NEWS FROM

Congressman Bob Price

18th District, Texas

The nationwide attacks in South Vietnam by Communist guerrillas and sabotage and terrorist units following closely on the North Korean seizure of the USS Pueblo point up an almost certain increase in the U. S. military effort and higher appropriations than those proposed by the President's 1969 budget.

But in spite of the worsening situation in Asia and other parts of the world that may erupt into shooting wars, the President has again asked for new spending authority along with a renewed plea for a tax increase.

In fact the Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Senator John Stennis, (Democrat - Mississippi) said he is confident that President Johnson is considering plans for increases in forces, weapons and funds.

Senate's Majority Leader Mike Mansfield also left little doubt that he expects the White House to ask Congress for more money to finance military actions in Southeast Asia.

The sobering shock of these latest two major incidents have again impressed the nation with the seriousness and reality of our foreign involvements and the absolute necessity of being prepared to meet other threats.

Following delivery of his budget message the President sent his annual Economic Message to Congress in which he counseled restraint and sacrifice at home and retrenchment overseas.

The theme of his message was a war against inflation and he warned against "an intensified wage-price spiral a feverish boom - a possible financial crisis - recession - irreversible urban deterioration and social explosion - economic isolationism - a spiraling slowdown in world economic expansion."

So, while it is encouraging to know the President has finally recognized the very real existence and threat of inflation, his budget proposals plus the certainty of increased military spending offer little encouragement for anything but more of the same.

The new budget itself follows the unfortunate pattern of earlier budgets in its content. It is clearly expansionary in its impact and misleading in its assumptions.

Anticipated receipts in the Fiscal 1969 budget document are clearly overstated. Projected outlays are grossly underestimated.

Assuming passage of his 10% surtax, President Johnson anticipates a budget deficit of $8.0 billion.

This assumes, for example, that the war in Vietnam will cost $26.3 billion. Last January the President fixed Vietnam costs at $21.9 billion but in the Fiscal 1969 budget that estimate was revised upward by $3.1 billion to $25.0 billion. That is still low for Fiscal 1968 and the new estimate is at least $4.0 billion low for Fiscal Year 1969.

The President's $8.0 billion deficit also assumes that Grants to the States for Public Assistance will increase only 10% from $5.2 billion to $5.7 billion, an increase of $500 million. Yet in each of the past three budgets, the Administrations' original estimate was off several hundred million dollars. A supplemental request for Fiscal 1968 will be sent to the Congress within the next two weeks containing a request for $1.1 billion for Grants to the States for Public Assistance, an increase over the original request of some 23%.

The pattern of the past three budgets concerning expenditure estimates is clear and shocking. In 1966, the 1st Administration estimate was a full $10.4 billion less than actual spending in the cash budget turned out to be in that Fiscal year. In 1967, the spread between the original and final estimate was again $10 billion. For fiscal 1968, this year's budget document already projects a $4.0 billion increase over last January's estimate and Fiscal 1968 is only half over.

There is no question in my mind that the Fiscal year 1969 Budget of the United States presents a misleading picture both of income and outgo. Even with enactment of the surcharge, the budget deficit under the unified budget will be far nearer the $15 billion zone than the $8 billion the President so optimistically predicts.

And it is interesting - although discouraging - to note that the amount that it is estimated the tax increase would net the treasury is exactly the amount he increased pending programs for 1969.

All signs indicate continued inflationary pressures on the economy in the foreseeable future.

The American people and, particularly people in the Panhandle are far ahead of the President in their willingness to support whatever measures are necessary to halt the spiral of inflation and get our fiscal house in order.

The President's budget, far from doing that, will aggravate an already difficult situation. It is now up to Congress to make the President's budget a responsible fiscal plan for the nation.

FIRST AID KIT ESSENTIALS

With millions of home and car accidents a year, it is best advised the American Medical Association, to keep a well stocked first-aid kit readily available. Here's what the Association regards as the essentials for a first-aid kit.

Individual 2x2 and 4x4-inch sterile dressings; one-inch wide by five-yard roller bandages; roll of adhesive tape; bath towels and bed sheets which can be cut up; triangular bandage (37-inch by 37-inch) for a sling, dressing, or as a covering.

Safety pins, blunt-tip scissors, tweezers, measuring spoons, eye dropper, wooden tongue depressors; splints (about 12 to 14 inches long by 1/4-inch thick and 3 1/2 inches wide); wide strip of cloth or flexible rubber tubing 20 inches long to use as a tourniquet.

A bar of mild soap; paper drinking cups; flashlight (with working batteries); syrup of ipecac to induce vomiting; essential personal prescriptions; first aid guidebook.

PECAN SCAB IS AN EXPENSIVE DISEASE

Pecan producers with only a few trees or a commercial orchard are reminded that pecan scab is a profit grabber. Jerral D. Johnson, Extension pathologist, says the disease costs Texas producers about $6 million annually and that it can be controlled. Successful control depends upon the use of a fungicide at the right time and in the proper amount. He suggests a visit with the local county agent for details on a control program. Too, he adds, the control program will add to the beauty of the pecan tree.

A Tree Farm is a privately owned tax-paying forest area whose owner has been publicly recognized for doing an outstanding job in protecting and managing his woodlands for continuing growth of forest crops for commercial purposes.

A State "Representative" Is Exactly That...His Business Is To "Represent" His District!

In 1965, Incumbent J. M. Simpson voted AGAINST HJR 79 — a plan to lift excessive taxation off farmers and ranchers who live too close to towns and cities — or get caught within the extended "corporate limits."

But the fair-minded people of Texas reversed Simpson's decision. In November 1966, they voted that so long as land is being used for agricultural purposes — even though it is in the sphere of a city — it should be assessed for taxes as farmland.

How many thousands of Texans would still be on the land if they had not been forced to leave because farm prices will not support city taxation?
