What are these things anyway?

They're The Banded Woolly Bear Caterpillar
By Valerie Ullman Avery

A typical but unknown environmental killer of the Banded Woolly Bear Caterpillar has failed to suppress its reproduction, causing an excess of the furry, black caterpillars crossing area roads, Clarendon College Agriculture Instructor Curtis Schaefer said.

"You always see a few of them, but we're seeing a lot more this time than what we usually see," said Schaefer, who also has a masters degree in entomology.

"Most insects reproduce a whole lot. They lay a lot of eggs, but there's usually something that kills a large number of them; anything from predators to disease. For some reason this year, whatever keeps them down is not there. They're (the environmental killer) not suppressing them as much."

The mostly black caterpillar with some brown in the mid-section found on many highways are looking for a place to over-winter, Schaefer said.

"To them the highway is a big, black rock."

Many will die during the winter, but some will pupate in the spring and develop into a yellow-brown moth. They reproduce rather quickly, he said.

The caterpillars feed on weeds and in some parts of the country are a nuisance to the cotton crop but not in the Panhandle, Schaefer said. "They like to feed on vegetation."

"Someone said they were feeding on careless weeds."

As Clarendon's resident expert, Schaefer has been inundated with questions about what the glut of caterpillars mean.

"It means we have a lot of slick spots on the highway," Schaefer said with a laugh.

"But some people believe that the blacker the caterpillar is, the harder the winter we'll have. I'm not a big believer in insects forecasting the winter."

"There's been a lot of interest in those things. It's not unusual to have a species of insects in abundance, but nobody notices it unless it runs across the roads."

Also in abundance this fall is the yearly assault of fruit flies. "Those things, until a few years ago weren't that bad," Schaefer said. "I don't know what has caused that explosion. There was something that had kept them suppressed."

He advises homeowners to cover trash cans and keep vegetables, fruit and anything else flies feed on covered.

"We just have to wait for the freeze," he said.

Attendance up for second Col. Goodnight Cookoff

Final figures aren't in yet, but early estimates are that at least 1,500 people attended the second annual Col. Charles Goodnight Chuckwagon Cookoff and Camp Gathering held on Saturday, Sept. 28, 1996, on the grounds of the Saints' Roost Museum. That's 500 more than attended the event last year.

Sixteen chuckwagons participated in this year's event.

Lunch was provided by the Coors chuckwagon in the form of beef and sourdough noodles. Pokey the Clown, representing the High Country Chevy Dealers, was on hand as well as Don and JA-nnet Williams of Canadian with their trained longhorns.

After dinner entertainment was provided by the highly acclaimed poet and musician Red Stegall, Western swing fiddler and former Texas Playboy Frankie McWhorter, and cowboy balladeer and poet R.W. Hampton.

The museum, which sponsors the event, was open for touring, and folks were given an opportunity to see the restoration work being done to the old Ft. Worth & Denver Depot.

Winners of this year's gathering were:

- 1st Place All-Around Winner — Jennings Wagon

- 2nd Place All-Around Winner — C Bar C Wagon

- Most Authentic Wagon Camp — McFall Wagon

Pokey the Clown raised some $200 for the depot restoration. Pokey also raised $100 for a bone marrow transplant for an Amarillo girl on behalf of the High Country Chevy Dealers and the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

Proceeds from the cookoff and College names Shields to head Centennial Committee

In 1998, Clarendon College will proudly celebrate one hundred years of serving the educational needs of the Texas Panhandle. Established in 1898, Clarendon College was the first institution of higher learning in this area of the state.

To prepare for the upcoming Centennial, the college has established a committee which will plan the year-long celebration. Susie Shields, CC Board of Regents member, will serve as chairperson of the committee.

"I believe the college is, indeed, fortunate to have Susie Shields as its chairperson for the Centennial Committee," Dr. Scott Elliott, CC President, said. "She is an energetic, enthusiastic person who will not only represent her colleagues on the Board of Regents very well but also the entire community. The fact that she is an alumnus of Clarendon College causes her to have a special and proud kinship with the institution."

The college is asking for your assistance in planning for the 1998 Centennial. If you would like to assist CC as a Centennial Volunteer, please call Christi Ross at 874-3571.

"The college lies in the heart of so many of our local and area residents. The centennial observance will be a celebration of not only this institution but also of our area's forefathers," said Ross, who serves as CC Public Information Coordinator.

Clarendon College also is sponsoring a Centennial Logo Contest. Participants are asked to create a logo which represents 100 years of Clarendon College. Submissions will be judged on artistic expression and interpretation of the college. The winner will receive a $100 cash prize and credit for designing the official logo of the 1998 Centennial. All submissions become the property of the college. All submitted logos must not be larger than eight inches square, and the artist's name, address, and phone number must be typed or printed on the back of the logo. Logo contest colors are forest green, black, and white. Contest deadline is Dec. 1, 1996, and submissions may be mailed to Centennial Logo Contest, Clarendon College, PO Box 968, Clarendon, TX 79226.

Cowpokes cartoon is new feature in paper

Cowpokes cartoons by Ace Reid are now appearing in the Enterprise.

You've seen Cowpokes cartoons in roadside cafes, feed and hardware stores, veterinarians' offices, drug stores, and other meeting places from Texas to Canada and from California to Florida.

Reid's cartoons combine the artist and story-teller with a twist of cowboy humor which portrays the classic stories of every day life in a way that we can all relate.

Enjoyed by young and old alike, Cowpokes characters are as real as the next door neighbor or the man on the street.

Cowpokes will appear each week through the sponsorship of the First Bank & Trust of Clarendon.

Seniors group gives Rep. Thornberry 'Guardian of Seniors Rights' award

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The 60 Plus Association, a senior citizens group with a half million supporters nationally, has presented Congressman William M. "Mac" Thornberry of Clarendon with the Association's highest honor, the Guardian of Seniors Rights Award.

Jim Martin, 60 Plus President, emphasized that his association is nonpartisan, presenting its Guardian Award to Democrats and Republicans in the House and the Senate who voted "senior friendly." The group honors Members of Congress who score 60 or more (60 Plus) on its Congressional Scorecard. Thornberry scored 100. The 60 Plus Association originated the Guardian Award in the 103rd Congress in 1994.

At a photo session before a banner reading "Senior Citizens Say Thank You," Martin said, "Congressman Thornberry, on behalf of senior citizens not only in Texas but all over the country, thank you for being a true friend." Out of many key votes, Thornberry voted:

- to increase seniors' Medicare benefits from $4,800 annually to $7,100 by the year 2002, an increase some Members of Congress opposed and even voted against
- for the Pension Protection Act to protect seniors' pensions from raids by those who wanted to invest these pensions in shaky ventures

- to repeal President Clinton's 1993 tax increase on Social Security benefits

- to increase the amount working seniors can earn without losing Social Security benefits

- to lower inheritance taxes
- for a $500 tax credit for the caretaker of an elderly parent at home.

"This tax credit may seem small but we see it as a token of appreciation to the caretaker who is trying to keep an elderly loved one at home thereby relieving American taxpayers of the added established cost of $40,000 annually for nursing home care," Martin said.

Thornberry earned the award by his faithful and dedicated efforts to lower seniors' tax burdens, and the tax burdens on their children and grandchildren, Martin concluded.

The 60 Plus Association is a nonpartisan seniors advocacy group with a free enterprise, less government, less taxes approach to seniors' issues. According to their news release, 60 Plus has been called, "an increasingly influential lobbying group for the elderly... often viewed as the conservative alternative to the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP)."

Thornberry honored by small business

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Rep. Mac Thornberry of Clarendon has been named "Guardian of Small Business" by the nation's largest small-business advocacy organization, the National Federation of Independent Business.

NFIB represents more than 600,000 small and independent businesses nationwide, including more than 36,000 in Texas. The organization honors U.S. lawmakers who provide consistent support for free enterprise by voting favorably on key small-business issues at least 70 percent of the time during a two-year session of Congress.

Rep. Thornberry's small-business voting record during the 104th Congress, based on 37 recorded votes, was 97 percent.

Among crucial issues for entrepreneurs this session were legislative proposals dealing with balancing the federal budget, reducing government regulation, protecting small businesses from frivolous lawsuits, simplifying pension plans and making health insurance more readily available for small-business owners.

NFIB is a non-profit, non-partisan organization which lobbies federal and state legislatures on behalf of small business.

Small businesses comprise about 98 percent of all American employers, hire nearly 60 percent of the workforce and create some two-thirds of all net new jobs.

"The Challenge of Change"

As a wet-behind-the-ears newspaperman, I was once provided some keen insight on letters to the editor by a graybeard publisher. He contended, "Whenever anybody takes the time to sit down and write you a letter, lick the stamp, and drop it in the mail, it's very probable that 10 other people feel the same way as whoever wrote the letter."

Methinks that's a good rule of thumb for any business in regard to customer satisfaction. Studies have indicated that a typical dissatisfied customer will tell eight to 10 people about his or her complaint.

Such is human nature. Most are generally enthusiastic about vocalizing dissatisfaction and, conversely, remiss in doling out praise.

To survive in business, I would argue, one must accept such as an axiom and, therefore, invest more energy in responding in a timely fashion to the needs of your constituents than muttering about their complaints. The contemporary buzz phraseology relating to such themes include "Total Quality Management" or "Continuous Improvement."

I have often paralleled the business of higher education with selling shoes. If you visit a shoe store and no one ever approaches you with a pleasant "May I help you?" then you will most assuredly take your business elsewhere. If you go into a shoe store and all they're selling is black and white saddles (translation: the hard-headed manager is unwilling to change with the times), you won't be back.

And if you purchase a pair of shoes from that store and they fall apart, and, subsequently, you don't receive some sort of compensation or consideration, then you not only won't return, but you'll also undoubtedly tell 10 of your neighbors about your experience. Those 10 neighbors, in turn, will tell several others about your experience and probably may make it sound even worse.

Colleges are, indeed, like shoe stores. When a prospective student telephones or walks through the door, that person should be greeted in a timely, if not effervescent, fashion. The customer needs to be sent a message by the way he or she is treated, and that message, in no uncertain terms, must be, "We're glad you're here. And if you weren't here, I wouldn't have a job."

The conveyance of that message is not any one person's responsibility. It is everyone's responsibility - from the president to part-timers. Establishing a positive environment within an organization takes everybody; alienating a customer just takes one person.

Moreover, colleges have to change the way they do business, just like a shoe store manager has to keep up with the latest trends and styles. Example - if a college is still teaching WordStar in its word processing classes when the business world has long since employed Microsoft Word, then the institution is not being as responsive to the needs of its consumers as it might be.

Colleges are not at all like high schools. My good friend, Phil Barefield, runs an independent school district in which those who reside within the Clarendon ISD's boundaries by state law must utilize the services of that district (excluding rare instances of home or private schooling or transfer to other public school districts). In fact, if those services are willfully not utilized by certain consumers, the law calls it truancy.

We are, indeed, fortunate that Mr. Barefield and his subordinates are outstanding administrators, faculty, and staff who operate an exemplary school system because they have, generally speaking, a monopoly. Such is not the case with Clarendon College. No one has to go to school here. Not one single person.

At the college, we must always keep that in the forefront of our thoughts. Rule #1 in business - and this is by no means original - is that "If you don't take care of the customer, somebody else will."

One of the primary jobs of our very able Executive Dean, Dr. Janie Noble, is to coordinate the college's Institutional Effectiveness program. She is constantly examining ways to measure how well the college is doing its job. She does so through such vehicles as student and employee surveys, other evaluation instruments, and charges to standing committees of the college.

As I have written and said many times before, we face a formidable challenge at Clarendon College. Simply put, that challenge is trying to grow in a climate of a dwindling and aging population base, declining state support, and a general lack of a diversified industrial base on which to establish new occupational programs.

So far we have done fairly well. Our enrollment this fall is almost identical system-wide to where it was last year, while several other institutions around the state have suffered enrollment decreases. In fact, we've experienced healthy growth on the Clarendon Campus; albeit, that growth has been offset with marginal decreases at some off-campus instructional sites.

My colleagues in this region tell me that "holding your own," given the economic and social conditions in the Texas Panhandle is a strong indicator of success. I must say that I am having a very hard time accepting such. It goes against everything I've ever believed in business, which can be capsuled in the cliché, "You're either going forward or you're going back, and there ain't nothin' in between."

To really move forward, the easiest thing we can do is become absolutely consumer-oriented, thus the slogan that Clarendon College is "The College that Cares." We must really listen to those who cause us to have jobs - students and taxpayers - and try to respond whenever and wherever appropriate to their input.

In that respect, we must not make the same mistake that Chambers of Commerce and Economic Development Councils have for generations all over the United States - caring more about recruiting new industry than listening to existing industry. It's a good parallel for schools. If we listen to the students we've got, then the probability is that they'll come back for a sophomore year at Clarendon College (which would automatically elevate our enrollment).

Even more important, current students are the greatest form of marketing any college can have. When they return to their hometowns, what do they say about your college? What do they tell their parents? What do those parents tell other parents? That kind of word-of-mouth marketing is more persuasive - good or bad - than newspaper and magazine ads, billboards, radio and TV spots, and you name it.

Remaining competitive in any business involves change. Winners mold change; losers just mold, kind of like a loaf of bread left on a countertop.

There's a very simple - almost mathematical - way to look at change, well articulated by an author named Darryl Conner in his book "Managing at the Speed of Change." Conner writes, "The challenge of change is recognizing when the cost of the status quo is more than the price of change."

Now that's something to gnaw on.

Dr. Scott Elliott is the President of Clarendon College.

There isn't much to be seen in a little town but what you hear makes up for it.

Clarendon Elementary students turn cereal box tops into extra bucks

To help raise money for their school, students at Clarendon Elementary are participating in a unique program from General Mills, maker of popular cereals like Cheerios and Wheaties, called Big G Box Tops for Education.

The school will receive 15 cents for every qualifying General Mills cereal box top collected between now and March 31, 1997. A qualifying box top is the top flap of any General Mills cereal box that has the 1996/1997 "Big G Box Tops for Education" symbol. Students are excited about the program and have set a goal of 23,333 box tops. They are collecting box tops from many Big G cereals.

This is an opportunity for parents, teachers, students, and even senior citizens to join together to raise money for our school. It only takes a couple of seconds, and our kids will really benefit. All you have to do is look for the Box Tops logo, cut out the tops of the boxes, and send them to school. The students encourage families and friends to pitch in and collect box tops for the good of the school. Anyone interested in donating box tops can bring them to the Elementary office.

This program is open to all accredited K-6 public, private, parochial, and military schools in the United States.

Eligible cereals that families should look for include the many varieties of Cheerios, Wheaties, Total, Kix, and Oatmeal Crisp cereals as well as Basic 4, Lucky Charms, Trix, Clusters, Fiber One, Golden Grahams, Count Chocula, Frosted Cheerios, Multi Grain Cheerios, Raisin Nut Bran, and selected others.

SBA Disaster Loan filing deadline approaching

Businesses in some Texas counties have until October 9 or October 15, 1996, to file applications for low-interest disaster loans from the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA). The SBA's Economic Injury Disaster Loans are available for businesses dependent on farmers and ranchers sustaining crop losses from flooding, hail, and high winds which occurred May 25 through June 5, 1995; and excessive rains, hail, and tornadoes which occurred June 2 through June 4, 1995. Farmers and ranchers are not eligible for these SBA loans.

Businesses in the following counties affected by excessive rains, hail, and tornadoes which occurred June 2 through June 4, 1995, have until October 9, 1996 to apply: Childress, Collingsworth, Cottle, Hall, and Hardeman. Businesses in the following counties affected by flooding, hail, and high winds which occurred May 25 through June 5, 1995, have until October 15, 1996, to apply: Briscoe, Childress, Collingsworth, Cottle, Donley, Hall, and Motley. Applications and further information can be obtained by calling the SBA toll-free at 1-800-366-6303 or TDD 817-267-4688 for the hearing impaired.

These loans are intended to assist businesses in offsetting working capital losses which they suffered as a result of the weather reducing the crop income of the area farmers and ranchers. Small businesses claiming to have been physically injured by the weather are not eligible.

Everyone at the Senior Citizens Center is very sad to be losing one of their most dedicated volunteers. Eda Wallin is moving to Amarillo. Eda has been such a great helper at the Center. She is a tireless worker and is always willing to do any job that needs doing. Eda has spent countless hours making wonderful hand crafts and baked goodies for Center fund raisers. The Senior Citizens will be furnishing the concessions stand for an auction at the Happy Trails Antique Store, 116 S. Sully, Clarendon, on October 5, from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. Proceeds from the sale of the concessions will benefit the Donley County Senior Citizens nutrition program. They will be serving hot barbecue sandwiches, chips, candy, donuts, coffee, and soft drinks.

The DCSC would like to welcome Jean Baten as their newest home delivery volunteer. Jean is already very active at the Center, and this just adds one more job to her list of duties.

Y-Indian Program Great for Kids

Fathers of youngsters between the ages of 5 and 10 looking for a great way to spend some quality time with their children need look no further than the Y-Indian Guides (for sons) and Princess (for girls). The father and child participate together in a tribe of six to ten fathers and their children. Once each month all the tribes come together for a Nation event that in 1996-97 will consist of three camp outs (called Pow Wows), a turkey shoot, a Palo Duro Canyon hiking trip, bowling, Dallas baseball game, and a trip to the Alabates National Monument.

This unique program is open to any father and child who want to spend some quality time together, and the respectful Indian theme adds a colorful flair to the monthly events.

Time passes too quickly and before you know it the kids are grown and gone. My two princesses (Little Fish and Big Horn) join with me (Chief Talking Fish) in extending an invitation to attend the 1996 Fall Pow Wow on the weekend of October 11-13 at Camp Christmas Tree near Canyon. There is no charge for father/child guests who attend this camp out, so break out the tent and sleeping bags (don't forget foam padding), and join us around the friendly fire at our ceremonial teepee.

For more information about the Y-Indian Guide and Princess Program, call me at 353-3654, or call our Indian Agent at the YMCA, Roger (Big Wind) Durnford at 374-4651.

Lake Meredith: The fall bass fishing at "new" Lake Meredith, with 4,000 acres of newly flooded brush and cattails, is getting better and better. Congratulations to David Jones for winning the September Fun Tournament with a three-bass limit that weighed 7.55 pounds. Jones used a Hart-Throb buzzbait over the flooded moss beds to win the first place trophy and $400. Second place honors and $200 went to Ron Smyer who slow rolled a Strike-King spinnerbait in the flooded timber to catch 4.88 pounds. Third place prize money of $100 went to Tim Taylor with 4.83.

Other top anglers included Brian Stewart of Fritch, Monte Wright, and Keith Frost of Plainview, Jack Richardson of Amarillo, Richard Beilue of Dumas, Gordon Cummings of Spearman, and Mike Harber of Borger.

Tip of the Week: Removing a fishhook from your clothing is easy - with a small safety pin. Insert it into the same hole that the hook entered, and use it as a guard to guide the threads over the barb of the hook.

Good luck, good fishing, and good hunting.

Broncos prepare for Friday's game against Sunray

Clarendon used a balanced running and throwing attack Friday as they lost a tight homecoming contest, 34-20, to the Hart Longhorns.

The Broncos trailed 21-20 through the third quarter, but Hart widened the gap to 27-20 at the 1:44 mark before scoring an insurance touchdown in the fourth quarter for the final score.

Clarendon will use the close game to give them some momentum going into Friday's match-up with Sunray.

The former Class 1A power, which made it to the 1995 regional play-offs before being thumped by Sudan, 41-14, made the switch to Class 2A this year.

Sunray is 4-0 after spanking Amarillo Highland Park, 21-12, last week.

"Sunray is another tough football team," Clarendon Head Coach Tboter Draper said. "They're comparable to Hart. If we play real well, we'll be in the ballgame until the end."

The Broncos will have to focus their energies on 5'10", 190-lb. running back Cody McDowell, who rushed for 1,200 yards last year.

"That (McDowell) kid is outstanding. He has size and speed. We'll try to key on him. Their quarterback (Andy Lee) throws the ball real well. He rushes a little bit though. We'll try to put some pressure on him."

The Bobcats like to mix up their offense moving from an I-back to split backs to no-backs to multiple formations, Draper said.

"To prepare, we'll have to watch a lot of film on them on the offensive side of the ball. We'll go over offensive formations in practice."

"They're going to be a little bigger than us. They're a little closer (in size to us) than Hart was."

Friday's contest with Sunray will be the Broncos last warm-up game before competitive District 2-2A kicks into gear Oct. 11 in Quanah.

"We're pretty much locked into district," Draper said. "We had a great week at work. It was fantastic last week. I can't say enough about the kids. We're looking forward to (district)."

Clarendon's play improved considerably during their Friday contest with Hart.

"I felt like the kids really played hard," Draper said. "We showed lots of improvement."

The Broncos were sparked by the addition of Roy Williams, Blake Bass, and Ronnie Tabor, who were on the injured reserve list until Friday's game.

"They helped us out. They were real excited to get back. They probably had a little spark that helped us, but the real key was the line improving a great deal weekly."

"I just think it's from them not playing before. They're learning stuff they've never learned before. The improvement is showing."

Junior Kareem Abdullah, who moved to flanker after Williams returned to his tailback position, had a "real, good game," Draper said. "(Williams) had a good game. I was really impressed with Scotty (Elliott). He showed a lot of poise and had a lot of good passes."

Elliott was 9-for-13 for 143 yards and two TDs. "The only interception he had was when he was throwing it, and he got hit. The ball kind of floated."

Hart struck first in the second quarter on a 30-yard run, but less than a minute later Abdullah cradled a 20-yard Elliott pass and sprinted for a 55-yard TD.

Hart led 7-6 and increased it to 21-6 after two more TDs before halftime. But Williams, who rushed for 161 yards on 35 carries, hit paydirt on a 3-yard run right before the clock ticked down.

Elliott converted the two points, and the Broncos entered the locker room, trailing 21-14.

"I felt like we were in it the whole way," Draper said. "With six minutes left in the second quarter, we put together an 80-yard drive. We kept the ball almost the whole first quarter. We kept the ball about eight minutes. We ran the clock off."

The Broncos attacked first in the second half as Elliott found his favorite receiver Abdullah for their second TD, and the Broncos trailed 21-20. Hart scored two more TDs to finish out the contest.

Bass grabbed two passes for 26 yards in the game.

"We've got the kids where we want them now," Draper said. "We've got to play better on defense, slow them down and still wrap them up. That's a big concern of ours."

"We're not going to make too many changes."

Jan Campbell's Fifth Graders show their support for the Broncos in Friday's Homecoming Parade.

Colts retain spotless record with win over Memphis

The seventh grade football squad retained their spotless record Sept. 26 with a 26-0 win while the eighth grade Colts broke into the win column for the first time this season in style with a 22-16 pasting of Memphis.

Clarendon's junior varsity team struggled against the Cyclones dropping a 46-0 contest.

The three squads host District 2-2A rival White Deer Thursday at Broncho Stadium beginning at 4:30 p.m. Kick-off for the eighth graders is at 6 p.m., while the J.V. team rounds up the evening with a 7:30 p.m. start.

The seventh grade Colts, who suit up a number of eighth graders started off the road trip in good form by scoring four unanswered touchdowns.

Antonio Wilson scampered for two TDs while Greg Wooten and David Deatheridge hit paydirt one time each.

The eighth grade Colts held off a Cyclone challenge, hanging onto a slim 16-14 lead in the fourth quarter before Dee Thompson scored his third and final TD on a 20-yard run with a few minutes to close out the game.

Thompson also scored the previous two TDs on 50-yard and 30-yard runs.

Clarendon's J.V. struggled early on as Memphis charged in at the 7:36 mark and failed on the two-point conversion.

Bronco Wes Ritchie picked up the first down, but Clarendon couldn't keep the drive going and punted before Memphis scored again to close out the first quarter for a 14-0 lead.

Ritchie ran for another first down in the second quarter, but it wasn't enough as the Cyclone outgunned the Broncos, leading 30-0 at halftime.

Memphis scored in six plays in the third quarter for another score and closed out the game with one more TD before the gun went off.

Helen Estack's Eighth Grade class won the Jr. High Division of the CHS Homecoming Parade last Friday.
