Chisum to hold town hall meeting

State Representative Warren Chisum has planned 29 town hall meetings in early January to provide an overview of what to expect from the Texas Legislature and to hear from the voters.

The legislator will be in Clarendon at the High School Auditorium on Tuesday, January 5, from 10:15 to 11:00 a.m.

"I intend to spend more time listening than talking," Chisum said. "These informal get-togethers are probably the best time I can spend. The best way to find out about a local problem is to hear about the problem from the people who have to deal with it," he said.

The legislature, which is required by the Texas Constitution to meet for 140 days every odd-numbered year, will begin the 76th Legislative Session on January 12, 1999.

"Austin is pretty far from the Panhandle," Chisum said. "I want to make sure people here at home have the opportunity to tell me what they expect from their state government."

"State government works best with participation from the public. I hope everyone gets a chance to come and tell me what's on their mind," Chisum concluded.

Chisum was first elected to the Texas Legislature in 1988 and will report to Austin for his 6th term in 1999. He represents the 88th House District, which includes Carson, Childress, Collingsworth, Dallam, Donley, Gray, Hall, Hansford, Hartley, Hemphill, Hutchinson, Lipscomb, Ochiltree, Roberts, Sherman, and Wheeler counties.

Bobcats claw Broncs, 44-89

The Bronco varsity basketball team was still looking for the right combination for a win on Dec. 22 when they faced the Childress Bobcats for the second time this season.

Clarendon had moved up some of their JV players due to injuries and people being gone for the holidays. Childress also had a different line up this time. Several of the Bobcats were still playing football when Clarendon traveled to Childress.

The Bobcats struggled all evening with fouls, inconsistent shooting, and Childress' quickness. Childress defeated the Broncs, 44-89.

Scoring for Clarendon were Chris Linquist, 12; Ben Wilson, 11; Travis Woodard, 6; Nathan Sears, 6; Derek Shields, 5; Carey Thornberry, 2; and Josh Williams, 2.

The Broncs will play this week in the Salt Fork Classic hosted by Clarendon College. The tournament is scheduled for Thursday through Saturday, December 31-January 2.

First Class Performance

Dennis McMenemy and Kaitlyn Howard gave outstanding performances last Tuesday, December 22, in "An Implausible Claus."

Howard's dramatic debut was in the role of Jencie, a nine-year-old who tracks down the voice on the other end of Santa's Hotline. But rather than finding the St. Nick, she discovers McMenemy's character, grumpy Aaron Lefkowitz, in a New Jersey retirement home. During the course of the play, Jencie succeeds in getting the old man's imagination going again.

Debbie Howard provided the off-stage voice of the operator, and Ken Wilson directed the performance.

Jr. Livestock Show to be held Jan. 9

By Leon Church, County Agent

The Donley County Junior Livestock Show will be held on Saturday, January 9. Sixty-three Donley County young people will be exhibiting their Beef, Sheep, and Swine projects beginning at 9:00 a.m. in the Clarendon Community Building. At 7:00 p.m. the annual Premium Sale will be held. This sale is the highlight of the 4-H and FFA members' year in raising their livestock.

During the past year, these young people have spent many hours and considerable money feeding, caring for, and training their animals. The show and sale give them an opportunity to demonstrate their abilities and be rewarded for their hard work. Many of these young people will be taking their project on to the major Livestock Shows in Fort Worth, El Paso, San Antonio, Houston, and San Angelo.

Everyone is encouraged to come out to the show and sale to support these young people who are learning great lessons in life. They learn hard work, responsibility, record keeping, and sportsmanship. If you would like to support the show and sale in a financial way, give the extension office a call at (806) 874-2141 and details on how this can be done will be given.

Wednesday, January 6 - Setup Day. All parents, grandparents, or interested individuals are invited to come out to the Community Building at 1:00 p.m. to help setup the facility to make ready for the livestock show.

Conservation trees available at local SWCD office

Landowners wanting to plant shelterbelts for windbreaks, erosion control, reforestation, and other conservation type plantings, may place orders now for trees through Donley County SWCD.

Weldon Sears, District Conservationist says 30 species of trees and shrubs, are available to Donley County landowners. Evergreen species as potted trees are available in addition to bare root varieties. The small potted trees have exceptional adaptability to harsh environmental sites.

The very cold temperatures, experienced in the Great Plains and Intermountain areas cause much hardship. Successfully planted windbreaks can relieve much of this hardship. Properly planted wind barriers will

Extension Service kicks off nature tourism efforts

COLLEGE STATION — Traditional Texas farms and ranches can't always rely on crops and cattle for the income they need, so the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is looking for ways to help them bring nature tourists into the mix.

It's all part of an effort to help landowners identify new revenue opportunities on their lands and diversify their operations, said Dr. Carson Watt, extension specialist in recreation, park and tourism sciences.

"Landowners who depend on revenue from their land resources face great difficulty today because of changes in agricultural policy, declining market prices and weather," Watt said.

"They have been forced to look for new revenue opportunities, and for some, nature tourism might help."

Watt said nature tourism is not for everyone, but there is enough potential for added revenue that it's worth exploring.

"The bottom line for these landowners is to know what the markets want and whether their lands and resources can be used to provide products that people are willing to pay for," Watt said.

The effort kicked off with a landowner workshop on nature tourism, held in Kerrville in September. It focused on identifying skills and resources landowners need to help them make better decisions about developing nature tourism opportunities on their ranches.

Twenty-five landowners from across the state attended the free workshop, which was intended to help the Extension Service plan future educational and information programs.

In January, partners in the new effort will meet in College Station to begin planning for a statewide nature tourism workshop in the spring of 2000, continue planning for a Web site focused on both producer and consumer information regarding nature tourism, and to begin compiling information that landowners identified as necessary for making decisions regarding nature tourism.

"This is going to shape what the Extension Service does to help them — what kind of outreach we'll have to assist in developing nature tourism as an alternate income generator," said Diane Breeding, extension assistant in recreation, park and tourism sciences.

Although many landowners are familiar with the concept of the "experience-based product" such as fee hunting on private lands, Watt said, they do not know, as much about the range of other activities potential visitors might be interested in, such as birding, archaeology and astronomy.

The landowners attending the seminar were asked to identify the information, skills and resources they need immediately to get to where they'd like to be within three to five years regarding nature tourism opportunities.

Many of these young people will be taking their project on to the major Livestock Shows in Fort Worth, El Paso, San Antonio, Houston, and San Angelo.

Supporters of the program included Texas A&M University's department of recreation, park and tourism sciences, the Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, Southwest Texas State University's Center for Nature and Cultural Tourism, the Texas Nature Tourism Association, the Texas Department of Economic Development, and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

"Landowners will have questions about all kinds of things, like developing trails, road or other infrastructure, or what to do about things like pictographs or burial mounds on their lands," Breeding said.

"One of their main needs is access to people who can help them assess their resources and take advantage of their potential."

"These are all a part of the decision-making process people who may choose to open their land to visitors, and that's what the Extension Service is trying to help them with."

4-H offers volunteer opportunities

By Sue Church, County FCS Agent

As the new year begins, consider some new and enriching opportunities to serve as a volunteer in your community.

In January two 4-H project groups will begin their activities for the spring. They are the clothing and consumer decision making projects. There were a number of 4-Hers who started these projects last year and the numbers are expected to increase again this year.

In order for the 4-Hers to receive quality guidance, the Donley County Extension Service would like to encourage adults to offer time to work one-on-one with the 4-Hers on their clothing projects.

The only prerequisite for this position is a willingness to help a young person learn some basic sewing skills through completing a project garment. A volunteer's time would be flexible depending on the volunteer and 4-Her's schedules.

A pre-training for volunteers would be held prior to assigning the youth to a mentor to assist with sewing skills and guidelines 4-Her's will need to follow in the project. This can be an especially rewarding experience when one watches the 4-Her's skills develop by the end of the project season.

Consumer decision making is another area where volunteers could assist 4-Her's. This is a project where youth are given situations and must make purchasing decisions based on product information. The 4-Her's develop judging skills through this project.

Volunteers with a special interest in consumer purchasing decisions and/or judging experience would be an asset to the project.

Apparel attitudes differ between generations

By Sue Church, County FCS Agent
 According to research conducted by Cotton Incorporated, there is a generation gap between Baby Boomers and their Generation X offspring when it comes to clothes and how they spend their apparel dollars.
 When it comes to apparel, these offspring are bigger spenders and more avid shoppers than their parents. Twenty-six percent spend at least $1,000 per year on their clothing versus 18 percent of the 35-55 age group. They also expect to spend more per item. Generation Xer's favor specialty stores and generally avoid mass merchandisers. They shop for clothes an average of 2.4 times per month, as opposed to 1.4 times per month for Baby Boomers.
 An updated wardrobe is more important to Generation Xer's than it is for their parents. They would rather appear at a party slightly overdressed than slightly underdressed; they don't mind standing out from the crowd; and they are more likely to sacrifice comfort for fashion.

 Baby Boomers exhibit more practical attitudes. They are more inclined to buy clothes at end-of-season sales, more interested in the fiber content, less interested in name brands and more likely to note the care requirements before purchasing. The new clothing purchase is more often motivated by replacement needs than by fashion enthusiasms.

 Denim plays a major role in the Generation X wardrobe. On average, they own 17 denim garments, including 8 pairs of jeans. When asked to choose between casual slacks and denim jeans, 74 percent selected jeans compared with 59 percent of the 35-55 age group.

Know what Social Security will pay you

By Sue Church, County FCS Agent

Whether or not social security benefits will be your only source of retirement income, do keep in mind that it is important to keep tabs on the year-by-year personal earnings record that the Social Security Administration has for you. This can affect how much Social Security will pay in your behalf in the future.

Anyone can find out about their Social Security benefits by calling (800) 772-1213 and ask for form SSA-7004 SM OP3. If married, get a form for your spouse too. When the form arrives, fill in the 10 blanks and return it. In a few weeks, you will receive your Social Security Personal Earnings Benefit Estimate Statement.

Your statement contains two types of information. Page three includes a year-by-year record of the Social Security taxes you have paid during your lifetime. Check this record carefully. The benefits you are eligible to receive are based on your payment record. Because you can only go back three years when correcting your earning's record, you should order your Social Security Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement every three years.

The next section details your Estimated Benefits. It explains benefits you and your family are eligible to receive when you die, become disabled, or retire.

Your statement includes estimates of monthly retirement benefits you can receive at three ages: age 62; the age you qualify to receive full benefits (this age ranges from 65 to 67 depending on your birth year); and any age you select (the longer you wait to retire, the larger your monthly benefit will be).

Monthly benefits are stated in today's dollars. For example, Robert's statement said that he would receive $1,000 a month if he retires at age 62. However, Social Security benefits are adjusted for inflation each year. When Robert turns 62, his benefits will be greater.

When you do choose to apply for retirement benefits, be sure to visit with your local social security office to receive advice on option plans that are in your best interest.

Lady Broncos earn tough win over Childress girls

The Childress Lady Bobcats were looking for revenge on Tuesday night from their first meeting with the Lady Broncos in November.

The Lady Bobcats put up a better fight this time, but the Lady Broncos had only visions of victories dancing in their heads before their Christmas break.

Clarendon had their share of foul trouble in the first half. But the Lady Broncos kept their composure and went on to a 55-44 win over Childress. "This was a very good game for the team before taking a break for the holidays. We needed to beat a good team and Childress really challenged us. They have good size, power, and speed, so I liked the way the girls handled them," said Head Coach Steve Schmidt.

Scoring for the Lady Broncos were Geri Butler, 19; Kim Alexander, 11; Courtney Newhouse, 8; Lindsey Shelton, 6; Kelley Lemley, 5; April Bryley, 2; Cat Chamberlain, 2; and Shannon Cooper, 2.

"We need some time off to rest our bodies and minds. But we'll face some opponents in the next week that should get us tuned up for district play," said Schmidt.

The Lady Broncos will play Allison, White Deer, Wellington, and Spearman in the Salt Fork Classic on Thursday through Saturday, December 31 - January 2. The tournament is being held at Clarendon College. The Lady Broncos will play Canadian at home on Tuesday, January 5, at 6:30 p.m.

JV Lady Broncos skinned by Childress girls

The JV Lady Bronco team kept the game close for the first half when they faced the Childress Lady Bobcats on Tuesday night. But cold shooting and foul trouble destroyed any hope of a win in the second half.

The Lady Broncos missed Junior Lindy Helms who was out with a dislocated shoulder. Childress was able to overtake Clarendon, 15-34, in their second meeting this season. Scoring for the Lady Bronco JV were Shannon Cooper, 6; Tamika Kimble-Hearn, 4; Elizabeth Simmons, 2; Jamee Sparks, 2; and Janiah Mondragon, 1.

Clarendon will try to improve upon their 7-5 record when they host the Canadian Wildcats on Tuesday, January 5, at 5 p.m.

JV Broncos edged out by Childress Bobcats

The JV Bronco game against Childress was the third meeting for the two teams this season. It was also the second loss at the buzzer that the Bobcats handed the Broncos. Clarendon narrowly lost, 45-47.

Leading the scoring for the Broncos were Ben Wilson, 14; Antonio Wilson, 11; Cody Watson, 7; G.J. Martindale, 5; Nathan Floyd, 4; and Zack Butts, 4.

"I thought the guys played hard. We had two players foul out, but the bench continued to play well. The whole team was just hanging tough throughout the entire game. I thought we did a great job," said Coach Mike Ray.

The Broncos are now 9-3. Clarendon will host the Canadian Wildcats on Tuesday, January 5, at 5 p.m.

Vaccinations, Immunology Seminar to be Jan. 4

By Leon Church, County Agent

The third in the series of four Beef Risk Management Seminars will be held on Monday, January 4. The topic will be Vaccinations and Immunology. The seminar will be presented by Dr. Ted McCollum, Beef Cattle Specialist with Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and Dr. Guy Ellis, DVM, Clarendon Veterinary Clinic. Presentations will address the local recommendations for cow-calf and stocker vaccination programs and then the science on why vaccinations work. Vaccination programs are very important management tools utilized by the beef producers. Often times these vaccination programs are misunderstood and administered in a manner that the desired results are not achieved. This seminar will discuss, timing, location, and other considerations important in a successful immunization program.

Study estimates impact of estate tax on economy

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The federal estate tax has cost the American economy almost one-half a trillion dollars in capital stock this century, according to a new study released today by the Joint Economic Committee (JEC).

Entitled "The Economics of the Estate Tax," the study examines the arguments for and against the federal estate tax and concludes that the tax generates costs to taxpayers, the economy, and the environment that exceed its potential benefits.

"This study demonstrates that the estate tax imposes yet another level of punitive taxation on savings and investment, the very behavior that we ought to be encouraging," JEC Chairman Jim Saxton (R-N.J.) said today. "It is my hope that the 106th Congress will enact additional estate tax relief and other pro-saving reforms like expanded IRAs and lower capital gains taxes."

The study documents how the extremely high marginal tax rates - reaching as high as 80 percent in some instances - reduce incentives to save and obstruct the accumulation of capital. As a result, the estate tax has reduced the stock of capital in the economy by approximately $497 billion thus far this century. The estate tax also adversely impacts family businesses, reducing employment and making their survival more difficult. The tax's enormous liquidity demands and compliance costs further contribute to the destruction of environmentally sensitive land.

JEC member Mac Thornberry (R-TX), a rancher, and author of legislation to repeal the inheritance tax, agreed with the study's findings. "Part of the American dream has always been to work hard and leave a better life for our kids," Thornberry said. "But in America today, the federal government has set up a roadblock by imposing an inheritance tax which stands in the way of people making the American dream a reality. With money from the inheritance tax currently accounting for barely one percent of all federal revenues, there can be little doubt that the inheritance tax produces too many headaches for too little return and should be repealed."

Despite the substantial negative effects of the estate tax, very little is achieved by its existence. For example, the study demonstrates that the estate tax is ineffective at reducing inequality, and may actually increase inequality of consumption. In addition, the estate tax raises very little, if any, net revenue for the federal government, since estate tax avoidance activities likely generate equally large revenue losses under the income tax.

ICA president says it is time for an investigation

AUSTIN — With allegations spreading about unfair live Canadian slaughter cattle imports and Mexican feeder cattle imports, the president of the Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas (ICA) today called on the U.S. Department of Commerce International Trade Commission to launch an immediate investigation into the issues.

ICA's plea to the International Trade Commission (ITC) follows on the heels of three petitions that have been filed by a national organization requesting action to halt the flood of live young cattle from Mexico and slaughter cattle from Canada.

"If launched today, an investigation could take eight to 10 months," said John Brown, President of the Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas (ICA). "We hope the ITC will move quickly and take action if that is what the result of the investigation demands."

Brown noted, "Texas producers are competitive, but grass-roots cattle producers are faced with a triple threat. Two severe droughts and three consecutive years of lower than market prices have been body blows to the producer side of the cattle industry. When added to those two threats, a new dangerous glut of slaughter cattle from Canada and feeder cattle from Mexico would force Texas cow-calf operators up against the ropes."

In October, the Executive committee of the ICA voted to review and support petitions filed by the Ranchers-Cattlemen Action Legal Foundation (R-CALF). The petitions asked the International Trade Commission (ITC) to examine whether imports from Canada are entering the United States at unfairly low prices (i.e. "dumped") or at prices which reflect a benefit from a subsidy, and which are causing or threatening economic harm to a domestic industry. In addition, the petitions called for the imposition of countervailing duties (CVD) on imports of live cattle.

In December, action by the full Board of Directors of the Independent Cattlemen's Association allowed the Texas cow-calf organization to join in support of the Canadian and Mexican cattle dumping petition.

According to R-CALF, live cattle imports from Canada have increased from 262,000 head in 1987 to over 1.4 million head in 1997 and beef imports (meat) from Canada have increased from 191 million pounds in 1987 to 712 million pounds in 1997.

"We must do everything we can to help the producer meet current production costs," Brown said. "Canadian dumping of live cattle in 1995 alone produced over two billion pounds of extra beef in the United States, for an estimated loss in value to the American cattle producer of over $100 per head."

Brown noted, "Not much is being done today to help the producer side of the cattle industry. This is one way to help the grassroots cattle producers, not just in Texas, but nation-wide."

THANK YOU

To the employees and families of the US Postal Office in Clarendon: Thank you so much for the wonderful Christmas Open House you provided for our community. It was obvious that much effort went into preparing the treats you served. I would also like to express my appreciation for your efficient, courteous service. Even though they must deal with wrong zip codes, illegible addresses, and sometimes grumpy customers, our postal employees always greet us with a smile, a kind word, and accurate answer. Thank you for your dedicated service throughout the year.
Sincerely,
Suzanne Womack
