Congratulations on last week's Leader. It was very nice and the red headlines carried the season's spirit. I read each advertisement and enjoyed each yuletide greeting, also the cute Santa letters. I think the Donley County Leader is a fine paper and it does credit to Donley County.

Capitalism has a "New Look". And there is a bright quarter century ahead for the securities industry.

This is the view of Keith Funston, President of the New York Stock Exchange. Writing in the Commercial and Financial Chronicle, he observes that the growth in improvement and changes that have occurred in this industry in the past 25 years suggest that "on the basis of what we can envision right now, the next quarter century will be more challenging still."

Mr. Funston singles out the number of the probabilities. Most striking is the forecast that by 1989 there will be a nationwide shareowner family of over 45 million investors—at the last investors census, made in 1962, there were 17 million. Even so, he thinks the sights should be set higher, to 50 million 25 years from now.

It is anticipated that there will be a dramatic increase in turnover on the average trading day, and that more than a third of all listed stocks will be owned by financial institutions. Of top importance, there will be expansion, both in size and scope of the services the exchange and member firms provide the investing public.

It all adds up to a tremendously significant story—a story whose basic theme is the faith the American people have in the future of their country and its private enterprises and financial institutions. — Industrial News Review.

McAnear-McCleskey Nuptials Solemnized In Church Ceremony Saturday Evening

Miss Deanne Sue McAnear, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. McAnear, and Mr. Michael Finley McCleskey, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Breedlove, were united in marriage Saturday evening, December 26th, at the First Methodist Church, Clarendon, with the Rev. Robert S. Ely, pastor, reading the double ring ceremony.

Vows were exchanged before an altar centered with a gold cross and flanked with gold candlesticks bearing white candles. Wrought iron candelabra lighted with votive candles and decorated with white mums, holly, and white velvet streamers formed the background. The chancel rails and windows were lighted with votive candles among branches of evergreen. Urns of white mums with holly were atop white colonial columns. The bridal aisles were lighted and decorated with the same materials used at the altar.

Tapers were lighted by Don McAnear, brother of the bride, and Dan Ray, cousin of the bride.

Traditional wedding music was presented by Mrs. Bill Williams, organist, who also accompanied Mrs. John Payne as she sang "Because," and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal gown of peau de soie. The long tapered sleeve bodice was accented with a scalloped Sabrina neckline of reemboilered Alencon lace and seed pearls. The skirt was enhanced with shaped panels edged in the re-embroidered French lace. The back fullness fell into a chapel sweep. Her bou-fant veil of imported silk illusion was attached to a single self-fabric rose. The bride carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid, stephanotis, and frenched carnations.

Miss Connie Sue Martin was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Misses Susan McAnear, sister of the bride, Connie Jean Grady, Sharon Henson, and Mellicie McMurtry. Bridal attendants wore identical formal gowns of emerald green peau de soie with matching headpieces, and carried colonial bouquets of white glame-lia. Miss Connie McAnear, cousin of the bride was flower girl.

Sanford K. Skelton was best man and groomsmen were George McCleskey of Lubbock, cousin of the groom, Philip Abel, Lynn Spier, and Howard Talley. Ushering duties were assumed by the candlelighters, the groomsmen and Tim Ray, cousin of the bride.

Mrs. Don McAnear registered the guests.

A reception was held in Patching Club House with Misses Sue Turner and Jane McClendon, roommates of the bride, assisting at the table. Others included in the houseparty were Janice Smith, Sandy Deyhle, and Dolphia Vallance.

The bride traveled in a royal blue wool suit with black accessories and the white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

After a wedding trip to Colorado Springs and Denver, the couple will be at home in Denton, Texas where they are both students at North Texas State University.

Luci Baines Johnson Will Head March of Dimes Teen Program

Luci Baines Johnson, America's most famous teenager, will be honorary chairman of the 1965 March of Dimes Teen Age Program against birth defects. Luci, who has some very strong opinions about young people and their place in society, is leading a task force of thousands of young people in the fight against birth defects.

LUCI BAINES JOHNSON, the President's younger daughter, at her desk in the White House, as she began her duties as honorary chairman of the Teen Age Program of the 1965 March of Dimes.

"There are a lot of good and useful things we can do right now—without waiting to turn 21," she says.

Her opinion is confirmed by March of Dimes spokesmen. "Teen-age volunteers are among our most dedicated workers. Their interest, their contribution of time, talent and energy has been impressive. There can be no doubt that they have played a significant role in the conquest of polio."

Cites New Hope
The victory over polio gives us heart and hope that answers can be found in an indefinitely more complex disease area—birth defects. It is a problem in which young people have a special stake—not only because of the large percentage of babies born to mothers under 20 but because of the responsibility of the health of teenagers to that of their future children," Luci points out.

More than a quarter of a million seriously defective infants are born in this country each year—one every other minute—700 a day. The problem of birth defects is far greater than polio ever was.

Young people who have joined the Teen Age Program of the 1965 March of Dimes fight against birth defects will shoulder many responsibilities. Many are helping to carry out the public education program against birth defects. Others are assigned to help in various ways with the Mothers' March for the March of Dimes. Some help out at one of the more than 3,000 local chapters of The National Foundation-March of Dimes.

The purpose of the Teen Age Program (TAP) of the March of Dimes is to acquaint teenagers with the problem of birth defects—a major health problem which affects them, their families and their communities in which they live.

TAP also gives young people the opportunity to help solve these problems through year-round programs of education, service and fund raising.

Most TAP volunteers work through school or club groups, teaming up to work on planned projects or to initiate programs of their own.

Help Plan Programs
March of Dimes educational programs provide material for club and organization meetings. Films, publications and exhibits on the subject of birth defects are available for meetings. Local chapters can help plan a program and supply a speaker to discuss the problems of birth defects, new treatment techniques and research breakthroughs.

Through a program of Health Career Awards, many chapters of The National Foundation offer March of Dimes scholarships to attract students to the health fields. Ranging from $100 to $500 per year, these awards are "starter incentives" to help students begin their first year of professional study in the fields of medical social work, medicine, physical therapy, occupational therapy and nursing.

TAP service projects range from helping to distribute literature to being of service to patients and to helping raise funds for research and patient care.

Dances, Games Help
Teenagers have raised money for the March of Dimes by putting on dances, basketball games, contests of all sorts and sales of everything from balloons to garden seeds. Much of this money has gone into the establishment of 50 March of Dimes birth defects centers throughout the country.

These birth defects centers make diagnosis, evaluation and treatment available to their communities. So great is the birth defects problem, however, that the nation needs triple that number of centers, according to Dr. Daniel Bergsma, medical director of The National Foundation-March of Dimes.

As energetic members of The March of Dimes Teen Age Program, young people have proved that they are capable and eager to take greater responsibility in public service. With marriage and a family in their future, teenagers have a great personal interest in solving the problem of birth defects—these "accidents of nature" which add up to the biggest child health problem in this country today.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE 18th DISTRICT

By Congressman Walter Rogers

WHEN THE NEW CONGRESS CONVENES

Another term of Congress convenes on January 4, 1965. The preliminaries could provide fireworks that could be more spectacular than those events that take place after the Congress starts.

Prior to the commencement of each Congress, a caucus is held by the Democratic Party and the Republican Party. These are held separately and in secret. Sometimes they are held several days before Congress convenes, or on the morning of the day that Congress convenes. It is at this meeting that conflicts, disagreements, and controversies within the party are supposed to be discussed and reconciled. The discussions usually take place, but not always the reconciliations. It presently appears that there is a good chance for some head-knocking, knuckle-rapping, and bitter words in both party caucuses. The Democratic Party had been receiving quite a bit of publicity as to the conflicts that have been apparent for some time; namely, the move by one wing of the Democratic Party to scuttle some of the parliamentary rules and regulations under which the Congress operates. It appears that the major attempts will be directed at changing the rules by adding what is known as the 21-day rule.

When a bill is reported from a legislative committee such as Interstate and Foreign Commerce, Banking and Currency etc., it goes to the Rules Committee. The Rules Committee again considers the measure and must approve a resolution to permit the bill to be debated by the full Congress. Sometimes bills are never reported from the Rules Committee. The 31-day rule is a rule that provides generally for the Speaker of the House to bring before the House of Representatives a bill that has been before the Rules Committee for 21 days without action. This rule was adopted about 16 years ago and stayed in effect for several years, but was cancelled during my first term in Congress.

Another attempt will probably be made to change the membership on the Ways and Means Committee and the Appropriations Committee. At the present time the Ways and Means Committee has 25 members—15 Democrats because the Democrats have a majority in the Congress, and 10 Republicans because the Republicans are the minority party. The Appropriations Committee is a 50-member Committee constituted of 30 from the majority party and 20 from the minority party. The make-up of the other committees in the House (with the exception of the Rules Committee is determined by the ratio of party representation in the full House of Representatives. In other words, if the Democrats have two-thirds of the membership in the House, they are entitled to two-thirds of the membership of each of the legislative committees. The reverse would be true if the Republicans were in the majority. The proposals in the coming Congress may be to change the make-up of both the Ways and Means and the Appropriations Committee. The Republicans would have less members on each committee.

The heated controversies will not be confined to the Democratic caucus. The chances are that the all-out fight in the Republican caucus will be much hotter and more bitter. The announced intention of a number of the Republican members to oust their present leadership is already creating much discussion and controversy both inside and outside the House of Representatives. It would appear at the present time that this matter cannot be settled or reconciled without some political blood-letting, some deep wounds, and some hard-to-heal scars.

Our Christmas Card which travelled the farthest distance came from Anita Erikson who lives in Nykoping, Sweden ... The one from the person whose home is the longest distance from the Panhandle came from Captain Cho, Suck Hynn ... His home is in Korea but he is at Mathers Air Force Base in California. Christmas wishes and the spirit which it is sent seems to be the same everywhere ...

Mrs. W. E. Hundley of Claude sends us a handful of clippings which she has saved ... This one called delaying tactics reminded me of my grandson;

If you want your child to cling to you,
To hang on each word you've said,
To confide what he did, and wants to do,
Try sending him to bed ...

We may be getting old when we let regrets replace our dreams.

People who give the least, often have the habit of demanding the most.

The person that is loved by the very young can't be all bad. By this rule Ole' Santa Claus must be a very nice fellow.

A person with ten children may be happier than one with a million dollars. At least he wouldn't want to double his lot...

Most people have acres of possibilities, but only a small patch under cultivation.

It's alright to smile at the next person you meet ... Surely he will be pleased... However, if you should forget and laugh at him you might be in trouble...

One of the largest rooms in the world is the room for self improvement.

We like to think that our weaknesses are inherited, but that our accomplishments are our own ideas ...

A man may smile, and bid you "Hail!"

Yet wish you with the devil ... But when a good dog wags his tail

You know he's on the level.

The miser saved for his future Each penny he could possibly spare.

The future came along one day But the miser wasn't there.
