outside water safely across cultivated fields or as outlets for terraces and diversion. Either way they help to prevent gullies. A well-vegetated and maintained waterway is pleasing to the eye, as well as being a soil and land saver, while a gully is an eyesore and a land waster. Waterways may be vegetated with any adapted perennial grass, such as western wheatgrass, buffalograss, in some cases bermuda grass and Johnsongrass are satisfactory. It is sometimes hard to get vegetation established in a waterway and it may take several years to get a satisfactory cover. This is why it is said that waterways are not for the easily discouraged.

Once established, waterways are worth all the money, time and effort, expended on them. The local Soil Conservation Service will be glad to assist anyone wanting to construct a waterway.

One of two remaining 5-cent items, the chocoalte bar, may be doomed, according to Extension home economists. In the past three years, the chocolate cravers have gobbled up all the world's yearly production and most of the reserves. The result: increase in prices from 17 cents a pound in 1963 to 49 cents. Other factors which may jeopardize the nickel candy bar are the higher manufacturing and distribution costs.

Are they Protestant, Catholic, or something in between?

Call them anything you please. Episcopalians are Protestant because

One to two weeks delivery!

Compared to most other churches, yes. The ministers wear robes. Members take communion at the altar rail. They kneel to pray. They don't chit-chat during worship.

The services are pretty formal ... but it's a matter of viewpoint. The Episcopal viewpoint is that worship is an act of giving - not receiving. They find that a bit of quiet formality and beauty helps put them in a proper frame of mind truly to give themselves over to God's worship.

Ever hear anyone complain of the ritual to be found at a big college football game? Or the weekly lodge meeting?

Is it true that Episcopal women cover their heads in church?

Customarily, yes. It's another way of paying respect to God. Nearly anything is considered cricket ... from a kerchief to last year's Easter bonnet.

Isn't the Episcopal Church sort of a private club for the rich?

Nope. That may be unfortunate around budget time each year, but Episcopalians don't believe God reserves any special place in heaven for the rich or influential.

That's one reason Episcopal funerals don't feature eulogies or an open casket. The departed - quite apart from the respect of his fellow man - is presumed already to have made his peace with God. The funeral service isn't conducted primarily for the dead; it's mostly a message of hope for eternal salvation ... and addressed to the living.

What is the Episcopalian view of baptism?

They follow the custom of pouring water, but readily will baptize by immersion those who prefer. They believe that the action of God in baptism is more important than the mechanics of men... and they accept baptism in any other Christian denomination as a true sacrament.

Then why the need for instruction and confirmation?

The Church has always regarded confirmation as completing baptism. Thus the promises made for a child in baptism are confirmed by the candidate himself. Correspondingly, the service signifies a confirmation, on God's part, of His promise of salvation.

.Simple instruction by the minister assures a complete understanding of the Church's basic creeds before the candidate assumes the responsibilities of communicant status.

Does this mean they have a "closed" communion?

Not at all, although the Episcopal church regards communion as a true sacrament and not just a memorial. Anyone who may receive communion in another Christian denomination is welcome to join in an Episcopal communion service if his own church's discipline permits him to do so.

Are visitors welcomed to Episcopal services?

Absolutely. At any service. It's customary for Episcopalians to remain quiet until they're outside the church, which explains why some visitors look on them as unfriendly. Just stick around after the service. There's usually coffee in the nearby parish hall ... and plenty of opportunity to get acquainted. Feel free to ask the minister for an appointment to discuss anything you find puzzling about the Episcopal faith. He'll be delighted . . . and wouldn't think of "twisting your arm" to join his church. That sort of decision must come from you, or it loses meaning.
