State Capitol Highlights and Sidelights
By BILL BOYKIN

Texas Constitutional Convention delegates, bogged down again in debate, were told that, when they finally agree, they must get out and lead the campaign for a new constitution.

Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards and House Speaker E. L. Henry offered words of advice, comfort, cheer and condolences to their Texas neighbors concerning the business of constitution writing.

Both had leading roles in adoption of a new Louisiana constitution early this year after a convention in 1973.

"You have got to take your document to the people, or it won't get done," Henry told the Texas delegates.

Special interest groups will reach their constituents, warned Edwards: so state officials must try to sell the new documents drawn by the convention to average citizens who hold the swing votes.

At the same time, visiting Governor Edwards said it is highly doubtful the Louisiana revision would have been adopted had he not taken an active part in promoting it.

Meanwhile, Texas delegates had a bucketful of problems trying to get together on the judiciary article of their product. Merger of the Supreme Court and Court of Criminal Appeals, right of appeal by the state in criminal cases and status of county judges proved the toughest items to compromise.

Even before agreement could be reached on the judiciary, delegates plunged into the general provisions article which promised some of the convention's highest - voltage controversies over so-called state right - to - work provisions and other tough ones.

REPEATERS ARRESTED - More than 65 per cent of arrests recorded through criminal fingerprint cards last year had prior records, the Department of Public Safety reported.

Twenty-five per cent of the 278,180 arrests were of 17-19 year olds.

Criminal arrest fingerprint cards increased 21,510 in 1973 over 1972. An average of 1,019 cards a day was submitted by 635 different Texas agencies and 18 out-of-state agencies.

OIL CONSERVED - State agencies and colleges conserved the equivalent of 75,334 barrels of crude oil during March compared to the same month a year ago, the Governor's office calculates.

Overall state agency energy consumption declined 12 per cent for the month, according to a special energy report. Electricity use dropped seven percent, natural gas 12.2 per cent and gasoline 11.9 per cent, while "other" fuel use increased 3.9 per cent. The increase was due largely to conversion from gasoline - powered machinery and vehicles to diesel - powered units.

COURTS SPEAK - Cities cannot tax rolling stock of railroads, the Texas Supreme Court held.

At the same time, the High Court concluded that a doctor could not be held negligent for failure to order x-rays to detect a small chicken bone in a baby boy's lung.

A Jefferson County man, sentenced to 75 years for heroin sale, won a new trial because his lawyer was not allowed to impeach a state witness by bringing up a prior conviction.

The Supreme Court declined to hear arguments by attorneys for Elmer Wayne Henley Jr., accused of Houston sex slayings, on immediate transfer of the trial site from San Antonio.

The Court of Criminal Appeals upheld the conviction of Johnny Eduardo Swift, a black, for the killing of Hearn bank President H. C. Kelly, finding no racial discrimination in the grand jury commission.

A Dallas ex-policeman was turned down by the Court of Criminal Appeals in a bid for a new trial as an accomplice to murder, though the woman charged with the murder was acquitted.

AG OPINIONS - Persons over 65 are entitled to benefits of homestead tax exemption where political subdivisions have approved, though they fail to so claim during rendition period, Atty. Gen. John Hill held.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

The property tax for higher education does not expire in 1987 but extends for an indefinite period.

Names of persons whose sentences for possession of marijuana have been commuted by the governor should be made public.

The Department of Public Welfare is not precluded from negotiating a premium for its medical assistance program which can be expected to result in a reduction of the Medicaid reserve.

Animal Health Commission records concerning an examination of cattle for brucellosis are subject to inspection by the owner, but it is not mandatory that the commission authenticate the records to make them admissible in a trial growing out of herd purchase.

The Board of Pardons and Paroles can provide counsel for indigent prisoners whose parole is to be revoked.

Legislative pay is not dependent on attendance, but mileage compensation is dependent on actual travel.

Cities can regulate private sewage facilities.

Commissioners courts may issue revenue bonds under the Clean Air Act.

Lobbyists may file activities reports for their bosses.

APPOINTMENTS - Governor Briscoe appointed Erwin A. Elias of Waco to the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission, and Rodelio P. Perez of Austin director of the new Migrant Affairs Office.

Briscoe named Sam Baxter of Marshall Criminal District Attorney for the 71st judicial district (Harrison County), succeeding Vernard G. Solomon of Marshall who resigned.

Mrs. Mary Ann Roberts of Spring will be chairman of the 15-member 1974 state textbook committee.

Briscoe appointed 12 members of the local intergovernmental personnel act advisory committee, including Mrs. Andrea Beatty of Austin, Lila Cockrell of San Antonio, Edwin Daniel of Wichita Falls, Amando Garza Jr. of Laredo, Job L. Hammond Jr. of Amarillo, Charles Carsner of Victoria, McNeal Adams of Jasper, Frank L. Priore of Fort Worth, Vince Rachal of Houston, George K. Smith of Dallas, Nestor Valencia of El Paso and Edward Vela of Hidalgo.

Herman Laubhoff of Houston was sworn in as the newest state representative from District 84.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

Consumers shopping for furniture may have encountered some confusion in the past few years, what with plastics that seem to be wood, vinyl that appears to be leather, and marble dust that looks like slate.

In addition, there's pressure-sensitive paper that simulates just about anything. All of these have given consumers a wide range of choices between natural and synthetic furniture materials, but sometimes it has been difficult to tell at a glance exactly what you're getting for your money.

Some unscrupulous dealers have taken advantage of the proliferation of terms for furniture materials to deliberately mislead the public.

For example, attorneys in our Consumer Protection Division recently settled a complaint from a woman who purchased a bedroom suite advertised as "all wood" only to find out when it was delivered that just the visible parts were constructed of wood. The rest were of glazed fiberboard.

But furniture-buying consumers should find it less confusing to shop for what they want since new Federal Trade Commission guidelines for the furniture industry went into effect in March.

Advances in technology have greatly changed the types of materials used by furniture manufacturers since the previous FTC guidelines were set out in 1963. This, plus what the FTC terms "misleading advertising and other deceptive practices" among a few members of the furniture industry were the reasons for the revision of the guidelines.

One major change is that "affirmative disclosure" is required. My assistants say this means when any material is used to simulate a more expensive one it now must be identified on furniture tags and in catalogs, brochures, and advertising.

And if furniture has a "veneer," the term used when a more expensive wood is glued to another type of wood, this fact must also be disclosed. So now if you buy a "maple captain's chair" you can be sure it's maple through and through, not maple veneer on oak or some other wood.

Terms such as "French (or Italian) Provincial" or "Mediterranean" can still be used, since post people realize such phrases describe the style of the furniture, rather than its origin. But terms such as "Danish" or "Spanish" cannot be used to indicate style. Instead, "Spanish style" or "Danish design" or some other phrase must be used if the item doesn't actually come from that particular country.

The new guidelines tend to discourage the widespread practice many retail furniture stores followed of removing the manufacturer's tags and substituting their own. Now, if the manufacturer's tag is removed, it must be replaced with one that provides the same information about materials and construction.

ETC guidelines also state that results of tests made on upholstery fabrics must be clearly disclosed in language the lay person can understand.

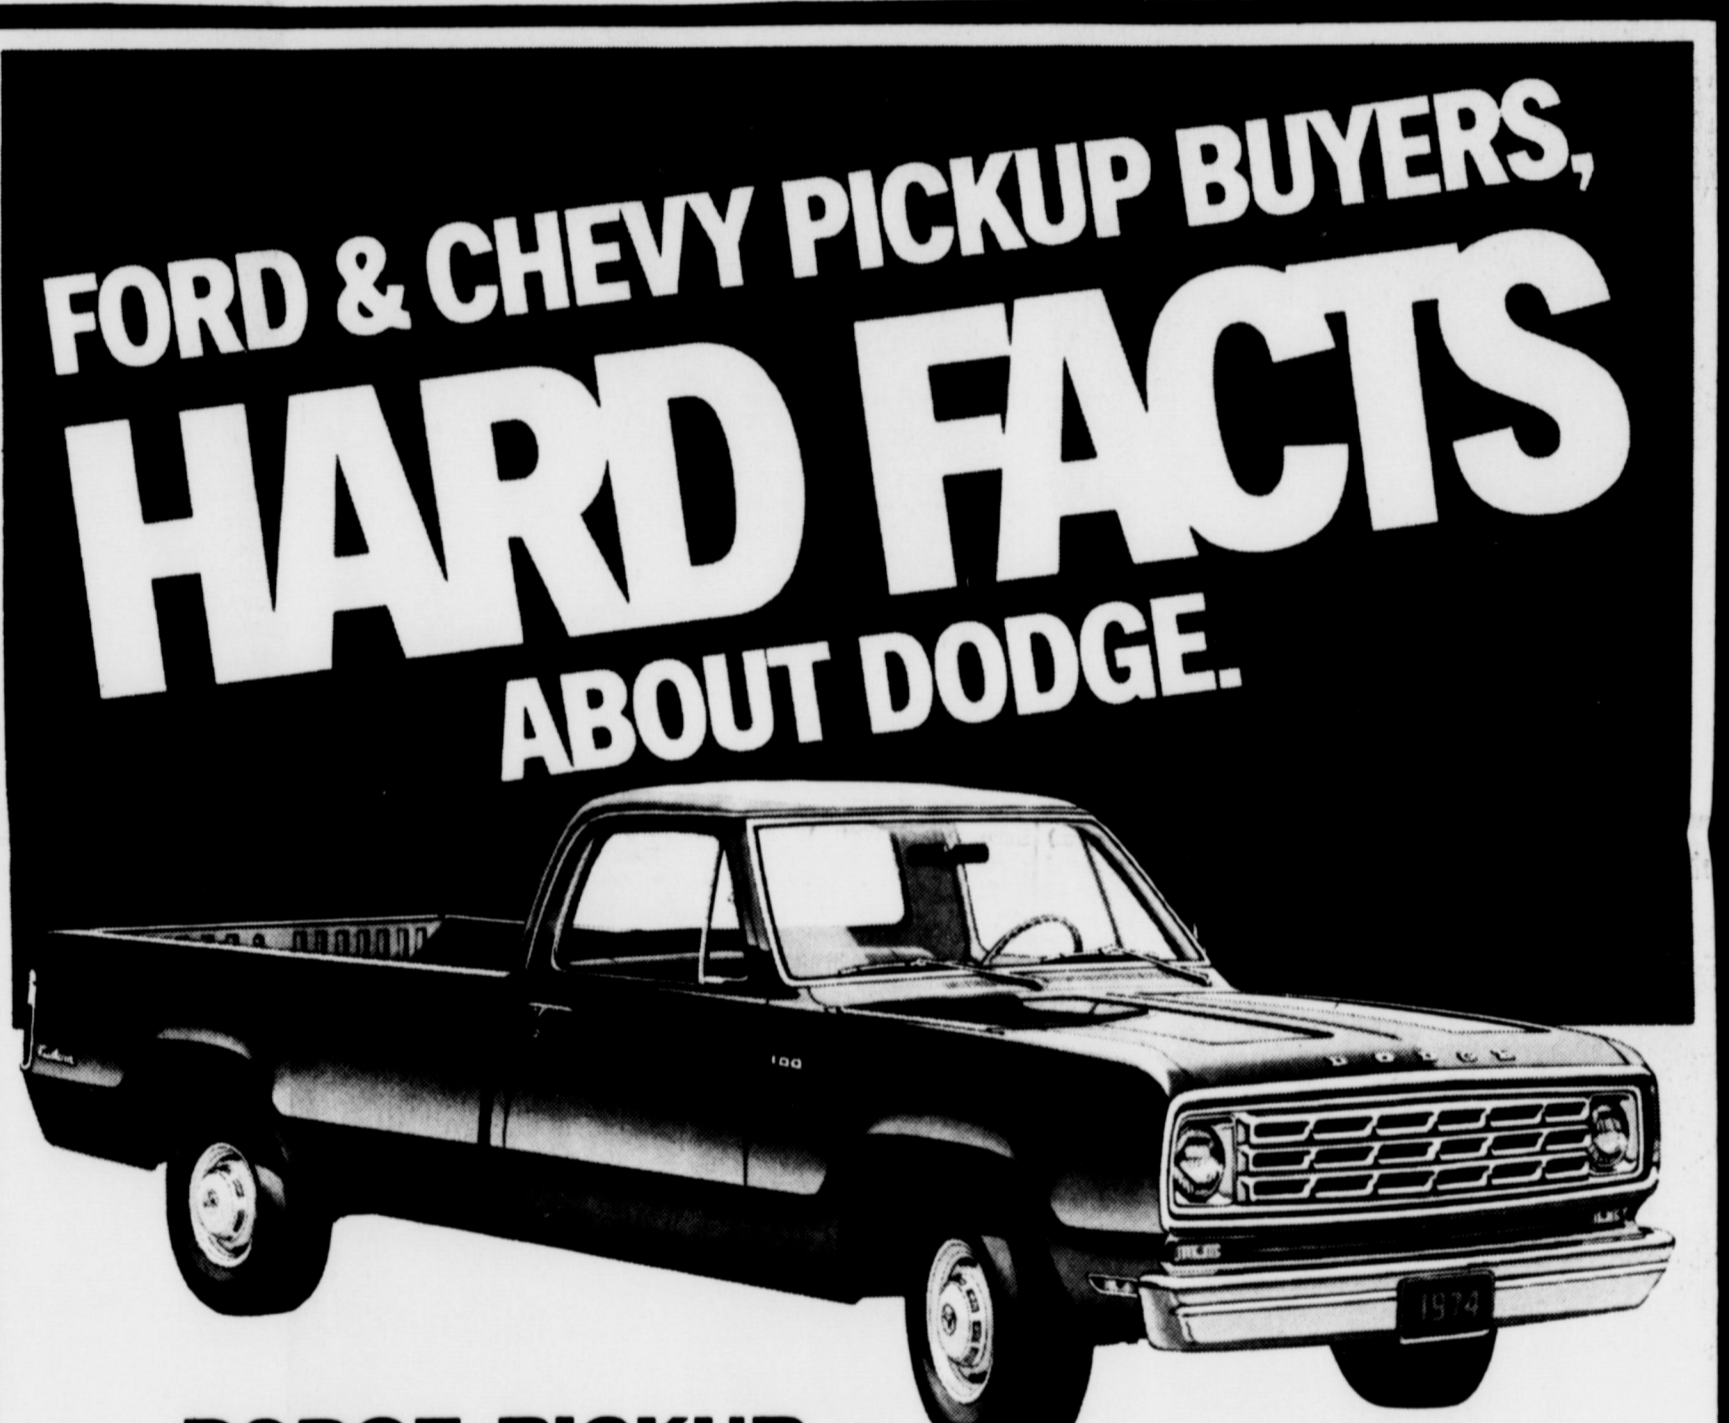

Our Consumer Protection attorneys say that while these guidelines will not prevent every misleading or deceptive trade practice encountered in shopping for furniture, they will be of great assistance not only to consumers but to the large majority of reputable furniture manufacturers and retailers.

They remind mobile home purchasers that furniture sold with mobile homes should also carry labels that give information about its construction and composition.

And they suggest that consumers always ask to see product labels, that the check carefully on warranties, and that they inquire about how to care for the fabrics on any upholstered furniture they purchase. In this way, they may avoid consumer problems later.

For assistance with consumer complaints call our Consumer Protection Division, your county or district attorney, or your local Better Business Bureau.

They'll Know We'er Christians

By: Weldon Rives, Pastor First United Methodist Church

Acts 11:26 — "The disciples were called Christians first in Antioch."

I'm sure you are aware of and probably know the song "They'll Know We'er Christian by our Love." This is to be the primary key of identification of all Christ's disciples. Just as Jesus declared that you will know the false prophets "by their fruits" (Matthew 7:16-10), so shall they know his disciples because they love one another (John 13:35). And, because of such love that forms a perfect bond between likeminded people, those who were followers of Jesus Christ were soon to be called Christians.

As long as all Christians remained a part of the Jewish Community, no other identifying name was needed. However, shortly after the destruction of Jerusalem and the temple, in A. D. 70, it became apparent that the restoration of the synagogue, the temple and the priestly order would not be permitted. Also, persecution of the Jews was to continue. Therefore, a separate organization for the followers of Christ would be needed to escape Jewish persecution and for the establishment of services of worship as well as places for worship. Also, about this time the group began accepting both Jews and gentiles into its fellowship. Thus, it appeared natural to call the members of this fellowship by the name that expressed the basis of their oneness. Since they were Christ's followers, they were called Christians, and the basic identifying key was their love for one another, and for others even. So strange was this characteristic of the fellowship as compared to other religious groups that they were identified by others as being in the world but not of the world (John 17:14, 16).

One important idea comes from the 11th chapter of Acts. Christ comes not only to persons one by one, but he also comes to cities and communities. This is what happened at Antioch (Acts 11:19-26). The revival that developed in that great city when men came preaching Jesus Christ was an evidence of his presence. When Christ comes to a city and that city receives him, the level of life of the entire community is lifted. There is more courtesy and love displayed, greater progress in achieving needs of the person and the community; there is an absence of slander in the press, and a drop in the crime rate, etc. Any city that experiences a revival of the Christian Faith has its face lifted so that it becomes a beautiful place to live for others know "we'er Christians by our love."

The Howardwick Party Line

Hello, Party Liners! Seems Howardwick and the Lake are buzzing this holiday week end.

The Lions Club meeting was shy a few people this week end. Some were ill and some of the week enders homes were damaged in the storms around Vega and Amarillo and they were called back home. But the Lions had a good meeting. Entertainment was presented by Butch Hancock who picked the guitar and played the harmonica and sang several selections that were his own compositions.

Ladies from Howardwick attending the Hospital Auxillary meeting Tuesday evening were Polly Sarich, Margaret Berry, Lena Howard, Margaret Wells, and Norma Corgill.

Sharon Mills is home from the hospital and doing nicely, but it will be some time before she is up and around again.

Jim and Thelma Corgill visited in Logan, N. M. last week with Thelma's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Dub Smith and son, and her mother, Mrs. Ethel Thomas. They thought they might get in some good fishing. But seems the fish weren't biting or else Jim had lost that special touch.

Visiting over the week end in the Jim Corgill home were friends, J. D. and Joel Richardson of Amarillo.

Donald and Judy Bland are on vacation this week. They are fishing at Stamford Lake and then to see Six Flags, a very busy week for them.

The hill where Mr. and Mrs. George Howard live was a busy place this week. Visiting from Amarillo were her sisters and families: Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Needham, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Harris, Mrs. May McGourick and daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hendrix and daughters, Sandra and Shanna.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard's daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Don Thormahlen and sons, Kellier and Karl, and daughter Greta of Kaufman, Texas are spending a few days with them also. Mr. and Mrs. John Sarich en-

ANNIVERSARY DINNER

Recent dinner guests in the home of Rev. and Mrs. Gordon A. Oglesby were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Oglesby of Canyon, Texas.

The special dinner was in honor of the Fred Oglesby's 35th wedding anniversary.

He was our idol as a writer Will Rogers who once said that: "He never met a man he didn't like." We remembered that this morning as we looked through our mail and thought of the many people over the 28 years that had written to Uncle Zeb. We had just recently received a nice letter from a pen-friend of some days past, including a lot of good things we could use in this column. He is business man and writer Alfred A. Mont-pert, 2458 Chislehurst Drive, Los Angeles, Calif., Zip 90027. Some time back he had sent us his own book full of wise sayings and now these new ones. Uncle Zeb doesn't deserve such nice friends but we love it... Here are a few:

"I wonder if the day will ever come when a full heart and a full head will count for more than a full purse."

"Be encouraged, encouragement is oxygen for the soul."

"Develop your greatest asset—YOU".

"Life will do a lot of growing, but it won't hurt you unless you let it."

"SORRY, yesterday was the deadline for all complaints."

"It is much easier to criticize than to produce something better than that we are critical."

"He who supplies another with a constructive thought has helped enrich him forever."

"After all, why argue with those whose opinion you have little respect."

Accent On Health

J. E. Peavy, M.D.,
Commissioner of Health

Environmental health authorities have found a vast, largely neglected treasure in an unlikely place: the nation's trash piles.

A couple of years ago, when the environment was at the forefront of public attention, the solid waste problem was a major concern. There seemed to be only two ways to deal with the ton of trash that every American produces in a year's time—either burn it, or bury it.

But today, according to environmental health officials of the Texas State Health Department, the solid waste "problem" has become a challenging opportunity, a sensible, economical way to help overcome some of the shortages in raw materials that have plagued the nation. Solid Waste, the authorities say, is our most neglected natural resource.

Enormous progress has been made in the past few years in the development of methods for reclaiming usable materials from the nation's junkpiles. What was at one time a utopian dream is becoming an everyday reality: the ability to recycle virtually all of the waste and refuse produced by our high-consumption society. Furthermore, the growing scarcity of vital raw materials has naturally made those materials more valuable, and thus more expensive. This, in turn, means that recovering those materials from America's garbage cans has become economically feasible and even very profitable.

Consider, for example, the fact that recycled steel and iron are worth more than thirty dollars a ton—and most of the "tin cans" in your kitchen pantry are actually made of steel. Recycled newsprint is worth around forty dollars a ton. One of the most valuable of the common household materials, aluminum, is worth about two hundred dollars a ton. Obviously, these materials are simply too valuable to bury in a landfill or burn in an incinerator.

Of course, after all the tin cans, newspapers, and aluminum scrap have been recovered from your garbage can, there's still a lot of garbage left. Table scraps and other organic materials can't be recovered and recycled the way tin cans or newsprint can. But there are ways that even the most "useless" garbage can be put to good use.

You could, for example, put your wet garbage and table scraps into a compost pile and produce enough natural fertilizer for a good-sized garden. Or you could use organic waste to feed a still that produces methane gas—a gas that is almost ideal for cooking, heating, and even fueling a small motor.

Or, better yet, your city could follow the example of the electric utility in St. Louis. There, ordinary household garbage is being used as fuel in the production of electric power. Initially, between five and ten percent of the city's electric power will come from garbage power; eventually, the power company officials hope to use as much as thirty percent garbage. The economic savings will be enormous. Not only will oil and natural gas be conserved, but the cost of transporting the garbage to the processing plant is a good deal less than the cost of burning the same trash in an ordinary incinerator.

The State of Connecticut has gone even further in its materials recovery effort. There, the entire state is being tied into a single, massive recycling system. Household and industrial waste from everywhere in the state will be taken to a number of centralized processing centers, where recoverable materials will be removed and the rest will be shredded and burned to produce electrical power.

According to authorities of the State Health Department, Texas could have a system similar to Connecticut's—but, of course, a great deal larger. Such a system could save the people of Texas literally millions of dollars a year. The savings could come from a number of sources: first, there would be no need for costly incinerators to burn garbage; second, there would be no need for sanitary landfill operations, which are usually expensive to operate; third, the recovered materials probably would be valuable enough to pay for the entire system. It's even conceivable that your friendly neighborhood trash collector would pay you for the privilege of hauling away your garbage. Finally, electrical power could be produced from the left-over garbage, thereby conserving more valuable fuels such as oil, gas, and coal.

You probably have never realized that your kitchen wastebasket holds a veritable treasure. But, environmental health specialists of your Texas State Department of Health want you to know that "garbage-power" is a reality today. That's why the Health Department says, "Don't waste it—recover it. It's too valuable to go to waste."

Social Security

By Travis C. Briggs

Q—I am 23 years old and I became disabled three months ago in an accident on my job. I had worked on the same job for four years and my earnings were reported by my employer each quarter. Have I worked long enough to qualify for social security benefits if I am found to be disabled?

A—Yes. For a person who becomes disabled before age 24 he needs credit for only 1½ years of work in the 3-year period before he becomes disabled. If you have not already done so, you should call the social security office nearest you and tell the person who answers the phone that you wish to file an application for disability.

Q—I have recently married and both my husband and I are in our 20's. Our jobs are covered under social security. As his wife I understand that I could qualify for benefits on his work record in case of his death, disability, or retirement. If this is true, why must I contribute to the social security funds from my salary?

A—While it is mandatory that all who work under covered employment contribute to program funds, in most cases there are definite advantages even when both the husband and wife contribute. When you are ready to retire you might qualify for higher benefits based on your own work record. Both you and your children could receive disability based on your work record if you should become disabled. Also, if you should die while your children are still young, they could receive monthly survivor benefits on your work record.

Q—in a few weeks I'll be changing my job and moving to another State. Should I notify a social security office of my new address?

—No, not unless you're getting social security checks. Social Security doesn't keep up-to-date records of your mailing address until you start getting benefits. Regardless of where you work or live, social security keeps one central record of your earnings in work covered by social security. You use the same social security number in any State, and your number and name are enough to credit your earnings to your record no matter where you are.

Q—Can I hold my Social Security checks, or is there a time limit on cashing them?

A—There is no time limit, but social security checks should be cashed within a reasonable time to prevent loss or theft. Most retired people need the money as soon as the check is received. If you do not, you might consider depositing them in a savings account where they will earn interest.

Q—My 20-year old daughter is a sophomore in college and receives social security benefits as a student. She is planning to marry but will continue to attend school full time. Will the marriage affect her benefits?

A—Yes, it will. Her social security benefits will terminate the month before her marriage. Any checks received after her marriage must be returned.

DIABETES

Diabetes is a scare word for many people—conjuring up thoughts of coma, early death or a lifetime regimen of shots and measuring your diet.

There's no use denying that diabetes is a serious disease. It does rank among the top 10 causes of death in Texas, reports the State Health Department. And, it is one of the three leading causes of blindness.

But today the greatest fear from diabetes should be in having the disease and not knowing you have it. Once it is out in the open, you can receive treatment.

The Health Department went looking for diabetes recently in two South Texas counties—and found it. Special free clinics were held in the offices of private physicians and Health Department clinics in Starr and Hidalgo Counties. Television message urged people to avail themselves of these tests.

In the two counties, 835 persons hearing the messages responded for the simple tests. Of these, 136 had positive high blood sugar.

In addition to the 835, another

440 persons received diabetes blood tests at regular Health Department clinics. In the six weeks following the short campaign, another 269 persons were screened at clinics or by private physicians.

Control of diabetes today is so effective that most people who have it need not be seriously impaired. Diabetics are found in athletes, businessmen, housewives, factory workers, politicians, farmers, growing children. And all can lead worthwhile, productive lives. Their lives are being prolonged dramatically—as long as they take the extra care necessary to keep diabetes from taking its rapid toll if unchecked.

Just what is diabetes? Medical authorities don't know exactly what causes it, and they can't cure it. But they can help a person live with it. They know that the diabetics pancreas produces either no insulin or not enough to utilize properly the sugars and starches he eats. This in turn interferes with the body's handling of fats and protein. Sugar build-up in the body can lead to serious consequences—poor circulation, heart disease, blindness, infection, kidney failure, high blood pressure, stroke. Some of the overt symptoms may be loss of weight, excessive thirst, tiredness, frequent urination, excessive appetite.

Diabetes can cause an accumulation of problems before the victim becomes aware of them. That's one reason public health officials and private physicians urge everyone to be sure of their own conditions. A blood or urine test can give you the answer.

There are certain high risk factors which make a person more likely to get diabetes. It's these high risk individuals who need the test most of all. Heredity is one of the risk factors, if there is a history of diabetes in your family. But ask yourself these other questions. Are you 45 or older? Are you overweight—obese? Have you had any babies that weighed over nine pounds at birth?

Every "yes" answer increases your chance of having diabetes, and it should compel you to have a checkup to be sure. Even if you aren't a person at high risk, don't you want to know for sure that you aren't one of the two million hidden diabetics in this country? Your State Health Department urges you to take this step toward good health—now and in the future.

Q—I bought a house in 1954 with a maximum loan guaranty of $7,500 from the Veterans Administration. Do I have more entitlement coming, since the current loan guaranty maximum is $12,500?

A—Yes. You still have entitlement equal to the difference between $12,500 and $7,500, or $5,000 in loan guaranty.

Q—My mother receives dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC) from the Veterans Administration based on the service-connected death of my father during World War II. Is she eligible for aid and attendance benefits, since she is ill and requires almost constant attention?

A—Probably yes. A $55 monthly aid and attendance allowance, in addition to regular benefits, is available to widows who draw DIC, if they are: patients in nursing homes, helpless or blind, or so nearly helpless or blind as to require regular aid and attendance of other persons.

Q—I received an honorable discharge from the Army two years ago, and plan to live abroad starting next year. A friend of mine told me I should check with the Veterans Administration before departure. Why?

A—To be appraised of how residence abroad affects your veterans' benefits. For one thing, you should get a statement of your service-connected disabilities (if you have any) from the VA office which maintains your medical records. The statement and an application for medical benefits should be presented to the American Embassy or consular office in the country of travel or residence, should the need arise.

Stormproof Sorghum: Priority Goal of Seed Researchers

Every sorghum grower knows how heavy rains, wind, sleet, and snow can turn fields into a harvesting nightmare. Down sorghum is money down the drain. It not only turns your grain harvest into misery — it also puts a strain on your combine and uses up extra fuel.

What are seed scientists doing about it? At the Northrup King research centers, sorghum with superior standability is the prime objective of continuing programs of seed testing. We're seeking to develop varieties with outstanding root and stalk strength — that extra margin of toughness that helps plants to stand firm when bad weather rolls in to endanger harvests.

Plant scientists at Northrup King have spent years in thorough screening of all available plant materials, isolating sorghum strains with the genetic pattern that means super standability: strong stalks and deep, penetrating roots. These outstanding performers are then carefully crossed with strains that are especially desirable for another quality: high production of plump yellow endosperm grain. This combination of superior standing strength and high yields means you can plant these new varieties with improved chances of a good harvest regardless of the weather ahead.

One of the best varieties to emerge from NK's research program is NK222G, a medium late hybrid sorghum that has chalked up an impressive record under the worst harvest conditions. This robust, smut resistant hybrid is particularly well adapted to areas with plenty of moisture and fertility, lots of heat, and a long growing season.

As yet there's no such thing as a completely weatherproof harvest, of course. But you can assure yourself of the closest thing to it... by planting varieties scientifically bred to stay upright and harvestable when the weather turns sour.

UPRIGHT STANDS of improved sorghum varieties permit easy combining even when adverse weather conditions delay harvest far beyond normal periods.

Farm Wage Changes

Farm workers covered in recent federal legislation can expect an increase in the minimum wage from $1.30 to $1.60 an hour. The new law went into effect May 1. The minimum wage will increase to $1.80 on January 1, 1975; to $2 on January 1, 1976; to $2.20 on January 1, 1977; and to $2.30 on January 1, 1978. An employer who hired as much as 500 man-days of farm labor in any one quarter of 1973 is obligated to pay at least the minimum wage to all labor in 1974, points out an economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN — Want to look 10 years younger, with a smooth, wrinkle-free skin or a full head of hair?

There are some commercial establishments that promise all this and more. They offer such things as face peeling and suture implantation to hold hairpieces.

Unfortunately, some doctors say, what they may also inadvertently deliver to some persons is a discolored, scarred face or an infected scalp.

The court of inquiry held in Dallas last summer to examine practices in the health and beauty industry revealed that some reducing spas offered such related services as face peeling, sometimes called "chemotherapy."

Some establishments claim to use "secret chemical formulas" to peel off the outer skin, theoretically leaving smooth, youthful skin free of wrinkles and blotches.

But no matter what the "secret formula," the process invariably involves applying some caustic chemical (often carbolic acid) to the face to, in effect, "burn away" the top layer of skin.

Plastic surgeons and other physicians sometimes regard the process as a helpful procedure when performed under medical supervision by trained personnel on certain individuals after extensive skin tests. It is sometimes used after a surgical face lift to remove any tiny scars.

However, at the court of inquiry, doctors testified that in the hands of unskilled individuals, the process could result in pain, swelling, redness, and blis-ters. More permanent damage could include infection, scarring, and an inability to stand sunlight.

The Federal Trade Commission has ordered several face peeling establishments to tell prospective customers in their advertising and promotional material just what is involved in the peeling process, and what it can lead to.

But the idea of being able to "peel away" the years seems to have attracted many people. The procedure should only be used after consultation with your personal doctor, however.

Our Consumer Protection attorneys remind consumers, too, to read any contract or agreement carefully, since it may contain disclaimers that release the individual or establishment offering the service from certain responsibilities.

Another service designed to appeal to the desire to look younger or more attractive is "suture implantation." This is a procedure which involves implanting wire or plastic in the scalp to hold a hairpiece securely.

The FTC says there is a high probability of discomfort and pain, and a risk of infection or scarring, since the sutures remain in the scalp permanently.

Your personal physician is the best source of information about this or any other health or beauty procedure about which you may have questions. Consult him before embarking on an "improvement" program that might possibly leave you in worse shape than you started.

And remember these things if you do decide to enter into an agreement for certain services:

- (1) Read all material carefully before signing;
- (2) If you are promised something, be sure to "get it in writing";
- (3) Never sign any contract with blank spaces in it; and
- (4) Never be pressured into signing.

If you have a consumer problem, consult the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, your county or district attorney, or your local Better Business Bureau.

TP&WD Officer Named To The Executive Committee

A Texas Parks and Wildlife Department law enforcement officer has been named to the executive committee of an organization whose members are charged with administering state boating laws.

Charles Talbert, the department's boating law administrator and supervisor of water safety enforcement, was named to the committee at the annual conference of the Southeastern States Boating Law Administrators in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

The organization's members confer on matters of uniform education procedures; reciprocal boating laws between states; methods of reducing boating accidents, injuries and fatalities; state and federal legislation; acquisition of federal funds and other matters that will assist the boater while at home or in another state.

Recommendations from the organization are forwarded to the National Association of Boating Law Administrators, the United States Coast Guard (the national liaison for boating laws), and state and federal congressmen for their consideration.

Uniformity of boating laws throughout the nation is a prime concern of all member states in the southeastern organization. These states include Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee, Texas, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Sierra Nevada, in English means snowy range.

Differences Between Striped & White Bass

With more and more fishermen hauling striped bass out of Texas lakes, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is getting an increasing number of inquiries on how to tell the difference between striped bass and white bass.

Although they may appear similar to uninitiated fishermen, there are quite a few differences, according to department officials.

The most visible means of identifying striped bass and white bass is by looking at the stripes on both species. All the stripes on the striped bass run from the gills to the tail fin. The stripes on a white bass stop short of the tail fin.

Also, the striped bass is a more streamlined fish than the fatter white bass. The body depth of the striped bass is less than one-third the body length, while body depth of the white bass is more than one-third its length.

A third way to tell the difference between striped bass and white bass is by measuring the second anal spine of the fish. It will measure about one-third of the length of the head of the white bass, measuring from the tip of the nose to the point of the gill covers. On the striped bass, the spine will be about one-fifth the length of the head.

Handle Social Security Business By Phone

Most people find that they can now handle their social security business by telephone, reports Travis C. Briggs manager of the Amarillo Social Security Office.

Reports of change of address, death, marriage, divorce, and student attendance changes are some examples of business that can be transacted by telephone. In many instances, even applications for benefits can be filed by telephone.

Phone service allows quicker processing and prevents long waits at busy offices. During our fuel shortage, it has also helped to save gasoline.

Don't forget that your Social Security Office can be as near and convenient as your telephone. The Amarillo Social Security Office is located at 317 East Third and the telephone number is 806-376-2241.
