HOME TOWN GOSSIP

Five marriages in a single week. In June as much might be expected, however, this is December, usually an off-season for wedding vows.

Nevertheless, we chronicle in today's issue of the Review five marriages of local interest.

First, and perhaps most surprising of all, was the marriage of Molton Sims, the city's one time most satisfied bachelor, to an attractive Coleman girl. The ceremony was solemnized Sunday.

Second, and also unexpected by this department right at this particular time, was the unconditional surrender of Miss Jean Harlow, of this place, and Pete Fore, of Pioneer. They made their trip to Hyman's altar Sunday.

Third, and another nuptial of interest is that of Charles Mason to Miss Peggy Foye Joyce, of Rising Star. The Mason-Harris vows were also recited Thanksgiving.

Fourth, on the marriage parade is the nuptial of Miss Blanche Duncan and J. R. Clark, of Rising Star, which was formed at Coleman, Saturday.

Then, there is the marriage of Miss Eva Freeman, formerly of this place to a prominent Moran young man. Eva slipped up on her friends here as well as this department.

Here's a wish of happiness, health, success, and plenty to each of the newly created institutions. (Tip to newly-made husbands: no home is complete without a copy of the Cross Plains Review coming in each week. Subscription rates are now reduced.)

On an inside page of today's Review are seven newspapermen and coaches choices for an all-district football team. The official will appear in this publication next week.

Many interesting comments concerning various players and teams were included with the coaches' selections. Limited space prevents reproduction herein.

We do, however it would be a miss to fail to quote a portion of Joe K. Reed, Clyde Coach, letter to the Review. The excerpt follows: "I agree with you in your statement that Cross Plains would have won the district crown had it not been for unfortunate circumstances of inelegibility and injury of the great half-back Webb. Buck Osburn deserves a lot of credit for being able to put a winning team on the field after this occurrence."

COMMUNITY PARTY SET DECEMBER 14; METHODIST CHURCH

A Stewart's Oyster Supper, to which the entire public will be invited, is scheduled in the Methodist church basement Friday night, December 14, the Review was told Wednesday night by S. R. Jackson and Edwin Baum, a committee from the Board of Stewards to arrange the function.

"The purpose of the supper is to promote a wholesome entertainment to stimulate church interest and community fellowship", the committee stated.

A charge of 25 cents per plate will be charged, merely to bear expense of the occasion, the Review was told.

"The supper is for the entire citizenship of this trade territory—merely members of the Methodist church—and we invite everyone to come and enjoy the evening with us," the committee said.

Typhoid Epidemic Rages Cottonwood Community

HEALTH OFFICERS REPORT 10 CASES OF THE DISEASE

An epidemic of typhoid fever which has been raging the Cottonwood community more than a week was believed by health officials and attending physicians to be "practically checked" yesterday at noon. There are at present about 10 cases in the community, one of which is regarded as extremely serious.

Elmer Thomas is believed to be suffering the most ill effects of the malady. He was reported in a critical condition late Wednesday. Immunizations were given school children and scores of citizens this week by health officials. Efforts are also being extended to clarify the sources of the infection.

E. H. Goodwin, with the Texas Public Health Service, was sent to this county the first of this week and has been working at Cottonwood several days. He told the Review Wednesday that sanitary privies would be installed at Cottonwood within the next few days to destroy the possibility of typhus flies breeding there.

"The government will erect these privies without cost, save that of materials, if home owners will but make such request of County Commissioner George R. Clifton, who will use relief funds to place laborers at the task of construction," Mr. Goodwin told the Review.

Sample of water supplies at Cottonwood are being tested and those that may be found to contain typhoid germs will be discontinued. Other precautionary measures are now instituted.

"We urge the complete cooperation of every individual in assisting to stamp out this epidemic by extreme precaution," Mr. Goodwin stated.

MOLTON SIMS WED TO COLEMAN GIRL SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Coming as a complete surprise to their many friends both here and at Coleman was the marriage of Miss Faye Bishop, of Coleman, and Molton Sims, of Cross Plains, at noon Sunday. The ceremony was solemnized at the Church of Christ parsonage at Coleman, with the pastor of the church reading the rites.

Mr. and Mrs. Sims left immediately after the ceremony for Mineral Wells and other Eastern points for a brief bridal tour. They returned here Wednesday afternoon.

The bride is well known in Coleman, having been a resident of that place for a number of years. She was graduated from Coleman high school and for the past several years was employed with Handelman's Dry Goods Company there.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Sims of this place. He has been a resident of Cross Plains more than eight years, coming here in 1927 from Santa Anna. He is associated with his brother in the Sims Drug Company here.

Mr. and Mrs. Sims will make their home in Cross Plains.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Carhoun, Buddie Oliver, and Carrol Westerman visited in Dallas first of the week.

Mrs. Walton Wagner had as her guests this week end Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Russell and daughter of Plainview.

Mrs. Jim Bennett and Mrs. Griford Saunders left Tuesday for a few weeks' visit in California.

BALLOT BOX WILL DECIDE FATE FOR REGULATION "LAW"

American farmers will go to the ballot box Friday, December 14 and write the fate of the Bankhead Act for 1935.

"Each cotton grower who has a cotton farm, or a renter, or a half and half tenant, may vote, providing his name is on the applications for a Bankhead allotment or has signed a cotton reduction contract. Every man should voice his opinion as to his preference in either keeping or abandoning the Act," said County Agent Ross B. Jenkins to the Review yesterday.

Voting in Callahan county will be done at 16 places. They are: Cross Plains, Cottonwood, Dressy, Atwell, Scranton, Caddo Peak, Putnam, Admiral, Baird, Union, Oplin, Denton, Clyde, Lanham, Eula and Dudley. Election judges for each of the places are: Cross Plains, Ed Henderson, E. I. Vestal, and Ben Pierce; Cottonwood, E. K. Coppinger, D. C. Hargrove, and W. A. Brock; Dressy, L. O. Payne, Fred Stacy, and Flem Johnson; Atwell, S. N. Foster, Quinton R. Tatum, and Clint Brashear; Scranton, O. L. Boland, Grady T. Leveridge, and W. P. Ledbetter; Caddo Peak, John A. Moore, Felix Ogelsby, and B. B. Jones; Putnam, Harry Sandlin, G. W. Jeter, and Joe Boutwell; Admiral, Buck Harris, Ed Da and N. W. Smart; Baird, V. Jones, E. J. Barton, and Ernest Franke; Union, Doyle P. Gunn, Chester Hardwick, Floyd Midkiff, Oplin, Clint McIntyre, A. D. McWhorter, and Charles Allen; Denton, T. N. Minix, Roy Kendrick and H. W. Caldwell; Clyde, Aarol McKee, Karl Hays, and Paul Shanks; Lanham, C. Eager, Russell Morrissett, and J. E. Thornton; Eula, L. M. Farmer, Jr., R. P. Stephenson, and J. A. Nance; Dudley, Kirby Meyers, L. L. Atkinson, Otto Betcher, Gardener, Clew Welch, James A. Haggard.

County Agent Ross B. Jenkins issued the Review the following statement concerning the vote to be taken December 14.

"It is a well known fact that Secretary Henry A. Wallace was opposed to compulsory control at the time the Bankhead Act was enacted but after having watched the crop produced, the amount that is being produced by other competing nations, and by the great amount of carry over cotton that now is our warehouses, he has only declared that some measure of control is necessary if the farmer is to realize anything like a livable price for his product.

"A portion of his statement reads, 'Cotton farmers must decide whether in their opinion, the adjustment of cotton production under the voluntary contracts is sufficient to meet the requirements of the present emergency. Will the efforts of a small minority of non-cooperators, the tendency toward more intensive cultivation, and the possibility of new lands coming into cotton production combine to increase total production above the point which seems desirable? This it appears, is the central question involved in the decision on enacting the Bankhead Act for the year.'

Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Underwood visited in Stephenville over the week end.

Misses Jimmie Lou and Ed Gwathmey spent Thanksgiving Brownwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Buck Osburn a son visited Mr. Osburns parents in Abilene Saturday and Sunday.

BUFFALOES HAVE NO CHAMPIONSHIP BUT GOOD SEASON

After having to forfeit four games this season, we can still say that the Buffaloes have had a successful football season. The herd started with one thought in mind and that was to win the district championship. They opened up by defeating Moran 26-6, but the next week they were defeated by Baird 12-0. Feeling thoroughly disheartened but still determined to win, they defeated Pioneer 7-0 at Pioneer. Putnam, the next victim of the Buffaloes, was beaten 6-0. Then came a slight mishap whereby the Buffaloes were compelled to forfeit the four games they had played. This ruined the house the Buffs were building on "Conference" Avenue, and the next day they were defeated by Clyde 13-0. Then the fireworks began. The Buffaloes, then knowing they had nothing to lose and all to gain, pulled everything they had against Albany and took them to a cleaning of 13-7. Then in short order, the herd defeated Caddo 13-8 and Rising Star 13-0. Still we can say that we have had a successful football season.

SYNOPSIS—Ellen Church, 17 years old, finds herself alone in the world with her artist mother's last warning ringing in her ears, to love lightly. Of the world she knew little. All her life she had lived alone with her mother in an old brown house in a small rural community. All her life, first as a new baby, then a bubbling child, then a charming young girl—she had posed for her talented mother who sold her magazine cover painting through an art agent in the city—Mrs. Church's broken life—the unfaithful husband, his disappearance—and after seventeen years of silence announcement of his death was at last disclosed to Ellen. The news of the husband's death's death killed Mrs. Church. —Ellen, alone, turned to the only contact she knew, the art agent in New York. Posing, years of posing, was her only talent so she was introduced to two leading artists, Dick Alven and Sandy Macintosh. Both used her as a model and both fell in love with her—but Ellen, trying to follow the warped philosophy of her mother to "love lightly," resists the thought of love. Her circle of friends is small, artists and two or three girl models. Ellen attends a ball with Sandy. While dancing a tall young man claimed her and romance is born.

grown up now. This is important! If you love each other," his lips were twisted; he might have been suffering, "and you must love each other or you wouldn't have rushed into this marriage—why, love each other, now. Kiss each other." Tony's arms were about Ellen hungrily. She didn't care either, at the moment, that Dick had turned aside—that Sandy's eyes were cast ceiling-ward. Tony was kissing her; she was kissing him.  The Sans Souci should have been as gay as the Six Arts Ball, but it wasn't. It was a dark little place with only an aura of expense to keep it from utter dinginess. There was a cleared space for dancing. "At that," said Gay, "I think we'd have had more fun back in Dick's studio. Sandy was at the counter, ordering something. Tony had said— "Have everything your own way, the house is ours, tonight!" Gay had her arm around Sandy's neck. Claire was talking with a group of men, men who had arrived with Gay. "Tony," called Ellen, "Tony! I've never had a drink in my life. May I, tonight, have champagne?" "It's illegal drinking," said Claire shortly, as she moved away. "Myself," said Tony and he was looking straight into her eyes, I don't need champagne, darling—not tonight. Do you? Let the others get lit, if they must. It's our wedding party—ours—yours and mine!" With a little nestling movement Ellen was cuddled against Tony's side. No, she didn't need champagne—Tony was right. She was intoxicated on a sort of ethereal champagne. "It's our—" she began. There was a sound of battering against the outer door, of fists beating against panels, of feet kicking. His friends—The door opened, and they came in, and Ellen found herself wondering how Tony could have possibly reached so many in so short a time. Tony rushed forward, dragged the friends over to meet her. Some shook her hand, some made wisecracks. Some of them, most of them, kissed her! She met Tom. Tom had been an All American halfback only the year before. She met Herb—whose face was so familiar that she knew that she had seen it in many a roto section. She met the dark, chubby young woman whom Herb introduced as his "wop" wife. She met Margie—as smart of looks, but not of brain, as Claire. She met Harris and Jim and Hilda. She met a score of others. And then she met —Jane. Jane was tall where Ellen was short. She was long of hand and foot, aristocratically long; whereas Ellen's hands and feet were child-like. Jane wore a straight dress of white satin, with long sleeves that came down in points over her hands and on one of her hands she wore a great pearl. And she had a little white velvet jacket slung over her arm. Ellen looked like a bride's kid sister. Tony said, and there was only the merest trace of self-consciousness in his voice. "This is my wife, Jane. This is Ellen." And Ellen found that she was shaking hands with Jane. Jane's hand was very cold as it touched her own, but not so cold as Jane's voice. "She's very pretty," said Jane, and Ellen might have been a child whom she was discussing, "very pretty. But I wouldn't have expected you to fall for the type, Tony!" Gay had edged close. Gay had deserted Sandy, had already annexed Tom, the ex-haliback. She seemed even more diminutive than ever against his bulk. "Sure she's pretty," agreed Gay, rudely. "So'm I. So are you. And we all talk, too, and eat, and not one of us is deaf and dumb!" "Jay," murmured Ellen, "don't!" But Jane was laughing. "You're amusing," she said to Gay. "Now, if it were you—" her tone implied that, had it been Gay, she might have understood. The dim little man with the ac-

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Ellen found that the hatred of the massed friends was concentrating upon this unknown person who bore the label, not the name, of Jane. He was talking to someone else. "The Sans Souci," he was saying. "Oh, as soon as you can make it. Don't dress. No, of course, I'm not kidding. Call up Jane, herself, if you don't believe me. It's someone you don't know! Someone you never heard of." Ellen was leaning against the screen. Claire hadn't a right, but she asked questions anyway. For once Ellen was grateful to Claire for an intrusion. "Who is this Jane person?" asked Claire. "Why don't you ask her to the party? Seems as if she's got a real reason for wanting to meet Ellen." Tony's tone, filled with the excitement of news-spreading, answered. "Jane's a girl I've known all my life," he said. "We've always gone places together—our families were friends. Yes, you're right, she should be asked. I'll call her."

Pep Squad To Give Banquet For Buffs

The pep squad of 1934, regrets very much the closing of football season. It is the last year that several of the faithful members will back the Buffaloes. The pep squad is proud of the football boys and is going to express its gratitude by giving them a banquet Friday night. It can truthfully be said that the pep squad will always be behind the Buffaloes.

Who's Who

This week we turn your attention to a prosperous young business man of Cross Plains—Lloyd Bryn. He has been going to school Cross Plains for some time, and a friend to everyone. At the present time, we see Lloyd wearing a Cross Country basket ball sweater. Lloyd, you will have to give an account for this!

THE STAMPEDE

Everyone is at ease. J. T. Cross has a date for the banquet.  It won't be long before the Senior rings will be all over school. The new is nearly worn off. What little Freshman will have Beryls' ring after the banquet?  Bobbie, whats this I hear about you wearing an out of town ring? Don't ever let it happen again.  Lloyd has really got the S. A. on his mind, (Santa Anna), and I think she is a blonde.  Harry Carmichael was down here this week end. Wonder why? (ask Jennie L.)  Everyone is about to get back into the old grind after the Thanksgiving holidays, but some still look a little droopy, what's the matter too much turkey or not enough sleep?

cordion was beginning to play. His music wasn't dim; it was strange, passionate throbbing music. It didn't belong in the heart of an accordion—or in a speakeasy. It made tears rush, unbidden, to Ellen's eyes. Jane was over at the wooden counter, now. Laughing with Sandy—a high, unnatural laugh. Dick was at the bar, too. Tony's arm was around Ellen's waist. "It was a waltz last night," he said, "remember?" And then, May I have this dance Mrs. Brander? They danced, their bodies close together, their hearts throbbing in time to the strange music. It wasn't fair—the music did things to one; it made forgetting a matter of course! Ellen felt that nothing exactly, was fair. Why hadn't she been born like Jane—of normal, happy parents, who lived together in a house and had a butler? Parents who wouldn't have died apart-tragically. "What are you thinking of," breathed Tony, into her ear "Sweet-heart?" Ellen knew that she should have said the words he expected, but she couldn't. "My mother!" she said. Tony might have been angry, but he wasn't. Instead his lips touched Ellen's hair as they had during their first waltz together. "I wish mine were here, tonight," he said. "I wish mine were here, too. We'll tell each other about our mothers won't we, dear, one day?" It was his sweetness that was so disarming. That was the word—sweetness! It made her love him more than ever. "Yes," Ellen breathed, "yes, Tony, we will."

anything. He just looked at Ellen, and then he turned his back, swiftly and spoke to one of the waiters who hovered near. "Champagne," he said to the waiter. "It's an occasion. Champagne for everybody!" Ellen, with her desperate little hands clasped together, was utterly grateful that at least he and Jane weren't drinking alone. But her gratitude was short lived, for— "We'll drink together, to marriage," Tony added, "to successful, part-time marriage!" The champagne was brought out, in green, icy bottles. It was poured into glasses that were fat at the top and slim at the bottom. The crowd—Ellen's crowd, Tony's crowd—came jamming forward. And Tony, raising his glass very high, made a toast. "Here's to marriage," said Tony clearly, "to modern marriage," said Tony. The sort that sells, over the counter, for so much per square foot. Here's to—" Ellen was crowding forward. "What a man has he doesn't want—what a man has he holds carelessly!) "I'll drink to that," said Ellen very clearly. Oh, Tony should have understood that Dick's kiss was as much of a surprise to her, coming then, as it had been to him! What she didn't understand was that the kiss had been in the nature of a surprise to Dick, too, for Dick was full of surprises this night. Personal ones—and impersonal ones! HINTS TO THE BOOKLOVER

"Cimarron" by Edna Ferber. The book Cimarron opens in Kansas where Yancey Cravat is seated with his wife and her family discussing his experiences which seem almost to fantastic and exciting to be real, but when told by Yancey Cravat they become glowing, exciting adventures. Cravat not only monopolizes the conversation, but also charms the reader with his dashing manner, unusual wit, and his own dynamic personality. The experiences told by Yancey Cravat are of his trip to the new territory opened for settlement named Oklahoma. The conflict arises between romantic and adventurous Yancey Cravat and life's aristocratic Kansas family as our hero proposes to take his wife and baby to Oklahoma to settle among Indians and rough settlers is not only amusing and interesting but is also another victory for Yancey Cravat. To learn of the hard ships of Sabra Cravat and her exciting experiences in the new Oklahoma territory, also to learn more of this picturesque character, Yancey Cravat. One can find these things out by reading this adventurous novel by Edna Ferber.

This week we turn your attention to a prosperous young business man of Cross Plains—Lloyd Bryn. He has been going to school Cross Plains for some time, and a friend to everyone. TEXAS HISTORY IN THE MAKING

Independence, the "Athens of Texas"

—Think-Talk-Write-Texas Centennial in 1940— Independence, Texas, was once proudly proclaimed and undisputed as the Athens of Texas, because of its grace of culture and refinement, and strength of military and political leadership. Independence flourished for 41 years as the home of Baylor University and Baylor College. In 1886 both schools were moved, and with General Sam Houston gone, old Independence went into ruins. Above is what the visitor sees today—all that is left of the building which once housed the great institution of Baylor University. The Baptist church, at Independence, the grave of his wife and son, and the old Houston home stand nearby, but this once proud city is now a mass of ruins. (Texas News Photos.)

ONION SETS PAY $150. FOR TENTH ACRE SAYS K. W. JORDAN WED.

Bermuda onion sets, usually imported to this locality from the Rio Grande valley, can be profitably grown in the Cross Plains trade territory, asserts K. W. Jordan, who exhibited a basket of the sets in town Wednesday that he had grown on the Charlie Stone place, South of town.

Jordan opined that the one tenth acre he planted in the sets would yield near $150.

"The only difficulty is growing the Bermuda sets," he said, "is they must have plenty of water."

Sturges and Gibbs Big Store-wide Sale continue with still greater reductions.

LIBERTY FILMS FOR WEEK OFFER FLYING 'FEMS' AND FICTION

Tim McCoy in "Speed Wings" is now running at the Liberty Theater here. The picture is carded again Saturday afternoon and night.

Sunday afternoon, "Young and Beautiful", starring William Haines and Judith Allen comes to the local screen for a three day stay.

Wednesday and Thursday, "Little Man What Now," with Margaret Sullivan, Douglas Montgomery and others is carded.

Speed Wings
A brief synopsis of "Speed Wings" now showing is: it deals with an attempt on the part of McCoy and his flying partner, William Bakewell, to win the world's speed record for the United States. Six of their fellow flyers have crashed before the picture opens, but before the final fade-out, McCoy has achieved his aim.

The complications which arise, however, are intelligent and legitimate. No unnecessary hokum is brought into the picture. Bakewell's loss of nerve is something which quite often happens to aviators who have seen their pals crash. Evalyn Knapp's entrance, as the secretary suspected of engineering the theft of the plans for McCoy's supercharged motor, is logical and effective.

"Young and Beautiful"
The picture, "Young and Beautiful", which comes to the local screen Sunday features the "Wampus Baby Stars", the most widely publicized group of girls in the world today. They are neither "babies" nor are they stars—yet, their chances the top of the ladder in screen success is compared "rather good".

The picture, besides aptly living up to its title is packed full of real talent and the ingredients of the story, drama, comedy, novelty, music, and production have been skillfully blended into a fascinating picture, the Review is informed.

"Little Man What Now"
The improvidence of youth and the struggle of a young couple against dire poverty, form the basis for the story of "Little Man, What Now?" which comes to the Liberty Theatre Wednesday starring Margaret Sullivan.

Married almost entirely without savings, the youngsters struggle along on the bare pittance which the boy earns as a clerk, only to have their income cease entirely when he loses his job. Many disheartening adventures ensue, but finally the young husband obtains another clerkship.

On the first pay day, however, he spends almost his entire month's wages on a single beautiful dressing table for his wife, simply because she has admired it in a furniture store window, and they again find themselves without funds. Approaching motherhood confronts the young wife, but months before the event the husband again loses his position. The situation becomes desperate.

Mark Travels With Saul

SAUL'S conversion was instantaneous, yet its development was most interesting. Instead of arresting any one in Damascus, he at once announced his change of convictions, and had to escape from the city by means of a basket let down from the wall.

For three years he retired to Arabia. When he emerged he had a definite plan. He would go back to Jerusalem to be welcomed by the disciples, who would naturally choose him as their leader, and so he would become minister of the First Church in Jerusalem the disciples were afraid of him and, even after he had been vouched for by Barnabas, gave him a very grudging welcome.

Rebuffed but still ardent, he went to his old home in Tarsus, a Greek city, where he had been born, a Jew but with full right of Roman citizenship, a fact of which he was immensely proud and of which he took full advantage. For a while he had little to do. Then Barnabas, a discoverer of men greater than himself, the discoverer of Mark went to Tarsus and invited Saul to come to Antioch.

After a very successful work in Antioch, Barnabas and Saul proposed to visit the old home of Barnabas in the island of Cyprus, and to preach as they went. This they did, and took with them Mark, who was a nephew of Barnabas. In Cyprus they had great success and established a friendship with the Roman governor, Sergius Paulus. Saul, named for the Old Testament king, now changed his name to Paulus, probably after this governor. From Cyprus they went into the nearer regions of Asia Minor.

And now an occasion of irritation arose. Barnabas was the leader of this journey, but Saul everywhere became the more prominent character. Barnabas was evidently a tall impressive man; Paul much smaller, more active, and nervous. In one place on the mainland they were received with such honor that there was a proposal to deify them;

And they called Barnabas, Jupiter; and Saul, Mercurius, because he was the chief speaker.

Mark did not like the way things were going. His uncle Barnabas was the really great man, but Saul was taking the lion's share of the honors. Mark made himself disagreeable, and Saul did not like Mark, who finally left the two older men and went back to Jerusalem. In due time Saul and Barnabas followed, and both at Antioch and later at Jerusalem gave a vivid account of a most successful tour.

Thus far there had been no serious quarrel in the church, but the calm was about to be broken.

Notes From COUNTY AGENTS OFFICE

Under the Agricultural Adjustment Act every processor of hogs is required to make a monthly return and pay the tax due thereon to W. A. Thomas, collector of Internal Revenue.

Previous to November 1, 1934, a processor of hogs was defined as any person slaughtering hogs for market. Effective November 1, 1934, by Regulations of the Secretary of Agriculture, in addition to the above definition of processor of hogs, such definition was amended so as to include any person, market, restaurant, hotel, club, hospital or similar establishment purchasing hog carcasses or edible hog products from producers or feeders of hogs for sale or resale, handling or further preparation for market. In such cases it the person, market, etc purchasing hogs from farmers or feeders for resale, rehandling or further preparation for market, who is required to make returns to the collector of Internal Revenue. The tax is upon live weight of the hog and the rate is $2.25 per hundred pounds. To restore a carcass to live weight a conversion factor of 132 is used. Example—100 pounds of carcass would weigh 132 pounds live weight. Or 32% increase.

A producer or feeder of hogs is not defined as a processor where he slaughters hogs and sells the carcasses or portions thereof to any person or concern for resale or further preparation for market. However, the producer or feeder or hogs, who slaughters hogs and sells the carcasses or portions thereof direct to the consumer (not for resale), such feeder or producer in such a case is the processor and is required by law to make returns to the collector.

The producer (not including a feeder) of hogs is privileged to slaughter and sell not more than 500 pounds of pork products during any marketing year direct to the consumer.

consumer, tax exempt. The marketing year is from November 5th to November 5th the year year following.

If a producer sells more than 300 pounds he is required to pay the tax on all that he sells. The 300 pounds is not exempted in that case. Any question not made clear will be gladly answered by addressing a letter to my office or to the Collector of Internal Revenue, W. A. Thomas, Dallas.

I would suggest that if you are going to sell more than 300 pounds of hogs, liveweight, that you keep a strict account of to whom you sell the pork and how much it weighs. If you have any trouble in making out the returns come into the office and I will help you.

DEPENDABILITY

Isn't it comforting to know as you sit around the family hearth, made warm by clean, noiseless, natural gas, and listen to the siren screams of a Texas norther that your home is insured of heat and comfort by a dependable gas company, whose supply comes from inexhaustible well?

That protection is yours the minute you become a consumer from the lines of this company. Regardless of the temperature outside, your home will be supplied with as much perfect fuel as you desire. Faithful employees defy the elements and guard with an endless vigil the sources of supply and lines that send gas to your home.

Dependability is the watchword of this company and our business practices.

What Is Your Hobby?

By C. F. Hemphill

Everybody has a hobby as an outlet for energy. There are millions who give all their spare time, and some time they should not spare, to games; marbles, croquet, baseball, football, golf, etc; others take as their hobby, fishing, hunting, outing, rapping, touring, etc. A more worthwhile class are interested in gardening, poultry raising, fruit growing, tree budding and such like; but why cannot we make our hobby a sure-enough worthwhile enterprise, for instance, in Cross Plains trade territory there is a real demand for experts in fruit and berry propagation; pecan orchardists, terracing and fertilizer enthusiasts, truck crop specialists, cattle breeders and seeders with skill and ability, and probably most important of all there is a great field for us in the advantages to be had from horse and mule breeding.

Why not make horse and mule breeding your hobby? It is a hobby worth while; it is a much needed service, and one that promises more returns within the next few years than any of the many other projects that may be unchanced, and I would say further that our territory is especially adapted to its furtherance.

Twenty-six years ago Texas had 1,270,000 horses. Ten years later it had 1,170,000 horses. Sixteen years later it had only 843,000 horses. This clearly shows that the number of horses in Texas has declined nearly a half million within this short period, and it is a startling fact that unless Texas intensifies the breeding of horses and mules we will within five years be without a horse or mule able to perform the work required on a farm. It has been ascertained that the average age, in 1933, of horses in Texas was 18 years, which age is some eight years beyond the peak of their usefulness. It is also a lamentable fact that in many counties of the State a colt has not been foaled in years, and in a very great number of them there is not a stallion or a jack.

Breeding of horses and mules should be one of the major industries of Texas. The need of them is very evident and the future will undoubtedly increase that need and in addition thereto create a demand not only for breed stock but for better work stock. Only the finest horses, draft and otherwise, and the finest mules are really worthy of place and economically justifiable; therefore, our citizenship needs help and encouragement in this coming enterprise.

There is no better area in the world for the breeding of better horses and mules than Texas. The climate is ideal. The native grasses are of the best. We have the range. We have the idle land. We need only to arouse the people to the absolute necessity of this movement, as a matter of self interest, and they will respond.

The breeding of better horses and mules should become one of Cross Plains' major objectives, on account of the enormous increase in wealth we can accumulate thereby, and because of the income to be derived which is made certain by the fact that within three years Texas farms will have to replace from 200,000 to 400,000 mules, and from 150,000 to 250,000 horses. It is estimated that 50% of the present work stock in Texas will have to be replaced within the next three years; therefore, this industry should pay us more in the next few years than would the raising of beef cattle.

Taylor and Runnels Counties are among the 15% of Texas Counties which have maintained breeding circles. I think it would be wise for us to investigate their methods and if found satisfactory to our conditions we should adopt them and sponsor, as a Lions Club or Chamber of Commerce, what I consider one of our section's most promising recovery methods, the breeding of horses and mules.
