Nortrup To Participate In Ceremony

FMHA Issues Long-Awaited Regulations

Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) has released long delayed new loan servicing regulations which will affect all borrowers. The new rules, at 396 pages and weighing in at nearly three pounds, began arriving at FmHA County Offices last week. They are expected to be implemented shortly with a mailing of as many as 40,000 delinquency letters to farmers.

The new rules sharply cut back the terms of servicing to delinquent borrowers. Pending their issuance, FmHA has had a moratorium on servicing since November 1990.

Pete Morrow, Director, Southwest Farm Advocacy Group, stated "Many farmers behind in payments for reasons beyond their control have been unable to seek refinancing of their loans with FmHA because of this moratorium. At long last, many will be able to address the problem."

Continued Morrow, "We're still sorting out many aspects of these new regulations, but it is safe to say they are not farmer-friendly. FmHA has fixed a program that wasn't broken. Nevertheless, there are still many options for borrowers, it just may be a little harder to find them in the regs."

"Farmers who need servicing because they have used up their borrowing limit should go to their County Office now and ask for the new application forms," advised Morrow.

A summary of the new regulations can be obtained from Southwest Farm Advocacy Group by calling their Lubbock office at (806)793-3030 or in Phoenix at (602)246-8077.

Memorial Day Coming Soon

Major V.J. Cawthon, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety, reminds us that Memorial Day signals the beginning of summer vacation. He state, "During this holiday period there will be more vehicles on the roadways of Texas because of school being out and many families are starting their summer vacations. The danger of more accidents, more injuries and more deaths naturally go along with the increase of traffic."

"All available Department of Public Safety Troopers will be on the road this holiday weekend and will be especially watchful for those individuals committing hazardous violations, especially those who speed and those who drink and drive", said Major Cawthon.

Defensive driving is the key to avoiding accidents. It takes 100% of a persons attention to be a good defensive driver. A good defensive driver looks at least fifteen seconds down the road ahead of him and is especially watchful for hazards and hazardous situations developing. A good defensive driver should always expect the other driver to do the unexpected. A good defensive driver is always on his toes, ready to react.

"Remember to buckle up. We want everyone to live to enjoy another Memorial Day and not be just a memory for someone else," Major Cawthon concluded.

SOUTHWESTERN OKLAHOMA STATE UNIVERSITY'S SCHOOL OF PHARMACY recently held its annual honors and awards convocation ceremony on the Weatherford campus. Planting Date Of Cotton Critical

By Tim Trimble CEA-Ag.

This winter has been mild; and when it has been cold, plenty of moisture has been present. These are the conditions that allow large numbers of boll weevils to overwinter. The freezing temperatures that occurred the week of October 30 are about the only advantage that we have. These cold temperatures killed cotton, denying weevils the nutrients required to build the fat reserves needed for successful overwintering. Boll weevils overwinter in the adult stage, and adult weevils that were unable to develop the needed fat reserves will not survive until cotton begins to square in June or early July.

Boll weevils were forced to leave the field early and to move under leaf litter or other plant material on the soil surface that provides protection.

As temperatures begin to warm in the spring, overwintered weevils become active. Research in the Rolling Plains has shown that those weevils that went into overwintering habitat first are the first to emerge. Therefore, overwintered boll weevil emergence should be two to three weeks earlier this year than when boll weevils are not forced into overwintering habitat until the average freeze date. Boll weevils are already moving in larger numbers in Donley County than this time last year.

One of the most unique, innovative and futuristic library networks in the country, HLC currently links library resources throughout the Panhandle area. The uniqueness of the network lies in the fact that academic, public, and school libraries are sharing resources through a common computerized system.

At the present time, the

public libraries in Borger, Canyon, Clarendon, Dimmitt, Dumas, Friona, Panhandle, Hereford, McLean, Memphis, Pampa, Perryton, Spearman, and Wellington are sharing full services, as are the academic libraries in Frank Phillips College and Texas State Technical College in Amarillo, and the school libraries in Austin Middle School, Caprock High School, the Learning Resource Center at AISD, White Deer High School, and Panhandle High School.

Involvement in the advancement of libraries and the library profession continues to be an ongoing project at HLC. Recent technological developments in information retrieval systems make it feasible for libraries to mount tapes of information databases on their own mainframe system or access them via a vendor's network.

The May 19th presentation is open to all HLC member libraries and anyone interested in informational databases. For specifics, contact HLC Manager Roseann Perez in the HLC computer center at Amarillo College. 371-5135.

A planting date of mid-May or later will allow a large part of the overwintered population to emerge from overwintering habitat and die before cotton begins to square. With mid-May planted cotton, squares one-third grown or one-fourth inch in diameter will not be produced until the last week of June. Squares smaller than one-fourth inch in diameter are too small to support developing boll weevil larvae.

Usually only two to three percent of the boll weevils that go into overwintering habitat are able to survive the winter. Of this two to three percent, only those female weevils that are able to survive until cotton produces one-third grown squares will deposit their eggs, producing the first weevil generation.

This past year in a planting date study at the Chillicothe Experiment Station, Dr. J.E. Slosser showed that paymaster 145 produced the highest yield of 441 pounds lint per acre from a May 28 planting as compared to 391 pounds per acre from a May 1 planting and 83 pounds from a June 24 planting. Over a six-year period, there was essentially no difference in the yield from the late April-early May planting as compared to the late May planting, but the greatest cotton crop risk from weather and boll weevil infestations was from the late April-early May planted cotton. In 1991, the poor yield in the June 24 planted cotton was from a combination of a short growing season and a very heavy cotton aphid infestation. Dr. Slosser has shown during the past four years that late June planted cotton is more likely to be damaged by aphids than late May planted cotton.

The best time to plant cotton to avoid damaging boll weevil and cotton aphid infestations would be from mid-May through the first week of June. If planting could be accomplished during this period, the cotton fruiting period would be cut by more than 50 percent as compared to last year when cotton was planted over a period of 60 days. The shorter fruiting period would also reduce the time that the crop would be susceptible to insect infestations.

EDUCATION CRISISDeclining Math Scores Spur Association 'Teaching'

(NU) - The gap between what students are learning today and what they'll need to know tomorrow has sparked concern among some industry leaders. They say that jobs in the next century will require training well beyond what today's schools provide.

Declining math scores are particularly worrisome.

CONSUMER WATCH*Graduate to Responsibility — Safe Driving Saves Lives, Money

By Esther Peterson

(NU) - Graduation, prom dances and the start of summer vacation are all happy occasions. To keep them happy, it's important to remind young people to celebrate safely, so that no one is injured or killed in an auto accident.

The statistics on young people are very alarming. Auto accidents account for more than 40 percent of the deaths of 16-19 year olds, according to the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety.

Compared to other age groups, teen-agers are involved in more auto accidents as both drivers and passengers. Most accidents occur on weekends and late at night, according to the institute.

Not only is there physical danger in an auto accident, there also is financial burden. Because they are involved in more accidents, teen-age drivers generally pay higher auto insurance rates than adults. For a teen-age boy, the rates can be three-and-a-half times those paid by an adult male.

To help protect young drivers, remind them to:

— Always insist everyone in the car wear a safety belt. Safety experts say one of three people who die in car accidents could have been saved by strapping on a safety belt.

— Drive defensively and don't speed.

— Never drink and drive.

— Refuse to be a passenger in a car being driven by someone who has been drinking.

To help students make the grade, large and small companies are working with their trade and professional associations, forming partnerships with U.S. schools to improve public education nationwide, says the American Society of Association Executives (ASAE).

One innovative program called MATHCOUNTS is designed to help junior high students sharpen their math skills. Teaching materials by associations are used to coach students in a series of math competitions. Mentoring programs — pairing adult volunteers with young people — are increasing nationwide. Many groups adopt schools, sponsor tutoring programs, create apprenticeships for youth and offer thousands of scholarships.

"It makes good sense to motivate students to excel at math and science," says ASAE President R. William Taylor. "American businesses are already losing billions of dollars each year because employees cannot read, write or compute well enough to function effectively in their jobs."

An Apology

The editor of The Clarendon News would like to apologize to the honor students at Clarendon High School, to their parents and to the community for not publicizing the awards assembly held on the morning of Tuesday, May 12. The paper would have liked to publish a notice of the event in time for interested readers to make plans to attend—i.e. no later than the paper of May 6.

Students who work hard and make good grades deserve at least as much honor and credit as those who compete in inter-scholastic events. Good citizenship deserves to be recognized. These young people are Clarendon's best. The community is justly proud of them.

The newspaper learned of the assembly by accident while the ceremonies were in progress. It was too late to get a photographer to the event.

Neither parents nor the news media were notified that the awards would be given. The students are now honored during normal working hours, when it is difficult for parents, friends and relatives to attend. In earlier years, the event was held in the evening.

I want to be your agent for Life.

Property Tax Protest and Appeal Procedures

The law gives property owners the right to protest actions concerning their property tax appraisals. You may follow these procedures if you have a concern about:

- *the value placed on your property;
- *exemptions that may apply to you;
- *cancellation of agricultural appraisal;
- *whether your property is taxable;
- *which local governments should be taxing your property; or
- *you think the appraisal district has done something else that adversely affected you.

Your Appraisal District staff urges you to review the value records of your property at any time prior to the day of the Appraisal Review Board Hearings tentatively set for July 10, 1992, in the Donley County Courthouse Annex. Some protests result from errors or misconceptions which we are pleased to correct.

Review by the Appraisal Review Board: If you can't resolve your problem informally with the appraisal district staff, you may have your case heard by the appraisal review board.

The appraisal review board (ARB) is an independent board of citizens that reviews problems with appraisals and other concerns listed above. It has the power to order the appraisal district to make the necessary changes to solve problems. If you file a written request for an ARB hearing (called a notice of protest) before the deadline, the ARB will set your case for a hearing. You'll receive written notification of the time, date, and place of the hearing. The hearing will be informal. You and the appraisal district representative will be asked to present evidence about your case. The ARB will make its decision based on the evidence presented. You can get a copy of a protest form from the appraisal district office at the Donley County Courthouse Annex, P.O. Box 1220, Clarendon 79226; phone 806-874-2744.

Note: You shouldn't try to contact ARB members outside of the hearing. The law requires ARB members to sign an affidavit saying that they haven't talked about your case before the ARB hears it.

Review by the District Court: After it decides your case, the ARB must send you a copy of its order by certified mail. If you're not satisfied with the decision you have the right to appeal to district court. If you choose to go to court, you must start the process by filing a petition within 45 days of the date you receive the ARB's order. If the appraisal district has appraised you property at $1,000,000 or more, you must file a notice of appeal with the chief appraiser within 15 days of the date you receive the ARB's order.

More information: You can get more information by contacting your appraisal district at the Donley County Courthouse Annex, P.O. Box 1220, Clarendon 79226; phone 806-874-2744. You can also get a pamphlet describing how to prepare a protest from the appraisal district or from the State Comptroller's Property Tax Division at 4301 Westbank Dr. Bldg. B, Suite 100, Austin, TX 78746.

DEADLINE FOR FILING PROTESTS WITH THE ARB*

Usual Deadline: On or before May 31 (or 30 days after a notice of appraised value was mailed to you, whichever is later).

Late protests are allowed if you miss the usual deadline for good cause. Good cause is some reason beyond your control, like a medical emergency. The ARB decides whether you have good cause.

Late protests are due the day before the appraisal review board approves records for the year. Contact your appraisal district for more information.

Special Deadlines: For change of use (the appraisal district informed you that you are losing agricultural appraisal because you changed the use of your land), the deadline is before the 30th day after the notice of determination was mailed to you.

For ARB changes (the ARB has informed you of a change that increases your tax liability and the change didn't result from a protest you filed), the deadline is before the 30th day after the notice of the determination was mailed to you.

If the assessor discovers taxable property that was not taxed in prior years mandated by law, the assessor shall appraise the property and send notice of its appraised value each year to be taxed. The owner has 30 days after the notice to file protest with the appraisal review board.

If you believe the appraisal district or ARB should have sent you a notice and did not, you may file a protest until the day before taxes become delinquent (usually Feb. 1). The ARB decides whether it will hear your case based on evidence about whether a required notice was mailed to you.

*The deadline is postponed to the next business day if it falls on a weekend or holiday.

Three Generations of Cephalosporins

One of the most commonly prescribed families or categories of antibiotic medicines is referred to as the "cephalosporins." Currently there are between 15 and 20 cephalosporins on the market in the United States, and more are on the way. These effective infection-fighters are grouped into "generations" for convenience in classifying their ranges of activity. For example, first generation cephalosporins, which include cefazolin, cephalothin and others, have good bacteria killing activity against organisms referred to as the gram positive cocci bacteria (examples include streptococcus and staphylococcus) and a few gram negative bacteria.

The second generation of cephalosporins are usually effective against the same bacteria that the first generation cephalosporins are effective against plus Haemophilus, Enterobacter, and Neisseria bacteria. Examples of second generation cephalosporins include cefaclor and cefuroxime.

Third generation cephalosporins such as cefixime are effective against most of the gram negative organisms. In order to know which cephalosporin antibiotic to use, physicians routinely order culture and sensitivity tests. According to a recent issue of Postgraduate Medicine, researchers are planning for fourth and fifth generation cephalosporins.

Tuesday, killing another 125, the coincidence of major tragedies occurring on consecutive days would certainly be noted, and with some alarm.

If a third plane crashed on Wednesday, killing yet another 125, a fearful public would begin to ask: "What's going on here?"

If a fourth plane crashed on Thursday, an outcry for massive review of air safety practices would sweep across the country.

If, on Friday, a fifth crash occurred, a traumatized America would refuse to fly.

America already suffers the equivalent of a major airliner crash every day of the year. According to the U.S. Department of Transportation, motor vehicle collisions on our highways claim about 125 lives each 24 hours (plus thousands of injuries). Somehow this reality has become so commonplace that many people ignore it.

Safety belts have been required equipment in the front seats of passenger cars since January 1, 1968. However, only one in nine had converted to regular use by 1980. Only when State safety belt laws began to click in did the user curve turn upward. Now, eight years later, 41 States have laws in place and 59% of vehicle occupant wear belts. Texas surveys reveal 68% safety belt usage rates for drivers. The gain in usage rates has been great. However, Texas and America could do better. One hundred percent safety belt use would add another 10,000 to the lives-saved list, every year. Even 70 percent use (based on 1990 numbers) would save an additional 3,700 lives annually.

A national safety belt use rate of 70 percent by 1992 is the goal of the U.S. Department of Transportation and National Highway Traffic Safety Administration's (NHTSA) new safety belt program.

Memorial Day will be the starting point for a major national summer campaign to increase safety belt and child safety seat usage. This campaign will continue through the 4th of July and Labor Day. During the summer, special emphasis will be placed on efforts to enforce State occupant protection laws and to publicize these efforts. This campaign should enable the nation to reach a 70 percent safety belt usage rate. Of course, that won't be the end, because 70 percent should be a way station, not a terminus. But for now, 70 percent is both an ambitious and a reasonable goal.

In California, a traffic crash involved a man and a teddy bear. The 31 year old man struck a guard rail, his car became airborne and finally landed on a chainlink fence. The driver was ejected and died at the scene. The teddy bear, carefully tucked into the rear seat belt, remained snugly in place - an exquisite reminder of what belts are for. A man dies, but a stuffed animal survives the same crash protected. The message for those Americans who still ride unprotected: BUCKLE UP!

Proper Fertilization Can Pay Dividends

By Tim Trimble - Cea

Proper fertilization of cotton can pay big dividends to producers in Donley County according to demonstration results in 1991. The Donley County Extension Service along with Evans Fertilizer and cotton producer E. Wayne Barbee conducted a demonstration on proper fertilization on dryland cotton. Soil test were taken and recommendations from the test were based on a goal of 500 pounds of lint per acre. Lab recommendation for 500 pounds of lint, indicated a need for 50 units of Nitrogen and 35 units of phosphorus.

Four different treatments were used: treatment #1 = 50 units N, 35 units P, preplant; #2 = 25 units N, 17.5 P, preplant; #3 = 100 units of N, 70 P, preplant; #4 = 25 units N, 17.5 units P, preplant and 32 units N, sidedress.

Results indicated that treatments #1 and #4 were the most cost effective with a cost of $.04 and $.038 per pound of lint and $154.67 and $156.53 return minus cost respectively. Treatment #2 at half the rate cost $.026 per pound of lint with return a cost of $134.02. This is approximately $20.00 per acre loss in order to try and save $10.00 per acre by using less fertilizer.

Also the yield per acre between Treatment #1 and treatment #2 was approximately 110 pounds of lint. Grade was slightly better in treatment #2, otherwise there would have been $30.00 per acre difference between the recommended amount of fertilizer and half that rate.

Treatment #3 was double the recommended rate which had a cost of $.079 per pound of lint and a return minus cost of $147.68 per acre. This would indicate that as we increased application rate above recommended amount that this would be counter productive and result in less return for increased input.

In the demonstration we did have one unexplainable yield, that of the untreated check. For some reason its yield was very similar to the other yields. Also there was a slight difference in grades of each plot. Even though the check did very well without any fertilizer it can't be assumed that we could have made a good yield on all of the field with no fertilizer. This evident by the difference in yields from the other four treatments.

The use of soil samples and following the fertilizer recommendations should be the most efficient way to manage crop requirements. In addition, it is the most environmentally sound technique.

ASCS Leads The Way

The Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) is the principal and most widely used program through which the federal government assists farmers and ranchers in carrying out needed conservation practices. The ACP, administered by the Donley county Office of the Agricultural Stabilization Service (ASCS), was the first conservation program involving the federal government in every effort between agricultural producers, Federal and State agencies, and other conservation groups to restore and protect the Nation's land and water resources and to preserve the environment. This public/private partnership leads the way in government programs by making efficient use of government funds so that everyone benefits.

Drew Thornberry of the Donley County ASCS office, stated, "The ACP is a public/private partnership designed to protect the environment by reducing soil erosion and improving water quality. All Americans benefit from the wise use of public funds to protect the environment."

In Texas during 1991, the ASCS cost-shared $15,798,306 under the annual ACP and under special long term agreements on almost 10,000 separate farms in 237 Texas counties. The practices were carried out to solve severe erosion, water quality, and water conservation problems that affected farmland and ranchland across the state.

Conservation practices carried out with the help of ASCS and the ACP will have lasting effects on all areas of the U.S. Since it began in 1936, the ACP has helped local farmers and ranchers build terraces to control agricultural run-off and water erosion, planted trees to improve woodlands, built and preserved wildlife habitat, shaped gullies, and built ponds to protect soils from wind and water erosion.

"Conservation efforts by farmers and ranchers have benefitted everyone by ensuring adequate supplies of food and fiber at a reasonable cost and by protecting the environment in rural areas," Thornberry said.

Even though the accomplishments of ACP are impressive, serious soil and water conservation and pollution problems remain.

The ACP is just one of many programs administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service for the benefit of farmers and ranchers and the general public. For more information on programs available through the ASCS, contact the Donley County ASCS office at (806)874-3561.

Trees Showing Signs Of Damage

By Tim Trimble CEA-Ag.

Not only did the cold temperatures at the end of October cause thousands of dollars worth of damage to cotton and peanuts in Donley County, but now many trees are showing signs of damage also.

I have been getting many calls lately about tree problems or trees dying and most of them have been caused by the sudden, unseasonable cold weather we received in late October. Most plants were still growing in the fall and were not hardened off for the sudden cold weather.

Winter damage or freeze damage is often not noticed until the following spring or summer. The affects may also be seen 2 or 3 years later. Affected plants may bloom and leaf out, but when the hot summer days arrive they quickly wilt and die. This is usually due to damage in the cambium layer on major limbs or the trunk. Trees that seem to be most affected are the faster growing trees such as willows, hackberry, poplars and cottonwoods as well as many fruit trees.

In most cases freeze damage on trees can be recognized by the bark cracks or splits on the trunk on limbs.

Evergreens, such as Arizona and cypress, cedar, juniper, ligustrum, may have suffered winter injury also if inadequate moisture levels were seen during extreme cold.

Some woody ornamental are also very susceptible to winter injury. Such plants include azalea, boxwood, crapemyrtle, hibiscus and others. Injury may consist of only a few tips or many branches dying back. In this case, judicious pruning will improve the looks and balance the tap growth, but it should be done after the exact dead areas are determined.

If trees or shrubs are damaged or weakened then this often leads to secondary problems by insects or diseases.

Winter injury can be lessened or entirely prevented with these practices.

- Select winter hardy plants
- Assist the hardening process by withholding fertilizer and water in the summer and fall
- Supply adequate water after plants go dormant
- Avoid poorly drained soils
- Pick planting sites that protect susceptible plants from high winds
- Keep evergreens watered
- Keep plants healthy with proper watering, fertilizing and pruning

If you plant the flowers, God can make 'em pretty.

Has your Mom had a mammogram?
The risk of breast cancer increases with age. It is one of the leading causes of death among women 65 and older. Early detection through regular mammograms could prevent many of these deaths. Yet as women get older, they are less likely to get mammograms. Has your Mom had a mammogram? If not, encourage her to get one. It might be your chance to give her good advice.

High Potential New Tomatoes

By Tim Trimble

Lubbock-Wind-tolerant, "fireproof" tomato varieties are what West Texas tomato gardeners pray for, and this year those prayers have been partly answered, says a vegetable specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Three superior new tomato varieties—Spitfire, Surefire and Santiago—which proved their merits in Extension Service tests here the last two years, are commercially available this season.

The new varieties were tested in Lubbock County Extension demonstrations in 1990 and 1991 as FMX-157, GS-12 and NVH 4465. "Now that these new introductions have names, and seed is available to plant growers at nurseries and greenhouses, gardeners can be encouraged to plant them", said Dr.

Roland Roberts, Extension Service vegetable specialist.

"Concentrated fruit set, early maturity, heat-tolerant ability to set fruit, thick-walled small juicy fruit, good leaf cover to prevent fruit sunburn, and disease resistance are traits you will see in Surefire and Spitfire," says Roberts.

Surefire fruit weigh about three ounces and ripen a few days earlier than Spitfire fruit, which weigh four to six ounces. Spitfire is a replacement for the old favorite, Spring Giant, which is hard to obtain anymore, Roberts said. Spitfire makes dark red, flat-round fruit with thick walls, ample juice and flavor judged by local tasters to be truly superior. It also has good crack resistance.

Santiago produced the largest yield and fruit size, averaging nearly half a pound, of any variety in the field tests. It is later maturing than Spitfire and has a strong plant to support the large fruit off the ground. Santiago combines large, deep-round fruit and excellent internal quality. It is resistant to Verticillium and Fusarium wilt, nematodes and tobacco mosaic virus.

"Ask your nursery, garden center or greenhouse for Surefire, Spitfire and Santiago and conduct your own trial of these high quality performers," Roberts suggested.

Use a heavier fishing line for crappie around thick brush and when the water is less clear.

Quick Tips For Crappie Fishing

If you're vertical fishing for crappie, tightlining over thick brush, tree tops or log jams, you can move to a slightly heavier line weight, says TV fishing host Bill Dance.

"I'll use line from 8 lb. test to as heavy as a 14 lb. when the water clarity is less visible," he advises. "You need the strength of a good line with low abrasion resistance like the Dupont fishing lines," Dance said.

EDUCATION

Studies Find Youth Can't Tell Right From Wrong

(NU) - Youth today aren't developing the values they'll need as adults, according to surveys conducted by the Josephson Institute of Ethics and The Search Institute. Both surveys found an unprecedented percentage of American youth cannot tell right from wrong.

"America's youth have little or no moral and social norms to guide them," says David Miller, vice president of Quest International, a non-profit educational organization promoting positive youth development. "At Quest, we believe this trend can be halted by taking steps today to ensure kids grow up with strong values."

The Josephson Institute of Ethics agrees that steps must be taken. Its study, "The Ethics of American Youth," warns that "if major efforts are not made to re-acclimatize youth to a more positive integrity-based value system, we can expect a decade of tragedies and scandals caused by unethical conduct."

Lions-Quest programs encourage parents and teachers to work together to instill in students such traditional values as honesty, self-discipline, responsibility and the ability to get along with and help others. Students also learn why and how to say "no" to alcohol and other drugs. Nearly three-quarters of teachers of Lions-Quest programs believe the programs are the most effective curriculum available today to teach students to "stay away from substance abuse."

Both the Search Institute and the Josephson Institute of Ethics are non-profit research organizations studying ethics and issues related to the well-being of adolescents. Quest's programs, developed in collaboration with Lions Clubs International, the National Association of Elementary School Principals, the National PTA and the American Association of School Administrators, annually reach more than 2 million young people and their families in 27 countries. PHYSICAL THERAPY Screening, Conditioning May Prevent Injury to Young Athletes

News USA

(NU) - For every girl who makes the high school basketball team or boy who tries out for cross-country, there are usually two proud but worried parents concerned about their child getting hurt.

The best way for an athlete of any age to prevent injury is to stay in shape, advises Andy Vogel, a physical therapist and certified athletic trainer in private practice in Indiana. "Athletes, especially one-sport athletes, should train year-round to maintain base level conditioning for strength and flexibility," says Vogel. "Proper conditioning is the No. 1 factor in preventing injury, especially during the heavy growth years."

Vogel recommends parents check with their child's school to see if it offers pre-season screening for strength and flexibility. This screening should be specific to the sport and have a follow-up session to help athletes work on weak areas.

Ideally, screening should be performed by qualified, licensed physical therapists or certified athletic trainers. If such services are not offered at the school, parents can contact a physical therapist in the area to screen the child. In 26 states, physical therapists can perform such services without physician referral.

Don't Let Child Play in Pain

Although conditioning can prevent many injuries, any child participating in organized sports is bound to experience an occasional sprain or strain. But how much pain is too much?

Parents should keep in mind that the child may be tempted to push beyond his or her limits out of the desire to win or keep up with teammates.

Whether training or playing, the athlete should not experience pain for more than an hour or so after the practice or event. Pain that persists into the evening is a signal that muscles or joints are being overworked. If this happens, training should be discontinued or modified until the problem is identified.

For more information on physical therapists in your area, contact the Private Practice Section of the American Physical Therapy Association, Dept. NU, 1101 17th St., N.W., Suite 1000, Washington, DC 20036, or phone 1-202-457-1115.

Stretching Feels Good When Done Properly

(NU) - As we recognize the value of a healthier lifestyle, people are becoming more and more interested in fitness. If you try to move too quickly from an inactive to an active lifestyle, however, you may experience soreness and stiffness. This can be discouraging.

Experts agree, whenever you start a new activity, you should do so with moderation. Physical therapists will tell you that proper stretching is an important link between a less active and a more active lifestyle.

Following are tips for stretching: — Be concerned about the quality, not the quantity, of the stretch. It is better to perform a few repetitions of a stretch correctly than to perform 20 repetitions incorrectly.

— Stretch one muscle at a time. The stretch should be specific.

— Hold each stretch for 30 to 60 seconds. Never bounce.

— Don't overstretch. If stretching is done right, it feels good.

Stretching can be done anytime you like and requires no specific equipment. Persons of any age or activity level can benefit from stretching, says Kent Walterhouse, physical therapist at Indiana SportTherapy and a member of the American Physical Therapy Association.

For more information about physical therapists in your area, contact the Private Practice Section, American Physical Therapy Association, 1101 17th St., N.W., Suite 1000, Washington, DC. Phone: 1-202-457-1115.

FUGITIVE LIZARD, photographed in 1991, habitually scares Maggie Stewart at The Clarendon Press each Spring. Now Kenny Black is involved in the quest.

Maggie Is Seeing Critters Again!

Maggie Stewart, Chief Rabble Rouser at The Clarendon News, is seeing scaly animals again. She swears that the monster this year is not as big as the one last year.

The excitable lady claims that this year's lizard sneaked in and scratched around on the paper under the layout benches, then hid behind the waxer.

Ms. Stewart—who remembers last year—was so afraid that she would be accused of hallucinating that she called in a witness from across the street. Unfortunately the only person she could get to come over and look at the animal was the Clarendon's notorious barber, Kenny Black. Black was not available for comment as of press time. However, he is highly recommended by Mutt Graham and Randy White.

The editor asked Ms. Stewart to capture the fugitive next time she sees him. The Clarendon News will try to keep readers informed on the progress of the safari. Perhaps the town will soon have the reptile in the custody of Black and White.
