillful with the sling, through incessant practice, that he was able to fell the giant with but a single shot. The story also illustrates the peril of pride. The bully Goliath was a magnificent embodiment of this distressing vice. We also observe here the truth that great results follow from small forces. David's five stones represent the insignificant but vital weapons placed by God in faithful hands to slay the giants of evil. But the finest lesson of this historic combat is the priceless value of self-reliance. "Trust thyself," wrote Emerson, "every heart vibrates to that iron string."

The friendship of David for Jonathan, the crown prince, his rival for the throne, is exceedingly beautiful. Both men exhibited a fidelity, a loyalty, a devotion beyond all praise.

It is pleasant to recall David's gracious kindness to Mephibosheth, Jonathan's son, who had been crippled for life by the carelessness of his nurse. When called before the king the lame young man appeared with fear. But his anxiety was soon dissipated when he learned that he would receive back his property, and that David would care for him for life by making him a perpetual guest at the royal table. Here we see the humanity of David at its best.

The Story of the Constitution by CALEB JOHNSON.

THIRTEEN FREE AND INDEPENDENT NATIONS

WHEN we start to study anything, we must begin at the beginning. The Constitution of the United States begins with a Preamble. A Preamble is intended to explain the purpose of what follows. The Preamble to our Constitution does that in 52 words.

"We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this CONSTITUTION for the United States of America."

That explains what the Constitution was expected to do. It does not, however, explain why it was necessary to draw up a Constitution, eleven years after the English Colonies of America had declared their independence of Great Britain. The Declaration of Independence was signed in 1776. The Constitution was adopted in 1787. Before we can understand the why of the Constitution, we must understand what kind of a government we had in America before there was any Constitution.

The very first phrase of the Constitution raises questions. "We, the people of the United States." How were the States united before there was any Constitution? What had kept them together throughout the War of the Revolution? What had held them together after the Revolution and before they adopted the Constitution? For, as they expressly stated in the Declaration of Independence, they were not only free states but independent states.

For that matter, what did they mean by the word "states," in the Declaration of Independence and in the Constitution itself? When the Founding Fathers of the Republic said "state" they meant exactly what we mean today when we say "nation." In the 18th century the word "nation" was seldom used; the word "state" was always understood as meaning a nation. The Declaration of Independence, after declaring that "these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States," continues: "and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is, and ought to be, dissolved." "United States," then, meant "United Nations. Thirteen independent nations, seeking to free themselves from the domination of another nation, fought the War of the Revolution. They called their union a "Confederation of States." Exactly the same meaning would have been conveyed if they had called it a "League of Nations."

In the beginning, this union of independent states was nothing more than a mutual alliance to carry on the war. It was almost exactly the same sort of a "union" as that between the allied but independent nations of Europe, for the conduct of the World War from 1914 to 1919. The American States had the common background of having all been subject to the utmost their leaders had in mind in the way of a union, at the beginning of the Revolution, was an alliance of independent nations in what they explicitly termed a "League of Friendship."

The DIVORCE COURT MURDER

By MILTON ROBERTSON

Sixth Instalment

SYNOPSIS—Six persons are in an inner office of the law firm of Dawson, McQuire and Locke at Philadelphia. A master hearing in the divorce case of Rowland vs. Rowland is under way. Mrs. Rowland, represented by her lawyer brother, Mr. Willard; Mr. Rowland, the defendant, and his attorney, Mr. Trumbull; the court clerk and Mr. Dawson, the master, are the six persons. There is a new development in the case. After failing to defend himself against the charge of adultery in earlier hearings, Mr. Rowland digs up evidence and asks the court's permission to produce witnesses and resist the suit. Judge Dawson overrules the heated objections of Mr. Willard, and orders Mr. Trumbull to bring in the first witness. Mr. Trumbull has just gone to an outer office to bring the witness.

NOW, GO ON WITH THE STORY

"If Hugh Campbell is involved in this at all he'll be too clever to do anything so conspicuous or suspicious. In fact, he'll probably come forward as soon as he learns Headquarters wants him." He paused. "Phone the Bureau, Jenks and tell Gordon to inquire for him at all the best hotels in town. If he's staying in Philly and isn't with friends, he'll check in only at the finest."

He deliberated a moment and then finished his instructions.

"Besides, he has connections here, through which he might be traced. Let's see—there's Gussie Morton at the Morton Club and Nick Alberti, manager of the Orquand Club on South Broad Street. Tell Gordon to visit them for a chat."

Jenks made a note of the address mentioned, and his superior continued:

"Now, what else have you learned from the office force? Who visited the firm during the afternoon?"

He nodded toward the chairs lined against the wall beyond the rail, where a man and woman waited whom Rankin had barely noticed on his arrival. They sat apart, the woman demure and chic in a gray dress that revealed an attractive figure; about twenty-three years old, she was physically small, with petite features, pretty in an unobtrusive manner.

The man was as large as she was small. Close upon fifty years, he was tall and broad-shouldered. His eyes were dull and unimaginative and altogether he radiated ponderous energy, without alertness or sagacity.

Studying them each in turn, Rankin asked his colleague: "For whom were they witnesses, Jenks? Who are they and what do they know about the case?"

"The girls' name is Jill Edmond—Miss Jill Edmond," Jenks replied. "Earlier, I understand, she worked as Mrs. Rowland's secretary last December and January."

"Worked is right, but not any longer," Rankin commented with a smile. "Because she happens to be his correspondent—the woman with whom he had the affair that caused his wife to sue for a divorce."

It was the other's turn to smile—knowingly, with a slightly lascivious smirk.

With regard to the order of entrances and exits that afternoon, Jenks fully corroborated Rankin's own inquiries. His time-table, together with some notes and observations, read as follows:

2:20—Mrs. Rowland and Mr. Willard arrive and enter library.

2:25—Mr. Trumbull arrives, waits in outer office.

2:30—Allen Rowland and Mrs. Keith arrive, and with Mr. Trumbull, pass into library.

2:35—Jill Edmond arrives and waits in outer office.

2:38—Hugh Campbell arrives and waits in outer office.

2:38 (about)—Allen Rowland leaves Mrs. Keith in 1505, and rejoins Mr. Trumbull.

2:39—Mrs. Rowland joins Campbell, has brief conversation (find out what about.)

2:40—Allen Rowland and Mr. Trumbull leave suite through main office, Rowland to dismiss chauffeur. Mrs. Rowland returns to library.

2:41 (about)—Mrs. Rowland leaves suite through main office, and Mr. Trumbull returns to phone his office.

2:45 (about)—Allen Rowland returns to 1507, and retires with Mr. Trumbull to Mr. Dawson's office. (Check the time with Mrs. Keith's chauffeur, Alvin.)

2:49 (about)—Mrs. Rowland returns, speaks to Campbell and rejoins brother in library.

2:51 (about)—Hugh Campbell leaves suite by central door for a minute and returns.

2:56—Hugh Campbell receives phone call and hurries off without explanation.

2:57—Mr. Henry Dawson arrives, and enters his office.

3:00—Mr. Simpkins, court clerk, arrives, also enters Mr. Dawson's office. The hearing begins.

"And that about covers the ground, Tommy," Jenks concluded his summary, of this data.

He turned away from Jenks and rejoined the group waiting in the library.

"Mr. Simpkins," he addressed the clerk, "I'd like to see your notes of the evidence presented at the hearings. Your typed record. Have you got it with you?"

The clerk produced a large loose-leaf notebook from a voluminous pocket.

"With pleasure, Mr. Rankin," he responded. "Here you have it complete."

Rankin took the book from him, and excusing himself, retired into Mr. Dawson's office. There he closed the door and spread the notes on the lawyer's table for study. Although on the surface the details of Allen Rowland's dalliance with Jill Edmond appeared to have no direct bearing on the tragedy, he would not neglect the circumstances which it helped to bring about.

The preliminary testimony established Mrs. Rowland's right to sue for separation in Pennsylvania. She had resided at her estate in Parkway Road, Germantown, continuously except for her vacations. Allen Rowland had also lived there until she discovered his infidelity. Then he went into bachelor apartments he had already evidently been occupying, in West Philadelphia.

The marriage certificate was offered in evidence. She had met him four and a half years before, while wintering in Miami. As a life-guard at the beach, he had performed for her some service, not clearly detailed which first brought them together. Before that he had led a wandering, adventurous life—a cowhand in Texas, a movie extra in Hollywood, a riding master in Chicago. They were married by an Episcopal clergyman at Fort Landerdale, on December 28, 1928.

Jill Edmond, of course, was the bone of the fatal contention between Adele and Allen Rowland. A month before the past New Year, Mrs. Rowland had advertised for a secretary in the columns of several newspapers. The ad required a young and personable girl of more than average intelligence and ability. It would be her duty to attend to her employers' correspondence, manage her social engagements and in general serve as a companion. Of all the applicants Miss Edmond, petite and neatly dressed, alert, clever and willing had appeared most suitable for the post.

Mrs. Rowland first had reason to suspect the girl's relations with her husband less than three weeks later. She had remained at home from a bridge party on the 23rd of the same month, because of a headache; but she retired without informing Miss Edmond of her indisposition. Descending unexpectedly from her room at four o'clock, she found her in the library, ostensibly writing letters at her desk, while Allen Rowland bent over her his arm around her shoulder. Their nonchalant air in attempting to carry off the embarrassing situation did not deceive her.

Confronted by this discovery, Adele Rowland consulted her brother, who arranged to hire detectives to watch the couple. Both parties were to be trailed every moment wherever they went, whether separately or not.

There followed in the notes, a resume by the detectives of their movements in watching the subjects of their vigilance. On the Thursday afternoon after they began work, young Rowland kept a rendezvous with the secretary at a park in Germantown and took her to supper in town. Two days later they trailed Rowland alone to the Westview Apartments in West Philadelphia. Investigation revealed that for eight months he had an establishment there under the name of Seymour King.

The crisis occurred on a Wednesday, February 1st, the girls next holiday. At four o'clock that afternoon, so Mrs. Rowland related in her testimony, she accidentally noticed a scrap of paper in her husband's writing in the secretary's library wastebasket. Evidently he realized at last that they were suspected and employed this indirect method of communicating with her. In the note, he made an appointment to meet her that very evening at nine o'clock. Therefore, when the girl during supper, specially requested to be excused from duty that night, her employer granted the favor. Rowland was not at the table nor had he been at home that afternoon.

Is the meantime, Mrs. Rowland telephoned the detective and apprised him of her knowledge. Then they called Mr. Willard and prepared plans for trapping the faithless couple.

So it was that when Allen Rowland reached the rendezvous that Wednesday night, his wife, Mr. Willard and the detective were already hidden there; they watched unseen from the lawyer's car. Rowland drove up alone in a coupe on the hour, and his paramour joined him. They followed him beyond the city limits along the Bethlehem Pike as far as Quakertown. Forty-five miles from Philadelphia, Rowland turned off the main highway to reach the fashionable and expensive, Sunset Inn, which, however, like many such roadhouses, possessed a questionable reputation. It was 10:30 when he arrived with his companion. As they went inside, the pursuers, careful lest their quarry observe them, halted a hundred yards from the building.

For some time they waited patiently. In ten minutes a new light illumined one of the second floor rooms and Allen Rowland appeared at the window and lowered the shade. At 11:15 the three trailers entered.

The chamber the husband and his companion occupied was number 212 on the second floor. (Here, the hotel book was placed on the record to prove Allen Rowland's registration for both of them as husband and wife. In his handwriting was the entry for Mr. and Mrs. King of Allentown, Pennsylvania.) Without warning, Mr. Willard knocked on the door; and when it opened, it revealed a scene that could hardly be more compromising. The guilty man stood in the doorway, chagrined and astonished, in colored pajamas, a robe and slippers, while Jill Edmond paled and breathless, sat on the bed in negligee.

It was at this precise juncture that Mr. Mortimer Keith stalked angrily into the Inn bedroom, took in the situation with a hurried glance and, offering no explanation departed as abruptly as he had arrived.

When Rankin reached this amazing statement in the record, he sat back with a jerk, audibly expressing his bewilderment. It came from the private detective, volunteered casually in his complete description of what occurred in Room 212 after the invasion.

MARGARET SULLAVAN ACTS FAIRY TALE FOR ORPHANS IN "THE GOOD FAIRY"

Intimate glimpses of a great orphanage form a part of the earlier sequences of "The Good Fairy," the the Universal comedy which shows Sunday at the Liberty Theater with Margaret Sullivan and Herbert Marshall in the starring roles.

Miss Sullivan herself is an inmate of this institution, a photographically correct reproduction of the Municipal Orphanage for girls in Budapest, Hungary, and with a large number of her companions is seen at work in the kitchen of the refuge.

Here, "acting out" a fairy tale for the benefit of a group of the younger girls gathered about her, Margaret loses her hold on a swinging light and crashes to the floor coincidentally with the entrance of Benlah Bondi, the superintendent, and Alan Hale, a theatrical impressario come to select an usherette for his theatre.

Margaret is chosen for the position, and thus begins a series of highly dramatic adventures which befall a young girl entirely unaccustomed to the world and its pitfalls.

More than 100 young girls were engaged for these scenes, which also show departments in which are taught sewing, wood-working and other useful arts.

Mrs. A. J. Mathis has returned home after a two month visit in Alabama, Georgia and Florida. Miss Elsie Smith of Ashland, Alabama, came back with her and will probably visit here some time.

Political Conference Now Order of the Day

CLEVELAND—G.O.P.

OMAHA—Farmer-Labor

CHICAGO—"Third Party"

P.A.S.

CHICAGO—That the 1936 national political campaign gives promise of much action is being indicated these days in the staging of varied political conferences throughout the middle-west. At Omaha, Roy M. Harrop, chairman, called a Farmer Labor convention to order. At Cleveland, State Senator George H. Bender, opened the Republican Crusaders Conference which caused considerable comment in G.O.P. circles. And here at Chicago, Alfred Bingham, left, national secretary, and Paul H. Douglas, right Chicago U. professor and permanent chairman called a "Third Party" meeting to order.

LOCAL CHEVROLET FORCE CELEBRATES PRICE REDUCTIONS

F. R. Anderson, of Anderson Chevrolet Company and his entire organization are celebrating new low delivered prices on the Standard Chevrolet and the Master DeLuxe Chevrolet.

Mr. Anderson said that the dealers in this area known as the Dallas Zone are featuring new low delivered prices to the public.

The manner in which these prices are advertised are very simple. The prices which you see advertised are the prices at which you can buy Chevrolets delivered at your door.

This Mr. Anderson states ties, in with the Chevrolet Motor Company's policy of giving its customers every advantages possible in the purchase of their merchandise.

"These new delivered prices not only bring Chevrolet into the low price bracket, but makes the Standard Chevrolet the lowest priced car in the Low Price Field," Mr. Anderson stated.
