The Howardwick Party Line

By Sharon Mills

We had such a beautiful week end. But the way it looks this Monday morning, that may be over.

Our week end people were here and proved it by the fishing they got in, really some nice ones caught. Their pictures with their catch will be elsewhere in the paper.

Attending the Panhandle Baptist Association held in Turkey,

Texas First Baptist Church Tuesday, October 15, were Henry and Cora Bland, Mrs. Lena Howard, and Norma Corgill. They reported a good attendance and a good feed, both spiritually and along the fried chicken line.

Jim and Thelma Corgill had visiting over the week end their daughter and family, Don and Martha Matlock and daughter Deloris of Lawton, Okla.

To the ill in our community, we wish you a speedy recovery. May God's blessing be with you.

A meeting at City Hall Saturday proved to be very satisfactory. The Councilmen approved the new City Building, a 30 x 60 steel structure to be erected as soon as material is available which may be 3 or 4 months. The concrete slab will be run as soon as the ground can be made ready. We should all be proud of their decision.

The parking in front and on the west side of the First Baptist Church will be black-topped, the work beginning in a few days.

So Howardwick is looking up again.

Those enjoying a fish fry Sunday in the homes of the C. J. Dawsons and Alfred Reynolds were Mr. and Mrs. John Collins, Larry and Bobbie Ledbetter and children, John and Viola Raines, and Mrs. Reynolds and daughter of Pampa.

Ed House of Turkey visited with John and Velma Collins a few days last week and did some fishing.

John has bought him a new boat. Said it was the kind you had to wear a necktie to fish out of.

Your reporter, Sharon Mills, and Mr. and Mrs. Mills are visiting in New Mexico this week. She will be back next week. Until then...

Bye, Norma Corgill

"We have several new benefits to offer qualified applicants," Bell said. "For instance, the pay during training is $651.00 per month. Upon commission this salary is increased to $743.00 per month; after six months of law enforcement duty this is elevated to $768.00 and further advanced to $820.00 upon completion of twelve months' law enforcement experience.

"Also our selection methods are more liberal, and qualified female applicants are now being accepted for the uniformed services of the DPS. In addition, the Department has been increasingly successful in hiring persons from minority groups."

"Also our selection methods are more liberal, and qualified female applicants are now being accepted for the uniformed services of the DPS. In addition, the Department has been increasingly successful in hiring persons from minority groups."

To qualify for employment in the uniformed services of the DPS, an applicant must be between the ages of 20 and 35; good moral character; excellent physical condition; weight proportionate to height; visual acuity of 20/40 correctable to 20/20; a citizen of the United States; and a minimum of sixty semester college hours.

"Among the many benefits that troopers enjoy," Bell pointed out, "are two weeks' annual vacation; all holidays provided for by the Legislature; modern, liberal retirement system; group hospitalization and life insurance plans; traveling expenses; longevity pay; and uniforms with all the necessary equipment to perform their duties."

For complete information concerning the position of trooper, training and benefits, Bell asked that those who are interested contact the nearest DPS trooper or DPS office. "In return," he said, "they will receive complete information in regard to the application and employment procedures."

party lines and ringing telephones:

"In those days, a telephone call was a deeply satisfying experience, a time of utter relaxation on your part. Once you whirled the little crank on the side of the phone your chore was finished. You didn't even have to know the number you were calling. Central kept them all in her head."

"Hello Central", Mama would say, I want to talk with "Sister Katherine" or, "Give me my mother" or "Ring Mrs. Bessie Williams."

This brought back memories of some years back when we would ring Central and over a groggy ten miles of lines would say "Is this you Ellie?" It always was and from her we could find out the things we needed to know from calling the Doctor to finding out whose house was on fire.

Anyway, this book brought back many good memories and we recommend that all of you read it for sure. The only thing was that we were so much poorer than Miss Erdman — we young-uns never did get to the point socially that we owned a boughten lunch basket. I'll never outgrow having to take my lunch with my younger sister. It was so un-masculine like. So was my homemade overalls with the one-piece square pockets sewed on the front.

Thanks Loula Grace Erdman.

The Committed Man

By: Weldon Rives, Pastor
First United Methodist Church

Nehemiah 6:3, 4 — "I am doing a great work, so that I cannot come down."

People commit themselves to causes everyday. When one is committed without reservation there is nothing, not even death, which will cause him to turn aside from his goal.

That which is well begun may not be entirely finished. Concern and responsibility need consecration so that all things may be brought to completion.

There was once a young man on a cross, sacrificing, dying. The people cried out "Come down from the cross! You who have worked miracles, do one now. Pull the nails out, if you can. Come down. You'll make quite a stir in Jerusalem!" But his reply was "I am doing a great work, so that I cannot come down."

Here is the answer to the truly committed to the temptation of the trivial. Here is the answer to those who despise the dream of the committed. Here is the secret of bringing a great task to completion, as witnessed to by Nehemiah 6:15 "So the wall was finished."

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

So you built a better mousetrap, but the world hasn't beaten a path to your door?

At this point, you may find yourself attracted by advertisements for idea or invention promotion and marketing firms. After all, what you really need is an expert to handle such details for you, right?

You could be wrong, in some cases. The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division urges caution before paying large fees to firms offering services variously labeled invention or idea promotion, marketing, or development or patent searches and development.

Last summer, our Consumer Protection lawyers testified to a Federal Trade Commission hearing in Dallas — the first of a series of hearings nationwide to determine if a trade regulation rule is needed to curb fraudulent activity in the idea and invention promotion field.

Our attorneys described the method of operation found time and again in the invention marketing cases we have investigated or taken to court for violation of the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices - Consumer Protection Act.

Some one with an idea or an invention sees an ad promising patent search and protection; evaluation and feasibility studies to determine product marketability; engineering and production services; or exclusive contacts with manufacturers.

The would-be inventor pays a fee averaging $1,000 or more and submits his idea or gadget. Virtually all those submitted are judged by the firm to be "highly marketable."

Inventors are assured that their product will be exhibited in fairs and shows and that the manufacturers, will locate a distributor.

While some few inventions have been marketed by such firms, our attorneys stress that the overwhelming majority of persons have never received a return that even approaches the amount of money they pay as fees.

In fact, many of the services offered are ones an inventor could handle so well himself, especially in light of the fact that the "market evaluators" or "analysts" for most such firms are merely salesmen who push the "special services" offered by their employers.

In addition, inventors with a possibly saleable item could find themselves inadequately protected if they rely on such idea promoters to conduct pa-social security card?

Q—New regulations require that persons over age 18 furnish proof of age, identity and citizenship when applying for a number for the first time. Age can usually be proved with a birth or baptism certificate. To prove identity you may use a driver's license, voter's registration or some similar document. If you were born in the United States, citizenship is usually established by the documents you submit as proof of age and identity.

Q—I am in my second year of high school and I plan to seek summer work. When should I apply for a social security card?

A—Anyone in need of a social security card should apply well in advance since it takes from six to eight weeks to obtain a card.

Q—How many quarters of social security would I need to get disability? I am 46 years old and I became disabled in November 1972.

A—You would need to have a total of 21 quarters or 5 years and 3 months of credits. In addition you would be required to have at least 20 of these quarters in the 40 quarter or 10 year period ending December 1972.

Q—How old must a person be to have a social security card?

A—If a person has a need for a social security number it can be issued at any age.

Q—I am age 14. Will I need to bring anything to the social security office to get a social security card?

A—United States citizens under age 18 need no proof of age or identity to obtain a card.

Q—Some of my friends play a game using social security numbers. How many numbers can I get?

A—A person should have only one social security number since this will be used to record your earnings and will be the basis for your future social security benefits.

Q—I plan to marry next month and therefore my name will change. Should I get a new social security number?

A—No. You only need to have your name changed on your present card. Your number will always stay the same.

State Capitol Highlights and Sidelights

By BILL BOYKIN

Statewide interest in the general election may be running at a near low, a check of local officials across Texas indicates.

Even optimistic forecasters place the turnout in the 50 per cent range. Many doubt the 30 per cent showing of last May's primaries will be improved on much. There are an estimated 5.5 million registered voters.

About 55 per cent of eligible voters participated in the 1970 off - presidential - year election, 48 per cent in 1966.

The spotcheck produced these estimates on the turnout:

Harris County (Houston) — 40 per cent.

Dallas County — 35 to 50 per cent.

Tarrant County (Fort Worth) — 30 per cent.

Bexar County (San Antonio) — 35 to 40 per cent.

Travis County (Austin) — 45-50 per cent.

El Paso — Fewer than 30 per cent.

Even in countries where local candidates are slugging it out, voters don't seem turned out. The governor's race between Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Republican Jim Granberry has attracted limited attention.

Observers report voters are burned out politically by Watergate scandals and President Nixon's hasty departure from the White House under fire.

Many voters are said to disrupt politicians & proposed political solutions to such major issues of concern as runaway inflation. So — apparently — they will sit home November 5, and leave it to a minority to decide who gets elected.

INSURANCE HIKE DUE — State Insurance Board staff members recommended a whopping 16.3 per cent increase in auto insurance, but the Board indicated it may not go for the full amount.

The insurance industry asked for 18.3 per cent average state increases on private auto coverage.

Board Chairman Joe Christie noted that accident and claim data used by the staff cut off Dec. 3, 1973 — before speed limits were reduced from 70 to 55 miles per hour and before peak of the winter gasoline shortage.

He used consideration of more-recent data. No decision will be made on the rates, to be effective January 1, until late November, Christie indicated.

Under the recommendations, full coverage comprehensive policies would increase 22.3 per cent on the statewide average, property damage liability 21.4 per cent, bodily injury liability eight tenths of one per cent and no - fault medical payments 2.8 per cent. Uninsured motorist coverage cost would be reduced 20.1 per cent.

ALLOWABLE UNCHANGED — The November state oil production allowable will remain at 100 per cent of potential for the 32nd straight month.

Texas Railroad Commission agreed on that last week after noting that major buyers asked for 17,582 barrels a day (4,075,201 barrels) less than in October.

Commission Chairman Jim Langdon said leased acreage for exploration is about as high as it has been in 15 years and drilling applications have increased 40 per cent. Actual increase in drilling is about 15 per cent. Langdon said the increase would be far greater if it were not for a shortage of pipe and drilling rigs.

AG OPINIONS — Waiver of a city-owned utility's obligation to make payments to the parent city is not an unconstitutional gift but merely a rate reduction, Atty. Gen. John Hill held.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded: Copies of tests and test results on mobile home tie-downs should be made public on request.

Public officials must confer with employees over grievances. Child care facilities operated by local mental health units or other political subdivisions are CROPS FORECAST — Texas upland cotton production this year is expected to decrease more than 1.5 million bales from 1973, to a level of 3.1 million bales, according to Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

However, White said the October outlook for most Texas grains — rice, corn, sorghum and soybeans — remains good. Rice production is expected to top 25 million hundred weight bags in the state — an increase of 23 per cent from 1973 totals.

The Commissioner sees corn production of 69.7 million bushels, sorghum at 925 million bushels, and soybeans at 6.5 million bushels. He said 1974 will be a good year for pecan production, estimated at 40 million pounds.

Weather — drought, followed by a cool, wet September was blamed by White for the decline in the cotton yield.

HERITAGE DAY OBSERVED — October 14 was Family Land Heritage Day honoring Texas farmers & ranchers whose families have worked the same land for 100 years or more.

Nearly 1,500 attended special ceremonies at the Department of Agriculture Food and Fiber Pavilion at the State Fair in Dallas.

Five hundred and sixty two individuals and families have qualified for the inaugural program. Registration for the 1975 Family Land Heritage Program will open next spring.

RECORDS SET — The state last year received the highest annual oil and gas royalty income from its lands — a 64 per cent increase — in history, according to Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong.

The receipts increased from $27.7 million last year to $43.7 million for 1973-74 on school lands, Armstrong said the figure reflects higher prices for stripper oil, new oil prices, and settlement of six fair market value lawsuits against major oil and gas producers.

Oil and gas receipts on University lands increased by 75 per cent, from $18.3 million to $32 million, Armstrong said.

But we recognized a responsibility to support a national policy designed to meet a specific military need. Every veteran deserves a measure of recognition for his willingness to serve and we should all be thankful that thus far in our nation's history, the majority of us have been willing to answer the nation's needs for military manpower.

DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME will end this year at 2 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 27. I proposed full repeal of daylight saving time last February and worked for the legislation which was passed and which will help to keep school children from being forced to go to school in the dark this winter as they did last winter.

THE CONGRESS, after an unexpected extended session last week, did recess Oct. 17th and will reconvene Nov. 18th. This report will therefore be suspended for the weeks the Congress is in recess.

MILITARY AID TO TURKEY was an item for major consideration by the Congress this past week. President Ford had vetoed a continuing appropriations measure because it contained a rider denying aid to Turkey due to that nation's position on Cyprus. I voted with the majority to sustain the President's veto. I have always opposed unnecessary foreign aid, but as a member of the House Armed Services Committee, I know that we should give the President the authority to try to negotiate a settlement on Cyprus between our NATO allies. The Congress should not tie the hand of the Secretary of State as he attempts to negotiate a settlement, because failure to reach a settlement might weaken the NATO position in the Eastern Mediterranean, leaving open that flank in Western defenses.

AUTO SEATBELT ignition interlock systems were outlawed in final legislation passed by the House and sent to the president for signature during the week. Upon enactment, auto buyers will be able to purchase care without this system and also without the continuous buzzer system. I sponsored this legislation last April and am gratified that a majority in the Congress has finally realized that the public demands reversal of the Congress' earlier action making these systems mandatory. The new law will also enable these systems existing in vehicles already on the road to be legally disconnected.

MEAT IMPORTS should be reduced even further and I was encouraged that Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz will carry a recommendation to impose a 180-day meat import embargo to the USDA's Cattle Industry Advisory Committee. I proposed such an embargo last April and Butz later credited the voluntary reductions in imports our negotiators were able to gain from meat exporting nations to Congressional pressure for an embargo.

You can help restore clean water, fresh air, and a beautiful countryside to all Americans. Support local soil and water conservation programs.

NEWS FROM Congressman Bob Price 13th District, Texas

REMEMBERING VETERANS

Officially, Oct. 28th is Veterans Day. Most veterans organizations will continue to carry on their observances on the historic date of Nov. 11th which marks the close of World War I in 1918 and was the original Armistice Day, later changed to Veterans Day. In 1968, the Congressional majority, in its "wisdom" (or lack thereof), changed many of the legal holidays so that Americans could be assured of a number of 3-day weekends. We became more interested in taking vacations, it seems, than in remembering the special days for the reasons they were originally created.

I sponsored legislation to return Veterans Day to its proper Nov. 11th date. The Senate recently passed a similar bill but the House Judiciary Committee has not acted on the matter.

But regardless of the date of the observance, it is proper for all Americans to remember the sacrifices of this nation's military veterans. As a combat pilot during the Korean Conflict, I know first-hand the personal risks faced by every combat veteran. Some of us did not return. Most of us did. But all of us faced the same risk. Most of us probably would have preferred to have stayed at home.

The Pioneer Spirit Of Old Clarendon

Dr. James O. Brandon
Pastor First Baptist Church

Have we lost that pioneer spirit? There are some of our pioneer citizens in Clarendon today who feel that we have.

One of the characteristics of the pioneer spirit of Clarendon in yester-year according to one of our senior citizens was hard work. When you came to Old Clarendon, you had to build a house or sleep in or under a wagon. You didn't have modern tools to do the job. You usually had to cut your own timber and make your own lumber in those early days when Clarendon was a settlement.

"While you were building your house, your family had to eat," commented one of our senior citizens. "You had to raise your food, so the ground had to be tilled and seed planted. Nearly everyone had an old milk cow, so a barn had to be built. You didn't have time to get bored with life because you had plenty to do. You didn't have time to get into trouble because you were too tired."

"Everybody worked," said one person. "The women worked a long side of the men in constructing houses, plowing with the mules, and building barns. The kids worked." It was "early to bed and early to rise." "You went to the field early, and you stayed late," said another.

Another characteristic of the pioneer spirit of Old Clarendon was the helping hand. "People were more inclined to help one another," said one lady, "they still had that pioneer spirit." "I'll help you today and you can help me if and when I need it," was the spirit.

There were house raisings, barn raisings, and hog killings. People would help raise a house for a new family, for a young couple just getting married, or for a family who lost their house by tragedy. Men would gather in the cold winter months for hog killings. Several neighbors would come together, help a neighbor butcher his hog, and the next day meet at another's house to help him. "Helping one another was the spirit of the time," said one.

One family recalled a flu epidemic of those early days when many people died. "Neighbors would care for neighbors, nurse them, until they were back on their feet", said one person. "Neighbors would care for their sick neighbor's stock and land. If problems arose, neighbors would help get the harvest gathered." "People worked together," said a senior citizen.

Another characteristic of the pioneer spirit of those days was a high standard of morality. This morality was expressed in every fiber of society. "Another person's word was as good as a signed contract," stated one person. "There wasn't much crime, then," she commented, "You didn't have to be afraid of a stranger. Today, you can't tell who you are talking to."

"Our town was more friendly in those days," commented one of our senior citizens. "People spoke to one another on the streets. Today, folk might speak to you and they might not," said one. She reflected, "There are a lot of folk today who would be willing to help people out, but you don't know who you can trust."

"We've lost that pioneer spirit in our society and churches," one senior citizen commented, "and as a result of it, we have all this trouble in the land today." "The Bible and the church were in first place in our society and you were looked upon as weird if you didn't attend church," said one person. "These helped give us something to hold to. The Bible and the church helped mold our thinking. We were taught to do right because God said so," commented a senior citizen.

"When you take the Bible and the church out of first place in a community," said another, "You have taken away the salt, the savor, preservative of our society," said one person. The question remains; Have we lost that pioneer spirit?

There are some folk around Clarendon today who remember another day. These folk seem to think that we have let some things slip in our society, some good things.

Wheat farmers are happy to have the moisture while cotton and grain sorghum farmers face a continued loss in production due to poor maturing and harvesting conditions.
