Center Board and Administrator are in agreeance that as with all newly operating service units there are problems to be considered and worked out.

Many rumors are being circulated in regard to Medical Center. The Board feels that these problems will be worked out. It is impossible to do this over-night, and at this time the Board feels there is no need for public alarm.

To make positive statements when there are continued efforts being made to provide the best of service for the people of this area, would not be giving the public the facts.

It is expected that problems will be worked out in the near

Clarendon College Expects Increase In Enrollment This Fall

Present indications, based on inquiries and pre-planning, are that enrollment at Clarendon College for the fall term will be above last year's figure. The College has continued to grow from an enrollment of 228 students in 1965.

The addition of a new Physical Plant, new and revised plans of study, and the addition of study areas for students has contributed to the increase. This fall, Clarendon College will offer, for the first time, a complete twoyear Registered Nurses program, a complete Flying School with Instrument training and a concentrated course in Business with certification of completion

Larry Longan United waist, full skirt, and long taper In Marriage Aug. 26

In a double ring ceremony performed the evening of Saturday, August 26, 1972 in the First Baptist Church, Clarendon, Texas, Miss Deanetta Rae Peoples of Clarendon became the bride of Larry Joe Longan, also of Clarendon. The Reverend W. R. Lawrence, pastor, officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Peoples of Clarendon. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Harley C. Longan of Clarendon.

Vows were evchanged at the altar marked by a twenty-one branch chapel candelabra flanked by baskets of white gladioli. The archway was fronted with Comador palms. Tapers were lighted by Miss Susie Peoples of orchid hat, and carried a nose-Albuquerque, cousin of the bride, and Gale Bowling of Lelia Lake.

Mrs. Jesse Adams, organist presented a nuptial prelude and accompanied Miss Katrina Messer who sang "Twelfth of Never" and "We've Only Just Begun."

Deanetta Peoples And length gown of Chantilly lace over bridal taffeta designed with a Sabrina neckline, natural ed sleeves. Ruffles of Chantilly lace in waterfall fashion accented the skirt and sequins outlined the neckline. Her veil of imported illusion bordered with matching Chantilly lace fell from a coif in a bow design and terminated in a sweeping chapel train. The bride's bouquet was a colonial cascade of pearlized gardenias and stephanotis. In keeping with traditions she wore a pearl necklace belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. B. R. Christesson, pearl earrings which were a gift from the groom, and borrowed a sixpence from Susan

Palmer. Her garter was blue. Miss LaRonda Peoples attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a formal dress of purple chiffon over satin, fashioned with an Empire Waist, and an gay of pink carnations and purple

Bicycling Accidents A Growing Concern

Bicycling? "Ride on," say more and more Texans who have switched to the two-wheeled vehicle for cheap, clean and healthy transportation.

It is a now solution to some of the State's social problems, but the bike-riding phenomenon is not without its own problems. The tremendous growth in the use of the bicycle has been accompanied by a similar increase in biking accidents and fatali-

The problem could become far worse. Bicycling is more than just a flourishing craze. It is clean recreation, good exercise, economic transportation and will At present levels of popularity, the injury and death toll from bicycling mishaps is high. Texas had 31 persons killed and 1,780 injured as a result of 1,-855 bicycle accidents in 1971. Early figures show that 1972 cycling accidents and fatalities are likely to be even higher.

Statistics show that in most bicycle accidents the cyclist violates a traffic law. This inattention or failure to yield the right of way accounts for the largest number of mishaps. In less than one-third of bike accidents, the motor vehicle driver Chili on Homemade Bun, Buttered | Brigham Young was the father | violates a traffic rule or regu-

Chlorine Bleach And New Finish Fabrics

Some homemakers wonder why the yellow stayed - in their white clothes, that is, after a through wash using chlorine

Often the reason is the bleach tself and the fabric finish of the

According to Roxanne Schnorr, clothing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, yellowing can be caused by using chlorine bleach on fabrics with some types of resin finishes.

"These particular finishes are used to give a wash-and-wear property to the fabic and are most often found on cottons and rayons," the Texas A&M University specialist explained. "Although there's less of this type finish being used, there are still some available on the market."

Miss Schnorr suggested the following procedure to restore fabric whiteness when yellowing is the result of using chlorine bleach:

Rinse the garment with clear water.

Soak the fabric for half an hour or more, as necessry, in a solution containing one teaspoon of sodium thiosulfate to one quart water. Use water as for the fabric. Sodium thisulfate is available at drugstores and as "hypo" at photographic supply stores, the specialist noted. Dye remover may also be used to restore the whiteness of some fabrics, she added. "To prevent yellowing with the use of chlorine bleach, read the hangtags and permanent care labels of permanent press and easy care fabrics. Follow the recommended bleaching and laundry instructions carefully," Miss Schnorr concluded.

Highlights and Sidelights FROM YOUR

State Capitol

By BILL BOYKIN Texas Press Association

Lt. Governor-elect Bill Hobby called for an era of "getting together and working together to solve Texas' problems" at his fund raising dinner in Austin. "We have been through some of the most turbulent campaigns that left some wounds," he stress-

"We need to see to it that driving. those wounds heal without leavsuming their roles as vital members of the federal-state partnership," Hobby added. "Our federal system cannot work unless the states and the local governments perform their functions responsibly and effectively."

Hobby told the audience of Democratic leaders that Texas has something to give the nation -simple virtues of courtesy and neighborliness.

He talked of the "new mood now running at tidal proportions pick up the smallest grand- and Becky stopped by Saturday could find hope and an example here in Texas.

> "Only history will record whether or not Texans invested the conscience, the commitment and and children of Hartley spent the and just society in our state," Hobby concluded.

LABOR DAY DEATHS PRE-DICTED - Col. Wilson E. Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, estimates have been missing the face and Lori, and Mrs. Roy Rober- that statewide traffic accidents over the 78-hour Labor Day Weekend will claim 48 lives.

The Labor Day holiday, as designated by the National Safety Council, extends from 6 p.m. Friday, September 1, to midnight Monday, September 4.

At the close of the Labor Day period last year, a DPS tabulation revealed 41 persons had died state. Late deaths pushed the toll to 43 persons killed in 36

Speir said the DPS and local law enforcement agencies will be taking all possible steps to reduce the holiday death toll. A special "Operation Motorcide" will be in progress over the Labor Day weekend and tabulations on rural and urban fatal accidents will be reported to the news media of Texas three times daily.

As is customary on major holidays, says Speir, all available highway patrolmen will be plac ed on duty throughout the state. They will make full use of radar and breath testing instruments in an effort to curtail the major cause of fatal accidents excessive speed and drunk

Joining law enforcement officers in the effort to reduce loss of lives during the holiday period will be about 500 Texas Na ate jeep patrols to assist motorists and to ride partners with

The guardsmen, all volunteers will concentrate their efforts in 107 Texas counties in far east central and South Texas.

Speaking of "Operation Motorcide". Colonel Speir said, "these educational and enforcement programs will have an impact, but a great deal of the responsibility throughout the state," and said for accident reduction rests in he believed the entire nation the hands of individual Texans.

> "I am appealing to all our citizens to join with us in saving lives by 'Driving Friendly' both during the holiday and throughout the remainder of the year," the DPS director said.

GOALS FOR TEXAS CITIES-More than 70 urban experts fron across the state met in Austin recently to draft goals which grams the Texas Municipal League will provide Texas cities in the Seventies.

Once there was this large train that had lots and lots of cars behind it and ended with a Little Caboose. This train traveled everywhere and had seen just about everything there was to see - from the tracks. Now you would think that all the cars on this train were happy, but the Little Caboose was always very sad. At first, of course, he thought it was delightful. But pretty soon it all became quite routine, and he realized that this wasn't really for him. He was tired of just following the big train everywhere, or to put it bluntly, being the tail-end of

He wanted more out of life. He was sure that when he was built, he was built for something more important than being the tail-end of a train. Well, one day the big train decided he didn't need the Little Caboose any longer; so the Little Caboose was put out to pasture in the train yard.

Now the Little Caboose was sure nothing would ever become of him, as no one could see him. But he had always had that little ray of hope in his mind that maybe just maybe his day would come along and he would be discovered and become someone important and maybe even with a special name.

Then one bright sunny day the Little Ca-(See CABOOSE Page 6)

THE GREAT-GREAT GOLF

by Will Howard

This was the seventh year in a row that Walt Knorpp II had been crowned club champion. Year after year he had shot down the strongest competition the region could

And were it not for Mr. Knorpp's affinity for boa constrictor snakes, training the same for house pets, it is likely that Walt would have long ago been traveling the pro circuit. For although Walt's lovely, new bride, and his supereminence bird dog named Scooter Ruggles would be welcome additions to the PGA circuit, certainly it could be expected that golfers would look with something more than disdain at a golf bag full of baby boas.

So it was that the call went out to the national ranks for an opponent fit to face Champion Knorpp in a head to head match.

Responding to the challenge was a gentleman from Charlotte, N. C., a fair to middling player who had for years gone by the nickname of Rammin' Sammy.

Now Rammin' Sammy wasn't the greatest golfer in the land, but it was rumored that he had never lost a head to head duel.

On the day of the scheduled match, at high noon, Rammin' Sammy's helicopter roared in overhead, and scattered the large crowd sufficiently that the craft could land without decapitating any of the paying cus-

Rammin' Sammy and Mr. Knorpp clasped each other like long-lost cousins.

A youngster from the conflux of people came over and offered to tote Rammin' Sammy's clubs over to the cart.

"Thank you, son," said Rammin' Sammy. "And when you get there, son, just dig me out my trusty ol' driver and I'll lay one out there a few yards."

Walt Knorpp II was on the tee. "You go ahead, Rammin'," said Knorpp. "Visitors

"Naw," said Rammin' Sammy. "You go ahead. Might be the only chance you have to shoot first, Mr. Knorpp." Rammin' Sammy cackled, and waved sweepingly to the audience. They pressed in closer, popping their palms together getting anxious for the fireworks.

Knorpp teed his ball, squared off, breathed deeply, sighed, flexed his muscles, and laid into it.

The collection of viewers began to applaud before the ball had even rolled to a stop; it was a magnificent drive, sailing straight down number one fairway about 285 yards, leaving only a short wedge shot to the green.

Pleased, and noticably relieved, Walt stepped back and said big-heartedly, "You wanta take a practice shot, Rammin', just go right

"Naw," said Rammin' Sammy, bent over (See THE GREAT-GREAT GOLF page 4)

Letters To Editor

Dear Editor:

Just a few words to say we're really glad to be getting "THE WICK." We're sitting over here in Germany without to much idea of what's going on at the lake and for that matter around Amarillo at all so Thanks again for the "news". Please continue to send the "papers" as they are published. That's what the $ is for.

Things over here are great. German summer is here and last month we spent a week in the Black Forest and next month a week in the Alps. So summer will be good but we still wish we were there to see the place develop.

Say, if you don't mind please send us an address for the local bank, preferably in Howardwick if there is one there yet but a good one in Clarendon if that's the closest. Also appreciate any other local info as the places begin to devedop.

We are looking forward to any correspondence and would be glad to furnish any info on Europe about travel, air fares, events, etc. So anyone you know coming this way tell them to drop a line for info.

Thanks again, Sincerely, John, Alice & Beth Bullard

Church News

by A. L. Bacon

The Baptist Church building is now progressing right along thanks to the cooperation, kindness and prayers of a number of fine people. If anyone would like to have a part in the growth of Christianity in our community now, whether it be your labor, money, know-how or prayers, or come sit or take part in any or all of the services, surely you will be greatly blest by our Lord and the church welcomes all.

Attendance has generally been good. We had a group of DeMoley boys from Amarillo visit us recently. We are always so happy for both young and old to come share in the services.

Last week several of our members attended an Associational meeting of all the Baptist churches of this area at Turkey. We received teaching in missionary work, stewardship, young people of today and some fine preaching by our region and state leaders from Plainview and Dallas.

Please note: All you young folk especially, you older ones are welcome also, Emadene Ockander is leading in a Spiritual song program beginning at 6:30 p. m. each Sunday evening. Immediately following is our Bible Study time which is lead by Bro. Frankie Just from 7:15 to 8:00 p.m. These hours should be just right for the young and old alike. So everyone come and join in or just come and listen. We'll be glad to have you. There is nothing to lose and so much to gain.

Regular church schedule of Services: Sunday: 10:00 a.m. Sunday School

11:00 a.m. Worship Service 6:30 p.m. Song Fest

7:15 p.m. Bible Study

Wednesday: Prayer and Bible Study Bro. Frankie Just, Pastor

Reviews

by Figoro "Fatso" by Fatherington

This month's movie:

"FIDDLER ON THE ROOF"

Entered movie house Saturday PM, purchased buttered popcorn, a Mr. Goodbar, some chocolate almonds and a Tutti-Frutti drink and located myself in a seat one chair removed from the wall. Better privacy. Theater crowded.

Show got underway and couldn't hear the sound track for the crowd talking—until they got settled down. Fiddler was fiddlin' on the roof, and old man was trudging down a grass road with cart and tired mule. Old man was Papa in movie. Also a Jew.

Story went on to reveal that Papa and Mama had five daughters. Good looking girls, especially the three oldest, as didn't see much of the two newest ones, and weren't so well developed.

Marriage arrangement was entered into for eldest daughter with local rich butcher, who had got rich weighing his thumb. But an altogeter good find from Mama's and Papa's viewpoints. From the daughter's viewpoint, she saw a fat old man with a heavy, gray beard and evil lurking in his lusting eyes. She would have no part of the arrangement, and she had, unknowing to parents, had a little thing going with a young tailor whose beard was not so gray, and who could rise from a chair without assistance. Unfortunately he was poor as a sailor on leave.

Meanwhile in the theater house, there was this disturbance working itself down between the row of seats, to finally stumble over me and pitch itself in the last seat in the row. Closer inspection revealed a creature with child in arms.

"Have I missed anything?" gushed the creature—woman out of breath. She was a little on the fatside, too.

"You've deposited yourself on my Mr. Goodbar, Lady."

"What's it doing in the seat." She heisted herself forward, "I do feel something alright."

With supreme effort I tugged the bar out from where it was wedged.

"You also spilt my drink," I said.

"What're you, a movie matinee gormet something?" The woman giggled like a hyena on Spanish fly.

By this time the commotion had drawn a good deal of attention, and the audience was flowing fast with suggestions.

"Up your, too, Mac," hissed the woman. This got the child to squalling, who had his mother's lungs.

"Now look what you've done to Freddie!" said the woman giving me a look.

"Madam, I came here to see a movie. I am Figoro by Fatherington."

"Not really," she exclaimed. "Here, I must have your autograph. You hold Freddie." She shoved the kid on me and pawed around in her purse and pulled out a green stamp book. "Sign the cover, Fatso. And be sure and put the Fatso down."

The kid had got tangled up in the exchange and was raising Ned.

"Shut up, Freddie," screeched the woman. "You're my second mistake."

The child's cries fell to a whimper. I passed him back.

The woman nudged me with fat elbow. "I think he's hungry. Whyn't you offer him that Goodbar."

"Gladly" It was crushed anyway.

"Thankye," said the woman. "Say thankye to the nice man, Freddie. He's the Fatso.

The kid commenced ripping into the paper.
When I was able to return to the screen, it was obvious there'd been a wedding, but I was unable to ascertain if the oldest daughter had wed the rich butcher or the hungry

For along about this time, the next daughter in line had found her a match. And this was getting a bit too much for Papa and Mama, as it was the custom of the Jew in those days that the matchmaking be entirely the prerogative of the parents.

Well, anyway the marriage took place. Now came the third daughter; and it was her lot to really shake the ship—as her beau was not of Jew ancestry.

Papa, over the protest of Mama, dramatically bade the young couple go elsewhere and never place themselves in his sight again. Papa was so upset, he turned to Vodka.

Also upset there in the theater, was Freddie. He'd finished off Mr. Goodbar, what he hadn't dribbled all over me, and now was raising Ned for something else.

Fortunately, INTERMISSION flashed on. I sought to lift myself from the chair and locate other quarters during the break when the woman shoved the kid in my lap again, and cruised herself stumblingly past my legs and others in the row.

Here I was with Freddie again.

I sat him in my lap and tried for friendship. I popped the watch cover of my gold watch, a family heirloom, and waved it before his eyes. His interest settled on the swinging watch, and his body began to nicely relax. I felt I'd succeeded. I also began to feel something else. But it was too late.

I simply sat there like the gentleman I am, and waited for the return of the mother. She at last returned, swagging down the aisle with her big handbag clearing the way. "Oh, I really do feel so much better," she sighed. "Thankye, Fatso. I wish my husband had been a gentleman like you."

"Where is he?"

"God only knows," said the woman. "One morning I woke up and there was just an empty bed. All he left was a dirty pillow case."

"I see," said I. "Incidentally, your son wet his britches."

"My, and you have such a big lap, too," she said.

"And now if you'll excuse me, Madam," I think I'll retire to the washroom.

"Now you be sure and come back," she said, with a sudden new gleam in her eyes. I didn't go back. Nor did I see the end of the show. Those who did, I understand, have said it was really a beautiful movie.

City Hall

by Toni VanArsdel

All hasn't been too quiet here at Howard-wick lately. There have been 5 permits, just in the past week. Three new mobile homes have moved in and one new home under construction. Welcome!!!

The City's new fire truck should be ready for operation by the 1st of September. All that's needed now is the pump, which I understand was to be picked up today (8-23-72) in Amarillo. The problem was trying to find someone to pick it up. I'll bet the mayor himself did!!!

The City Council meeting is scheduled for Saturday, September 2nd. There's nothing special on the agenda, but as always the public is invited to attend any of the meetings that are held on the 1st Saturday of each month.

The Judge has been awfully quiet too this month. Not one ticket has been issued, and we do like this!

Just a reminder to residents that when you're in doubt, you can always check the bulletin for any new ordinances as of late. You're always welcome.

boose noticed this man walking around the train yard looking over all the cars and cabooses there. He noticed the man was coming his way. The man looked very business-like and most important he looked like he was looking for something to buy. So the Little Caboose pulled himself up to full height and looked the best he could considering he had been out in the weather for sometime and no one had taken care of him.

The man came over and was giving him a good once-over. Then the man started talking to the Little Caboose. He commented on how well he looked, and wondered how the Little Caboose would feel, if he would buy him and take him home. The Little Caboose was just bursting with pride. He said he thought that would be just great. The man said that he had a special plan for him. He asked the Little Caboose how would he like to become the office for a newspaper. The Little Caboose realized that his dream was about to come true. He told the man he would love to be the office for a newspaper. The man explained to the Little Caboose that it was a small paper right now but it was growing and he thought the Little Caboose would be perfect for the office. The Little Caboose was left without words.

So the man bought the Little Caboose and sat him on Syd Blue's Shopping Plaza. The Little Caboose's dream had finally come true. He was the new home for THE WICK.

Note: Many letters have come in with vague and wrong addresses that delayed their getting consideration. Be sure and address your questions and inquiries to:

Professor Willard C. Christian The Wick, Jericho Route Howardwick Town Clarendon, Texas 79226

Also, all letters must bear a postal mark, and contain no less than the inquirer's initials. The Wick will also withhold name on request, if name is essential to question submitted.

DEAR PROFESSOR CHRISTIAN: My son is preparing to marry a worthless little tramp. Everybody knows what this girl is except my son, and nobody can tell him—he won't listen. Everything everybody tells him makes him more determined to marry her.

How can I help my son? I want him to have a good life like ours has always been. Signed: A Worried Mother.

Dear Worried Mother: Perhaps the girl is an alleged tramp because she has not known a family's love. Help her find this love. It might be good for both of you.

DEAR HOTSHOT PROF: I hear you read minds. Tell me what's on mine. Signed: A. B., Silverton, Texas.

Dear A. B. Nothing.

DEAR PROFESSOR CHRISTIAN: Most advice columns are run by women (or so they say) — anyway they give sissy advice (I don't read them but I hear my sisters talking). Anyway maybe you can help me with my parents. Mom's okay for an old woman, but Pop says she spoils me and she won't ever let me do anything without first asking Pop.

I'll be 16 next year and they won't let me drive the car. I've drove Grampa's pick-up every summer for 2 or 3 years and I know what to do and besides all the kids drive. What can I do to show Pop I can drive and make him let me? Signed: B. F. K, Grapevine, Texas.

Dear B. F. K.: The next time your parents go on an outing or a picnic, accept their invitation — for a change — and go along. Prepare the picnic lunch. Help them have a good time. They will let you drive home. If this doesn't work, try patience. For without your parents, you wouldn't be.

DEAR DR. CHRISTIAN: I know you won't answer this or print it, but I am going to ask it anyway. I am a bride of only a short time — and I need to know something about sex . . . My new husband seems to be—interested in sex about all the time . . . What I don't know quite how to ask — is, I mean, can over and over damage the body, or something? Signed: Bride of 2 months.

Dear Bride of two months: Only damage is to your pride when you're the one worn out.

DEAR DR. PROFESSOR: I think it's cool that we have our own love-lorn editor here in our area. I bet if you really mean what you say lots of us kids will write you cause it's so hard to talk to our folks and we've all got problems. Boy, do we have problems, and it's easier to write to stranger you can't see and can't see you than it is to talk to your girlfriend WHO YOU CAN'T TRUST!

I don't have any problems to write about today, but am expecting to have some before long, but I'm just waiting to see how you work out. Then maybe I'll write you. Signed: H. F., Claude, Texas.

Dear H. F.: Only those who expect problems, have problems. So I'll be hearing from you.

DEAR PROFESSOR WILLARD C. CHRISTIAN: I am a poor widowed lady with teenaged girls to support. I am in too bad health to work out in public. However, I am told I am very creative. I can write poetry and short stories and I also paint with oils, and can do all sorts of handcraft.

Could you advise me how to find a market for my work so I can provide a better life for my two teen-aged girls? Signed: One who loves her daughters, Dumas, Texas.

Dear One who loves her daughtesr: I am sending to the address you enclosed a market sheet for poetry and short stories. These markets accept other than professional work at times. Meanwhile speak to your daughters about helping you convert part of your house into a teaching room. Advertise and begin classes in oil painting and handcrafts. And let your daughters share in the effort. You will succeed.

DEAR PROFESSOR CHRISTIAN: Could you, or would you make an astrological chart for me if I send you the information concerning my birthday? Is that all I would need, my birthday, I mean? Signed: C. L., Amarillo, Texas.

Dear C. L.: I will put you in touch with people who do this, and would now, except that your birthday is not the precise time that you think it is. Go and talk to your Uncle and he will give you correct time and date. That is all you will need.

DEAR BIGMOUTH: I'm too young to be in love, but I am. I hate school, I hate my porents. I don't have anything to do. I hate to work. I hate to go to church. There's nothing to look forward to. What can you tell me and others like me? Signed: Victim, Amarillo, Texas.

Dear Victim: Not a damn thing.

DEAR WILLARD CHRISTIAN: There is no adventure more delightful than the world. You skip, you dance and you sing in your heart, and always there is another voice answering your singing, Another pair of feet skipping and dancing in time. You race through the meadows and the flowers nod and bow to you, And the wind sweeps over the fields. You hear the birds singing - you see little waves dancing and the sunlight strewing showers of golden fire upon the water. Then suddenly you realize that all this is going to die, and you grow very sorrowful and walk mournfully for a while. But even your sorrow is made beautiful, deprived of all disharmony. Then the sun comes out again and it is Springtime, and you realize that life renews itself. You skip and dance faster than ever and it becomes a race most exhilarating. You rejoice in your powers, the fact that you are equal to all emergencies.

To me, this is so beautiful an experience, I wanted to share it with someone. Signed: B. B., Spearman, Texas.

Dear B. B. You're beautiful.

We are always happy to see Allen Hudson and family from Amarillo in their white bus that they live in while staying here. I bet they have lots of fun living in the bus.

Lion's Club by M. L. Van Arsdel

The Howardwick Lions Club had no special activities the past month, however there is always something exciting going on. The big Jackpot was won this past Saturday night, the 19th but anyway the Jackpot will remain the same. You're all invited to come on out and enjoy the fun every Saturday night at 8:00 at the Community Building.

This Saturday night is Ladies Night at the Country Club and are anticipating a big turnout. Neal Mann, President, says he has some great entertainment that is somewhat local, but never the less has talent!!! Where else do fou find talent?

The Lions have some new Bumper Stickers for all residents of Howardwick that read ... "I'm from Howardwick ... The Wonder City" ... They're in purple with gold letters, which stand out like a sore thumb, so don't forget to pick your bumper sticker up from any of the Lions Club members when you're down.

The Hedley Lions Club has invited the Howardwick Lions Club over for a Bar-B-Q, Thursday the 24th, and they are anticipating a huge crowd. This is one of their annual projects and has always been a great success! Hope to see you there.

From The Marshall's Office

It will soon be hunting time again so I would like to present you with this word of interest:

teeing up. "By the way, what's your ball, Mr. Knorpp?"

"It has my initials on it," said Walt.

"I'm playing a dot, myself." Rammin' Sammy poked his drive out about 30 yards short of Knorpp's, and slightly to the left. Both balls were visible from the tee.

The golfers boarded the cart and headed out, the people pouring in behind.

Rammin' Sammy studied his lie briefly, and shot it up about 20 feet from the pin. There was respectful applause. Actually the crowd was a good deal more interested in their champion, particularly following such a beautiful opening shot.

But alas, Walt Knorpp had come to a funny stop, up ahead, absently swinging his wedge — and now he was scratching his head.

"Where's my ball?" said a perplexed Knorpp to the approaching Rammin' Sam-

"Why it was right there-to the best of my recollection. Right there."

"I know it was right there," agreed Knorpp. "But where is it now?" Bewildered, Knorpp addressed the crowd. "Wasn't my ball right there?"

Nods.

Rammin' Sammy, however, was searching with all his might back at about the point where his ball had landed, some 30 yards to the rear of Walt's.

"But Rammin' Sammy," protested Knorpp. "It was way up here."

"Certainly looked that way," said Rammin' Sammy. "But got to thinking it might have drifted down hill a bit . . . And hey, by golly, by gosh, here she be. Sure 'nough must've rolled back down like we said.

"That ball didn't roll down hill," said Walt a little testy. "More like it had to get kicked. Something odd going on here." Walt's eyes flicked over the assemblage.

"We didn't do nothin,' Walty boy," shouted someoe reassuringly. "We're on your side, baby. First we saw it-then we didn't-then we did."

Knorpp leaned over the ball. "Lord," he muttered. "It's in practically a crater." He jerked a number nine iron from his bag. "Have to go with a nine, now," he said accusingly to Rammin' Sammy. "And I doubt that's going to get it out of that hole."

Rammin' Sammy's hands gently soothed the air. "Tell you what I'm gonna do, Mr. Knorpp. That's tough luck. So how would it be if I gave you a free drop?"

"I'd take it," said Walt without hesitation. He promptly lifted the ball and dropped it over his shoulder.

Unfortunately though, no one by now was paying any attention to the path of the ballas during the drop Rammin' Sammy had moved out a step or so and was staring intently at the sky. And so was everyone else; and so was Walt Knorpp. "What's going on?" he asked Rammin' Sammy.

"Don't exactly know," said Rammin' Sammy. "Some kind of a phenomenon or something up there."

But if it were a phenomenon, it remained a phenomenon, as nothing materialized.

Rammin' Sammy, turning back to the match, said, "You get your drop alright, Mr. Knorpp?"

"Yes, right over there," said Knorpp, pointing. But there was no ball there.

Rammin' Sammy had wandered further to the rear, again - and called out: "Believe I've spotted the little white rascal. Looks like she got to rolling down that incline again."

"Incline!" cried Knorpp. He stood moments with hands on hips, and said, "All right. So I guess I'm going to have to change clubs again." He jerked a seven out this time.

Walt lined up with the ball . . . As he began to go into his back swing, he glimpsed the sea of faces about him fanning skyward. He quietly lowered the club and journeyed over to Rammin' Sammy, who was peering with all his might toward the heavens.

"Rammin'," said Knorpp patiently. "It's worked all it's gonna. Now I don't know what you're doing, but I wish you'd stop it."

"Scout's honor," said Rammin' Sammy. "I sure wish I knew what that was in the sky."

Walt returned to his ball. Of course it was gone. He called his friend Jim Hayes over. "Now Jim," said Walt. "You are a man big of stature, respected, and a Republican. I need someone to help watch my ball-and someone to keep an eye on-"Knorpp hooked his head-"On Rammin' Sammy."

"I'll do it," agreed Jim Hayes forcefully. "There's something rotten going on here. That ball doesn't have legs."

"Right," said Knorpp.

Rammin' Sammy called: "I've found it again, boys."

"It is in a hole?" asked Knorpp.

"Oh, no."

Walt pulled out a five iron and faced Rammin' Sammy. "This is the last time I'm changing clubs. The last time-."

Rammin' Sammy's palms opened innocent-

Lined up, and with the club drawn back in full back swing, Walt paused, his eyes canvassing the full area.

When over the loud speaker from the club house came Mable Elmore's voice: "Walt, Janice can't find Killer." (Janice is Walt's wife; Killer is the family's pet boa constrictor).

Walt eased off his backswing and turned to the loud speaker, and hollered: "Tell Janice to look up at the TV antenna."

"Okay," said Mable. Everyone waited in Mable came back on. "Janice says he's up there all right."

"Okay," called Walt. "Tell her it's okay. Tell Janice Killer'll come down when he gets hungry. Thank you."

"Right-oh," sang out Mable.

Knorpp's eyes dipped toward his ball, and then swung to Jim Hayes.

"Now before you say anything," said Jim. "I'll admit I was distracted for a split second. But before I was, I saw something-I think." He leaned close. "I'd swear there's a squirrel mixed up in this mess. I think Rammin's got a squirrel on his payroll."

"Squirrel?" questioned Knorpp. where's he keeping 'im?"

"I don't know all the particulars, Watt. It was hard enough to spot the squirrel." Perplexed, Walt sighed.

From the puzzled throng, came a couple youngsters wearing training pants.

"Now what's this?" exclaimed Knorpp. "We can deal with your problem," said the taller of the two youngsters. "We have the means." "What's your name?" "Stony Howard."

"Oh, good Lord," said Knorpp. "Don't tell me we got another generation coming up.

"Yessir," said Stony. "And this is my partner, Nugget Bland."

Walt could only mumble by now.

Stony went on: "You wanta know where the squirrel is hidin'? Right. You want to flush him out. You need evidence, right?"

Someone in the crowd said, "Who's the one doing all the talking?"

"The Howard kid," answered someone else. "That figures."

"He's born a'talkin'-and he'll go a'talk-

"That Bland one looks like he's got the savvy. Let's hear him."

Meanwhile Stony proceeded with the bartering: "We'll flush him out for the purse."

"For the purse!" said Knorpp. "That'll clean me out."

"So-you're better off this way, eh?"

"All right!" said Knorpp. "The purse!"

"How much is the purse?"

"Two dollars," admitted Walt. "Twice what I usually play for. And I guess you want it in advance?" Walt reached for his billfold. "We'll just bill you," said Stony. "We'll" be back in a little while."

Knorpp called after the boys. "What kind of guarantee I got?"

The boys stopped and talked, and Nugget returned to Knorpp. "We decided we would like the pay now. We don't contract anything we can't deliver."

"I should have kept my mouth shut," muttered Walt.

In a little while, the boys returned. Between them they were carrying a bird-cage looking object with a covering over it.

"Take more'n a bird to flush out that squirrel," said someone in the crowd. Everyone by now pretty well had the word.

Rammin' Sammy had been through this before. He was riding back on his heels relaxed and tranquil. Whatever it was, it wouldn't be anything that hadn't been tried before; he and Adolph were two old pros.

"I wonder where that squirrel is a hidin'?" Stony and Nugget had stopped in center stage. They glanced over the milling crowd, took a look at Walt Knorpp, and turned their gaze on Rammin' Sammy.

Rammin' Sammy eyes twinkled mirthfully, his fingers did a little jolly dance at the boys.

Stony and Nugget lifted the curtain. Out stepped a skunk.

Sometime later Walt Knorpp returned to the scene, to find Rammin' Sammy still lying on the grass doubled over in pain, tears rolling down his craggy, tanned cheeks.

"Where'd you say Adolph bit you again, Rammin'?" asked Knorpp.

"No gentlemen would ever ask that question of another gentlemen," groaned Rammin' Sammy.

Meanwhile the boy's hard won purse had gone for soap and two pairs of new training

Judy White, daughter of Marshal and Mrs. White, just got back from Wellington, Kansas where she was competing for Queen of the National Baseball Congress. We're sorry she didn't win but I hear she had lots of fun.

We enjoyed having Charles Burton and Gene O'Dell from Lubbock who were down here camping on their lots this last weekend.
