

Red Doherty of Hedley came to town Friday and brought a basket of his early peach crop. We didn't know that there was much fruit that made it through the late freeze but trust Red. If anybody makes a peach crop he does. The peaches were of the Marcus variety, a yellow cling peach, and were very tasty. Red reports that he has no big crop this year but expects to have eating peaches throughout the season, possibly as late as October. Thanks, Red!

Hedley (Texas) Bank Now Owned By Security Bankshares

Security Bankshares, Inc., Waco-based bank holding company, has completed acquisition of Security State Bank in Hedley, Texas, with all stock of the bank now transferred. Federal Reserve approval of the acquisition was obtained on March 1.

"As a wholly owned subsidiary of Security Bankshares," Michael Vaughn, president of the holding company said, "Security State in Hedley can receive increased lending capability, integrated marketing and other customer services, plus management development and personnel planning assistance." He continued that "Security State now can provide better competition in its fast-growing area of the southeast Texas Panhandle, and offer strengthened financial muscle for its customers' needs."

Security State Bank, according to Vaughn, has grown from $1.3 million in total assets to $4 million in just three years. "Stable economic conditions in the Hedley area (located in Donley County between Clarendon and Memphis) give favorable growth potential to the bank," he added.

Vaughn said that Security Bankshares' acquisition of City State Bank of Wellington (a $6 million bank 28 miles east of Hedley), has been approved by shareholders, and application will be made shortly to the Federal Reserve for approval. Melvin Boothe of Clarendon serves as president of both Security State in Hedley and City State of Wellington. A 25-year veteran of the banking business, Boothe also is a director of Security Bankshares, Inc.

"Melvin Boothe being a member of our holding company board is an example of one of our corporate plans," Vaughn said. "The president or chief executive officer of each Security Bankshares affiliate will be a board member of our corporation," he said.

State Capitol Highlights and Sidelights

By BILL BOYKIN

Some of the Constitutional Convention's hottest debate is yet to come.

Explosive potential of the general provision article already has been demonstrated in preliminary rounds, and the right-to-work section should produce the biggest bang of all.

Organized labor, headed by State AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard, stands four-square against writing right-to-work provisions into the new constitution.

A new statewide citizens committee with formidable political and financial muscle has been formed to lobby for placing right-to-work on the ballot as a separate issue from the overall constitutional revision.

The Texas right-to-work law, dating back to 1947, prohibits union contracts which would require union membership as a condition to getting and keeping a job.

Baylor University President Dr. Abner McCall is chairman of the Texas Right-To-Work Committee which opened offices near the state capitol recently. Houston school teacher Mrs. Margaret Wisdom is the co-chairman.

Other big-name Texans, including a scattering of industrial leaders, Republicans, conservative Democrats and Gov. Dolph Briscoe's campaign manager, Austin attorney Joe Kilgore, are on the committee roster.

COTTON THREATENED — Drought which destroyed High Plains dryland wheat is now threatening this year's cotton crop, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White fears.

White said High Plains cotton production could be cut almost in half because of dry weather.

The High Plains last year produced an estimated 2.9 million bales of cotton. More than 2.7 million acres of cotton were planted in the area, and 1.1 million were dryland acres. Irrigation costs are running $35 - $60 and acre and irrigation fuel which cost 10 cents a gallon last year now costs 27-29 cents.

COURTS SPEAK — Evangelist Lester Foloff did not have to get licenses from the state to operate child care facilities, since fewer than six of the children were under 16, the Texas Supreme Court held.

The High Court also set for review the case of a Bee County worker held eligible for permanent, total disability assistance due to ailments resulting from a cut finger and severed tendon.

U. S. Supreme Court will hear the Texas appeal in the House single-member district case. Texas Court of Criminal Appeals invalidated as unconstitutional a state juke box fee found to favor larger operators.

Same Court threw out a Houston man's murder conviction, ordered a new trial for another Houston man convicted of robbery by assault and reversed (on grounds of double jeopardy) a Dallas man's 25-year sentence for beating a teenager.

STUDY ORDERED — Speaker Price Daniel Jr. has ordered a "thorough study" of the Texas Water Quality Board by the House Committee on Environmental Affairs.

The investigation will cover the agency's administration, operation and enforcement of environmental standards.

While inquiry actually will not get under way until the Constitutional Convention adjourns, advance planning and research by staff members is already under way.

Rep. Carlos Truan of Corpus Christi and 44 other representatives petitioned for the investigation May 15.

The standing sub-committee on pollution of the Environmental Affairs panel actually will conduct the study. The House Judiciary Committee will further consider administrative operations of TWQB in its overall review of administrative agency procedures.

Daniel said purpose of the investigation is to "get all of the facts and to lay the basis for any remedial legislation or administrative action which may be needed."

APPOINTMENTS — Ruben R. Cardenas of McAllen was appointed by Governor Briscoe to the Pan American University board of regents and Leonel Garza Sr. and Morris Atlas of McAllen reappointed.

Other recent appointments by Briscoe included:

Charles W. Darter of Wellington as 100th district attorney; Mrs. Tom B. Simmons Jr. of Lubbock to the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission; Richard C. Rolad of La Feria and Jim Mathis of Edinburg to the Rio Grande Valley Pollution Control Authority board of directors; Homer Bryce of Henderson to the board of regents of Stephen F. Austin State University and Robert H. Lackner Jr. of Brownsville to the Texas Conservation Foundation.

Harry C. Heyman assumed new duties June 1 as director of the Amarillo State Center for Human Development.

WIRE SHORTAGE THREATENS — A serious baling wire shortage may cause economic hazards, Agriculture Commissioner White warned.

James Madison agreed to declare war on Great Britain in 1812, if elected president.

Plymouth Duster.
More miles per gallon than Nova, Maverick, and Mustang II.

In recent U.S. Auto Club tests, Duster's Slant 6 got better gas mileage on the open road than the Nova and Maverick 6. And, in city driving, even got slightly better mileage than the 4-cylinder Mustang II. The mileage tests were sanctioned and the results were certified by the U.S. Auto Club. The test Duster was equipped with standard transmission, standard 2.76 fuel-saving axle and open-road testing was done at a constant speed of 55 miles per hour. All of which proves that our Duster is an economy car superstar. Come in and see us now.

...Priced less than VW Super Bug.

The manufacturer's suggested sticker price for Plymouth Duster is actually less than Volkswagen's Super Bug. The prices, naturally, don't include comparable destination charges, state and local taxes or dealer prep charges. Even though you pay less for Duster, you get a lot more. For example, Duster has room for five inside. VW—only four. Duster's got three times the trunk space of VW. And Duster's got an electronic ignition that virtually eliminates ignition tune-ups. VW doesn't even offer one.

Duster gas mileage and price. Two ways we're out to win you over to Duster this year.

Our Beloved Mother

A precious one from us has gone
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our hearts,
Which never can be filled.
God in his wisdom has recalled
The boom his love had given,
And though the body slumbers
here,
The soul is safe in Heaven.

lined with hurricane lights swagged with white daisies and satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an old-fashioned nineteenth century gown of silk organza accented in Venice lace. The moulded bodice featured a high Victorian neckline with a stand-up fold of fabric edged with the lace. The long, full sleeves were softly gathered to wide lace edged cuffs with button and loop closure. The near-natural waistline was defined in lace and the entire gown was striped with vertical rows of lace. The controlled, bell-shaped skirt was encircled in a deep flounce which was attached with lace. She wore a bonnet style cap of matching lace. Her long chapel length veil was banded in Venice lace and she carried a cascade bouquet of white sweet-heart roses, stephanotis, and baby's breath, accented by pink roses and white picot ribbon trim.

Maid of honor was Miss Maelyn Cator of Lubbock, Texas. Bridesmaids were Miss Theresa Webb of Dallas, Mrs. Jo. Schollenbarger of Claude, Miss Tanya Wells of Corpus Christi, and Miss Renee Hilburn of Columbus, New Mexico.

Attendants wore floor length gowns of pink veil with flocked daisies. The dresses featured puffed sleeves, scooped neckline accented by a ruffle softly gathered skirts with deep flounce. Each wore a wide brim pink hat trimmed with pink daisies and carried a cascade arrangement of pink and white Marguerite daisies, baby's breath with greenery and pink satin trim.

Flower girls were Miss Paige Hilburn of Columbus, New Mexico and Miss Amber Dawn Hilburn of Bowie, Arizona. Miss Wanda Hilburn of Bowie, Arizona registered guests at a circular table covered with a floor length cloth of pink satin with an overskirt of pink swagged with white chiffon. Centering the table was a silver candelabrum holding an arrangement of pink daisies.

The groom was attended by his father, Lloyd Risley. Groomsmen were Monte McAnear of Clarendon, Kent Hilburn, brother of the bride, of Bowie, Arizona, David Bass of Hart, and Gary Pool of Groom. Junior ushers were Ross Hilburn, brother of the bride, of Denver City, and Chris Schollenbarger of Claude, nephew of the groom.

Mrs. Mary Watson of Denver City, organist, presented nuptial music. Soloists were Miss Jerrilla Cate of Galveston and Miss Maelyn Cator of Lubbock. Miss Cator sang "Walk Hand In Hand," and Miss Cate sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "Wedding Prayer."

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Hilburn chose a light green floor length gown and white accessories. The groom's mother wore a floor length gown of pastel blue and white accessories.

The wedding reception was held in Fellowship Hall of the church. The rectangular serving table was covered with a white satin floor length cloth and an overskirt of white silk illusion with re-embroidered lace and seed pearls. The floral arrangement was white summer flowers in antique silver. The bride's three foot colonaded cake was decorated with confection roses, azalea blossoms, Stephanotis, and Lily of the Valley in shades of pink. Appointments were silver. Presiding at the table were Mrs. Linda Neff of Lubbock and Mrs. Iris Cate of Plainview.

During the reception music was furnished by Mrs. Dallas Brewer of Denver City at the piano and Miss Dormage Brewer, the flute.

As a traveling costume, the bride wore a white coat and dress ensemble trimmed in navy, and white accessories. Miss Connie Schollenbarger of Claude, niece of the groom, and Miss Suzanne Wells of Corpus Christi carried baskets of rose petals for the guests to toss at the couple as they departed for a honey moon trip to the Gulf Coast.

Reaping Requires Sowing

By: Weldon Rives, Pastor
First United Methodist Church

GALATIANS 6:9 — "Let us not be weary in well doing; for in due season we shall reap of we faint not."

Farmers everywhere are busy trying to get their crops planted — hoping to get them up between rains. If you stop and think for a moment you might agree that their theme song might be:

Sowing in the morning,
sowing seeds of kindness,
Sowing in the noontide,
and the dewey eve;

Waiting for the harvest,
and the time of reaping,
We shall come rejoicing, bringing in the sheaves.

One thing the farmer's life teaches us is that unless there is a planting there can be no harvest. The seed must be put into the ground and properly cared for before there can be any harvest in the fall. Therefore, what the farmer does now and what he does on through the growing season is very decisive in the harvest season. No one would doubt that.

It is too bad that more people don't realize that this is equally true in the realm of the Spirit.
I can show you a great host of persons who do not yield to the discipline of the Christian Faith although they call themselves Christian. Their attitude is like one who calls himself a farmer but who never plants the seed and then wonders why he has no crop to gather; or one who sows the seed but does not tend them during the growing season and wonders why the weeds have grown up and choked out his crop so that he has no harvest. I cannot understand why one can ignore the teachings of Christ for obedience, service, discipline, etc., to prove that his commitment is valid and yet claims to be a Christian. This is trying to make discipleship to Christ according to our desires so that we can cast off that which we do not like rather than bending ourselves under the yoke of Christ.

We cannot hope to hear the Lord God say unto us "Well done thou good and faithful servant!"
(Matthew 25:21) as long as we decide what is and what is not required of us as disciples of Christ. As long as we insist on this right we can only expect to hear the Lord say "Thou wicked and slothful servant!" (Matthew 25:26), and to the guardians of righteousness he'll command
"cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness: there shall be weeping & gnashing of teeth" (Matthew 25:30).

God in Jesus Christ has made it plain that we cannot inherit the Kingdom of God on our terms.
We have to accept His terms in faithful obedience!

Peace

To live honestly within your by holding on to your ideals when it causes you to be looked upon as strange and peculiar.

To be talked about, and yet remain silent when a word would justify you in the eyes of others, but which you cannot speak without injury to another.

To refuse to do a thing which is wrong though others do it.
To dress yourself within your income, and to deny what you cannot afford to buy.
To live always according to your convictions.

Mother nature has many faces. In spite of all her gentleness there is a destructive side as well. Consider, for example, the tornado, one of the deadliest phenomena in nature.

Many of these violent storms occur during the springtime, when the earth is waking from its winter slumber. The destructive, whirling wind may strike almost without warning and seemingly at random, sweeping everything out of its way a whiplash tail that moves in a narrow path across the land.

At one time, about all that people could do to guard against being killed or injured by a tornado was to be on the alert for tornado weather and to move underground — into a storm cellar — when conditions warranted.

While oldtimers had to rely on experience to assess the possibility of a tornado, electronics plays a major part in today's alert system. Radar storm warning sets are used in almost all major cities in the state. These stations are connected by teletype and radio. Any station is able to instantly apprise all other stations of tornado activity and the path of a tornado. Then, all communities in the vicinity of the twister can be warned of the tornado's approach through normal channels of communications, or through special warning devices.

The Texas State Department of Health has joined with other state and federal agencies and medical associations in efforts aimed at disaster preparedness. It is ready to go into action in any emergency.

If worse comes to worst, and a tornado does strike a community, the State Health Department can provide vaccine, public health engineering, medical emergency nursing know-how, and other vital services, to stem the threat of disease or further complications while disaster relief is underway.

One of the best examples of public health action following a highly destructive tornado occurred in Lubbock, four years ago.

Although storm warnings were in effect, the tornado which actually hit the city appeared out of nowhere — forming just above the downtown section at 10 p.m. One of the first things knocked out was the emergency warning system.

With much of Lubbock's communication system knocked out, the health department staff and other city personnel were on their own in following the emergency procedures that had been established in advance. Vaccines and other medical supplies were dug out of the demolished health department building for transfer to an emergency clinic.

State Health Department engineers and other personnel arrived on the scene early the next morning. Food and drug investigators were assigned to Lubbock immediately and within a week had disposed of all spoiled foods and drugs. A large supply of tetanus vaccine was sent by the Health Department laboratories. Rapid insect control activities were vital because of the large amounts of rain.

As in all similar disasters, the one great lesson learned was the value of being prepared.

Over the years, the National Weather Service has developed a system to accurately report severe weather conditions. The public is informed by radio and television advisories.

For tornado activities, the terms used are "Tornado Watch," indicating the possibility of a tornado; "Tornado Warning," meaning that a tornado has been reported in the general area; and "Tornado Alert," meaning to act fast, that a tornado is known to be in the area.

What can you do in the face of a tornado alert?

If it's daylight, or if you can see the funnel advancing toward you, you may have time to move out of its path. If you have a storm cellar, you should move into it.

If you can't get out of the way and you don't have a storm cellar, you can still protect yourself.

In homes, open some windows and then keep away from them. Get to the center of the house, or to a basement if there is one. In schools, move to prearranged shelter areas. Post a lookout if it can be done safely.

In shopping areas, go to designated shelter areas.

In mobile homes, evacuate the area. If no shelter is nearby, leave the trailer park for low protected ground.

In open country, move away from the twister's path. If there isn't enough time, lie flat in the nearest depression with hands shielding your head. If heavy rains accompany the twister, be alert for flash flooding.

VISIT KIN

Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Landers of Strawn, nephew of Mr. Quattlebaum, visited Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Quattlebaum Monday.

The Consumer Alertby John L. Hill
Attorney General

Vacation bound? There's a chance you might also be heading for trouble if you haven't taken certain precautions before leaving home.

Law enforcement experts and our Consumer Protection Division attorneys say that what is vacation time for most folks is working time for many burglars, pickpockets, and con men.

They suggest that you plan in advance to burglar-proof your home and to guard against possible thefts or consumer frauds on your trip. While the number of such occurrences is small compared to the number of vacations, it only takes one bad experience to ruin a trip.

There's a list of things to attack before you leave:

Stop mail, newspaper, and other deliveries.

Tell a neighbor or your apartment manager that you will be gone and ask them to keep an eye on the place.

Leave a few lights on or buy an automatic timer to turn certain lights on and off each evening.

Cut your lawn just before leaving and, if you will be gone a long time, have someone cut it while you're away.

Check all windows and doors to make sure they are locked. A sliding glass patio door can be more securely fastened by wedging a stick at the top or bottom of the door.

Check with your local police if you plan an extended vacation. Many forces offer a "close patrol" of homes where persons are away. If your police force does, you will need to tell them what cars or persons, if any will be making authorized visits to your house.

Have your telephone put "on vacation." Your callers will be told that the telephone has been temporarily disconnected at your request, and you can have them referred to another number if you wish.

Avoid mentioning to casual acquaintances or strangers that you will be on vacation. Also, avoid telling your newspaper's society editor of your trip until you have returned.

Before leaving, engrave all valuables in your home and those you will be taking with you in the car with your driver's license or social security number. Some police forces will loan you an engraver to mark your belongings and will register your number on their master list. This may discourage burglars from taking your goods and can make identification of recovered stolen goods much simpler.

After taking precautions to secure your home from burglars while you are gone, don't let down your guard when you get into the car and drive away. There are a few things to remember during your trip too:

Make sure you have had your car serviced and thoroughly checked before leaving and always get out of the car to watch when having it serviced on the road. There are a few unscrupulous persons who sometimes take advantage of tourists with out-of-state license plates. If your car was given a clean bill of health before you left, you can better evaluate warnings about faulty fuel pumps, air filters, batteries, etc.

Take travelers' checks or use credit cards, and keep a list of your credit card numbers in a safe spot.

Men should avoid keeping bill-folded in back pockets, or at least button the pocket if possible. To discourage pickpockets, use the inside coat pocket or a money belt.

Women should select a purse with a secure clasp or zipper and keep a hand over the opening when carrying it.

Don't wear usually expensive or flashy jewelry or display large rolls of bills.

Never boast of wealth or possessions or tell strangers your home town or address.

Check valuables at your hotel desk for safekeeping.

You could be taken advantage of in more subtle ways, too. Many people spend large amounts of their money on vacation souvenirs without examining them carefully. Many souvenir items are cheaply made, over-priced, and of little or no practical value. Try to set a limit on the amount of money you spend on things you're likely to throw away or put in a closet later.

If you have a consumer problem, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, your county or district attorney, or your local Better Business Bureau.

Hot Weather Care For Pets

Pets deserve special consideration with the approaching summer weather, believes a veterinarian for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"A dog always should have access to shade and plenty of clean drinking water. He should be fed early in the morning when it's cool and again in the evening after the heat subsides a bit," says Dr. James Armstrong with the Texas A&M University System.

"Continue to exercise your pet but not in the heat of the day. Think of your own discomfort and treat your dog accordingly. That means brief exercise during the cool of the day, so the dog won't become overheated."

Food intake can be adjusted to exercise and energy used during hot weather. Like a human, a dog should not overeat or eat when he is hot or exhausted, advises Armstrong.

Cats that are running free will generally take care of their own needs for rest, exercise and discomfort. But they also should have constant access to shade and fresh drinking water.

Armstrong has a word of caution for those who take the family dog whenever they go, especially in hot weather. "If the car windows are open, the dog can leap out and be lost or hit by another car. If left in the parking lot with the windows closed or nearly closed, the dog can suffer intolerably as sun-reflecting windows quickly heat an automobile to extremely warm temperatures.

"Leave the dog home when you go shopping and when you go on vacation in the automobile," suggests the veterinarian. "At tourist stops and camping grounds your dog can be a nuisance."

The boarding kennel is best for your dog when you leave town, unless you have a friend who knows and likes the dog and will keep him while you're gone.

Plant Disease Handbook Available

All you ever wanted to know about plant disease is contained in the new "Texas Plant Disease Handbook."

The handbook has been prepared by plant pathologists for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and contains disease descriptions and approved chemical control recommendations for all major crops and ornamentals, points out Dr. Wendell Horne, Extension plant pathologist at Texas A&M University.

Sections of the handbook are tabbed for easy crops, vegetables, fruits, nuts, flowers, shrubs, lawn and turf, and trees.

The handbook also features a complete section on chemical disease control, with a listing of chemicals approved by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Horne notes that the handbook, which is in the form of a loose-leaf binder, will be updated periodically. At present a section on resistant varieties is being developed.

Information on the handbook is available from the Extension Plant Pathology Section, Plant Sciences Building, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843.

A copy is on hand at each county Extension office in the state, and Horne invites those interested in the handbook to check with their county agent for a review of the handbook.

Annual Park Entrance Permits Revamped

State park users will soon have the opportunity to purchase an annual park entrance permit designed much along the lines of vehicle inspection stickers.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Commissioners in their May meeting approved the concept of an annual permit which is valid for 12 months from the date of issuance.

The TP&W Department currently issues three types of annual entrance permits: $12 fee, $5 restricted fee valid at a designated park and a $12 group fee for youth organizations composed of individuals 17 years of age or under.

All such permits now expire Aug. 31 of each year.

Commissioners approved the implementation of the new system beginning Sept. 1, 1974, which will coincide with a similar policy for issuing fishing licenses.

Pinto Beans On The High Plains

Retail prices for dry pinto beans have soared over the dollar a pound mark, causing many High Plains farmers to think seriously about switching to this premier income producer.

"But hold on," says an agricultural economist, "That frijole probably will not produce that $1,000 per acre net profit. And there are sound reasons for this gloomy speculation."

Marvin Sartin, area specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, lists these facts:

The dry edible bean crop last year was poor. The acreage in the U. S. was down slightly from the previous year and yields were below average. Consumer interest in protein alternatives was spurred by high meat prices and meat boycotts. Foreign trade in dry beans was surging until the last few months.

"These factors spell increased demand and short supplies, which always create high prices," he says.

THIS YEAR

The March Planting Intentions Report showed dry bean acreage in the U. S. up almost 300,000 acres from 1973, a 20 percent increase, Sartin points out. With a return to normal yields and in spite of reduced carryover, the 1974-75 market season could see total supply of dry beans 15 percent greater than last year.

"Simultaneously, we are currently experiencing low farm prices for both beef and pork. Some reduction in retail near prices and consumers' adjustment to meat price levels will serve to decrease the demand for protein alternatives. Export of beans has slowed recently, and imports of beans, though small, have risen.

"The ultimate impact of these factors on bean prices is still uncertain. However, it seems safe to think that prices received by growers will be lower this fall even though they will probably not be as low as the 1971-72 period."

OTHER PROBLEMS

In addition to price problems, potential pinto producers also are facing other uncertainties the economist warns. The culture of this crop on the High Plains is open to question since little research is available. The unavailability of high quality or preferably certified seed of the proper varieties is also a problem, especially at the current costs for seed. Fertility requirements, planting date, irrigation management, and insecticide applications necessary for optimum yields are among the un-

Mary K. Hayes, a West Texas State University graduate, and Helen Estlack, a teacher in the Clarendon school system discuss courses offered in the summer session at West Texas State. They both enrolled last Monday to continue work on the masters degree. The Clarendon ladies are shown here completing registration forms.

known that farmers must deal with.

Sartin figures that the costs of producing pinto beans under irrigation (table 1) are similar to the production costs for cotton.

"The possibility of using beans as a catch crop following hilled out cotton looks attractive," he says. "However, late plantings would be handled differently, harvested later, and probably compete with beans produced in Colorado and Idaho. The market price could be substantially lower for these beans compared to beans harvested in later planting date."

The future of pinto beans on the High Plains is just a guess he emphasizes. However, beans are adapted over a wide geographical area, grain sorghum, and corn. While beans may work this year, their continued high profitability is questionable.

Cotton Injury From Hail

In her usual fickle ways Mother Nature keeps farmers guessing. About rain, about wind, or about temperature. Sometimes, though, its not what's going to happen that a farmer is concerned about but what has happened. A good example is hail and the damage it does to a crop. Where, how much and how badly was the crop damaged are the questions a producer ponders in this instance, and finally comes the big one, "Will I have to replant?"

"You don't make snap decisions when it comes to hail damage," says Dr. Robert B. Metzger, agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "It will always appear much worse than the actual damage immediately after the storm. In the case of cotton, the plants have a remarkable capacity to recover."

Already this year crops have been hit by hail, and no doubt more will be hit as the season progresses, Metzger predicts. If a producer's crop suffers hail damage, he will have to consider several factors in determining whether to replant. Among these are growth stage, type and extent of injury and seasonal conditions.

A first point to consider, the agronomist says, is how much of the field was damaged. A hail storm can reduce the plant population to only two seedlings per row foot in 40-inch rows, or 26,000 to 65,000 plants per acre, and the crop can still produce a normal yield, unless, of course, the crop is poorly distributed or has long skips.

Another point in determining whether to replant is how much damage there was to plants. The agronomist explains that plants having only traces of leaves will recover better than those with no leaves. But he emphasizes that a seedling with no leaves can still make a crop.

"If the stem is intact, free of large breaks and the seedling has sound buds, recovery is still possible although it will be slower than plants having at least some leaves."

"However, if the stem is shattered and the bark loosened or broken at points below the leaf buds, then recovery is impossible," the specialist warns.

After a hail storm, a sand-fighter should be run as soon as possible to prevent sand injury to vital buds on stubs left in the field. Quite often, he cautions, sand damage after a hail can do as much or more harm to young seedlings than the hail.

Any growth hinges either on the sound terminal bud (the growing point) or axillary bud located at the point of leaf attachment.

The specialist says that because of the young seedling's ability to recover, hail injury in May or June will cause less yield than in July and August when the plants are more mature and replanting becomes impossible.

"If the damage is suffered early, a crop can recover to the point that the injured plants are difficult to distinguish from undamaged plants," he adds. Also young cotton that survives early hail damage is often more mature at first frost than a crop that has been replanted.

"When a cotton field is totally destroyed," he says, "the producer has no choice but to replant, especially if it is damage occurs early in the season. But in most hail storms, the crop is usually only partially injured, making the decision more difficult."
