CITY SWELTERS IN RECORD DROUGHT

HOME TOWN GOSSIP

Since Franklin D. Roosevelt moved in at the White House with a four year lease in his pocket, the English alphabet has really come to its own. He has created so many long named associations, commissions administrations and the like that each has been given a shorter title, which is merely its abbreviation. Such as; C.W.A., A.A.A., F.E.R.A., R.F.C., and E.T.C. To hear a group of men discussing the situation, one is reminded of a kindergarten class in which the pupils are somewhat confused in their endeavor to recite the A.B.C.'s.

But since the alphabet fad is the vogue, we've decided to create a commission all of our own. It is one that even the President has not yet thought of. Ours will be a R.B.C. (Rain By Christmas).

Every person interested in the success of the new commission is urged to subscribe for this erst-while newspaper ten years in advance. If enough citizens approve of the plan and show their endorsement by sending in the ten bucks we promise relief from the present blistering heat wave, even if "we" have to go to the sea shore to bask in the ocean kissed breeze.

Wouldn't it be funny if someone really took this seriously and sent in their ten bucks? No, on the second thought it would be quite all right.

For the first time in seven years Cross Plains is to have a football coach, who is married. This, we know, will be sad news to the unattached school "mams" and girls about town. It's merely a frown of fate girls and our sympathies are extended.

And speaking of the newly elected coach, our thoughts drift to football and Cross Plains' chances for the approaching season. Rising Star's newly elected mentor was in Cross Plains Tuesday night and offered the prediction that the 1934 championship of this district would be between Albany and Rising Star. "Goober" Keyes is also quoted as being of the same opinion.

Such alarms are not all discomfoting, in view of the fact that last year's bi-district championship team did not enter the campaign as favorites.

The back field this year will in all probability be constructed about the veteran leather lugger Floyd Halbert, who was last year a sensation of the district, and Jay Mayes, of whom much is expected this season, as well as John Lackey and possibly Gene Blitch, "Beevo" Webb and J. T. Cross.

In the line, J. T. Pierce and "Lazy" Duncan will probably be back to occupy the tackle positions. B. Lusk will perhaps fill one guard spot again this year in a commendable fashion. The chief gaps to be filled in this year's team will be at the ends, both regular wingmen from the championship squad having graduated.

Ed Schaffner, Sr., has handed the old home town surprises in the past in an oil way. He has been instrumental in developing the crude industry to its present stage in this section.

But last week he slipped off and brought back a surprise of entirely different nature—a bride. Yes sub, and take it from us Ed did well too. Congratulations and sincerest good wishes to the couple.

War On Drouth Cattle Begun In County Wednesday

SLAUGHTER FIRST GROUP AT OWENS' AND HARGROVE'S

The federal government's cattle reduction program was officially launched in this county Wednesday, when condemnations were made on the Owens ranch, 12 miles West of Cross Plains, and at Ben Hargrove's place, North of town. 10,000 head have been registered for sale to the government in the drouth director's office in this county.

County Agent Ross B. Jenkins received instructions Monday to buy all cattle that would not be subject to shipment for market at once and shoot them. In a statement to the Review last night Mr. Jenkins said:

Relieve Emergency
"This will help relieve the water shortage and stop consumption of feed. Such cattle as will be killed in this campaign are those which are diseased, those too poor for packing and calves under the approximate weight of 300 pounds. Each rancher or owner, who has cows or calves condemned may utilize them for home use and all employees may do likewise. The officials indicate that as long as none of this beef is sold or attempted to be sold, very little will be said about people consuming it. It is a very serious offence to sell it and should persons violate the governments very generous terms the condemned animals will thereafter be shot and have crude oil poured over their carcasses."

"The government will pay from four to eight dollars for calves, ten to fifteen dollars for yearlings and twelve to twenty dollars for above two year olds. No restrictions are placed on the number each man may sell nor the sex."

Sheep Also Included
The government has also added sheep and goats to the list that will be purchased from this county, to relieve drouth emergencies. This program is expected to get underway early in September, according to Mr. Jenkins. Only ewes of two years old will be bought in the sheep line and $2.00 will be the price paid for those of edible carcass and $1.00 for condemned animals. Goats will bring $1.40 per animal.

DAILY PAPERS ARE WRONG; RACE IS ON

Cecil A. Lotief and E. M. (Ed) Curry are both "very much in the running", they told the Review yesterday, despite reports in daily papers Wednesday night to the effect that Lotief had won a majority in the first primary.

Lotief led the ticket in the first balloting but lacked over 200 votes in securing a majority over E. M. (Ed) Curry, runner-up, and D. L. (Donald) Kinnaird.

Both Curry and Lotief are now doing extensive campaigning over the district, which is composed of Callahan and Eastland counties.

LOCAL SOFT BALL TEAM WINS OVER RANGER 8-2

Cross Plains soft ball team returned from Ranger Tuesday night with another victory for the third successive triumph of the local delegation. The domestics won over Ranger eight to two. A return engagement will be played here within the near future.

Miss Doris Nell Gray has returned home from Fort Worth after a three weeks visit with her uncle Jack Marshall and wife.

SPUR MINISTER TO CONDUCT REVIVAL AT BURKETT CHURCH

Minister Albert Smith, of Spur, will do the preaching in the annual Church of Christ revival meeting which begins at Burkett tonight. J. P. Salyer, pastor of the church, had intended to do the preaching but due to illness he is confined at a Coleman hospital.

The Spur preacher concluded a revival meeting at the Cross Plains Church of Christ Sunday, in which there were 11 additions to the church and three reclamations. Unusually large crowds were present at virtually every service here.

In a statement concerning the meeting just closed here, Elders C. S. Martin and M. C. Baum told the Review Tuesday, "We appreciate the excellent order, large attendance and moral and financial support which we received."

A successful meeting is being anticipated at Burkett and a cordial invitation to the entire public to attend any or all of the services has been extended.

F. H. A. EXPLAINED IN QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS METHOD

The following series of questions and answers on the provisions of the new Federal Housing Act and its re-modeling and repair loan provisions will enable the home owner to understand the means to be taken in administration of the act:

- Q. Can a private financial agency, such as one affiliated with a building material manufacturer, have its loans insured?
- A. Yes, provided the agency is approved by the Federal Housing Administration.
- Q. What interest will be charged on repair or remodeling loans?
- A. Probably 5 per cent and $5 a year service charge.
- Q. Are there any restrictions on companies or individuals who may participate in the campaign?
- A. Yes, only individuals and firms operating under the NRA are eligible.
- Q. For how long a period will the U. S. offer to insure remodeling loans?
- A. No new loan will be insured after January 1, 1936.
- Q. Does the property owner or the bank pay anything for insurance of remodeling loans?
- A. No, the Government has set aside $200,000,000 to take care of losses, believing that even if all the fund is spent, it will have created a billion dollars' worth of work. In other words the U. S. will dole not more than 20 cents for each dollar spent as compared with 100 cents for each (Continued on page 8)

House Shortage And Federal Aid May Stimulate Building

The shortage of houses in Cross Plains is becoming acute, the Review learned from rental agents the past week. Families moving here for the approaching school term are encountering difficulty in finding desirable living quarters.

In view of the federal government's housing "proposition", which assists persons in securing loans to either build a home or improve present property, a building and improvement wave is being anticipated by local lumbermen.

How to secure a loan to build or improve a home is explained in bulletins, which have been mailed each of the local lumber dealers, the Citizens State Bank and the Review. Several years are allowed to retire the loans, depending upon the amount of the note. The interest rate is slightly lower than the customary banking standard, according to the government bulletin.

11-6 TRIUMPH OVER SANTA ANNA BRINGS GOLF SEASON CLOSE

Phil Pe Co country club golfers defeated Santa Anna on the local course Sunday afternoon 11 to six to end the current season in the Heart of Texas Golf Association organized play with eight victories and three defeats. Although no official tabulation was available yesterday, it was understood that Phil Pe Co finished in second place, Dublin-DeLeon having captured the championship by virtue of a slightly better percentage.

The showing made by the local club this year surpasses all other marks made by the local nible welders in the organized loop.

PLAN MOTORCADE TO BOOST TOM HUNTER

Plans were going forward yesterday for a motorcade, made up of local supporters of the Tom F. Hunter for Governor movement, to make a tour of Callahan county Friday, according to an announcement from Cleve Callaway.

The itinerary of the trip follows: leave Cross Plains at eight o'clock. Cottonwood at eight thirty, Atwell at nine twenty, Putnam at 10:20, Baird at 11, Clyde at 12, Eula at one thirty, Denton two thirty, Opalin three forty, Dressy at five o'clock.

Melvin Farmer, of Baird, is a business visitor in Cross Plains this week.

ASSOCIATED PRESS PICKS RURAL SCRIBE FOR IMPORTANT JOB

What is considered in journalistic circles as one of the 'best' advancements ever to come to a rural newspaperman in this section, was awarded last week to Lewis T. Nurdyke, formerly of Cottonwood and son of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Nurdyke of that place.

Lewis, who has been editor of the Stephenville Empire-Tribune, since graduating from Missouri University school of journalism in 1933, has been made staff correspondent for the Associated Press in the Pan-handle and will be stationed at Amarillo. He will have charge of the news gathering agency in that section, handling feature material and time copy for the state and national services. He was scheduled to assume duties at Amarillo yesterday.

While in Stephenville, Lewis had the distinction of reporting several incidents which appeared in the nation's greatest metropolitan dailies.

LOCAL OIL MAN IS WED TO CISCO LADY SUNDAY AFTERNOON

E. N. Schaffner, Sr., of this place, and Mrs. Ruby Coleman, of Cisco, were married Sunday at the bride's home. The ceremony came as a surprise to the many friends of the couple both here and in Cisco.

Mrs. Schaffner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Epler, pioneer and prominent residents of Eastland county, residing between Cisco and Eastland. Before her marriage Mrs. Schaffner was employed for a number of years in the Cisco postal department.

Mr. Schaffner a well known oil man here, having come to Cross Plains more than 15 years ago. He was in a measure responsible for the first "excitement" of oil this locality ever experienced. For it was he, who drilled in the Vestal well, West of town, which stimulated drilling throughout this section and resulted in the discovery of several commercial pools.

Mr. and Mrs. Schaffner are at home at the Schaffner residence in the South part of town.

LOCAL DELEGATION HEARS TOM HUNTER

A delegation of Cross Plains citizens were in Brownwood Wednesday to hear Tom F. Hunter, candidate for Governor, submit his appeal to Central Texas citizens. Cleve Callaway, of this place, made a brief talk on the program before Hunter was introduced by Bill Chambers, of May.

Those attending the rally from here whose names the Review learned were: Cleve Callaway, C. C. Neeb, Sam Barr, Hulan Barr, Paul Harrell, Taylor Bond, S. F. Bond, B. B. Bond, Ted R. Smith, F. R. Anderson and E. C. Neeb. There were also possibly others from here at the rally.

TRUSTEES WILL MEET MONDAY; FIX BUDGET

Members of the board of trustees of the Cross Plains school district will meet Monday night to establish a budget for the ensuing year of 1934 and '35. Any tax payer, friend or patron of the school is invited to attend the meeting and offer suggestions in regard to the budget, Nat Williams, Superintendent, told the Review.

SINCLAIR PRAIRIE BUYS OIL PROPERTY NEAR FRY

Sinclair Prairie Oil Company purchased a small lease last week in the Fry field, formerly operated by Kirkpatrick and Lamb Oil Interests. The lease has seven producing wells.

NEW COACH HERE

McMURRY STAR IS CHOSEN TO COACH "BUFFALOES" HERE

Busk Osborn, former Abilene high school and McMurry College grid star, was elected to coach the Cross Plains high school Buffaloes by the board of trustees in a special meeting Wednesday night.

Osborn, who was an all-state selection in high school and all T. I. A. A. three years at McMurry, will arrive here to begin practice about September third. He leaves Abilene Sunday for College Station, where he will attend a week's coaching school. He coached the past year at Parks, near Breckenridge.

McDERMETT FRIENDS TO MEET SUNDAY TO DISCUSS "REUNION"

Old timers and friends, who usually attend the McDermett picnic and is supervising construction of the new building, which will have five modern class rooms and ground floor. Plans are under way—if federal relief is obtained for the present building is completed.

Many have requested that the celebration be held again this year, pledging their support and cooperation to make the event a success. Friday, August 24, would be the date in the event that the group decides Sunday afternoon to put it over.

High spots of the McDermett picnic and old settlers reunion are usually a large barbecue and basket spread of luncheon at noon and rodeo attractions in the afternoon. Large crowds, representing a number of the earliest families to settle in this section, have attended each of the previous celebrations.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry ... spent the week end in Fort Worth.

RAIN IS NEEDED BADLY OVER ENTIRE SECTION

In the wake of the drouth in recent years Cross Plains trade is sweltering in a recent wave. Barometers in registered the season's Monday afternoon. One instrument gauged the temperature at 102%. Other varied, however, to as low as 98 in the shade along Eigh-

Lakes and tanks in this area at the lowest level since 1930, according to some since 1918. Scores of farm families are reported to be hauling water from distant supplies.

City Supply Adequate
Rumors to the effect that water supply in Cross Plains becoming limited were verified in a check-up with Mayor S. Collins yesterday. "Barring emergency, I feel that our present water supply will be adequate to meet the demand", the Mayor stated.

Numerous predictions as to the blistering drouth would be broken were being offered on streets of this little city yesterday by "weather watchers", who attributed the authenticity their predictions to varied sources.

SCHOOL BUILDING IS NOW GOING UP AT COTTONWOOD

When school opens at Cottonwood in October, students will be housed in an attractive new frame building. The edifice is now under construction. Work is being carried on by a virtue of a $3,000 bond which was voted in the Spring of the Cottonwood district. The lot at that time was 57 for a three against.

The new building will replace the two story frame structure, which had served the Cottonwood community for more than 30 years. When the bond to build the old structure was voted nearly 20 years ago the ballot was 65 for 21 against.

C. C. Elliott is chief contractor and is supervising construction of the new building, which will have five modern class rooms and ground floor. Plans are under way—if federal relief is obtained for the present building is completed.

EASTLAND BEGINS CATTLE SLAUGHTER

Thirty-six head of condemned cattle were killed in the start of the cattle-buying program in Eastland county Monday.

To date 550 Eastland cowboys have listed 7,500 head of cattle which they wish to sell.

REVIVAL PROGRESS AT BAPTIST CHURCH

The revival meeting in progress at the Baptist church will enter into its second week Sunday, with another week to run. Rev. T. Furniss, of Throckmorton, is doing the preaching. Two services are being held daily and large crowds are reported.

Lee Poole, who has been conducting the song service, will not be here for the last week of the revival.

Cleo Delves Into Anne Duane's Past

NINTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS

Three weeks after a cream colored car had been found wrecked at the foot of a cliff, the girl herself Anne Cushing of the desert town Mar has bought, sight un- chanced located thirty miles from Barry Duane, her nearest neighbor and his man Boone Petry a reliable woman for her car, loaded down with supplies, they start across the hills. Marston her reticence aroused suspicion. Barry and she become more than neighbors, and when Anne is lost in the hills rescued by Barry, each realizes something more than friendship exists between them.

here?" He grinned at her mockingly. "You've done pretty well for yourself after all. Picked a rich man and landed soft. Does he happen to know—"

"Please, Jim!"

"No, he doesn't know. How could I tell him? I left all of the old life behind me, on that night last May. I never meant to come East, either, but I had to risk it—or lose everything."

Her voice broke. Kennedy looked at her curiously.

"You're a queer kid, Nancy. What did you do it for? Oh, you know what I mean. I knew there was something phony about that accident. I went to a library and hunted up the papers—afterward, I believed you'd taken the jump, until I came here and saw you through a window one night."

"Why did you come?" she cried. "If it's money you want, there's little enough that I can do. My husband isn't rich at all. Can't you have a little mercy and go away?"

"You let me alone, Nancy, and I won't bother you. Get that?" Kennedy gave her a brief, tight smile. "I'm after money, big money. And if you should get any notions about horning in on the game, don't overlook the fact that I hold some high cards."

"But Jim—"

He bowed stiffly from the door, and strolled jauntily out of his car. Anne stood for a moment staring blankly at the empty doorway.

Back of her a curtain moved, and a pair of childlike blue eyes peeped out before it dropped again. A moment later she heard Cleo's voice calling her from the hall.

"I tried to see Gage this morning but he'd just hopped a plane for Washington."

"Oh—I didn't know he lived here."

"He doesn't although he will some day, within a dozen miles. He's living at the Ritz now, just back from Europe. Probably buying up the insides of a few old manor houses to put in his new place, and another rope of pearls for his wife."

"He's married, then?"

"Yes. Married a Follies girl." Barry's tone was slightly disparaging. "I'm not looking forward to that interview. I nearly told him to go to blazes the last time. But I'm going to keep at him. I ought to take you with me and see if you can hypnotize the old pachyderm."

Anne said "Oh!" in a rather small voice. "Then it's this Mr. Gage that you're trying to interest in the Junipero?"

"That's the idea."

"But Barry"—she was desperately in earnest—"why do you have to deal with him at all? There must be plenty of other men. Why, the only reason that he owns the Duane Mills is because the first plan failed! He'd be prejudiced from the start!"

"You can bet he's prejudiced," said Barry grimly, "and that is just the reason I've got to win him over. Gage is more than just money in this scheme. He's the man who owns the other side of the spur that I must tunnel through. It's part of what he took over in payment of my uncle's debts. I don't know why."

He was silent for a moment.

"He has held out now for four years. Says it's damn nonsense. So you see, unless I can persuade him to sell pretty soon, I'd better give up my large schemes."

She laughed shakily. "Oh, well, there's time yet. Hurry into your flannels and we'll be off."

"Right! I'll be ready in ten minutes."

Barry came back, a few moments later, the envelope addressed to Jim Kennedy was safely hidden in her bag.

"I suppose this is very silly," Cleo raised appealing eyes toward the large impressive man. "I wouldn't want anything to come of it to hurt the man's reputation, but he came to us without any references. I just wanted to be sure that he didn't have a criminal record. I was sure you could find that out for me without any publicity."

"If he has one we'll find it. What name does he give?"

"James Kennedy. And I have a snapshot of him. I took it when he wasn't looking."

The man at the desk looked at the small picture with interest.

"Yes, that's Jim Kennedy," he said briefly.

"I've seen him. He may be going straight enough, but he's no chauffeur. He's a gambler. He had a gambling house and speakeasy up in the Forties at one time, and it was raided once too often. Dropped out of sight for a while, but he was mixed up in some shooting business last spring and had a close call."

"But Jim—"

He bowed stiffly from the door, and strolled jauntily out of his car. Anne stood for a moment staring blankly at the empty doorway.

Back of her a curtain moved, and a pair of childlike blue eyes peeped out before it dropped again. A moment later she heard Cleo's voice calling her from the hall.

"Yes. Married a Follies girl." Barry's tone was slightly disparaging. "I'm not looking forward to that interview. I nearly told him to go to blazes the last time. But I'm going to keep at him. I ought to take you with me and see if you can hypnotize the old pachyderm."

Anne said "Oh!" in a rather small voice. "Then it's this Mr. Gage that you're trying to interest in the Junipero?"

"That's the idea."

"But Barry"—she was desperately in earnest—"why do you have to deal with him at all? There must be plenty of other men. Why, the only reason that he owns the Duane Mills is because the first plan failed! He'd be prejudiced from the start!"

She laughed shakily. "Oh, well, there's time yet. Hurry into your flannels and we'll be off."

"Right! I'll be ready in ten minutes."

Anne huddled down in a chair, her hands clenching into tight little fists. John Gage again. Every where she turned. She must either face him or run away.

"He's building here!" she thought.

"That's why Jim is here! I must see him again—somehow."

"No, he isn't a gunman. Not his type. Oh, Willard!" This to the young man who had entered. "Find out when the Kennedy shooting happened. And anything else we may have."

In less than five minutes the young man called Willard was back.

"All right, Willard. M'm Kennedy was shot on the night of May second, last. He was found lying beside a road in the outskirts of Ventura, California. Police inclined to credit it to a bootleggers' war. He pulled through but refused to name his assailant. Discharged from hospital in three weeks. That's all."

"There's no actual police record, outside of the raid on the Forty-Ninth Street house. I'd advise you to let me send an operative down to watch him."

"I don't think I want to go as far as that."

A brief movement of his head said that it was her business. He arose and opened the door for her.

"Please send the bill direct to me, in a plain envelope. I shouldn't want anyone to know that I've been inquiring. Thank you."

The man went back to his desk with a dry grin on his face.

"So that's old Ambrose's daughter. I'll bet she's a handful."

Cleo was already on her way to the public library.

It probably wouldn't be in the New York papers," she reflected "but I'll look here first. M'm May second—say the third."

A sheet crackled as she bent suddenly forward. On the page in front of her was a picture of Anne Duane.

"I knew it! I was sure I had seen her somewhere!" Nancy Curtis, as she appeared in Gypsy Love." Her eyes flicked on the news account.

"John Gage! Now I wonder. She frowned and went back to reading."

"She wasn't drowned at all. She just disappeared. —And her car went over the cliff the same night that Kennedy was shot, and she's afraid of him. Those two stories ought to connect somewhere. —Maybe I'd better get the California papers."

Anne Duane had taken the man Cleo had meant to marry, and there were no rules in the fight to get him back.

Cleo pinched her lip and took a brief census of Granleigh. Gwenda adored Anne —nothing doing there. The Atwoods had taken her up, and so had the Westbrookes and Chislms. But Fan Whittemore, six years older than her husband and looking it, hated every pretty girl that Ted looked at, and Ted never missed a chance to talk to Anne. Eddie Carver babbled everything she heard. There were plenty of others to catch a bright ball of rumor and toss it along.

Late that afternoon Cleo parked the blue roadster in front of the Fairfax house.

Gwenda was serving tea in the garden. Ann was lovely in a yellow frock. Ted Whittemore was dawdling near her chair. His wife sat a few feet apart, discontented, as usual. Barry was talking to Gwenda, some distance away. Anne looked up quickly.

Cleo waved carelessly to Gwenda and Barry and dropped a chair near Anne.

"Hello, everybody. That's an awfully clever frock, Nancy. Do you know you're the image of somebody I saw in a play once? I knew as soon as I saw you that you reminded me of someone and it's just come to me as I caught sight of you in that yellow dress. The star or leading lady was sick, and they rushed this girl in. You could double for her, Nancy."

She saw Anne's finger tips whitening against the arm of her chair. They slowly relaxed again. "I suppose lots of people have doubles somewhere."

Fan's long eyes drifted from one to the other, faintly satirical. "You're not very lucid, Cleo. If the girl made such an impression on you I should think you'd have remembered more about her."

"Darling, I'm not a card index. I suppose the star got well or something. Maybe she got the Hollywood fever."

She talked to Fan, but her eyes were on Anne. Anne swung her hat idly by the brim and smiled slightly.

Anne strolled away with Gwenda, wondering whether she had really talked or just babbled insanely.

Fan looked at Cleo.

"We seem to have been tactless. Do you suppose there's anything in it?"

"No, of course not." Cleo shrugged back.

Fan looked disappointed. "But she's awfully secretive about herself, anyway. Who were her people?"

"I don't know. She's never mentioned them to me."

"Really—" The inflection spoke volumes. "I thought you were so intimate."

"Oh we are, but Nancy never talks about herself or her family, or any of her old friends. Maybe she was unhappy, and hates to talk about it."

Fan's lip curled. "She must have been, to have run off to some wild desert ranch."

The little hints that Cleo dropped spread like widening ripples in a quiet pool. Two days later a tiny wave splashed at Mrs. Schuyler Duane's feet, in the form of careless voices on the other side of the garden hedge.

"This is the Duane place, isn't it? That girl Barry Duane married is a peach. Who was she?"

"Oh don't ask me!" The high titter belonged to Eddie Carver. "Somebody said she was a Hollywood extra, but nobody seems to know."

Mrs. Duane stood there, rigid with indignation.

Mrs. Duane heard the car drive in, and Anne's voice saying that she had a horrible headache and was going up to her room.

That was Mrs. Duane's opportunity, but another car came. It was Cleo.

"I hope I'm not disturbing you, but I wanted to bring this book around. It's a lovely night for driving. It's Kennedy's night off, but I brought the roadster—Couldn't we have the lights out and sit here by the windows?"

CHEVROLET HEAD ANNOUNCES PLANS

At a recent Chevrolet Dealer and Salesman Meeting held in Dallas, by Mr. H. C. Howard, Zone Manager, Chevrolet Motor Company, new selling plans for the balance of this year were announced.

In expressing his appreciation for the July Chevrolet Passenger Car and Truck Sales record, made by the Salesmen in the Dallas territory, Mr. Howard said—"Proof that Chevrolet is assured of a good Fall business is the way the car buying public has accepted the new 1934 Chevrolet Passenger Car and Truck. Production figures from January 1st through July 31st, this year, nearly exceeded the production figures for the entire year of 1933."

The Dealers and Salesmen attending this meeting expressed confidence and optimism in their local community market and are anticipating an increase in Chevrolet Car and Truck sales during the Fall months.

Widow Of Hero At San Jacinto
Resides 5 Miles West Of Baird

(Abilene Reporter News)

There are two women living today whose husbands fought at San Jacinto. One is Mrs. Mary Catherine Berry, who lives five miles south of Baird. The other is Mrs. Mary M. Price, 90, a resident of Rochester, N. Y.

Until last December historians thought a few aged sons and daughters of San Jacinto battle heroes were the nearest related surviving links. But in that month L. W. (Lou) Kemp of Houston, member of the Texas Historical Board, located Mrs. Price. Her husband was Hardy W. B. Price, a member of Benjamin F. Bryant's company in 1836.

Mrs. Berry was located recently through the Abilene Reporter-News. Her husband, Andrew Jackson Berry, died in 1899.

Berry was born in Indiana May 16, 1816, and came to Texas in 1828 with his parents. He served in the Mina (Bastrop) Volunteers as a private from Feb. 28 to June 1, 1836, according to the Comptroller's military service record No. 1041. The company was commanded by Capt. Jesse Billingsley. Nearly all the men in the company were from what is now Bastrop County, then called Mina. The company was with Sam Houston at the defeat and capture of Santa Anna, the engagement that won Texas for the Anglo-Saxon.

At that time Berry was 19. In 1838, while still single, he was issued a headright certificate by the Washington County board for one-third of a league of land (1,470 acres) for having served three months in the Texas army. Had Berry been a married man the grant would have been for a league and a labor, or 4,586 acres.

Moved to Burleson

Berry moved to Burleson County and married his first wife and had several children. On July 29, 1847, he was issued Donation Certificate No. 39 for 640 acres for having fought at San Jacinto, according to the record.

In 1861 Berry enlisted in the Civil War. He was then 45. He served four years, attaining a captain's rank. After the war he moved to Williamson County where his father, John Berry, had settled when the family migrated to Texas in 1823 under the Mexican flag. The elder Berry lived on Berry's Creek, and operated a grist mill with water power.

The present Mrs. Berry is a native of Hempstead County, Ark. She was born Aug. 29, 1853. When 2 years old her father migrated to Texas, settling in Robertson County. In 1871, when 18, she visited the John Berry family in Williamson County. It was there she met Andrew Jackson Berry, who had been a widower for seven years, with children and grandchildren.

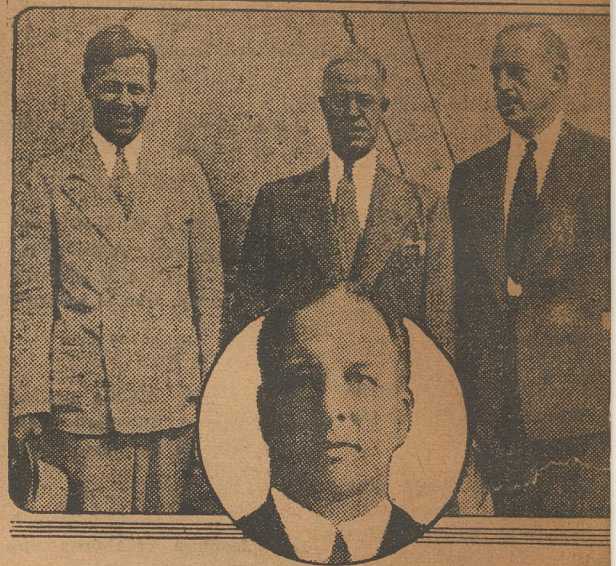

"We were soon married," Mrs. Berry said to her interviewer the other day. "We stayed in Williamson County for four years, until it began to settle up. My husband never did like to be crowded, so we moved westward, to Lampasas County. But that section began to settle up, too, and so we moved west again. We landed in Callahan County May 25, 1881, a short time after the Texas and Pacific Railroad killed Belle Plains, the county seat, by building through what is now Baird. We settled right on this place—it's two sections—and have never had any other home in the county. It was 53 years ago that we came here, and this month, Aug. 29, I will celebrate my eighty-first birthday.

Mrs. Berry says her husband did not profit from the headrights granted him, declaring that he was tricked out of them. He paid cash for his Callahan County ranch, $2.50 per acre, which was considered a high price at that time. The land was productive, sandy, well timbered with scrub oak, with ample water near the surface. From nearby hills Berry hauled rock for his home, a story and a half structure.

"It gave way on us four years ago," Mrs. Berry said, "and we built this house."

It is a sturdy frame bungalow. Eight children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Berry, of whom seven are still living. There reside in Baird, Bob and Ode Berry, and Mrs. Fannie Murphy. Harry Berry lives at Clyde; Mrs. Pearl Gaines at

TO UTILIZE HIDES OF SLAIN ANIMALS

Editor's Note: A recipe for tanning hides at home was published in the August 3, issue of the Review.

With hundreds of cattle in this immediate locality already slain by the federal government in the effort to relieve cattlemen of distressed conditions, caused by parched prairies and water shortage, a new home industry get under way here. It is the tanning of hides.

Virtually all of the calves killed by the government are being skinned and the meat canned and prepared for home consumption. The hides worth only an insignificant price may be tanned and used for leather about the home and farm.
Several were reported yesterday to be contemplating the experiment.

The Review was told by several sources that the hides could be adequately tanned and cured "at home".

From Washington came the following report yesterday concerning the disposition that may be of the animal hides in some sections.
Federal Surplus Relief Corporation today announced it would use all hides and skins from animals purchased by the Farm Administration in drouth areas and process them for relief needs.

The action resulted after negotiations for a corporation, using a $10,000,000 commitment from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to remove the hides from the immediate market failed. The RFC commitment will be turned over for use by the relief corporation, officials said.

The corporation announced that ceived in the immediate future will

THE BOOK

the first line of which reads, "The Holy Bible," and which contains Four Great Treasures

by BRUCE BARTON

Acts And Epistles

THE peril of building up an organization around single person is that when he dies or withdraws the organization falls to pieces. "An institution is a lengthened shadow of a man," but there have been many men eminent in their day who cast no shadow.

The good they did as Marc Anthony said, is forgotten with their bones. Surely this process of disintegration, natural enough following the death of a leader, would be inevitable when Jesus, The Leader had died a felon's death and the followers were unlettered peasants. The authorities at Jerusalem took this complaint point of view and rested easy.

They received a rude shock within a very few days Peter and John, in preaching on the streets of the city and performing deeds of healing, gathered crowds, interfered with traffic and caused them to be arrested. Thinking to overawe these simple fellows, the Priest Annas and his colleagues presided personally at the trial. Picture their amazement when Peter burst into vigorous denunciation of them as the murderers of the Lord.

Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John they marvelled; and they took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jesus.

Those words deserve notice for the light they throw upon the figure and manner of the real Jesus as contrasted with the unsatisfying portraits of Him that have come down to us through the ages. Painters have painted Him and writers have written about Him as a "man of sorrow," a physical weakling, a "lamb," an unhappy man who was disappointed and glad to die. The conquering attitude of the disciples does not tally with such descriptions. The Bible does not say of them, "seeing the lamb-like character of Peter and John" or "seeing that Peter and John were men of sorrow and acquainted with grief," but "seeing the boldness of Peter and John" the authorities knew that such men must have been the friends and companions of Jesus.

So characteristic was this boldness, so vigorous was the disciples in the propagation of the faith, that within less than twenty years the rulers of the far moved city of Thessalonica were troubled by the report that.

These that have turned the world upside down are come hither also; and these all do contrary to the decree of Caesar, saying that there is another king, one Jesus.

Only a little later, not more than forty years after the death of St. Paul, Pliny the Roman Governor of Bithynia is compelled to write to the Emperor Trajan for instructions as to how he may check the growth of this extraordinary new sect.

Comp The Rotten "Sales Tax"

By Jack Scott... Rumor is abroad that when the Texas Legislature comes in special session August 27, for the purpose of issuing "bread bonds", there will be talk of the time old sales tax.

Texans generally are opposed to a sales tax on the ground that it is merely to shift more of the tax burden from the big interests of Texas to the backs of the masses and already depressed people of this state.

The sales tax is today and has always been, merely a political bait.

The experienced politician knows that a high tax is a popular subject to denounce and because of the lack of a better substitute for the present plan the recently advoc-ed, if the tax is imposed in what class of property or the man, far more profitable to the man, far more profitable to the man, far more profitable to the man.

For the tax would be on commodities, of which they are in daily need and must purchase. While on the other hand the wealth of the state which should rightly pay the tax, would be exempted from a portion if not all of present ad valorem assessment.

To impose a sales tax is merely another "robbing Peter to pay Paul" act. Why in Heaven's name is there any demand for more tax in Texas. If one third of the amount delinquent were paid the state would be on a cash basis with a surplus in the treasury. There is no need of merely hiking the load upon those who will not and permitting the delinquents to soar with thousands of collection.

The past legislature started upon the program of economy by reducing expenses thirteen millions. That is a good beginning but should be furthered at least another ten millions. When this tax load is reduced and tax equality is established, Texas will be a Utopia and each man's "tithe" to the state will be within bounds of reason.

The sales tax is a political trick intended to trip the masses. Disapprove it on every occasion.

That glitters may not be gold... the shiny yellow metal found in the slate being taken out of the ground by Ed Zenor near Santa Anna is, according to an assay made by a Colorado smelter, gold and gold in paying quantities. The gold ore found at a depth of only 18 feet on the Felix Smith few miles northeast of the town of Santa Anna, not only contains gold in paying quantities but also other metals usually found with gold. In this particular instance, the assay shows, a considerable trace of silver is present, but with the higher priced yellow metal running 2.6 ounces per ton little attention will be given. Mr. Zenor said, to the other metals present in the ore.

The gold-bearing ore discovered some few days ago by Mr. Zenor, according to a mining expert from Colorado, will prove profitable, it pays $90. per ton.

The first bale of 1934 cotton brought into Cisco was ginned Tuesday at the Planters Gin company. Joe Boatman, farmer living nine miles northwest of Cisco took the honors for the first bale.

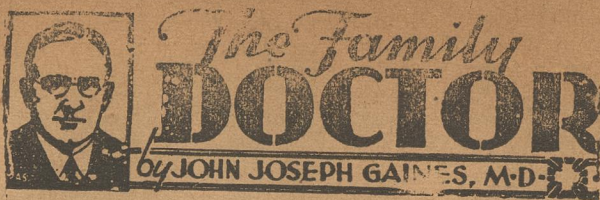

It weighed 460 pounds. A premium is being raised as a reward for Mr. Boatman. Until tax exemption certificates under the Bankhead cotton reduction act are received, the bale will remain at the gin, J. L. Thornton, manager, announced.

—Cisco American. It has often been said that no white man in South Africa ever sees a dead elephant, that is to say, an elephant that has died a natural death. How then do elephants die?

A traveler answers the question in a most romantic way. He tells that when an African elephant feels the pangs of old age stealing across the vast energy of which he has been master for so many years, he moves away from the herd, sniffs the air, and then with solitary determination, makes his way slowly and sorrowfully to the appointed place of death. The journey before him may take a month or a year, "but in majestic solitude the way is plodded, unerringly the path is 'trod.'" Instinct guides him to the great cemetery. Somewhere near Lake Nyanza, it is believed, lies the great graveyard, the goal of the dying elephant. It is a vast pit filled with blackness into which for thousands of years dying elephants have cast themselves with the last remnants of their ebbing strength.

Arriving at the pit, we are told, the monarch of the African forest raises his trunk high into the air, snorts defiantly and then hurls himself over the edge. His last death cry, says the traveler, vibrates through the great forest, and lions hearing that mighty cry slink away into greater darkness, while the smaller animals crouch as if in reverence of the death of something great and splendid. If this story from Lagos, Nigeria, is true it is at once a telling example of the wonders of instinct and a most touching instance of the pathos of death.—Our Dumb Animals.

IMMUNIZATION

PEOPLE living in rural districts should always remember the great benefits of being immunized, so far as possible, from serious disease. We now have reliable immunization from at least two of the most formidable enemies—typhoid fever and diphtheria. Typhoid serum for the former; antitoxin for the latter.

Indeed we have about abolished typhoid; we have sent our young men away in armies, duly fortified against the deadly fever—all gone by inoculation. City water systems can be watched by the chemists, and the drinking water kept pure; it is different when the trip for recreation is taken, when woodland spring waters are to be used, wherein deadly germs may lurk. What a comfort to know that we can be protected from harm by a moment of wise precaution—talk to your doctor about it, before leaving home on your outing this season.

Children should at all seasons be immunized from diphtheria. We seldom know when the first case starts in the outbreak of an epidemic—it is impossible sometimes to discover the origin of the infection, and it is far better to be safe than to be very, very sorry. There is no harm in antitoxin given as a preventive. Two or three—possibly four injections will produce immunity. It is a situation where a few small doses of prevention are worth car-loads of "cure".

Talk to your family doctor about medical progress in scarlet fever too. He knows about it. Such infections are easily transmitted—and they KILL children, no doubt of that. It seems to me that neglect in matters like these is little short of criminal.

I have the greatest of confidence in and respect for our army of family physicians—true benefactors of the race.

WHEN BENJAMIN FRANKLIN WAS HEAD OF THE POSTAL SYSTEM OF THE U.S., THERE WERE 75 POST OFFICES, WITH AN AGGREGATE POSTAL REVENUE OF $30,000 A YEAR. TODAY WE HAVE MORE THAN 53,000 POST OFFICES & ABOUT 300,000 EMPLOYEES. THE AGGREGATE REVENUE COLLECTED & EXPENDED AMOUNTS TO ABOUT $800,000,000 ANNUALLY. WELL HERE WE ARE—OFF ON ANOTHER FACT-FINDING VENTURE. LET'S GET BACK INTO A LITTLE PAST HISTORY & SEE WHAT WE CAN LEARN. HOWARD PAYNE TO OPEN SEPTEMBER 10

Regular session of Howard Payne College will open with registration of students on September 10 with prospects excellent, according to President Thomas H. Taylor, for a large attendance.

With the beginning of the regular session Howard Payne will adopt the semester plan, abandoning the other colleges in the state. Instead of offering three terms of 12 weeks each, the college beginning this session will offer two semesters of 18 weeks each. The summer term in the future will count three-fourths of a semester.

"The college already is receiving many inquiries from prospective students from all parts of the state and in spite of almost any difficulties that may arise West Texas boys and girls are going to school", President Taylor says.

The college is offering all help possible to deserving students who wish to work to pay part of their schooling. The college already has approval from the federal government through the Federal Emergency Relief Administration for a project to give assistance to from 60 to 80 students. Under this plan the students may earn a minimum of $15 and a maximum of $20 per month. Forty-seven students were assisted through this plan in the last term. In addition to the federal aid, the college itself will assist some 200 students in working their way through school.

Loses His Bet

R. S. Brashears, publisher of the Childress Daily Index, Childress, Texas, issued the world's first "No-rain, No-pay" edition on July 17. The provisions were that if it did not rain by July 24, the advertisers owed nothing. If it rained half an inch, they paid the full advertising rate. The paper carried 1,300 inches of advertising, but it didn't rain, and Publisher Brashears didn't collect. The loser is pictured above. The paper also carried an ad from the postoffice. NEW YORK

Discovered a new use for black glasses in the theatre district the other day. Eating a hurried meal in a neighborhood restaurant, I was surprised to see a well dressed young lady come in and order a meal—wearing the glasses until it was served. Evidently her food didn't look sufficiently attractive through the black glasses, so she finally took them off, unveiling heavily painted eyes and heavily beaded eye-lashes. Just another show-girl snatching a bite to eat between the matinee and evening performances and saving herself the trouble of doing the make-up all over again.

A plain brick building attracted no attention as I walked along the waterfront of the Hudson the other day—until I passed a door whose window had a small round hole in it and a very heavy piece of glass bolted to the window behind the hole. It was obviously a port-hole for a gun. An idler on the corner seeing me eyeing the building with increased interest: "I'll sell you that building." What'll you take? I smart-cracked back. Then he informed me it was the federal detention prison—where prisoners from ships are held awaiting trial for real or suspected crimes at sea.

Visitors seeing off their friends on the piers of the Hudson are sometimes a considerable problem. Getting them off the ship before sailing is the worst problem of all, for frequently there are ten visitors to one passenger and gongs and whistles sometimes mean nothing at all to them. But the old custom of riding out to Sandy Hook aboard a steamer and coming back on the little boat that takes off the New York Harbor pilot is no more. For the pilot boat takes no more visitors, and the unwary visitor is likely to find himself with a European port of call the next stop. Slightly inconvenient—without baggage aboard and no passport, either!

Central Park in summertime is an oasis for thousands of little tots. A wading pool and a constant shower over it keep many a toddler cool. And such a racket! School's out and there's no doubt about it—in Central Park.

"Grey's"—the famous little drug store at 43rd Street on Times Square that sells cut-rate theatre tickets.

"The House is papered"—the theatre has been filled by complimentary tickets.

"Annie Oakleys"—complimentary tickets, so named from circus days when Annie Oakley, the crack rifle shot of Buffalo Bill's Wild West shows used to shoot holes in cards as they were thrown into the air in rapid succession. "Annie Oakley's" are always punched to indicate that they are complimentary tickets.

"The Shuttle"—the subway train that runs four or five long blocks back and forth between Grand Central Station and Times Square, connecting the East and West side subway lines of the I. R. T.

Two or three French poodles with their black clipped bodies, bushy heads and their leg and tail pom-poms about the fashionable sections of town. Summer's the time to see odd types in the East Side of New York Grizzled old couples, the woman with the constant shawl over her head, sit side by side in chairs on many a sidewalk. Hundreds of well-upholstered women sit in their windows watching people in the street with passive interest. On Saturdays clean white shirts are evident as boys and young men gather in groups, planning who knows what kind of amusements? And of course, the inevitable hundreds of little tots skipping and yelling on the sidewalks. Times Square isn't a square, but an uneven quadrilateral that gives the impression of a triangle more than square. relief dollar previously spent. Q. Who may borrow under the plan?

A. Owners of property, those who have a substantial equity in property, those holding leases for more than a six months period, provided each is considered a proper credit risk by a local institution.

Q. What interest rate does the borrower pay?

A. The same rate as charged by the local lending institution for its best collateral loans—maximum 6 per cent.

Q. Does the borrower receive the money direct from the lending agency?

A. No. The owners' note is discounted at the lending institution by the contractor upon completion of the work.

Q. What happens if the borrower fails to meet payments?

A. Any time after 60 days' default the lending institution may present the note to the U. S. insuring agency and receive cash. It will be the policy of the Government to turn the note back to the lending agency for collection.

Q. Are the borrower's notices discountable?

A. The local lending agency may turn in notes to the Federal Housing Administration at any time and receive cash.

Q. Do existing mortgages on the property for which the loan is intended disqualify the owner from borrowing?

A. Not so long as interest, amortization and taxes are paid. If the mortgage is in default, it is a matter for the NHA to handle.

Q. Is any collateral required?

A. Probably not when loans are made by agencies other than savings banks and building and loan associations, which are restricted by law from making straight commercial loans. In such cases, it is believed likely that they will take out, but never file, second mortgages.

Q. To what extent will attempts be made to cut costs?

A. All the elements of the building industry (manufacturers, dealers, architects, contractor) will be asked, but naturally not forced, to make price concessions. It is also hoped that organized labor locally will trim down its scale not too openly but helpfully.

Q. Will the government stage a national advertising campaign in newspapers and magazines.

A. No. There will be no money spent by the U. S. for paid advertising. Instead, the attempt will be to provide newspapers and magazines with educational advertisements which they may run if they care to, using them as bait to draw local and national building interests into their media.

Q. Will the government inspect completed work?

A. No. It will rely on the local lending institutions to make whatever inspections and appraisals are required.

Q. When is it anticipated that the U. S. insuring agency will be ready to insure its first loan?

A. Approximately August 1.

Q. What is the maximum amount a person can borrow for the smallest monthly repayment permitted ($10) and the maximum time permitted (5 years)?

A. $600 less interest.
