Health Hints For Today

by R.L. Gilkey, M.D., D.A.B.F.P.

It has been called one of the most complex epidemics in history, and medical intervention helps very little. It is a disease with no cures or vaccines, but you can assure yourself of safety from this disease. AIDS is this recent epidemic, and only you can protect yourself. It is with us. When you give blood it is tested for the HIV antibodies as well as other diseases. When you apply for life insurance now, you are required to have a blood test. Once again, the main reason is the HIV antibody test. (Insurance companies don't want to insure HIV positive people.)

If a person is HIV positive, it doesn't mean that they have AIDS, but that they do have antibodies to the virus.

Currently 30 to 50% of HIV positive persons develop AIDS within 5 years, but this percentage is expected to increase with time since we have only recognized the disease of AIDS since 1977. The highest risk group is the young singles, the 17 to 25 year olds. The cases in this group are higher than expected. Evidence indicates they simply do not protect themselves. There is nothing "macho" when your dying with AIDS. So pick your friends with care, don't share needles, wear protection during sexual intercourse and don't fall for the line that your partner has been tested and found to be HIV negative, because it can take up to six months for the test to turn positive after exposure, rather than the usual 6 to 12 week period.

The evidence is in. Protect yourself, wear condoms, and live. If you don't, AIDS is an awful way to go. It's your decision to live or die.

BE SMART-PROTECT YOURSELF

TV PERSONALITY Dan True spoke to the Howardwick Friendship Club on Friday, May 19th, at a pot luck dinner at the City Hall. True warned that under certain conditions, tornados may form fog that hides them from sight. He also talked about his experiences with eagles in this area. True's book, A Family of Eagles, has been popular for several years.

Boll Weevils Active

This is the third week that the boll weevil traps have been out in Donley County, and numbers are running high in some areas. Approximately fifty plus traps are currently out, with some still being put out. Boll weevil numbers are high in the far eastern part of Donley County, ranging from 20 to 50 per trap for the first week out. The traps west of Hedley and around Lelia Lake have picked up from three to twenty weevils with a few that had no weevils. Those traps set west of Clarendon have had very little activity with only one weevil recorded to date. The cooler temperatures and rains slowed down weevil activity considerably last week but trap catches should increase this week. Most weevils that are emerging now will starve but if traps continue to show high numbers on into June, then producers will be faced with the decision of whether or not to spray.

Where Do We Go From Here?

By Tim Trimble, Extension Agent

In last week's Clarendon Press, the results of the Donley County school survey on alcohol and drug abuse were released. I hope that you got a chance to review the results. The survey did indicate that Donley County youth possibly have an alcohol abuse problem, particularly in the Junior High and High School levels. We have not had much feedback as of yet, so we don't know if the results surprised anyone, or alarmed anyone for that matter. Nevertheless, the question is, "What do we (Donley County) do with the survey results?"

The easiest answer to that is nothing, because of lack of concern, disbelief of results or whatever the reason. But I don't think that is the right answer. If the survey is remotely right, then where do we go from here? In visiting with Dr. Howard Ladewig, Texas Agricultural Extension Program Evaluation Specialist, he helped the Extension office and committees get a better understanding of survey results and what to do with them.

Dr. Ladewig indicated that first we needed to answer four questions: 1) What is going on with youth related to drug and/or alcohol abuse? 2) Who is involved in the abuse? 3) Why are they drinking? 4) What do we do about it?

The first two questions are answered by the survey, but the last two questions have to be answered by the people in the county. Dr. Ladewig also conveyed that in answering the latter questions we should keep three things in mind.

First, youth must have a positive self-esteem and must not want to drink or do drugs. Second, we must be aware of peer-clusters. Simply put: parents, who are your kids running around with, and are they a good influence on them? Third, there must be a parent/child relationship. This must be a continuous growing process that involves communications between the parent and child.

I know that there are many concerned parents and others that are already working on the alcohol problems with youth in the county. The Extension Service is also planning to target this area and others in youth programming efforts. It will be necessary for everyone that is committed to making Donley County a better place to live, to unite and work together to accomplish just that.

JIMMY HOBBS

UIL State Contest

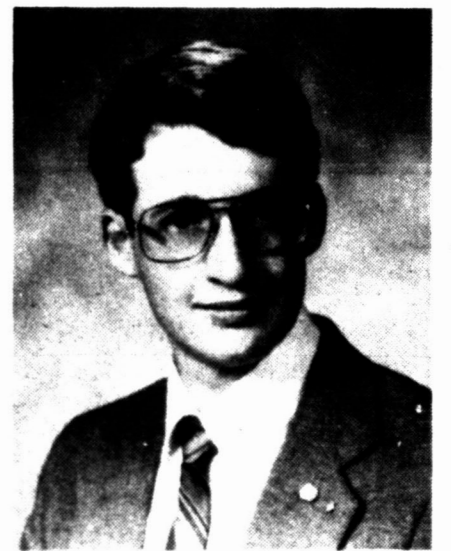

Jimmy Hobbs participated in Newswriting at the University Interscholastic League Academic State Meet, May 4-6 at The University of Texas at Austin. More than 2,000 students, competing in one or more of the 20 UIL academic contests, placed at district and regional contests to earn a berth in the State Meet.

"Each year, more than a third of the total participation in UIL activities involved academic contests, dispelling the myth of the League as a 'sports organization,'" Dr. Bailey Marshall, UIL director, said. "Texas has the nation's most comprehensive slate of academic contests. Long before other academic-based competitions, the UIL was sponsoring contests in speech, journalism, mathematics and science. In fact, the League was created in 1910 as a forensic league."

Contests range from headline writing to Lincoln-Douglas debate, calculator applications to accounting. A new literary criticism contest was implemented statewide this year.

In participating at the State Meet, students qualify for Texas Interscholastic League Foundation scholarships. During 1988-89, the TILF awarded more than $437,000 in scholarship grants to 336 college students who competed at the UIL State Academic Meet. In 1989-90, the TILF expects to award an estimated 350 new and renewed grants, valued at approximately $460,000. The TILF funds are made possible through grants from foundations, individuals and families. The TILF has over $1,800,000 in endowed funds.

EWE need a haircut? Professional shearers clipped Tommy Saye and Danny Askew's suffolk flock recently.

Suffolks Sheared

Donley County Suffolks had their spring shearing in early May. Professional shearers came from Plainview and spent 2 hours to shear 47 ewes. These ewes produced approximately 350 pounds of wool.

The lambs were worked the same day - getting routine vaccinations and their tails docked. The lambs will soon be old enough to be weaned, and the top lambs will be sold for show and club projects. Kids needing to buy show lambs will need to come pick their favorites. Danny Askew or Tommie Saye will be glad to assist you.

MRS. W.H. Lowe - Sandra Henke

Henke - Lowe Wedding Vows Read in Houston

Sandra Catherine Henke and William Hayden Lowe were united in marriage Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, May 20, 1989, at the Second Baptist Church Chapel in Houston.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward John Henke of St. Louis, Missouri. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Lowe of Clarendon, Texas.

With large baskets of white gladioli, carnations and mums flanking the altar, the Rev. Ed Young Jr., read the double ring ceremony. Traditional prelude music was played by Carol McCutcheon, church organist. "Trumpet Tune" signaled the guest to stand as the wedding procession began. "Trumpet Voluntary" was played as the processional and the recessional was "Rondeau."

Allen White, church vocalist, sang "In This Very Room" and as the bride and groom knelt for the prayer it was concluded with him singing "The Nature of Love" with his own guitar accompaniment.

The bride was lovely in an ivory colored satin wedding gown with a chapel length train. The gown had a sweetheart neckline and off the shoulder sleeves. Antique chantilly lace covered the bodice. She entered carrying an arm spray of ivory colored long stemmed tulips accented with white gysophili.

Wm. J. Lowe was his son's best man. Ushers were Sam Lowe of Amarillo, brother of the groom, and Bruce Arendale of Houston. The groom, best man and ushers were attired in the traditional black morning coats and gray striped trousers. The groom wore an ivory colored rose as a boutonniere and the others wore peach colored rose boutonnieres.

Kathleen Henke Baniak, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and was dressed in a tea length pale teal blue lace gown with matching satin shoes. She also carried an arm spray of peach colored long stemmed tulips accented with white gysophili.

Mrs. Charles Gapsch, godmother and sister of the bride, wore a satin larkspur blue colored tea length dress with matching shoes and purse.

Mrs. Wm. J. Lowe, mother of the groom, wore a pale rose colored tissue crepe tea length dress with matching shoes and purse.

A reception at the Houston Country Club followed the wedding ceremony. The wedding table was draped in white and on one end was the traditional tiered wedding cake and at the other end was the groom's chocolate cake which was decorated with a hunting scene. Peach and ivory colored tulips decorated the table. Background piano music was played as the guests were served punch, hors d'oeuvre, and canapes from two long tables with floral arrangements of white gladioli, carnations and mums.

The bride received her BS degree from South Illinois University, a MS degree from Texas Woman's University, and is currently pursuing a second master's degree in education from TWU. She is a medical oncology nurse specialist at M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston.

The groom graduated from Clarendon High School, attended Clarendon College one year and graduated from Texas Tech with a BBA degree.

A rehearsal dinner was given in honor of the bride and groom by the groom's parents at the Houston Country Club. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lowe of Amarillo, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Koch of Dallas, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Arendale and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Arendale of Houston, and Helen Happe, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gapsch, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Henke, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Henke, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Roan, Mr. and Mrs. Rob Beniak and Ralph Henke all of St. Louis, Missouri.

Do You Have High Cholesterol?

A great deal is said and written about the hazard of high cholesterol in the blood stream. The concern is based on studies which show that about 25 percent of all adults in the United States have total blood cholesterol levels that are considered "high risk" for the development of coronary heart disease, the number one cause of death in American adults.

Readings over 240 are considered high risk. More than half of all U.S. adults have readings above 200, a figure that is now being considered marginal or "borderline high risk." The National Cholesterol Education Program has recommended that everyone in the U.S. over the age of 20 have their cholesterol level checked at least once every five years. Persons with cholesterol readings above 200 should be evaluated for possible treatment.

For many, eating foods high in fiber and restricting the intake of saturated fat (e.g., butter, cheese, and fatty meats) helps reduce blood cholesterol levels that are too high. Cholesterol lowering medicines may be prescribed if dietary measures are inadequate. Medicines usually either inhibit the normal production of cholesterol in the liver or cause the most harmful type of cholesterol to be cleared from the blood.

Would-be bankers are multiplying like rabbits.

Everybody is hopping to include the word "bank" in their names, but that doesn't mean that they're actually bankers. "Savings banks," "thrift banks," "stock broker" "bank" accounts, and credit unions, etc. all try to pose as real bankers. But they don't always offer you the experience or, in some cases, the security of bankers.

In fact, the only place you'll find a banker is The Bank, where your deposits are Federally insured up to $100,000. Now, that's the best financial security there is! And a Full Service Bank offers the newest ideas to help your money reproduce.

Medical Center News

Volunteer Recognition Day

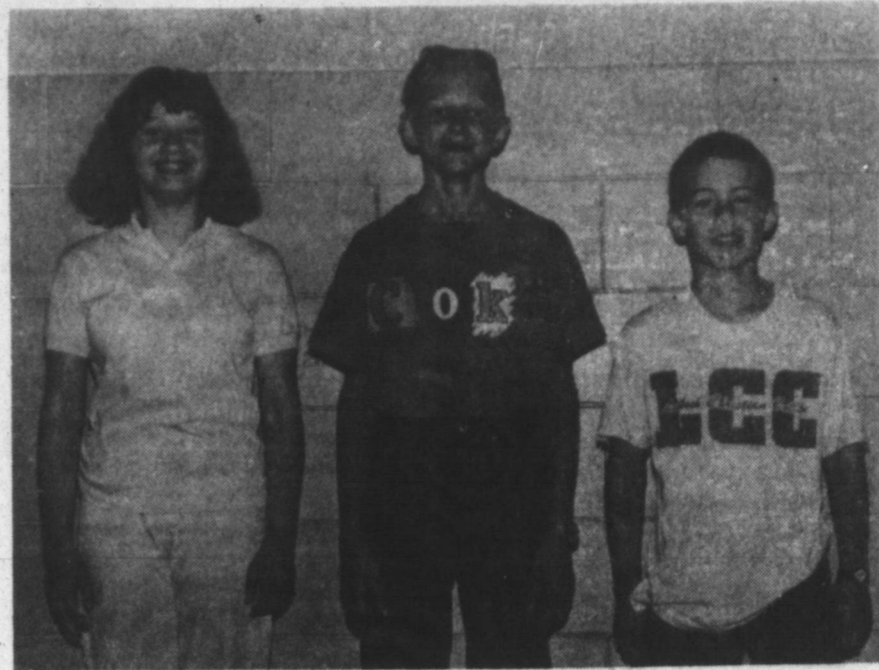

The Medical Center is celebrating Nursing Home Month throughout May. On May 5, there was a May Day Party for the residents; on May 17th, the volunteers were honored; on May 18th, activity directors of the Panhandle recognized their administrator at the Pavillon at the Medical Center in Amarillo. We also at this time wish to thank Harlan Flowers for all of the beautiful flowers they sent for Mother's Day.

Our party for Honoring Our Volunteers was May 17, 1989 at 2:30 p.m. in the Medical Center

Dining Room. Our special guest for the afternoon was Kay Bernabe, R.N.; Instructor for P.C.R. We showed a film on C.P.R., and Mrs. Bernabe gave more instruction after the film ended-answered questions and gave more detailed help. We regret that Jannie Singleton, R.S.V.P. Director was unable to attend due to our severe weather. We had 22 volunteers present for this occasion. R.S.V.P. is for volunteers over 60 years of age. Anyone wishing to serve as a volunteer and is 60 years of age can belong to R.S.V.P. You will have a small federal insurance if you give 4 hrs of service each month. You can do volunteer work for anyone or place. Be sure you are registered with one of the volunteer stations; and that your hours are reported each month. You may call the Medical Center for more information.

Rev. Wilbert Bernabe opened our meeting with prayer and Rev. Truman Ledbetter led in the closing prayer. Charlie Bairfield gave a welcome and thank you speech, before our meeting opened, for all the volunteers. Larry White welcomed and thanked the volunteers, for all the wonderful thing they do for the residents. Refreshments was served to all present. We have 39 volunteers in R.S.V.P. We also had our regular business meeting. Our meeting in July has been tabled for a later date. Members present were: Larry White-Administrator; Vera Johnson, Activity Director; Jeannie Formway-Asst. Activity Director; Oneta Sanders, Mrs. Kay Bernabe, R.N.; Frank & Gertrude Reid; Rosa Lee Watson; Frank & Hugh Mahaffey; Carman Wright; Oddie Moss; Fred Fortenberry; Shirley McKinney; Hazel Morgan; Dorothy Breedlove; Rev. Dr. Shirley explained that a scholarship is a very important asset to a college education. Cindy Blanton, 1987-1989 recipient, graduated this year from Clarendon College with an Associate Degree.

The Sorority wishes to thank the following people and businesses for their help with this party.

Tralee Needs Volunteers

Tralee Crisis Center (TCC) is presently reorganizing its service programs and its volunteer programs in its outreach area including Roberts, Hemphill, Wheeler, Donley, Carson and Collingsworth Counties. A volunteer training will be conducted in the outreach area once a quarter. A volunteer(s) will be needed in each outreach area to form a network of social, health, law, and legal services in that area. A self-defense class would be conducted each quarter. Health Fair participation is also a goal for TCC.

TCC presently has trained volunteers in Roberts, Hemphill, Carson and Hutchinson Counties. There is a volunteer coordinator in organization and planning.

If you are interested in being a volunteer or the volunteer coordinator for Tralee Crisis Center, please contact our office at 119 N. Frost in Pampa or call 1-800-828-2891 and ask for the office. This is great for retired persons, mothers, singles, and grandparents. Yes, TCC certainly can use men volunteers. This is a rewarding volunteer choice. TRALEE CRISIS CENTER NEEDS YOU!

Caution Urged On Vacation Travel

Major V. J. Cawthon, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety, reminds us that Memorial Day is the start of the summertime vacation travel.

Major Cawthon urges all drivers to exercise caution during the upcoming holiday weekend, because traffic will be on the increase with school being out. He also encourages all motorists to use extra caution in and around recreational areas. If you will be traveling this Memorial holiday, remember the largest cause of traffic deaths is a result of speeding and drinking and driving.

Major Cawthon said, "If all drivers obey all traffic laws this could be a Memorial Day that we could remember for years to come." He also stated, "The Department of Public Safety will be using all available troopers in an effort to reduce traffic accidents and assist motorists in order to make this a safe and enjoyable holiday."

Texas Family Of The Year

Children today aren't much different from those of previous generations, said an Amarillo couple who are parents of six and have just been named the state's "Family of the Year" by the Texas Council on Family Relations.

"The change is with parents," said Arnold Neusch, who has farmed in the St. Francis community for almost 40 years. Parents today want someone else—the schools, the church or youth groups—to discipline their youngsters and teach them values, he said.

Children need to learn to be responsible for their actions if they're going to become responsible adults, said Ida, Arnold's wife.

The discipline and responsibility have to be "seasoned with lots of love" and plenty of parental attention and family sharing, they said.

The Neusches were honored at the recent annual conference of the Texas Council on Family Relations in Lubbock. They had been nominated for the award by the home economics advisory committee in Potter County's Extension Office of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Arnold and Ida married July 5, 1949. Their farm in the St. Francis community is two miles from Arnold's birthplace. Ida grew up at Bushland.

They are members of St. Francis Catholic Church. Both have served on the parish council. Ida has held several offices in the church women's council and chaired the annual sausage dinner, a major fund raiser for the church.

Arnold is serving his fourth three-year term on the school board for Highland Park Independent School District. He serves on the Potter County committee of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and is active in the St. Francis volunteer fire department.

When first married, Arnold took a job at the Pantex plant in Amarillo to supplement his farm income.

Twenty-eight years later he retired from the plant to give his full attention to farming. A fulltime wife and mother while the children were younger, Ida later worked 10 years in the Potter County ASCS office.

Both have been volunteer leaders in Potter County 4-H Club activities for many years, and continue to serve. Grandchildren are now 4-H members in neighboring Carson County. In 1980, Ida received the Distinguished 4-H Volunteer Award, presented to only 28 leaders in the state each year.

All six Neusch children earned the Gold Star Award, highest 4-H honor given at the county level.

An avid hunter and fisherman, one of the 4-H projects Arnold initiated and still conducts with the local club is a trap shoot. Each year, using Arnold's range, the project raises $400-$500 for college scholarships for club members.

Of all their accomplishments, the elder Neusches are proudest of their children. "For someone who's raised six kids, we've had less problems than anybody," Arnold said.

Ronald, 38, works the 4,000-acre milo, wheat and cattle operation with his father. Sandra Neusch Sanders, 35, was youth director at St. Francis Church until yielding to fulltime duties as wife and mother.

Larry, a 20-year-old sophomore at West Texas State University, was killed in an auto accident in 1975. The family established a 4-H scholarship in his memory. Darlene, 31, succeeded her older sister as youth director at St. Francis. Nancy, 26, is a nun and teaches school at Hereford. John, 24, is a computer analyst in Amarillo.

Chemicals May Be Creating Problems

Recent furor in some consumer circles about the dangers of lawn chemicals may be a case of certain products being too "user friendly."

Consumers have a host of products available today to make life easier and to deal with a wide range of problems, be they weeds in the lawn or bugs in the home. All these products have gone through extensive, costly testing, and the manufacturer is putting its name on the line, saying that the product is safe if used according to label instructions.

That's the clincher—used according to label instructions, said a turfgrass scientist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

"While there may be some isolated cases where a product has been at fault, 99 times out of 100 problems arise with chemical and related products because of misuse—not following label directions," said Wallace G. Menn.

"Chemical products today are easy to use, and there are a wide variety of products for every problem a homeowner might encounter. But these products must be used responsibly or they can present problems," he said. "When that happens, everyone is up in arms, screaming for the product to be banned."

"We are an extremely fickle society," Menn said. "Thousands of people die each year from motor vehicle accidents, but we still haven't banned the use of cars and trucks. On the other hand, we often have to succumb to the whims of consumer groups who cite an isolated case of poisoning or some similar mishap that more than likely occurred due to human fault—not using a product properly."

Menn said that chemical companies are not looking for lawsuits, so they spend millions of dollars over a number of years to test a product before releasing it to the public.

"They want to be sure their product not only works well but is safe to use," he said. "And that's where the label comes in. It spells out how the product should be used and how it should be handled. Anyone who does not follow those directions is asking for trouble."

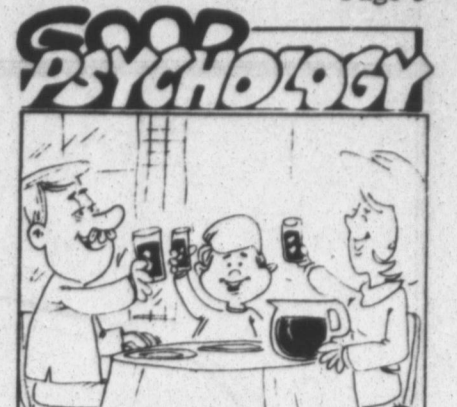

"I think consumers often have a false sense of security about these products—their user friendliness," Menn said. "Thus they don't pay close attention to label directions—how much to use for the specific problem at hand. Or, with today's hurried lifestyles, they just don't take the time to read instructions.

"The general tendency is to use more than the recommended amount," said the researcher. "After all, one tablespoonful in a gallon of water doesn't seem like much, so what harm could come from doubling the amount. That's the philosophy of many consumers who use chemicals. Then, if a problem develops, they want to blame the manufacturer."

"Of course, even with proper use, there can be allergic reactions, the same as with soaps, cleaning products and a host of other materials," said the scientist. "Those types of reactions are always a possibility, so individuals with sensitive skin and other concerns need to be particularly careful with chemical products."

Getting into a rut is never any fun—it can dampen the brightest of spirits. Take mealtime, for example. If you serve the same foods on a routine basis, things are bound to get dull—and that can put a strain on family relationships. Try varying the menu. Let family members make suggestions or try out their culinary talents in the kitchen—that's a great way for Mom to get the night off! Try serving different beverages with meals as well. If sodas and juices have become routine, try mixing up a delicious pitcher of refreshing iced tea instead. It's great for lunch or dinner. If things work out really well, you may feel inspired to drink a toast to your ingenuity!

Our Texas

Let history by your tour guide

For generations, the unique heritage that is Texas' has been a source of fascination for Texans and non-Texans alike. From frontier life to oil booms, Paleo-Indians to politics, bridges to courthouses, Texas history is the stuff of which movies and legends are made. Fascination with Texas history and historic sites is a prime motivator in bringing tourists to the state. It was a similar fascination with Texas history and a commitment to preserve it that led a group of historically minded men and women to plunge ahead in 1962 with a project that today is known as the State Marker Program of the Texas Historical Commission.

More than 10,000 Official Texas Historical Markers dot the highways and byways of the state, including the granite markers placed in 1936 as part of the observance of the 100th anniversary of Texas' independence from Mexico. In addition, a special series of markers was placed in commemoration of the Civil War centennial, as well as a sprinkling of private markers that have been approved for listing in agency publications. The majority, however, are cast-aluminum plaques and medallions whose topics range from large cattle ranches to small family cemeteries.

The Texas program is viewed as one of the most ambitious and successful in the nation. Much of its success can be attributed to the initial and continuing emphasis on the importance of local history in shaping the broader patterns of Texas' heritage. From the beginning, the marker program has relied heavily on the participation of local citizens and to this day county historical commissions around the state play an integral role in the marker process.

So how do these markers come about? All historical markers in Texas are initiated and funded at the local level, where the research and a documented historical narrative are completed by an interested person or persons. Criteria and procedures involved in obtaining a state marker are contained in the Official Texas Historical Marker Guidelines and Application Form available from the THC. Evaluation of the topics, coordination of the paperwork, and preparation of the texts that appear on the markers are handled by three staff members of the agency. The State Marker Committee, composed of members of the governor-appointed Texas Historical Commission, makes the final determinations on the eligibility of historical marker topics. State highway department officials cooperate in the placement of those markers that appear along the highway rights-of-way. All materials submitted in application for Official Texas Historical Markers remain on file with the THC.

Most markers are purely educational in nature and convey no legal restrictions to the property on which they stand. Approximately one-fourth of Texas markers, however, carry the Recorded Texas Historic Landmark (RTHL) designation for the structures that they mark. One positive method of identification for this designation is the round building medallion; another is the appearance of the line, "Recorded Texas Historic Landmark," at the bottom of the marker text. These properties, which are cited as worthy of preservation for their architectural and historical associations, are given a measure of legal protection in that owners should notify the THC before structural and certain cosmetic changes are made to the designated structures. THC staff architects then have an opportunity to assist the owners with their projects in such a way that the historic appearance of the building will be preserved.

Now all this is not to say that every Official Texas Historical Marker is completely accurate and should be taken at face value. History is not a static medium, and new facts shed light on old interpretations all the time. Markers are, however, a unique source of history for tourists and residents alike. As signposts of our heritage, they provide a convenient excuse for road-weary parents to pull off the side of the road, quiet the children in the back seat, and read about some segment of Texas history.

So, as you travel across the state, let history be your tour guide. If you read a marker and would like more information about it, jot down the title and the location, and call or write the State Marker Program of the Texas Historical Commission at P.O. Box 12276, Austin, TX 78711, 512/463-6100.

(A message from the Texas Historical Commission.)

STRAIGHT TALK FROM TDA

DEPUTY COMMISSIONER
TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Grocery shopping at a farmers market is the next best thing to growing your own fruits and vegetables. In fact, some people say it's better, because they get the variety and freshness of locally grown produce without all the hard work.

This season full- and part-time farmers and even some industrious backyard gardeners are joining forces once again at about 100 organized farmers markets in 90 Texas cities. These folks gather regularly during the state's long growing season to sell their harvests directly to consumers.

Sales are booming. More than 3,000 participating producers took in a total of $25 million at Texas farmers markets in 1988, nearly doubling 1987 sales of $13 million.

Part of the attraction of farmers markets is their individuality. Farmers markets are a far cry from standardized grocery-store chains. They're loosely knit, grassroots operations that respond quickly to local conditions and interests. Even the markets' locations—right in the middle of their communities in town squares, county fairgrounds, coliseums, parks or mall parking lots—suggest their person-to-person, town-meeting quality.

Individuality extends to the markets' seasons and hours. In Eastern and Central Texas, some markets open as early as the first week in May. Others don't crank up until late June or July, especially in the Northern and Western parts of the state. Still others are open year-round. Some do business every day; others operate one or two days a week.

The most important kind of individuality at a farmers market is the one-on-one meeting of grower with consumer. At a farmers market, customers deal directly with the man or woman—sometimes with the whole family—who grew the crop. There is no middleman. If you've ever wanted to ask questions about where and how the produce you buy was grown, you'll never have a better opportunity than at a farmers market. Consumer participation is what makes or breaks a farmers market. There is a direct and delicate balance between how many customers show up one week and how many vendors show up the next. If no one shows up to shop, growers have to look elsewhere. Most of them don't have a support system to cover losses from low-traffic days, and their fresh produce has a short shelf life.

But buyers and sellers don't find each other overnight, and a good farmers market may take several seasons to get established. When an operation develops slowly, both buyers and sellers have to give it room to grow by not expecting too much at the outset. Whatever your local farmers market's stage of development, you'll get the best selection if you shop early. Experienced shoppers know that latecomers often miss out on the best values and quality.

The reward for early shopping is good value and fresh taste. Farmers market prices are often lower than those in supermarkets, and vine-ripened produce is the rule, not the exception. The produce is usually fresher than that sold at most retail outlets, too. Typically, only a day or two passes between harvest and final sale.

These benefits multiply if you buy in bulk. A farmers market is the perfect place to buy a bushel or a case of your favorite fruits and vegetables to can or freeze for enjoyment later, during the off-season.

Your Texas Department of Agriculture district office can tell you the location and hours of operation of the farmers markets in your area. 100 Farmers Markets Opening in 1989

(AUSTIN)—"Farmers markets are helping move Texas towards a safer, environmentally sound and consumer-oriented agriculture," Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said.

"With sales statewide at these markets in 1989 predicted to exceed last year's figures by 20 percent, farmers have an even greater cash incentive to build diversified, profitable and sustainable operations," Hightower said.

The Texas Department of Agriculture will assist nearly 100 different farmers market sites in 75 Texas towns and cities in 1989. Participating producers expect to gross more than $30 million in sales directly to consumers. Since 1983, TDA has provided organizational, promotional and marketing assistance to communities and producers seeking to operate or expand a farmers market.

"Farmers markets provide consumers with a chance to know how and where their food was produced. People concerned with pesticide contamination can talk directly with the grower to find out what production practices were used," said Hightower. "You won't find tainted Chilean grapes at a farmers market, and you can get fresh Texas apples raised without Alar. Many markets feature organically-raised produce certified by the Texas Department of Agriculture.

"Farmers markets support diversified farm operations and encourage producers to utilize local resources to sustain their production. Products sold at the markets haven't been shipped long distances and don't need expensive and often environmentally damaging preservatives and packaging," Hightower said.

"Consumers obviously like what they find at farmers markets," Hightower said. "TDA-assisted farmers markets have grown steadily since the first four facilities were organized in 1983 at Sherman-Denison, Tyler, Vernon and Waco. More than 3,500 producers statewide should average more than $8,500 each in sales this season at the nearly 100 different market sites. TDA's focus this year will be to fortify existing market associations and seek more permanent market structures."

Kicking off this year's farmers market season was the grand opening of the Austin-Travis County Farmers Market on Friday, April 28. This will be the second season that the Central Texas Farmers Association operates out of its new permanent facilities at 6701 Burnet Road. The once-vacant building is now filled with "Texas Cuisine" restaurants and specialty shops featuring Taste of Texas products and hand-crafted items.

The Austin-Travis County Market joins facilities in Corpus Christi, Luling and Yoakum which operate on a year-round basis, instead of seasonally like most other Texas farmers markets. Many of the TDA-assisted farmers markets will be opening during May and early June, including those in Ballinger, Beeville, Denton, Fort Worth, Fredericksburg, Georgetown, Houston, Madisonville, Mineola, San Antonio, Seminole and Waco.

Markets in such Panhandle locations as Amarillo, Lubbock and Plainview will be open by mid-summer.

"All of these farmers markets are managed and operated locally by producers themselves in cooperation with local governments, Chambers of Commerce, Main Street Project managers, community organizations and local Texas A&M Agricultural Extension agents," said Hightower. "Each market has a unique 'flavor' of its own, representative of the area of the state it serves."

TDA's farmers market program has several goals: to develop innovative market promotions; to expand the number of market operating days; to increase producer sales; and to attract a wider range of consumers. Some of the new farmers market initiatives planned in 1989 include:

- TDA's pilot project in San Antonio last fall, which provided food assistance to WIC recipients through local farmers markets, will be expanded to six Texas farmers markets in El Paso, Lufkin, San Antonio, Bryan, Sherman and Beaumont. Over $400,000 in federal funds will be provided for this year's program which will be administered through the Department of Health in conjunction with TDA.

- Facilities in Beaumont, Corsicana and Stephenville will be the first TDA-assisted farmers markets to participate in a Senior Citizens coupon program. These markets will share a total of $20,000 made available through the

by Jon Leggett

The setting is as real to me as if it were yesterday: the middle of a huge bed, when I--a preschool boy--was supposed to be taking a nap. And I can hear that sweet sound even now: my grandmother's low voice, as much in keeping with the tranquility of that warm summer afternoon as was the quiet hum of an insect just outside the open window.

"Sowing in the morning, sowing seeds of kindness..."

I'm sure I didn't understand the words at the time, but the utter peace of that moment was unmistakable, and has caused me to love that old hymn like almost no other.

"Sowing in the noontide, and the dewy eve..."

Those words, so precious to her, are now full of meaning to me, too. What a joyous picture of Christian life is presented: the planter scatters the seeds of the love and kindness of our Lord in the morning of life, in his prime (the noontide), and in his sunset days.

"Sowing in the sunshine, sowing in the shadows, Fearing neither cloud nor winter's chilling breeze..."

These beautiful words by Knowles Shaw remind us that we have no need to be fearful as we spread the Word. Doesn't the Lord promise the harvest? "...in due season we shall reap..." (Galatians 6:9). What a forward-looking hymn!

There was even an element of mystery about the hymn as I first began to really pay attention to the words, one that has not completely vanished:

"Going forth with weeping, sowing for the Master..."

Weeping as one sows? Why? That almost seems to contradict the rest of the song which assures that we have nothing to fear. But this line--indeed, the whole song--has a firm scriptural foundation: the last two verses of Psalm 126.

Still, we live in an agricultural community, and are certainly not accustomed to seeing a farmer weeping at planting time (unless he is replanting his cotton for the third time!). What is the idea here?

The context of those verses in Psalm 126 provide the answer. This psalm speaks of the joy of Israel upon returning from exile caused by their disobedience. The Chosen People had sown disobedience: the consequence was many tears. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" (Galatians 6:7). Then they sowed repentance, and reaped a bounty of joy. "Ephraim (Israel) shall say, What have I to do any more with idols?" (Hosea 14:8).

"We shall come rejoicing, bringing in the sheaves."

My grandmother's fine old hymn, like the still finer Psalm upon which it was based, ends on a note of joy and victory. Such is always the case when God's people return from their exile of selfishness, obey His call to the harvest, and shout the victory as they bring home the sheaves of His unending blessing. "...Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest" (John 4:35).

This great old hymn serves to teach me one other lesson--a very personal one, to be sure, and not one to be found in the words themselves. I simply cannot hear the song without thinking of my grandmother. Mothers, dads, grandparents--what are you teaching your little ones by what you say, what you sing, what you read, what you watch on television? Remember, I was supposed to be napping on that big bed tucked away in a corner of the house. She had no idea I was listening. But your young ones ARE listening! What do they hear? I pray that they are being sent as glorious a message as I received:

"When our weeping's over, He will bid us welcome,

"We shall come rejoicing, bringing in the sheaves."

Goldston Community

by Naoma Spann

This is the fourth of a series of articles concerning the Goldston Community. A reunion is being planned for July 15th at the Clarendon Community Center beginning at 10 a.m. with a Pot Luck Luncheon at noon.

The community of Goldston had brightened somewhat by the '40's. The era of the Black Dusters and the Great Depression would be remembered as a time of struggles and hardships and a time of love and togetherness. In the process of time the good times would somehow overshadow the bad until, finally, only the "good-ole-days" remain. Perhaps, too, it could be said that the time then was only a preparation for a greater testing to come.

When the United States became involved in the war with Germany, and later with Japan, World War II, many fine, upstanding men of the Goldston community served their country honorably and gallantly in the armed services. Those young men were: W.J. and Roscoe (Rocky) Gholdston, brothers; J.D. and Lloyd Hahn, brothers; Ralph, Joseph and Lamar Stewart, brothers; H.E., B.J. and Bill Mooring, brothers; Jarvis T., Glenn and Bob Brock, brothers, and sons of the Collier Brocks; Floyd, Loyd and Boyd Brock, triplet sons of the Roy Brocks; Obra Gerald (Big Boy) and J.H. Spier Jr., brothers; Charles and Eddie McQueen, brothers; J.David Oden, Edgar Lee Reynolds, O. A. Smith, Jack Harris, Melvin Rowe, Robert Taylor, Elden Higdon, L.E. Yankie, David F. Hall, John Ziegler, Lloyd Littlefield, Melvin Vick and Hildon Simmons.

The Douglas and Goldston Drug store in Clarendon was the Western Union Office, and Clyde Douglas had the sad duty of delivering the dreaded messages of the missing, injured or killed.

His arrival was greeted with great fear and apprehension. The family of J.H. Spier was the first to receive such a telegram. Obra Gerald was reported missing in action on Nov. 30, 1942. "Big Boy" was aboard the USS New Orleans at Savo Island. He was later identified as killed in action. "g Boy" was not only the first fatality of the Goldston Community, but also of Donley County. The Obra Gerald Spier V.F.W. Post was named in his honor.

Roscoe Gholdston is believed to have served on the USS Arizona - killed in action. Staff Sergeant J. David Oden, tail gunner of a B-25, was reported missing in action in the South Pacific. He was later reported killed.

Kathleen Oden Yankie, sister to David, remembers the "day of the telegram." The telegram that David was missing in action was delivered to Kathleen in Clarendon and she, in turn, delivered it to her mother, Blanche Gray, in Goldston. "I was in a state of shock," she said, "and remember thinking this is not happening to me -- this happens to somebody else."

Jarvis T. Brock, US Marines, son of the Collier Brocks, was killed on the Island of Cipan. His brother, Bob, received the Purple Heart for his valor of service. David F. Hall, son of the Forrest Halls, was also killed in action.

Floyd, Lloyd and Boyd Brock, triplet sons of Roy and Oma Brock, were inducted at Amarillo, Dec. 18, 1943, and sent to Camp Roberts, Calif. for basic training. From there they joined the 274th. Infantry, 70th Division at Camp Adair, Oregon. "We've been lucky so far," Boyd told a reporter. "They've let us stay together. We hope they'll go on letting us stay together. We figure we'll fight just a little better that way if we get over on the other side." The triplets went overseas in August 1944, and upon arrival in France asked to be separated -- explaining it was a precaution against all being killed at once. Their last reunion was Nov. , 1944 during a rest period in France. Floyd was reported killed in action, Lloyd missing and Boyd (then a rifleman with the 79th Division, 314th Infantry) wounded. Lloyd would later be reported killed.

A total of seven young lives were lost from the Goldston community. If the community was thought to be a close knit group before the war, it was increasingly so during the war years. The entire community grieved and offered what solace they could to those bereaved. They shared their letters and information. Each Sunday at the Community Non-denominational Church services, prayers were said for all in the service. Box suppers were held at the school house for the purpose of buying war bonds. The younger members of the families worked harder on the farms -- replacing their absent brothers. The patriotic young collected victory stamps @ 10 cents and pasted them in a book until enough was accumulated to purchase a bond.

There were many changes on the home front. Gasoline, tires and sugar were rationed, and staples were in short supply. There was a shortage of chocolate candy and silk stockings, and cigarettes were not always available. These offered only minor inconveniences to the people of Goldston as they had done with much less in the past.

A tribute for those gallant heroes of the war is on display at the Old Court House. However, there is no display to honor the brave and courageous parents and families who fought a gallant war at home

Thanks & Appreciation

Thanks to the generosity of many local individuals and businesses as well as others from Amarillo, Pampa, and Childress, Project Graduation '89 will set sail at 11:00 p.m. on Friday, May 26, at the Clarendon Country Club.

The Love Boat begins its cruise with a fabulous feast of calf fries, fish, shrimp and all the trimmings. The trip itinerary will feature swimming in the clear blue waters and dancing to the tunes of Disc Jockey Jim Shadle. About 2:00 a.m., the Love Boat will magically arrive in Las Vegas for a Casino session. Throughout the evening and early morning, door prizes and special awards will be given. Ongoing entertainment includes silent auctions, pool, ping pong, video games, and special contests. A booth will be available for portraits. The Seniors will travel through Memory Land as they pass certain landmarks which will review their very special pasts. They will be entertained by some surprise parent contributions and by Hypnotist Don Vance of Panhandle. Before the Love Boat docks the Seniors will be treated to a very special breakfast, and the grand prizes will be awarded. As the Seniors disembark the Love Boat, they will set sail on a journey through life, a journey we hope will be filled with the memory of much fun and laughter, and above all - love.

Protecting Your Homestead

By Annette LoVoi, President

Texas Consumer Association

Texas have a powerful consumer protection of which most Texans are unaware. Did you know that your homestead, your most valuable asset, cannot be taken away from you for bad debts? This protection is guaranteed by the Texas Constitution.

Quite simply, the Texas Homestead Exemption states that you cannot lose your home if you are unable to pay your bills. The only exceptions are the failure to make house payments, payments on a home improvement loan, or taxes.

It also means that you cannot buy a car, go to Las Vegas, or borrow money for any other "worthwhile purpose" and use your home as collateral for the loan. The Texas Consumer Association says this is an important consumer protection for Texans, particularly in tough economic times.

We've seen record savings and loan failures during our state's slump, and numerous home foreclosures. Without the Constitutional homestead protection, many more Texans would have lost their homes and family nest eggs.

There is legislation pending, H.B. 1704 by Representative Debra Danburg and H.J.R. 44 by Representative Barry Connelly, that will abolish this 150-year old protection. It would allow lenders to take out liens on homes for nearly any type of loan, including "open end" loans, such as credit cards.

Thus, in the future, when individuals or small business people apply for credit, they would be forced to sacrifice the protection of their home in order to get a loan. If they defaulted on the loan, they would lose the family home.

Many other organizations have joined the Texas Consumer Association in opposing this legislation, including Public Citizen, Grav

Panthers, the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), Farmers Union, and Texas AFL-CIO.

Changes in the Texas Homestead Exemption are spearheaded by large national corporations like Merrill Lynch, Citicorp, Sears, Transamerica, Household Finance, Beneficial Finance, and others who see Texas homesteads ripe for the picking.

Throughout the legislative session, the Texas Consumer Association will stand side-by-side with other organizations to preserve this important consumer protection.

Tips To Help Latchkey Children

Latchkey children, those school-age youngsters that must cope each day with empty homes until parents return from the workplace, are a growing breed, numbering from two to six million across the nation.

These children need special guidelines in self-help, said Dr. Sarah Anderson, family sciences specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Anderson said that latchkey youngsters need to learn such self-care skills as how to use their time wisely, how to plan and prepare nutritious snacks, and how to deal with various emergency procedures.

Parents can provide a safer environment for their latchkey children by instructing them on a number of items, including the following:

- Keys. Instruct your child to keep housekeys in a pocket, purse or wallet.
- Schedule. Set up a daily schedule so that the child knows what to do when at home alone.

• Safety Rules. Establish and post house safety rules on use of appliances, answering the door and telephone, and play activities.

• Emergency Procedures. Post emergency telephone numbers and addresses near the phone, and make sure your youngster knows how to report an emergency. Practice these steps and enroll the child in a first aid or life skills class.

• Check-in. Set up a check-in routine so that a responsible adult knows when the child has arrived home. This could involve a phone call to your workplace or to a neighbor.

• Friends. Do not allow friends to visit your child when he or she is at home alone. Unsupervised play may get out of hand.

• Quality Time. Spend time with your child each day. Many children are fearful of staying alone and need an understanding adult to answer questions and listen to concerns.

• Entertainment. Provide some type of safe home entertainment or simple chores to ensure that your child won't be bored after school.

• Travel. Do not allow your child to experiment with new routes to and from school. If possible, have your youngster walk to and from school with friends. Emphasize the need to come straight home.

• Alternatives. Keep searching for ways to provide adult supervised care. The local PTA, recreation department or other community agency may offer a school-age child-care program. The county office of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service also can offer assistance.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

Schools Are Out; Use Caution

Once again, school is out. Major V.J. Cawthon, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety, wants to remind all motorists that they must change their driving habits this summer.

We must be more observant for children playing in or near the street, especially at night, because some children will be allowed to stay up longer and will be playing outside in the dark.

Major Cawthon said, "Now that school is out for the summer many families will be taking their vacations and I urge all motorists to use extra caution in and around recreational areas and roadside parks. Parents can also do their part by keeping a watchful eye on the younger children who may not know the safety rules."

The Major said, "If all motorists and parents use a little extra caution this summer, observe the speed limits, buckle up and not drink and drive, we can make this a safe and enjoyable summer."

There will be a baseball game Sunday, May 28, at the Clarendon Senior League Field. The Big League Boys (ages 15-18) will be playing Wellington in a double header, starting at 3 p.m.

 If you are copying, stop it!
 Remember: Stichel Page (Olympic Gold Medal runner): "The only way to win is to get out in front and improve your position."
 Copying does not allow this. At best it only permits you to copy the ads of the runners behind you.
 Does copying work? Sometimes. At least in the short term.
 If you copy, people will soon recognize it. You will earn a reputation as a copy-cat. You will forfeit the respect of people who count.
 Where do you believe Bradward gets these columns?
 What respect would you have for Bradward if you believed these were copied?
 If you would think less of Bradward, don't, you believe your neighbors and friends would think less of you if you copy?
