$2,500. FIRE RAZES SEALY HOSPITAL

ALL PATIENTS ARE RUSHED TO SAFETY AS BLAZE DAMAGES

Fire, originating from fumes of a gasoline paste being used to re-floor the operating room, did $2,500 damage to the Sealy hospital, at Santa Anna, but all patients were moved to safety, without injury, Tuesday night.

It was the third time in 11 years that Dr. T. Richard Sealy's property has been damaged by fire, his home having been burned in 1925 and his clinic having been destroyed in 1932.

The fire broke out about 8:30 p. m. Tuesday, after workmen had used gasoline to thin a mineral base being put on the floor, preparatory to tiling it. Fumes coming from the base were ignited from a gas radiator and sterilizer, which had been lighted to help dry out the base. The mineral base was saturated with gasoline, and the fire could not be extinguished; but prompt action of employes on duty kept it from spreading to other parts of the hospital. The operating room is on the west end of the third floor, and with fire extinguishers, employes were able to keep the flames in check until the fire department arrived.

30 patients were removed to safety in neighboring homes, but by 10 p. m., had been returned to their hospital beds.

Principal damage was to sterilizing equipment, which was completely destroyed at a cost of $1,500. Instruments to replace those destroyed have been ordered by wire from New York, and should arrive within 15 days. In the meantime Dr. Sealy is using his delivery room, which had been converted into an emergency operating room during the tiling of the floor. Cabinets containing instruments had been removed from the main operating room, and were thus saved from damage.

COTTONWOOD BOYS, DENTON GIRLS WIN COUNTY TOURNAMENT

Cottonwood high school boys and Denton girls emerged victorious in the annual Callahan county high school basketball tournament staged in the local gymnasium last week end.

Cottonwood boys defeated Cross Plains in the final game Saturday morning. Sub-freezing weather greatly curtailed the crowd and the final game was played before the smallest audience of the entire tourney. Denton girls also took their victory over Clyde Saturday morning in a hectic contest.

VOTING STRENGTH OF COUNTY 3,000

2,543 poll tax receipts have been issued from the office of Tax Assessor and Collector Vernon R. King, the Review learned in an interview Tuesday afternoon. It is estimated that there will be a sufficient number of voters of 60 years of age—who are exempt from securing either poll tax or vote papers in this county of 3,000. Callahan a voting strength of 3,000.

The 2,543 poll tax receipts issued this year is 152 short of the number paid in 1934. Mr. King is representative of the Review.

Will Begin Issuing Drivers License Today; All Motorists Must Have One After April 1

County Tax Assessor and Collector Vernon R. King told the Review Tuesday afternoon that he estimated between 7,000 and 8,000 drivers license would be issued in Callahan county before April first, in compliance with the new Texas law effecting motorists.

Licenses may be issued after today—February 14—until April first when the new statute becomes operative.

Drivers' licenses may be issued to persons under 18 years of age only on application of the parent or guardian, and to persons under 14 only if the County Judge, after investigation, approves. No chauffeur's license or commercial driving license may be issued to persons under 18 unless the county judge approves. Licenses will be issued free of charge, and must be carried with motorists when driving. In the event the license or chauffeur's badge is lost, it may be replaced at a cost of 25 cents for the license and $10 for the badge. Badges cost $3 originally and are required of all who operate a motor vehicle for hire.

An additional check on drivers is made possible through provision that every license must be signed in ink by the person to whom it is issued. It is made unlawful for any person to use a license to which he is not entitled. The signature can be used to prove identity. A description of the person to whom the license is issued will be written on the license, and every license will have a distinguishing number.

Suspension of a license is mandatory upon final conviction of the holder on any of the following offenses: Negligent homicide resulting from operation of a motor vehicle; driving while intoxicated or under influence of narcotic; any offense punishable as a felony under the motor vehicle laws of the state; upon three convictions of violating any motor vehicle laws which constitute misdemeanors within any 12 month period; or on conviction of

SPECIAL VENIRE DRAWN FOR M'BEE MURDER HEARING

A special venire of 75 persons was drawn at Eastland Saturday, from which will be picked a jury to hear the case of Raymond and Della Henry, charged with the murder of H. L. McBee, former Cross Plains man, in 1933. Trial has been docketed to begin February 17.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry were charged with murder after the skeleton of the former highway worker was found hanging from a tree in a wood near Rising Star in December, 1934.

Identity of McBee was established by a metal tag, of the type issued highway department workers, and recognition of dental work by an Eastland dentist.

The couple are separately charged in two counts with murder. One alleges McBee was killed by a sharp instrument and the other alleges he was killed by hanging.

J. Frank Sparks is attorney for Mrs. Henry while Frank Judkins, also of Eastland, is the husband's attorney. Criminal District Attorney Grady Owen will be in charge of the prosecution.

The defense attorneys have each made application for 36 witnesses and the state has requested issuance of 51 subpoenas.

HOME TOWN GOSSIP

Today is valentine day, which to Orba Booth may offer romance and glamor but to the propounder of this department it's just another Friday.

Already though, we've received an anonymous valentine in which some kind (never mind what kind) person tells of an affection for this scribbler.

Oh well, life is dull when pranksters forget you on April first, Hal-low'en and valentine day.

Cross Plains is to have one and possibly two more dry goods stores within the very near future.

A deal was closed this week between Charlie Smith, owner of the building occupied by Lotief Dry Goods Company and the S.&H. Department Store of Coleman, in which the Coleman firm leased the property for one year beginning the first of next month.

Two enterprising Ballinger business men were in Cross Plains Friday and expressed their intentions of locating here. It is known that they made several inquiries concerning probable locations. They are said to be dickering now for a middle Main Street piece of property.

Another basket ball tournament will be enacted here today and tomorrow. Selected teams from the surrounding several counties have been invited to participate and no doubt the event will offer many of standing shotmakers. Hand-some trophies are to be awarded the winners of both boys and girls divisions.

This column has often wondered who is the oldest resident citizen of Callahan county. From Clerk S. E. Settle we learned Tuesday this distinction belongs to "Uncle" Jess Hart, of Baird, who has inhabited these parts for more than 60 years.

The price of wool has advanced appreciably the past couple of weeks but Margaret Wagner, who has for some time been interested in sheep and the happenings out around Mertzon, is not in the least concerned.

Elizabeth Tyson, however, is said to yet be a close follower of the live stock developments. (Oh give me a home on the range).

Like Kendrick will relinquish his duties at the post office just about the time school is out. If his plans are true to form, he declares, he's going to celebrate with the school kids all Summer.

They say licking stamps will get you that way. So, watch out Willis Brown.

Have you ever wondered who is the home town's best story teller?pondering over the thought late the other evening our conclusion was that it would be a dead heat between Marion Harvey, Babe Wood and Otey Cannon.

Those fellows tell their yarns in such a manner that it really exercises your ribs.

Porter J. Davis was elected president of the Citizens State Bank succeeding Sam C. Barr, resigned, at the regular meeting of directors Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Davis is a Cross Plains business man and a gas stockholder in the institution. He has been first vice-president for past two years.

Oke Lewis of Coleman, was a business visitor here Tuesday.

S. E. Settle and Vernon R. King, of Baird, were here Tuesday.

METHOD EXPLAINED FOR KEEPING MEAT

About 5 years ago there was a widespread drive to teach people how to cure their meats. Now that they have learned that procedure well there has been found a need for some way to keep the meat from drying too much during the summer. The meat specialists of Texas A&M College have discovered how this may be done cheaply. It is very simple. The meats to be kept are packed tightly in a container and refined cottonseed oil is poured over the meat. It takes about four gallons to the 100 pounds of meat, County Agent Ross B. Jenkins informs the Review.

Some of the advantages are: 1. It retards mold growth 100% 2. It reduces shrinkage, which ultimately means hard unpalatable piece of meat.

3. It reduces contamination by flies and skippers and dust 100% 4. Oil, being liquid, makes it very practicable to slice pieces from large chunks and then return unused piece for keeping perfectly indefinitely.

Anyone desiring to know how to treat the oil or any further information on how to do the job will be so informed by addressing a request to the County Agent.

The oil may be used from year and does not get rancid.

Local Salesman Commands National Attention

The distinction of being one of the leading washing machine salesmen in the entire United States for the month of January goes to J. T. Baum, of Cross Plains. The above picture, with Mr. Baum shown in the background, was made at a recent meeting of the Maytag salesmen from this district at a banquet in Cisco. The local district, with headquarters at Cisco, established an all-time state record. In addition to breaking the record for total sales they broke four other all-time records, namely, number of gasoline motor Maytags sold to farm homes, number of sales per salesman, average earnings per salesman, and 100 percent of aluminum tub—more expensive—Maytags, during January. Two of the above accomplishments are reported to establish new records for the entire United States.

Mr. Baum was the leading salesman for January in the Cisco unit and due to the fact that two national records were established by his district, he is declared one of the leading washing machine salesmen of the United States for the month just passed.

PROMENADE DECK by Ishbel Ross

Seventh Instalment

SYNOPSIS: A luxurious five-month cruise around the world aboard the "Marenia" brings together a group of passengers for adventures, romantic, entertaining . . . and tragic . . . Like in "Grand Hotel" these passengers offer a study in human actions and reactions which unconsciously bare their souls. . . These characters are aboard the ship. Macduff, dour Scotchman, single, of middle age; Miss Mudge, school teacher, spending the savings of 20 years; Angela, faithful wife of Lovat gigolo; Dick Charlton, first officer; Clare, a person of experience; Joan, a dissipated flapper; Jenny, run-away wife, and Peter; Captain Baring, master of the ship.—and his soul. No. Go On With the Story.

EIGHTH INSTALLMENT

Peter squeezed her arm, then wandered off to look at the carving in the temple. Jenny stood in contemplation before the Emerald Buddha. She stared at him until she was half-hypnotized. Angela came walking up to her.

"I think, in a way, that this is one of the best of the Buddhas," she remarked.

"It goes so well with the bright gimcrackery of Bangkok," said Jenny. "Isn't it an amusing place?"

"I've always thought it the most exotic place on earth. Have you seen the white elephants?"

"My husband and I have just been looking at them?"

"Oh, is he about?"

"He was, a minute ago."

Jenny looked round, but there was no sign of Peter. "He's always wandering off," she explained. "He's a born traveler, but he forgets that he has me on his hands at times."

They were walking through the courtyard now, Jenny, turning her head from side to side. "I'm looking for Peter," she said. "It would be so easy to lose a husband among the wats of Bangkok."

"Rather! All those winding stairways and giant devas. He's probably hidden behind a deva!"

"Should we leave the courtyard and look somewhere else? But he may come back, expecting to find me here."

"You stay where you are and I shall stroll outside. He may have gone towards the gate."

Jenny stood in the middle of the courtyard, leaning on her parasol. Everyone else was trooping out. They were all on their way to the Phya Thai Palace for luncheon. Peter could not fail to see her, standing there so conspicuously in the center of the courtyard. It must be fully half an hour since he had looked at his watch and said it was twelve o'clock. Had something happened to Peter? But how ridiculous to think that a competent person like Peter should come to harm.

"I shall go through these buildings, and you take the others, Angela, will you please?" said Jenny, indicating the two to the left. "I'm getting frightfully nervous."

"Don't my dear. There's nothing to worry about at all. Your husband knows his way about. I think you should stay in the courtyard until he comes and finds you."

Jenny ignored her warning and hurried across the cobbles on feet that were now winged with alarm. It was most disquieting. She raced from building to building. When she rejoined Angela she was panting, and her eyes were wide with fright.

"Jenny, my dear," said Angela, "the thing for you to do is to come back to the hotel with me. Nothing is to be gained by staying here."

Jenny was at last persuaded to leave the palace. She was drooping now. A thought flashed like a thunderbolt through Jenny's mind. The word sprang to her lips before she could check them: "Have you seen Mrs. Langford about?"

"No," said Angela. "I'm sure she didn't come with us today. Johnny was looking for her from end to end of the train, and is now in a huff because he couldn't find her."

Jenny's face grew smooth again and her spirits rose. Of course, Peter was sure to be somewhere about.

The hotel was really an old palace, with spacious salons like ball-rooms, and bedrooms the size of halls. There was no sign of Peter in the lounge. He had not been heard of at the desk, nor was he in the bar, where Macduff was busy with the Phya Thai cocktail. Her dismay came back, swooping down on her with fresh certainty. Angela made some discreet enquiries, but none of the cruise men had caught a glimpse of Peter. Perhaps his launch was still on the river or he had wandered off to explore another part of the town.

The afternoon wore on in a blaze of overpowering heat. Angela stayed with Jenny, who sat like a shadow in the great hall of the hotel. Nothing seemed to rouse her. At tea-time one of the cruise men came bustling up to tell her that Peter had taken a train back to the boat shortly after noon.

"I came up on a later train and happened to run into him at the station," he said. "When I got here they told me you were looking for him."

"Oh yes. Thanks so much." Jenny's voice was automatic. "Clare of course?" she thought, and saw the same idea reflected on Angela's face. The older woman put out an arm and steadied her for a minute. "Let's have our tea," she said. "What a relief to know that nothing has happened to him."

"Yes, a relief," Jenny responded in the tones of a parrot.

"I wonder when the next train goes down," Jenny speculated, sipping her tea.

"There isn't another till we all leave at half-past ten tonight. I've enquired."

"Heavens!" said Jenny. "How gay I shall feel until then. Marooned in Bangkok. Peter on the Marenia. What does it all mean?"

"My dear, you're building a mountain out of a molehill." Angela's voice was soothing.

"Angela, you know better."

Of course she did. Angela thought with a sudden rush of pain of Lovat stealing out of their stateroom after he had danced with Clare Lovat, kissing his hand and waving to Clare at Cairo. She knew that Jenny had good grounds for her fears.

"Let's walk about," Jenny suggested, restless and brooding.

"We'll walk in the gardens."

Round and round they went, past Greek statues, terraces and hedges, their feet crunching on the gravel paths. The Marenia passengers were dozing on the veranda or behind the cool shutters of the hotel.

"What time is it now, Angela?" "Five o'clock."

"Let's go back to the hotel," she cried. Angela followed her patiently, ready to humor her whims. Jenny wanted to rest for a while. They took a room, and each in turn had a cooling bath. It was refreshing, and Jenny felt her courage rise. Angela took a nap, but Jenny could not close her eyes.

It seemed as if Jenny had aged five years when Angela wakened. "Forgive me for dropping off when you were so miserable," she pleaded.

"Nonsense! I'm glad you did. There's nothing you can do."

Angela studied her closely. "Let's have another bath, then we'll go down to dinner. King Prajadhipok's dancers are going to perform for us in the garden afterwards. You must come and watch them."

Jenny was listless. "If only we could get to the boat!" she thought.

Jenny went round in a trance, following her companion from place to place. She went into the dining-room and remembered nothing of how it had looked or what she had eaten. Night, star-flecked and warmly perfumed, came hurrying down as they dined. Afterwards they went out to the garden, which was magical in the silvery essence of the evening.

"What an idyllic spot!" Angela exclaimed, seating herself on a marble bench and regarding the Greek columns.

"I feel as if this day is everlasting," Jenny's voice broke in on Angela's thoughts.

"We'll soon be on our way now." She slipped her arm protectively through her friend's.

An hour later Jenny stood at the roadside like one in a dream, waiting for the train to take them back to Paknam. It was slow in coming, and her pulses raced in her fever to reach the boat. But what should she do when she confronted Peter?

At last they were off, and she watched the heads of the tired passengers nodding in the yellow bubbles of light.

When they reached Paknam they still had a long distance to travel by tender. Jenny felt ill with fatigue and worry. Her head was throbbing, and her fears were like thorns piercing her flesh. Angela was a comforting presence, although she did not attempt to talk to her. The tender rode smoothly, the water slapping her sides. A breeze came whipping in from the gulf. Angela took off her hat and her silver hair flew loosely over her ears. Jenny still clutched Peter's cigarette-case clutched Peter's cigarette-case in her hand.

The boat drew nearer and nearer. They could now detect the outline of her funnels looming above the lifeboats. Jenny picked out a nautical cap. It must be Dick Charlton in his white uniform. The chasm of water narrowed till they touched the side of the Marenia. She did not know if her feet would carry her to her stateroom, or sustain her when she came face to face with Peter.

"Buck up, old dear!" said Angela.

"We might as well be moving down."

Jenny caught a glimpse of a tall figure looking over the side of the promenade deck. The shoulders suggested Peter; the face she could not see. He might be waiting for her at the gangplank. The tender was bumping her sides against the steamer, scraping and tearing, heaving and barging off.

Angela and Jenny were caught in the outgoing rush and were among the last to leave the boat. Angela saw that the girl's face was like skimmed milk, and she caught her round the waist. Jenny drew her hat down over her eyes and stepped up the ladder, her glance darting from side to side. Dick smiled at her in passing, although she scarcely saw him. Of course not. He would wait for her in their stateroom.

Angela took her part-way along to her door, for Jenny's legs were wavering. It was open and on the hook. She pulled the curtain aside and gripped it again to steady herself as she saw that the room was dark. Perhaps he was in bed and asleep. She switched on the lights. The room stared at her, empty and dead, and at the same moment she felt the engines throbbing their familiar tune. She got as far as Peter's bed then fell in a dead faint on the untouched cover.

It was long before she opened her eyes, to find herself staring at the tinted lights and panelled walls. Her glance flew to the back of the door and she saw that Peter's dressing-gown was missing from its hook. "He's afraid to come near me tonight, he won't come near me tonight," she thought, and burst into storms of tears.

Burying her head in the pillow, she sobbed wildly and hysterically. At last, exhausted, she fell asleep and did not hear a knock on the door. Reassured by the quiet, Angela stole away, believing that it gela stole away, believing that it was no longer any of her concern. They were already pounding "Assistance applicants should be able to name exact places in which they have resided—street numbers, etc.—and the length of time at each place during the last nine years," Mr. Carpenter said.

"Another requirement is that if the applicant has been convicted of a crime or crimes, he will be asked to tell the number of convictions and give the nature of the offense or offenses and the place or places of conviction regardless whether they were in Texas or not," he added.

Applicants may get blanks in their own locality February 14 or after. These forms may be filed as soon as filled out.

through the Gulf of Siam, the Marenia steering her course with midnight stealth on limpid waters.

Jenny slept late, a heavy, drugged slumber. When she awakened, the sun was pouring in through the open porthole, and the rose wall-light, were still on, like evening dress at breakfast-time. She looked across at the other bed and saw that it was empty. Then she remembered the events of the night before. Raising herself on her elbow she held her head, which ached as if it had been hit with a hammer. Her glance swept around the stateroom for familiar objects, and in a second she sprang to her feet. Where were Peter's things? All of his things. She dashed into the bathroom. His brushes, his hair tonic, his soap, his razor—everything was gone. Dared she open his wardrobe door? She sat down on a chair and waited for strength, but it did not come. At last she staz-gered across the cabin and looked inside the closet. It was empty. Peter must have moved entirely to another stateroom. He must be somewhere on the boat, but hiding from her. What should she do? Continued next Issue

Obituary

(Contributed) Mrs. M. M. Pierce died January 31, 1936.

A darling one from us has gone so brave, pure and true, a voice we loved is stilled, we shall not hear the friendly voice we knew.

The pain is gone, she sleeps today beneath loves feeble gift of flowers.

"She's alright now," we strive to say, but oh what loss is ours!

Farewell Dear Mother, but not forever, there will be a glorious dawn, we shall meet to part no never.

She lived for those who loved her, and for those who knew her true, for the Heaven that smiled above her, for the cause that needed assistance, for the wrongs that needed resistance, for the future in the distance and the good that she could do.

Our hearts are filled with pain, and many a falling tear when we think of the place made vacant that can never be filled.

"Asleep, Blessed sleep, From which none ever wake to weep."

MOTHER SCARBOROUGH

(Contributed) There is no one like mother, Never a pal, like she, And never a heart ache, like giving her up.

The terrible loneliness, that will be.

But O thank God for memory.

Nothing can take that away, The many things she did for us, day after day.

The little home can't be the same.

And humble tho it may be,

Every where we turn, at work, the touch of her hand we see.

So just at dawn of a wind swept day.

The death Angel came through the door.

And said "To she has suffered so much, I'll take her home, where she'll suffer no more."

And now we ask God to give us strength, to bear.

The awful loneliness here.

That fills our hearts at such great loss.

Of our precious mother, so dear, I want us to let your sweet clean life.

Be to us our guiding star, and surely dear mother we can never stray.

From the path of right, far.

We all love you so much dear mother.

Our children will miss you so.

But may we teach them the thing you would teach.

To be ready when their time comes, to go.

Do Solons Want Special Session; Of Course, Says Dodson, There's Fun And Frolic For Everyone In Austin

(Special to Review)

Editor's Note: The following letter concerning political happenings at Austin is written especially for the Review by Aubra C. Dodson, former Cross Plains man, who is keeping an ear to the ground for things of interest about the state capitol.

By Aubra C. Dodson

Well politics go round and round but sometimes they go round faster than others. Right now the speed is increasing. With two candidates already out for Governor against Gov. James V. Allred, and several others officially in the race for state offices, things are beginning to buzz.

But the thing right now that is stirring up the most talk in politics is, will there or not be a special session of the legislature. Many of the legislators are beginning to murmur. They did not speak up much at first for they felt sure that the Governor would call a session, but they are now getting a little impatient about it. After all, you know, it's nice for them to meet down here once in a while and see the gang. Most of them have a very nice time, thank you, while they're in Austin. After hours each day there are places to go: a good show, bull sessions in a hotel lobby or behind closed doors, night spots with plenty of entertainment including attractive girls—if desired—furnished, of course, by the lobbyists.

Folks you remember when Jimmy Allred was campaigning he said he was dry but that he wanted the people to vote on the question. So at the first regular session after election he asked the legislature to call an election on the liquor question; and he further asked that they let the people vote on how liquor was to be sold, in case the Dean law was repealed: "by the drink", "package stores," or "state monopoly." Well after weeks and weeks of wrangling and dangleing they called an election. But they did not let the people vote on how the liquor was to be sold. Now if the people had voted on how it was to be sold, there would have been no cause for a special session right after the election.

Well, maybe I'm wrong but my guess is that the Legislators don't mind these extra sessions. They are pretty comfortable here in Austin; good hotels, commodious rooms. It's just like a convention, and you know how everyone likes a convention. Well, I figure they're kinda getting anxious for another journey to the capitol. Of course they'll be most happy to fix the old folks pension to justify the expense for the trip. It costs only $100,000.00 for the boys to get to either down here for 30 days. Not so bad! Of course they had 90 day last Summer to fix up the old folks but they couldn't find anything to tax.

Everytime they started to tax something, the lobbyists would swarm them, so they finally just had to go home and think a while. Well, I don't know what the Governor is going to do but he may just take the $100,000.00 it would cost to get the boys together and start passing it out among the old folks. That way they would be sure of getting something. So long.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes, feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

Don't delay? Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

MONTHLY SAFETY MEET HELD HERE TUESDAY EVENING

Morgan Harlow, manager of the local unit of the Community Public Service Company, was host Tuesday night to the regular monthly safety meeting for employees of the company throughout this district.

The session was opened with a banquet in a down town cafe, after which the group assembled at the Community Public Service Company building on South Main Street for a business program, which included a study of first aid books, kangaroo court and listening to the Pick-Fair ice program on the national hook-up.

In the kangaroo court, which is always a feature of the safety meetings, A. G. Robertson, manager of the Gorman office and formerly of Cross Plains, was tried for failing to have a tail light on his delivery truck. He was fined five cents. Money collected from fines over the entire properties of the company go into a general fund and at the end of each six month period the district having the least number of fines is awarded the proceeds to be used in staging an elaborate banquet.

The meeting in Cross Plains Tuesday night was the first the company had held here in more than a year. The next convention will be at DeLeon, March 11.

Among those present Tuesday night were: Robertson, of Gorman; C. T. Ragland, Comanche; L. W. Hicks, Comanche; J. C. James, DeLeon; H. O. Boston, Rising Star; Tommie Carr, Rising Star, and Harlow and Lindsey Tyson, of the local office.

WELL IN BAIRD HAS HEAVY GAS OUTPUT

The test was drilled after the discovery of oil in the Campbell & Pennington No. 1 Ramsey, on the northwest outskirts of Baird late last fall. The Ramsey well is now reported making about 10 barrels daily on the pump.

Also at Baird, the Jacobs et al No. 1 Reed, in block 26 of the Baird townsite, is rigging up for a test of the same horizon.
