M'DERMITT REUNION IS SET FRIDAY

HOME TOWN, GOSSIP

Maybe we're getting too old, then may be its just the heat. At any rate our stock as a "marriage predictor" has certainly depreciated this season. Right when we thought our hand was on the pulse of the local situation, we get the surprise of the Summer.

Maxine Heyroth and Lawrence Newton, without even questioning this oracle, slipped off to Eastland Saturday night and recited the vows of matrimony. We knew the Newton-Heyroth situation was getting serious, however, we were apparently two "snoops" behind.

Well here's our sanction, without which no marriage is complete: May blessing around, the newly-weds abound.

Nat Williams, the handsome Cross Plains school teacher, has tooted his horn so loud and long about his supremacy to this frail pencil pusher on the athletic field, that we have decided to call his hand.

Dear Mr. Williams: If you receive this paper before the McDermitt picnic (which you should not due to the fact that your subscription is five years in arrears) we defy you to accept the following challenge. We will meet you in a footrace of 75 yards or over in the arena of the McDermitt picnic, Friday. Barefoot, spiked shoes or cowboy boots, choose your weapon and have no alibies when our dust causes you to stumble, miserably beaten. Will the professor accept? Our guess is that he will not.

Things have reached a pitiful stage when a man's 12 year old son can come town and do business, when the father is of the opinion that it's too hot too work. Such is the case of F. R. Anderson, our across street neighbor, who offers for sale Chevrolet automobiles.

One afternoon last week Phil and his second in command Babe Wood were seeking refuge from the heat in the sanctum of the local automobile agency, each lamenting no business could be done until it rained. In walked Phil's son, who asked for how much he would sell a certain car, which he had in stock. Phil replied indifferently. The youth asked again: How much would you allow for a 1931 model Ford, town sedan. Phil again replied indifferently.

Young Anderson walked out got the car in question and drove away. Shortly thereafter he returned announced that he had made a trade on the basis mentioned by his father and would like to have a bill of sale to consummate his deal. Phil and Babe stared at each other like two spanked puppies.

The boy made a sale and fixed up the papers while they were lamenting the drought and opining "that it was no use."

Getting back to our topic of romance, nuptials and prospects for same, we believe A. O. (Slim) Harris is just about that way over a certain lady. They're together every night, Watch this department for future developments.

Most recent victims of Dan Cupid's lasso of love are J. T. Halbert, of this place, and Miss Maudie Allen, of Abilene. They were bound by the ties of wedlock Monday. The groom was wearing a smile Thursday morning, twice its natural size and the bride appeared equally thrilled. Sail on, oh! love ship, sail on.

Mrs. Porter Henderson and son, formerly of Dallas, are visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Butler here at present, before going to Ballinger where they will join Mr. Henderson, who has been made manager of a large hardware concern there.

Texas Democrats Will Make Final Choice Saturday

GO TO BALLOT BOX TO NAME STANDARD BEARERS OF PARTY

Months of diligent campaigning and fervent appeals from virtually every stump in the state will be weighed in the balance Saturday, as Texan Democrats go to the polls to nominate standard bearers for the party in the general election to be held in November.

Callahan will have but two positions to fill from the run-off balloting. They are County Superintendent, in which A. L. Johnson, incumbent, and E. C. Chrisman are pitted, and District Clerk, in which Mrs. Flora Nordyke and Mrs. Will Kylee, both new comers to politics, are candidates.

Precinct chairman have estimated that about 2,500 votes will be cast, which is 600 short of the first primary tabulation.

Arrangements were being made in Cross Plains yesterday to secure the returns in town Saturday night. The election party will be held from McAdams Motor Company, on Main Street, in the same fashion as was followed the night of July 28.

Election judges will exercise the same accuracy and speed in reporting the returns Saturday night as they did a month ago. The law now requires that the count be announced promptly at seven o'clock and each succeeding half hour thereafter.

Voting in Cross Plains will take place at the Anderson Chevrolet building.

FEED PRODUCED ON RENTED LAND GOES TO TENANT FARMER

Owing to the constant demand for some definite ruling on the division of rental as expected by the government, J. C. Garrett was asked as a producer to write for such information. We quote the entire letter:

College station, Texas August 15, 1934. Mr. J. C. Garrett, Cross Plains, Texas.

We have your letter of August 14 in which you state that you have permitted your half and half tenant to receive one-half of the grain produced on the rented acres.

Pleased be advised that your tenants are to receive all the grain or other feed and food crops produced on the government rented acres. Of course, if the tenants used your teams and tools in cultivating the rented acres, they should be required to pay you for their use. As landlord you are not entitled to any use of the rented acres.

Yours very truly, G. E. Adams, Special Cotton Agent A sst. State Agent

"This letter is so plain that I believe all will understand that no landlord can hope to get rent from his rented acres, unless it was agreeably settled upon before the contract was accepted by the Secretary of Agriculture," said Ross B. Jenkins, County Agent.

E. V. Carter, of Brownwood, told the Review this week that he would open a store house on Main Street in Cross Plains within the next few days and begin to buy wool and mutton. He was negotiating to rent a building on Eighth Street yesterday.

Jenkins Explains Progress Of Cattle Slaughtering In County

By Ross B. Jenkins County Agent

During the week August 15 through August 22 more than 1000 Callahan County cattle were bought by the government. There were 450 accepted by the appraiser Lee Hufstuder and B. A. I. inspector, A. W. Thomas for shipment. The other cattle were condemned. Many of the condemned cattle were calves that would not stand to ship and also the condemnation were made from ranches where the better cattle are yet to be shipped.

There is allowed but 450 shipping cattle from the county per week and since there are now approximately some 10,000 listed for sale it is easily seen that the program is going to run into the winter. It is hoped that too much impatience will not be manifested as it is impossible to help everyone at once. Farmers must make what ever necessary preparations that are required to care for their livestock and not count too much on quick relief.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Dodson, of DeLeon and formerly of this place, visited here the first of last week.

It may be that as the program progresses that a larger quota will be offered for shipping.

The county agent is hopeful that every stockman in the county will write a letter to Dr. H. L. Darby, S. W. Annex Old Post Office Bld., Fort Worth, Texas and tell him the conditions here and ask for a B.A.I. inspector that can stay in our county all the week and condemn cattle on the days when actual shipping is not in progress. This will help relieve the range of some stock and will save our rapidly drying water holes. Write also to Geo. W. Barnes, Drouth Relief Director, College Station Texas and ask for the same thing. That will strengthen the plea from the county agent for this service.

Word was received this week that 204 contracts were approved by the State Corn-Hog Review Board and sent to Washington for payment. It was also stated that the checks should be expected in about 30 days.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Lowe have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Frank King of Longview.

Texans Ready To Sing Swan Song To "Mudslinging"

By Jack Scott

A movement is gaining momentum within the ranks of the Democratic party that may revolutionize the procedure of candidates in conducting their campaigns in the future. It would do away with "mudslinging", "back-biting" practices and place politics upon a higher plane.

In view of the slanderous practices which have marked political campaign in Texas for the past decade, the idea seems refreshing and worthy of adoption at this time. Citizens are tired and bitterly opposed the "circus side show" plan and are ready to welcome a better one, which is reported to be meeting with public approval over the broad expanse of the lone star state.

If adopted by the party, the plan would be placed into operation thoroughly—from the campaigning for a county office to the one within the highest gift of the people.

The old "mud-slinging", character destroying procedure has created biased issues and so confused and confounded voters that the candidates who steered clear of the unethical procedure have been at a disadvantage and as a result Texas politics has degenerated to a low ebb.

Politically speaking, however, the dawn of a brighter day—one in which citizens may hear judge without prejudice—appears to be brightening the Texas horizon. For the sake of Democracy, the "cleaner plan" must be adopted, if not, the fundamental pillars which have supported the grand organization will inevitably crack and crumble.

Many sincere and high charactered men and women have entered the field of politics in recent years, intending and pledged to themselves, to keep their candidacies open and above board, clean of mudslinging and back-biting, however, when they failed to reply to the abusive, slanderous assertions of opponents, they have been charged with "having no reply to offer for their vindication". Thus naturally, these men and women who offered themselves for public service have been forced to do one of two things; either ignore the stinging assertions, or step down to the lower level and choose the same weapon of defense.

It is time for citizens, who have hope for the future to intervene. It is time for the voters to assemble together and form a code of ethics to govern future political campaigns in Texas. Eastland and Taylor counties are already taking strides in this direction. Callahan, let's do the same.

A meeting of the citizenry should be called at each precinct and a "platform of fair political ethics" written. The numerous precinct ideas should be drafted into a Callahan county "rule of honesty and fairness for candidates". And in the future when office seekers stray from the principles of those rules, citizens should assert their power and supremacy by a lot of scratching at the polls. Such action may save Texas political domination in the future and elect only clean minded men and women to places of honor.

COMMUNITY FAIR AT SABANNO FRIDAY IS SUCCESSFUL EVENT

Eastland county's first community fair of the season was held at Sabanno Friday. A crowd estimated at 600 was in attendance. The exhibits, according to Ruth Ramey, Eastland Home Demonstration Agent, were unusually good for dry weather and helped the fair to be the success that it was.

One of the most interesting parts of the program was an old spinning wheel exhibited in operation by Mrs. G. B. Bell. Mrs. Bell had spun many yards of yarn, and make socks, gloves, bed spreads and a scarf within the last few months. A group of local girls sang "The Old Spinning Wheel" while Mrs. Bell demonstrated what was done years ago and what can be done when yarn is needed for knitting. Ball games, races and other forms of entertainment were carried out during the day.

Purpose of the Sabanno community fair—as well as other community fairs in Eastland county—is to create interest and competition for the county fair which is to be held at Eastland from September 19 through September 22.

Field crops and fruit and garden exhibits were judged by M. O. Hood, Vocational Agriculture teacher at Rising Star, who also announced the community fair to be held there September 14 and 15.

A number of Cross Plains people attended the exhibition at Sabanno and returned home with high praise for that section.

Prize winners in the various divisions of the Sabanno community fair follow:

Yeast bread: Mrs. Edwin Erwin, first, and Mrs. Finis Marshall, second.

Doughnuts: Mrs. W. E. Lusk, first place.

PETROLEUM MEN MEET AT BAIRD NEXT THURSDAY

The Review is informed in a communication from O. L. Black, of Baird, that a meeting will be held at the court house there Thursday night, August 30, for the purpose of organizing this county as a sub-zone with a local committee to handle business pertaining to the petroleum code. The meeting will be county wide and all interested in marketing petroleum products are requested to be present, Mr. Black stated. E. W. Berry, district chairman, will be present at the meeting.

J. T. HALBERT WED TO ABILENE LADY

J. T. Halbert, of this place, and Miss Maudie Allen, of Abilene, were married Monday at the bride's home with the Rev. Virgil Reynolds, pastor of the Trinity Baptist church at Abilene, officiating.

The couple came to Cross Plains Tuesday and are making their home at the Halbert residence in the East part of town.

The ceremony came as a complete surprise to friends of the couple both in Cross Plains and Abilene.

Winfred Carter of Austin and Cathrine Carter of Dallas spent the week end here with Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Buatt.

Tomorrow To Tell

Tomorrow will tell which of the two pictured below will be the next Attorney General of Texas. Top is Walter Woodward, of Coleman, and beneath is William McCraw, of Dallas. The race is expected to be one of the closest in history for the place of the "people's attorney".

FALL IS FATAL TO J. M. REYNOLDS, 59, GIN MAN, AT BAIRD

Funeral for J. M. Reynolds, 59, Baird ginmer who died Monday from injuries received while repairing a smokestack, were held at 3 p. m. Tuesday from the First Methodist church there.

Mr. Reynolds, manager of the Baird Gin company, had climbed to the roof of the gin with E. B. Brown, Saturday afternoon, and the two were working on a smokestack. Losing his footing, Mr. Reynolds slipped down the roof slope and to the ground, 20 feet below. His shoulder was crushed and several ribs fractured, resulting in death at 1 a. m. Monday.

Rev. Cal C. Wright of Colorado, officiated for the funeral, assisted by the Rev. Sam H. Young, of Snyder. Burial was made in the Eula cemetery, ten miles southwest of Baird.

Pallbearers were Robert L. Edwards, Fred Hollingshead, Red Kelson, E. B. Brown, Ben L. Russell, Jr., and Bill Works.

J. M. Reynolds, was born in Johnson county, July 18, 1875, and was married, in Ellis county, to Miss Emma Smith, October 25, 1896.

J. W. PARKINSON, 79 INTERRED WEDNE'DAY

J. W. Parkinson, 79, who died at his home Northeast of Cross Plains Tuesday of last week, was interred in the Oakwood cemetery Wednesday afternoon. Funeral services were conducted from the Oakwood funeral home, at Cisco, with Rev. S. P. Collins, Cross Plains minister, conducting the services.

Mr. Parkinson was born in Victoria County, Texas, and came to Eastland county, Texas, where he resided by his wife until the death of all of whom.

Funeral services were held at the home of Mrs. S. M. Buatt.

BARBECUE DINNER AND RODEO TO BE PROGRAM FEATURE

Old timers will be honored guests today at the annual McDermitt Picnic and old settlers reunion, at the McDermitt ranch seven miles West of Cross Plains. Barbecue and basket luncheon at noon, tournament riding, potlatch races, barrel races, shetland exhibitions, candidate speaking, old fiddlers contests and wild cow milking are features of the program.

5,000 people are expected and arrangements have been made to accommodate a crowd of that size.

About 50 men interested in starting the celebration this year met at the rodeo pens on the McDermitt ranch Sunday afternoon and laid plans for today's celebration.

The picnic which was an annual affair until last year when it was omitted due to the serious illness of the late "Uncle" Charlie McDermitt has been a popular event in this section for a number of years. Today's event "will be bigger and better than ever before", Hugh McDermitt has stated.

A public address system will be on the ground to insure perfect hearing of the candidates' addresses and to make announcements of the rodeo attractions.

Everything is free to the public and everyone is invited to bring a well filled basket and attend. Review is informed.

The rodeo, which is always a high spot in the picnic, will begin at four o'clock. Candidates will be given time to present their candidacies shortly after noon. County and district candidates are expected to be on hand, as well as representatives for the two gubernatorial candidates James V. Alred and Tom F. Hunter.

LOCAL GIRL WED TO CROSS CUT MAN AT EASTLAND SATURDAY

Coming as a complete surprise to many friends in Cross Plains and in Cross Cut was the marriage Saturday evening of Miss Maudie Heyroth, of this place, and Lawrence Newton, of Cross Cut. The rites were solemnized at Eastland with the Rev. Stanford, Methodist pastor of that place, officiating.

The couple was accompanied to Eastland by Mr. and Mrs. Newton Anderson, of Cross Cut, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe White, of Cross Plains. The rites were solemnized shortly after seven o'clock Saturday evening in the Methodist parsonage at Eastland.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Heyroth, of this place. She was graduated from Cross Plains high school with the class of '32 and has been prominent in social activities among the younger set for several years. The groom is the son of O. B. Newton, prominent resident of the Cross Plains community. He is a graduate Abilene high school and had honore work at McMurry College also at Abilene.

The couple will make their home in Cross Plains. He will operate the Welcome Service Station, on South Main Street.

Sidney Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Brown and Mrs. Clark Brown visited in the home of W. A. McGowen here the week.

Mrs. George B. Scott is visiting her mother, Mrs. J. B. Cutbirth in Baird at present.

Wynell McClure, of Spur, is visiting in the M. C. Baum home there.

by BRUCE BARTON

THE FIRST MIRACLE

THE tenth in our list of the disciples is Thomas, a body fellow who insisted on thinking things out for himself. "Doubting Thomas" he has been called because after the resurrection, when some of the disciples claimed to have seen Jesus, Thomas answered stoutly: "Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe."

It is unfair to Thomas to remember only his doubt and to forget that when the disciples were trying to persuade Jesus from His last dangerous journey to Jerusalem it was this same Thomas who exclaimed, "Let us also go, that we may die with him."

There was a number eleven another Simon, whose name, "the zealot," does not mean that he personally was of an over-zealous disposition but that he had been a participant in one of the sporadic revolutions against Roman authority.

And finally there was Judas, the only one of the twelve who was not a Galilean but who, as a member of the royal tribe of Judah, felt himself superior to the crowd of fishermen, publicans and common folk. Better educated than the rest, a man of business ability, he was treasurer.

When Jesus said, "Take no thought for the morrow, for what shall we eat or what shall we drink, it may have sounded all right to the other eleven, but you can imagine the look of mingled cynicism and worry on the face of Judas who had to pay the bills. Equipped by talent and training to be of larger service than any of the others, he was the only traitor.

These, then, were the "twelve" who were destined to change human history.

The public life of Jesus appears to have covered just three years: a year of organization and small beginnings; a year of dramatic deeds and great success; a year of diminishing popularity and disappointments.

He started quietly in the little towns near His home, talking to whomever would listen where people gathered.

There was a marriage in the neighboring village of Cana, and He was invited with His mother. At a critical moment in the celebration Mary caught a look of distress in the eyes of the hostess and with quick feminine instinct divined the situation. The wine had given out. There occurred then the first miracle of Jesus, the transforming of water into wine.

Very few sermons are preached about this miracle, and it is usually glossed over as being not quite in keeping with the character of His life and work. But it was significant.

Santa Anna News

Leonardtown, Md.—In Calvert County, residents reported the sun became so hot that it baked potatoes in the field, but garden owners in this St. Mary's County town report watermelons so hot that they got up heads of steam and exploded.

Those are the stories going the rounds and people stick to them. The watermelon episode occurred during a recent rain, 'tis said. It seems there had been no rain for several weeks and the melons had been getting hotter and hotter.

When finally it did rain, the sudden change in temperature caused the melons to blow their ends with audible "pops."

There was no safety valves so the melons blew out their ends with audible "pops."

Lotief Replies to Slanderous Unfair 11th Hour Propoganda

Slanderous, unfair and unjust, eleventh hour propoganda has been injected into the campaign to defeat me for re-election to a second term in the State Legislature. Assertions, which are without truth or fact, have been made against me injuring the good name that I have been striving to establish for myself and family.

Coming as they have, at the very close of the campaign, I have been given no chance to reply to these abusive untruths. However, I take this means of telling you again that I entered this country with one objective: to make a substantial, law abiding citizen. And never have I faltered from this purpose. The records reveal that I have never been arrested, or indicted. Never have I taken bankruptcy or failed to pay an honest debt. I have not resorted to corrupt practices to gain your suffrage in the past and neither do I intend to do so now.

My opponents remind me of a drowning man who grasps for a straw to support him. They realize that they are beaten and are grasping at the "straw" of eleventh hour propoganda to stem the tide. Texans do not approve of this procedure and will, I believe, vindicate my good name and record with a landslide at the polls Saturday.

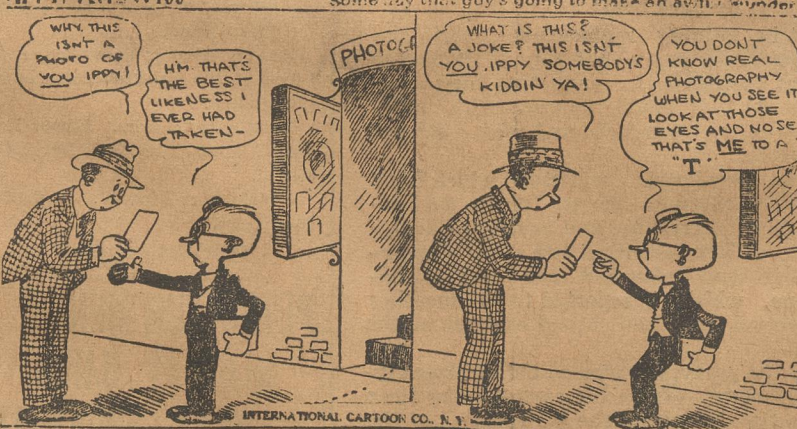

The money lenders and seekers of special favor are fighting me "teeth and toenail" for they know I will remain loyal to the plain people and masses of Texas. I pledge to you again that I will be loyal to your trust if elected and strive untiringly to further the program I have launched for the farmer, laboring man and masses of this great state.

Trusting that you will stand by me on election day, thus denouncing the unfair, unjust, eleventh hour propoganda that is being fired against me—with no fair opportunity to reply—I am,

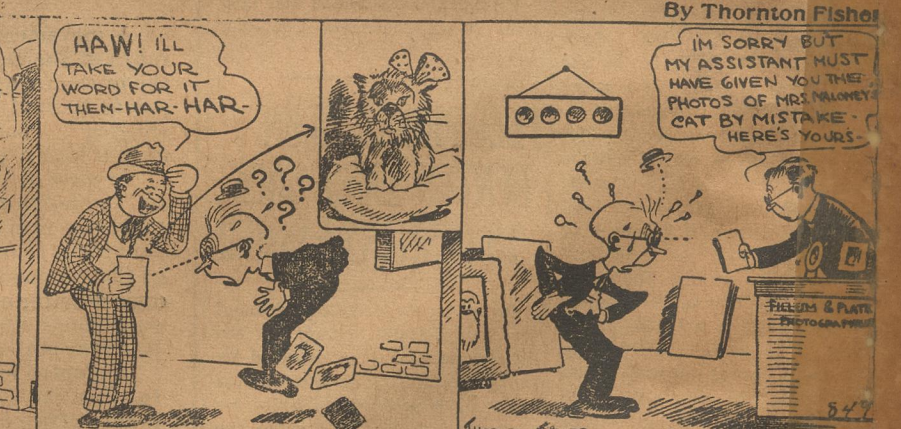

Your Servant,

Cecil A. Lotief

CORRECTION

The attention of the Review has been called to an error which appeared in the account of the death and burial of Thomas (Mack) Mitchell—brother of Mrs. A. J. Mathis—in the week before last issue of the paper. The Review stated that Mr. Mitchell was well known in Cross Plains having visited his sister Mrs. Mathis here on numerous occasions and having at one time been associated with G. R. Erwin in the mercantile business here. Mr. Mitchell was associated with W. R. Irvin and not G. R. Erwin in the mercantile business. Mr. Irvin was an early settler in Callahan county and was exceedingly well known in this section.

The Review apologizes to all concerned for the error.

Maid Saves Anne From Cleo's Scheme

Tenth Installment

SYNOPSIS

Three weeks after a cream colored roadster had been found wrecked in the sea at the foot of a cliff, a girl calling herself Anne Cushing appears at the desert town Marston. She has bought, sight unseen, a ranch located thirty miles away. Barry Duane, her nearest neighbor and his man Boone Petry procure a reliable woman for her and in Barry's car, loaded down with supplies, they start across the desert. In Marston her reticence has aroused suspicion. Barry and Anne become more than neighbors, and when Anne is lost in the hills and rescued by Barry, each realizes that something more than friendship exists between them.

"Certainly, if you wish," Mrs. Duane agreed politely. "Thank you for the book, my dear. As for your driving, I am sure that it is better than having no one with you but that new chauffeur. I don't like his looks, Cleo."

"Oh, I know Kennedy looks wicked. I think he isn't used to this kind of work, and taking orders from women makes him sulky. I think he'll soon be settled down, for he seems to be very much interested in one of your maids. I'm sure I caught sight of him waiting outside when I came tonight."

"I must look into that," Mrs. Duane's voice was edged.

"What's the use? They'll only deny it," Cleo shrugged lazily.

"Dear me, I believe we're going to see the clandestine meeting. How exciting."

Down the shadowed path a girl's figure moved quickly. She skirted the far end of the garden and went with slower steps toward the hedge.

The hedge was lower at the end of the garden. On the other side of it a man nodded slightly and moved along toward the rear.

The girl in the garden followed. Cleo was on her feet, breathing long sobs.

"Oh, Mrs. Duane, please forgive me. I didn't dream—I didn't mean to intrude like this. I'll never forgive myself—I'll go now."

"By ear Cleo, you have not intruded in the least. I shall speak to Bertha, of course."

"Face-faced in the darkness, Mrs. Duane held her head high. No one, even Cleo Pendleton, should be allowed to discuss this shameful thing with her."

Cleo grimaced slightly, unseen. The lights flashed on. But after Cleo had gone she plunged the room into darkness again and stood rigidly unyielding.

"My son's wife!" Her face was white in the darkness. Barry was reading when his mother entered the library.

"Still up? But I suppose you had callers."

"It was Cleo," said his mother briefly. "Barry, I wish you would come with me to my rooms."

Quickly. "Of course, I will. Anything wrong there?"

"Everything is wrong," said Mrs. Duane bitterly. "I have had the humiliation of seeing my son's wife steal out through the garden at night to meet another man."

"Mother!" There was a note in Barry's voice that she had never heard before. "I am afraid," he said carefully, "that I shall have to ask you to explain that extraordinary statement."

"I have told you. Come and see for yourself."

"Nancy and I don't spy on each other. Besides, she went to her room with a headache. Why do you assume that it was she?"

"Our maids do not appear in evening dress."

"Nancy gave Bertha one of hers last week. Someone had spilled coffee on it."

"It was not Bertha," said Mrs. Duane coldly. "I know it was Anne. The man was obviously waiting for her, I did not see his face, but I have the unpleasant knowledge that a common chauffeur—that insolent creature who drives Cleo—was hanging around outside only a little while before."

"You didn't even see them meet?" He laid a pleading hand on her arm. "Mother, why can't you be kinder to Nancy? Do you think that it has been pleasant for me to see that my mother refuses to accept my wife as her daughter?"

"Do you think that it is pleasant for your mother to know that this place is buzzing with sordid innuendo because Barry Duane's wife never refers to a single day of her life before she came to that barbarous place where you met her?"

"And who has been spreading such precious gossip as that?" The moment of pleading was gone. For the first time Mrs. Duane was afraid of the thing she had done.

"I overheard it," she said with dignity. "The very way it was said showed that it was common gossip."

"Who said it?" His eyes were blazing.

"How should I know? It is enough that it could be said at all." He did not answer immediately.

"I suppose it is impossible to escape the malice of other women's tongues."

"It is useless to argue with you. But I know what I have heard and what I have seen tonight. Once more, Barry, will you come and see for yourself."

"I will not."

Mrs. Duane went stiffly back to the door.

"You are your own master, and I am only your mother, pushed aside for a woman you scarcely know. But the time will come when your eyes will be opened. And you will regret this night as long as you live."

For several minutes after his mother left him Barry paced gloomily up and down the library. The whole thing was sickening, and that his mother should have been the one to bring this precious story to him had left him worried and depressed. Why were women so hard on each other? Even his mother—

The trouble probably was that rancorous gossip. He flushed darkly at the recollection. So Nancy's name was being bandied about like that? Whispering devil of suspicion slyly jogged his elbow and was thrust out of the way.

He could easily settle this. All he needed to do was to go upstairs and look in at Nancy. He smiled to himself and swung quickly toward the stairs.

Barry let himself in quietly. Anne was not there.

He turned toward the door, blindly. There was the slight sound of its opening. Anne stood there, staring at him.

"Oh—Barry!" She said breathlessly. "You scared me."

His eyes swung over her swiftly, maliciously, dropped to the perfectly worn slippers. On the floor, he saw the long earth again, so that he scarcely heard his own voice. "Anne, where have you been?"

Before that hard note she stopped short.

"Why, Barry, what is the matter?"

"Where have you been at this hour of the night?"

"At this hour? Why, it isn't late. I've been in the garden. Barry, what is the matter?"

"Within the past half hour I have had to listen to a sickening story that you were meeting somebody's chauffeur out in the garden. She felt suddenly sick and tired. Barry's mother must have seen her and carried the story to him in bitter triumph. Who else hated her enough to do that? She wanted to tell him the whole hateful story, but she must not."

"Somebody must have been willing to carry tales about me to have hurried the news to you as quickly as that." She saw him flush, but she went on bitterly. "And whether I was there or not, I won't talk about it! I won't I'll say things that we'll both be sorry for." Her hands went up to her throbbing temples. They really throbbed now.

"Ring for Bertha, please, and stay until she comes."

He looked at her uneasily. He rang hastily and came back to her.

"I'm sorry if you're not well," he said jerkily. "Perhaps I'd better send for Dr. Carmichael."

"No, please, it's only my head." They waited for Bertha in uncomfortable silence. There was a tap on the door, but it was Ellen's broad face which appeared.

"I rang for Bertha. Isn't she here?" Ellen was a new maid. She grinned companionably.

"Yes'm, in a way, but it's her night out. She's been to a party, Ma'am, lookin' as pretty as a pitcher, in the grand dress ye give her, and this good half hour she's been standing at the end of the drive saying good-night to the young felly Quinn's Garage. Is there anything I can do, Ma'am."

"Bring me some ice cubes, Ellen. I've a headache."

The door closed on Ellen. Anne scarcely breathed.

"Nancy, forgive me! I've been a brute and I ought to be kicked for it."

He drew her around with coaxing hands.

"Don't you know I love you, Barry? There isn't anybody else but you. There couldn't be."

"I know," he muttered. "It's because you're so much to me, Nancy—I think I'd go mad if you ever let me down."

She tried not to shiver, quaking a little at the narrowness of escape. Luck had been kind to Cleo. Mrs. Duane, outraged and bitter, would go straight to Barry with her story. Cleo felt brightly contended as she snuggled down behind the wheel.

The driveway wound toward the end of the grounds in a double curve. The light of the roadster swung around and picked up two startled figures, hastily backing out of their flaring range. One of them was Bertha.

"Alibi!" Cleo said under her breath. "Damn!"

It was close to midnight when Kennedy strolled back to that smaller chateau which housed the Pendleton fleet of cars and their attendants, and he was met by a message that Miss Cleo wanted to see him. Kennedy was half sulky about it. Some deviltry, or he missed his guess.

Cleo received him in the Chinese room.

"I'm thinking of getting a new car, Kennedy. Do you know anything about racing cars?"

"A little." Kennedy's eyes narrowed slightly. He hesitated, and the desire to show that he had not always been at an employer's beck and call was too much for him. "I know their points pretty well," he added carelessly. "I've driven my own now and then."

"Really?" Cleo smiled encouragingly. "That was before you—er—gave up the Forty-Ninth Street house, wasn't it?"

All the lines of Kennedy's face sharpened.

"About that time," he said briefly. "So you've been looking up my record?"

"It wasn't necessary, Kennedy. You're quite well known."

He stared back at her suspicious and half truculent. "Well, you know, I didn't try to get the job under an assumed name, anyway."

"Oh yes, I'm perfectly satisfied, Kennedy. But of course I know that a man of your experience isn't taking a chauffeur's position except for some special reason. Does John Gage know that you are in Granleigh?"

It must have been a sharp jolt for Kennedy, but this time his face—the gambler's face, after all—was absolutely expressionless.

"That's too deep for me," he answered indifferently. "If you mean the big fellow, I don't know what he knows. I've never met him."

"Not even that night last May, when this happened?" Cleo's hand rested for a moment against the filmy turquoise of her gown, just below her heart.

"You've had a busy day," he said dryly.

Things have a habit of coming my way, Kennedy. And I know you went out tonight to keep an appointment with Mrs. Barry Duane, and just where you met her—and by the way, how very much she looks like Miss Curtis! You're a wonderful driver, Kennedy, but you haven't any intention of staying on here as a chauffeur. You're here for money, Kennedy, big money. I'm afraid the courts would call it blackmail."

Kennedy listened, outwardly unmoved but taking lively account of this new situation.

"What's your game?" he asked bluntly.

"I'm not playing, Kennedy." Kennedy took the hint.

"My error." He temporized astutely. "But I got the idea that you wanted me to do something for you."

"Perhaps you could." She considered him thoughtfully. There is someone in Granleigh whose presence is going to bring danger and unhappiness to some close friends of mine. Some day there will be a scandal, and she will be forced to leave in disgrace. It would be better for everybody concerned if she went away quietly, before her past became known."

"You want me to get Duane's wife out of the way—"

He had an unpleasant way of stripping facts naked and making her look at them.

"I wish her to go away. Alone." "Reno, or a Mexican divorce."

The best way to prove that Chevrolet's Knee-Action actually makes motoring twice as pleasant as before is to drive the new Chevrolet over all kinds of roads. You will find that the continuous jars you used to get even on smooth pavements are ended. The steering wheel is free of vibration. Back seat passengers are comfortable and relaxed. You can maintain higher speeds over rough roads that used to slow you down. You will find, in fact, that probably for the first time in your experience, every foot of every mile is equally enjoyable.

This fine feature is combined in the new Chevrolet with beautiful, luxurious Fisher Bodies, safe, weatherproof, cable-controlled brakes, the flashing performance of an 80-horsepower engine, and the great economy of six-cylinder, valve-in-head construction. This combination is exclusive with Chevrolet. Perhaps that explains why so many people are buying and recommending this extremely low-priced car.

F. H. A. EXPLAINED IN QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS METHOD

Q. If a remodeling job costs more than $2,000 what can be done about it?

A. The borrower may obtain $2,000 under the insured loan plan, and contract for additional money from the same lending institution or from some other source.

Q. When an owner wishes to borrow, what does he do?

A. If he knows exactly the kind and extent of the work he wants done, he applies for a loan directly to any lending institution in his community which is cooperating with the government program. The local committee has a list of all such institutions. If, however, as will most often be the case, his reconditioning plans are indefinite, he may do one of three things:

1. He may apply for advice to the local committee, which is staffed with technical and financial experts. Some committees will offer free property inspection service.

2. He may obtain the counsel of a local architect. Where major repairs or any structural changes are involved, the retention of an architect will favorably influence the granting of loans.

3. He may retain an approved local contractor to inspect the property, make preliminary cost estimate. The local committee will have a list of approved contractors.

TO THE VOTERS OF CALLAHAN COUNTY

Saturday the 25th, the voters of Callahan County will go to the polls and select a County Superintendent for the coming four years. When you go to mark your ballot for this office, I shall certainly appreciate your favorable consideration. I have tried, and I believe I have run a clean race, saying nothing that could be construed to reflect adversely upon my opponents. In return for your support next Saturday please accept my sincere thanks, and if elected, I want to assure you that all my time and effort will be devoted to making Callahan County Schools measure up to the best standard in the state.

Sincerely, B. C. CHRISMAN

TO MY FRIENDS AND CITIZENS OF CALLAHAN COUNTY:

I wish to take this means of thanking the people for their influence and support in my candidacy for District Clerk. I have tried to see all of the people in the county and if I have missed anyone, I did not do so intentionally, and as most of you know I was out for some 50 or 60 days on account of an infected leg.

I think all know I was left a widow seven years ago and a little girl to make a living for. I have worked early and late and at different jobs but for the last two years have been washing.

I own no land, no property; just what I have to wash with is all I have. I can get this office through your influence and support only. I am asking for this office because I know I am qualified for the place and because it will enable me to make a better living for me and my girl. And if on the 25th I am your choice I promise and pledge to one and all my very best.

Very truly yours, MRS. WILL RYLEE

A Rattle—Not Corn

WASHINGTON . . . After twenty years of exhibition by the Smithsonian Institute as the "oldest ear of corn on earth" it has been found that the ear was moulded from clay, baked in a slow fire and is a rattle. . . It is valuable nevertheless, showing the art of the ancients years ago.

My First Trip To Texas A & M Short Course At College Station

On Sunday morning July 29th, I joined county agent, Ross B. Jenkins, at Baird for a trip to the Texas A&M Silver Anniversary Short Course. At Putnam we picked up two more 4-H Club boys, Newell Odell and Bobby Williams. Our first stop of importance was at the Waco Dam, one of the most beautiful lakes being formed by the new dam, which is built across the Brazos River. From the lake we visited beautiful Cameron Park, which is threaded with winding roads and trails and covered with tennis courts and rustic benches and lunch tables. The things of most interest to us were the artesian wells that flowed over fountains and emptied into the Brazos river.

After some three hours travel from Waco we reached College Station, home of Texas A&M College. It was about eight o'clock when we arrived to find around four thousand men, women, boys and girls collected from every section of the State. So much greater was the crowd that the officials were not prepared to care for all the first night. Our agent had reserved rooms before we left Baird but his room rent was returned and only Bobby and Newell were allowed to stay in the dormitory. We found a nice place to stay about a mile from the school at which Mr. Jenkins had once spent a summer while in school. Many other people were forced to town or camped out in the college park.

Monday morning at eight o'clock the 4-H Club boys and girls met at Guion Hall for the election of officers and inspirational meeting. Paul Murray of Wills Point, was elected president and Thelma Swartz of Independence was elected Secretary of the State 4-H Clubs. After election the boys and girls were addressed by Dr. W. H. Andrews, pastor of the Baptist church and Mr. E. C. Martin, director of the 4-H clubs of the state. Our song leader was Miss Mary Wilson of San Antonio, who lead such songs as "The Old Spinning Wheel", "The Plowing Song," "The Old Kitchen Kettle" and other well known songs. These inspirational meetings were held every morning from eight until nine o'clock and always some famous man or woman would speak to us. Possibly the most popular speaker with the boys was Mr. O. H. Benson, chief of the Boy Scouts of America, from New York. He spoke one morning of "The Winner and another time of "The man and woman of tomorrow". Professor Dan Russell of the college told of his plan whereby he is helping poor boys to earn a way through school. Other speakers of interest were Mr. Fitch, regional director of Boy Scouts, Miss Peggy Morris, reporter for the Farm and Ranch publications, and Dr. Andrews.

PIONEER P. T. A. IS ACTIVE; PRE-SCHOOL CHILDREN EXAMINED

Pioneer Parent Teachers Association held an examination last week for pre-school children, who will enroll for their first time next month. 19 children were examined by Dr. F. C. Payne, of Rising Star, and Dr. J. H. McGowen, of Cross Plains, in keeping with the national P.T.A. project to start children in school with the very best physical condition possible.

Committees on this week showed unusual activity and conducted the examination in time for any ailment to be corrected before the scheduled opening of school.

A meeting of the officers of the P.T.A. was held Monday, with Mrs. W. B. Gunn, president, in charge and plans and objectives for the ensuing year were outlined. School is slated to open at Pioneer, August 27.
