SCHOOLS ARE OPENING OVER AREA

HOME TOWN GOSSIP

There are no nudist colonies near Cross Plains. Passersby, however, might have opined that there were last week if they chanced to see David Henkel running about in the "ray"

David, so we are told, was sleeping in the yard when an early morning shower disturbed his slumber. Jumping out of bed—still half asleep—he began to grab bed clothing to carry it to shelter, not aware that the sun was shining high and that his attire consisted of only the proverbial "birthday suit."

Well, Lewis T. Nordyke, our contemporary journalist who hails from Cottonwood, must have made the return trip to Hymen's alter without mishap. We have heard no reports to the contrary. Hence, Congratulations to the groom and understanding condolence to the former Miss Dorothy Beeman.

Flash, crash, splash! Shortly before this column is handed the printer comes news that Miss Leila Mae Bennett, formerly of this place and one fine society recorder for the Review, is now a married woman. She became the bride of an East Texas oil man at Big Spring, Saturday.

Here's luck and best wishes Leila Mae. And some winter evening when the conversation drags tell your lucky mate about the time you folded papers all night to help the Review staff get out a special edition of the attempted assassination of Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

O. T. Laws has for years been a benefactor of this columnist. From time to time he drops in with a friendly remembrance—basket of strawberries, a big red rose, a bunch of fresh vegetables or something nice.

Tuesday afternoon dashing in out of the rain we found a big assortment of Concord grapes heaped by the typewriter. One taste of the lusciousness and we knew friend Laws had called.

Rainy day recordings: Ed Morgan has not failed to attend the opening of school exercises here in years. Did you know T. E. Baum was once a barber? George R. Neel like Abraham Lincoln once worked on a rail road section gang. Missed about the city's coffee counters is Dr. John Kuzaph who is confined to his home. Paul V. Harrell finally getting an oil well is a well deserved "break".

There has been much discussion as to when 3.2 beer will become illegal in Cross Plains. The time is 30 days after election returns are officially canvassed by the Commissioners Court. That will be midnight, Sunday, September 29.

For many long months the phraser of these paragraphs has been advocating the installing of lights at the Cross Plains high school football field.

Night games would not only give business men a chance to attend every game but would doubtless attract fans from neighboring towns, who are unable to drop work in the middle of the day to witness a football spectacle. Aside from the increased attendance, night play would be welcomed by players, due to the fact that weather is more agreeable and ordinarily high winds subside in West Texas after sundown.

New Well Booms Local Oil Interest

MAKING 20 BARRELS DAILY; 3 MORE ARE BEING CONSIDERED

A well that is expected to open a new pool was brought in early Sunday morning on the Armstrong tract, eight miles Southeast of here. The pay was struck at 1,405 feet—Cross Cut sand. Production has been estimated at 20 barrels per day.

The well is owned by R. M. Ragsdale etal and was drilled by Marion Harvey on a contract basis. Mr. Harvey and C. C. Neeb have under lease the Dickens tract which offsets the well to the Southwest. They are making plans for a test on their property to begin within the immediate future.

Paul V. Harrell, who has a fourth interest in the producer with Mr. Ragsdale and East Texas parties, informed the Review that well informed oil men believed that the recent discovery would result in the opening of a new pool.

The well—eight miles Southeast of here—is reached by driving Southward from the Pioneer cemetery four miles. It is located near the Cross Cut—Pioneer road.

Test At Cottonwood
Levi and T. R. Nordyke, of Lynn County, were in Cross Plains and Cottonwood last week end and confided that they were contemplating the drilling of a test near Cottonwood. Exact location has not yet been made pending lease finalities but it is possible that it will be located somewhere in the vicinity of the Strahan farm, Mr. Nordyke told the Review Saturday afternoon. Plans are to drill to the Cross Plains sand. Local oil men are enthusiastic about seeing the test drilled and several have predicted that a good producer will be found.

Tom Bryant, local oil operator whose success as a "wildcater" reads like a Horatio Alger novel, is considering beginning a test somewhere just beyond the Northern city limits. He would drill to the Cross Plains sand on the theory that a fault lies between the town-site pool and his proposed location. A number of business men are said to be especially interested in the test and will perhaps purchase offset acreage to co-operate in the project.

2 NIGHT GAMES ARE ON BUFFALOES' SCHEDULE

Cross Plains high school's first football game for the current season will be with May on the local gridiron September 20, Nat Williams, Superintendent, announced yesterday.

Two night games will also be on the herd's calendar this year. The first is at Coleman, a non-conference conflict, September 27. The other, a conference game, is at Albany October 18. The schedule in full, as arranged to date, follows: September 20, May at Cross Plains; September 27, Coleman at Coleman; October fourth, Baird at Cross Plains; October 11, open date; October 18, Albany at Albany; October 25, Moran at Cross Plains; November eighth, Putnam at Putnam; November 15, open date; November 22, Rising Star at Rising Star.

MILLION DOLLAR RAIN IS OUR STORY AND WE WILL STICK WITH IT

What is a rain really worth in dollars and cents, who knows? The truth is that no one can actually appraise the value of rain-drops from Heaven, but due to the fact that the Review editor has so often in the past estimated the value of rains, scores of queries have come in as to how much this week's moisture was actually worth.

Our calculation is that it is a MILLION DOLLAR RAIN. If we're wrong, you prove it.

N. A. McMILLAN, 56, SON OF LOCAL LADY, DIES IN OKLAHOMA

Funeral rites for Newton Andrew McMillan, 56, son of Mrs. E. A. McMillan of Cross Plains, were held at Ramona, Oklahoma, Saturday. Interment was made in the cemetery there.

He had been in all health for several years and expired at twelve thirty noon August 26.

Newton Andrew McMillan was born at Cameron, Texas, November 28, 1878. He was the second child of Will McMillan and Elvira Sherfield McMillan. He was united in marriage to Mary Frances Holloway at Baird, June 25, 1905. To this union were born four daughters; the eldest preceeded her father in death May 1928, at the age of 22 years.

Survivors are his widow Mary McMillan, three daughters; Mrs. W. M. Hawkins, St. Joseph, Missouri; Mrs. Albert Seabolt and Mrs. John D. Lyman, both of Ramona, Oklahoma; five brothers; Jim of Cross Plains, Will, Bud and J. P., all of Texas, and Orval, Wichita Kansas; four sisters, Mrs. Bob Tuisenberry, of Houston, Mrs. Jerry McDonald, Rowden, Mrs. Joe Kennedy, Stratford, Oklahoma; as well as a host of friends and neighbors.

A parting tribute to a life of worthwhile service was paid the deceased by a neighbor, who in closing said: "a pall of gloom shrouds our entire community, all have lost a friend."

Mr. McMillan was well known by old timers of this place, having resided in this county during his early manhood.

SEPTEMBER FIRST BRINGS START OF HALF FOOT DELUGE

The first day of September was auspiciously ushered in here by the heaviest rain of the year. A deluge which started shortly after five o'clock Monday morning lessened to a steady, slow drizzle and was continuing intermittently Thursday morning. No more than several hours of clearing has been seen all this week.

No official measurement of the moisture was available in Cross Plains but persistent questioning of farmers and individuals who had containers in the open where the rain could be accurately caught, revealed that approximately a half foot had fallen from Monday morning to Thursday at noon. Heavy, overhanging clouds indicated no immediate change in the weather menu.

While benefits of the moisture were being debated on the streets this week it was generally agreed that all crops with the possible exception of cotton were being aided. Many well informed agriculturists contended that the rain would also be of value to late cotton in assisting to mature bolls not already "made." Others opined that the moisture would tend to augment pests such as; leaf and boll worms and cotton fleas.

Ranchmen were especially optimistic as a result of the four day precipitation which was of untold value to winter grass, restoring stock water.

To the fact that hundreds of grain land had already been broken, many farmers said the rain would cause an immediate growth of volunteer crops which would be advantageous for winter grazing.

Generally speaking, the Cross Plains trade territory was in high spirits as a result of the moisture.

J. T. HAMMETT COPS 4TH TOURNEY TITLE SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Defying an intermittent deluge of rain J. T. Hammett, Philpeco ace, celebrated his nineteenth birthday Sunday by defeating Sam Conner one up for honors of the Eastland Country Club invitation tournament. The youth who temporarily abandoned his Pioneer high school football togs to participate in the tourney won the match one up at the eighteenth green.

The victory gave Hammett his fourth important tournament championship of the year and placed him as ahead of all West Texas golfers in tourney rating. He had previously won the Philpeco, Hamilton and Ranger invitation events, as well as taking medal honors at Coleman and making impressive showings at least five other tournaments.

Hammett traversed the difficult Eastland course with an even par-72 strokes—to eliminate Conner, who had been either the winner or finalist in the Eastland tournament for the past four consecutive years.

In the semi-finals Hammett defeated Doug Jones, Eastland, 3 and 1, and Conner beat W. E. Storey, Breckenridge, 4 and 3.

Winners of other flights: Second, Darrel Tully, Eastland beat J. S. Armour, Eastland, 5-4; third, Winston Castleberry, Eastland, beat W. F. Burris, Pioneer, 2-1; fourth flight, L. E. Armour, Eastland, beat J. F. Killingsworth, Ranger, defeated. (See Golf Meet Page 6)

PHILPECO PRESIDENT

JESSE McADAMS

JESSE McADAMS IS NAMED PRESIDENT OF COUNTRY CLUB

Jesse McAdams, local automobile dealer, was named president of the Philpeco country club to fill the unexpired term of Ted R. Smith, by the board of directors in a recent meeting. The vacancy was created sometime ago when Mr. Smith moved from this place to Big Spring.

Mr. McAdams is a charter member of the club and has served in various capacities of Philpeco activities.

At the meeting it was decided that the annual Club Tournament this year would be placed on a self-supporting basis by the means of charging a registration fee of 50c from each player who enters. Heretofore the Club has taken care of prizes, but this year they will be purchased with the entry fees.

M. S. Sellers, chairman of the tournament committee, has appointed Fred Tunnell, Bill Tunnell and Phil Anderson as the tournament committee who will have charge of the event this year. It has been suggested that the flights this year be limited to eight players which would call for only three rounds of play and would be run off in three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Vestal and family, Mr. and Mrs. Enel Vestal and family, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wright, Bill Calhoun and Harve Vestal, left Saturday night for Breckenridge where Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cade joined them and from there they went to Woodson Lake to fish.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mitchell and daughter, Patsy Ruth, and Mrs. Mitchell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Dickey of Baird returned Monday after a weeks vacation at Marble Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Odie Cannon had as their guest over the week end Mr. Cannon's brother from Kansas.

HUGE HUNK OF W.P.A. MONEY IS ASKED FOR CROSS PLAINS AREA

$21,191.90 has been asked from the federal government's W. P. A. by the Cross Plains school district and Commissioner's Precinct Four of which this city is a part.

School trustees filed application Wednesday for $13,200.00 to be used for grading, leveling and terracing of school grounds, construction of coursed rubble masonry wall on two sides and along main terrace line, construction of two concrete tennis courts, grading and sodding of football field and construction of four room frame building to house Home Economics classes and bleachers for football field. The project would provide for 312 men months of labor. The school district proposes to add $600. to the government allotment.

This Commissioner's precinct already has a project approved by the Abilene office calling for $9,991.90 of federal money to be spent along the proposed right-of-way of highway 36, which would run Westward from here to Abilene. The project would furnish 261.6 man months of labor.

Commissioner's precinct—the Opalin area—is also asking for the same amount of money to be used in that locality for the routing of highway 23. It provides, however, for only 61.8 man months of labor.

Before the projects can become a reality they must receive an official okeh from the W.P.A. office in Washington.

It is also understood that the city council is planning to make an application for funds to either pave or improve materially the Northern extremity of Main Street which runs in front of the school buildings.

FORMER LOCAL GIRL AND BRECKENRIDGE MAN WED SATURDAY

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bennett have announced the marriage of their daughter Leila Mae, to Mr. Walter L. Archie of Breckenridge. The marriage took place August 31 at Big Spring.

The single ring ceremony which was held at the Saint Paul's Lutheran church was read by Rev. W. G. Buchschacher, pastor.

The bride was becomingly attired in navy blue with matching accessories. After a short wedding trip the couple will make their home at Kellerville, where the groom is employed with the Texas Company.

Mrs. Archie, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bennett, resided in Cross Plains most of her life. She was graduated from Cross Plains high school with the class of 31. Later she was employed with a local dry goods concern and as society reporter for the Review. Recently she has been in Kilgore in the employ of a large dry goods firm in the capacity as manager of the ladies department.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Haugh of Colorado City visited friends and relatives here over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Hagood and son Billie of Abilene visited in the Babe Woods home Monday.

Mrs. L. W. Westerman visited in Strawn and Thurber over the week end.

Mrs. Walter Westerman has as her guest this week, Mrs. Marie Sindorff of Houston.

INITIAL EXERCISES TO BE HELD HERE MONDAY MORNING

Cross Plains schools will open Monday morning at nine o'clock, with initial exercises for students and patrons in the high school auditorium. The faculty of 19 teachers was complete with one exception Thursday and the remaining vacancy is expected to be filled by end of the week.

Miss Enid Gwathmey, high school English instructor, resigned her place early this week to accept a position near Dallas. Mrs. M. G. Underwood, teacher in the intermediate grades, was transferred to the high school to teach English and Miss Rexine Shields, of Bangs, was elected to replace Mrs. Underwood in the grades.

The high school faculty for the 35-36 school term follows: Nat Williams, Superintendent; Lewis C. Norman, Principle, Math and Science; V. A. Underwood, Vocational-Agriculture; Claude Daniel, Coach and History; Mrs. M. G. Underwood, English; Harry Ward, Science and Business Administration; Novalyn Price, Public Speech, Louise Nelson, Spanish.

Grammar school teachers are: Anna Mae McConathy, Principal; Mrs. J. E. Pittman, Rexine Shields, Mary Louise Rice, W. E. Lusk, Elizabeth Tyson, Mrs. Lucille Westerman, Mrs. W. A. Childress, Jr., Jimmie Lou Gwathmey, Ethel Manning, and one teacher to be elected.

Dressy school opened Monday morning—September second—which was probably the earliest opening date in history of the school. The intention is to dismiss school for cotton picking during the busy season. Despite the heavy rain several patrons were present at the initial exercises as well as a good attendance of students, which has been increasing daily since. Dressy school is classified as an eighth grade school. The teachers are C. R. Steele and Mrs. R. B. McGowan. Both have been taking courses by residence or correspondence during the past two years. Mr. Steele having just returned from the University of Texas where he studied this Summer.

Burkett schools will open Monday morning—September ninth—the Review was officially informed yesterday. The P. T. A. is said to be planning an all day picnic in the Canon park for Saturday—September seventh, for the purpose of raising funds for the various school enterprises. Members of the Burkett faculty this year are: Mrs. J. C. Bowden, first grade; Mrs. C. C. Burkett, second grade; Miss Beulah Respress, third grade; Miss Ouida and LeRoy Beard, fourth fifth grades; M. M. Sheffield, seventh grade and high school Spanish; Thomas C. Laws, Science and History; F. B. Porter, principal, English; and W. R. Chambers, supervisor. (See School Opening Page 6)

DOVE HUNTERS TO RUN THE RISK OF FEDERAL ARREST

Texas hunters, who planned to shoot doves during September, will run the risk of arrest by agents of the United States Department of Justice. This was the warning issued Tuesday by Don A. Gilchrist, regional director for the United States Biological Survey with offices in Albuquerque, N.M.

The Texas season on doves is September and October. The federal season is Oct. 1 to Jan 15. State officials have announced they will not attempt to enforce the federal law in September which conflicts with the state season. Gilchrist, however, announced that federal agents would.

Thirteenth Instalment

SYNOPSIS—Barbara Keith, wife of a prominent Philadelphia business man, is murdered as she waits alone in a side room to testify in the divorce case of Rowland vs Rowland—She was to have testified for the husband, a friend, who was defendant in the action. Detective Tommy Rankin is assigned to the case from police headquarters—His preliminary investigation disclosed that both Mr. and Mrs. Rowland had gathered evidence against the other of infidelity. The will of Mrs. Rowland's first husband directed her lawyer brother, Mr. Willard, to handle the estate until she remarried when the new husband was to come into control. Detective Rankin finds motives and the evidence of guilt for the murder of Mrs. Keith, leading to the doors of virtually all of the principals involved. These principals are, the two Rowlands, Mr Keith, husband of the murdered woman, Hugh Campbell, paramour of Mrs. Rowland, and his underworld confederates—

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

When Rankin reached the Central Detective Bureau, a special delivery letter had come from the State Hospital for Women. In the press of complications, he had almost forgotten his inquiry to Allerton, Indiana, about the empty medicine bottle he had found in Mrs. Keith's medicine chest, that had once contained pyramidon. Whatever her connection with the hospital, it predated her marriage; and the slender link had appeared relatively insignificant.

Tearing open the envelope, Rankin perused the message. And as he read, his brows slowly wrinkled in astonishment.

Friday, June 9
Central Detective Bureau
Philadelphia, Pa.
My Dear Sir:

In reply to your inquiry about a Barbara Keith or Webb who was a patient in this hospital between 1924 and 1928, I would advise you we can locate no record of treating her. Appreciating the importance of your search I have thoroughly questioned our staff of doctors, nurses and matrons without result. Since we serve only inmates, I would suggest Mrs. Keith might have served a term under another name, in which case we would have her records. If you could send us a more complete description, including her photograph and fingerprints, I will examine our files personally and try to identify her for you.

Very truly yours,
Martha Anderson,
(Superintendent of Wards and Matrons)

But it was not these contents, startling as they were, that so amazed the detective. For on the letterhead, in large black type, he read, with a tremor of excitement, "State Penitentiary for Women, Allerton, Indiana"; and only underneath in smaller print the words, "Women's Hospital Department."

He gave vent to a low whistle of surprise and satisfaction. If, as the message suggested, the hospital was not public and treated only patients incarcerated in the prison, there was just one conclusion.

"But a jailbird!" Rankin marvelled under his breath. "Barbara Keith sentenced to a term in the pen! If she was really at Allerton under another name, how long did she serve? And what, in Heaven's name, for?"

Late the next day the Superintendent of Wards and Matrons at the State Penitentiary for Women at Allerton, Ind., produced a sheaf of papers from her desk and passed them to Rankin.

"I've collected all the information I could about—Ellen Trent" she stated, "in anticipation of your arrival. Here is all the data we have about her offense and confinement here."

"Thank you, Mrs. Anderson," Rankin returned, "I appreciate your cooperation greatly; it will spare me a good deal of trouble."

Mrs. Anderson indicated the records. "There, you can see for yourself how her prints coincide with those of Mrs. Keith." She placed the prints Rankin brought besides a sheet from the files. "The descriptions tally too; and these pictures settle it that Ellen Trent and Mrs. Keith were the same woman."

Worried Rankin studied the prison photograph of the woman he had seen only after she died. She did not look a hardened criminal and it bothered Rankin that she should be involved in that sordid existence.

"No, there's no mistake about her identity, Mrs. Anderson," he agreed.

"It tells you, here that she was really slated for concealing as well as disposing of stolen goods," the woman read on. "They were found in her rooms, in Fort Wayne. And the fact that she lived there with a man not her husband increased the penalty for a first offense as a moral delinquent. We have no further account of her crimes in this state." The detective shook his head perplexed. "That isn't a bit like my impression of Mrs. Keith. She began her term, according to this, on March twentieth nineteen-twenty-seven?"

It was in the summer of '28, in Detroit, he recalled from Mortimer Keith's account, that she met her future husband.

"That's right, over six years ago, Mrs. Anderson pointed out the dates. "She was sentenced only a few days after she was caught—about March tenth or so; and by pleading guilty, saved the expense and time of a trial. She finished her imprisonment one year later, in March, 'twenty-eight."

"You say the girl dealt in stolen goods in Fort Wayne, Mrs. Anderson?" he now inquired of the matron. "What made the authorities suspicious of her?"

Mrs. Anderson shrugged. "She didn't do it herself, I suppose," she admitted grudgingly, "and it wasn't her fault they traced her. The man she shared the apartment with was the thief—or rather, one of a pair, and her sweetheart. When they caught him, they got his address and found her there with some of the loot."

The detective hitched forward. "Then the police know all about her companion," he asked, eagerly. "Who and where he is—whether he's serving a term now?"

"Yes, his name, in the accounts, was Dave Garrett; they had no previous records of him either." The matron spoke bluntly. "And it's pretty certain what's become of him Mr. Rankin, you see, he's been six feet under for over six years."

Rankin's features dropped in disappointment. "Dead?" he repeated blankly. "How'd that happen. Are you positive of your information?"

"It was in all the papers at the time of his last robbery. It's a long story and I can give you only the main details; the rest you'll have to get from them or the police records in Indianapolis and Fort Wayne. For about a year around nineteen-twenty six, both towns suffered from an epidemic of robberies, to which there were no clues. In this last business the robbers were masked and used a stolen car, which they later abandoned in the country. After the Munson robbery, it was known that two youngish men were the thieves."

Mrs. Anderson paused to clear her throat.

"Finally, they made an attempt on a shipment of negotiable bonds lodged in the American Express office in Indianapolis," she related. "That was a different matter altogether; they were worthy seventy thousand dollars, and were guarded by a burglar alarm and by armed men who could shoot straight. It isn't known how the burglars learned of the shipment. Because of the guards, it wasn't even put in the company safe, but kept in a suitcase behind the counter—

Anyhow, they prized open a window leading into a back alley at the rear of the building and set off the alarm.

The guards, warned of their approach, waited for them to reach the main storeroom before they opened fire. Both men were fairly trapped, but only one returned the fire; no gun was found on Garrett—he was little more than twenty-one—when they searched his body afterward."

"That's pretty tough," Rankin commented glumly. "What about the other chap?"

"He made a getaway, though of course without the bonds," the matron replied. "Garrett had a pawn ticket in his pocket that gave away his own name and address. The police went there the same night and found the Trent girl in bed and held her. Only a little of the loot from the Chanley and Ordway robberies was hidden there; but still, it was enough to implicate her."

"I suppose the police found a way to make her talk about Garrett's confederate?" asked Rankin.

"She did it without force, almost eagerly, she was so bitter: as if she hated him for leading her man astray. She told his name, where he lived, where he kept the rest of the booty."

"What happened when they went after the other thief?" Rankin asked eagerly.

Mrs. Anderson hesitated and shook her head. "I'm not certain whether he was captured or not. Trent's story and didn't follow up later developments. You can learn about him from the Fort Wayne police."

"I'll see them shortly," the detective promised. "And Miss Trent, as she was then, served her sentence?"

"Naturally," the woman returned uncompromisingly. "After all she must have helped the robbers in some way; and it was shown she sold a few articles for household expenses. Besides, she had lived with Garrett for over a year, but could produce no marriage license. And she was pregnant. The court had no choice in sentencing her, since she admitted her guilt and offered no defense."

Rankin nodded. "Now with regard to her baby? What can you tell me about that?"

"There isn't much to tell, Mr. Rankin. It was a girl. And it died, as it states here, within three days."

"Young Garrett was the father, I suppose? There's not much doubt about that?"

"Yes, his name went on the birth certificate."

"And what caused the baby's death?" Rankin inquired.

"Convulsions. It was after her delivery that Ellen Trent began to suffer from headaches and needed regular treatment in the hospital. Miss Stafford could say more about that than I; she was the matron who attended her. Later she was transferred to take charge of the corridor in this building where Ellen was a prisoner."

"Then I had better speak to her, the detective said. "If they had much contact, she should know more intimate details about her than these formal records give. Esp-pecially, if she won her confidence.

The superintendent pressed a buzzer at the side of her desk, summoning to the office door a slatternly prisoner in gray. Through the iron bars, she ordered her to summon Miss Stafford, and the woman shuffled away.

A few minutes later the matron appeared in the corridor, and her superior pressed another button; a click unlocked the door, permitting her to enter. She was surprisingly different from Mrs. Anderson, or from what Rankin expected, though just as efficient-looking. Revealing little of the hardness that inevitably develops from dealing with incorrigibles and delinquents, her eyes were deep and understanding and her chin firm but gentle. She was about thirty-five, and she had smooth, brown hair and a resonant, soft voice.

"You really think Miss Trent was innocent and that Garrett's confederate instigated the crimes?" Rankin asked.

Texas Soils And The Centennial

A hundred years ago a pugnacious handful of Angle-Saxons were settled upon the sod of a tyrannically governed Texas, bent upon the precarious establishment of an agrarian civilization under the noses of hostile Indians. Today these heroic men and women, builders of an empire, live only in legendary memories and the stirring pages of history.

We have ill-used their bequest of land. With a characteristic and almost universal carelessness we have allowed insidious but ruthless scourge to steal the fertility of our soil, yes, even the soil itself from a land won by the blood and strife of heroes.

We, too, have a fight on our hands, and not one of our own seeking. We fight for self-preservation, for our land, for our homes, for our very existence.

Next year Texas will celebrate its Centennial, its one hundredth year of independence. And on thousand of farms throughout the State the visitors from the far corners of the earth will see that Texans cherish their soil as well as their memories.

The question that Callahan County will need to answer is: "What legacy of soils shall this generation leave for the next and the next?"

Women want peace and they will fight for it, paradoxical though that may sound. Wars are made by men and sometimes they are unavoidable—Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, noted champion of women's rights.

THE BOOK the first line of which reads, "The Holy Bible," and which contains Four Great Treasures by BRUCE BARTON

Our Debt To Jerome

THE only way to find out who wrote a particular book of the Bible, or at what time, is by a study of the book Luke and find that they were written to a man named Theophilus, and then read the opening verses of Acts and find that they also are addressed to a man of the itself.

So it is the function of the higher critics to find out so far as they can the date and authorship and relations of the books each to the other treatises; their study is the Bible itself. They are a reverent body of men.

The Biblical critic to whom the world owes most is Jerome, who lived in the fourth century. By that time Latin had come to be the language of the western church and there were Latin translations of the Bible, but poor ones, made from very faulty manuscripts.

Jerome was an eminent scholar, and to become still more proficient, he went to Palestine and lived for a long time in Bethlehem. Two good women, a mother and her daughter, went with him; the mother, being a widow and possessed of wealth, furnished money and looked after his health.

Was he thanked for his work? On the contrary, he was denounced for tampering with the word of God. His name was a byword and a reproach. But Jerome did not suffer in silence. He hit back at his critics, telling them exactly what they were.

A Fine Record

Texas will search long and diligently before it finds a man to replace Lee Simmons, who resigned yesterday as general manager of the Texas prison system to devote his entire time to his own large interests in Grayson county.

In his five years as manager, Simmons wrought some miracles of management. At the time he took over the system was run down, the prisoners discontented and escaping in droves and there was a strong effort under foot to centralize the system near Austin in hope of bringing order out of chaos.

Lee Simmons soon straightened that out. Item: In 1929 it cost $293 per man to maintain the prisoners in the system; in 1934, the cost per man had been reduced to $85. Item: In 1930 there were only 136 prisoners in school; today the average attendance is 3,000. Item: The net operating loss in 1929, was $1,446,034; in 1934 it was only $410,798.

The physical property of the system has been improved along with the improving morale of the inmates. Simmons cites 10 modern concrete buildings erected in the last four years as proof. During the preceding 20 years only one had been put up.

Under Simmons the system has become nearly self-sustaining, with the farms producing much of the food consumed not only in the prisons but in some of the states' other eleemosynary institutions.

It is a remarkable record of good management, and Texas owes Lee Simmons a few lusty cheers. It is too bad he is quitting. —Abilene Morning News.

The Family DOCTOR by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

Human Emotions

It seems to me that the family doctor encounters almost all the phases of emotions of which the human mind is capable.

The doctor attends the victim of a blind and unreasoning wrath. He witnesses the human mind in tempests of delirium. In short, the humble family doctor is put up against most terrific tasks in his dealings with perverted, upset human mentalities.

The nobler emotions? First of all, sublime love, dignified by scriptural approval. This with human love fulfills all requirements of earth or heaven.

The family doctor sees the mother perish for her offspring. He sees her surrender her very life for those nearest to her. What can be more sacred or approved of God than this?

The brute is incapable of love. The experienced family doctor can single out for you every human beast within his great circle of patrons. He also encounters the numbskull without love of country, kinsmen, home or self. It is not difficult, it seems to me, to assess human, souls as we come in contact with them.

My field widens in perspective. Love, this master-emotion sets apart for the highest among men and women. It may seem tedious repetition to repeat here, but, dear reader, love and nothing less cure a sick and invalid world.

Do we wish to end war? I believe every sane person does. Love alone can do it. Remember that guns, bombing planes and deep-sea explosives will never end war. They cost billions of treasure, and shed oceans blood.

The Story of the Constitution by CALEB JOHNSON

VII. RIGHTS OF THE STATES

The hardest job the framers of the Constitution had to do was to draw the sharp line between the powers granted by the States to the new Federal Government and those which the States retained for themselves.

The conflict between the new spirit of nationalism and the old spirit of independence of the States was acute.

"The task," wrote James Madison in his notes on the Constitutional Convention, "was to draw a line of demarcation which would give the general Government every power requisite for general purposes, and leave to the States every power which might be more beneficially administered by them."

It is a very short and simple part of the document. Article IV, It provides only, in substance, that the citizens of any State shall be recognized as citizens by all the other States, and that the public acts of each State shall be given full faith and credit in every other State.

There was no delegation of power from the central Government to the States. The process was the other way about, the States delegating limited powers to the central Government. In return, the central Government guaranteed to every State a republican form of government, protection against invasion and, at the request of the State authorities, against domestic violence.

The Federal Government, thus, has no right or power to send Federal troops into any State, even in case of violent rioting or insurrection, unless first invited to do so by the Legislature or the Governor of the State.

We are so familiar with the process of extradition of fugitives from justice that it is difficult today to realize how easy it was, before the Federal Constitution was adopted, for a criminal to escape the consequences of his crime by simply crossing the line between one state and another.

Likewise, the principle that trials of criminals not only shall be by jury but shall be held in the State where the crime has been committed, is so generally understood that the importance of that provision of the Constitution is not immediately obvious to the present day mind.

The Federal Congress had authority under the Constitution, from the beginning, to admit new States, but not to create them out of the territory of other States. In the one instance in which a new State was set up out of part of an old State, the nation was engaged in a civil war.

Some of the States were not satisfied with the protection of their rights appointed under the original Constitution and refused to ratify the new national set-up unless it were amended to meet their objections and calm their fears of Federal domination.

Hammond Scores Texas Ginners, Boosts Co-op Plan

Mr. J. Walter Hammond of Tye, Texas member of the Texas Advisory Board released for publication September 3, the following statement:

"When the Texas Ginners association obtained a temporary injunction on its petition attacking constitutionality of the Bankhead act they tied up Texas cotton. The state advisory board went to Washington and got that straightened out. The Ginners association was not satisfied for some reason and it is going ahead with its suit, with the announced intention of carrying it to the Supreme Court.

"The farmers never have tried to limit the price charged for ginning. They helped the ginners get a bill through congress allowing them 25 cents per bale to cover cost of administering the Bankhead act. It is not the farmers' fault that Huey Long killed the appropriation to cover this when he staged his filibuster during the closing night of congress.

"Texas farmers have organized a defensive committee which has charge of fighting this case. It has employed to abtest attorneys to represent the cotton growers. The state cotton advisory committee already has met Houston and arranged for individual ginners who did not wish to be parties to the federal court suit to get out from under provisions of the temporary injunction.

"If the ginners of Texas, as hired hands of the farmers, are not satisfied with the Bankhead act—which the farmers have approved, and do not wish to do what we want them to do then the farmers will build their own gins.

"Already there are in operation in the state 150 of these cooperative, farmer-owned gins, built and operated on a per bale dividend basis. The number is increasing rapidly. A number have been formed in the past few weeks near Abilene. These gins have been operating at $2 to $3 per bale profit after footing the cost of administering the Bankhead act.

"All farmers are not familiar with the plan under which these gins can be built and operated. The state defensive committee and advisory board are planning to lead an educational campaign among the farmers on this cooperative gin plan and where ginners try to tear up the Bankhead act this type of gin operation will be put into effect. Then, the ginners who are joining in this destructive movement will have plenty of time to devote to defending the constitution of the United States.

"Another thing we are going to find out—we haven't been able to yet, but we will—is exactly who is financing this federal court action against the Bankhead law. It seems very queer that it is so hard to find out where the money behind this suit is coming from."

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration today urged cotton producers who may wish to sell their cotton immediately and whose crop is already being harvested and ginned for sale to obtain and keep sales slips from buyers, so as to be sure to have adequate sales records on which the government will be able to make adjustment payments under the new loan and payment plan.

The necessary forms upon which payments of the difference between the average price and twelve cents will be disbursed are being prepared. In the interim producers who desire to market their crop are advised to compile a careful record which will include a description of the cotton sold, the buyer to whom the cotton was sold, the date of sale and the names of the parties, including tenants, who have an interest in the cotton sold. It is especially important that producers should obtain from the buyer a memorandum of sale which contains the date of sale and the gross weight of the bale or bales sold.

"We are proceeding as rapidly as possible to prepare and make available the necessary forms which will be used under this new plan," Chester C. Davis, Administrator of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, said "and provision will be made for those producers who either have already marketed their crop or who desire to do so before these forms are available. We recognize that there are buyers and merchants who have immediate commitments on the new crop and it is our desire to place producers in a position to market their crop as soon after ginning as they choose. However, it is important that complete information be available which may be transferred to printed forms when they are completed for distribution."

30,829 ACRES COTTON IN COUNTY THIS YEAR

The completed check on all cotton plantings in Callahan County for the year 1933 shows 30,829 acres. There are a total of 1228 farms which have made application for tax exemption certificates. Producers who have signed a contract with the government number 974 and the non-signers are 254.

Cooperating farmers were permitted to plant 28,701 acres. They actually planted 25,404 acres. Non-cooperators made application for certificates based on 6,161 acres but actual measurement showed them to have planted 5,474 acres.

The 5 year average planting as based on the 1934-35 contracts showed the county to have planted 35,122 acres. The same group showed an average of 9,934 bales per year. This yield was secured during the high producing years of 1928 through 1932. The two years showing the greatest yields were 1928 and 1931 closely followed by 1932.

"CHINATOWN SQUAD" IS SUNDAY BILLING

Movie fans will have the opportunity of a thrilling and personally conducted tour through San Francisco's mysterious Chinatown when the new Universal picture "Chinatown Squad," featuring Lyle Talbot, Valeria Hobson, Hugh O'Connell and Andy Devine, comes to the Liberty Theater here Sunday.

All of the scenes of this murder story are laid in San Francisco and a large part of them give intimate glimpses of Chinatown, with its 15,000 inhabitants and eight blocks in length. You'll see the Chinese telephone exchange, and the picturesque stores with their displays of dried frogs and snakes, months' old Chinese eggs packed in mud, curio shops, jewelry shops, all of the charm and mystery of the Orient packed into this one little quarter of America.

And just try to discover the murderer among these band people, until Lyle Talbot, in characteristic American style, solves the riddle.

Nat Williams was a business visitor in Abilene Wednesday.
