this disease and it is more prevalent in young animals up to one year of age. The greatest trouble as stated above being that it is a predisposing cause for screw worm and results in stunting the young animals and causing a great shrinkage in the feed lot.

Trench Silo Demonstration Planned At Old Settlers' Picnic

So many people are inquiring and writing about the trench silo which is winning approval over all the United States that permission has been given the County Agent by the officials of the Old Settlers' Picnic to place a small trench silo demonstration near the grounds so that all persons interested in learning how to preserve the wonderful feed crop this year may see and hear suggestions that may be put into practice on their farms.

This picnic, as announced in another place in this paper is to be held on the Bayou on the McCoy ranch, 14 miles south of Baird, August 14, and everyone is invited to attend, especially to do honor to the lovable old people who yet live to inspire the younger of this generation.

Weed and Grass Killer

There has probably never been more concern among the farmers with their problems than today over the spreading of Johnson grass, Bermuda grass, and obnoxious weeds. The following solution is suggested as a cheap eradication and has been found by the Department of Agriculture to be very effective. It should be applied when the weeds or grass are about matured. One pound of white arsenic, 2 pounds sal soda (sodium carbonate) and 9 gallons of water. The mixture should be boiled together until the solution is clear. When this solution is sprayed on the weeds or grass or cultivated plants it will kill them. Caution—Some farmers add large amounts of water to the above mixture and use it as a spray to destroy leaf worms, but the danger to the plant is so great that it should never be practiced. The above solution when made into one gallon of water and then poured into clots cut as chips from trees will kill the trees. This formula is known in scientific circles as the Kedzie formula. It should always be boiled outside the house and care should be taken that it does not come in contact with the skin.

Sore Mouth in Sheep and Goats

Sheep men, especially, have been bothered in Callahan county this summer with sore mouth. It is also an infectious disease that occurs just as often among goats. The technical name is Contagious Ecthyma. It is quite prevalent on the large sheep and goat raising range of Western Texas and elsewhere. Sometimes it is also very troublesome among feeder lambs in the feed lot. Older animals may be infected artificially or from getting the emulsion in cuts or bruises.

The disease manifests itself by a swelling of the lips followed by papules, vesicles, pustules, and scab formation so that the lips become unpliable and stick together by a brown crust. The crusts finally slough off and the wounds heal without leaving a scar. The disease itself is not very fatal, but losses from screw worm infestation of the wounds, from reduced thriftiness of the young animals, or from shrinkage in the feed lots may be very heavy. Sheep that once have the disease become immune.

The disease is invariably found to occur among lambs.

Treatment — Medical treatment for sore mouth at its best is unsatisfactory. This may be expected from the nature of the disease, since it is caused by a virus which is so small that it cannot be seen by a microscope. They are too small to be called germs. This virus penetrates into the skin, into the tongue, and parts of the mouth and causes an emulsion to be secreted which forms a brown crust, which, as stated above, will shed off leaving no scars or bad effects. If any treatment is to be given it is suggested that a mixture of one part of tincture of iodine to two parts of glycerine be made and applied to the scabby part. This preparation has the tendency to soften the scabs and thus keep the lips more pliable. If glycerine is not used, two parts of white vaseline may be used by working one part of tincture of iodine into it. Very few animals ever die from

RUBBER EAR GAVE STAN LAUREL PAIN IN NECK!

Stan Laurel suffered hours of discomfort and no little pain during the production of 'The Bohemian Girl,' starring himself and Oliver Hardy, in order to 'put over' a gag which he felt would win a hearty laugh. The action called for 'Ollie' to register his disdain of Stan and at the same time to mildly punish him. It was Laurel himself who suggested the manner in which this should be accomplished. The final result shows Hardy grabbing his partner by the ear, stretching it about six inches, and letting it snap back to normality. This was done through the medium of rubber moulded to fit over his natural organs of hearing. In order to withstand the abuse to which it was put, the synthetic ear had to be taped to Stan's head and reinforced in its place by a steel strap. Besides suffering the discomfort of this contraption for hours, Laurel also sustained a badly swollen ear before the scene, which was retaken four times, was concluded. The 'Bohemian Girl' will be shown at the Liberty Theatre here Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Baum had as their guests this week Mrs. John Goodman and family of Wichita Falls.

Well might the more prosaic news-hawks of the airways take a lesson from the grim determination revealed in this girl's colorful and glamorous career that began so quietly in the quaint little village of Burkett, Texas. From this community of only three hundred inhabitants, her dainty and stylish seven league boots plus a driving ambition have carried her to the pinnacle of success and firmly established her in the hearts of women, yes and men everywhere. Perhaps one of the main reasons for this woman's appeal was the influence of her mother, whose tenderness and generosity was the luxury of the household. There were seven children in this family and Kathryn's amiability, culture and delicious sense of humor rejected the background of which she is so proud. According to Kathryn, it was also her mother who taught her the first principle of success, which fundamentally says Kathryn, "Was the necessity of always being myself." From what I gathered during our discourse, I would say that another part of the background that mirrors the vast sympathetic understanding of this young woman, was moulded by her father, the village doctor, who insisted that his golden haired daughter accompany him as he called on the sick. As a child she absorbed a wide breadth of experience that few of us are able to acquire in a lifetime and from this experience Kathryn has gained a faith in humanity that cannot be destroyed. Her life is a continuous rhapsody and not once has the talent of this fascinating woman been misdirected in the panorama of modern existence.

After a successful career on the stage, Kathryn turned to radio still wearing the seven league boots. She has trudged steadily onward, her unerring intuition leading her on with the idea of interpreting our rent events of every nature and description until finally she reached her present inter-stellar position as the famous news commentator who brings you "News Through a Woman's Eyes". Crowded into a brief fifteen minute program, this broadcast gives to thousands the true story behind the headlines. And incidentally, Kathryn makes her own assignments, which should give you an insight of the powerful driving force in back of this charming and energetic young woman. Sophisticated, brilliant, yet never aloof, Kathryn Cravens continues her never ending search. And whether the trail leads through the grime and dirt to a water-front saloon or to the orchid room of a cosmopolitan hotel, Kathryn never deviates from her course to bring to light the real story her listeners are waiting to hear. "News Through a Woman's Eyes" as far as we've been able to learn, was the first news program in the country to be written and presented by a woman, and to know Miss Cravens is to know why this program is such a tremendous success. Hearing her smooth, well modulated voice, so vibrant with life, so sincere and full of purpose, you immediately recognize the voice of a charming young woman; a woman who has a deep understanding of the potpourri of humanity. Kathryn presents "News Through a Woman's Eyes," from KMOX, Columbia's 50,000 watt station in Saint Louis.

Miss Helen Gray and Billie Gray, and Verda Gray were visitors in Clyde Sunday.
