CHAPTER VIII—Continued

He flung himself into the work with feverish ambition and belief. Baxter he saw little of these days nor did he tell him of his plans or state that he had secured an office. Baxter had told Caleb that he was busy trying to find the right tract of land for his

"Little Colony."

"Not going to get married, are you?" inquired Baxter jestingly. "I suppose you were browsing over at El Nido when you acquired that tan. must be some girl. I told you you'd fall hard. The mater's due at Del Monte tomorrow," he went on. "I thought I'd need her to help me out, but, if I pull off this stock deal, I'll be in clover. Good job I didn't write her. Something usually shows up if you're in luck. If you're not, why, that's all there is to it."

He frowned. Caleb saw him looking at his picture gallery on the bu-

"How are things going in that direction?" he asked.

"Meaning Mary Morgan? That's her name." Baxter picked up the silver frame. His face was still clouded. "She's getting hard to handle. Still hanging on to her job. Wants me to marry her, but insists upon the child being born, anyway. Says she always wanted one. She's an enigma to me. I think I'll be able to transfer her to a gun-metal setting before long. Here's hoping! Tell me about your doings across the bay, for that's where you were, of course."

But Caleb did not care to discuss Betty, and the telephone broke their

"It's the Morgan girl," said Baxter. "She's getting to be a pest, but she's got to be jollied. Be sorry for me, Caleb cocked his eyebrow. The reference to the stenographer as "the Morgan girl," after all that had happened and still lay between them, struck him as particularly callous. Still, Baxter often spoke with affected bravado. Caleb kept silent.

CHAPTER IX

Progress

The work went swiftly. His prelimmary specifications ended and the drawings traced and blue-printed, Caleb started on his model. From the maps of the geodetic survey he pantographed a scale enlargement of the lower end of the Caliente plain and much of the surrounding district, including Gabilan mountain.

Baxter had run down to Del Monte to pay a duty call to his mother. Duty, in Baxter's case, Caleb surmised, as with his affection, was largely a matter of keeping his mother in good humor whereby the financial supplies might be more lavishly and easily forthcoming. Both were too selfish, after years of indulgence and spoiling. to have much genuine love for each other. In one of the gossiping weeklies at the club-not Vedder's Pioneer -Caleb noticed an item that caught his eye with the mention of the Baxter name.

"It is rumored by Dame Gossip," ran the paragraph, "that Ted Baxter, who, by the way, has been hanging up some creditable scores in the golf tournament on the Del Monte links, is not overloyed at the insinuating chatter that persits in suggesting that he may shortly acquire a stepfather. Gossip has been rife in this direction before, but now intentions seem to be serious. It is hinted that young Baxter may emulate the example of his stepfather, to-be. A double wedding is not entirely out of prospect, according to those who claim to have watched 'Ted' strolling on the fair-greens in the early mornings with a certain demoiselle who has inherited a fortune from interests closely connected with the lumber industry."

Caleb could not guess, and did not care to, the name of the girl referred And Caleb whistled under his

"If Mary Morgan sees this item." he told himself. "she is likely to stir deal is prospering?"

Baxter had not told him the name of the shares with which he was speculating. But he noticed the girl the next morning as he passed through an outer office to Cox's private room by appointment. She was not in tailored clothes but in a lighter, fuller costume. Her face was startlingly pale save where she rouged her cheeks and reddened her full lips. The dark half-rings beneath her eyes emphasized their glance and, for a moment, Caleb felt it full upon him. He thought that it half besought, half challenged him not to speak of her to Cox. And then the mouth grew sul-Ien and she turned away as Cox's secretary held the door open for Caleb.

"Come to accept the Beaver Lake proposition?" asked Cox, rising to meet him. His brows contracted and his look hardened a trifle when Caleb shook his head.

"I think not, I've come to make a proposition instead."

"Yes?" said Cox shortly, his tone as noncommittal as the tick of a clock. while he shoved the cigar box across desk and leaned forward a little. "You said that the Crystal Springs ompany is in the business of buying, conveying and selling water. It is the first consideration that holds my proposition. What will you give me for two million daily gallons of pure water, with constant renewed supply, within a reasonable distance of Golden and capable of development at costs that will leave you ample profit?"

Cox lit his cigar slowly and, under eover of the smoke, closely surveyed Caleb's face.

"Two million gallons daily? You mean what will I give you for your information as to where I can secure "And my plans for development. Conservation, storage, filtration, collection, piping, pumping?"

"Ah! Pumping? It isn't on this side of the bay, then?"

The question came swiftly, backing a swifter glance. "You told me yourself that the water development on the peninsula was practically developed to its limit," checked Caleb. "It is across the bay." "We have many prospects there ourselves. Plans half developed. It is unlikely that you offer me anything new. Have you spoken to Mr. Hinckley about it?

"Hardly. I wished to talk with you direct. I believe you have not looked into this particular method of exploitation or more than suspected the source of supply."

Cox smiled and pushed aside some papers carelessly.
"If that is so," he answered, "I will give you one-half a cent per gallon for your secret."

"Ten thousand dollars? You are not liberal, Mr. Cox. I am not visionary in this matter. I am prepared to show you and your engineers a complete project, without estimating exact costs. But, if my general plans are not approved by Mr. Hinckley and his associates, if my source is not authentic, if it is not sufficient, I do not figure that I have anything to sell. But I want to know where I stand before I submit facts and figures."

For a moment they remained silent, the elder seated, Caleb standing, Cox patently appraising him. The latter spoke first.

"How much do you want?" "One hundred thousand dollars and recognition of myself as the originator of the plan. I do not expect to in any way displace Mr. Hinckley. I have not his experience. Quite probably I lack his ability. But I should want an appointment as consulting engineer on the work, and publicity as the pro-

They shook hands on it and Caleb eft the office practically content. After dinner at the club, alone, he found a telegram awaiting him in his rooms. It was a notice from the local bank that the deal for his house had been completed and that the purchase price, eight thousand dollars, less certain fees, now lay to his order.

"Which," said Caleb, as he stuffed the message back in its yellow envelope, "rounds out the day very nicely."

Next morning Caleb got up late and leisurely, three hours after his usual time. He ordered breakfast sent up from the dining room and lingered over his bath and shaving before he settled down in the window, grapefruit before him, the daily paper to

Then he read the caption under the halftone picture: "Mrs. Ernestine Leroy Baxter, whose quiet wedding is the talk of Nob Hill."

It was the resemblance to Ted that Caleb had noticed. He read the article. The Del Monte correspondent referred to it as a romance. It appeared that the couple had been married quietly at Monterey and had left for a protracted honeymoon in the pri vate car of the bridegroom.

It was not Caleb's affair and he had his own business to attend to. Baxter would show up in his own good time. Caleb finished his breakfast and went down to his office to superintend the packing of the model and its dispatch Moses for three months. The hiding to Cox. Later he visited his bank. It was noon before he got back to the apartment house.

He found Baxter changing his clothes. His face was pasty, the whites of his eyes congested. To Caeb the signs were plain. Baxter had been making a night of it. "Seen the paper, I suppose?" Baxter greeted Caleb. "There's the devil to pay all around. The mater's gone and so's my income. Look at that,'

He picked up a slip of pink paper from his dressing table and handed at to Caleb. It was a check for one thonsand dolla. "Signed by papa-in-law," said Bax-

THE CHILDHOOD AND EDUCA-TION OF MOSES

LESSON TEXT-Exodus 2:1-19; Acts GOLDEN TEXT-Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it.—

PRIMARY TOPIC-The Baby Moses. JUNIOR TOPIC—A Little Girl Helps. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC-Training for Life's Work.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC-The Blessing of a Religious Home.

I. Moses' Parentage (v. 1). Both father and mother were of Levitical stock. Being from the same tribe, they had a common bond of interest and sympathy. Amram had the good judgment to choose for a wife a woman who possessed sympathies and ambitions in harmony with his own. II. Moses' Birth (v. 2).

Two children were born to Amram and Jochebed before Moses-Aaron and Miriam. However, Moses was the first one that his mother was assured was to be the deliverer of the chosen people. There was something striking about this child which caused her to believe that it was sent of God. She saw that he was a "goodly child." In Stephen's speech (Acts 7:20) he asserts that the child was "exceeding fair," or fair to God. No doubt his mother believed him to be the deliverer of his people and instilled that truth in his mind from childhood. Because of this belief she had confidence that somehow God would save him from the cruel hand of the king.

III. Moses' Preservation (vv. 3-8). Though Pharaoh's edict was in force, his mother's faith was such as to cause her to ignore it and hide of the child was not because of fear, but because of faith (Heb. 11:23). It was her faith which made her brave to ignore the king's edict. Though Moses' mother had faith, she did not ignore the proper use of means. Pharaoh's plan was that every male child should be destroyed, but God had planned otherwise for this child. Perhaps the story of how Noah and his family were saved in the ark suggested to his mother the expediency used, namely, the ark of bulrushes. Doubtless she was famillar with the place where Pharaoh's daughter came to bathe, and believed somehow through her the child would be saved. She placed the ark at the particular place where it would attract attention. It is interesting to note the steps as pointed out by another, by which God's plan was carried out.

1. The mother's wit.

She placed the baby at the proper place and at the opportune time. Then, too, Miriam was no doubt stationed as a watch to aid in the affair (v. 4)

2. A faithful sister (v. 7). Had Miriam not been faithful, humanly speaking, Moses' life would not have been preserved and properly nursed and educated at the proper time. This should be a worthy example for every sister, causing her to exercise watch and care over her brother. 3. A woman's curiosity (v. 5) This strange object among the flags attracted the attention of Pharaoh's daughter and she directed her maids to bring it to her.

4. A woman's compassion (v. 6). When the ark was brought and opened the baby wept. That woman has lost her feminine instinct who is unmoved with compassion at the cry of a lonely, motherless baby.

5. The baby's tears (v. 6). The tears aroused her womanly instinct, and at the suggestion of Miriam the baby's mother was hired to nurse her own child. No one can nurse a child so well as its own mother.

IV. Moses' Education (v. 9). 1. Moses was first educated at his mother's knee. During this time his character took form. Here his mind was filled with the Word of God and he was made acquainted with the Jewish hopes and prospects. In these early years no doubt the indomitable purpose was serious and inclosed a check from her fixed to suffer affliction with the people of God rather than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season (Heb. 11:24-26). Seeing by /aith the destiny of her child, Jochsbed made good use of her time.

2. At the Egyptian court (v. 10). It was here that he became ac-Egyptians (Acts 7:22). This was of fied him to be the lawgiver and historian of his people.

Our Present Lot

Great Personages of the Bible

By REV. LEONARD A. BARRETT

Mary the Virgin

MARY THE VIRGIN was of royal descent from David. She was also a blood relative of Elizabeth, who was the wife of Zacharias, the priest. It was an unwritten law that only members of the royal families were permitted to unite in marriage with the priests. Though of royal blood, she was poor. Evidence for this is seen in that Joseph was a carpenter, which trade did not bring large financial returns; and also from the value of the gift Mary and Joseph offered as a sacrifice when they brought Jesus into the temple. The sacrifice consisted of a pair of turtle doves and two young pigeons, a small gift as compared with those of the wealthier class of her day. One of the most interesting experiences in the biography of Mary was her attitude of mind and heart when she was informed by the shepherds of the important place her son would occupy in the future history of her nation. To her the information came as a great mystery. She could not comprehend why she should be regarded with such special favor. The writer of her biography informs us that instead of giving expression to her feeling in wild excitement and overstrained nervous tension, she remained eloquently silent. "Mary kept all these sayings, pondering them in her heart." No one but a mother knows the secrets which she hides away in the sanctuary of her heart.

Not only was the prophecy concerning Jesus locked up in Mary's heart; She also treasured there the mystery which surrounded her child Jesus. She could not altogether adjust herself to His dual nature. Truly He was her son, but He was also the Son of God. Pathetic is the incident for Mary when she discovered that after leaving the temple she had lost her Son. She sought for Him diligently, but nowhere could He be found. Upon returning to the temple, hoping that she might find Him in the crowd, imagine her consternation when she discovered that Jesus, though but thirteen years of age, was occupying a distinguished place in the temple. He was arguing with the intellectual men of His day upon matters of the law. Even more mysterious was the reply of Jesus when Mary spoke to Him about His absence, "Knew ye not that I must be in My Father's house." After this incident, He returns to the humble home in Nazareth, but Mary, perplexed and bewildered, "kept all these things in her heart.'

A mother's pride and confidence in her son is beautifully portrayed through an incident which occurred in Cana. The occasion is a wedding feast and the refreshments which were furnished for the feast had given out. Mary interceded with Jesus in behalf of the guests and the embarrassment was relieved by the first miracle which Jesus performed. The confidence which Mary had in her Son is expressed in her command to the servants, "Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it."

Upon another occasion Mary, mothdoubtless upon a subject of vital concern to herself, but which Jesus felt was not as important as the work of preaching and healing. While Jesus was speaking to the crowds of people, Mary stood outside waiting for an opportunity to speak with Him. When Jesus was informed of her wish, He made a reply to His followers which was a frank declaration of His spiritual mission. Motherlike, Mary again "Kept all this in her heart."

At the crucifixion, the concern which Jesus had for His mother is very beautiful and tender. He provides for her future care and gives her a parting assurance of His love and devotion. But Jesus, her Son, whom she perhaps never did thoroughly understand, was being crucified. Again, the only place where Mary could safely hide her sorrow and her pain was in the sanctuary of her heart.

This attitude of Mary, of hiding things in her heart, stands out as a very unique characteristic of her nature. The only safe place of sure retreat is the human heart.

The wisdom of the heart is many times more valuable than the wisdom of the mind. "Out of the heart are the issues of life." The lamps of courage, sympathy, and strength are lit within the temple of the heart. The real man 'is always, "free hidden man of the heart."

Made High Grade The teacher in the Franklin (N.

H.) kindergarten asked one of her young pupils what the eyes were for and was promptly answered "To see with." Another was asked what the nose was for and the answer was correctly given. Then she asked the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Watts, "What are your ears for?" The child replied, "To keep clean." She got a 100 mark.-Boston Globe.

COULD NOT PUT ON HER SHOES

Mrs. Daugherty Was so Weak

In a little town of the middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been n such poor health hat she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, inable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty. Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. Idly she turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine, and you can use these facts as a testimonial. FROM SOUR BILE

SOUTH GEORGIAN DRIVES OUT ENORMOUS QUANTITY SOUR BILE WITH DODSON'S LIVER TONE.

After a long period of the worst form of weakness and the terrible feeling of sickness that comes from a system loaded with sour bile, Mr. Sam Puckett says: "When I kept getting those bilious attacks reckon I took enough calomel to kill a mule. Got worse all the time. Finally I turned saffron color all over. My wife happened to read about Dodson's Liver Tone in the Weekly Constitution, so we drove to town and got a bottle. It was like magic. It drove quarts of sour bor out of me as black as ink. From that day I has as if I had a new liver, and whene I begin to feel weary and billous, with no appetite, a dose of Dodson's Liver Tone puts me to rights." This wonderful, quick-action, liver starter ought to be in every household, if for no other reason than to stop the use of dangerous calomel. Dodson's Liver Tone is pleasant to take, even for children, and never makes you sick. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs but a few cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

His information is contained in a note found floating in a tightly-corked bottle below the falls at Clark City, on the St. Margaret river, in Canada. The note reads:

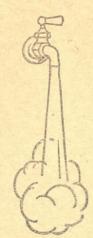

"Whoever finds this bottle, there is gold and in plenty 25 miles above the falls. My chum, Jack, is dead, and I am freezing to death."

Russell, a contractor and builder, went with his brother and several other men to do construction work at Clark City, Canada. Here they found the bottle, and made their first un successful trip in search of the mentioned gold.

"Now I don't bother about any of them. If it is time for me to be about and if it is time for Mr. Sun to take a holiday it doesn't matter what any one says—there is rain.

"They may be planning a parade or a picnic or an all-day outing or a Carelessness of City walking trip, but if I am going to rain I am going to rain.

"Now you see one of the reasons why I was called King of the Clouds was because I rained.

"A king should reign. Other kings reign, or rule. I rain and rule in my rainy fashion.

"Other kings spell the way they reign differently from the way I spell "But the idea is the same. Oh,

Making the Home Town "Just a Little Better"

There are several things a fellow ought to do for the old town. One step in the process will be to study the other man's town. Learn how he made his success. Use his She wanted to methods where they will work to adwash some things, vantage. Mix a little brains with observation and improve on the past. Why shouldn't you put the plus on his success? Then, too, one must line up the resources of the old town. Practically all, it started to every place has some advantage. That should be capitalized to its full worth. Not in our likeness to other towns but in our differences lie the distinctive agencies that will insure success.

And not least among resources should be the good will of its people. Few towns put forth any real effort The King of to cultivate the interest of their citizens. If people are interested they work for the town, usually for what they can get out of it. Our proposition calls for lining up everybody as a matter of patriotic duty.

The next step is to sell the town to folks outside of it. Don't be afraid to tell your town's advantages. When other towns advertise match the "ad' with one of your own. Even if you don't sell much to other folks the process will add much to your own estimate.

So, boost the old town. It will add dividends and raise the place you live in to one of pride and satisfaction, It's a great game. Try it.-Kansas City Times.

Visitors to Country

No longer are spring flowers the chief adornment of our country roads. The hepatica has had to yield place to the pop bottle, the wind flower to the wind-blown fragments of the Sunday supplements, the adder's tongue to the tin can. Out of our cities pours an increasing horde of people who sally forth at dawn, after the fashion of tent caterpillars, to leave destruction in their wake. Accustomed to a life where the ever-ready "white wing" and the garbage collector function as regularly as the rising and setting of the sun, these city dwellers have little or no conception of the beauty and dignity of clean earth. They break down fences, strip flowering shrubs, and all too frequently lead one to wonder why the word 'urbanity" ever came to mean what it is supposed to mean and why "civility" should have been the distinguishing mark of those who dwelt in cities.

Our large centers of population sometimes wonder why they are so unpopular in the rural regions. One reason is to be found in the trash littered along our country highways .-Editorial in The Outlook.

Trees Not for Streets

It is a mistake to use a tree for street purposes just because it is rapid-growing, because most such trees are short-lived, weak-wooded and generally dangerous. Among such trees may be mentioned:

Silver maple—a maple that has quite pendulous branches and deeply cut leaves. The branches have dark bark. Box elder-a maple with divided leaves. A more or less globular, lowbranched tree.

Western catalpa-very short-lived. Flowers are very mussy. Also the following: willows, European ash, birch, Carolina poplar and tulip tree.

Clean Up Stable Manure

House files are here with their perennial transportation program for disease germs. They specialize as common carrier of typhoid fever and diarrheal bacilli. They ply between the germ incubators and the dining room. What they lack in per capita horse power they make up in preponderance of numbers. Stable manure is the most prolific breeding place of the fly, a pair of which can become the ancestors of many million offspring in a single season.

Make Home Beautiful It doesn't cost any more to make your home beautiful than to have it ugly-beauty is not gained by dressing the house up with scroll-saw ornaments, cut-up roofs, dormers and fancy-shaped windows. A well proportioned house looks beautiful without all these. Your local architect is experienced in these problems and can help you here. It will pay you to con-

FORECASTER BRINGS HAPPINESS BY DATA

Weather Man Gets All Sorts of Inquiries.

New York .- "Please," asked the timid voice of a girl over the telephone, "can you tell me whether June 17 will be fair?"

James H. Scarr, New York's veteran weather man, glanced at maps and records on his desk and pondered a moment.

'Why, that's your wedding day "Yes," the voice faltered in surprise.

"Yes, but how did you know" "Oh, I just surmised. I can tell you only this about the weather: you will always remember June 17 as the brightest day of your life." This call came to the weather man exactly a hundred and seventeen days before June 17. It was impossible to forecast accurately what the weather on that date would be. Here is his reason for the answer he gave:

One Day to Worry-If It Rained. "Our greatest enjoyment in life usually comes in anticipation. If I had told her it would be cloudy and rainy on June 17, she would have experienced 117 days of worry. But with what I told her she had 117 days of delightful anticipation.

"I figured that if it rained on June 17, there would be only one day of worry and that she hardly would notice the rain anyway in the excitement and joy of getting married." Brides-to-be are among the 1,500 persons who daily call the weather bureau for information. On some days the office operator lists as many as 1,000 "busy calls."

People planning picnics 'phone, the tired clerk who wants to know which week out of several will be best for him to take his vacation; officials preparing for conventions call; managers selecting opening nights for new

All Want Information. Millionaires who want to set sail in yachts for distant points constantly are served by the bureau. Ships at sea keep in close communication with this and other offices.

The ice cream manufacturer wants to know the weather outlook for the week-end. If Saturday and Sunday are to be cool and rainy, he saves money by cutting down on the output. If clear and hot, he is ready for a big business. He likewise calls for dally reports.

The weather man often is asked if the moon was shining on a certain night months ago, whether the sun was shining, whether it snowed or rained or what was the temperature on such and such a date.

This information mostly is in demand for court trials of civil and criminal cases. The weather record plays an important part in many cases and on some days Mr. Scorr visits as many as seven different courts.

Firemen Rip Up Walk to Free Trapped Girl

Cleveland, Ohio. - Firemen and neighbors fought for nearly an hour to release a yellow-haired girl of three from a drain pipe in which she became

Axes and picks tore up a cement sidewalk and broke into the clay drain pipe to free the child.

Just before supper Eleanor Banas was playing with her sister, Helen, eight, and some other children in a neighbor's yard. Near the back corner of the house the drain pipe from the roof had been broken off at the sidewalk. Eleanor was toddling along the walk when she stepped into the drain up to her hip. Immediately she set up a wail.

Neighbors came running. Men going home from work tried to help, but the shee had been caught below the surface. Someone called the fire department.

Battalion Chief James Flynn showed her shiny things and got down on his knees to quiet her. Her wail subsided to only a whimper.

Snakeskin Jackets

Now in Vogue in Paris Paris.—Snakeskin spats and pocketbooks and now snakeskin jackets have made their appearance on the Champs-Elysees and at the Longchamp races. These startling reptilian coats, which are weird enough to make any serious drinker believe his dreams of pink and blue snakes have come true, are the length of a jacket and trimmed with fur at the neck and the hem. They are patterned to resemble the mottled skin of a rattlesnake, usually toned to light brown color. The snakeskin effect is produced by glazing the material.

 $4,500 Red Diamond

Found in Kimberley London.—The rare find of a red diamond is reported from Kimberley, South Africa. This species is very unusual and is likely to fetch from $600 to $750 a carat. When cut the result will be a flawless stone of about six carats. The gem at first glance might be taken by the uninitiated to be a very large ruby, as it is an entirely red stone without a blemish of any kind. Closer inspection, however, reveals that it possesses all the requisite

Of the 770 cases handled by the section, 401 have been definitely closed since July, 1924. Of these 16 cases have been paid in full, 47 compromised, 37 closed as uncollectable, 93 dismissed, 153 transferred to other agencies, 42 ordered audited, 4 paid in part, and 12 closed for miscellane-

It is expected that at least 50 more cases will be closed before the end of the present fiscal year, June 30. It is likely that by the same time 50 more will be ready to be transferred to federal district attorneys for prosecution. About 150 more have been investigated and placed in suspended status pending decisions in test cases

New York .- Andrew Ragone married an honest and modest girl. Her name before the ceremony at the Roman Catholic church was Miss Rose

Three years ago Ragone set out from his restaurant in Spring street for the Chatham and Phenix bank on Broadway, carrying a wallet containing $2,500 to deposit. When he reached the bank the wallet was gone.

With little hope that so much ready cash would be returned he advertised in newspapers, offering a reward for its return. The next day a girl called at his restaurant. It was Miss Di-Conco. She had found the wallet.

Ragone produced the promised reward of $300 and offered it to her. She refused to take it. She agreed, however, to go to dinner with him. Friendship in the course of time ripened in-

Robs Fiancee's Home Day Before Wedding

San Francisco.-Private William Jensen, medical corps, U. S. A., and stationed at the Presidio here, was scheduled to appear before a minister to wed Miss Helen Hoeing. But all wedding plans temporarily were suspended when Jensen appeared in the police court to plead guilty to a charge of having burglarized the home of his prospective mother and father-in-law the night before.

Jensen confessed that after taking his fiancee and her parents to a theater he had escorted his guests home and later had returned and stolen some jewelry and an overcoat belonging to a brother of his flancee. He called at his fiancee's home with part of the stolen articles. He told his fiancee and her family that he had observed a man trying to burglarize the premises and had overr

GIANT FLASHLIGHTS ROCK WHOLE CITIES

Aerial Photographers Use Powerful Light Bombs.

Dayton, Ohio.-When the convention photographer says "Hold it!" and pulls the chain of his flash pan, he discharges only a pinch or two of flashlight powder. But when Lleut. George W. Goddard, army aviator, takes a flashlight of a city he explodes bombs measuring as much as ten feet in length and weighing as much as fifty pounds.

The detonation is so great that it is not a few frightened girls who jump and blink but a whole city that is shaking and hundreds of thousands of eyes that are temporarily blinded.

Several night photographs from airplanes have been taken of Dayton and of Rochester, N. Y. Soon all of the nation's greatest cities are to be "snapped" as gigantic bombs are released over them with their warlike crash and rumble.

High Explosives Used. The bombs are innocent looking affairs, resembling bolts of goods in a department store, but under the folds of cloth are separate compartments loaded with special high explosive powders concocted to give a quick brilliant light. Each of the compartments is connected to an electric fuse which explodes them all simultaneously

The bombs are carried under the fuselage of the airship and are dropped by the working of a lever as the plane reaches the designated point. There is first a discernible stream of sparks as the fuse burns and six seconds later comes the flare.

So efficiently are the bombs constructed and so accurately timed, that, although of such large proportions, they are exploded completely in as brief a space of time as one-fifteenth of a second. So complete is the explosion that there is no after

Too Quick for Human Eye. Never has the minutest bit of the bomb's covering been found afterward. The flash is so quick that although persons on the ground see the illumination it causes, they do not actually see the flare itself. It is too quick for the human eye.

In Dayton and Rochester photographers also were stationed at various points on the ground, in spires and on tall buildings to take panoramas of the surrounding country by the light of the bursting bomb. Some of these pictures have been exceptionally clear and have approximated daylight photographic work. The photographic plates are usually exposed when the warning trail of sparks is seen and are left exposed until after the flare. The shutters on the cameras carried by the planes in the test flights are usually four times as fast as those on the average commercial camera. Some of these cameras are between four and five feet long with 36inch lenses, measuring nine inches in They take photographs measuring nine by twenty-three inches. The usual height at which these pic tures are taken is 3,000 feet.

College Girl Writes

New York .- Although unable to use her hands, Henrietta Eidelsheim, has passed through primary and high school and now is a student at Hunter college, doing all her written exerclses with a pencil held in her teeth.

Her dream is to be a designer or a journalist, in which careers she would have to put her pencil to a more delicate use than she did in Henrietta is inclined to think she has done nothing unusual in triumphing over such a handicap.

"People talk as though what I have lone is remarkable," she said, "but it never occurred to me. I could not use my hands to write and I had to write to go to school and having nothing else I used my teeth."

Bite Army Volunteers Washington.—Submitting voluntariy to bites of mosquitoes infected with dengue fever, 70 enlisted men of the forces in the Philippines have been mentioned in general orders for displaying "a high sense of duty and soldierly conduct worthy of emulation by others," the War department has announced.

As a result of the study of the infected men, army doctors have ob tained valuable information for the treatment and prevention of the disease. The disease has now been reduced to slightly less than 20 in every 1,000, whereas in 1924 80 soldiers in every 1,000 in the Philippines suffered attacks of the fever.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

(by Dodd, Mead & Company.)

Alexander the Great

TWENTY-TWO-YEAR-OLD boy -undersized, red-headed, sickly -set out-more than 2,240 years ago with the modest intention of conquering the world. And he did it.

The boy was Alexander, king of the little northern Greek state of Macedonia. He is known as Alexander the Great.

In spite of the brave resistance at Marathon and elsewhere the barbarous world-power of Persia, after conquering practically all of Asia, had again turned its hordes against Greece, sweeping the whole luckless country and well-nigh stamping out the last smoldering sparks of civilization. This outrage Alexander determined to avenge. His father, King Philip, had made himself practical master of Greece, and Alexander himself, coming to the throne at the age of twenty, had completed that subjugation. Then he set himself to the task of crushing Persia. The plan was laughable in its audacity. Alexander's army of invasion consisted of barely 34,000 men. The Persian emperor, Darius, could put into the field millions of soldiers.

Nevertheless, with his well-drilled 34,000 Alexander crossed the Hellespont in 334 B. C. and marched boldly into Persian territory.

From the first he thrust aside the mighty but ill-organized resistance of the Persian armies and, as he advanced, his name spread terror among his foes and made his progress easier. He arrived at the ancient city of Gordium. There he was shown a charlot, whose pole was fastened to fts yoke by a curious and intricate knot. He was told that, according to prophecy, the man who could undo that knot should become lord of all Asia. Many had tried and failed. With one blow of his sword Alexander slashed the Gordian knot in two. The prophecy was considered fulfilled and he was hailed as the coming Asian ruler.

Meantime, Darius, with a host of 600,000 men, marched against the youthful conqueror. Alexander lured him into the narrow valley of Issus, and there, where there was no room for the huge Persian army to deploy, fell upon and routed it.

Onward marched Alexander, conquering everywhere, seizing Syria and Egypt and pushing ahead toward the Persian capital. Darius, with another incredibly huge army, opposed him at Arbela, but the Persian host fled at Alexander's first charge. The conqueror continued on his triumphant way, capturing all Persia and pushing forward to India. After stubborn resistance from the native king, Porus, he subdued the whole land.

Persia, as in the time of Marathon, was a more or less barbarous country. Greece was still the stronghold of culture and education. Wherever Alexander's conquests went civilization and learning went also.

Alexander was for continuing his onward march after the conquest of With Pencil in Teeth India, but his wearied soldiers refused to go farther into the unknown When reluctantly, he turned back, envoys from nearly every country in the world met him, offering submission.

Now that, as master of the world, he could rest, the less worthy side of Alexander's nature cropped out. He declared that no mortal man could have achieved all that he had and that he must therefore be a god, the son of Jupiter. He went on to assert that as mankind must, after his death, worship him as a god they might as well begin at once. Callisthenes, one of his wisest counselors, opposed the plan, declaring it blasphemous. Alexander had him tortured and killed. As a lad Alexander had had three tutors. One had taught him to believe himself a delty. Another had disciplined kim severely and had striven to teach him humility. The third (Aristotle) had imparted to him the love of learning. Having practiced the Frecepts of the second and third tutors and thereby winning the world, he now turned to the mad teachings of the first.

He declared himself a god and believed it. He tried to make his army acknowledge him as son of Jupiter. He took to drinking heavily, and in his cups would boast loudly of his own greatness. On one of these occasions he claimed credit not only for what he himself had done, but for heroic feats performed by others long s born. His dearest remonstrated with him friend, Clitn for these lie and Alexander, snatching a spear om a guard, ran him ed by his own terrible through. deed the un ppy monarch declared me truth, not fit to live and tried t arve himself to death.
