Federal Land Bank declares patronage refunds

Farmers and ranchers who borrow from the Federal Land Bank of Texas received $3.7 million in patronage refunds recently. The refund will help them make their next interest payment.

According to Talmadge Porter, president of the Federal Land Bank Association of Childress, this marks the first time in its 68-year history that the Federal Land Bank of Texas has declared a patronage refund.

Porter said the refund was possible because the bank more than met its goal for funds applied to a mandatory legal reserve account.

The amount of each borrower's refund was based on the amount of interest paid on his loan during 1984. The refund, in most cases, will be applied to the borrower's next loan payment.

"When farmers and ranchers are struggling, the Farm Credit System must keep the confidence of its investors through a consistent and acceptable earnings level," Porter stated. "In this way, investors will continue to buy our bonds so that we can continue to finance agriculture, even when times are tough. "The patronage refund is another way we can help agriculture in these severe economic times," Porter said. The Federal Land Bank makes loan to supply the long-term credit needs of agriculture. As of December 31, 1984, the bank had $2.7 billion in loans outstanding to some 30,000 farmers and ranchers throughout the state of Texas. The Land Bank is part of a nationwide Farm Credit System which has more than $72 billion in agriculture loans throughout the United States.

SPOTLIGHT On Teen's

By REV. TONY COLBURN

DATING

God's #1 goal for us is that we allow Him the freedom to control this area of our lives. Is God in control of your relationship in dating? If He is, how do you know He is in charge of your relationship? If God is not in control of your dating, how would it change things if He was?

As a teenager you need to realize that it is absolutely impossible to have a truly successful dating relationship without Jesus Christ in complete control. Conflict will result when a person pursues a relationship with a guy or girl more than what he or she does to have a relationship with Jesus Christ. Matt. 6:33 says, "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."

You also must realize that your date can't meet the needs in your life that only Jesus Christ can meet. Don't depend upon your boyfriend or girlfriend to do for you what only Jesus Christ can do for you. Psalm 73:25,26 says, "Whom have I in heaven, but Thee? And there is none upon the earth that I desire but thee. My flesh and my heart fail, but God is the strength of my heart, and my portion forever."

The date-life of a teenager is very important. It can be a great blessing or it could even be a terrible burden to you. You as a teenager should ask yourself this question: "Would I be willing to allow Christ to take control of my entire date-life?" Christ promises that He will control this area of your life if you allow Him to.

Congressman Beau Boulter Reports from Washington

BUDGET COMPROMISE: TOUGH JOB/GREAT OPPORTUNITY

The past week has been a hectic one in the House of Representatives. And for me, as a member of the House Budget Committee, it has been a disappointment.

The House voted on seven different budgets. Only one passed. The budget that passed came from the Budget Committee, where it was agreed to on a largely party-line vote. It's not, in my opinion, the kind of budget that the American people and the voters in the 13th District of Texas asked for.

Unlike the budget passed by the Senate, it cuts drastically into defense, avoids dealing with special interests, and protects all domestic programs, except one.

But there is some good news. I was chosen, by the Ranking Minority Member on the House Budget Committee, to be one of seven Minority members on the House-Senate Budget Conference. This is the group who will hammer out the differences between the budgets passed by the House and Senate. We'll have to come up with a compromise. Needless to say, I was deeply honored to be chosen for this task, and realize the responsibility it entails.

As a conferee, I will have direct input into the final budget for our federal government. This is a tremendous opportunity to represent the views of the people in the 13th District on the budget and I'm going to work to get what the people want — less federal spending.

The differences to be worked out between the two budgets are, in some instances, drastic. Instead of making real structural reforms in the federal budget, the budget passed by the House extracts 50% of its savings from defense. By freezing defense spending without any provision for inflation, we will have to cut into badly needed weapons systems, which are currently in the research phase.

I have said before that we need to reform the defense department's spending policies and procedures, but we cannot accept this freeze proposal — it is irresponsible and will not allow for adequate protection of the American public.

Unlike the budget passed in the Senate, the House budget fails to make the kind of hard-line decisions that will result in substantial deficit reduction. The Senate responsibly voted to terminate or phase out thirteen federal programs — many of which should never have been part of the federal government in the first place. The House, on the other hand, only terminated one program. As I said, the House budget derives 50% of its savings directly from defense.

Also, much of the spending cuts in the House committee budget are fictional cuts which have not been confirmed by the Office of Management and Budget, nor the Congressional Budget Office. Congressman Buddy Roemer, a Democrat from Louisiana who joined me in forming our Grace Caucus to cut government waste, refers to the House budget as full of "funny money."

We will begin working on the Budget Compromise during the first week of June. There is, at this point, no way of knowing how long it will take to work out a budget that can be agreed upon by both sides. One thing I do know, however, is that I will use this opportunity to work for the best possible deficit-reducing budget.

IT'S A FACT!

Jobs in public relations seem to be at an all time high. At the top 50 PR firms in America, the number of employees has risen 13.5% in one year!

More than 1,500 public relations companies are indexed geographically in "O'Dwyer's Directory of Public Relations Firms." This directory can be helpful to those seeking jobs in public relations.

Not all libraries have the directory so it pays to call and ask whether the book is in stock or on order.

WATT'S HAPPENING IN HEDLEY

BY Peggy Watt

I don't know much of Watt's Happening in Hedley. Just as I started to town to find out, my mother was taken to Collingsworth General Hospital suffering from a heart attack. I've been with her. Her doctor told her Monday that he might think about letting her walk some about Thursday. William and Margie Mullins came Monday. I missed them on the road. T. and Nancy have been back and forth.

Fred, Guy, Su-San, and I went to Amarillo Thursday. We visited Mabel Bridges in High Plains Baptist Hospital where she'd had eye surgery. She didn't know we were there. We talked to her daughter, Mary Jeffery and daughter-in-law, Jo Bridges. They expected to take her home Friday. Bill was home sick. Pick and Laqueta Cox left Friday for a vacation in Tennessee. They plan on attending the Grand Ole Opry.

The Johnson family had their reunion Sunday in Memphis City Park. I don't know how many were there, but saw Clyde and Lucille Johnson Sunday. They've been here for several days.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

ALCOHOL LEGISLATION SUCCESSFUL

AUSTIN - Two years ago, we launched a campaign to get drunk drivers off Texas' streets and highways. We also made a commitment to making the state more responsible to the needs of its alcoholic citizens.

We're proud to say our campaign largely has been successful. Since 1983, we've toughened Texas' laws against drunk driving, raised the legal drinking age to 21 and given individual counties an easy way to fund alcohol rehabilitation programs.

This regular session has been a particularly successful one. Just this week we saw our Senate Bill 21 passed by the House and sent to the governor for his signature.

According to the terms of S.B. 21, the drinking age will be raised to 21 on Sept. 1, 1986 in order to comply with federal legislation that requires states to raise their drinking ages by October 1986 or lose federal highway funds.

The federal threat will expire in 1988, and the bill requires the Legislature in 1989 to vote to keep the drinking age at 21 or it will lapse back to 19. We're confident the dramatic increase in lives saved will convince our fellow lawmakers to keep the drinking age at 21. Last week, we also saw two other critical bills pass the House. This week, we concurred with the House amendments to those bills, and they now are awaiting the governor's signature.

Senate Bill 620 probably is the most far-reaching of these measures. It allows counties to dedicate all or part of their fines from alcohol-related offenses to pay for alcohol-rehabilitation.

S.B. 620 is strictly permissive. Counties are not forced to do anything; the state merely is giving them permission. The measure already has been praised by the American Bar Association as the first of its kind in the nation.

Less of an attention-grabber but just as important was the passage of Senate Bill 111, which puts the finishing touches on the drunk-driving bill passed in 1983. S.B. 111 makes it easier for law enforcement agencies to determine whether alcohol was a factor in a traffic accident by giving morticians permission to take blood samples after a crash is suspected of being alcohol-related.

The only blight on an otherwise successful session was the failure of a House subcommittee to approve Senate Bill 135, the so-called open-container bill. S.B. 135 would have made it illegal for a person to possess an open container of alcohol or consume alcohol while driving on Texas roads. The penalty would have been a Class C misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of up to $200.

The measure passed the Senate State Affairs Committee by a 12-1 vote and the full Senate by a 22-4 vote. At least 84 of the 150 House members were committed to supporting the bill. A recent University of Houston poll indicated 82 percent of all Texans backed the measure.

Yet one man, Rep. Kenneth Armbrister, was able to kill the bill. Armbrister, D-Victoria, was chairman of the subcommittee studying the bill and an avowed opponent of the open-container concept.

Armbrister alone said no to the Senate, no to the House and no to a majority of the state's people. He snubbed the testimony of Department of Public Safety Director Col. James Adams, who said putting an open-container bill on the books would eliminate 80 percent of the drinking while driving in Texas.

The San Antonio Express, reflecting on Armbrister's stand, said, "By thwarting the will of the people, who want to get drunks off the road, self-serving politicians... are in effect sentencing many Texans to die at the hands of drunken drivers."

We couldn't agree more. If you have any questions about our alcohol legislation, or any other issues, please write us at P.O. Box 12068, Austin, TX. 78711.

Doomsday Clock
put at 11:57 PM

In a gesture of despair and with a prediction that worse is yet to come in 1984, the editors of the Bulletin of The Atomic Scientists advanced the minute hand of their famous "DOOMS-DAY CLOCK" on Thursday, December 22, 1983, as a symbol of mankind's march toward the nuclear holocaust. The "Doomsday Clock" was created when the magazine was started in 1947 by scientists who had worked on the Manhattan Project, which developed the atomic bomb. The minute hand has been moved 10 times since it was first set.

It is interesting to know that a committee of 47 sponsors, including 18 Nobel prize winners, consulted together to determine the time setting. It was not the mutterings of "doom and gloom" prophets, or the musings of "right-wing" fundamentalists, or the "ranting and raving" of eschatological theologians (much of such media labelling is both untrue and unfair), but the conclusions of "Nobel" prize winners and "scientists." The whole world senses something awesome and foreboding is about to happen. It may well be a fearsome explosion in the Middle East, or a nuclear first strike by a superpower, or an attack by "Gog," the ruthless Russian Bear as predicted by the prophet Ezekial. Whatever the foreboding occurrence, the believer is unafraid because he is "looking for that Blessed Hope and glorious appearing of the great God and Savior, Jesus Christ."

THEN NOW!

Here's some history that should be easy to swallow: it's the story of a soft drink. It all began in 1886 with an Atlanta, Georgia, pharmacist, Dr. John S. Pemberton. Legend has it Dr. Pemberton cooked up the first syrup for Coca-Cola in a three-legged brass pot in the backyard of his home. History records that the first glass of the new soda fountain drink went on sale in downtown Atlanta on May 8, 1886.

During the first year, sales averaged only 13 drinks per day and revenues amounted to just $35—not a very auspicious beginning. The drink was first bottled in 1889. It was not until 1899, however, that the company instituted the concept of locally owned and operated bottling franchises. With that it began to enjoy tremendous wide-spread distribution and acceptance. A Foreign Sales department was established in 1926.

Over the years, the company has been the leader in innovations for the soft drink industry. In the early 1920's, the company developed the first six-bottle carton.

In 1929, the carton was joined by another revolutionary merchandiser—the metal-top open cooler to serve it ice cold in retail outlets. It later was improved with mechanical refrigeration and automatic coin control.

The Chicago World's Fair of 1933 saw the introduction of automatic fountain dispensers where syrup and carbonated water were mixed at the same time the drink was served. Visitors to the fair were amazed to see the attendants serve a uniform, properly refrigerated drink every time simply by pulling a handle.

World War II brought the now-legendary order from the head of the company in 1941 "to see that every man in uniform gets a bottle of Coca-Cola for five cents wherever he is and whatever it cost the company." By and large, they did it, too.

Now, the company will begin its 100th year with a new taste, the first change in the secret formula since 1886. "Consumers in blind taste tests all across the continent have told us they prefer the new taste...to the original by an overwhelming majority," said Roberto C. Goizueta, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the company.

"In the process of perfecting diet Coke," he explained, "our researchers first discovered a flavor complex, refined over time into a new cola flavor, which we quickly realized was highly preferred over Coca-Cola itself, and...over its primary competitor."

The result, it seems, will be history.

Mary Pickersgill — A Lady To Remember On Flag Day, June 14

The huge flag of stars and stripes which inspired Francis Scott Key to write our national anthem at Ft. MCHENRY in 1814 was made by a little-known Baltimore widow, Mary Pickersgill. She was 36 years of age at the time the Star-Spangled Banner was completed. Living in a small house, now known as the Star-Spangled Banner Flag House, Mary made the flag for the sum of $405.90.

The original flag, which measured 30 by 42 feet, is now on display in the Smithsonian's Museum of American History. Made from 400 yards of wool bunting and the largest American flag of its time, this national symbol had 15 five-pointed stars and 15 instead of 13 stripes, each almost two feet wide. The flag was so big it was sewn on the malt floor of Claggett's Brewery.

On Friday, June 14, National Flag Day, all Americans will have another opportunity to pay tribute to the symbol of our anthem and the patriotic woman who was its creator.

Excessive foot shock: the unhealthy part of running

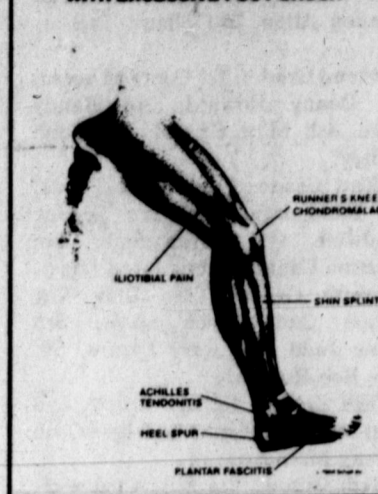

More than 75 percent of the more than 37 million Americans who regularly run or jog will suffer a sports-related injury, and millions of other athletes will suffer a similar fate. In many cases, the injury will be caused by excessive foot shock, says a prominent foot specialist.

Dr. Charles J. Gudas, Clinical Professor of Surgery in the Orthopedic section of Surgery, University of Chicago, reports that jumping and running on hard surfaces puts enormous pressure on the feet and knees — as much as two to five times total body weight. This abnormal pressure, or excessive foot shock, when sustained over a prolonged period of time, can contribute to a number of injuries to the feet, legs and lower back.

"Although the human foot is a very effective natural shock absorber, excessive shock, especially when it causes the foot to strike the surface at an unnatural angle, can cause a number of injuries," says Dr. Gudas. "After long periods of stress, the feet become less able to counteract the pressures of gravity, and these abnormal pressures transmit the force upward toward the legs, knees, back and spine — parts of the body quite susceptible to excessive stress."

According to Dr. Gudas, who also is a member of the Dr. Scholl's Foot Health Council, the biomechanics of running appreciably increase the pressure exerted on the body. "When we run," notes Dr. Gudas, "the heel is the first part of the foot that strikes the ground. And although the body has a natural built-in shock absorbing mechanism centered around the joint motion of the heel bone, the combination of gravitational pressure and pounding on hard surfaces can produce irritation or pain."

FOOT AND LEG INJURIES ASSOCIATED WITH EXCESSIVE FOOT SHOCK

Recently, those in medicine and sports have begun to realize the effects of excessive foot shock. The result is a number of new products designed to neutralize these effects. One of the most promising is a super shock-absorbing shoe insert called Eliminator by Dr. Scholl's Pro Comfort, that effectively complements the mechanical alignment of the foot and redirects the impact force of running away from the body.

"We're starting to realize that shock-related injuries such as achilles tendonitis, plantar fasciitis and heel spurs, once considered an expected hazard of running, can be minimized. The popularity of running has helped spawn a number of products designed specifically to deal with foot shock, and we can anticipate that as these products are improved and perfected, the number of sport-related injuries in this country can begin to decrease. It's time we put the healthy aspects of running back into the sport," concludes Gudas. †

DRUG ALLERGIES

The chances of having an allergic reaction to a drug are less than 3 in a 100 for most drugs, and no chance at all for some of the drugs. In order for the reaction correctly to be called allergic, a compound called a hapten must be formed. There are several different types of allergies involving drugs. Some of the more common include:

1. FIXED ERUPTIONS - Some oral drugs such as the barbiturates and tetracyclines cause an eruption at fixed or specific sites on the body.

2. CONTACT DERMATITIS - Some topical drugs soothe the skin so that redness, blisters, and itching occur. The preservatives in some of these medicines actually cause the allergic response.

3. HIVES - Drugs which produce hives include penicillin, hydantoin-type seizure medicines, phenylbutazone, and some tranquilizers.

4. ANAPHYLAXIS - This is the most severe and potentially life-threatening type of drug allergy. In severe cases, the victim may experience asphyxiation. This reaction is rare.

Caring for gems, pearls and jewelry

The following are tips from the Jewelry Council on how to care for your jewelry.

Diamonds

Although the diamond is the hardest natural substance known to man, it can be chipped or even split in the direction of its natural cleavage planes (the grain of the mineral). It can also become loose in its setting and should be inspected by your jeweler at least once a year.

Grease has an extraordinary affinity for diamonds. At the mines, diamonds are sorted from other minerals in the disintegrated "blue ground" by washing them over greased tables to which diamonds alone adhere. Grease from soap and water or from the atmosphere quickly coats the facets on the back or "pavilion" of a diamond. If this pavilion becomes covered with film, grease or dust, much of the stone's brilliance is lost. This is true of all transparent gems.

Diamonds and other faceted gems should be cleaned every month or two by brushing them with a small soft brush dipped in a solution made of a teaspoonful of ammonia or a good detergent and a glassful of warm water. Then dip the diamond in alcohol and dry it with a soft tissue or prepared jeweler's sawdust.

Colored Stones

Turquoise is a lovely but delicate gem. It may lose its color (probably through evaporation of water content) or become discolored from perspiration, cosmetics, acids, perfumes or soap. If turquoise is subjected only to localized heat, such as that of a match flame, it will break into pieces. The only cleaning recommended for turquoise is gentle wiping with a charpois skin. Never should a turquoise ring or bracelet be worn while washing dishes or hands.

Pearls

Pearls may be wiped with a soft cloth to remove soil. Much of this soil, however, adheres to the thread and eventually works into the drilled hole, which is somewhat porous and susceptible to discoloration (though the outside skin is not).

If pearls are very soiled, it would be better to have your jeweler restring and clean them, since pearls should not be permitted to soak for long periods.

How Health Research Saves Taxpayer Dollars

By Vice Admiral Thor Hanson (ret.)
President of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society

Q: Do we spend too much money on health research?

A: Not at all. Studies have shown that health research has contributed substantially to the well-being of our nation's citizens and economy. Each dollar invested in research is estimated to have produced $13 in savings from benefits such as reduced incidence of illness and medical costs and increased life expectancy. Health research has also produced knowledge and discoveries which have led to economically significant commercial developments in a number of areas such as minicomputers and food preservation.

Government and private funding for multiple sclerosis (MS) rehabilitation services, for instance, makes good economic sense. Such services help people operate at more functional levels and help keep them off welfare, social security rolls and unemployment.

The business of life is to go forwards.
