Cold Temperatures Cut Many Insect Numbers

The Arctic front that blasted Texas in February blew in some benefits for agriculture by reducing insect pests, said an expert with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Dr. John G. Thomas, an Extension entomologist, said the prolonged sub-freezing temperatures will have an enormous economic impact on insects affecting Texas and Texans.

"The below-freezing temperatures, which set new records or tied existing records for continuous cold hours in many parts of the state, should dramatically reduce many insect populations," Thomas said.

He said producers will realize considerably less damage and save on control costs. This often means that the consumer benefits as well.

Thomas said the extreme cold should have eliminated most of the active - and many hibernating or diapausing - individuals of many insect populations.

"When the Arctic air spread over Texas last week, many insects were very active as opposed to their usual winter diapause state. The cold caught them off-guard and killed many of them," Thomas said.

Thomas said cold temperatures are not the only factor that influences survival of biological organisms, however.

"Moisture or rainfall has a significant impact on survival of insects, along with availability of host plants to provide food and shelter. Other factors include whether the insects are cool season or warm season species, and the impact of parasites or predators on each insect family," Thomas said.

He said cold temperatures with dry conditions cause greater mortality than the same temperature with ample moisture.

Dr. Jonathan Edelson of Weslaco, vegetable entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, said the balmy early winter temperatures have allowed thrips to remain quite active on onions in the Rio Grande Valley this season.

Edelson said the cold snap in February caused them to slow down momentarily-but they have become active again with the return of warm weather.

"Thrips have reproduced throughout the warm winter season. We have no record of that happening previously. Usually, December and January are months of no or very limited egg laying," Edelson said. "This winter has been quite unique."

Thomas said another weather-related example concerns greenbug populations on the Texas High Plains.

"Greenbug populations increased through late November on wheat and other small grain crops. Producers sprayed a sizeable acreage as a result of the greenbug buildup," Thomas said.

He said in December and January, parasites and predators began to reduce greenbug populations significantly, and treatment with insecticides was no longer required in most fields.

Another insect pest of the Texas plains-the Russian wheat aphid-has increased steadily from November through February.

"This is most unusual. Generally, there is a slight increase in the wheat aphid populations in the fall. Then, the numbers begin to drop from mid-to-late December until about mid-February, when populations begin increasing again," Thomas said.

"This illustrates a difference in two populations of closely related insect species, the greenbug and Russian wheat aphid. The greenbug has numerous, effective parasites/predators which help control it. But the wheat aphid, which takes up residence in the curl of the leaf, is rather well protected against both parasitism and predation," Thomas said.

Another entomologist, Dr. Don Rummel, who works with cotton in the Lubbock area, said an ideal length for cold weather there would be 10 days-rather than the 5 or so recorded-in order to slow boll weevil activity on the Plains.

"We were quite dry, and the dry cold should have significant impact on boll weevil numbers. We will continue to monitor the situation as winter progresses," said Rummel, a scientist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

OTC Medicines May Relieve Insomnia

Insomnia - the inability to sleep during normal sleeping hours - is a problem reported by many individuals. Half the population experiences insomnia at some time. Sleep problems are commonly reported as being associated with excessive levels of stress and anxiety, changes in daily rhythm (e.g., vacations), depression; aging, pain, physical discomforts, and the consumption of certain foods or drink (e.g., caffeinated beverages). A recent Gallup poll of people over age 60 found that four out of ten were experiencing some type of sleeping problem (e.g., awakening several times during the night).

There are many physical and psychological causes of insomnia. Sleep problems may also be associated with taking certain prescription medicines (e.g., thyroid hormone, asthma preparations that have adrenalin-like properties, and stimulants such as the amphetamines).

OTC (over-the-counter) sleep medicines usually contain an antihistamine which may produce drowsiness. Antihistamines in these products include diphenhydramine, pyrilamine, doxylamine, and phenyltoloxamine. The effectiveness of OTC sleep product ingredients has been found to vary from individual to individual.

THE BULL,

THE BEAR

...OR THE BANKER?
Stock market investments can be very inviting. Everybody, it seems, knows "this guy" who knows "this other guy" who made a real killing in a big bull market. Of course, behind every Cinderella story there's another tale—of uncertainty and vulnerability.
Unfortunately, the stock market often takes a downward turn. The rampaging bull can become a lumbering bear, changing dreams of an easy "killing" into harsh reality.
Not so at our bank. In addition to an impressive range of investments—such as our new money market accounts—we offer things that stocks and mutual funds can't. Like risk-free protection of principal. Assured rates of interest. And the soothing security of Federal Deposit Insurance by the F.D.I.C.
So, while we won't promise to make you rich overnight—we will place a risk-free guarantee on your tomorrow.
That's the bare facts. With no bull. 1989 AMERICAN BANKERS ASSOCIATION

New Tree Book for Clarendon Nature Lovers

By Maggie Stewart

Clarendon nature lovers may be interested in a new book which has just been released. A new Field Guide Series has been published by Texas Monthly Press, "A Field Guide to Texas Trees" by Benny J. Simpson.

Simpson spent eleven years studying and writing about the beautiful trees found across the Texas landscape. Mr. Simpson's book is the first comprehensive book on Texas trees to use photographs. He captures the beauty of the trees in his color photographs. They are displayed and shown in a very distinctive way.

"A Field Guide to Texas Trees" is a guide to native trees of Texas, their natural history, species, common names and vegetational areas. The book also includes county distribution maps and ecological information about each tree.

Simpson studies and adapts native woody ornamental plants at the Texas A. & M. University Research and Extension Center in Dallas and at various sites around the state. He is a 1945 graduate of Matador High School. He attended Texas Tech University and received his B. S. degree in Agriculture.

In his book, Simpson said the potential number of native trees could be 305 if one added the current species, which is 222, an additional 24 possible species, 51 natives that are considered shrub, and extinct or lost native trees.

A tree is defined by Simpson as having "a single trunk or multiple trunks, growing 12 feet or more in height and being definitely wood. I found it very interesting that the trees in our area most commonly found along the Caprock, Canadian and the Red Rivers are called Celtis reticulata (Netleaf Hackberry), Populus deltoides var. occidentalis (Plains Cottonwood), Quercus mohriana (Mohr Oak) Juniperus penchoti (Pinchot Juniper), J. monosperma (One-seed Juniper), and J. scopulorum (Rocky Mountain Juniper).

The vegetation in our area is tallgrass on the deep sands with dominant species such as Little Bluestem, Sand Bluestem. This is only a few of the trees that I jotted down, but all the information in this book is very interesting and easy to find because of the numerous maps Mr. Simpson has included in his book. He also describes the trees as well as showing photographs of them.

Texas has 33 to 45 percent of the native tree species of the United States, but little is known about the native species except among professional botanists and taxonomists.

"A Field Guide to Texas Trees" can be purchased from your favorite book store or from Texas Monthly Press, P.O. Box 1569, Austin, Tx 78767 for $24.95.

The Azteca Inn of 1932

From time to time, I like to buy boxes full of old letters and papers at flea markets. Maybe it's because I'm naturally nosy about people. I really do enjoy reading through things that people have saved for years, thinking that someday they'd want the stuff. Sometimes there are some real surprises.

One of these came in a shoe box full of dusty, downright dirty papers that I bought for $5 not long ago. All the old greeting cards, mementos and letters belonged to members of a family from North Platte, Nebraska. What does this have to do with Texas, you ask? Well, two items were choice bits of Texana-for me at least.

According to the name on the little tablet, a trip diary I found in the box belonged to Cathryn L. Grady of North Platte. She kept it on a Christmas-time visit to Port Arthur in 1932. The tablet on which she kept her diary advertises the Chenier Business School at 577 Orleans Street in Beaumont.

Her notes show that Cathryn departed Kansas City by train for Port Arthur on the evening of Dec. 19. My guess is that she rode on the Kansas City Southern line.

The next day, Dec. 20, she wrote, "Spent the day on the train ... Arrived in Port Arthur at 1:15. Train 2 hr. late." Cathryn continued her running narrative with accounts of visiting schools, seeing the jetties, having meals with friends and relatives and going to picture shows.

The high point of the Nebraska girl's Texas trip came on Dec. 23. She and her friends drove to Beaumont, where the architecture impressed the small-town girl. "We rode around through the business and residential sections... Beaumont is about the size of Port Arthur and has wonderful buildings."

After seeing the sights, "Then we went to a Mexican cafe and had a real Mexican dinner." She was so impressed that she took home as a souvenir one of the typewritten menus, and that menu also ended up in the shoe box full of papers that I bought.

Cathryn's real Mexican cafe was the Azteca Inn, located at 918 Railroad Avenue in Beaumont. The menu tells us much about Mexican cuisine prepared for Anglo diners during the days of the Great Depression.

The "Special Dinner," the most expensive meal listed, consisted of tamales with chili, an enchilada, chili rellenos, taco, fried rice, desert, and choice of coffee, iced tea or milk, all for 75 cents. The more modest "Mexican Dinner" with only tamales, chili, enchilada, rice, tortillas, dessert and drink cost 50 cents.

A note appended at the bottom of the menu advises, "Please ask for hot sauce."

The a la carte section of the menu, a second sheet attached with a straight pin, included such food items as huevos rancheros for 30 cents, bowl of chili for 20 cents, and half a dozen tamales with chili for a quarter. Coffee, iced tea, milk and cokes were a nickel a glass.

Cathryn Grady, coming from the land of plain cooking in Nebraska, concluded her comments on the spicy meal at the Azteca Inn with the observation, "The food had a peculiar taste."

Medical Center News

by Vera Johnson

Each month we celebrate the residents birthday. We always ask the families to furnish the cakes, and we furnish the drinks, napkins & etc. We always enjoy their birthdays very much. We sang Happy Birthday to each one and make wishes for them.

We had three residents to celebrate their birthdays on January 17, 1989: Cora Cork 1-12-1903; Inez Skinner 1-14-1905; Pete Ariola 1-6-1912. We had 6 birthdays in February: Sallie Benson 2-5-1893; C.I. Castell 2-9-1903; Roy Blackman 2-21-1907; Johnnie Bryson 2-5-1893; Hazel Cummings 2-16-1897; Sybil Rattan 2-15-1918.

At our February Party February 21-1989 we had a very Happy and unusual celebration. Hazel Cummings celebrated with having 5 generations present to help celebrate her birthday. We had many family members present at both parties.

Also we wish to give special thanks to our V.F. W. Ladies Auxiliary #7782, for the very good and beautiful cookies they baked and served to our residents, Monday afternoon Feb. 27, 1989.

Ladies present for this occasion were Ellie Wilkerson, Carmen Wright, Wanda Dromgoole, Peggy Cockerham, Lorene Helton, Luz Taylor, and Marie Hill. (Peggy and Luz and Marie are also employees of the Medical Center) After the refreshments were served they were led in prayer by Carman Wright. The residents enjoyed this occasion very much. Also the VFW Group that came and brings special music for the residents is always enjoyed and appreciated very much.

Texas A&M scientist says 'safe' lead levels adversely affect children

COLLEGE STATION — Newly detected size changes in the brain cells of young guinea pigs suggest that low levels of lead now legally safe may be harmful to the immature mammalian brain, says a Texas A&M University scientist.

Effects of lead exposure on star-shaped cells called astrocytes had not previously been explored by health researchers, said Dr. Evelyn Tiffany-Castiglioni, who led the first major study using guinea pigs to simulate the effects of low-level lead on children.

"It's pretty clear that children are affected by low levels of lead," said Tiffany-Castiglioni.

Seventy-seven Years of Living

by JoAnne Sibley
English IV,2
February 15, 1950

Lucy Ann Horton Sibley, the author's grandmother, has never done anything to gain fame or fortune, but to her family she stands out ahead of the most important people. Mrs. Sibley never found life easy but worked hard to try to make it easy.

Mrs. Sibley was born in the fall of 1872 just after the Civil War when the South was under reconstruction. She was born in Franklin County, Alabama, on a farm. Mrs. Sibley's mother died when she was small and left four daughters to be cared for by her father. Mr. Horton remarried, and his wife became the mother of Mrs. Sibley. Mrs. Sibley's companions were her three sisters, her half-brothers, and her half-sisters. In Mrs. Sibley's school days the terms were short and usually when the crops were gathered. Mrs. Sibley received very little schooling. The subjects she studied were reading, writing, math, spelling, geography, history and grammar. Her favorite study was spelling.

In 1890, she was wooed and won by a suitor, Albert Sidney Johnson Sibley, who was named for the great Southern general in the Civil War. Mr. Sibley was a farmer and received twelve dollars a month. When the crops were gathered he worked in an iron ore mine. In 1891 a son was born to the family. With an addition to the family more money was necessary. This added to their reason for leaving Alabama.

In the winter of 1891, the family started to Texas by train. They carried only their clothes and bed clothes. A bed was shipped by express. The reasons for this journey were because of the people who were living around the mines and were doing so much meanness and a friend who was working on the Hensley ranch wanted to go to East Texas and wanted Mr. Sibley to take his place. The journey took forty-eight hours. The family arrived in Bowie, Texas, January 1, 1892. They were supposed to be met by Mrs. Sibley's uncle. They had written him a registered letter and he had failed to receive it because he had to sign for it and no one could bring it to him unless he did. They rented a wagon to take them to the ranch but had waited two days on Mrs. Sibley's uncle.

In 1892, they made their first home in Texas on the Hensley ranch, ten miles west of Jacksboro. Mrs. Sibley was very dissatisfied and lonesome here. She cried and was blue for about six months. She had never been away from her father for more than a month. She decided they were going to stay, and she had just as well be satisfied. They then moved to a farm owned by the same person. They made one crop here and then moved to Joplin, where they rented a farm. This was in 1893, and they remained here until 1904. Two sons and three daughters were born here. The eldest daughter died here of pneumonia when she was eighteen months old. The family house burned in 1900 and burned the eldest son. When he was lighting the stove the gasoline exploded and burned him severely. He was nine years of age when the accident happened. In 1904, they bought a farm nearby. Here one daughter was born. They remained here for five years. In 1909 they moved to Gibtown where Mr. Sibley ran a general merchandise store. They stayed here four years and two sons were added to the family. Many happy years were spent in Jack County, but the family again decided to move.

In 1913, the family, which now consisted of the mother, father, five sons, and three daughters, moved to Hedley in Donley County. They moved on a farm and remained here for seven years. A daughter and a son were born in Hedley. In 1917, the family bought their first car. This was a thrill for the whole family, and many quarrels arose over who would drive it. During the first World War the eldest son enlisted in the Army. The family knew he was going to the army so he did as he pleased the last few months home. The depression followed the war, and the family had difficulties in clothing and feeding the large family. In 1920, the family moved to the Martin community near Clarendon on what is now the Guy Sibley farm. In 1923, the youngest daughter died thus leaving only nine in the family. Mrs. Sibley returned to Alabama in 1928 when her father became ill with cancer. Mrs. Sibley had not been satisfied when she came to Texas, but she changed her mind completely when she returned. In 1934 at Christmas time the youngest son and child was killed in a car wreck. He was popular among his senior class and high school as well as in the community. When he was killed the whole community and the family were terribly grieved. In 1937 Mr. Sibley failed to wake. Mrs. Sibley was terribly grieved but bore her burden well. After Mr. Sibley passed away she kept the farm for six years, but in 1943 she sold the farm and moved to Clarendon. She is very contented here and has many friends who visit and keep her company. She amuses herself with piecing quilts, quilting, crocheting, and doing Church work. Her family has slowly dwindled away, and she only has two sister and three half-brothers. She has five sons, three daughters, twenty-five grandchildren, and ten great grandchildren. A variety of professions are carried out in her family. A farmer, a truck director, two Baptist preachers, two school teachers, a carpenter, and various other professions are among those of her family. During the second World War she had a son in the army. All the immediate family live in Texas. She keeps close contact with them; although, they fail to write her as often as she would like to hear from them.

Mrs. Sibley has had her hardships and difficulties, but all in all she has had seventy-seven years of living that is an example of the true pioneer.

The above article was written by JoAnne Sibley Brown, a granddaughter of Mrs. Sibley in 1950 as part of a class assignment. Mrs. Sibley past away in May of 1957.

Dear Editor

I wonder how many parents are concerned about the direction our school system is apparently taking. Do parents need to become more involved? Does the school system want us to become involved? Are the teachers, coaches and administration committed to training our children or are they more concerned with their way? We pay them to train our children - all children - not just the ones they prefer. Particular instances are: Why weren't the Basketball King and Queen recognized? I understand there is a threat there may not be a Jr.-Sr.-Prom. Why? Does the faculty let their personal feelings about certain students and incidents affect their judgment which in turn affects the performance of our children. Are our children belittled and hassled to the point they can not learn? I believe that children should be recognized for the good they do - whether it be in sports, U.I.L., Rodeo, Ag, Band or whatever they excel in.

The schools are for the education and training of our children - not for the benefit of the faculty and administration. The public should be more aware of what is happening in our school system. We can only improve it if we become involved and are interested in our children's well being.

Dear Editor

The Panhandle Planned Parenthood Board of Directors placed a "Letter to the Editor" in your March 2nd issue of the Clarendon Press. In that letter they implicated the church of Christ as being supportive of their agency and it's services by stating that "The Presenters" of a workshop and forum recently conducted by their Religious Advisory Committee "represented the church of Christ" and several other religious groups. I, for one, do not think that was appropriate or fair. If Planned Parenthood wanted to individually name the various religious leaders in the area who participated in their workshop that would have been fine. But for them to name the "church of Christ" and these other religious groups as though we collectively approved, endorsed and supported their program is at the very least misleading, if not altogether deceptive. It appears to me as though Planned Parenthood is seeking respectability in the eyes of the community by hiding behind the "name" and reputation of these various religious groups and making it look like we, as a whole, actually endorse and work together with them...when, in fact, we do not!

Every congregation of the church of Christ is a separate, independent and autonomous fellowship of Christian people, just as the Bible teaches each local church should be. We have no local, regional, national or world headquarters. Because of this, while we all believe and teach the very same thing, the Bible, and while we all agree on the fundamentals of the faith, there is still room for differences of opinion among us and one congregation may involve itself in certain programs and activities that another congregation would never even consider. But I know of absolutely no congregation of the church of Christ that endorses or supports Planned Parenthood. The one here in Clarendon certainly does not! What one or two ignorant and mislead ministers may have done on their own does not speak for the church of Christ as a whole nor does it give Planned Parenthood the right to use our "good name" and reputation as a cloak & covering to help bolster their reputation.

As a gospel preacher ministering with the church of Christ that meets in Clarendon, I can tell you that neither I, as an individual, nor this church, as a collective body, would ever consider working together with Planned Parenthood in any of their workshops, programs or services. We would gladly debate them publicly or challenge them in any political, social or moral arena, but never support or endorse them. Why? #1. We believe that Planned Parenthood promotes and supports a very liberal political agenda with which we do not agree! 2. Planned Parenthood's youth education programs amount, in effect, to a positive encouragement of sexual activity among teenagers. They shower young people with contraceptives and provocative literature resulting in even greater peer pressure that makes teens who do not engage in sex feel abnormal! #3. Planned Parenthood is "pro-abortion" and in their counseling they offer abortion as a legitimate alternative to a crises pregnancy!

This does not mean that Planned Parenthood does not accomplish some good. But, then again, virtually every political organization, religious group or social institution can claim to accomplish some good. This does not lend credibility to their cause or makeup for the moral deficiency their programs are spreading among our young people. In my opinion Planned Parenthood is attempting to cloak the truth concerning their liberal philosophy, political agenda and social ambitions behind a veil of "good works" and they are even trying to use our "good name" to do this. Personally, I do not appreciate it!

As for the letter Jeanette Loveless placed in your paper exposing some of the real philosophy of Planned Parenthood, I say AMEN! Praise God for small people who care enough about our youth that they are willing to take a stand for righteousness and take on, if necessary, even political giants the likes of Planned Parenthood. The problem with our country today is that for too long decent people have either been uneducated to the real facts or intimidated and unwilling to take a genuine stand for what
