

Gov't Shut Down No Big Deal

As we approach presstime, the federal government is officially shut down.

Well, that may be a stretch. Actually, all 'non-essential personnel' have been 'furloughed' until Congress and the President can come to terms on how to pay them.

These non-essential workers (800,000 of them) have basically taken a vacation from their various non-essential government functions.

As far as I can tell, the nation is still going about its daily business without concerning itself on what the feds are (or are not in this case) doing. This leads me to wonder: "If these 'non-essential' workers are really 'non-essential,' then why don't we just fire them and close down their non-essential functions?"

But alas, that solution would make sense and is therefore unacceptable as a government policy.

Texans Don't Want Higher Speed Limits?

A poll printed recently in the Amarillo Daily News claims that a majority of Texans are opposed to raising speed limits. Now the curious thing is that the exact same poll shows a majority of Texans exceed posted speed limits.

Where did they find these idiots to poll? They must have gone to Austin or East Texas.

The fact of the matter is that speed limits should be raised, especially in Texas. Our state has some of the best engineered, and therefore the safest, highways on the continent.

I think the speed limit should be 75 mph on interstates, 70 mph on four-lane highways like 287, and at least 65 or 70 mph on rural two-lane roads.

Of course the questions always come up, "What about safety? What about the lives that will be lost?" Those questions are moot.

If we were truly concerned about safety, we wouldn't ever drive at all.

Statistics from the Comanche Department of Transportation show that highway fatalities were almost zero before the introduction of the horse. (Although there was markedly higher rate of twisted ankles due to hidden prairie dog holes.)

Cars today are designed with safety in mind. Since the 55 mph federal speed limit was introduced, we've seen the advent of anti-lock brakes, improved power steering, air bags, and more.

Most importantly, the 55 mph speed limit makes criminals of otherwise law-abiding citizens. Let's allow people to drive a little faster and free up the highway patrol to go after real criminals.

Veterans' Memorial Welcome Addition

The new Donley County Veterans' Memorial is something of which all of us can be proud.

I must say that I thought the Vietnam Memorial in Washington was always the most impressive. However, when one looks on the new memorial on the courthouse square, it grabs you more.

Perhaps it is because all the names on it are familiar, even if you didn't know those courageous men personally, you still recognize the old family names that have been a part of our community for so long. This monument is a welcome addition to our county, and it will insure that no one ever forgets the sacrifices that have been made for our freedom.

Community Thanksgiving Service Planned

The Donley County Ministerial Alliance and the Girl Scouts of Clarendon are planning a Community Thanksgiving Service for Tuesday, November 21, on the steps of the Donley County Courthouse, at 6:00 p.m. It will be a time of celebrating the many things for which we are thankful and, at the same time, looking forward to the upcoming Christmas season. The Girl Scouts of Clarendon will lead in the singing of Christmas carols, and Rev. Truman Ledbetter will bring some devotional thoughts in keeping with the season.

The Donley County Ministerial Alliance will take an offering to help fund the transient and benevolent work that they engage in throughout the year. What better way to express Thanksgiving to God for His bounty than helping others who are less fortunate? You are invited to share in this ministry by giving as generously as possible to the offering that will be taken.

Following the service, Christmas lights on the courthouse lawn will be turned on.

In the case of poor weather conditions, the service will be held in the hall for the Lions Club at the southeast corner of the courthouse square.

economic development.

Future plans for distributing the information are being developed under the auspices of the Clarendon-Donley County Chamber of Commerce with the help of West Texas Utilities. Both Archuleta and Moore have offered to do a series of trainings for the City of Clarendon's Economic Development Board to share these latest ideas.

"Without the tangible support for tuition by West Texas Utilities, we wouldn't have this information in our community. I'm grateful for the opportunity this represents," Archuleta said.

Other local support was offered in the form of gift certificate for an overnight stay at the Bar-H Working Dude Ranch. The auction was an event at the last dinner of the trainees. The Bar-H gift certificate raised the second largest amount of all the items auctioned. A total of $3,000 to be used for scholarships for future trainees was raised, and other Donley County residents will be eligible to apply for the March school at College Station.

A full report on the school will be given at the next regular Chamber of Commerce meeting, December 6, at 7:00 a.m. in the Conference Room of the Newhouse Building. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Dear Editor,

Congratulations on your acquiring The Clarendon News publication. I wish you the very best in your new endeavor. I have been hoping you could acquire this publication since I met you at the first class reunion several years ago. It seemed that the newspaper was just waiting for you to get college completed so you could take up a family tradition that had been waiting for you.

I was born in Clarendon way back in 1920, and I very well remember both newspapers. The Donley County Leader and The Clarendon News served the community well for many years. I moved from Clarendon in 1940 but kept an interest in Clarendon and the fifty year college and high school reunions renewed a stronger interest in Clarendon and the area.

I can already see some differences in this new publication.

Congratulations to your "Proof Reader" and staff; the format is very neat. My best wishes to you and your staff.

J. Royce Lummus

Dear Editor,

In 1788, James Madison observed that "Government is instituted to protect property of every sort." Madison had just written the Bill of Rights, including the clause that says, "Nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation." Clearly, our Founding Fathers understood that the right to own, use, and exchange property made people independent and gave them the power to preserve their liberties.

Today our right to private property is under assault in a manner our Founding Fathers could never have imagined.

In the coming weeks, the Senate Judiciary Committee will consider "The Omnibus Private Property Rights Act." This bill restores the Constitution's guarantee to private property rights protection by forcing government agencies to assess and minimize the impact they have on private property owners. If a government agency takes private property or damages its value, compensation must be paid and it must come out of the agency's budget.

I believe that if we hold government accountable, the government will find good reason to respect the families who own homes, farms, and businesses in America.

CAPITOL COMMENT BY SEN. KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON

Keeping The Budget Debate In Perspective

The Federal government's budget deliberations are down to the wire. Both the House and Senate have passed historic legislation with the potential to put our country's financial house in order.

I am sure you have heard both the pro and con arguments concerning the particulars of Congress' budget deliberations. But I think it is important in considering all these arguments that we keep our eye on the goal of the exercise: balancing the federal budget, as quickly as is practically possible, so our country can continue to prosper.

We are fighting to deliver the changes voters demanded in the last election — premier among these their desire to see the federal budget balanced. Nearly 90 percent of Americans say they support balancing the budget. They know that only in a country free from ever-increasing debt will Americans be able to look forward to more job opportunities and a higher standard of living.

The Federal budget has not been balanced since 1969. This congress began by putting its own house in order, cutting its own spending by $200 million (although the President vetoed this), by cutting foreign aid, and by eliminating outdated, redundant programs. And we have moved to return responsibility for and authority over many initiatives to the states.

In 1975, American families spent 33 percent of their income on necessities — housing, utilities, etc. By 1995, that had risen to 46 percent. A balanced budget, free from deficits, will mean more real income for working Americans:

- No new deficits mean 6.1 million new job opportunities will open up in the early part of the 21st century.
- No new deficits mean per-family income will rise by up to $1,000 a year.
- No new deficits mean interest rates will decline by as much as two percent, making loans for homes, cars, education, or start-up businesses more readily available.

When listening to this debate, it is also important to remember that Congress' plan to balance the budget in seven years does so, not by cutting overall spending, but by making careful reductions in the rate of growth of federal spending.

This is our last, best chance to save our country from fiscal ruin. Before this year is out, the United States' debt will top the $5 trillion mark. According to the bipartisan Entitlement Commission, by the year 2015 spending on just four entitlement programs and the national debt will have crowded out all other federal spending — for defense, for law enforcement, for food safety, and for highways.

I cannot exaggerate how important I believe it is for us to balance the federal budget. Only by doing this will we be able to confront the fiscal and national security challenges of the next century free from the treacherous dangers of deficit.

"Welcome to the Panhandle"

I always knew you had to be tough to play football. Last Friday night I found out you sometimes have to be tough to watch it.

To say the very least, the Clarendon Bronchos' season finale at Highland Park was an experience.

For instance, it was the first time in my life that I didn't stand for the playing of the national anthem. I couldn't — my tail was frozen to the bleachers.

Sitting atop the glacial stadium and sandwiched between two highly devout ladies — my wife Claudia and super Broncho fan Katherine Williams — I was comforted to know that if we all froze to death, I could just hang on for the ride and hope Saint Peter was napping at the gate.

Oh, it wasn't really that bad. I never actually felt like I was in a life-threatening situation. Matter of fact, I didn't feel anything after about half an hour.

Just getting to the game was kind of a kick for a couple of tenderfoots fresh off the bus from sunny Florida. It began snowing just outside Washburn, and Claudia started freaking like there was a mouse on the front seat. "Turn the car around!" she blurted. "We don't even have snow tires or chains. We'll never make it back home!"

"Nobody's got snow tires up here," I countered. "At least, I don't think they do. Don't worry so much. The snow's not even laying — yet."

"Okay, just remember I told you so when we end up in some ditch," she bellowed. "If it gets any worse, we'll just stay in a motel in Amarillo tonight. And that'll cost you a bundle, buddy."

Contemplating how many times I'd heard that "just remember, I told you so" line over the past quarter-century, I condescended. "Don't worry so much, honey. Just think of it as an adventure."

And an adventure it proved to be. An arctic adventure.

By the time we arrived at the stadium, all the parking places adjacent to the chain-link fence surrounding the field were taken by smarter souls. So, watching the game from the car with the heater on high wasn't an option.

Now, one thing a rookie's got to learn about surviving a Panhandle autumn (let alone winter) is how to dress. Elmonette Bivens had warned us earlier in the day that it would be a "four-layer" evening, and she wasn't talking about a wedding cake, either.

I only wish I had paid attention. I was about two layers shy mentally and physically. It was the first time in my life that I wished I was built like a sumo wrestler.

Claudia and I made it as far as the concession stand/restrooms (about 500 feet) before we made our first pit stop.

"How's 'bout buying me some hot chocolate while I check out the restroom?" I asked Claudia, teeth already chattering. She kindly complied, but by the time I re-emerged from the men's lair, my 75-cent cup of hot chocolate wasn't so hot. Nothing like luke warm hot chocolate on a wintry night, I always say.

While the cocoa was cold, the camaraderie in the stands warmed one's heart. It didn't warm your feet, mind you, but it did warm your heart. Everybody was huddled on one end of the stands, engulfed in a sea of blankets, gloves, and wool caps, protecting himself as best he could against the piercing, ice-filled wind.

I wondered who might be the first to wimp out and head for the car. Soon that question was answered — it was me.

As I staggered toward the parking lot, feeling like an inept Nanuk of the North, Claudia and I passed another ardent Broncho fan who greeted us with a wry chuckle and said, "Welcome to the Panhandle, folks!"

I managed a little wave and laugh myself in reply, then turned to Claudia and asked, "When does basketball season start?"

"Tomorrow," she answered.

"Really. That long, huh?" I lamented.

What's new at Burton Memorial Library? This was my question while visiting with assistant librarian, Barbara Alexander, last week. I wasn't disappointed when she led me to a stack of beautiful books, appealingly covered, and authored by best-selling writers. Some were already reserved to comply with library patrons' requests, and waiting lists were started of others. I quickly requested my name on the Coming Home list. Rosamund Pilcher's latest novel, Pilcher's Shellseekers and September are only two of her writings which have made her a favorite of many readers.

Newly written Silent Night by leading mystery writer, Mary Higgins Clark, is currently available as well as Dark Horse, in paperback, by Margaret Falk. Ms. Falk provides mysterious intrigue against a background of the Quarterhorse racing circuit. Morning, Noon, and Night by Sidney Shelton, and Dick Francis' Come To Grief are two more recently acquired mystery novels.

New westerns? You bet! Larry McMurtry's Dead Man's Walk entices readers with the western flavor that has polarized this talented writer's work. Tony Hillerman fans will delight with his latest novel, Finding Moon.

Many will recognize Baxter Black as cowboy philosopher and poet. His column, "On the Edge of Common Sense" appears in over 100 newspapers. If you have not yet introduced yourself to Mr. Black's western humor, you'll find this National Public Radio commentator's column each Saturday morning in the Amarillo Globe Times. His first and newly published paperback novel, Hey Cowboy, Wanna' Get Lucky?, promises all the wit and philosophic wisdom so unique to Mr. Black.

Other additions, currently new to Burton Memorial Library's shelves and too numerous to mention at this time, will be discussed in my next article. In the meantime, why not give yourself a treat and check it out?

At this time, Burton Memorial Library extends best wishes for a very enjoyable Thanksgiving holiday.

Pathfinder Club Holds November Meeting

The Pathfinder Club met Friday, November 10, 1995, at the Patching Club House.

The program for the afternoon was given by Ferol Shelton, who grew up in Clarendon.

Even as a boy, Ferol has had a great interest in the Indians and early pioneers of the area. Over the past several years, his interest has centered on horse drawn carriages and surreys. By showing slides of drawings of the vehicles, Ferol pointed out the features that made each unique. Some of the styles were Tinged Top Surrey, the Auto Top Surrey, the Ladies Stanhope, the Spring Wagon, the Amish Buggy, the One House Farm Wagon, the Texas Wagon Bow Top, and the Heavy Concord Coach. Ferol also told of his trip to Kansas to visit with an Amish craftsman, whose business is building surreys and wagons using methods perfected by the Amish over the generations. Ferol enjoys restoring old carriages and participating in chuck wagon cook offs.

The hostesses, Frankie Henson and Jeanice Weatherly, served delicious refreshments of pumpkin cake, mixed nuts, and hot apple cider to the following members: Mrs. Blaine Butts, Mrs. Sue Dunagan, Mrs. Herman Mooring, Mrs. Billy Powell, Mrs. Joe Robinson, Mrs. Tommie Saye, Mrs. Ted Shaller, Mrs. Dorothy White, Mrs. Janie Amon, and Mrs. Patsy Hill.

Jump Rope For Heart: A Real Success

Seventy-nine students from the third, fourth, and fifth grades participated in Jump Rope for Heart during the third week of October.

Heart disease and stroke are the number one killers of Americans today. Funds raised from Jump Rope for Heart are invaluable in the continuation of research and education to fight back against the death and disability caused by heart disease. Each team of jumpers jumped rope for a total of three hours during the course of the five days in physical education class. These students diligently worked to raise $2,407.51 to fight heart disease.

Terra Kidd was the overall top money raiser with $98, followed by Meghan Gribble with $87.50. Coordinator for the event was SuFran Bass, elementary physical education teacher. Prizes earned by the students will arrive in six to eight weeks.

TERRA KIDD WAS THE TOP MONEY RAISER for the Jump Rope for Heart with $98. She received a medal for her efforts.

THE TOP TEN MONEY RAISERS for the Jump Rope for Heart were (front) Michael Newhouse, Drew Sell, Meghan Gribble, Terra Kidd, Chrissy Jordan, Alice Hommel, (back) Jordan Zehr, Ashlee Kidd, Karolyn Burns, and Tessa Billrey.

The Lions Tale

By Gene Alderson

The Clarendon Lions Club held its regular meeting at noon on Tuesday, November 14, 1995, at the Lions Hall.

Fifteen members, one new member, one guest, and Lion Sweetheart Dee Williams enjoyed a very delicious Mexican dinner before the meeting was called to order by Boss Leticia Johnson.

The regular open ceremony was observed and Lion tamer Henson introduced Russell Estlack, who was the guest of Lion Allen Estlack.

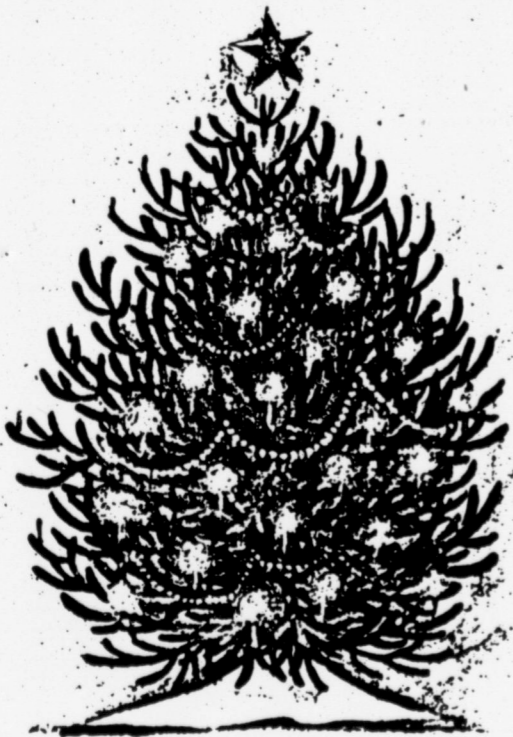

A membership application from Lee Jackson was unanimously approved by the club. Welcome Lee!

The program consisted of the installation of the following new members by Lion Allen Estlack: Frank Amon, owner and operator of Computer Solutions; Roger Estlack, owner and editor of The Clarendon News; and Lee Jackson, who is an instructor at Clarendon College. Two other new members, who were not able to attend the meeting, will be installed at a later date.

The club welcomes all of its new members. Meeting adjourned.

Cenceros, Doris Terrell, Gabby Mata, Dustin Ford, (back) Alan Harper, Brett Strange, Dusty Willyard, Sonny Bhakta, Shequitta Shoels, Elizabeth Watson, Lee Tolbert, and Sabra Patten. Region 16 Looking For Former Head Start Students, Staff, And Parents

In preparation for the 30th Anniversary celebration of the Head Start program, Region 16 Education Service Center in Amarillo is seeking to locate former Head Start students, staff, and parents, according to Jan Stemple, Head Start play therapist.

"We want to invite everyone involved to the celebration," Stemple said. "We are also looking for success stories to share at the event."

Anniversary events include an Open House, set for November 18, at the ESC Palo Duro Conference Center. In addition, Head Start students throughout the panhandle area will be demonstrating activities in their respective classrooms.

Approximately 740,500 children nationwide are presently enrolled in Head Start, established in 1965 to provide comprehensive health, education, nutrition, parent involvement, and social services to preschool children from low income families.

Since its beginning the program has served almost 15 million children.

Head Start has involved millions of parents in the education of their children and the operation of Head Start centers with many parents going on to become paid classroom aides and to acquire college degrees. Nearly 35 percent of the Head Start staff across the nation are parents of current or former Head Start children, according to government information.

The Head Start program is administered by the Administration for Children, Youth, and Families within the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Administration for Children and Families. For fiscal year 1995, Congress appropriated $3,534 Billion for Head Start, an increase of $210 million over the previous year.

Anyone having information or desiring to participate in the anniversary celebration is asked to contact Stemple, Jenny Hedricks, or Cheri Sherley at Region XVI, Head Start Building, (806) 376-5521.

UIL Council Votes To Allow Girls To Play Baseball

The University Interscholastic League's Legislative Council voted last month to allow girls to try-out to play baseball. Under current policy, girls are allowed to participate on boys' teams if a corresponding sport is not offered. The council gave the determination that baseball and softball have unique differences and should be viewed as separate, not corresponding sports.

"Girls should be given the opportunity to participate in the full range of UIL programs," UIL athletic director Charles Breithaupt said. "This change is positive in that it allows girls to try out for and, if selected, participate in every UIL activity."

If the change is ratified by the State Board of Education, girls would be allowed to try out for baseball teams beginning with the 1996-97 school year, but they could not play baseball and softball at the same time.

Bronchos & Lady Bronchos To Begin Basketball This Week

The Lady Bronchos and Bronchos open up their home schedule Friday with a contest against Amarillo's San Jacinto Christian Academy. The junior varsity girls kick off action at 4 p.m.

Boys junior varsity will follow, and the Lady Bronchos tip-off is at 6:30 p.m. The boys action gets underway at 8 p.m.

First-year head coach Steve Schmidt said pre-season scrimmages against Pampa, Childress, and Valley were very productive.

"We got some confidence from yesterday's (Valley) scrimmage," Schmidt said.

He believes toughness, a strong work ethic, team play, and a balanced scoring attack will be the Lady Bronchos' strengths this year.

"I think anyone can be hot on any given night," Schmidt said.

Expect the Lady Bronchos to run on the fast break and press. "They like doing it and have responded to it well. We're not tall enough to work it inside. We're going to let our defense create our offense."

The Bronchos expect another tough game from San Jacinto which won its classification in the state tournament for parochial schools.

The Bronchos traveled to Amarillo last year to meet the state champs and almost got more than they could handle. The hot-shooting San Jacinto team nearly downed the Bronchos 92-86. It was the highest-scoring ball game for the Bronchos.

Second-year coach Jimmy Avery expects another close contest. "They shot the ball real well, and they run up and down the floor real well too."

Avery struck up a friendship with the head coach who is deaf. "His kids respond to him real well. He's a real joy to watch coach."

The Bronchos speed and depth will be two strengths Avery will count on to repeat as bi-district champions.

The team lost all-stars Danny McCampbell and all-region standout Corey Fields to graduation but expects other high-caliber players to step in and fill their shoes.

"We have a lot of depth. We can count on 10 people to play at any point during the game."

The Bronchos and Lady Bronchos will travel to Amarillo River Road Tuesday for a match-up with the 3A school. Junior varsity action begins at 5 p.m.

MRS. WHITE'S AND MS. DUNCAN'S KINDERGARTEN STUDENTS at Clarendon Elementary got a taste of the culture of Hawaii on Friday, November 10. Students made their own grass skirts from plastic bags and had a party.

Colts 7th Grade Ends Season With A Win

In the Clarendon Colts' final game of the season, the seventh graders won 24-0. Tailback Dee Thompson scored two touchdowns while Colt Floyd and Shanon Martin chipped in one apiece.

The eighth graders lost 34-0.

Colt basketball began Monday, Nov. 13, when the Lady Colts met the Lady Whirlwinds at 5 p.m. in Memphis. The Colts will play Memphis at 5 p.m. Thursday in the Bronco gym. The Lady Colts will meet the Lady Whirlwinds beginning at 5 p.m. at Memphis.

The Colts seventh graders will be at home next Monday meeting Canadian at 5 p.m. and the eighth grade game will follow. The girls will travel to Canadian for a 5 p.m. match-up.

Frequent Long-Distance Users Can Save With Calling Plans

Irving - Although 251 Texas communities served by GTE have approved expanded local calling plans to reduce long-distance costs of calling neighboring cities, most customers do not take advantage of other possible area long-distance calling plans that could save even more money, according to a company manager.

GTE offers discount calling plans that apply to long-distance calls made within the GTE Calling Area, or LATA. The local LATA is shown in the front of the local directory under Calling Instructions and is different from Area Codes.

"For a residential customer having at least $20 in GTE long-distance charges each month, the GTE Discount Calling Plan can be a money saver," said Hardy White, General Manager - Customer Operations, Western Division. "The customer receives a 15 percent discount on all calls for a $3 monthly charge." He said similar plans are available to business customers with savings from 10 to 20 percent.

A plan offered only to residential customers is the GTE Between Friends Service that provides 60 minutes of direct dialing calling within the GTE calling area during all rate periods for a fixed monthly rate of $10.80. In addition, the per minute rate for usage above 60 minutes is billed at 16.7 cents per minute, a rate usually below the average per minute charge for calls within the GTE calling area.

"These plans make it possible for frequent long-distance users to save money through more affordable rates, allow callers to call longer and more often for the same dollars, and can allow the customer to better manage his phone bill," the manager said.

Willis said customers can learn more about the calling plans by calling GTE at 1-800-346-4300.

"With the traditional increase in holiday calling to family and friends, now is the perfect time to take advantage of any plan that could result in cost savings," he said.
