Thunder Junction open for business

The long awaited Thunder Junction theme park opened part of its facilities last Friday evening in time for the Labor Day weekend.

The go-karts were the first attraction opened at the park, and Pat Archuleta purchased the first ticket. Three dollars buys five minutes of track time. About 750 tickets were purchased during the long weekend.

Weather permitting, the park will be open Monday through Friday beginning at 6 p.m. and will open Saturdays at 10 a.m. and at 1 p.m. on Sundays.

New drug shows promise in treating glaucoma

Glaucoma is the second leading cause of irreversible blindness in the United States, but a drug recently approved by the Food and Drug Administration may help thousands of glaucoma patients save their sight.

"Latanoprost has been shown to have advantages over previously available medications," said Dr. Ronald Gross, associate professor of ophthalmology at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, and one of the physicians who participated in clinical trials for the new drug. "It apparently has fewer side effects, and patients need only one dose a day."

Nearly all other drugs used to treat glaucoma require two to four daily doses. Gross said a reduction of doses can improve compliance.

While latanoprost has shown promise in trials, in most patients, it is not meant to be used as first line therapy against glaucoma.

"In people with green and hazel-colored eyes, the drug makes their iris darker," Gross said. "Researchers are not sure why this happens."

As a precaution, it is recommended that the drug be used only in patients who have not benefited from other medications.

The new drug is expected to be available in September.

Glaucoma is a disease that slowly steals a patient's sight. If the disease is diagnosed early, blindness may often be prevented, but the vision that has been lost cannot be restored.

Ophthalmologists recommend glaucoma screenings beginning at age 40 for most people. However, people with a family history of glaucoma and African-Americans should be checked starting at age 30. Glaucoma is three to four times more common among blacks.

Hunt receives WTAM honor

West Texas A&M University honored three employees for their dedication and service during the all-University meeting August 21 in the Virgil Henson Activities Center. Dr. Russell C. Long, University president, recognized Nancy Plumlee, assistant registrar; Clint Hunt, manager of the Virgil Henson Activities Center and assistant director of recreational sports; and Marilyn Smith, secretary in the Department of History and Political Science.

University Staff Council Excellence Awards were presented to Hunt and Smith for their service to the University. These awards were established three years ago to further recognize outstanding contributions by staff members to the University.

Hunt, the son of Gary and Nena Hunt of Clarendon and a graduate of Clarendon High School and Clarendon Junior college, began working at the University in 1994 as director of the Virgil Henson

Clint Hunt

Activities Center. Responsibilities associated with assistant director of recreational sports were added to his position in 1995. Hunt earned his bachelor's degree in general studies from WTAMU in 1992. Hunt's wife, Audra, is director of Kids College, the university's child care program.

Smith and Hunt receive $250. All three winners received honorary plaques.

Boy Scouts Dale Askew (l) and Lowell Ellerbrook (r) recently earned their Ordeal sash for the Order of the Arrow at Camp M.K. Brown. The OA is an organization of honor campers within the Boy Scouts of America.

Old Cub Scout shirts needed for local boys

The local Cub Scout Pack is seeking folks to donate old uniforms so all of the boys can wear one. If you have a shirt stuck in the closet, please consider donating it. They may be dropped off at Saye's on main street.

Broncos to start season at Claude

The Broncos fine-tuned their game plan in a Thursday scrimmage with Class 1A Wheeler in preparation for their season-opener with Claude Friday at 8 p.m. in Claude.

"I thought it was a great scrimmage. We still made some mistakes, but they were the type that we could make a positive outcome," head coach Tooter Draper said.

Although official scores aren't kept in scrimmages, "Clarendon outscored Wheeler, 2-1, in the home contest.

Wheeler - a traditional football powerhouse - played "real physical," Draper said. Even with their physical brand of football, Clarendon was able to move the ball in a formidable fashion on offense and moved to the ball real well on defense.

Nose guard Josh Mondragon played well on defense, Draper said. "I thought we got a good look from Mondragon. He did an outstanding job defensively. And then offensively, our offensive line opened up some holes. B.J. Hamilton and Trent Mooring did a great job of blocking."

The Broncos won't make any adjustments before their season-opener Friday with their highway rival, but they will have to use their speed to compensate for their lack of size.

"We're still not very big. I feel like we won't be able to line up (against them), and we'll have to make some big plays and probably use our speed to overcome the size disadvantage."

The Bronco coaching staff scouted the Mustangs Friday as Claude went up against Nazareth in Swift Country. First-year head coach Eric Wilson has an awesome running back in Thomas Justiss, and the Broncos will have their hands full trying to stop the speedy 5'10", 165-lb. senior.

"He's just an all-around good athlete. Things happen when he gets the ball. He's the one we have to shut down. We'll just key on him but not really devote all our attention to him; just most of our attention to him."

But Claude isn't a one-trick pony. Not only can they run the ball well with Justiss, but the Mustangs can throw the ball out of the old split-back veer.

Draper fears that Claude is a big-play offensive team and plans to keep the ball out of their hands for most of the game. The Mustangs also return 12 lettermen, including 10 offensive and 10 defensive starters.

"We're going to be successful as far as running the football. We're going to have to control the line of scrimmage. They won't have a size advantage over us. If we can control the line of scrimmage and keep it out of their hands, I feel real good about the game."

Draper plans on working on the same offense and defense up until District 2-2A kicks off Oct. 11 against Quanah.

"We're going to try to get good polish on what we do. We'll make some adjustments when district runs around."

Russian pair comes through area

Donley County had some interesting visitors last Tuesday as Petr Plonin and Nikolai Davidovsky came through the area along Hwy. 287.

Looking something like a chuck wagon on radials, the two Russian adventurers with a team of draw horses and a dog named Chip are attempting a journey that most rational people would consider quite impossible. They're traveling around the globe in a horse-drawn wagon.

Plonin and Davidovsky began their journey June 3, 1992, from their hometown of Ivanovo, Russia, - a city in the industrial/textile region located about 150 miles northeast of Moscow.

The pair say the aim of their journey is to generate harmony among nations, while spreading ecological awareness by promoting the advantages of horse-drawn power, bringing attention to the preservation of animal species, and building environmental conservation internationally.

The two left Ivanovo and traveled across Siberia and Kazakhstan, reaching Sakhalin Island and the Pacific Ocean on July 17, 1993. This first leg of their journey spanned 7,500 miles and carried them through some of the world's most rugged terrain. With temperatures frequently dropping as low as 70 degrees below zero, the trek was as much a test of their survival skills as it was of their endurance. This, the first portion of the expedition, put the two men in the Guinness Book of World Records for the longest distance traveled by horse-drawn wagon within a 12-month period.

The second leg of the world tour began again from Ivanovo on May 5, 1994, and took the two men west through Eastern Russian, Belarus, Poland, Germany, Luxembourg, France, and Belgium. From Europe the tour continued to the United States but without the trusted Vladimir draft horses that had pulled them across two continents. The cost to bring the horses to the US would have been $10,000. It was far more than the expedition could afford, so the horses were sold in Belgium, the wagon was shipped by sea, and Plonin and Davidovsky flew to the United States.

The third leg of the tour began in New York City on July 1, 1995. It started with a long delay and considerable hardship. The wagon took six weeks to arrive, and the costs of airfare and cargo across the Atlantic left the expedition with no money to live on let alone buy the horses needed to continue the world tour.

Donations slowed to a trickle, and prospects for the expedition looked bleak. Plonin and Davidovsky did odd jobs and survived as best they could while they worked to scrape together enough to buy a team of horses. Finally an Amish farmer from Pennsylvania heard of their plight and donated a team of Belgian draft horses to the cause. The Horse Drawn World Tour Expedition was off and rolling again.

They traveled south along the Atlantic seaboard to Atlanta, then headed west toward Los Angeles. Along the way they spread their cheerful message to thousands of people in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Oklahoma, and now Texas.

They came through downtown Clarendon Tuesday afternoon, reaching the outskirts of Amarillo by Wednesday night.

Once they reach California, they'll take stock of their options. If the details can be worked out, they'll continue their journey through Japan. If not, they'll head north through Canada and Alaska, then across the Bering Strait to complete the around-the-world journey at Sakhalin Island.

The Next Step In Health Care Reform

By Rep. Mac Thornberry

Now that Congress has passed and the President has signed a bill to make health insurance more secure for millions of Americans, it might be a good time to look at another area of health care policy that needs to be reformed - mainly, the way the Food and Drug Administration goes about approving new drugs and medical devices.

Since its inception in 1931, the FDA has set the world's standard for safety and consumer protection. But if one thing has been discovered over the years, it's that consumer protection means more than just keeping unsafe and ineffective products off the market. It also means ensuring that safe and effective products are made available to people who need them as quickly and efficiently as possible. Unfortunately, that's just not happening in America today. Consider the following:

- It now takes 12 years and $350 million to get the average new drug from the laboratory to the American patients who need it.
- Two-thirds of the new drugs currently being approved by the FDA were first approved in another country. In fact, of the 154 new drugs approved by the FDA between 1990 and 1995, 103 had already been approved outside the United States.

In the past five years, the average time it takes for the FDA to grant pre-market approval for a medical device has increased from 415 days to 773 days. By statute, the FDA is supposed to take no longer than 180 days.

The economic costs of FDA restrictions are truly staggering. A 1995 study by the American Electronics Association, for example, found that 40 percent of medical device firms reduced their number of US employees because of the FDA approval process, while 29 percent increased their investment in foreign operations and 22 percent moved jobs out of the country. A more recent report by Ernst and Young for the California Health Institute showed that since 1991, restrictive FDA policies cost that state up to 12,000 jobs and $500 million in economic losses. The study also revealed that 70 percent of California's biotechnology and device companies are today conducting initial drug or device development overseas.

But far more disturbing than the economic cost of FDA delay is the toll it takes on people's lives.

More than once, I've had people tell me they're often forced to choose between buying food or buying medicine because of the high price of drugs. This is a false choice which no one should have to bear, and one directly linked to the costly FDA approval process. And for those people waiting for a drug or device to be approved, the toll can be even worse.

People like the boy with juvenile diabetes whose parents must prick his finger every two hours to test his blood - all the while knowing that a medical device called the Non-Invasive Glucose Monitor currently exists which would allow them to accomplish the same task using a laser. Or the woman with a history of breast cancer in her family who might be able to detect a tiny lump if she had unrestricted access to a simple device known as the Sensor Pad that can be used along with a self-examination. These are the people being harmed by FDA delays, and these are the people calling for reform.

In response to this call, more than 150 members of the House of Representatives have signed onto a bipartisan package of reforms to streamline the FDA approval process in a way that would allow safe and effective drugs and medical devices to reach the people who need them more quickly and efficiently.

Among other things, this reform package would permit drugs for life-threatening conditions such as AIDS to be approved when there is a reasonable likelihood that the drug will be effective in a significant number of patients, and where the risk of the drug is no greater than the risk from the condition.

The main objective of these reforms is to restore some common sense to what has become a convoluted process. The hope is not that a risky new drug or device will be approved. Rather, it's that the seriously and terminally ill who need these new drugs and devices will no longer be put at risk because of high prices and delay. For these people, FDA reform is not simply a matter of good government. It's a matter of life and death.

Mac Thornberry (R-Clarendon) serves the 13th Congressional District of Texas.

Water district cuts tax rate

The Board of Directors of the Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District voted to cut the tax rate in the district 12.5 percent after their budget hearing Wednesday, Aug. 28.

Jerry H. Green, precinct 5 director in the district which covers parts of seven counties, said that the board set its 1996 tax rate at $0.0125 per $100 property valuation. Last year's tax rate was $0.0140 per $100 property valuation.

The district's 1995 tax base of $1,916,417,145 decreased to $1,894,031,112 this year, primarily because of a drop in natural gas prices in the year used for calculation of mineral values. That made this year's effective tax rate $0.014153.

"This is what the district's board of directors promised the tax payers we would do if at all possible," Green said, referring to the tax cut.

Following the budget hearing Wednesday evening at the district's office in White Deer, the 1996-97 budget was set at $236,750. Last year's budget was $267,600.

"In The Pink" luncheon set for September 6

Clarendon Circle of Friends will be sponsoring their "In The Pink" luncheon on September 6, 1996, at the First Methodist Church at 12:00 p.m.

The "In The Pink" luncheons are held in many communities throughout the Panhandle to raise money for the Harrington Cancer Center. They kick off the Susan G. Komen 1996 Panhandle "Race for the Cure" and "Stars at Night" benefit held on October 4-5 in Amarillo. These events benefit breast cancer research, detection, and education.

The Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation was established in 1982 by Nancy Brinker to honor the memory of her sister, Susan G. Komen, who died from breast cancer at the age of 36. The foundation has become a national organization with a network of volunteers working through local chapters and "Race for the Cure" events in 60 cities and 32 states, fighting breast cancer as a life-threatening disease by advancing research, education, screening, and treatment.

Greenbelt one of the region's best bass lakes

By Mel Phillips

Lake Greenbelt is Hot

Despite several years of lower than normal lake levels, Lake Greenbelt remains one of this region's best bass lakes. Nestled in a valley formed by the Salt Fork of the Red River lies the 1,500 acre reservoir that offers the greenest and most prolific lake in the Panhandle.

The lake record for largemouth bass has been broken three times during the last three years. The current record, caught on April 6, 1996, stands at 10.8 lbs. by Butch William of Amarillo.

According to fishing guide Kirk Salke (806-874-3135), "Something is always biting at Greenbelt. When the largemouth bass action slows down, either the walleye or the sandbass turn on."

The best fishing action is usually near the abundant moss beds that surround the shoreline. Anglers can choose to fish Salt Fork Creek to the west, Kelly Creek to the south, or Carrol Creek on the north side of the main lake area. Getting out of the wind is easy at Greenbelt, but fishing in the wind is frequently the best pattern for catching bass. It's not easy fishing just more productive.

Best lures for this time of year are buzzbaits at twilight and Rat-L-Traps on the outside edges of the moss during the day. A spinnerbait in the moss pockets can be very effective at any time. Jack Richardson of Amarillo won the August Fun Fishing Tournament at Lake Greenbelt with a pumpkin colored Berkley PowerWorm.

The last open Fun Fishing Bass Tournament of 1996 at Lake Greenbelt will be held this Saturday morning, September 7th, from 7:00 a.m. until noon. The entry fee is $25, and registration at the Marina opens at 6:00 a.m. All kids under 17 may enter this tournament free when accompanied by an adult contestant. All anglers are invited to this catch-and-release, three-bass event.

Lure of the Week

The Hart Tackle Co. has just introduced a new "Hart Burn" spinnerbait that incorporates a small red Colorado blade and a gold willow leaf blade. According to Ted Carson of Hart Tackle, "Our pro staff proved the effectiveness of a red blade at Lake Fork, and then discovered that "red" works on the big bass in other lakes." Expected to be in retail stores later this fall, anglers can get a jump on the competition by calling 1-800-256-4622 and asking for "Hart Burn."

Opening Day of dove season was a hit or miss event. The recent rainy weather started an early southern migration for many birds in the eastern Panhandle while the flights in the central Panhandle were better than last year.

According to Hannon's Moon Times, fish and wildlife will be most active on Saturday from 7:55 a.m. until 9:55 a.m. Best times on Sunday are from 8:40 a.m. until 10:40 a.m.

Museum Messenger

by Saints' Rooster

Sprucing Up

Neither rain nor heat or years of accumulated crud could stop museum volunteers who pitched in for the first step toward restoration of the Clarendon Railroad Depot. To say the building was a mess would be to give new and enhanced meaning to the word mess!

A brave and hearty (some might say foolhardy) crew spent a weekend recently chipping, scraping, shoveling, sweeping, and hauling years of trash out of the building while another crew began painting inside the museum and yet another group painted the outside of the bunkhouse. While all of this was going on carpenters were restoring and replacing the siding of the depot building.

Come on out and see the depot return to its glory days after hovering on the brink of destruction.

Guests and More Guests

Lots of interesting guests so far in August. Half brothers, Henry Massingill of Clarendon and Les Thompson of South Carolina, stopped by. The two brothers had no idea the other existed until a few years ago. Now they are spending as much time together as they can catching up.

Garland and Diane Holland dropped by for a stroll down memory land. Garland's grandparents lived at the hospital for a while as caretakers about 17 years ago. The Holland's remember their grandparents keeping chickens where the generator building is and growing a big garden on the grounds. Garland remembers wiring up an electric stove in what is now the Board Room, and Diane remembers mopping the long halls.

Folks in town for the Ashtola School reunion stopped by to visit including Mattie Holland Miller.

"Ashtola was a nice little town then. I still miss it," Miller said.

Also in town for the Ashtola School get-together was noted western artist Don Ray, who now lives in Channing. Ray was born in the Adair Hospital and has generously agreed to display some of his sculptures and paintings during the Chuckwagon Cookoff on September 28. Do not fail to stop by the museum during the cookoff festivities to view these art treasures.

Robert Younger of Amarillo also came by. Younger was born at the museum when it was a hospital. D.C. Peabody of Lewisville, Texas, also visited. Peabody wasn't born in the hospital but is a former patient. To express his appreciation for the treatment he received and to help out the museum, Peabody donated a riding lawn mower to Saints' Roost.

Another photo is a bit of a mystery and in the near future we will be asking help in identifying the people and the event caught by the camera sometime in the early or mid 1900's.

Chuckwagon Cookoff Update

The Colonel Charles Goodnight Chuckwagon Cookoff and Camp Gathering is becoming the talk of Texas. What started out as a great idea and a lot of elbow grease has grown into a major western heritage happening. Clarendon motels are already booked up and people are calling to reserve RV Park slots.

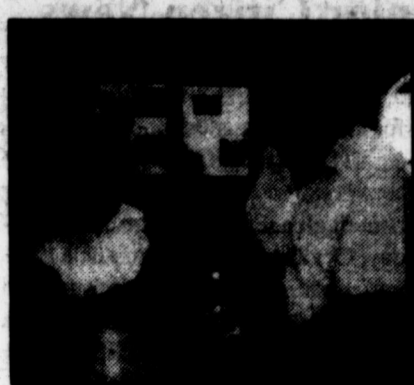

There will be entertainment of all sorts all day, good food, music, longhorn steers you can ride, an art exhibit, and who knows, Col. Goodnight himself might show up.

The big event is set for the last Saturday in September so make plans to be there!

Snippets

Be sure and check out the new "lifecycle of an Arrowhead" exhibit in the Indian room of the museum.

Proceeds from the competition ready 1845 Weber Chuckwagon raffle will go towards restoration of the Depot. If you've been thinking about getting into the fast growing field of chuckwagon cooking, here is your chance.

Dolly Cole presented Blaine Butts with the huge fruit basket he won at the Donley County Senior Citizens on Friday, August 23. Dolly donated the basket of fruit for a fund-raiser for the Senior Citizens, and Blaine was the lucky winner.

Driver Safety Course to be offered at CC

A Driver Safety Course will be held in Clarendon on Saturday, September 21, 1996. The course will meet from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in room 103 of the Clarendon College Administration Building. Cost of the course is $25.

Upon completion of this course, participants will be eligible for a 10 percent discount on their liability insurance for three years and dismissal of a traffic violation. All dismissals of traffic violations must be approved by the appropriate Justice of the Peace.

This course is offered by Clarendon College and USA Training Company, Inc. For more information, please contact Clarendon College at (806) 874-3571.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Donley County Commissioners set a hearing of the Donley County Budget 1996-1997 for Monday, September 9, 1996, at 1:00 o'clock p.m. in the Conference Room of the Annex. After the budget hearing the Commissioners' Court will set the tax rate. The public is cordially invited to attend the hearing.

Clarendon CISD hires new teachers for 1996-97 school year

Clarendon ISD has hired seven new faculty members - all employed on the high school campus - for the 1996-97 school year.

This week, the Enterprise will profile four of the seven new teachers. Next week, the newspaper will profile the remaining three educators.

S. Sean Norris is the new Theater Arts and Speech teacher at Clarendon High School. The Arizona native caught the acting bug in high school, and it was only natural with relatives on the South Plains that he would move to Plainview and join Wayland Baptist University's competitive theater department.

"It's a very intimate experience," Norris said of Wayland. "They have an excellent professor there who teaches acting and directing and another who teaches the technical side of theater."

The self-professed "flamboyant personality" has appeared on stage and behind the scenes in nearly 10 different college productions. It wasn't until his senior year of college that he decided he wanted to teach theater.

"I think that stemmed from my directing experiences. I love directing for the theater, and the job came open in Clarendon. I'm doubly excited to teach speech and theater."

I was part of an extremely competent (UIL) judging team, and I really am an insider when it comes to that."

Norris already has found a way to wean himself away from the stage. "Being in front of the class is really a performance in itself. I really want to get on stage and use my summers to do things here and elsewhere. I've also kind of fancied an idea of having a cameo in every play that I'll direct for the school."

The first-year teacher is excited about building a theater department and providing another extracurricular activity for students who don't fit in in other areas where they have talents.

Athletic Director and Head Football Coach Tooter Draper comes to Clarendon from Tahoka, where he was head football coach for two years and defensive coordinator for one year.

The Crane High School graduate said he always knew he wanted to be a coach and wasn't deterred even after an injury his sophomore year at Tarleton State University. The outside linebacker soon traded his football pads for the oil fields surrounding his hometown for a year and a half and then attended Sul Ross State University.

sity, where he graduated in 1990.

He married his wife, Sheila, in 1989, in Alpine, where she was pursuing a psychology degree. "When we got married, she felt like she needed to get a teaching degree, and we went to Granddalls-Royalty."

Draper was defensive coordinator, head basketball coach, and head track coach for one year before the head football coach became ill. He took over football responsibilities the next year.

After another year, the family packed up and moved to Van Horn where Draper served as offensive coordinator. Tahoka beckoned, and Draper ran the defense there. When their head football coach was fired in mid-season, Draper was hired as head football coach in January.

When the Clarendon position opened up, it was a job Draper couldn't pass up. "I felt like there were better athletes, and I felt like it was a great opportunity for me to raise my family here."

His goals for this year are simple: make the play-offs. "I feel like we have to be very competitive. I want the kids to enjoy it, but we have to be disciplined in what we do. If we come together and with a little luck, there's no telling what will happen."

In addition to his football responsibilities, Draper will coach golf in the spring.

Draper and his wife are the parents of two children: Ryan, nearly 4 years old, and Heath, 2.

Football assistant Wade Wilson's name may be familiar to Clarendon residents. His father is the legendary coach, Jet Wilson, who guided Canadian to numerous play-offs during his 12 years there and also coached overseas in the world league.

Although Jet Wilson retired from coaching in 1990, his son is carrying on the Wilson coaching name.

Wade Wilson has lived all over the state but graduated from Canadian in 1987.

The Canadian quarterback and defensive back's team lost in the bi-district round his junior and senior years - to Panhandle one year and Abernathy the next.

Wilson continued his football career at Panhandle State University for three years and then pursued a master's degree in education at West Texas A&M University before meeting his future wife, Michelle. He looks 9 hours for his master's degree.

The two travelled to Class 4A Rockport-Fulton down on the coast for one year as a quarterback coach and the next year went to S&S Consolidated in Slaters as a Class 2A First Assistant before moving to Clarendon this year.

"I always wanted to be a coach - ever since junior high," Wilson said. "It was because of my dad. He was just a positive role model, and he had good relationships with players in their 40s all the way down to 16- and 17-year-olds."

"He looked out for everybody, not just the starters or the athletes but everybody so they could be successful in something. I hope to be the same way. I want the kids to be successful and teach kids sportsmanship and the camaraderie that goes along with sports."

Wilson and his wife, Michelle, are the parents of 1-year-old Kaul, whose name was inspired by Capt. Call in the television mini-series "Lonesome Dove."

Social Studies teacher Lyndal Gilien Goetze has hoppedscotched all over Texas because of her husband's employment with the Farm Service Agency's Agriculture Credit Division.

"He's the loan officer," she said of her husband, Larry.

She comes to Clarendon from Hillsboro but not before making stops in Navarro County, Hubbard, Waco, Henrietta, Perryton, Seguin and Dumas.

Goetze grew up in Navarro County in a "very politically active" family, which makes for exciting family gatherings. After graduating with a bachelor's degree in political science from Baylor, she began working on her master's degree and ended up teaching in Hubbard to make ends meet while working on her thesis.

"I had intended on going into the foreign service, but I met my husband while he was teaching (he was an art teacher)."

Goetze said she didn't "really learn how to teach until I got involved with the Gifted and Talented program in Henrietta. I just really enjoy working with gifted kids and see a need for people to understand them."

After taking two years off from teaching to care for her 6-year-old son, Paul, after he was born, Goetze continued her career in Hillsboro and most recently in Clarendon.

At Clarendon High School, Goetze is teaching Advanced Placement U.S. History, a concurrent government class, and regular government and world history classes.

"It's quite a change," Goetze said. "The classes are so small. It's so much more one-to-one."

In addition to her teaching responsibilities, Goetze is coaching UIL Current Events and wants to start a Junior Historians Chapter. She is a member of the Texas State Historical Society, and the junior historians is something they offer to junior high and high school students.

"It builds an interest in local history and a love of the past. There also is scholarship money available."

Goetze is intrigued with Clarendon because it is one of the oldest cities in the Panhandle, but she hasn't had much of an opportunity to explore the town's older buildings.

"I've been to the museum, and I know there are a lot of buildings downtown that should be preserved."

Thank You

We want to thank everyone who contributed to Ray's retirement party! Those who came - Thanks for taking time out of your Sunday afternoon. Those who gave money (we're trying to decide between the service revolver (Ray) and Las Vegas (me), and those who made it all possible. We appreciate all of our friends! If you didn't make it, you missed a good roast (Ray), lots of laughs, and some tears, but after 28 years, what else! Now we have no more phone calls in the middle of the night (unless its our girls or our grandsons); and Ray will no longer be "pounding the pavement." Our life will change and (no Ray is not going to be hanging around the house all of the time - he's seriously looking for a job) it will be different.

This is what we have worked for all these years. If you need us and we're not there, we'll be fishing, golfing, or just plain gone! Thank you Donley County for 28 years of support! Ray and Cheryl Burch
