Goodnight Cookoff Is A Huge Success

Nearly 1,000 Come To Honor the Panhandle Creator of the Chuckwagon

The Old West lived again in Clarendon last weekend when nearly 1,000 people turned out to attend the first annual Col. Charles Goodnight Chuckwagon Cookoff.

The event, held just north of the Saints' Roost Museum (Adair Hospital), entertained crowds throughout the day last Saturday, Sept. 30, as 15 chuckwagon teams competed to see who could had the best camp cooks.

Cowboys, dressed in traditional garb, prepared authentic camp meals ranging from pot roast or chicken fried steak to green chili stew.

At dusk the winners were announced. Taking home the biggest prize for the Best All Around Camp and Cooks was the Ericksdahl Cattle Co. from Stamford, Texas. They won $1000.

For having the Most Authentic Camp, the fine folks from the Brooks Ranch -- Rogers Chuckwagon took $800 back home to Sweetwater.

One hundred dollars was also given in the following categories:

- Best Meat: Ericksdahl Cattle Co., Stamford, Texas.
  - Best Beans: C-C Cunningham Wagon; Hartley, Texas.
  - Best Bread: Creekwood Ranch; Amarillo, Texas.
  - Best Dessert: JA Ranch; (Vida O'Neal recipe) Donley County.
- Donley County's very own Lewis

Ranch won the Most Enthusiastic Camp Award. Their camp cooks were Pam and Steve Lewis and David and Jackie Lewis.

The chuckwagons for the Lewis Ranch and the JA Ranch were brought out of retirement and restored after being put out to pasture over three decades ago.

After enjoying the excellent chuckwagon cuisine, the crowd was entertained by several cowboy poets and entertainers. Among these were Col. Goodnight's own great grand-nephew Andy Wilkinson, the Keen Ridge Riders, and the highly respected Red Stegall.

The gathering allowed many of Goodnight's relatives to reunite. Among them was Don Goodnight of Mead, Kansas.

This was the first chuckwagon cookoff ever to honor Col. Goodnight. It was Goodnight who invented the chuckwagon some 100 years ago.

Proceeds from the event will go to support the Saints' Roost Museum. Organizers were very pleased with the cookoff's success and are hoping to have an even bigger turn out next year.

Broncos Overpower White Deer

A high octane offense powered by backs Lorenzo Moore and Ebony Butler propelled the Clarendon Broncos past White Deer, 59-6, Friday before a partisan Buck homecoming crowd.

Clarendon improved 3-1, while White Deer remained winless at 0-4. Sunray is Clarendon's potential homecoming spoiler when the Bobcats visit Bronco Stadium at 8 p.m. Friday. Sunray brings in a stingy defense that has allowed only seven points in four games.

The key to the homecoming game is adjusting to the Bobcats unbalanced formation on defense, according to Broncos Head Coach Kent Allison.

"We have to concentrate on the football game and not homecoming," Allison said. "We must play four quarters of football and concentrate on making our extra points."

Friday night's scorefest started just over a minute into the contest when running back Lorenzo Moore broke through a swarm of blue shirts and galloped 57 yards for the TD.

Moore would score three more times before the game was over, rushing for 229 yards. Allison believes Moore played better because of the addition of Butler, who recently became eligible for Friday's match-up. The sophomore Butler rushed for 197 yards and two touchdowns.

Butler gave the Broncos another weapon in their offensive arsenal, Allison said. "It's nice having him. He's another fast threat. He can go the distance on any play, and he provides the team with another dimension. It helps when (defense) can't key on one back."

"I believe Lorenzo played a better game because we didn't depend on him the entire game."

But the Bronco offense did not totally depend on Moore and Butler. Quarterback Phillip Hearn picked up his game tossing for two touchdowns and 70 passing yards.

"He's becoming more comfortable with his role as a quarterback," Allison said.

Hearn connected with sophomore Brent Gaines on a 21-yard bullet in the second quarter and a 15-yard pass to Dean Stanzione in the fourth. Sophomore Clemmie Smith also added a 14-yard run of his own. White Deer's lone score came with 36 seconds left in the game on a 20-yard pass from Torey Craig to Nick Knocke.

The Bronco offense turned out 539 total yards and 23 first downs, compared to White Deer's 12 first downs and 201 total offensive yards.

Butler and Kareem Abdulah played well on defense grabbing an interception apiece.

In the seventh grade game against Wellington, the Colts lost 21-6 with their only score coming on a Dee Thompson 60-yard breakaway run. Fumbles and an inability to move the football were downfalls for the seventh graders.

The eighth graders held Wellington scoreless until the fourth quarter when Wellington scored 20 points.

ACS Plans Life After Loss Seminar

The American Cancer Society will hold a Life After Loss Seminar during the months of October and November at the First Baptist Church in Canyon, Room B-3. Sessions will be held on consecutive Monday afternoons, October 16, 23, 30, November 6 and 13 from 12:00 - 1:00 p.m.

The American Cancer Society offers this seminar and support group, without charge, to anyone who has experienced the death of a loved one within the past two years, regardless of the cause of the loved one's death.

Dealing with the death of a loved one is one of life's most difficult and stressful experiences. Often people feel lonely and confused because friends and family expect them to be over the death, yet their grieving continues. People may feel angry, guilty, or depressed.

Many people find it helps to meet with others who understand. That includes others who are dealing with the death of a loved one, and a professional counselor, Rodney Boyer, M.ED, LPC, from Canyon who is experienced in helping people work through their grief.

In the safe and supportive atmosphere of a small group, Life After Loss offers the opportunity to talk about experiences and hear from others in similar circumstances.

Project 97 Cooking Up Barbecue

Project 97 is sponsoring a barbecue dinner Sunday, October 15, at the Lion's Club from 11:30 to 1:30.

Tickets can be obtained from any Junior student or by calling Diane Chamberlain at 874-2393 or Renee Shields at 874-3884.

Participants can begin to understand the grief process, their emotions, and how to deal with them. They can get ideas that may help them day-to-day, week-to-week, and long term.

The American Cancer Society offers Life After Loss as a community service, at no charge to participants. It is recommended that participants attend all sessions to receive full benefit of the program.

A Vision for the Future of Clarendon College Check It Out

By Scott Elliott
Clarendon College President

As a rugged, blond, green-eyed youngster playing Little League baseball, I never once thought about becoming a college president. Rather, I, along with just about every other kid in America, aspired to be the next Mickey Velez.

But, alas, the only thing I did like the Mike was only out a bit.

One day, after hearing me whine about "not being able to see the ball," my coach proposed, "Scott, your problem isn't seeing the ball. It's that you can't see yourself hitting it."

Scratching my head, I wondered what the venerable coach was going about. Some years later I figured it out. He was talking about having a vision for success.

And, you know, whether one is talking about hitting baseballs or hitting it big in business, possessing a vision is important. Yes, it's paramount.

That's why I'm pursuing these words today - to tell you a little about my vision for Clarendon College.

Perhaps you've already heard comments like, "What about this new president at the college?" I hear he's changing all kinds of things - trying to fix a bunch of things that ain't broken."

Well, such statements are at least partially true. It's true that we are making some changes at Clarendon College. It's also certain that more are to come.

It is not true, however, that I am interested in change for change's sake. Neither am I interested in putting my personal stamp on a college that has persevered very well without me for nearly a century.

What I am interested in is purposeful change. I would argue that no living entity can remain viable without it.

Clarendon College is a great institution with a rich tradition, but it is not without its challenges and problems. Like all colleges across America, our college is and will continue to be impacted by external forces, whether state and federal auditors, accrediting agencies, or even the dynamics of regional demographics. We are not only in an information age during which technology has advanced faster than man's ability to utilize same, we are also in an age of accountability.

Those who invest in colleges - from students to taxpayers to government agencies - are demanding that institutions account for those investments. They want to know in quantifiable terms how well the college is doing the job it promised it would do. And when evaluations indicate the college is not performing up to established standards, the questions become, "What commitment does the college have to improve? What changes is the college willing to make?"

Change is, at best, a difficult proposition. It can be threatening because institutional change begins with personal change. And personal change involves sacrifice - putting the good of the institution over one's self or selfishness.

My vision for Clarendon College is multi-faceted. First, it should be considered that ours is a community college. The operative word is community, which distinguishes us from a research-oriented university.

I believe a community college must be responsive to its constituents. That means not only being effective in preparing students for transfer to senior colleges and universities, but also engaged in cultural enrichment, occupational education, continuing education, remediation of individuals lacking basic skills, and economic development.

What some would term problems, we must view as opportunities to improve. The first step in improvement is recognizing one's challenges, looking them square in the eye and having the resolve to do whatever it takes to win. Yes, win.

Specifically, what are some of our challenges?

Contemporizing our curriculum. This means making certain our students take the courses that will provide them not only with job skills, but also with life skills. Our graduates should be critically-thinking, well-rounded individuals, conversant in diverse subjects.

Becoming more technologically oriented, both in the classroom and the library. By augmenting lectures with media, great teachers can make the classroom come alive like never before. And through technology, Clarendon College can likewise make a quantum leap in its library, empowering students with reference tools such as international data bases that feature the latest in scholarly journal articles. Finally, the college must become engaged in distance learning, partnering with other agencies to broaden our curriculum in a way the college could never hope to accomplish strictly on its own fiscal merits. One day you'll see credit classes and non-credit seminars being beamed into Clarendon from diverse sites. We won't have to provide the instruction, yet our college will realize an economic benefit.

Enrollment growth in the face of a dwindling Texas Panhandle population. Our first challenge is to do a better job of retaining our freshmen. Too many students leave our college after one year and even one semester. Already we have taken a major step toward addressing the issue by making a stronger effort at promoting student activities. No longer can any student legitimately complain that "there's nothing to do at Clarendon College." Our second challenge in fostering growth is to provide students with new reasons to come to Clarendon College. That might involve anything from new occupational programs such as Registered Nursing and Heavy Farm Equipment Repair to expanding our athletic department to include baseball and volleyball.

Developing a comprehensive continuing education/community service program. As the Panhandle's population becomes older, this component of the college will become increasingly important. Our college needs to offer its constituents greater opportunities for personal and professional growth ranging from recreational classes like aerobics to short courses that enable professionals to remain contemporary in a field. A degree should not be a license for the individual to stop learning nor for the college to stop teaching.

Contributing to cultural awareness and enrichment. Our college can be a catalyst in helping to expand area cultural opportunities. The arts can be a vehicle through which more and more individuals from the community at-large can become involved with the college, and our students will expand their horizons, too.

Continuing to develop off-campus programs. It's no secret that Pampa and Childress, as the most populous areas in Clarendon College's district, represent our greatest growth opportunities. What becomes good for these areas can also be good for Clarendon. Currently, the main campus is carrying the load in our district. As growth occurs in Pampa and Childress, the benefits will be realized system-wide.

Revising our policies to insure that appropriate accountability measures are in place. I believe working at a community college is a public trust. The money we spend is your money. It's my charge to allocate and invest the college's resources in the most cost-effective manner possible. On this front, change may come hard-on-of-all. Conducting meaningful evaluations of our operations and documenting how we spend and protect your investment is a time-consuming, paper trail process that will undoubtedly produce frustration in those who have not been so oriented. Nevertheless, it must be done.

Doing more with less. Clarendon College, fiscally speaking, possesses fewer resources than any other higher education institution in the state. Moreover, the State of Texas has recently cut our funding by $56,000 over the next biennium. The onus is on the college to develop vibrant foundations and consortial partnerships with other agencies to pool resources and stretch dollars. Such partnerships, many of which will be supported by federal and state block grants, will address such issues as workforce development and distance learning. If we try to be at all aloof, our college and, ultimately our community, will surely suffer.

As we begin the process of change, I do not expect universal acceptance. In an intellectual environment, there should always be a free exchange of ideas. The absence of that is a good definition of stagnancy, and that's the last thing I want at Clarendon College.

Well, I could go on and on, but the length of this discourse would tax even the most ardent supporter of the college.

I don't have all the answers, and implementing a vision is harder than conceptualizing one. Suffice it to say, the vision I have attempted to articulate in this article is mine. That which is ultimately accomplished needs to be a product of the college community and the community at-large.

As your new college president, the only things I can promise are honesty, a genuine willingness to listen, and good intentions. You can depend on my best effort. God willing, that will be good enough.

By Wiley Beth Nelson

In choosing a biography to read, do you usually look for a name with whom you are familiar, perhaps a favorite hero or heroine? I often do. However, I also find it interesting to read one with which I am not acquainted as I did last week when I read the biography George Carroll Berryman from a Texas Collection shelf in the Texas Memorial Library.

This humorous, heartwarming biographical narrative of an early minister, George Carroll Berryman, was written by his daughter, Opal Leigh Berryman. One of her purposes in writing the book was to recognize her father and other preachers who contributed to the settlement of the West at the same time much of the emphasis was put on gun slingers, lawlessness, and notorious outlaws during the early part of this century. George Berryman conducted pastorates in West Texas, and readers will recognize the names, Big Spring, Amarillo, Lake Creek, La Mesa, Llano Estacado, Seminole, and Hobbs, New Mexico.

The story begins on an October day when Preacher Berryman is moving his wife and daughter in buggy with team to their new home where he accepted a pastorate in Coke County. The book is flavored with western humor in their travels as well as in events during his preaching assignments. The author adored her father. His sense of humor and positive attitude probably encouraged her willingness to assist him with any task he allowed. Even though gathering cow chips for fuel was not her favorite "chore," she told him she really did not mind. His reply? "We both mind. Where wood is so scarce, we are fortunate in having at hand the means of cooking and staying warm. But we don't have to pretend we enjoy taking up after a herd of cattle." This is just a sample of his colorful comments. He possessed a warm, fearless, friendly personality and never turned anyone away. He was instrumental in eliminating saloons, cattle rustling, and Ka Klux Klan agitation against one of La Mesa's leading citizens. And he was greatly concerned with personal successes and tragedies of those with whom he came in contact.

Just after settlement in their new home, an embarrassment for Mrs. Berryman occurred when the light behind the red curtains that she had hung in the front window brought unexpected visitors. They were so shocked to find the minister's wife as she was equally shocked to learn their errand.

The interaction between characters easily and colorfully portrays attitudes and happenings during this period of time. Intertwined with this is a murder mystery, cattle rustling, and light romance in the life of a young girl who was unexpectedly brought by her father to stay with the Berrymans in order that they might make a "lady" of her. The results are clever and surprising. Readers will chuckle at amusing events as well as become suspensefully involved in a dramatic climax in the life of this frontier preacher.

Who is John Holland Jenkins? He enlisted in the Texas Army at the age of 13 and was with recruits at Gonzalez when word of the Alamo massacre was received. His step-father was one of the 187 men fighting in the last siege at the Alamo. Leaving thirteen-year-old John as man of the family, John was detailed to escort his mother and other children to safety where he protected them in Bastrop County. With encouragement from friends and family, he wrote his reminiscences which were published in the Bastrop Advertiser from 1884-1889. Jenkins' great-great grandson, John Holland Jenkins III, edited these memoirs into a book entitled Recollection of Early Texas. The young author and editor began the memoir collection at age 14. After three years, the compilation was completed and published when Jenkins III was 17. Texas frontier authenticity is evident in these recollections of another courageous Texas. Why not include John Holland Jenkins and pioneer preacher, George Berryman, in your list of notable heroes whose efforts played a significant part in the development of our great state?

My next article will review a biography of a Texas woman who can be described as nothing short of amazing. I hope you'll look forward to it. In the meantime, why not check it out?

Applications are available at senior citizen centers across the Panhandle or by contacting the Area Agency on Aging at 372-3381 or (800) 642-6008. To apply, a person must be 65 years of age or older and demonstrate a strong economic need. Deadline for submission of applications is October 20, 1995.

Fifteen applicants from the Panhandle area will be selected to receive complimentary round-trip tickets based on their need for economic assistance and their reason for travel.

Health Fair Scheduled During Cotton Festival

The Hall County Hospital will sponsor a health fair on Saturday, October 14, 1995 from 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon. The booth will be located in the Community Bank in Hedley.

Participants will be provided with a blood pressure reading and coronary risk profile for the low cost of $15.00 per person.

Included in the profile are cholesterol level, triglyceride level, and HCL and LDS cholesterol levels. These tests will be processed on the newly acquired Beckman Chemistry Analyzer at Hall County Hospital.

Withholding food for 10-12 hours prior to testing will improve the validity of the results, but is not mandatory. Results of the tests will be mailed to participants a week later. An age limit of 18 years and above will be observed.

Everyone is encouraged to stop in at the health fair.

Girl Scout Happenings

Clarendon Girl Scouts is growing and has gotten off to a wonderful start this year. With all the troops combined, they have registered 31 new girls and are very glad to have them.

If you would like to register your daughter and have not done so yet, the opportunity is always there. Just call Cheri Lawler at 874-3245.

They also have two new leaders this year. Cindy Hewett who will lead the Kindergarten Daisy troop, and Medina Gribble who will lead the third grade Brownies. They are both a definite asset to their Clarendon Service Unit team, which also includes: Service Unit Director and fourth grade junior leader, Cherie Lawler; Senior - seventh grade leader, Denise Bertrand; fifth and sixth grade junior leader, Becky McAnear; second grade brownie leader, Deanna Cornell; and first grade brownie leader, Terry Askew, along with several assistant leaders and helpful parents.

The Clarendon Service Unit has a regular meeting on the fourth Monday of every month in the library at 7:00 p.m. They would like to invite any parent interested in becoming active in their daughter's troop activities to join them at their next meeting.

At their last meeting, which was held on September 25, leaders planned a song and game workshop for the month of October, a Christmas craft and games morning for November, and instead of having a Christmas party this year, they came up with several ideas for community service projects during the Christmas season. They have also planned for all the girls to make some new ornaments to put on the Christmas tree for this year's lighting on the courthouse lawn. This will add to the ornaments that some of the girls have already made.

If anyone has any exterior house paint they no longer need, or old panelling/plywood, etc., they could use it. Just contact Becky McAnear at 3473 or Cherie Lawler, and they will come pick it up.

Girl Scouts could not be possible without community support. The Presbyterian Church, The First United Methodist Church, The First Baptist Church, The Episcopal Church, The Medical Center, and Dude Cornell have graciously given them access to their buildings to hold their troop meetings.

They are looking forward to a fulfilled, exciting year with all the girls and will let you know of other upcoming events.

The Lions Tale

By Gene Alderson

The Clarendon Lions Club held its regular meeting at noon on Tuesday, October 3, 1995 at the Lions Hall.

Plans were made to raffle off a shot gun. Tickets for the Dangerous Don Show were distributed to the members. Lion Estlack reminded the club of its 73rd anniversary, which will be coming up this month. Plans were started for a Ladies Night Banquet to be held on October 24 to observe the anniversary. The meeting adjourned.

Insurance Requirements For Farmers Must Be Met

Donley County CFSA office wants to remind farmers and landlords that crop insurance requirements must be met to maintain eligibility for the 1996 farm program.

Whether you are a tenant or a landlord sharing in the crop, the sales closing date and the insurance cancellation date for 1996 wheat is September 30, 1995. This is also the final date to change to another insurance company, change from catastrophic to buy up, or change from buy up to catastrophic insurance.

The administrative fee of $50 will be required by your certification date for the applicable crop.

If you have questions regarding wheat insurance for 1996, please contact the Donley County CFSA office as soon as possible.

Rep. Thornberry Completes 39th Town Meeting

WASHINGTON, D.C. - U.S. Rep. Mac Thornberry (TX-13) reported today that he is fast approaching one of the most important pledges he made to himself when he was elected to Congress last year - to hold a town meeting in every county in the 13th District in 1995.

"One of the promises I made to myself when I came to Washington earlier this year was to stay in touch with the people who sent me here," Thornberry said. "One of the best ways I know of to do this is by holding regular town meetings throughout the District as often as I can get home."

Thornberry has held a total of 39 town meetings in his first 36 weeks in office.

"I drove all around the District last year and burned up a car in the process," Thornberry said, referring to his campaign for Congress and the Jeep which caught fire during one visit to Vernon. "And if there's one thing I found, it's that the best way to know what folks are talking about is to listen to them. In fact, I think that listening may be the most important part of this job."

Thornberry reported that the town meetings he has held so far this year have been attended by an average of 25 people. This average varies, he noted, depending on various factors, not the least of which is how many people actually know about the meeting.

"We do our best to notify people that a meeting will be held in their area. We send out town meeting cards to everyone in the county and try to make sure the local papers are aware that I'll be in town. Sometimes we're more successful than other times in getting folks to come out. Other times, people just have prior commitments that are more important."

This past weekend in Claude, Thornberry noted, the town meeting focused on the congressional plan to save Medicare from bankruptcy. It was held at 9:00 am Saturday morning and attended by nearly 30 people. "It was a pretty good crowd for Saturday morning, which just goes to show you that people will come out to discuss the issues that matter to them most."

"Saving Medicare from bankruptcy is one of those issues, and the folks I listened to that morning in Claude and later in Wellington had a lot on their minds."

WTU Allowed To Lower Rates For October Bills

Administrative Law Judges (ALJs) have issued an interim order allowing West Texas Utilities Co. to implement new, lower electric rates for its customers.

The issuing of the interim order comes after WTU and parties to the rate review agreed to the settlement to resolve all outstanding WTU regulatory issues.

Starting with October electric bills, a WTU residential customer taking basic service will see an approximate 7% decrease on a monthly electric bill, compared to the permanent rates in effect prior to Oct. 1, 1994, when the interim 3.25% base rate reduction was implemented. This 7% decrease is based on an average usage of 1,000 kwh.

As part of the interim order issued by the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUCT) ALJs, WTU customers will also share in a one-time $21 million refund, which will amount to approximately a $50 credit on a monthly bill for residential customers taking basic service and using 1,000 kwh of energy. The refund will be spread over two months and reflected in October and November bills.

"We are pleased that the ALJs agreed, after their review of the settlement, to allow the company to place the new electric rates in effect on an interim basis until the Commission can issue a final order," said Glenn Files, WTU chief executive officer and president.

"WTU entered the rate case with residential electric rates that ranked on average the fourth lowest of any investor-owned utility in Texas; and because of the settlement, our customers will enjoy rates that are even more competitive than before," Files added.

Prior to the rate case, WTU's commercial and industrial prices averaged 10% to 20% lower than the regional average.

"With even lower rates being implemented for commercial and industrial customers resulting from this settlement, we believe our communities will be in a better

"Kissing Disease" Hits C.H.S

Clarendon High School would like to inform parents of a mildly contagious disease, mononucleosis, that is being passed between high school students. Due to this, they have shut off the water fountains at high school and have encouraged students to bring their own water to school.

This is by no means an epidemic, but they do want to stop the chain.

The following information was provided by Vicky Robertson: Mononucleosis is a mildly contagious disease of older children and young adults. It is also known as kissing disease or glandular fever. Symptoms include fever and chills, sore throat, enlarged lymph nodes (particularly in the neck), loss of appetite, headache, diarrhea, fatigue, puffiness around the eyes, and general weakness. Acute symptoms usually disappear within 7-10 days and persistent fatigue wane 2-4 weeks. The actual period of communicability, when you are contagious, is unknown. Most likely when you have fever. Treatment usually includes additional rest and sleep, regulation of activities to tolerance, acetaminophen for fever, and other medications as prescribed by a physician.

There are several ways to prevent the spreading or contracting the disease. They include avoid eating or drinking after others, avoid intimate contact (kissing), use good handwashing, cover mouth when coughing or sneezing, avoid use of "community" water bottles, and do not put lips or mouth on water faucets or spigots.

Eighth Grade Visits ATC

By Noel Devin

On September 26, 1995, the Clarendon Eighth Grade Class went to Amarillo Technical Center.

The group spent several hours touring the facilities. They attended several demonstrations, including computer programming, interior design, as well as commercial art and animation.

According to most of the students, they enjoyed the commercial arts and animation the most because they could see what went on during the production of the design and the result of the work. After lunching in the cafeteria, the students went to the American Quarter Horse Museum.

At the museum they viewed a video on the history of the Quarter Horse. The group returned to

Stop For School Buses

Clarendon school officials would like to remind drivers that passing a school bus while it is loading or unloading students, whether at home, school, or at a designated bus stop, is against the law.

According to the law, overtaking and passing a school bus may result in a fine of not less than $200 and up to $1,000 on the first occurrence. On conviction of a second or subsequent offense, the court may order the person's driver's license be suspended for a period of up to six months.

Section 104. Overtaking and passing school bus. (a) The driver of a vehicle upon a highway inside or outside of a business or residential district upon meeting or overtaking from either direction any school bus which has stopped on the highway for the purpose of receiving or discharging any school children shall stop the vehicle before reaching such school bus when there is in operation on said school bus a visual signal as specified in Section 124 of this Act, and said driver shall not proceed until such school bus resumes motion or is signaled by the school bus driver to proceed or the visual signals are no longer actuated.

(b) The driver of a vehicle upon a highway with separate roadways need not stop upon meeting or passing a school bus which is on a different roadway or when upon a controlled-access highway and the school bus is stopped in a loading zone which is a part of or adjacent to such highway and where pedestrians are not permitted to cross the roadway.

(c) An offense under this section is punishable by a fine of not less than $200 and not more than $1,000.

(d) On conviction of a person of a second or subsequent offense under this section, the court may order that the person's driver's license be suspended for a period of up to six months beginning on the date of conviction. In this subsection, "driver's license" has the meaning assigned by Section 1, Chapter 173, Acts of the 47th Legislature, Regular Session, 1941 (Article 6687b, Vernon's Texas Civil Statutes).

(e) If a person fails to pay a previously assessed fine or costs on a conviction under this section, or is determined by the court to have insufficient resources or income to pay a fine or costs on a conviction under this section, the court may order the person to perform community service. The court shall set the number of hours of service under this subsection.

Everyone's cooperation in not passing a school bus while it is loading and/or unloading students will be appreciated.

Bronco JV To Test Highland Park

The Clarendon High School Junior Varsity Broncos will take to the road for the second time this season when they play at Highland Park Thursday night. Kick off will be at approximately 7:30, following the seventh and eighth grade games.

The Broncos are coming off one of their better performances of the season in a lightning-shortened contest against Wellington last week. The Broncos were tied with Wellington, 0-0, at the first quarter's end, and the game was called midway through the second quarter when torrid rain and lightning hit Bronco Stadium.

Against Highland Park, the Broncos will hope for the return of two of their top players to the lineup. Tailback Oren Shields, who has been the teams foremost offensive threat, and defensive standout Ronnie Tabor both missed the Wellington game due to illness.

Clarendon had run only four plays from scrimmage at the time the Wellington game due to illness.

Clarendon had run only four plays from scrimmage at the time the Wellington game was called; however, the Broncos had made some stellar defensive stops. Free safety Scotty Elliott had three solo tackles and an assist in little over a quarter, and Jeremy Shelley had recorded a tackle and two assists. Keith Kidd had two tackles.

The Bronco Junior Varsity will take an 0-3 record to Highland Park. Even if Shields and Tabor are back in the lineup, Clarendon will not be at full strength. Starting center D.J. Edwards is out with a knee injury and will likely be replaced by Trent Mooring.

DON TAYLOR

"We hear," I summarized, "but we don't listen." About this time my bride looked up from her book and said, "I'm sorry dear, what were you saying?"

Three keys to better listening

Many top executives credit their success to building good communication skills. Since listening is a principal element in communication, we can be more successful if we become better listeners.

At this point, we need to make certain that we understand the difference between hearing and listening. Hearing is physical; listening is mental. Assuming we have no physical impairments, we hear 100 percent of the time. Unfortunately, we may listen only a small percentage of the time.

I believe there are three key elements involved in improving your listening skills. The first key is to concentrate on what others are saying. We must focus on the message to ensure that we not only hear but also understand.

It is not possible for most of us to concentrate on two things at once. To listen effectively, stop talking, stop writing and stop reading. Devote your full attention to the speaker. Make eye contact and send signals to let the speaker know you're listening.

Barbara Walters is one of the highest-paid interviewers on national television. She once described her interviewing technique as asking a question, shutting her mouth and listening with her whole face. She concentrates all of her attention on the other person's answer.

The second key to effective listening is to listen selectively. Everyday, hundreds of messages bombard our senses. Some of this information is not useful to us. Learn to tune out some of the messages and, on occasion, some of the messengers.

I once worked in an office where one of the employees obviously didn't have enough to do. This person carried on trivial conversations with anyone who would listen. Since I could not afford to waste that much time, I had to listen selectively. Sometimes, I didn't listen at all.

I'm not implying that we shouldn't be sociable. Just recognize socializing as socializing, and don't confuse it with work.

The third key to improving our skills is to listen objectively. Everyone with whom we communicate has a bias or reason to influence us. Therefore, we need to consider the speakers' reasons for expressing their viewpoints.

We should weigh our conversations mentally to determine the speakers' points of reference. What is in it for them? What axe do they have to grind?

For example, let's assume I am considering a new car purchase. If I ask a salesperson, her or she might respond with an emphatic, "Yes, buy now." It would be to his or her benefit to sell me a new car. However, my auto mechanic might say, "No." He would prefer that I keep my old car that may need frequent repair. By understanding the perspective, I can objectively evaluate each response. This will help me make a better decision.

We can develop better listening skills. By concentrating on the speaker, and by listening selectively and objectively, we'll be on our way.

The Value of Listening

A few weeks ago, Sue and I were enjoying a quiet evening at home. I had been thinking about our marriage of 25 years. It seemed to me that most of our petty arguments and minor skirmishes were the result of one of us not listening to the other.

Dr. Dobson Answers Your Questions

Q. My husband is an attractive man, and he's the president of his own company at a young age. I know that women are out to get him, especially some divorced secretaries who constantly flirt with him. I'm raising our kids here at home, and I have to admit that I worry about holding onto Dwight. I believe he's been faithful to me, but I wonder if he will always turn down the opportunities around him. I mean, he comes home and tells me what these women say, and I can't believe it! How can I hang onto my husband?

A. Twenty years ago, your question would have seemed unnecessarily anxious and even a bit silly. But it makes plenty of sense today—the world has changed that much. There has always been hanky-panky going on, but never has it been so blatant.

More to the point of your concern, it is no longer taboo for an available woman to consciously hire a married man—even one with several children at home. He's fair game to anyone who can entice him away from his family. Men are just as audacious in their pursuit of women, whether those women are married or not. Thus, the concern expressed in your question has basis in reality.

Nevertheless, the solution is not to "hang onto Dwight. You must not build a cage around him in an attempt to reduce your anxieties. That would only add unnecessary stresses to your relationship. Dwight must stay with you of his own free will—the same reason for which he married you in the first place. Love must be free, even in a world of sexual intrigue and disloyalty.

Perhaps it would be helpful for me to offer a couple of perspectives. First, Dwight is primarily responsible for the insecurity you feel, one way or the other. He could allay your fears if he wished. It's a fairly simple task for a man to let his wife know he is committed to her for life.

Instead, Dwight is regularly telling you about the sexy women who hang onto him and beg for his favours. That's the source of your butterflies. Indeed, most instances of "competition anxiety" among homemakers can be attributed to husbands like Dwight who subtly create insecurities in their wives.

Why would a man do such a thing? Well, the male ego enjoys being desired by women—lots of women. That's why a married man will flirt with female employees even when he has no intention of being unfaithful. Furthermore, he will tell his wife about these admirers in order to gain "power" in their relationship. Whether consciously or not, he is saying by these disclosures, You'd better treat me right, because there are plenty of other women out there just waiting to get their hands on me.

At some point in your conversation with Dwight, these dynamics should be discussed. I'm not suggesting that you hammer him with accusations or complaints, but an opportunity may come to verbalize your feelings and put the matter of competition in proper perspective.

Before that conversation ensues, however, I think you should look at a related issue. The way you stated your question implies that your own self-esteem is not too high. Why do I get the feeling that you see yourself as a lowly homemaker in a world of women lawyers and athletes and congresswomen? Is it possible that you feel fortunate to have "captured" your good-looking, successful man and wonder how long the illusion will last?

If these are secret weaknesses in your self-concept, they will be reflected in your relationship with your husband. He will sense your fearfulness—and your unhealthy dependence on him. You must believe that you bring as much to the family as your husband does, and not only are you fortunate to be married to Dwight, but he's a pretty lucky guy, too.

These questions and answers are excerpted from the book, "Dr. Dobson Answers Your Questions." Thank you to the Hedley School staff, children and their parents who helped with the search for five year old "Dollie."

A very special thank you to Mrs. Potts, who found and took care of Dollie for me.

To Mr. Hill for walking the school grounds in the rain and mud looking.

To Mrs. Dodd for giving a new doll to me to help ease the loss of Dollie and letting me keep her even when Dollie came home. (I promise to keep both at home.)

Thank you all very much for helping get Dollie home.

Danielle and Dollie
