LITTLE DIFFERENCE IN POETS Mr. J. Fuller Gloom Comments on Strain That Seems to Be Common to All of Them.

"It is related of Tennyson-not Tennyson J. Draft, but that other and equally asphyxiating poet, Alfred Lord Tennyson-" stated J. Fuller Gloom, 'that at one time he took certain visitors up onto the roof of his house to show them a view, which in all probability he wished to give the impression he had made. Presently a woman and child were observed in the distance, running in their direction, and Tennyson would have it that they were hurrying to catch a glimpse of him. A moment later a bull was seen charging out from behind a clump of bushes, palpably in pursuit of the two. Thereupon Tennyson, true to form, declared that the gentleman cow was also trying to get a good look at the world's greatest poet. From this we should learn that the bards of the good old times were fully as silly and conceited as they are today."--Kansas City Star.

THE CROSS PLAINS REVIEW

Had You Ever Noticed It?

That nature is full of simple facts of scientific importance yet awaiting notice by open eyes and minds is shown by the achievement of a Dutch schoolboy named Van Erpecum, who during a lesson in physics, given in the high school at Batavia, called Dr. Van Deventer's attention to the fact that water in a glass filled to the brim with water and floating ice does not flow over as the ice melts. In fact no change of level whatever occurs. Dr. Van Deventer communicated this observation to Professors Van der Walls and Zeeman, who thought it of sufficient importance to be placed before the Royal Academy of Amsterdam. It is proposed to call the phenom enon the "law of the permanent level."

hearing the teachers of God's Word. This shows that He was eager to learn God's will. (3) He asked questions (v. 46). His growing mind was inquisitive. It more than received what was taught; it inquired after. (4) He answered questions (v. 47). His answers showed great wisdom, such as to astonish those who heard Him. Yet we should not surmise that He was consclously displaying His wisdom. It was not an exhibition of His divine wisdom, but the expression of the workings of a perfect human mind suffused by the Holy Spirit. 3.
