CITY'S POPULATION WELL OVER 1,200

PRELIMINARY COUNT SETS IT AT 1,228 BUT MORE EXPECTED

Final Official Tabulation Is Expected To Increase The Total Figure; Small Loss

Preliminary census reports place Cross Plains 1940 population at 1,228. It is believed, however, that this figure will be slightly increased when final official tabulation is made.

The figure is 279 less than 10 years ago when the last federal enumeration was made. At that time Cross Plains population was listed at 1,507.

It is pointed out by Mayor C. S. Martin that the census of Cross Plains proper is several hundred more than the 1,228 but a number of homes, including those of several business men, are only a few feet out of the city limits and could not be counted in the population of the incorporation.

"For instance," the Mayor cited, "the city limits in the North part of town runs through the school campus and a large number of homes in that locality were necessarily enumerated with the rural area of Callahan county. East of town are about a dozen homes on the highway barely out of the city limits, none of these could be counted. The same is true in both other directions."

During the depression era, however, when most every city in this congressional district was suffering large losses, Cross Plains' decrease was small as compared with preliminary totals from a number of other cities.

Preliminary counts of other towns in this section are: Albany 2,230, Moran 703, Anson 2,314, Stamford 5,231, Merkel 1,963, Baird 1,890, Clyde 765, Rising Star 1,292, De Leon 1,973, Hico 1,248, Hamilton 2,725 and Gustine 414.

A Preacher's Appeal To His Laymen

"Be regular in your church attendance. Possibly a minister ought to rise superior to his environment and speak with as muchunction to quartered oak as to living hearts, but a minister after all is only human, and in the course of time empty pews wear on him. Laymen, as a rule, do not realize the importance of church attendance. If they did they would not so often allow a cloud, or a shower, or a wind, or a snow, or a caller, or a newspaper, or a headache, or a fit of laziness, to keep them at home.

"A minister deserted by his representative men dies. He dies by inches. No man can preach with sustained fire and hope whose leading people show by their desultory attendance that public worship is to them one of the incidents or electives of life. Nothing will so surely take the spring and snap out of a man as speaking on great themes to empty pews. It makes a man prematurely old.

"The church is expected by the world to render worship on the Lord's day to God. The rendering of this worship is one of the sacrifices to be offered perpetually by the followers of Jesus. The world's redemption is delayed by Christians who make the sacrifice by selfish neglect to take part in it. Be in your place every time. Your presence gives life to the preacher. Your face helps him more than you can ever know. Your faithfulness strengthens the grip of Christ upon your community, and hastens the coming of the golden age."

DOZEN-IN-ONE EGG IS DISPLAYED BY WARREN

An unusual egg produced by an ordinary hen is being displayed this week by Claude Warren. Dimensions of the egg are seven and three-quarter inches by nine and a quarter inches.

Those who view the extraordinary henfruit are amazed at its size. Disbelief is expressed when they are told that a white giant hen produced the egg. Up to the time the egg was laid, the hen had given no indication of her unusual ability.

Some observers of the egg believe that their gullibility is being exploited. The dozen-in-one product may be seen by contacting Claude Warren.

MAKE INDUCEMENT FOR NEW SEWER CUSTOMERS

As a special inducement to citizens who do not have sewer facilities, members of the city council voted last week to furnish tiling and ditching to the property line for new customers. Dr. and Mrs. J. Henry McGowen and son and Mrs. Flora Souder were in Austin Monday, where they attended commencement exercises at the University of Texas. Mrs. McGowen's brother, Nick Bailey of Clyde, received his B. A. degree.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bryan and family of Arizona are visiting relatives here this week.

One-Crop Farmer

Cotton is my shepherd and I am in want; it maketh me to lie down without supper; it leadeth me beside mortgaged windows; it restoroth my debts in one-crop farming; it leadeth my children from the path of education for the crop's sake. Yea though I walk through the valley of starvation, I fear much evil, for cotton will not feed me, the seed and meal do not comfort me. Thou prepareth a reduction in my income before me, in the presence of my creditors; thou anointest my household with debts, my expenses runneth over my proceeds; surely misery and poverty will follow me all the days of my life and I will on a mortgaged or rented farm forever. Amen.

CUBAN MAN VISITS CROSS PLAINS BOY

Justo T. Benitez of Holguin, Cuba, visited John Paul Jackson here this week end. He is attending school at John Tarleton, Stephenville. He made the following statement about his country and his coming to the United States.

"I have been in the United States four years, having arrived in September of 1936 with the purpose in mind to study. I lived two years in Pennsylvania and came to Texas where I attended A & M. I am majoring in Animal Husbandry so that I can follow my father's business.

"In December of 1938 I obtained permanent residence here in the United States and made Texas my state to live in. I like this country as much as I like Cuba, my native land.

"Cuba, largest island of the West Indies, is only 96 miles South of Key West, Florida and has 44,000 square miles. It has a population of 4,200,000. Spanish is the national language but English is spoken by a large percent of the people. Cuba is known for its sugar and tobacco production.

"My family, according to the American point of view, is too large, but I do not think so. It is composed of six girls and four boys with both father and mother still living. I should add one of my uncle's family has fourteen members."

METHODISTS BEGIN REVISED SCHEDULE

According to information received from the pastor the Methodist church will begin its summer calendar of activities Sunday morning, the preaching services will be held at 9 o'clock. The Sunday school will assemble for class work at 9:45 and the two services which will be unified will come to a close at 10:30.

"We have tried this schedule for summer services with good results in other places and we are expecting a good response here" the pastor told the Review. Evening services will begin at 8:15. This schedule will continue until the beginning of the Revival season August 18.

Other attractive features for summer work at the church include a Children's Song and Story Hour which will be held on Friday afternoons from five to six o'clock through the months of July and August.

The sermon subject for Sunday morning is "The Devil's Best Ally." A visiting minister will fill the pulpit Sunday evening.

Only 2 Vacancies Left In School Faculty

TWO TEACHERS ARE HIRED BY TRUSTEES IN MEETING MONDAY

Mrs. Pat Allen And Weldon Chambers Are Included In Next Year's Faculty

Two teachers were employed by the board of trustees for Cross Plains schools at the regular meeting of the body Monday night, leaving only two vacancies to be filled before opening of the 1940-1941 term.

Mrs. Curran E. (Pat) Allen was named second grade teacher. One of the two remaining vacancies is in the primary school, where an art and public school music instructor is to be employed, the Review was told Tuesday morning by Superintendent Lewis C. Norman Tuesday morning.

Other teacher employed by the board Monday night was Weldon Chambers, who has 10 years experience in the profession. Mr. Chambers will teach junior business training and math in high school, the position formerly held by F. B. Porter, who resigned the post to operate a business enterprise at Burkett. Mr. Chambers has taught three years at May, was Superintendent at Williams six years, and a member of the Roby faculty one year. He attended school last year. School men regard Mr. Chambers one of the best high school math instructors in this part of the state.

Only remaining vacancy in high school now is that of a home economics instructor. Trustees have been besieged with applications, however, as yet no definite commitments have been made.

There is a remote possibility that still another teacher may be added to next year's faculty, bringing the personnel to 20 instructors, however, it will be late in the Summer before it is definitely known whether or not this extra teacher will be hired. It is pointed out that trustees are postponing action here until the definite number of scholastics, as a result of pending transfers, consolidations and mergers, are definitely ascertained.

Gustine Man Manufactures Indian Relics; Sells to White, Redskins

These Indian arrowheads were made by a white man—and that's no April Fool's Day joke.

Mack Matthews, 70 year old Gustine man, has manufactured and sold 100,000 Indian arrowheads, many of them to the Indians, who in turn sell them back to the whites and to curio dealers.

A lifetime of "fooling with flint and picking up Indian arrowheads" led Matthews to a discovery of the so-called "lost art" of making arrowheads 18 years ago. Now he makes a living at it, closely guarding his secret process from all except three nephews whom he has taught to carry on the art after he has gone.

Mr. Matthews, who was born in Comanche County's first old log courthouse at Cora, the former county seat, said the oldest Indians in New Mexico and Oklahoma had informed him that they did not know how to make arrowheads. As a matter of fact, he said no modern Indians used flint arrowheads. They preferred steel arrowheads, instead.

Matthews lives alone in a small farm residence near Gustine, surrounded by displays of the intricate and beautiful art he has developed. His front porch is virtually a show window display of arrowheads, swordlike carvings, and assemblies behind glass of various arrangements of small arrowheads.

His collection includes not only flint and glass arrowheads, but also a number of guns, including a revolver that is supposed to have been the property, at one time of the lethal John Wesley Hardin.

The little arrowhead maker framped nine miles recently through the Leon river bottoms and then sat down to talk about arrowheads and his own unusual story.

"My father, Tom W. Matthews, came to this section before the Civil War and opened a woodshop at old Cora, the first county seat of Comanche County. He made furniture for the first settlers. Here is part of a grave marker that he made for one of the early settlers.

"Cora was located three miles out of Gustine on the Hamilton-Comanche highway. Finding it close to what became the county line, they removed the county seat to the center of the county, at Comanche, in 1865.

"After the county seat was moved my father bought the Cora town lots and made them into a farm. We lived in the old log courthouse. I was born there on Christmas day, 1869. The building has since been moved to Lake Elnes, Comanche, and preserved.

"When I grew up, I went into the saloon business at Comanche and at one time had two saloons there. I remained in the business until Comanche went dry, then moved to Paint Rock for a year. After that, I came down here to Gustine and have lived here ever since.

"I have seen a lot of gun battles. I have a gun that is supposed to have belonged to John Wesley Hardin.

"Ever since I was a kid, I've been picking up arrowheads and fooling with flint. When my brother and I were boys we had been taught that Indians caught grasshoppers and ate them, so we did it too and got sick on them and liked to have died. I haven't eaten any more grasshoppers since then. It turned my stomach."

It was not, however, until 18 years ago Mr. Matthews said, that he succeeded in making a perfect arrowhead.

"I learned by trying everything possible and by following what old timers said, then developing my own method. I finally used what I believed were the Indian's tool which I found at the Indian camp grounds in Comanche county, and it was with these tools that I made my first perfect arrowheads. They are flint tools.

"The oldest Indians in New Mexico and Oklahoma told me they didn't know how to make arrowheads. They claim that they picked up arrowheads themselves. I have never seen Indians use a flint arrowhead for shooting. They use steel arrowheads."

Matthews said he was offered $10 for the first "perfect" arrowhead that he made, but refused to sell it.

Feminine Fans Give Boyd Trophy

All set to get the autograph of Texas A&M's All-American tackle, Joe Boyd, is Mary Kay Jones, president of the Texas State College for Women student body. Boyd, fourth in a line of South-west Conference gridiron favorites with the girls at TSCW, was on the woman's college campus recently to receive an engraved desk set from his feminine fans. TSCW students annually present a trophy to their choice for the outstanding senior football player in the conference.

He has a genuine Indian spearhead for which he was offered $25.

"In the last 18 years, I have made and sent off over 100,000 arrowheads. When I first started out, I would work at it all day and part of the night. But now my eyes are not so good, and I make arrowheads only when I feel like it. I don't work at night any more. It takes from an hour to 40 minutes to make a large glass one. If flint was used on the large ones it would take from three to four hours.

"There is no tool in the world that will cut flint. It is the hardest stone there is, I think. You couldn't use a file to make arrowheads—you'd ruin your file on the first piece you worked on.

"Yes, I've tried heating the flint, but it doesn't work. The flint flits everywhere when you get it hot and it crumbles afterwards. I've ruined a lot of flint that way, but it doesn't work.

"I send arrowheads to people in New Mexico, where they are traded to the Indians and the big curio shops for blankets, rugs and jewelry which I sell.

"Collectors all over the United States want arrowheads. I make them out of flint and scarping from glass flint. While people mostly handle arrowheads, Indians turn them to curio firms.

"I have three nephews who can make arrowheads. I taught my nephews how to make them. It took two years to learn.

"Most of the people tell me arrowhead making is a lost art. I can't say that I know of anybody else except myself and those that I have taught, who can make perfect arrowheads now.

"Men and boys used to come up here at night, trying to learn how to do it. When they got here I put my tools and talked to them until they left.

"Lots of collectors come to see me make arrowheads. I just tell them I can't work with them around.

"I get flint from Indian camping grounds and also buy and trade for some from boys and collectors. Collectors send me flint from every state in the union to be used in making arrowheads.

"I color arrowheads, with Indian color, when people want them to look old.

"Big collectors furnish my nephews more orders or arrowheads than they can work up."

Mr. Matthews has a trailer museum of his art and other Indian relics. He has a large supply of the most beautiful pure wool Indian-made blankets for which he has traded arrowheads. He went on a tour in 1935 with the wheeled museum.

Some of the arrowheads are made in miniature, no larger than a match and delicately chipped into perfect designs. He makes every kind of design from flint and glass including moon and stars, snakes, fish-hooks and other odd shapes. Some of his glass carvings are about three feet long.

JUNE 15 IS DEADLINE TO MAKE APPLICATION FOR A FREE MATTRESS

June 15 is the deadline for taking mattress applications through the Extension Service program. Each community chairman, and AAA office Extension Agents are anxious that each farmer that is eligible and wants a mattress be reached before June 15. A farmer may be classed as a laborer, tenant, share-cropper or owner and is eligible if the total income of 1939 did not exceed $400.00. Up to date 580 applications have been approved. 39 bales of cotton have been taken to the community centers by the commission. The 3,000 yards of ticking ordered has not arrived, but is due any day. The centers open when the ticking arrives. Each applicant and those who are helping with the program will be notified the date centers will open.

TUBE TAKES WRESTLER'S BLOWS WITHOUT EVEN A PUFF OF AIR

There wasn't any loss of prestige or pressure either when a Seal-O-Matic puncture sealing tube, manufactured by The B. F. Goodrich Company, matched its two-way safety against the brawn of Everett Marshall, former world's heavyweight wrestling champion and present title claimant. Instead of collapsing under his hammer blows the tube though bristling with spikes, held its own with neither a wheeze nor loss of breath. A layer of self-sealing rubber composition on the inner side of the tube closes holes without loss of air when the penetrating object is removed, the wrestler learned.

Average American To Consume Eight Pounds Peanuts This Year, Survey Says

You, as an average American will eat between seven and eight pounds of peanuts this year. During the same period that you and your fellow country men are eating a billion pounds of these products of the soil in peanut butter and peanut bars, and while you are consuming tons of salted peanuts at baseball games, fifty-one million pounds of "goobers" will be used for shortening. And from the industrial standpoint, peanuts and their by-products are used in such diverse articles as explosives and hair tonic. These are a few of the statements recently made by Charles S. Wilkins, Registrar at John Tarleton Agricultural College, in speaking to a group interested in chemistry.

Wilkins, who became interested in the peanut several years ago as a part of his work on a Ph. D. degree, has unearthed many interesting facts concerning the culture, the history, and the possibilities of this crop. Wilkins stated that the peanut originated somewhere in South America where it was found by the Spanish explorers. It was immediately transported to Spain and then to Africa. One story advanced is that peanuts were used by mariners to lure the natives into slave boats. The association of the peanut with the Africans is noted in that the wodo goober is derived from the African Congo Gamba.

In the Southwestern states of this country almost 12,500,000 acres are planted, according to the Tarleton professor. Annually, this nets the farmer about $50,000,000. About $200,000,000 more business is caused by the lowly peanut in the manufacture and sale of peanut products.

Wilkins paid high tribute to George Washington Carver, slave born negro chemist. "This man," said the college registrar, "has worked out over 300 uses of the peanut. With other scientists methods have been developed whereby peanuts are made into milk, cheese, breakfast food, paints, quinoline, linoleum, face powder, dyes, and countless other articles.

Large commercial organizations, declared Wilkins, acclaim peanut oil as the ideal shortening. The research staff of the manufacturing organizations declared that peanut oil was desirable because it had little odor or flavor, was easy to refine, did not revert in flavor and was easy to bleach. One of the most interesting developments in the peanut industry explained by Wilkins was the development of peanut flour. In comparison with wheat flour the new product has eight times as much fat, four times as much protein, and nine times as much mineral. This flour is looked on with hopefulness by the doctors experimenting on diet for diabetic sufferers. He further pointed out that the John Tarleton College was conducting numerous experiments in developing new recipes using the peanut.

Aside from these many uses, explained Wilkins, the peanut is a soil builder as it is leguminous crop. Until a few years ago, however, many of the nitrogen nodules attached to the top roots were destroyed when the peanuts were harvested. At the Tarleton experiment farm a simple, inexpensive solution was found to this problem. A flat sweep was reworked at a blacksmith shop so that it could be attached to two arms of a cultivator. This device cut the tap root, leaving the valuable nitrogen in the soil. Too, it made possible better lay as the vines did not wilt so quickly. Also, peanuts were freer from dirt when they were pulled.

The U. S. imported 57,999,000 pounds of peanut oil compared to domestic production of 51,000,000 pounds, pointed out Wilkins, is an indication that there is a bright future for this crop which grows so well in this section.

In conclusion Wilkins said, "Regardless of what the ultimate uses of peanuts may be in the future, the outlook is bright for the farmer who employs this crop since the average yield per acre for the United States the past fourteen year period has been twenty-four bushels and the prevailing market price this year was ninety cents a bushel. A little calculating will show that this yield and price gave a return per acre of better than twenty-one dollars on land that often sells for less than fifteen. Add to this the value of the hay, which we ignored in the above computation, though in most instances it alone will take care of the cost of production.

Don't tell me that any crop that will do this is just peanuts. Elliott Bryant left Saturday for a visit of several days in Artesia, New Mexico.

Lake Brownwood Fishing Regulations

Since the opening of fishing season on May 1 there have been large numbers of Central Texans fishing on Lake Brownwood, also there have been large numbers of questions asked me about regulations on Lake Brownwood. In this short article I will give the main laws as they apply to this greatest of fishing in Central Texas.

Licenses: Residents of Texas fishing in Lake Brownwood using natural baits do not need license. Only those persons using artificial lures are required to have a license. These licenses cost $1.10. No exemptions. Non residents of Texas must buy either a five-day non-resident fishing license for $1.10 or a non-resident fishing license for one year, price $5.

Method of taking fish: Persons fishing in Lake Brownwood may take fish with ordinary pole and line, trotline, throwlines, and artificial lures. There is no limit to the number of hooks one may have on a line. No nets or traps of any kind may be used. Minnows seines of less than 20 feet may be used for taking minnows under three inches for bait. Shad may be used for bait. All other fish must be returned to the water immediately.

Size limits: Bass must be eleven inches, Crappie seven inches. There is no size limit on catfish, crap, drum, buffalo, and perch of all kinds.

Bag limit: It is unlawful to take more than 15 bass, 15 crappie, 35 bream or goggle-eye, or an aggregate of more than 35 of these species in any one day including catfish. One may not possess more than 30 bass, 30 crappie, or 70 bream or goggle-eye. This applies to a two day or more fishing trip.

Minnow law: Any one who sells minnows for bait must have a bait dealers license. Minnows must not be transported from certain counties, see law digest if interested. Minnows over 3 inches in length when seized must be returned to the water immediately from which they are taken.

A digest of game laws as they apply to other sections of Texas may be obtained from your game warden or license agents. Be sure that your boat has life preservers and lights.

L. A. WOODS WILL BE AT 59TH PICNIC HERE

my visits in that section have been thoroughly enjoyed," Mr. Woods stated.

Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Anderson of Michigan, spent the week end here with Weldon's mother, Mrs. Cora Anderson. They all left Cross Plains for San Antonio where they will visit Miss Virginia Anderson.

J. T. Hammett Takes Fourth Links Crown Of The Season At Ranger; Beats D. Jones

James Taylor (J. T. to you) Hammett, 1940 champ of Philpeco, Stamford and Sweetwater, added another title Sunday when he capped the Ranger Country club tourney crown.

His old and honored foe, Douglas Jones of Big Spring, was again the victim in the finals. Doug, who was medalist with a 71, succumbed 3-2, before a barrage of wood shots that had the gallery oohing and aahing.

Brisk winds swept the course during the semi-finals in the morning and the title duel in the afternoon. On two occasions, with the aid of the breeze, J. T. sailed tee shots just 350 yards right down the hole. Both pokes came on the fifth hole, a 375 yarder, and were the longest on that particular stretch in memory of the men who built the course.

In the morning rounds, Hammett gave young Charles Royer of Fort Worth a bad going over. The 15-year old youngster from Crowthorn was badly off, while Hammett couldn't miss. As a result they halved the first hole in par and then J. T. won the next nine in a row for a 9-8 victory. Hammett, fine sportsman that he is, was put out over the one-sided victory.

Jones won over Will Hill Acker of Commerce in his semi-final round. It was a hot duel for the first five holes and they were square through five. Then Doug bagged birds on six, seven and eight, in a row and turned three up. He also won ten with a bird and soon closed out the match.

But against Hammett, Doug couldn't get started. He lost the first hole to a par, taking three from the edge. On the third, J. T. did the almost unbelievable by topping two wood shots in a row and then they were even.

But Jones played the trees on the fourth and lost to a par, and on five Hammett uncocked one of those out-of-the-country drives to within ten yards of the green. Doug took four to reach the carpet and conceded to go two down. Hammett mopped up the easy sixth, hitting with a spoon on the 341-yard hole to keep from going over. He fubbed a second shot and lost to a par. They halved seven and eight in regulation, but J. T. won nine with a bogey as Jones took four to get on.

On the back nine, Hammett held out from the green on 11 for a two and then won 12 with a four as Jones pulled his second against a fence. They halved 13 in fours and J. T. was four up and five to play. He sweated the ball 300 yards on 14 but lost the hole. Jones stuck a second for a bird and only three down. On 15, Hammett needed but a short putt for a bird, and the match went into the cup but rimmed out. It just delayed the end. They halved sixteen with threes.

Rattlesnake designs were frequently used by the southern colonies, and a flag of this type was carried by the U. S. Marines and bluejackets from the Continental Navy, who made a landing in the Bahamas in March, 1776. The rattlesnake symbol, with its motto "Don't tread on me," also appeared on the drums of American Marines at that time.

The Grand Union flag was popular with naval men and it was sometimes called the "First Ensign." There were scores of other colonial banners, each of which found special favor in the colony where it originated.

Even today there is a certain mystery about Old Glory. Historians fail to agree as to who designed it, although tradition points to Betsy Ross, a Quaker City seamstress, as the maker of the first Stars and Stripes adopted by the Continental Congress on June 14, 1777.

With a deep appreciation of the benefits we enjoy as citizens, each of us should display the Star-Spangled Banner on Flag Day, and by so doing honor the birth of our flag. No flag in the world is more beautiful. No flag spreads its folds over a more highly favored land than ours.

LONG MAY OLD GLORY WAVE

Romance has trailed Old Glory since it became our national flag 163 years ago. Since that time it has symbolized the hopes, aspirations and spirit of a nation devoted to the cause of liberty.

Prominent among early American flags, forerunners of the Stars and Stripes, were pine trees, rattlesnakes and other designs. The Grand Union flag, with a British Jack appearing where forty-eight stars are now shown in a blue field, was the immediate ancestor of our national flag.

Pine tree flags were displayed by the cruisers of Washington's fleet which operated in New England waters, and such flags bore the words, "An appeal to Heaven."

With a deep appreciation of the benefits we enjoy as citizens, each of us should display the Star-Spangled Banner on Flag Day, and by so doing honor the birth of our flag. No flag in the world is more beautiful. No flag spreads its folds over a more highly favored land than ours.

COWBOY HATS SERVE AS ASH RECEIVERS

Almost everyone in the United States has seen the little cowboy hats that serve as ash trays, or perhaps, merely as pin trays on a lady's dressing table.

"Almost everyone" is used advisedly because the hats are made not only of clay, but in Montana they are made of copper, and they have been sold by New York firms in gold plate. In other words, they had what it takes to make a thing popular.

Back in 1894 a contingent of four priests and 14 student priests came to New Mexico from France and from that contingent, all of whom later became full-fledged priests, four of the oldest are still alive. They are Fr. C. Balland, Santa Fe; Fr. Eduardo Paulhan, Pecos; Fr. Max Mayeux, Santa Fe; and Fr. Michael Dumarest, Isleta Pueblo.

Fr. Dumarest, whose brother, Fr. Noel Dumarest, died in 1904, one time was stationed in Las Vegas. During his stay there, the Las Vegas residents put on an annual rodeo and celebration. In about 1924, and maybe 1923, some cowboys came to Fr. Dumarest and asked him if he would design some sort of a souvenir that could either be given away or sold at a very nominal cost.

Fr. Dumarest, whose "thinking cap" is on most of the time, undertook to comply with the request and designed and had fashioned from his gelatin mold, little hats made in exact replica, and to scale of the so-called "ten-gallon" chapeaux worn by the waddies.

That, then was the origin of the cowboy hat ash tray and Fr. Dumarest still has one or two originals "If I haven't given them away" at his rectory in Isleta.

After the Las Vegas celebration of that year, Fr. Dumarest and his sculpting charges of the parish, continued to make little hats in their spare time, and a few years later, William Hfeld, at Las Vegas, also wanted an "idea."

This time Fr. Dumarest was called upon to suggest an idea for a float. So, he laid down his pipe on a little cowboy hat ash tray, got his drawing board on his lap, grabbed a T-square and an architect's rule and set to work.

Float is Success

The Hfeld float was a grand success—it was merely a cowboy hat "ash-tray" about eight feet high and sealed to measurement.

There are cowboy hat ash trays and there are also Mexican sombrero ash trays, but the latter were designed and put on the market years after the first one appeared in Las Vegas from the model of Fr. Dumarest.

Father Dumarest, however, has not confined his hobby activities merely to designing little cowboy hat ash trays or amusing book ends in the form of an Indian fire place. He has followed in his brother's footsteps and has had the preservation of the Indian customs constantly in mind.

"It sort of came about this way," Fr. Dumarest said. "You see, I live in the moon and my feet scarcely ever touch the ground, and I keep thinking of what might be done to preserve these Indian customs."

"Once, when I was stationed in Gallup, a man named Shank, from Morley, just across the line in Colorado came to Gallup and mentioned that he would like to go to Acoma. That was in the long ago and I was just a young priest. The people of Gallup told the man that 'no man ever went to Acoma' because it was practically inaccessible.

Buggy Travels Slowly

"Then one of the townspeople suddenly remembered that I went to Acoma and they sent the man to me."

"Well," Fr. Dumarest continued as he lit one match after another trying to keep his pipeful of tobacco going. "We had lots of time to get there and the buggy traveled slowly. The man talked much to me of his business and work in the mining community and incidentally said he was going to build a new office and adjoining building."

"At Acoma we remained all night and the mining man was amazedly impressed with the church there," Fr. Dumarest continued.

The man, Fr. Dumarest outlined, expressed the thought that it was too bad that in course of time the pueblo architecture would go the way of all clay. Indeed, the mining man was really dismayed that the architecture was not preserved for future generations.

"That is up to you, my friend," Fr. Dumarest said.

"What do you mean, up to me?" was the reply.

Looks Into Future

Then Fr. Dumarest also looked up to the remarkable lines of the church—then into the sky as though looking far into the future.

"You said you were going to build an office and adjoining building. Why don't you take those lines in front of you. One doesn't have to build a church. One can build a house or even a stable along the pueblo lines."

Later the man sent an architect to interview Fr. Dumarest and the result was the creation of the little

Off-Hand Observations

We notice the Editor's corner of the Clyde Enterprise was edited by the Substitute Editor, who calls herself S. E. this week.

The column was newsy, spicy, and interesting throughout and we think S. E. would make a good all-round editor, though she says she has already entered the field of professions as a school teacher. However, our congratulations to S. E.

The city of Dallas may get a plane factory as part of the national defense program, according to D. Harold Byrd, oil man and aviation enthusiast, who reported the plant has been practically assured.

Byrd said he had conferred with the president of one of the nation's largest airplane companies in the project and it is estimated the plant will be valued at about $5,000,000 and cover an acre of 1,000,000 square feet of ground.

Among several other items of good advice toward a happy marriage Dr. C. W. Hall, Bible instructor at the University of Texas, says for our young men and women to be sure to select a mate who has ideals and interests similar to their own.

Dr. Hall urges the necessity of sound standards of courtship, for "too much pre-marital petting tends to cause married couples to lose respects for each other later, and may be disastrous to married life," he said.

Mount Etna, noted volcano situated on the island of Sicily in the Mediterranean Sea, has been in eruption again during the past week. According to news dispatches, a loud roaring was heard from the mountain first extending over an area of thirty miles followed by a belching of lava twenty feet in air and flames that lit the country for many miles. After a period of half an hour, the report stated, the eruption calmed.

Mining town of Morley, Colo., the first buildings of what later was to be known as the "Santa Fe style."

Fr. Dumarest thinks nothing of the fact that he is overlooked as the creator of the "Santa Fe Style."

"That is nothing. That is nothing at all. I had an idea and man had the courage to work it out. The office building was based on the church at Acoma and the adjoining building was based on an Acoma dwelling. That is good. The lines of Acoma have been preserved."

"But—I wish—I wish —" — "The aging priest's face lit up and again he gazed into the sky.

"What do you wish, Father?" he was asked.

"Oh, there is so much more of the Indian life that is yet to be preserved. His dances, his folk lore, his traditions, his badge methods of pottery making—and so much. I wish I could do some more to further such preservation."

The boy who has never lain barefooted and with his face to the sky on a load of freshly-cut corn or cane, has been denied a glorious adventure.

So writes Douglas Meador, Matador editor, in his book, 'Trail Dust,' in which home-spun philosophy alternates with fine-spun beauty.

"Prairie grass, ambassador of time, spreads a soft carpet over the sharp edges of old cow trails which have ceased to echo with the clatter of passing hoofs.

The other day a bunch of the fellows were sitting on the sidewalk out in front of the store splitting in the street.

"Just heard from my brother out in the oil field," said Jack Davis. "His company finished a well the other day that is producing 8,000 barrels of castor oil a day."

"That was just one of the remarkable things I found on this island. About two hundred yards from the castor oil spring was a jelly roll mine.

"The first new discovery I made was a geyszer that spouted 3.2 beer every 22 minutes. I timed it by a sundial I made so the time might not have been exactly 22 minutes.
