influenced by the Gospel in this 100 years. Not all of that is available here, but I am fully confident it is in the Lord's great computer.
And what will the next one hundred years hold, if the lord tarries? Awesome challenges lies on the our doorstep right now: challenges that call for the very best that we have; of talent, commitment, faithfulness and service to our Lord. How dreary and fearful as we had to walk alone! But what a blessing it is to face those challenges arm in arm, with those "of like precious faith."
God says: "Be thou faithful unto death and I will have give thee a crown of life." Revelations 2:10. As the song title says: "It will be worth it all, when we see Jesus."

Senior Citizens News

By Nova Neuhaus

We are in the final phase of the re-modeling. We are enjoying our new parking area in front of the Center also. Please come by and see what has been done and have lunch with us.

It has been a busy past 2 weeks. On October 23rd, Karen Wortham and myself attended a food seminar in Lubbock. We received our certificates for continuing education hours in nutrition plus participating in an extensive food show.

Carmen Wright did the Blood Pressure Clinic for us on Tuesday, October 20. It was so good to have her back on board again.

We are very proud of the new walk-in freezer that was installed last week. Needless to say the kitchen staff is very grateful to have all the frozen items under one roof now.

We had 73 folks attending the Birthday/Anniversary Supper on October 27th. We sang the birthday song to Enoise McElroy, Skinny Putman, Carrol McClellan, Pauline Jones and Clara Mac Carter. Anniversary couples were: Don and Annie Wooten, Doug and Josie Burgess, and Bob and Joan Kidd. Bob Kidd opened our evening with prayer. Door prizes went to Nita Meadors. Fun prizes went to Nell Viterella, Denna Hannah of Tulia, and Kay Fletcher of Tulia. We were delighted to have a group from Swisher Co. Senior Citizens in Tulia known as the "NAGS" (National Association of Garage Sales) who put on an interesting style show featuring "Holiday Fashions" which all were purchased at garage sales and modeled by lovely models who are members of the "NAGS": Tonya White, Denna Hannah, Kay Fletcher, Dee Ann Carrasco, Linda Freeman and Jan Altman. The Marilyn Barnett, Director of the Senior Citizens Center, was a very entertaining narrator for the show. We thoroughly enjoyed their making the trip over here to hare their talents with us.

Thanks to Elva Shields and Cennet Rhode who donated some lovely things to be used for Bingo prizes.

Thanks go to the Halloween Characters from the Beauty School and Mrs. James for coming by the Center at noon on Friday to show off their costumes. It truly brightened our day. The 2nd Tuesday night dance will be held at the community building, November 12th from 8 p.m. until 11 p.m. with music furnished by Paul & the Country Boys from Pampa.

Reminder: Election Day for Board Directors, Tuesday, November 10, here at the Center at 8:00 a.m. until 3 p.m. Voting privilege will be limited to the 1992/1993 membership holders. If you have not joined the Senior Citizens association, the membership dues are $1.00. Make plans to vote for (4) Board members to serve a two year term. This gives you a voice in the future of the Senior Citizens Center.

Afghan Pines Grow Well

Donley County residents who like pine trees should love Afghan pines. The species is drought tolerant, fast growing and relatively pest free. They have proven very well adapted to the High Plains and to the Rolling Plains. They may possibly be the best adapted pine to the area.

Most pines have only one period of rapid growth per year. Afghan pines grow rapidly during two seasons each calendar year.

The pines have a pleasing green color and long slender needles. They grow to a height of 40 feet or more, with a traditional conical shape. Afghan pines are often recommended for windbreak planting.

Some of the Afghan pines planted last spring have already doubled their height. Like any pine, they need adequate water to become established.

Donley County residents who want to order Afghan pines from the Soil Conservation Service should go by the office as soon as possible. There will be a limited number available, and the trees will be sold on a first-come basis.

THIS VIGOROUS LITTLE AF-GHAN PINE has grown rapidly since it was planted last Spring. When it was planted, it was only slightly taller than the stake.

Local's Son Shares Stage With Bees

In his fifth year at the fair, Bobby Cain will have a captive audience when he talks about beekeeping at the Flemington Fair.

He will be shut inside a screened cage with 60,000 bees.

Mr. Cain, who works as a purchasing agent for the Monmouth County Park System, has been keeping bees as a hobby for 16 years and now has at least 100 hives of between 75,000 and 100,000 bees each.

"I've always been fascinated with bees, even as a small child," says Mr. Cain. He was taken with the complexity of their lifestyle and with their ability to produce honey.

"Raising bees is a family activity for us," Mr. Cain says. His wife, Dianne, and two children, Kristin and David, all participate. "Bee-keeping has become an important part of our life. It's great for the whole family."

The Cain family sells the honey that its bees produce, but also "we use a lot of it - probably 150 pounds a year," Mr. Cain says. "You can use honey anywhere you can use sugar, and honey is a lot better for you because it's a simple sugar and is absorbed very quickly by your body."

In addition to spreading the gospel about honey, "we really preach about the importance of honeybees and what they do for us," Mr. Cain says. "Honeybees are not the aggressive insect that people say they are. We walk right into this cage without any protection at all."

Still, he has been stung countless times. Normally he wears protective clothing and moves "very slowly," Mr. Cain says, to minimize the risk.

"If you play with fire, you're gonna get burned. If you play with bees, you're gonna get stung," notes Mr. Cain. "It always hurts, but after a while a beekeeper builds up an immunity to the sting."

"If you play with fire, you're gonna get burned. If you play with bees, you're gonna get stung," notes Mr. Cain. "It always hurts, but after a while a beekeeper builds up an immunity to the sting."

There are only three or four commercial beekeepers in New Jersey and about 5,000 hobbyists

according to Mr. Cain. Among them they have 50,000 hives and about four and a half billion bees.

"In addition, there are probably more wild colonies out there than there are kept by beekeepers," Mr. Cain says, but no one knows for sure exactly how many there are because no one has ever counted them.

Unlike yellow jackets - which are not bees at all but members of the wasp family - honeybees are not scavengers and are rarely a nuisance to man, Mr. Cain says. They gather nectar and pollen from flowers and drink water.

From those ingredients each hive of bees can produce 100 pounds of honey a year, but the bees need 60 pounds or five gallons - for themselves to survive through the winter. In addition, the bees produce beeswax, which is used for candles and cosmetics.

Bees are used commercially to pollinate 100 different food crops, including cranberries, blueberries, apples, pumpkins, cucumbers and peaches. Releasing two or three bee colonies an acre can increase blueberry yields by 600 percent, Mr. Cain says.

Bees have been kept by man since prehistoric times, but until the 1850s when a Philadelphia preacher named Lorenzo Langstroth invented the movable frame hive, extracting the honey entailed killing many of the bees.

The honeybee is not native to the Americas but was imported to European settlers. Native Americans, according to Mr. Cain, called it "the white man's fly."

But American bees are becoming more aggressive and more likely to sting as the strain of African bees introduced in an attempt to increase honey yields spreads.

Increased Africanization may lead to higher food prices as fewer hobbyists remain willing to work with the more aggressive bees and fewer colonies are available to pollinate crops, Mr. Cain says.

Editors Note: Bobby Cain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stina Cain, of Clarendon, lived in Clarendon for many years.

Coffee Blood Bank Sets Drive

Being a blood donor means being in a "special" class of people. Less than 5% of the Panhandle population donate blood. Therefore, you can easily see why you're so very special and so deeply appreciated, not only by Coffee Memorial Blood Center and the 20 area hospitals they serve, but more importantly, the persons touched by your generous donations of love through blood.

These invaluable donations have enabled individuals less fortunate in health to have yet another hope of one more tomorrow. The more tomorrows the Center can provide, the more hope of possible cures for many of their illnesses.

Hospitals count on Coffee Memorial Blood Center to maintain an adequate supply of blood. The Blood Bank Center counts on you to help maintain a "Safe" blood supply. Please keep sharing your "good blood" with others. There's no one else to count on.

Please support your community's lifeblood program by donating blood on: Monday, November 9, 1992, from 3 to 6 p.m. at the Hedley High School Cafeteria.

Loan Received

The Texas Water Development Board on Monday, October 26, 1992, approved a $500,000 loan to Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District No. 3.

The loan will be funded through the Agricultural Water Conservation Bond Program. The district will use loan proceeds to make low-interest loans to individual farmers and ranchers in the district's service area to purchase and install more efficient water conservation equipment.

Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District No. 3's jurisdictional area covers more than 3,672 square miles in northwest Texas, and includes Carson, Gray, and Donley counties, and parts of Hutchinson, Roberts, Potter, and Armstrong counties.

the well being of the other. We are all partners in the progress and prosperity of this great land, and it is fitting that our celebration of National Farm-City Week occurs as we commemorate Thanksgiving.

It is in everyone's best interest that our farms and ranches and our cities remain strong. After all, they have worked together to make our nation the leader it is. But we must also understand our similarities and differences, our strengths and weaknesses, and our interdependence and independence. That is the purpose of National Farm-City Week.

So, once again, when families gather to celebrate this Thanksgiving, I hope that you will join my family in counting the many blessings that our rural and city residents have bestowed upon us.

Sincerely,
 Rick Perry
 Texas Commissioner of Agriculture

Dear Editor,

Each Thanksgiving, as my family comes together to count our many blessings, we always pause to give thanks for the bountiful harvest from our American agricultural industry. The quality and variety of food that fills our nation's larders is a testament to the productivity of hardworking farmers and ranchers across this great land.

Today, less than two percent of our population lives on farms and ranches, but thanks to the efficiency and productivity of these Americans, our producers supply eleven percent of the world's food grains, fifteen percent of its feed grains, twenty five percent of all beef and eleven percent of its pork.

Working hand-in-hand with our producers are processors, shippers, manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, many of them from our urban areas, who are responsible for taking this agricultural bounty to billions of consumers worldwide. Clearly, a dynamic working relationship between our rural and urban residents is essential to keep America agriculture strong.

November 20-26, 1992, has been designated National Farm-City Week to encourage a better understanding of the important contributions each group makes to

Afghan Pines Grow Well

Donley County residents who like pine trees should love Afghan pines. The species is drought tolerant, fast growing and relatively pest free. They have proven very well adapted to the High Plains and to the Rolling Plains. They may possibly be the best adapted pine to the area.

Most pines have only one period of rapid growth per year. Afghan pines grow rapidly during two seasons each calendar year.

The pines have a pleasing green color and long slender needles. They grow to a height of 40 feet or more, with a traditional conical shape. Afghan pines are often recommended for windbreak planting.

Some of the Afghan pines planted last spring have already doubled their height. Like any pine, they need adequate water to become established.

Donley County residents who want to order Afghan pines from the Soil Conservation Service should go by the office as soon as possible. There will be a limited number available, and the trees will be sold on a first-come basis.

THIS VIGOROUS LITTLE AFGHAN PINE has grown rapidly since it was planted last Spring. When it was planted, it was only slightly taller than the stake.

Local's Son Shares Stage With Bees

In his fifth year at the fair, Bobby Cain will have a captive audience when he talks about beekeeping at the Flemington Fair.

He will be shut inside a screened cage with 60,000 bees.

Mr. Cain, who works as a purchasing agent for the Monmouth County Park System, has been keeping bees as a hobby for 16 years and now has at least 100 hives of between 75,000 and 100,000 bees each.

"I've always been fascinated with bees, even as a small child," says Mr. Cain. He was taken with the complexity of their lifestyle and with their ability to produce honey.

"Raising bees is a family activity for us," Mr. Cain says. His wife, Dianne, and two children, Kristin and David, all participate. "Bee-keeping has become an important part of our life. It's great for the whole family."

The Cain family sells the honey that its bees produce, but also "we use a lot of it - probably 150 pounds a year," Mr. Cain says. "You can use honey anywhere you can use sugar, and honey is a lot better for you because it's a simple sugar and is absorbed very quickly by your body."

In addition to spreading the gospel about honey, "we really preach about the importance of honeybees and what they do for us," Mr. Cain says. "Honeybees are not the aggressive insect that people say they are. We walk right into this cage without any protection at all."

Still, he has been stung countless times. Normally he wears protective clothing and moves "very slowly," Mr. Cain says, to minimize the risk.

"If you play with fire, you're gonna get burned. If you play with bees, you're gonna get stung," notes Mr. Cain. "It always hurts, but after a while a beekeeper builds up an immunity to the sting."

"If you play with fire, you're gonna get burned. If you play with bees, you're gonna get stung," notes Mr. Cain. "It always hurts, but after a while a beekeeper builds up an immunity to the sting."

There are only three or four commercial beekeepers in New Jersey and about 5,000 hobbyists

according to Mr. Cain. Among them they have 50,000 hives and about four and a half billion bees.

"In addition, there are probably more wild colonies out there than there are kept by beekeepers," Mr. Cain says, but no one knows for sure exactly how many there are because no one has ever counted them.

Unlike yellow jackets - which are not bees at all but members of the wasp family - honeybees are not scavengers and are rarely a nuisance to man, Mr. Cain says. They gather nectar and pollen from flowers and drink water.

From those ingredients each hive of bees can produce 100 pounds of honey a year, but the bees need 60 pounds-or five gallons- for themselves to survive through the winter. In addition, the bees produce beeswax, which is used for candles and cosmetics.

Bees are used commercially to pollinate 100 different food crops, including cranberries, blueberries, apples, pumpkins, cucumbers and peaches. Releasing two or three bee colonies an acre can increase blueberry yields by 600 percent, Mr. Cain says.

Bees have been kept by man since prehistoric times, but until the 1850s when a Philadelphia preacher named Lorenzo Langstroth invented the movable frame hive, extracting the honey entailed killing many of the bees.

The honeybee is not native to the Americas but was imported to European settlers. Native Americans, according to Mr. Cain, called it "the white man's fly."

But American bees are becoming more aggressive and more likely to sting as the strain of African bees introduced in an attempt to increase honey yields spreads.

Increased Africanization may lead to higher food prices as fewer hobbyists remain willing to work with the more aggressive bees and fewer colonies are available to pollinate crops, Mr. Cain says.

Editors Note: Bobby Cain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stina Cain, of Clarendon, lived in Clarendon for many years.

Housing Hotline Planned

Texas Farmers Home Administration (FmHA), one of eight federal agencies and government-sponsored enterprises have united in an effort to help thousands of persons, including very low-to moderate-income families, achieve home ownership.

It is being reported by Neal Sox Johnson, State Director of FmHA, that these eight organizations have established a joint marketing information center in Dallas. Alfred A. DelliBovi, Deputy Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and Chairman of the National Housing Advisory Board serves as the contact person.

By dialing the toll-free Housing Opportunity Hotline number, 1-800-362-2944, a caller will receive information on homes being offered for sale by the organizations anywhere in Texas.

Until now, persons interested in buying homes offered for sale by federal agencies and government-sponsored enterprises have had to contact each individual organization to learn what is available.

The Farmers Home Administration assists rural America by guaranteeing private sector loans and by providing temporary, supervised direct loans to farm and housing borrowers who have a reasonable chance to succeed, and whose current needs cannot be met at reasonable rates and terms by commercial sources. The Agency is committed to excellence in providing its services.

Coffee Blood Bank Sets Drive

Being a blood donor means being in a "special" class of people. Less than 5% of the Panhandle population donate blood. Therefore, you can easily see why you're so very special and so deeply appreciated, not only by Coffee Memorial Blood Center and the 20 area hospitals they serve, but more importantly, the persons touched by your generous donations of love through blood.

These invaluable donations have enabled individuals less fortunate in health to have yet another hope of one more tomorrow. The more tomorrows the Center can provide, the more hope of possible cures for many of their illnesses.

Hospitals count on Coffee Memorial Blood Center to maintain an adequate supply of blood. The Blood Bank Center counts on you to help maintain a "Safe" blood supply. Please keep sharing your "good blood" with others. There's no one else to count on.

Please support your community's lifeblood program by donating blood on: Monday, November 9, 1992, from 3 to 6 p.m. at the Hedley High School Cafeteria.

Loan Received

The Texas Water Development Board on Monday, October 26, 1992, approved a $500,000 loan to Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District No. 3.

The loan will be funded through the Agricultural Water Conservation Bond Program. The district will use loan proceeds to make low-interest loans to individual farmers and ranchers in the district's service area to purchase and install more efficient water conservation equipment.

Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District No. 3's jurisdictional area covers more than 3,672 square miles in northwest Texas, and includes Carson, Gray, and Donley counties, and parts of Hutchinson, Roberts, Potter, and Armstrong counties.

Dear Editor,

Each Thanksgiving, as my family comes together to count our many blessings, we always pause to give thanks for the bountiful harvest from our American agricultural industry. The quality and variety of food that fills our nation's larders is a testament to the productivity of hardworking farmers and ranchers across this great land.

Today, less than two percent of our population lives on farms and ranches, but thanks to the efficiency and productivity of these Americans, our producers supply eleven percent of the world's food grains, fifteen percent of its feed grains, twenty five percent of all beef and eleven percent of its pork.

Working hand-in-hand with our producers are processors, shippers, manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, many of them from our urban areas, who are responsible for taking this agricultural bounty to billions of consumers worldwide. Clearly, a dynamic working relationship between our rural and urban residents is essential to keep America agriculture strong.

November 20-26, 1992, has been designated National Farm-City Week to encourage a better understanding of the important contributions each group makes to the well being of the other. We are all partners in the progress and prosperity of this great land, and it is fitting that our celebration of National Farm-City Week occurs as we commemorate Thanksgiving.

It is in everyone's best interest that our farms and ranches and our cities remain strong. After all, they have worked together to make our nation the leader it is. But we must also understand our similarities and differences, our strengths and weaknesses, and our interdependence and independence. That is the purpose of National Farm-City Week.

So, once again, when families gather to celebrate this Thanksgiving, I hope that you will join my family in counting the many blessings that our rural and city residents have bestowed upon us.

Sincerely,
 Rick Perry
 Texas Commissioner of Agriculture

BURLINGTON NORTHERN'S schedule calls for putting up crossing signals on Ayers street in December.

Signals Coming in December

According to Mr. Ernie Wilson of the Burlington Northern Railroad, Ayers Street is scheduled to get crossing signals in December. The necessary hardware has arrived and will be installed as soon as possible.

The crossing will be protected by flashing lights and dingling bells. Such signals are actuated automatically by approaching trains.

The Ayers street crossing has been the scene of several tragic collisions from the 1930's to the present. There have been two tragic incidents there in the past few years.

Signals will undoubtedly make the crossing safer. At some times of day it is hard for motorists to see oncoming trains.

Drivers need to exercise caution at all crossings, however. On a nationwide basis, about 70 per cent of all accidents happen at crossings with signals, perhaps because they are more heavily traveled. Locally, many accidents occur on dirt roads and private crossings.

It is far too easy for people who live near a crossing or who cross the tracks frequently to become complacent. Most of the time there will be no trains in sight. Yet up to 30 trains may go through a crossing in a single day.

It does not matter that 29 trains went through the crossing uneventfully. One obstructed view or one moment's inattention can lead to tragedy.

Editor's note: Burlington Northern has not yet implemented an Absolute Block System in Donley County as reported earlier. ABS is expected early next year, and Centralized Traffic Control (CTC) in 1994. The railroad has already upgraded to power assisted switches and has improved the tracks. They have also completed a project to make sure that every crossing is protected by whistle posts. The old adage, "Stop, look, listen and live!" is still sound advice.

Beat Panhandle

Ranch Hosts Meeting

More than fifty people from around the panhandle gathered this month at the Bar-H Dude Ranch near Clarendon in response to an invitation from the North Rolling Plains and High Plains Resource Conservation and Development Councils.

The purpose of the meeting was to organize a regional task force to study ways to help rural communities develop tourism and recreation activities in the area.

Participants at the meeting included representatives from area museums, parks, hotels, bed and breakfasts, lakes, and other tourist attractions. Representatives were also on hand from the U.S. Forest Service, Texas Parks and Wildlife, and the Texas Department of Transportation.

Those attending the meeting agreed to form a steering committee to investigate the possibilities of organizing a travel and tourism marketing council for the entire Panhandle.

Foreigners Want Used Jeans

Many products made in the United States are shunned by foreign countries, but not Levi Strauss and Co. products. In fact, people in Asia and Europe will pay big bucks to get their hands on the Levi's clothing Americans want to throw away.

Wiley Cope of Amarillo, Texas, travels to different states and sets up shop. His business is to buy vintage Levi's apparel.

"I buy Levi's 501 Blues, one pocket jean jackets and other Levi's apparel that was made in the 1950s and 1960s," he said.

Cope buys the used clothing so he can ship it overseas and sell it.

"Levi's products are very difficult to get in Asia and Europe and they love it. They like the jeans with the smooth finish, and some like the ones with holes in them," he said. "Basically, they just want stuff that's made in the U.S."

Cope said that in Japan a good pair of used jeans could sell for $100 to $200, and in Europe the going rate is around $50 or $60. A jean jacket in good condition could net anywhere from $500 to $600. Even though the goods sell at a high price, Cope said this is not a get rich quick business.

"We pay people (for the clothing) more than they probably get from selling it in a garage sale and then we try to get double for it. We really don't make that much money at it because we have traveling expenses, tariffs and staff like that to pay for," he said.

Cope, a former farmer and rancher, got into the business about two years ago. He said he loves what he does because he gets to travel with his wife and meets a lot of people.

"It's a small business but it's interesting and my wife goes with me wherever I go," he said. "We've met a lot of different people, and made a lot of friends."

Cope said his first trip into Oklahoma has been a success thus far. "It might just be a fad, but the business has been growing since we've been in it. But like all good things, eventually it might come to an end," he said.

Until then Cope will keep buying old jeans and jean jackets so those overseas can buy denim products made in the U.S.A.

Reprinted from the Woodward Oklahoma Press by Audra Frantz, Staff Writer.

Note: Wiley Cope will be in Memphis at Billies Klothes Klostet and Childress at the Ranch House Motel, for five days, Tuesday, Nov. 3 thru Saturday, Nov. 7.

Our 70th Anniversary Banquet was a fitting celebration to this great milestone for our club. The closing remarks and Benediction was given by Lion Bernabe.
