Sarpalius killing legislation to encourage Ag diversification himself as a friend of Texas agriculture, State Senator Bill Sarpalius of Amarillo sure has a bizarre way of proving it," Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said Tuesday,

"Senator Sarpalius single-handedly ignored the wishes of the Texas House and Senate, not to mention the leadership of the Legislature and all the major farm organizations in our state, to kill legislation that would greatly help Texas farmers and ranchers diversify into new cash-value alternative crops. The legislation would have helped pump an additional $6.1 billion-a-year in new agricultural sales into the Texas economy.

"A lot of Texas farmers and ranchers who will be forced out of business over the next two years could have been saved by this legislation," Hightower said. "Ironically, many of the producers who would benefit most from this legislation reside in Senator Sarpalius' district."

Hightower blasted Sarpalius, who chairs the Senate Agriculture Subcommittee, for killing, in the final economic development programs

"For someone who liked to tout hours of the regular legislative session, a bill that would have implemented the Texas Agricultural Diversification Act (HJR 5). HJR 5 is a proposed constitutional amendment which would have been presented to Texas voters in November.

> If approved by voters, the Texas Agricultural Diversification Act would have provided grants which would allow local governments and non-profit organizations to stimulate new business development in agriculture. HJR 5 would also provide incentives for Texas banks to make loans below current interest rates to develop food and fiber processing and marketing facilities and to assist producers with diversifying into such alternative crops as wine grapes, blueberries, pinto beans, sprouts and Oriental vegetables.

> The Texas Department of Agriculture has determined that 14 alternative crops have the potential to generate an additional $6.1 billion a year in new economic activity in Texas by the turn of the century, creating approximately 75,000 new initiated by both Governor Bill Clements and House Speaker Gib Lewis. In addition, the legislation was supported by the state's three largest general farm organizations-the Texas Farm Bureau, the Texas Farmers Union and the American Agriculture Movement.

The legislation was included in the

Before Sarpalius killed the "enabling legislation" to HJR 5, Texas House members had unanimously approved the House-Senate compromise. The legislation was authored by State Representative Dudley Harrison of Sanderson, Chairman of the House Agriculture and Livestock Committee, and State Senator Chet Edwards of Duncanville.

"In effect, Senator Sarpalius has delayed until 1989 the positive, commonsense work of the State Legislature to help financiallystrapped Texas farmers and ranchers diversify into new money-making crops. In all likelihood, it will be the next regular session before the Texas Legislature can address this issue again," Hightower said.

"But the legislation will eventually become law, and all Senator Sarpalius will have achieved is a bunch of unnecessary misery for a lot of Texas farmers and ranchers who need all the help they can get," Hightower said.

Jon D. Nichols was ordained a deacon in the United Methodist Church during an ordination service last week, at the Northwest Texas Annual Conference which met at the First United Methodist Church, Lubbock. The yearly meeting of ministers and lay leaders from United Churches throughout the Northwest Texas Conference concluded at noon on Thursday, June 4.

Jon is a 1980 graduate of Clarendon High School, he earned his bachelor of arts degree from McMurry College, Abilene. He currently has just finished his second year at Asbury Theological Seminary in Wilmore, Ky. He plans to receive his master of divinity degree in May

The first woman to serve as a state senator was Martha Hughes Cannon, elected in Utah in 1896.

Today's farmers need to diversify their crop production if they expect agriculture to prosper.

One way is to convert our farms from strictly grain production to grain and livestock operations...and better use our labor.

We also can find new uses for corn. The National Corn Growers Association, which represents corn producers everywhere, is spending lots of time and energy to promote a wide variety of industrial uses such as ethanol and other oxygenated fuels, high fructose corn sugar, CMA instead of salt as a road de-icer and for biodegradable plastics.

We're already using corn to produce over half of all the sweeteners consumed in the United States...and this market can still grow because corn now can be made into crystalized sugar that has advantages for people like me.

I'm overweight and high fructose, crystalized corn sugar has 50 percent more sweetness per calorie than sucrose, which is imported. Ethanol is another good example.

It's an excellent additive for gasoline...and is needed now that the federal government has banned the use of lead because of its environmental problems. Ethanol, which raises the octane of gasoline about 3.5 points, can be used instead of lead to stop engine knocking and it's environmentally benign.

gallons of ethanol, and this was field. mixed with gasoline to make more despite adverse publicity.

The National Corn Growers 4th Flight-1st BoBo Morrison and Association has a goal of annually Melody Moreman; 2nd Earl and converting one billion bushels of corn to ethanol by 1990. We have enough surplus production to do it. This will reduce our nation's dependence on unstable foreign oil suppliers and will help us keep U.S. dollars at home where they belong.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Nichols and the grandson of Mrs. Opal James. Attending the ceremony were his parents, and grandmother, one brother Tommy of Amarillo and a friend Jeff Topper of Clarendon.

Welcome home, James and Juanita Carter

"FIRST UNITED METHODIST" By PAT

As I thought about the welcome back speech for James and Juanita, the idea of advertisement made a click in my brain - I rushed over to the TV to look at the best kinds of advertisement, because the people who make commercials are highly paid individuals who know how to get your attention and make a point in 30-45 seconds. You know the saying -- 'From SHARP minds come SHARP products." Much to my surprise and dismay, sports are on most channels on Sunday afternoon. You can't imagine how difficult it is to catch the commercials between sets, innings, quarters, frames and rounds. Since I was unable to gather the required data, I finally got smart and 'let my fingers do the walking' and 'like a good neighbor,' the information was there. I know James and Juanita realize more than whirlpool that the yellow pages are 'there making your world a little easier'.

The world of First UMC Clarendon is a bit like Baskin Robins world of 31 flavors -- there are more than 31 varieties but no one should have to cope with more than 31 of those varieties at any given time.

Since James and Juanita came 'downhill all the way' two years ago, they've been 'like a good neighbor and always there'. They've been the 'friendly pepper-uppers' in home and hospital visits and James, you couldn't do this without Juanita, 'so don't leave home without her'. And to this Juanita could calmly reply, 'Calgon take me away' and then be ready to care for the next infant sent to her for the love and attention she gives so unselfishly. Bagworm damage being found

Bagworm damage to evergreens such as arborvitae, cedar and other shrubs is being found now, says County Extension Agent Ronald Evergreens should be watched closely at this time of year, especially if old worm bags are found on the tree. Wingless females crawl out and die after laying eggs inside the bag. In this case, each bag may contain hundreds of eggs which hatch into Chemicals suggested as controls include Sevin, Malathion, Diazinon or Dursban. The insecticide applications should be applied at seven to 10 day intervals until the bagworms are eliminated. Directions on the container should be followed carefully, the county agent emphasized.

The feeding worms, when infestations are heavy, will remove the foilage and bark from all or parts of a tree or shrub, resulting in death of the plant or the heavily infested parts. If control measures are started too late, hand pick and burn the bags, because the worm goes through the winter in the egg stage

Bullock reports on tax proposals

State Comptroller Bob Bullock Tuesday, May 19 warned that taxpayers would need a tax return the size of a bedsheet to report on 45 different sales tax rates that would be permitted under bills now pending in the Legislature.

"The simple old state, city and MTA taxes would look good compared to the new tax districts that these bills would create," Bullock said of legislators' proposals to authorize local sales taxes for everything from crime control districts to economic development zones.

And Bullock warned that the Legislature is apparently serious about these proposals as several of them have already passed either the House or Senate.

'The sales tax in the past has been as popular as any tax could ever be--if you can call any tax popular. But this is riding a good horse to death," he said.

"There's even one bill that sets eight different rates itself by permitting local options in increments of 1/8th cent," he said.

"A merchant would no longer tape

a sales tax rate card to the cash register," Bullock said, "It would take a rate book as thick as the telephone directory to keep up with

Varying MTA tax rates around the state, coupled with hit-and-miss city sales tax jurisdictions, already give merchants eight rates to keep up with and that's enough, Bullock said, not to mention the fact that there already will be a potential for 31 different rates next January when new city/county sales taxes authorized by the last Legislature go into

"Local governments might go broke just holding these elections," Bullock said, "and I know the Comptroller's office will go broke trying to account for them."

Safety on vacations urged by DPS

Motorists should prepare themselves for summer driving, according to Major V.J. Cawthon, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety. With summer approaching many people are preparing for their vacation and he warned drivers that accidents can and do spoil vacations.

"Texans and tourists from all over the world will be traveling throughout Texas to enjoy our parks, lakes, scenery, and the wonderful hospitality that Texas has to offer," he said. For the urban driver the expressway can become a bore, luring the weary into a false sense os security. "Drivers who normally drive on quiet county roads can panic in the confusion of the multi-lane mix of car and pedestrian city traffic," he cautioned.

He suggested for everyone to inspect your vehicle prior to leaving on the trip in order to eliminate the possibility of a minor breakdown miles from nowhere. Check out the tires, fan belts, hoses and cooling system, air conditioning, and electrical system.

Major Cawthon concluded, "Just one small accident can ruin a vacation for everyone. Make this summer and your vacation a pleasant experience to remember, not a bad one. To help insure this wear your safety belt, obey existing laws, and don't drink and drive."

Some Going Out Of Business Sales Never End

Jim Mattox

Attorney General

Going out of business sales can offer consumers quality merchandise at bargain prices. But a growing number of retailers have been falsely advertising that they are going out of business, thereby taking unfair advantage of their honest competitors.

WHO MAY ADVERTISE GOING OUT OF BUSINESS SALES

The only businesses that may advertise "going out of business sales" are those that will terminate all business operations at all locations in a county and in all counties immediately adjacent to that county.

The Texas Business and Commerce Code § 17.81 et. seq., expressly prohibits anyone from advertising with the phrase "going out of business," "closing out," "shutting doors forever," or "bankruptcy sale; the word "foreclosure" or "bankruptcy;" or a similar phrase or word indicating that an enterprise is ceasing business unless the business is closing all of its operations.

the county clerk of the county in which the principal place of business is located, prior to the sale. This must be a complete and detailed inventory of the merchandise, and its total cost, to be offered on the beginning date of the sale and of all items to be added after the beginning date. The inventory must also include, among other information, the beginning and ending dates of the sale, and must be accompanied by a $20 filing fee. Before the end of each 30-day period of the sale, businesses must file sale inventories that contain complete and detailed listings of unsold items from the original inventory. Items remaining that were added after the beginning date of the sale must be listed separately from those remaining from the inventory which were available on the beginning date.

A final inventory must be filed with the county clerk within 30-days after the last date of the sale. It must include a list of all items on the original inventory not sold during the sale and the name and address of any one who purchased items from the original inventory after the sale

PERMITS

LEE, LEE & LEE

County clerks will issue permits after the original inventory is filed.

SU

Permits for going out of business sales are valid for 120 days after the date of issue. They are not renewable. Permits must be posted conspicuously at the site of the sale.

No person may conduct a going out of business sale that begins within two years of the most recent such sale conducted by that person.

DISPOSITION OF SALE ITEMS

After a permit expires, the permit holder may not sell at retail an item offered at the sale covered by the permit.

THE PURPOSE

The purpose of this statute is to ensure that going out of business sales are conducted by businesses that are really going out of business.

If you have any doubts as to whether a sale is legitimate, ask to see the permit. Many Texas businesses now include their permit numbers in their advertisements in order to dispel any question of their legitimacy. If you are not sure whether a sale is legitimate, contact your county clerk, the Better Business Bureau, or the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division.

FOR MORE HELP

If you have any questions about going out of business sales, or or any other consumer issue, call your nearest Consumer Protection office. Offices are located in Austin, Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, McAllen, Lubbock and El Paso. The Attorney General's Office is the people's law firm. We're here to help you.

Medical Center News

Residents at the Medical Center Nursing Home had a wonderful time last week June 1st through 5th, in their first Vacation Bible School.

The "Life of Moses" was used for the Bible study, and the 10 Commandments for memory work. praying hands for our hand work.

Everyone wishes to thank the First Baptist Church for loaning their film strips and projector for this study. Also they wish to thank Grace Youngblood. Secretary for the First Baptist Church for designing the certificates and Mr. Johnnie Leathers for the vase of beautiful red roses for the table.

The first Friday in June is the day set aside for honoring our parents. The materials from the V.B.S. was used for Parents Day program and commencement for the residents.

They wish to thank Marie Hill for registering the guests. There were 36 guests present. Welcome to guests was by Larry White; Introduction of workers and program, Bible study and films by Vera Johnson; exercises and piano by Mrs. Beth Nelson: Call to worship-"Into my Heart" song led by Jeannie Formway; prayer by Rev.

A TOO LONG TONGUE

I am angered at so many people who are experts on TV preachers. They pass on all they hear that people of the world say. They do not take time or make an effort to learn the truth about them. Most of them who preach on TV are doing so for the love of God and His people.

God's word says that by their fruits you shall know them. If you know the heart of these people, it is your duty to expose them. But know for sure before you do anything.

I am convinced that most of them are doing what you and I are supposed to do. Go into all the earth and tell them of a loving God who cares and the saving grace of His Son.

Why not preach on TV, the world has been sending its poison over the air long enough and it seems funny that these same people who condemn the preachers on TV will tell you of the soap operas they enjoy watching on TV. All of these shows portray the worst and most degrading acts of

If you want to do something that will be effective in your life pray to a loving God to bring about the honest work of his chosen people who claims His as Father.

I heard a preacher say once, that a person came to him and told him that she needed to put her tongue on the & alter. He told her, go ahead do the best your can, the alter is only 18 feet long. How long is your tongue? The harm you do with it can be destructive to a lot of people.

Remember you can only judge the actions of the people and not the people themselves. If you had a degree from every college of the world, you still would not be smart enough to judge the people. If you would read the bible they preach from, you would not be so fast to condemn them.

There have been some who have let pride and money take the calling of God from their lives. Have you done anything to help them stay straight or prayed for their work? No but you can condemn them by your tongue.

Truman Ledbetter; pledges and songs by Jeannie Formway; presenting certificates to residents by Larry White; closing song-"Thank you Lord for Saving My Soul". This was also the Benediction before refreshments were served to all present.

The table was covered with a beautiful white table cloth, and decorated with a vase of red roses, The United States Flag, the Christian Flag and the Holy Bible. The piano was decorated with the theme poster "Honor They Father and Thy Mother" and the basket holding the certificates.

Registered guests were: from Clarendon-Nell Vitarelle, Ceil Jones, Oneta Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Ashcraft, Gary Skinner, Mr. and Mrs. Troy Skinner, Norma Jones, Nelda Jackson, Francis McCord, Hazel Phillips, Teresa Phillips, Truman Ledbetter, Lee Caskey, Dorothy Breedlove, Hugh Mahaffey, Frances Stevens, Gene Alderson, Georgia Pinion, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Tyler, Derlene Graham, Willard Hudson, Hazel Campbell, Mrs. Nelson and 2 granddaughters and W.B.

Consumers can maximize insurance coverage

Most consumers are aware that the FSLIC insures their funds to a $100,000 limit. Many, however, are either unaware that they can have more than $100,000 in insured funds in a savings institution or are unsure of how to maximize their coverage.

Through multiple account ownership, a depositer may have funds in separately insured accounts (individual accounts, joint accounts, testamentary/revocable trust accounts and irrevocable trust accounts) in the same institution, insuring more than $100,000, all within the Rules and Regulations for Insurance of Ac-

Individual accounts are insured up to $100,000 in the aggregate. For example, a depositor may have an interest-bearing checking account and a certificate of deposit, both in the same name. The funds in these accounts would be added together and insured for a total of $100,000. Joint accounts are insured in two ways: the balance of all accounts with the same co-owners are added together and insured for a total of $100,000 Joint accounts are insured in two ways: the balance of all accounts with the same co-owners are added together and insured for up to $100,000 per institution; and in the case of an owner with an interest in joint accounts with different combinations of co-owners, the owner's proportionate interest in the insured balance of all joint accounts is added together and insured up to $100,000.

No joint accounts with the same co-owners may be insured for more than $100,000 in the aggregate and no individual's proportionate interest in all joint accounts is insured for more than $100,000.

coverage as a joint account, each co-owner must personally sign the account signature card and have equal withdrawal rights; otherwise, the funds in the account would be considered to belong to the owners individually and would be added to any individual accounts of the owners and insured with those accounts up to $100,000 in the aggregate.

Testamentary/revocable trust accounts are insured separately from individual and joint accounts in the following cases. These accounts are insured for the owner or owners to $100,000 per beneficiary only if the beneficiary is the owner's spouse, child or grandchild. If the beneficiaries do not meet this requirement, the funds in the account would be considered to belong to the owner individually and would be added to any individual accounts of the owner and would be insured with those accounts up to $100,000 in the aggregate.

A son could not designate his parent as the beneficiary of a testamentary account if he wanted to have separate insurance coverage under this category, but a parent could designate a son s beneficiary and have separate insurance coverage under this category. The signature care for this type of account must show the owner's intention that upon death the funds belong to the named beneficiary.

A testamentary/revocable trust account owned by a husband and wife, naming their two children as beneficiaries, could be insured to $400,000. Upon the death of one of the co-owners, insurance coverage would decrease to $200,000.

Irrevocable trust accounts commonly used by individuals include Individual Retirement Accounts and Keogh accounts. These are insured up to $100,000 in the aggregate accounts. These are insured up to $100,000 in the aggregate separately from each other and separate from a person's individual, joint and/or testamentary/revocable trust

A husband and wife could insure a total of $900,000 through ownership of individual, joint, testamentary revocable trust accounts and irrevocable trust accounts and a family of four could insure a total of $1.8 million. Fishing Guide Services not subject to sales tax

Bob Bullock, Comptroller of Public Accounts has announced that there has been some confusion whether the Legislature meant to tax hunting and fishing guide services when the 1984 sales tax bill was passed. He announced that based on a review by his tax policy group, they have determined that fishing guide services are not subject to the sales tax.

Their decision was based on a finding that guide services are personal services opposed to recreation services which are covered by the Legislature's 1984 revisions.

This means that fishing guide services are given the same tax exempt treatment previously given hunting guide services. Also, fishing excursion boat services are

Myths about beef - America's "King of Meats"

In recent years America's "King of Meats" has been taking a beating. For reasons not understood by cattlemen, beef has become the whipping boy for food faddists, diet book authors -- and even some scientists and nutritionists.

Is there a reason to be alarmed about beef? Are we putting our lives at stake when we sit down to a succulent T-bone? Do we risk cancer or heart attack when we sink our teeth into a juicy hamburger? Can a food taste that good -- and still be bad for you?

It seems that the MYTHS about beef have no trouble at all being pickup in print, or in being aired on TV or radio. But what are the FACTS about beef?

To show that FACTS often are as interesting as MYTHS, the following present documented truths about beef -- how it reaches your table and what it does and doesn't do to your

1. Myth: Beef is high in cholesterol. Fact: Three ounces of cooked lean beef contain 73 milligrams of cholesterol. By comparison, the same amount of roast chicken contains 76 mg; fried chicken, 74 mg; pork, 77 mg; shrimp, 130mg; cheddar cheese. 90 mg. Of course, the human body NEEDS cholesterol -- some 1,000 milligrams a day -- and the body normally will manufacture the difference between the amount consumed and the amount it requires. The standard three-ounce serving of beef provides only about eight percent of the cholesterol the body needs.

2. Myth: Beef is high in calories. Fact: Three ounces of lean roast beef contain 169 calories; three ounces of top loin (strip) steak contain 195 calories. Three ounces of baked chicken, without skin, contain 174 calories while three ounces of fried chicken, with skin, contain 209 calories. Actually, beef is ideal for modern, low-calorie diets because today's leaner cattle provide beef that is, on the average, ten percent lower in calories than it was in years skinned.

Fact: Beef is highly digestible -more digestible, in fact, than vegetables. Beef's ingredients are 96 percent digested, and its abundant nutrients are almost completely absorbed and used by the body.

4. Myth: Beef is high in saturated

Fact: Beet actually contains considerably less fat than is generally assumed. Three ounces of cooked lean beef contain about nine grams of fat -- and less than half of that is saturated. Of all the fat in the U.S. food supply, 36 percent comes from meat and fish. The increase in fat intake in this country has been caused primarily by an increase in use of vegetable fats. Fats and oils now account for 43 percent of the fat in the food supply.

5. Myth: Beef contributes to Fact: To date, reported links between diet and cancer have been mostly hypothetical. A group of scientists convened by the American Cancer Society concluded that no single dietary factor, including fat or meat, could possibly account for more than a small fraction of cancer in the U.S. In any event, the issue is fat, of all types, and not meat per se. If a person accepts the theory that a low-fat diet will help prevent cancer, beef should probably be in that person's diet, because modern beef is lower in fat and calories and high in protein, vitamins and minerals.

6. Myth: Beef is frequently processed under unsanitary condition

Fact: The meat industry is the most regulated of all food industries. It has been described as the most regulated industry in the nation, with the exception of the nuclear energy industry. Physical inspections of meat are made in packing plants by certified inspectors from the state or the U.S. Department of Agriculture. When a violation is uncovered, it results in substantial news coverage -- because it is a rare and truly unusual event.

7. Myth: Beef's nutritional makeup is no better or worse than that of Fact: Beef actually contains sub-

(Iron and zinc are the two most common nutritional deficiencies in America today.) Beef is what nutritionists call a "nutrientdense" food. It supplies a large share of essential nutrients and a relatively small share of calories. For example, a three ounce serving of lean beef supplies only eight percent a booster effect on iron in other foods consumed at the same time. Much of the iron in spinach, for instance, is not made available to the body unless it is eaten in combination with another food. Beef provides iron -and also serves as a catalyst to help you get the iron out of other foods.

10. Myth: Beef cattle production uses grain that could be used to feed the world's hungry.

Fact: The grain fed to livestock is mostly "feed" grain, for which there is little or no demand as human food Grain -- either food grain or feed grain -- will not be produced unless there is a market for it. The livestock industry provides that market. Actually, the grain fed to beef cattle represents only 15 percent of the total feed for cattle.

11. Myth: Beef cattle graze on valuable land that could be used for the production of crops for humans.

Fact: About one billion acres of the tional composition of beef and on nation's 2.2 billion acres of land are used for pasture and grazing. Congressman Beau Boulter Reports from Washington

HOPE FOR THE OIL PATCH

(WASHINGTON)—In three years, we face the real possibility that foreign oil may account for more than 50% of our nation's oil supply. In addition to the problems this presents for our domestic producers, not to mention our regional ecconomy, this reliance on foreign oil may pose an equally serious threat to our national security. As a result, I am more convinced than ever of the need for Congress and the Reagan Administration to develop and implement a strong national energy policy.

Fortunately, the first step of this process took place earlier this year when the Department of Energy released its Energy Security report, which offered a series of recommendations as the basis for a strong energy policy.

As many of you know, the Reagan Administration recently offered its energy legislative package to Congress in response to this report. And while I wholeheartedly welcome President Reagan's recommendations and his oil and gas proposals, I just don't think they go far enough. So, along with Senator Phil Gramm, I am planning to introduce in Congress, a package of energy measures that restore stability to our domestic oil and gas industry and, subsequently, insure that its strategic importance to our national economy and national defense is properly recognized.

My energy legislation will embrace the President's proposals, but will go several steps further in assisting the oil and gas industry.

The President's recommendations, which were submitted to Congress earlier in May, call for the following: 1) repeal of the windfall profit tax; 2) repeal of the transfer rule to allow equitable treatment to independents that purchase oil and gas properties from major oil companies; 3) increase of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve fill rate to 100,000 barrels per day, up from 75,000 per day, so that by 1993 the SPR has stockpiled 750 million barrels; 4) transportation of natural gas without discrimination as to shipper or recipient; 5) decontrol of natural gas wellhead prices; 6) lowering of minimum bids for offshore leases; 7) increase in the net income limitation to 100% for depletion allowance deductions.

dent's initiatives, stronger action must be taken. My bill will include three additional and, I believe, very essential proposals, including:

Again, while I support the Presi-

· a 10% tax credit for exploration, development and marginal well production;

 expensing of geological and geophysical costs;

 the removal of intangible drilling costs as a tax preference item subject to the alternative minimum tax.

With our growing reliance on foreign crude and the dependence of our national defense and domestic economy on oil and gas, now is the time to act to insure the stability of the oil and gas industries. '

LOWER BACK PAIN

If you've been treated for lower back problem and the pain and discomfort are still there, you may be able to benefit from chiropractic treatment.

If your spine is out of alignment. this may be causing other problems in addition to lower back pain. Because the body's nervous system is closely integrated with the spine, any misalignment can cause painful irritation. Abnormal nerve function may damage for ever organs, glands, or tissues that are supplied by that nerve.

The nerves of the lower back. for example, are connected to certain organs and other structures in that area. If lower back spinal misalignment is putting undue pressure on the nerves, you may be suffering from more than lower back pain. It may be having a direct effect on other areas of your body.

Hemorrhoid Medicines

Hemorrhoids are composed of masses of stretched tissue and may form inside the rectum (internal) or outside the rectum (external). External hemorrhoids often bleed, may itch, and are swollen and very painful.

Warm baths provide relief from many hemorrhoid symptoms. Disposable cleansing wipes help provide similar relief, especially when away from the home. A variety of products are available for application to hemorrhoids. Most contain one or more of the following:

Local anesthetics such as benzocaine reduce the transmission of pain, burning, and itching sensations to the brain.

Astringents such as zinc oxide and tannic acid cause the protein in affected skin cells to coagulate. Coagulation may help protect the deeper layers of skin and also reduce local irritation and secretions.

Protectants such as petrolatum, cocoa butter, and lanolin coat hemorrhoidal tissues and reduce contact with fecal materials. Irritation and itching are thereby reduced.

Other ingredients include a steroid to fight inflammation, antiseptics to fight infection, medicines that constrict blood vessels, and counter-irritants to provide a "cooling" effect. ©S & S 1987

Government Support Programs and Market Influence Crop Mix Decisions

By Marilyn Brown TAES Science Writer

Each year, farmers must decide how many acres they will devote to each crop they produce. The decision is complex, and a poor decision can be harmful not only to the farmer, but to the society that depends on him for its food and fiber.

Coming into the decision-making process are the effects of crop rotation on yield, of government farm programs, of commodity prices, and in many cases, the farmer's own beliefs (subjective opinion) about what the coming year will bring.

"The farm financial crisis, combined with falling farm prices, make it increasingly important that farmers make good crop mix decisions," say agricultural economists Gregory M. Perry, Bruce A. McCarl and M. Edward Rister.

"When considering whether to produce a given crop, the farmer must also decide whether or not to participate in the farm program for that crop, provided such a program exists."

Perry, of Oregon State University, and McCarl and Rister, of Texas A&M University, have tried to develop a computer model to assist in the crop mix decision. Their attempt differs from past efforts in that it attempts to consider all of the variables, as well as to determine what is best for the current year, not just for the long run.

"To date, no known research has simultaneously considered returns, risk, rotational effects, resource limitations, and government programs when identifying the optimal crop mix," the researchers say.

The economists applied their technique to a farm in the Texas coastal bend, and virtually all of the data used in the analysis were estimated by the participating farmer, based on his subjective beliefs.

For now, the lengthy computer program used in the research would be too expensive for most computer systems with user fees, the researchers say, but they believe that within a few years, such problems will be solvable on personal computers.

Further research is needed to test the approach in other parts of the United States, and such research could determine what factors are important in other parts of the country, where government programs do not exist for the most profitable crops, such as vegetables.

In related research, Perry and Rister teamed up with James A. Richardson and David Bessler of Texas A&M to help determine the average income as well as variability of income for government-supported crops.

Farmers who participate in federal programs are limited in acreage, and thus the participation decision may place restrictions on the crop mix chosen.

With the radical changes in the 1985 farm bill, past means of projecting income using historical price data may no longer be useful, the researchers say.

Implementation of the economists' approach to calculate income mean and variance makes use of subjectively estimated yield and price distributions. Using subjectively estimated data may be the best method of analyzing the crop mix-government program participation decision, they say.

CALORIE CUTTING THAT MAKES SENSE

Over 40 million Americans are currently on a weight-loss diet. Unfortunately, about 95 percent of those who succeed will regain their weight within a year. Most dieters fail because they lack basic knowledge about caloric needs.

Dr. Marjorie Freedman, a nutritional scientist at The NutraSweet Company, offers these calorie-cutting do's and don'ts to help lose weight and keep it off.

• DO avoid fat. Fat has more calories per gram (9) than either complex carbohydrates (4) or proteins (4). What's more, dietary fat is converted more easily into body fat than these other food components.

• DO exercise. If you don't participate in formal exercise such as aerobics, find an activity that easily fits your daily routine. Brisk walks to and from work and taking stairs instead of elevators will help burn calories.

• DON'T embrace fad diets. Unbalanced diets, maintained over time, can harm you. All diets should include all of the four food groups—milk, vegetables and fruits, breads and cereals, and meat.

• DON'T starve yourself. Consuming less than 1,000 calories per day will slow your metabolism and reduce the rate at which you burn calories. To lose weight, women should consume between 1,000 and 1,200 calories per day, and men between 1,200 and 1,500.

 DON'T deprive yourself of favorite foods. You won't be able to avoid them for long and what you deprive yourself of today you may replace with twice as much tomorrow.
 Practice moderation and budget your calories.

• DON'T consider alternative sweeteners a license to indulge. While they do help cut calories, they don't burn them up. A sugar-free soda at lunch doesn't make room for an ice-cream sundae after dinner. It does, however, make the soda less costly by 200 calories.

Making sensible lifestyle changes like these can ease and improve weight-loss. For more tips and recipes to help budget calories, contact The NutraSweet Center by calling 1-800-321-7254 or by writing to: The NutraSweet Center (CN), P.O. Box C1115, Skokie. IL 60076.
