FFA conference to be held at college

The 18th annual Area I, National FFA Organization Leadership Conference will be held on the campus of Clarendon College, June 19-21. Attending the conference will be outstanding young men and women who serve as State FFA Officers, Area FFA Officers and District Presidents. Some of the activities for FFA members during the conference will include leadership activities, as well as planning activities for the Texas State Convention. Agricultural education teachers will also be conducting their 2000-2001 planning session. The Texas Area I region covers from the top of the Panhandle and south to Lubbock. For more information, contact Jerry Hawkins at (806) 874-3571.

Clarendon sales tax rebate drops

AUSTIN - Texas Comptroller Carole Keeton Rylander last week sent Texas cities and counties $199.3 million in monthly sales tax rebates. Local rebates were mostly down this period. The City of Clarendon saw a 13.2 percent drop to a total of $13,739.40, and Hedley was down more than 85 percent to $58.35. Howardwick was the only exception. That city's $880.34 was up from $218.49 last year. Statewide, June payments are up 8.3 percent for June. Year-to-date rebates are up 7.9 percent. Clarendon is up 4.71 percent for the year, but Hedley and Howardwick are down 24 and 35 percent respectively. June sales tax payments represent sales taxes collected in April and reported to the comptroller in May.

Baptist Youth to hold fundraisers

The Youth of First Baptist Church of Clarendon will hold several fundraisers this Friday and Saturday to fund summer activities. On Friday, June 17, they will hold a bake sale at B&R Thriftway beginning at 8 a.m. On Saturday, they have a car wash on the B&R parking lot of starting at 8 a.m. Cost is $10 for cars and pickups and $15 for vans and suburbans and includes both a wash and vacuum. For a $1 donation, you will be eligible to win a $50 shopping spree at B&R. Donations will be accepted both Friday and Saturday. The drawing will be Saturday at 5 p.m. You need not be present to win. Proceeds benefit the First Baptist Church Youth Ministry.

CC hosts career day for area students

BY JACKIE BOYD
 Clarendon Enterprise
 Clarendon College in conjunction with Tech Prep kicked off their Career Camp 2000 on Sunday afternoon. Twenty-one campers from the Texas panhandle area explored career opportunities through seminars, field trips, Internet searches, and hands-on activities. Julie Ashby, a representative from Tech Prep, presented an activity Monday morning called "The Real Game." Campers explored career possibilities and matched real life necessities and expenses with their ideas. Most of the campers realized that having what's cool and being able to afford it are two totally different aspects, as most of the campers were deeply in debt after balancing their budgets. Dusty Martindale of Clarendon said, "This is one of the most fun camps that I have been to. Not only do we get to do a lot of neat things, but the counselors are really cool. They treat us like adults, not kids." Campers from Clarendon included: Chrissy Martin, Chasity Ritchie, Jake Bennet, Blake Frye, Adam Leeper, Tim Leeper, Dusty Martindale, and Otis Scrivner; and Treva Rowland attended from Hedley.

Other campers were Jamie Cordova, Jennifer Greer, Klotia Jones, Natalie McVay, Katlin Paccini, Crystal Sanchez, Kendra Strickland all from Pampa; Tiffanie Gibson and Jenna Minkley, Claude; Tanya Davis, Childress; Mitch Adams, Fritch; and Ryan Frye, Arlington. This was the second career camp Clarendon College has offered. Linda Frye Clarendon College Counselor said, "We hope this can become a yearly event that soon-to-be freshman can look forward to attending each year." For more information about the Career Camp, please call Linda Frye, (806) 874-3571.

Donley County Remembers Part 5

A Creek Runs Through It

By Lindy Helms
 Not far from Clarendon, down farm to market road 2471 and below a narrow bridge, is the Salt Fork of the Red River, which is faithfully fed by Naylor Spring. This steady flowing creek winds toward historic Naylor House and gushes a lifetime of memories for the small town native, Faye Naylor.

That same faithful spring is what attracted Faye's ancestors to settle the area in the late 1800s. "T.E.'s grandparents came to Donley County in June of 1894 from North Carolina," Faye said, referring to her late husband's family; "and my grandfather Owens came from Tennessee in April of 1894. We raised cotton and cattle here, and everybody had to haul their own water from Naylor Spring." Although a few other families were sprinkled around the area, the Naylor family, which included a civil war veteran and one of Texas' first postmistresses, was instrumental in developing the community. "The Naylor House was a two-story house; T.E.'s grandfather built it to look just like the one he lived in back in North Carolina," Faye said. "When the Naylors first came here, they lived in a half dugout, and I think they built that house and finished it in 1919." Conveniently located on the creek near the spring, Naylor House became a central meeting place for Naylor residents. "They had big camp meetings down at Naylor Spring. Usually the circuit rider preacher would come through, and they'd have preaching there at Naylor House if the weather got bad," Faye said. "Of course, the preacher stayed with them in the house when he'd come by, and some of the teachers lived there also." Not only was Naylor House a makeshift church and school, it was also a post office and marketplace, and even a crime scene. "T.E.'s Aunt Minnie was a post master," Faye said. "Actually, she was one of the first post mistresses in the state. There are a lot of letters we still have that are postmarked Naylor, Texas. Minnie ran the post office right out of the house." "The actual post office was stolen out of the house a while back," Faye said, "but a friend of mine found it in an antique store in Memphis, and I bought it back. We never found the postmark stamp, though." According to Faye, Minnie and her sister Ava had a garden at Naylor House and raised chickens and livestock.

"Other people had his and her cars, but T.E. and I had his and her tractors," said Faye Naylor, recalling her family's agrarian roots.

At the traditional Naylor House, Faye Naylor and her granddaughter Fayeth Ann pose near the well their ancestors dug by hand over a century ago.

Faye believes that Fayeth, along with her other grandchildren, will continue to make the Naylor community their home for years to come. Enterprise Digital Photo.

"They would send the eggs, fruits, and vegetables into Clarendon with the mail carrier, and they'd sell their produce to the stores in town. They did all sorts of things to supplement their income back then." Faye also retells an exciting event at Naylor House - a fatal robbery attempt. "They had three new cars in their barn, Model A's; and T.E.'s dad Tom, forgot to turn the cows out that night, so he went out before dinner. He heard some men talking there in the barn, and they were stealing the cars! Tom didn't have a gun or anything, so he took a glove out of his pocket and said, 'Stick 'em up,' and marched them back up to the house. When they got to the lot, one of the men saw it was just a glove, and shot at Tom. They had a hired hand they called Old Mose who saw the flash of the gun. He grabbed a double barrel shotgun that was sitting there in the dining room, ran outside, and shot the man who shot at Tom, and killed him." Only a few years after the incident, in 1935, Tom Naylor passed away, and T.E. would remain at Naylor House and go to school at Naylor while Faye grew up only a few miles away. Faye was born in Amarillo, Texas, in 1930, but shortly after her birth, her family moved back to Donley County and began ranching and farming around Hedley. "When we first moved back from Amarillo, we lived on Bell Creek," Faye said. "My grandparents had a gas station and little cabins they rented out. Then, my grandparents

Library plan will improve adult literacy

A new literacy program will soon be underway in Donley County. The Burton Memorial Library received two grants last week, one in the amount of $518.03 from the Golden Spread Literacy Fund, and another from the Viburnum Foundation for $3,000. The funds will be used to buy books and start-up materials for the Friends of the Library Literacy Council. The council was formed after a survey identified a need to improve adult literacy in Donley County. Panhandle Community Services, the Department of Human Services, and the Donley County Sheriff's Office participated in the study. The local council has trained tutors who will provide reading instruction for adults on a one to one basis. If you know someone who wants to learn to read, improve existing reading skills, needs help filling out forms, or needs help studying for the GED test, please call Ayesha Abdullah at 874-2794 or the Burton Library at 874-3685. There is no cost to the student, and all calls are strictly confidential.

Boll weevil zone adds new counties

AUSTIN - The Texas Department of Agriculture announced last week that two proposals to transfer approximately 80,000 acres to the Northern Rolling Plains Boll Weevil Eradication Zone have passed. In the first referendum, 92.5 percent of the eligible cotton growers voted to transfer all the area below the Caprock in Garza, Crosby, Dickens, Floyd, and Motley counties to the Northern Rolling Plains zone. All of Kent County also was included in this referendum. These areas requested to be part of the Northern Rolling Plains zone because they have similar geographic boundaries and share similar growing conditions. The Northern Rolling Plains zone was formally created in April 1999 and previously consisted of approximately 340,000 acres in 14 counties: Gray, Wheeler, Donley, Collingsworth, Hall, Childress, Cottle, King, Hardeman, Wilbarger, Wichita, Clay, Foard, and portions of Archer. Cotton growers in Briscoe, Crosby, Dickens, Floyd, Garza, Kent and Motley counties were not part of an active eradication zone.

Thornberry says it's only a matter of time before the Death Tax is laid to rest

WASHINGTON, DC - Saying it's only a matter of time before the death tax is laid to rest, US Rep Mac Thornberry (R-Clarendon) voted last Monday for legislation that will repeal the inheritance - or death - tax over the next ten years. "It's often called the American Dream," Thornberry said. "But the federal government puts some big roadblocks in the way of achieving that dream. One of the biggest is the death tax. Americans can be forced to turn over to the government up to 55 percent of their lives' work. "When I was young, the first letter I ever wrote to an elected official was about the death tax. I overheard my father and grandfather worry about how this tax would affect our ranch. I didn't understand why family-run businesses would be punished for generations of hard work. It seemed wrong and unfair. It remains unfair today. More than 70 percent of family-run businesses and farms don't survive through the second generation while 87 percent never make it to the third. The congressman said while he'd prefer to see the tax eliminated immediately, the bill puts the country on the right track to repeal the death tax. The bill is called the Death Tax Elimination Act. Passed last Monday afternoon in the US House of Representatives by a vote of 279-136, the bill will phase out death taxes over the next ten years. Thornberry is a longtime proponent of death tax repeal, and he is the author of legislation that would abolish death taxes immediately. He noted that Congress passed legislation providing some relief from the death tax in 1997 and voted to phase it out altogether last year. However, he added, the President vetoed the legislation last year and continues to be opposed to an outright repeal. Thornberry said he still remains optimistic that support for getting rid of the death tax seems to be growing. "Despite the President's opposition," he stated, "I believe it's only a matter of time before the death tax is laid to rest." The bill will now be voted on by the Senate.

Weather service gives award to Saye for 45 years of work

Tommie C. Saye was presented the cooperative Program Length of Service Award for 45 years of service and a letter from the National Weather Service Director, John J. Kelly during a presentation last Tuesday, June 6, at the First Christian Church in Clarendon.

The letter and award was presented by Jose M. Garcia, Meteorologist in Charge, Weather Forecast Office, Amarillo, Texas.

On May 1, 1904, the Supplementary Aviation Weather Report Station (SAWRS) was established at Clarendon, Texas, for Flood Control, Climatology and Weather observations. On August 31, 1951, the SAWRS station was still needed; and on October 22, 1951, and Agricultural Corn and Wheat station was established at Clarendon, under Joe Goldston.

When Saye became the observer on March 1, 1955, his duties consisted of maximum and minimum temperature, rain and snowfall and hydrologic observations for flood control.

Saye's records are archived and published by the National Climatic Data Center in Ashville, NC. The publication is used for research, construction, tourism and other profitable enterprise. Participation in the program is voluntary, and Saye donates his time to perform this responsibility twice daily.

His participation provides and effective Severe Weather Warning Program, Hydrologic Warning Program for the Amarillo Weather Service, and National and State climatological service to the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandles. The Amarillo Weather Service maintains 53 such stations, and without dedicated observers, our knowledge of the many climates of the United States would be very incomplete.

Tommie Saye (right) received an award from the National Weather Service for his 45 years as a cooperative observer for the NWS. Presenting the award was Jose Garcia (left), Meteorologist in Charge, from the Weather Forecast Office in Amarillo.

Steer validation June 28

By Leon Church, County Agent

All 4-H or FFA youth planning to have a market steer project for the 2000-2001 show season must have their steers validated.

The validation process will be conducted on June 28 at 4:00 p.m. at the Clarendon Veterinary Hospital. In order for young people to exhibit at any show in Texas, this validation must be completed.

The validation process includes nose printing, ear tattoo, ear tagging and blood sampling. The blood sampling is to insure identification of the animal using DNA. Additionally, the process requires that parents or legal guardians be present to sign and verify that the animal validated was indeed their child's animal. Parents and youth should plan to attend so all required signatures can be taken.

All steers in Donley County must be validated at this time and place. Any questions can be directed to Leon Church, Donley County Agent 874-2141.

Federal estate tax deserves a quick death

Last week, the US House of Representatives passed a bill to repeal the so-called death tax over a ten-year period.

The demise of this abominable tax is something the Republicans have been working on for some time now, and they were joined by more than 60 Democrats when the vote came. But all is not rosy. The bill faces a fight in the Senate where the top Democrats promise to put up a fierce battle because, as they put it, the bill benefits "the richest of the rich." And if by the grace of God it gets through the Senate, impeached president Billy Clinton has promised to veto it.

This tax makes no sense. If you've spent a lifetime building up an estate, it is simply un-American for the federal government to come in and confiscate half of it when you die. It doesn't matter whether you're a small business owner or a wealthy corporate executive. It is wrong for the feds to be able to seize a person's assets when they die.

Liberals and the socialists in the current administration disagree with that. They think it's just fine and dandy to steal a person's lifetime of work. Of course, to get a few votes they'll pretend to be against the death tax.

"I am supportive of targeted, fiscally responsible legislation to make the estate tax fairer, simpler, and more efficient," the impeached president said in a letter last week.

Here we go again with that "targeted tax cut" malarkey. The Democrats would prefer to give the tax break only to very small businesses and family farmers. Giving a tax break to anybody else would be "risky," would cost the government too much money, and - of course - would mean we couldn't save Social Security or give away free drugs to seniors.

Maybe I'm alone on this one, but I think the federal government costs the American people too much money.

Last Thursday, a representative of Sen. Phil Gramm's office was in town and asked if there was any message I'd like him to take to the senator. "Yeah," I replied. "Taxes are too darn high, and we want them lowered. Quit talking about it and do it."

The fellow responded with some mealy-mouthed comment about how the senator knows this and therefore supports block grants to return money back to states and communities.

"Block grants are fine," I said, "but frankly I'd rather not send the money to Washington in the first place."

My question for the Congress is this: Why take ten years to kill the death tax? Why phase it out? Did the federal government take ten years to phase it in?

Just kill it. Shoot it in the head and be done with it. The same principal should apply to the federal phone tax.

The luxury tax (i.e. a tax on the rich) was first introduced to help pay for the Spanish-American War. But now telephones are common place, and this "luxury tax" is raking in more than $4 billion a year to the federal treasury.

(For those of you not up on your American History, the Spanish-American War was going on in 1898. We won.)

A few weeks ago, the House of Representatives voted 420-2 to kill the phone tax. Administration officials have reportedly "expressed reservations" about the bill and its cost to the government.

Like the bill repealing the death tax, this one is another phase out job. The tax would go from three percent to two percent 30 days after the bill is signed into law. It would drop another percentage point next year and would finally be fully repealed on October 1, 2002.

Again, why wait so long? Maybe the Congress has a reason to let the phone tax linger. Perhaps they think the war with Spain will flare back up and we'll need the revenue.

Both of these taxes ought to be repealed outright. No waiting. Do not pass Go. Just send the both taxes straight to the grave.

After that's done, our government ought to repeal the payroll taxes. Employers should not have to pay taxes just for the privilege of employing someone.

And then, our income taxes ought to be lowered dramatically. How about making the top rate - I don't know - let's say ten percent.

Members of both parties will undoubtedly say the government couldn't afford either of my proposals much less the combination of the two. To which I say, "Tough cookies."

You see I have reservations that the government might not spend my money wisely, and I can't afford for them to keep it.

Meanwhile...

Bureaucracy is bad in these United States, but believe it or not some people do have it worse.

In a province of Colombia, officials have decided to require people to have "survival certificates" before they can receive old-age benefits.

Now, Ananova.com reports that 87-year-old Arturo Suspe had a heart attack and died recently while waiting in the office to get the piece of paper that would prove he was alive.

There's no word on whether Señor Suspe will have to pay a death tax.

Texas should be number one high tech state

Texas is the second most populous state in the Union, yet Texas universities rank sixth in the amount of federal research funding they receive. This is not acceptable as far as I'm concerned, and one of my most important goals is to change that.

I want to make Texas the country's premier technology center and expand the medical research that is conducted at our great colleges and universities, which already do world-class, Nobel-Prize-winning work.

I recently convened a Higher Education Summit in Washington, where I was joined by some of the major heads of higher learning in our state. We met to brainstorm the best way to promote the growth of our technology, health, and agriculture sectors; and we agreed to work toward getting Texas onto the list of top three recipients of federal research funding by the year 2005.

There's no reason we can't achieve such a goal, and I have a plan to do it.

I have asked our top-tier universities to identify and develop areas of excellence - of unique research expertise - and to concentrate on strengthening their programs in those areas. Then, when a federal research project is launched, there will be a Texas school with a reputation for excellence in capitol

Comment
with Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison

that area of inquiry to step up to the plate and be the best candidate to carry out the work.

Of course there will be a certain amount of overlap, but we don't want our schools to be competing against each other; we want them to be cooperating with each other while competing and prevailing on a national basis.

The Texas congressional delegation will be working together to help match those capabilities with existing and emerging areas of federal research and development.

We've got all kinds of good examples of how this should work. Texas Tech is building its own niches of excellence in specialized areas of agriculture, health care, and weather prediction. Thanks to technology and research at Texas Tech, your weather report on the local evening news tonight, in this first year of the new century, will present more scientific knowledge than the sum total of what the experts knew about climatogology in 1900.

Texas A&M has unsurpassed expertise in agriculture research and maintains the nation's premier center for training emergency response personnel. The University of Texas at Austin is home to world-class health research and treatment institutions such as the M.D. Anderson cancer research and treatment centers. The University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas leads research efforts into Gulf War illness, and the University of Houston has a top-flight physics department, including the world's most sophisticated superconductivity lab led by the noted Dr. Paul Chu.

Technology has changed our lives beyond imagination. And it has changed the way our country produces wealth and its standard of living, which is the envy of the world. At the beginning of the last century, the twelve companies in the famed Dow Jones Industrial Average produced sugar, rubber, coal, iron, gas, and electricity. Today the Dow Jones average is dominated by computer, telecommunications, and bioengineering companies that we never could have dreamed of 100 years ago.

We are beginning to see the face of the future now, and we need to work together to ensure that future unfolds in Texas.

US still vulnerable to foreign missile attack

The United States is known throughout the world for its military strength. Americans have the best and brightest people in the world working to protect us, and most of us go to bed each night feeling secure that our military will be able to rise and meet any challenge.

What many people do not know is that there is a gaping hole in our ability to defend ourselves. While our military is able to mobilize and mount an attack anywhere around the globe, it may surprise you to know that we have absolutely no defense against an incoming missile attack here at home. That's a scary thought when you consider the countries that are developing missile technology. Russia is no longer

issue
Update
with Rep. Mac Thornberry

the only country capable of launching a missile that could reach our shores. China and North Korea now have the capability; and countries like Iran, Iraq, Libya, and Syria may have it before the decade is out. Ronald Reagan first proposed a shield to protect us from missiles 17 years ago. But it wasn't until last year that Congress overwhelmingly passed a resolution making it a national priority to develop a missile defense system. Last week, the House of Representatives passed a defense spending bill which includes $4.6 billion to help turn this resolution into reality.

There has been and will continue to be much discussion on the best methods and technology to use and whether or not we should seek treaties with other nations before we implement our methods. There seems to be no end to the excuses that some people use to argue that we should not try to defend ourselves. However, to me, one thing is clear. The first function of the federal government is to keep our Nation secure, and it would be unforgivable if we don't do everything we can to protect our citizens at home.

A whole other country

This summer is a good time to explore Texas

By Tom Haywood,
Texas State Senator, District 30

There are vast deserts that span miles. There are roaring falls spilling into pools of crystal blue and green. There are rushing rivers and trickling streams, marshy swamps and high plains, volcanic mountain ranges and rolling hills. It is home to herds of wild bison, bobcats, and mountain lions, one of the largest colonies of bats in existence, as well as Ferruginous hawks and Peregrine falcons. Its water and sands hold a vivid history of times past, battles fought and legends born.

Sound like another world? Close...it has been referred to as a whole other country. It's Texas, and all its sights and wonders are yours to enjoy... through its more than 120 State Parks and Historical Sites. And there's never been a better time to explore them than summer.

When I think about our state park system and the nature that is showcased in it, I am reminded of Henry David Thoreau's masterpiece, Walden Pond. In it, he wrote that he went to the woods to "live deliberately and to suck out all the marrow of life." When I think of our state parks and all of their beauty, I am reminded of this passage as I think we all share Mr. Thoreau's vision for an escape to the simplistic, natural life.

But in these modern times, it is often hard to reach that. Our state parks provide an escape for us, though; our very own Walden Pond. And it is in the parks that we may live deliberately and "suck out all the marrow of life." Former Texas Governor Pat Neff said it well when he said, "Nothing is more conducive to the happiness and contentment of the people than for them to go back to nature."

In 1883, the State of Texas went back to nature with the purchase of the Alamo Church in San Antonio, and 10 acres of land along the San Jacinto River. Years after that, Gov. Neff organized the state Parks Board, which has directed the purchase and acquisition of land for more than 75 years.

Some 21 million guests visit the parks each year. And that original 10 acres has multiplied to more than 670,000 acres in more than 120 parks across the state.

Mr. Thoreau had a vision. He wrote about it. Gov. Neff shared a similar vision. He helped make it come to life. And today, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (TPWD) continues that vision into the 21st century, operating as a self-supporting state agency while carrying out the dreams of Texans before us and safeguarding our state's most precious resources.

In the past ten years, TPWD has acquired several thousand acres of new parkland, much of it through donations. It has implemented state of the art systems for hunting licenses and camping reservations. The Parks and Wildlife Foundation of Texas has been formed, raising private sector funds for park programs. And TPWD programs have elevated the issue of conservation by establishing outreach programs for all Texas youth in both urban and rural areas of the state.

Now that students have been released for the summer and the sound of the school bell won't be heard for a couple of months, I encourage Texans to take advantage of the wondrous outdoors that lie just beyond our own front porches. Head north into the Panhandle to view the warm, rich colors and textures of Palo Duro Canyon, or south to the sandy beaches of the Texas Coast. Drive southwest to Big Bend, to explore the largest of our state parks, stretching across 287,000 acres of desert, canyon and mountains—there are even extinct volcanoes and three of the four largest waterfalls in the state. Take a trip to one of our many lakes and rivers, and bring home any number of Bass, Sunfish, Pike, Catfish, Drum or Walleye.

No matter which direction you turn, there is something uniquely Texan to do. Contact TPWD for information about outdoor getaways, reservations and calendars.

Here are a few of the parks around Senate District 30 that are no more than a day's drive away:

- Abilene State Park, Abilene
- Copper Breaks State Park, Quanah - Summer Art Exhibit, July 21-31
- Caprock Canyon State Park, Quitaque - Fishing, Bison, Canyon climbing, Trail hiking
- Ray Roberts Lake State Park, Pilot Point - 2nd Annual Adventure Race, August 17, Canoeing, Boating, Fishing, and Swimming

Call 800-792-1112 for park information, or 512-389-8900 for reservations. Or visit www.tpwd.state.tx.us.

Parks and recreation areas have an intrinsic value. We cannot measure the enjoyment we receive; hence, we do not know what we stand to lose. I cannot think of a better way to guard and preserve our priceless resources than to enjoy them. Texas... it is a whole other country.

Spot finds first turtle, Fourth coming soon

Having been housebound pretty much all week last week, I'm not sure what I can tell y'all about goings on in Clarendon. I even asked my roving reporters (the eighth-grade boys who came over to visit Robert) and they didn't know anything that happened last week either. Maybe because they haven't done anything either. But I do know this:

The rummage sale downtown netted about $700 for First Baptist's Main Street Ministry. Maybe they'll get that air conditioning paid for after all. On July 4th - on the actual holiday - they'll be having a Depression Dinner of beans and cornbread down at the Kearney Street building. I'm already volunteered to make both beans and cornbread - real Depression-style cornbread with no flour.

Myles is allergic to wheat, and that's the only kind of cornbread he can eat, so it's the only kind I make any more. I even have the recipe memorized. Y'all save up your pennies - and a little more money for the drink and dessert.

Can you believe it's only a few more weeks till the big Fourth of July celebration? Spot has indeed found his first turtle of the year. This one was about the size of a tennis ball, smaller than those he carted around last summer. He dropped it at the feet of the large son who then threw it for Spot to fetch. He didn't throw it hard. The turtle crawled off when the boys came back inside. It may still be too dizzy for racing even by the time the Fourth arrives, but it's obvious that those critters are tough.

There's a boys' basketball camp at the school this week for the third through eighth-graders. Congratulations to all you folks who can drag your sons out of bed in time to make them go. Mine think that noon is the crack of dawn. I woke up to the smell of taquitos in the toaster-oven at about 4 a.m. one day (night?) last week and had to get up and tell Robert to go check on them. Apparently, while staying up all night to watch movies, he decided he was hungry for some early breakfast. This situation does get better. They leave home to go to college.

Something is bound to be happening this next week, but for the life of me, I don't know what. I even scoured the Enterprise looking for Pancake Suppers or Hamburger Dinners, and found nothing. The Boy Scouts don't even leave for summer camp till week after next. People must be leaving town for vacations or spending all their time fishing and hanging out at the lake. It's that time of year.

So I'll just tell y'all to enjoy yourselves and be careful around the water. Don't go swimming by yourself, and jump in feet first the first time, till you know how deep the water is. Between the rainfall and summer's heat, the lake levels can change quick. Take care.

Columnist happily recalls father figures

On Sunday, June 18, we will celebrate Father's Day. This is the day when we honor our fathers or father figures that influenced our lives.

My own father was never around long enough to have much influence on me, but I do remember that he taught me to whistle. By the time I was eight years old, I could really whistle.

Once I was at my grandparent's house and was out in the yard just whistling up a storm. My grandpa said to me that a whistling girl or a crowing hen would eventually come to some bad end.

A few days later a big red hen was in the front of the hen house and suddenly flapped her wings and crowed. My grandmother promptly caught her, chopped off her head, and put her in the stew pot.

It nearly scared me to death. I thought if they'd chop off a hen's head for crowing, what in the world would they do to a whistling girl.

I was afraid to ask so I stopped whistling. From that day until now, I haven't whistled. In fact, I've forgotten how to whistle.

Another man who had a great influence on me was my older brother, Marvin. I thought he was almost a god. He told me how girls should act when in public and what a girl should not say.

No matter how bad things got, and they got really bad sometimes, he'd say, "Things will all work out for the good."

There have been other men, not of my family, who have if not influenced me, made a favorable impression on me.

Mr. J.B. Masterson was a master storyteller. I used to sit with him in his front yard and listen for hours to him tell stories of when he was a young jockey in the Oklahoma Territory and how he eloped across the state line with Teenie - as he called Mrs. Masterson.

John Gilliland was another man who made an impression on me. I was about 12 when we moved into Hedley following the death of my stepfather. He was good to my brothers and me and was always respectful to my mother.

I remember how Henry Moore always wore a necktie to church on Sunday morning.

Roy Brown always called me "Sis" just like I was one of his own girls. I spent many hours at his house with Grace, and not once did

I ever hear him utter a swear word. He'd come home from work, and all the neighbor kids would be there, and he'd yell, "Everybody that don't belong here, go home. All that do, get in the house." He'd point his finger at me and say, "Not you. Get in the house."

Johnny Linville was one of the most generous men I've ever known. When the tornado almost destroyed Pampa, he got his pickup full of groceries and took them to the victims of the tornado. Then he got a load of clothing and took that also. All this at his own expense.

I think of Nookie Wiggins. He always tipped his hat to any lady he met. If you asked him how he was getting along, he would say "Better." I told him once that if he kept getting better, he'd wake up some morning and be perfect. I guess he did. I understand nothing imperfect is in heaven.

Hobart Moffitt was always fascinated by the trains. He still watched them, even after the steam engines were replaced with diesel engines. No matter what he was doing if he heard a train whistle, he'd run out into the street and watch it until it was out of sight.

Woodrow Farris gave me some good advice when I got married. He said, "Never go to bed mad at each other. Tell him you love him every day, even when you don't, and there'll be times when you don't even like him, much less love him, but tell him you do. Always ask him what he wants to eat, then cook it. Try to spend money wisely. Don't nag at him. Suggest things you want him to do, but don't just keep on at him. But the most important thing is to love him and tell him so."

I tried never to forget that advice.

And last, but certainly not least, I think of Fred G. Watt, my father-in-law. He always kept candy and chewing gum in his pockets for the kids at the United Methodist Church in Hedley. When he passed from this life, the pockets of all his suits held the treats for the kids.

All these men are gone now, but I still remember them with fondness and miss them.

Great gift ideas suggested for Father's Day

Father's Day is fast approaching, and I don't know about you other ladies out there, but I for one am desperate for a new gift idea.

I'm sure that you men would agree - there's only so many ties one guy can wear in a lifetime. The same thing goes for cologne. Those bargain bags of underpants and socks are wonderful, but they lack a certain "pizzazz" - you know what I mean? I've decided it's time for us women to invent a few Father's Day Gifts that really say something special to the men we love. I realize it's a little too late for this year, but if we start working on it right now - these amazing gifts can be ready for the mass market by next year.

Here's a few ideas. One item that every man should own is a pair of magnetic pants. This article of clothing would come in the standard jeans material for the handyman, as well as a dressier wool/silk blend for the office types. Powerful magnets would be sewn into the fabric so that when a guy loses his screwdriver or wrench, all he has to do is walk around his work area and bing! The screwdriver pops right out of hiding and attaches itself to his pants. The same principle would apply for the businessman - he would never again have to ask his secretary where the paperclips are.

Another wonderful gift will be the Automatic Recliner Timer/Ejector. This small appliance will come in a variety of colors to match any recliner. It will attach underneath the seat. The control panel for this device can be mounted anywhere in the house - as long as it is not on the recliner. This panel will have a timer that can be set for any amount of time. Let me explain how it would work. Your husband comes inside and tells you he needs to rest a while before finishing the job you assigned him to do. He sits down in his recliner and flips on the TV. What do you know - a baseball game is on! At that point, you simply go to your control panel, set the timer for 30 minutes (plenty enough time for a little rest from the job), and go on about your business. Exactly 30 minutes later,

rain or Shine

the panel sends a signal to the device underneath the recliner. Quicker than you can say "Back to work, dear!" the recliner seat ejects the man and turns off the TV. If the man in question sits back down, the device allows him 10 more minutes - something like the snooze-alarm on your clock radio. He can only use this option twice. After that - the device will not let the TV be turned back on for at least two hours. No more screaming, pleading, and begging - problem solved!

One thing that every man should not be without is the Handy Dandy Baseball Cap Reminder Calendar. This little gadget will be no larger than a dime. It will fit into the lining of any baseball cap. It will also fit quite neatly under the hatband of any Stetson. The calendar will contain a tiny recorder. The woman will record messages such as "Don't forget to stop at the store, dear," or "Our anniversary is the 20th!" A computer chip inside the recorder will play the appropriate message in a timely fashion. These wonderful little Reminder Calendars will be available for only $3.99 each - so it won't be a problem buying one for each and every hat/cap he owns! No matter what - if your man puts something on his head when he leaves the house - he will never be far away from your dear, sweet voice! What man wouldn't want something as terrific as this?

So you see, there are many fantastic gift ideas on the horizon. I bet you ladies out there have some ideas of your own. If we all got together, we could probably make some major money out of this deal. We only have a year until next Father's Day, so let's get crackin'!

In the meantime, Happy Father's Day to all you guys out there. And, a Special Happy Father's Day to my man - I love you, honey!

Beach party was reward for dedicated walkers

By Sue Church, County FCS Agent

Flamingos, pina colada dip, beach tunes, and Rava McKinney set the mood for the 2000 Walk Across Texas Awards celebration held June 5 at the college track. Participants were encouraged to come dressed for the "beach-side" party, which several put some serious thought into (i.e., Rava, Bill Holden and Martha Smith).

Teams were recognized with special awards for successful completion of the eight-week walking campaign. Also recognized were the top three teams, top three individual walkers, and miscellaneous categories. The thirteen teams completing the eight-week project were Community Bank Walkers, DCSB Loaners, Bill's Deputy Dogs, Extension Express, HNB Buckaroos, HNB Gamblers, HNB Hustlers, HNB Shufflers, Saints' Roost Wonders, The Motivators, The Trottin' Tanners, Wanda's Rowdy Republicans, and Wilma's Tax Assessories.

The three teams reporting the top mileages were awarded plaques: Bill's Deputy Dogs (1,237 miles) - first place; Herring National Bank Buckaroos (1,151 miles) - second place; and The Trottin' Tanners (1,136.5 miles) - third place. Awarded with a Walk Across Texas traveling T-shirt for top weighted miles, which dropped the top and bottom walkers' weekly mileages, was Bill's Deputy Dogs.

The three individual walkers with top mileages reported were first place - Sharon Camacho; second place - Beverly Martindale; and third place - Cennet Rhode. Each was presented with gift certificates for a Sunday Buffet provided by the Clarendon County Club.

Among other awards presented that evening was the "Most Clever Team Name" which went to Bill's Deputy Dogs. This award was determined by an out-of-county committee. Receiving the "Most Competitive Award" was Vic Jeter. His team the Herring National Bank Shufflers, on several occasions came within a few miles of garnering the traveling T-shirt but never quite made it. Therefore, he received the "Boop Happens" award.

Earning the Best Dressed Award was Rava McKinney. Rava came dressed in a T-shirt with a skimpy bikini printed on front and back. (From a distance it appeared like that was all she had on!) She was presented with a pair of "foo-foo" thongs which she claims match perfectly with a pair of hot-pink shorts which she already owns.

The teams have reported cumulatively in excess of 9,700 miles. Two walkers reported a joint weight loss of 55 pounds.

Rava McKinney and Vic Jeter got in the spirit of celebrating with other Walk Across Texas participants at the Beach Party.

Santos enlists in Army

America L. Santos has joined the United States Army under the Delayed Entry Program at the US Army Recruiting Station in Amarillo.

The program gives young men and women the opportunity to delay entering active duty for up to one year.

The enlistment gives the new soldier the option to learn a new skill, travel, and become eligible to receive as much as $50,000 toward a college education. After completion of basic military training, soldiers receive advanced individual training in their career job specialty.

Santos reported to Fort Jackson, Columbia, South Carolina, for basic training on June 8, 2000.

She is the daughter of Ramona Santos and Ramon Santos, both of Clarendon.

Gem Theater to present play, concert in Claude

The Gem Theater in Claude will present Bertha, The Bartender's Beautiful Baby and Deanna Campbell in concert on Friday June 16 and Saturday, June 17. Both shows will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Gem Theater.

The Community Heritage Players will present a rip-roaring old fashioned melodrama dealing with the wages of sin and Demon Rum. The play is directed by Dr. Carale Manning-Hill.

After the intermission, Deanna Campbell will present a medley of musical favorites.

Tickets are available at the door or by calling 226-5409 for reservations.

Naylor: Faye Naylor recalls her family's agrarian heritage

moved to McLean to work there, and we lived in McLean for a little while."

"In 1943, we lived out on a farm west of Hedley, and our house burned. We had to live in the old blue Jones Hotel in Hedley. There were eight of us kids, and Mother and Daddy, ten of us upstairs! We lived there for about a year; it was during the war, and you couldn't find a place to live anywhere."

After the war, Faye's parents bought a house near Hedley where they stayed long enough to raise all eight of their children.

"I went to school in Hedley. All eight of us started there and graduated there," Faye said. "I played basketball in high school and won All-District my senior year. I played post-guard. We really didn't have a winning team all the time, but we were on and off."

The 5' 8 1/2" Carnival Queen remembers playing against basketball teams from Samnorwood, Quail, Panhandle, and Groom. It was at one of those ball games that she met her husband.

"It was after T.E. got back from the service. I think it was January 12, 1948. I was working in Amarillo and came home one afternoon to watch my brothers play basketball in Hedley. T.E. was there at the ballgame, and he asked me if I wanted to go to Clarendon to get a Coke, and we started dating. We went to Pud Bain's a lot and ate at Mutt's Café several times."

Though they lived in neighboring communities, and Faye's brother and T.E. "were best of friends," they didn't start dating until T.E. returned from Korea.

Later that year, Lola Faye Owens and Thomas Earl Naylor were married at the First Baptist Church in Hedley and moved to Hall Dairy, just north of the town. They milked dairy cows and farmed the area for several years before they moved to Dumas in 1954.

"They had an experiment farm up there in Etter," Faye said. "We all went and farmed there for fifteen years, and I worked as a secretary in Dumas. One day, I came home, and T.E. just said we were moving!"

Faye, with her daughter Geneva, and granddaughter Fayeth Ann, proudly display the certificate the Naylor family received from the Texas Land Heritage Program. Fayeth Ann represents the fifth generation from the Naylor community.

"Of course, when we moved back, we looked at houses in Clarendon, but T.E. said, 'If I'm gonna farm, I'm gonna live in the country.' When we found this land across from the Naylor place came up for sale, we bought it and moved into this house."

Located just past the bridge that stretches over the creek and across from the land that Ava and Minnie were still working, the house that T.E., Faye, and their four children moved into in 1969 is special for several reasons.

"T.E. always kidded that this was a hangin' house," Faye said. "It belonged to the last hanging sheriff.

J.T. Patman. But it's really special because T.E. and my dad loved to do carpentry work, and they did all the remodeling."

"When we first moved back, we let the kids out at the bridge, and they could walk right through that clear creek water, and they'd play on this white, sandy beach. It was a great place for the kids to play, and we had many a picnic there. We still have two or three weenie roasts down there every summer."

The farmland and ranch they lived on is also special because it is the same land that T.E.'s grandfather settled and worked on more than a century ago.

This January, the Texas Land Heritage Program recognized the Naylor family for keeping and working the same land for over 100 years.

"We're very proud of that honor," Faye said. "The land was originally part of the Rowe Ranch, and T.E.'s grandfather paid, I think, 50 cents an acre for the land. When T.E.'s dad died in '35, he and his brothers paid their part and bought the land from Minnie and Ava. Then in 1978, T.E. bought it, and that's how we kept it for so long."

"They first farmed with just a one-row plow behind a horse," Faye said, "and even in 1948 when T.E. and I married, Minnie and Ava were still living in that house with no electricity or running water. They finally got a little Ford tractor, and when they had to go somewhere, they'd hook the trailer to the tractor, and Ava and Minnie rode in the trailer."

Minnie, who usually stayed inside and did all the cooking and sewing, died in 1964 at age 84. Ava, however, rode her horse and ran Naylor cattle until she was 90 and died five years later in 1984.

"I still have a herd of her Herford cattle that have the old T-N brand," Faye said. "They're old, but I save their heifers and keep the blood line going."

Whether it meant getting up at dawn to feed cattle, or running tractors 18 hours a day, Faye and T.E. felt it was important to keep the Naylor tradition alive.

"That was one of the things that T.E. really wanted," Faye said, "to be sure that the Naylor farm would remain in the Naylor family."

With nine grandchildren who love coming to the Naylor farm, playing and picnicking at the creek, and listening to "Poppa stories," Faye is certain the land will be worked with Naylor hands for years to come.

"I have several grandsons interested in the farming, and the heritage part is really important to them," Faye said, "and I've really tried to keep that going."

"Like T.E. always said, 'If the good Lord's willing, and the creek don't rise, we'll still be farming,' and that's what I'm trying to do."

Senior Citizens to hold game night

By Vida O'Neal

On Tuesday nights (with the exception of the last Tuesday when we have our Birthday/Anniversary Supper) we be having a game night. This will start at 7:00 p.m. Come down and play your favorite games or just visit. You do not have to be a senior citizen to join in the fun. Come on down to the center.

The 55 Alive Defensive Driving Class will be held on June 19 and 20 from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. If you have any questions, please call 874-2265 and we will try to answer them for you. After completing this course you will be eligible for ten percent discount on your insurance. There will be a break and refreshments during the classes so we don't get so tired during this time schedule.

The Donley County Senior Citizens are selling chances on a beautiful cross-stitched quilt made by Verdine Tipton. A patriotic doll made by Ellie Wilkinson. Also on a crocheted patriotic afghan and doll set made by Onita Thomas. Chances may be bought at the center, by members of the center, or at our booth on the courthouse lawn on July 1. The drawing will be held on the afternoon of July 1 after the parade for all of these items. These items will be on display at Saints' Roost Antiques & Etc. and Saye's between now and July 1. Go by, see these beautiful items, and buy your chances.

Our Catfish Supper was wonderful Thursday night. Sorry some of you missed it. It was delicious. The desserts were furnished by some excellent cooks of Donley County. Those were Nell Gray, Patsy Hill, Thelma Rudder, Clara Mae Carter, Eda Wallin, Helen Land, Mary Jane Smith, D.W. Swain, Vida Morrison, and Vida O'Neal.

Get well wishes go to Billie Christal, Mildred Housden, and Don Stone.

Our condolences go to Don Stone on the loss of his brother.

Reminders:

June 19, 26: Dance Club, 7 p.m.
June 20: Game Night, 7 p.m.

Book details life of exceptional Texas lady

Is she amazing? You decide. In Burton Memorial Library's May Owen, MD, author Ted Stafford depicts the character of a woman whose goal of perseverance against many obstacles led her to become one of Texas' outstanding medical doctors. During a six-decade career, she experienced progress from simple folk remedies to highest technology.

May was born to immigrant parents in Falls County, Texas, in 1891. Her family farm duties began at age two when she gathered cook-stove wood. She loved and experienced almost every phase of farm life. She could break a wild horse faster than her brothers. Her mother died before May started to school, leaving more responsibility to eight children.

From the time May entered first grade, her greatest joy was learning and reading. Her family could not understand her intrigue for reading. The only book in the house was the Bible, seldom used except on special occasions. While still a young girl, she read from Genesis to Revelations several times. A teacher or neighbor occasionally loaned her a book. The county vet furnished veterinary journals.

At age nine, May announced her desire to become a doctor at a time when women doctors were practically unheard of. Her father appreciated everything the country school offered, but he never encouraged high school. He considered her dream of medical school ridiculous and outrageous.

After arrangements were made by her oldest brother, May, age 21, entered Texas Christian University in Fort Worth to receive her high school diploma. During the first fall at TCU, she traveled home on weekends to help with crop harvesting. Returning to school on Monday mornings, she in her desire for more education never faltered.

Dr. Truman C. Terrell became a dynamic factor in May's life, assuring her of college completion, by offering opportunity of work in his professional medical lab and suggesting medical school after graduation.

check it Out

By Mary Beth Nelson

May received many medical school rejections before she was finally accepted to Louisville Medical School. Assuming there would be other women students, she was surprised to find she was the only one. The male students, curious about a woman from Texas with medical aspirations, were not too pleased about her attendance there. None spoke to her after the first session. Readers will be amused at the circumstances in which they accepted May and would, later, admire her as an equal.

After valuable experience at Mayo Clinic, New York's Bellevue and Scott and White Hospitals, May returned to her beloved Texas, confident that she could deal with any situation in her specialty.

First Texas Medical Association Woman President and Texas Women's

en's Hall of Fame induction are only two of May's numerous distinguished honors.

Her life was one of humility, modesty, determination, and generosity. She was humble and modest because while always sharing credit and acknowledging others for successes, she never tried to become known because of her accomplishments. She was determined because of love and devotion to medical research to benefit others. She was generous because of physical and financial aid willingly given to students. Almost 500 current doctors began their profession through Dr. Owen's personal efforts. The May Owen Irrevocable Trust for student loans which began decades ago is still active.

This exceptional lady Texan maintained alertness, working until the day before she died in 1988, three weeks before her 97th birthday.

Owen's entertaining and fascinating biography is located in Burton's Texas Collection. Why not check it out?

Ranch estate planning seminar to be held in August

Estate taxes are a major problem for ranch owners and their heirs. Dr. Wayne Hayenga, an attorney with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, will hold a Ranch Estate Planning Seminar on August 6-7, 2000, in conjunction with the annual Beef Cattle Short Course.

The seminar will start at 3:00 p.m. on Sunday, August 6, and conclude at 4:30 p.m. on Monday, August 7, 2000. It will be held at the College Station Hilton.

Topics covered will include the basic tools of estate planning: Wills, Living Trust, and Powers of Attorney. But most of the time will be spent on income and estate tax saving plans for ranching families. Irrevocable trusts, generation skipping trusts, bypass trusts, property ownership, community/separate property, special use valuation for ranches, partnerships and corporations will be discussed in the context of the gift and estate tax rules.

Dr. Hayenga is an excellent communicator. He delivers a top notch educational program emphasizing

Movie Star Fights Arthritis

HOLLYWOOD — As a result of his own affliction, recording artist, movie star and former spokesperson for the Arthritis Foundation, Frankie Avalon is fighting arthritis on several fronts, including his discovery of a breakthrough for pain relief.

Avalon vividly recalls the pain associated with his own case of arthritis. The pain in his fingers at times was so bad he couldn't even hold a golf club. His doctor confirmed that his condition was indeed arthritis. But, like many of the other 37 million arthritis sufferers in America, Frankie Avalon could not take the type of drugs needed to treat his condition because they upset his stomach. He tried dozens of over-the-counter (OTC) pain remedies, but not one relieved his pain.

Frankie became desperate for pain relief when he was about to begin filming Back to the Beach with Annette Funicello. After visiting an herbalist, he finally found pain relief in a cream now called ZERO PAIN that contains ingredients derived from natural herbal sources.

The secret to ZERO PAIN is in the special deep penetrating LipoCeutical® delivery base. Frankie says "Some people are calling ZERO PAIN a 'medical miracle,' but I feel 'breakthrough' is the most precise. I am not a pain expert, but I do consider myself an expert on suffering with pain. ZERO PAIN has certainly changed my life for the better. I firmly believe that there is no reason for anyone to suffer from arthritis pain, when ZERO PAIN is now available to everyone." © 2000 GCMG

Fish are biting pretty good at Lake Greenbelt

Well, I finally got to go fishing. I have been busy the past three weeks and was unable to go. A lot has happened in those three weeks that I did not fish. The lake has risen two feet; the vegetation is getting thicker; there was a shad hatch; and the fish are biting pretty good.

I fished the Fun Tournament last Thursday evening. I caught a lot of small bass, but that will not win a tournament. The bigger bass I was catching a month ago have moved out. Corey Hales of Claude won the Thursday evening Fun Tournament with three bass weighing in over 9 lbs. He caught his fish on a black buzzbait.

After the tournament, I decided to fish some since it was dark. I was casting a Rapala minnow and rattle-traps and caught several little wall-eye. I had one keeper and about ten sand bass. I fished until around midnight but never really established a pattern. The fish seem to be scattered.

I talked to Pop at the Lakeside Marina. He said that people are catching some good stringers of fish off the bank and in boats. Catfish and sand bass were the main fish people were catching, but reports of good crappie and walleye were also reported. The bass are hitting good in the mornings and late in the evening.

The reports from other area lakes are about the same in general. The fish are still biting fairly good all over the Panhandle.

I have been unable to get a report on Lake Mackenzie. If anyone has any information about this lake, please contact me. I have not heard any reports in quite a while, and I am interested in knowing what is going on at that lake.

Upcoming Events

The Donley County Bass Club will be having a tournament Saturday June 17.

Recipe

Cajun Fried Panfish
from NAFC Favorite Fish Cookbook 1996

6 - 8 bluegills or other panfish, cleaned
1 cup flour
2 teaspoons Cajun Shake (see below)*
peanut oil

outdoor Life
By Gary Dzedzic

1 tablespoon dried leaf oregano
1 teaspoon black pepper
1 teaspoon white pepper
1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper

Measure all of the spices into an airtight jar. Shake to mix and store away from sunlight and heat until ready to use.

*Other Cajun mixes will work just as well in this recipe. The Cajun Shake recipe uses about half of the pepper of commercially prepared Cajun mixes, and therefore it is not as hot.

Fishing Tip of the Week

The bluegills are nesting and are aggressive. Try using small jigs, dry flies, poppers, worms, or grasshoppers to catch these hard fighting fish. Bluegills are fun to catch and are very tasty.

If you have any information on outdoor activities that you would like to share, please contact me at PO Box 1281, Clarendon, TX 79226, or e-mail me at gdol@nts-online.net.

Good luck to all! Catch a few fish for supper and release a few fish to ensure another great fishing day.

Pat the panfish dry with paper towels. Combine flour and Cajun Shake seasoning and dredge the fish in this mixture. Fill a large skillet with 1 inch of peanut oil. Heat the oil to the smoking point, then turn the heat down slightly so the oil just stops smoking. Gently slip the fish into the pan, two or three at a time, leaving room so the fish do not touch. The coating will get crunchy almost immediately if the oil is hot enough. Turn as soon as the first side is golden brown, and remove when the other side is golden brown. Don't overcook the fish, and don't cook them in oil that is too cool. Place fried fish on paper towels.

Cajun Shake

2 tablespoons paprika
1 tablespoon garlic powder
1 tablespoon onion powder
1 tablespoon dried leaf thyme

FCS agent advises to watch the waistline when eating out

By Sue Church, County FCS Agent

Americans love to eat out. In fact, almost 45 cents of every food dollar is spent on food that is prepared outside the home.

Increases in the number of working women, two-family incomes, and fast-food restaurants are some of the factors believed to be driving this trend. Unfortunately, eating out may come at a cost to our nutritional health.

A recent report from the United States Department of Agriculture found that foods prepared outside the home were higher in calories and fat than foods prepared at home. Some restaurants serve meals that weigh in with up to 2,000 calories each.

"That is enough energy to fuel some adults for a full day," notes Jenna Anding, Ph.D., R.D., assistant professor, and Extension nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"It's okay to treat yourself to a special meal every once in a while, but eating high calorie, high fat meals on a regular basis can lead to unwanted weight gain, especially when physical activity is not increased."

According to Anding, the rise in the number of meals and snacks eaten outside the home is not expected to slow down. So what can a waist-watching consumer do? Many restaurants already offer tasty entrees that are low in fat and calories. These foods are often noted with a special mark on the restaurant's menu. In addition, Anding has some helpful nutrition advice for individuals who frequently eat out:

(1) Remember complimentary chips and bread are not really "free." A basket of these foods can add as many as 1,000 extra calories to the table. If you need a little snack to tide you over until your main meal comes, ask for plain corn tortillas instead of chips or bread without added butter. Another alternative is a lettuce and tomato salad with dressing on the side. Dip your fork in the dressing, then stab your salad. You will still taste the dressing but only get a fraction of the calories.

(2) Just say NO! to value-sized portions. For a few cents more, consumers can get a larger portion of fries, but that also means more fat and calories. Is that really a value? Stick with smaller sized portions.

(3) If restaurant portions are too generous for your needs, consider splitting the entree with a friend and ordering extra vegetables or salad. You can also ask for a doggy bag and take part of the entree home for the next day's lunch. Some restaurants will even let you order off a child's menu. Just ask.

(4) Read the menu carefully and don't be timid about requesting substitutions. Choose pasta with marinara sauce over fettuccini Alfredo, and you can save as many as 800 calories and 80 grams of fat. For hamburgers, ask for mustard or ketchup instead of mayonnaise. Ask for steamed vegetables instead of ones sautéed in butter.

What about dessert? Is that a forbidden food at restaurants today? "We can still have our favorite desserts. The key is to plan for them," advises Anding. For example, if you know that you want to have cheesecake for dessert, choose lower fat, lower calorie foods for the main entree.

Also, some restaurants serve dessert portions that feed more than one person. Consider asking for an extra plate and fork and split the treat with a friend. If you have a choice between a cake that is named "Death by Chocolate" and plain ice cream, the ice cream is probably the healthier choice. Other healthful choices for satisfying that sweet tooth include fresh fruit and sherbet.

By making healthful food choices and exercising control with portion sizes, consumers can continue to dine out without risking an expansion of the waistline.

To learn more about selecting nutritious foods when eating out, contact the Donley County Extension Office located at the Courthouse in Clarendon by calling 874-2141.

Obituaries

Hughes

Graveside Services for Lillie Mae Hughes, age 68, of Howardwick were held at 1:00 p.m. on Thursday, June 8, 2000, at Citizens Cemetery in Clarendon with Rev. Truman Ledbetter, Pastor of the First Baptist Church in Clarendon, officiating. Arrangements were made by Robertson Funeral Directors, Inc., of Clarendon.

Mrs. Hughes died Tuesday June 6, 2000, in Amarillo. She was born August 22, 1931 in Samnorwood, Texas. She was a resident of Plainview for 20 years, then Slaton for three years before moving to Howardwick 10 years ago. She had worked as a secretary and clerk in several different businesses throughout her life before retiring. Mrs. Hughes was also member of the Baptist Church.

Survivors include her husband, Bill of Howardwick; two daughters, Evelyn Zawicki and husband Mike of Altus, OK, and Sherry York and husband Robert Adam of Howardwick; three sisters, Jean Reynolds and husband Carroll of Vinson, OK; Gwen Lyons and husband Bill of Amarillo; and Patsy Barton and husband Bill of Howardwick; 5 grandchildren; and 10 great grandchildren.

Willoughby

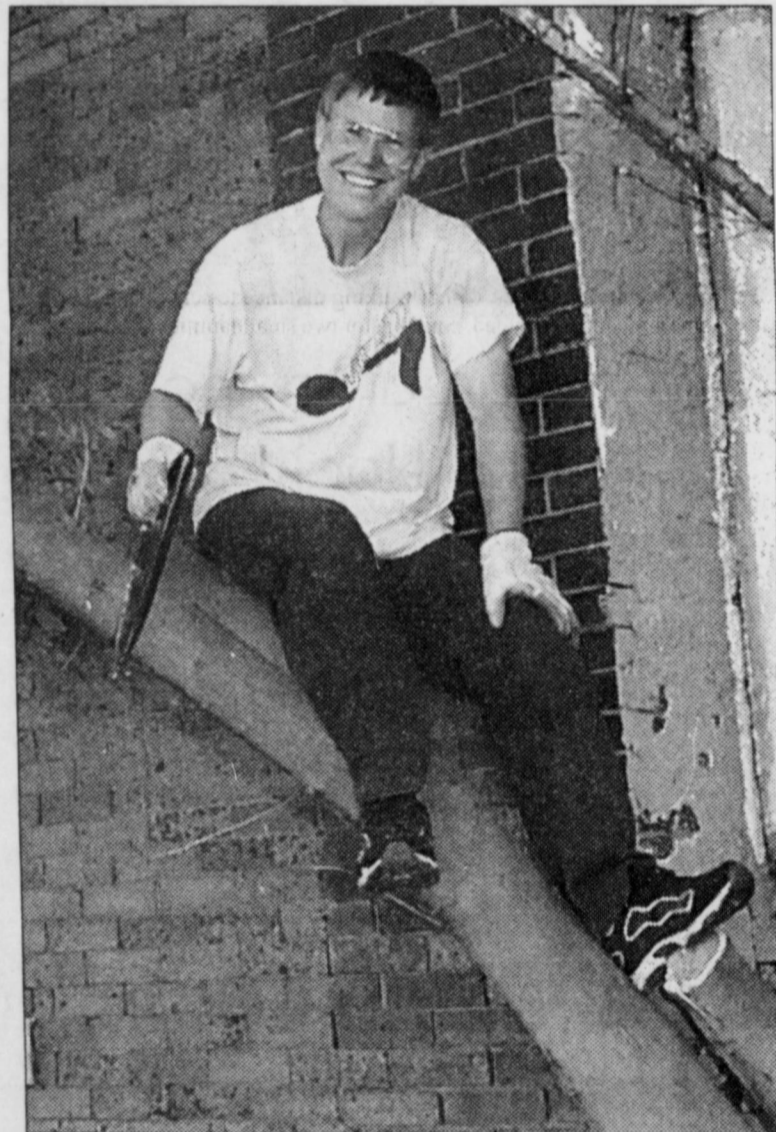

Memorial services for Larry Steven Willoughby, age 35, of Amarillo were held at 2:00 p.m. on Tuesday, June 13, 2000, at the chapel of Trinity Fellowship Church with Kit Buschman, Associate Senior Pastor of Trinity Fellowship, officiating. Cremation and arrangements were under the direction of Rector Funeral Home of Amarillo.

Mr. Willoughby died Saturday, June 10, 2000, in Amarillo. He was born in Orlando, Florida, and was raised in Pampa. He was an artist and a gemologist. He moved to San Diego, California, in 1990 and moved to Amarillo in April of 2000. He also did volunteer work for the homeless in San Diego County. He attended TSTI. He was a member of New Life Apostolic Church in San Diego, California.

Survivors include three brothers, Gary Willoughby of Pampa, Eddie Justice of Tallahassee, Florida, and Robert Wiseman of Arcadia, Florida; one sister, Sherrie Slayton of Amarillo; his mother and step father, Clois and Carolyn Robinson of Clarendon; and his companion, Shannon Maxwell of Amarillo.

Memorials may be made to Crown of Texas Hospice.

Why is this man in a tree?

Bruce Howard, teacher and National Honor Society advisor at Hedley High School, was one of about 30 people who turned out Saturday to clean up Hedley's Main Street. Community volunteers of all ages hauled dirt, trimmed trees, closed up broken windows, and painted, weeded, and carried off trash.

THANK YOU

A note of thanks: We cannot express enough thanks to everyone for their prayers, love, and concern shown to our granddaughter Bryce during her injury and recovery.

Sincerely,
Clovis and Emily McCrary

THANK YOU

Thank You
We would like to thank everyone for the many gestures of love and care that was shown to us when Bryce broke her liver. Thank you for all the prayers, calls, visits, and gifts. God bless!

Thank You,
April and Bryce McCrary

The family of Rev. O.C. Edwards would like to thank the many friends that helped in celebrating the new life of our father. We want to thank all the individuals that provided the bounty of food as well as for all those that sent flowers and love offerings to the hospice facility in Amarillo.

To the ministerial friends that provided music and God's word and with the help of the men that help lay his to rest, we will always be reminded and we know that our father is celebrating a new life with our heavenly Father because God said if we would be faithful to His service, He would provide for all our needs.
