Broncos win first district game, 21-14

By Dean Stanzone

The Clarendon Broncos started district play last Friday with a come from behind win against White Deer. The Broncos beat the Bucks, 21-14.

Head Football Coach Mark Howard felt the first half of play was really inconsistent. The Bucks held the Broncos to only 46 total yards in the first half.

"At first I felt the guys were really ready to play, although the first half didn't show it. We ended up being really inconsistent on offense. Things just didn't go our way at first."

The Broncos, down 14-0 at the half, exploded in the second half. The Bronco offense, after regrouping at half time, compiled 211-yards on offense.

The Broncos' first touchdown came from a 19-yard pass from Colt Floyd that connected with Sam

Holton. Dee Thompson, who led the Broncos with 114-yards on 25 carries, scored the last two Bronco touchdowns. Thompson's first rushing td came from 14 yards out. Then, after a 43-yard pass from Floyd to Carey Thornberry, Thompson ran from 3-yards out for his second touchdown.

The Broncos had to finish the game without players Cael Shields and G.J. Martindale. Shields left the game with a broken arm. His status at this time is unknown. Martindale suffered a bruised ankle and is probable for this week's game.

Defensively, Coach Howard felt the Broncos did a great job. Howard was really pleased with how well some people met the challenge.

"We had some guys step up when we needed them to. When Cael and G.J. went out, we put Brian Thompson and Chris Johnson in their spots.

Jeff Hearn prepares to block the White Deer defense from stopping Dee Thompson running the ball for the Broncos.

They really stepped up their play to help us win.

"I think our kids showed a lot of character in the second half coming from behind to win the game. They also showed a great deal of heart, and we commend them for that."

This week the Broncos have their eyes set on the Wellington Skyrockets. The Rockets lost their first district game to Panhandle. Coach Howard feels to beat them they will have to play a full four quarters.

"I felt we were real fortunate to come from behind and win against White Deer. In district, that is a great accomplish. We didn't play the first two quarters like we played the last two. We can't come out and play only two quarters against Wellington; we are going to have to play all four quarters to win."

An American Teen in Europe

By Roger Estlack

This summer a local teen had the trip of a lifetime when he toured Europe with the International Bands of America.

There were a few hurdles in getting to Europe, but Bryan Turvaville loved every minute of it.

The 17-year-old Bronco Band member from Clarendon High School spent two weeks this summer touring and performing in Germany, Austria, and Switzerland with the International Bands of America.

To make the trip, Turvaville had to get selected, raise $3,000, and deal with the airline losing his baritone horn for three days. But the high school senior overcame those obstacles, and his reward was a trip he will never forget.

Turvaville, who is the son of Carlton and Susan Turvaville, was chosen by the International Bands through a selection process that looks at state music records. Selected students were sent an invitation to join the band. It was then up to the student to send in a chair placement tape and come up with the $3,000 to make the trip to Europe. The Bronco Band Boosters paid $250 to help with Turvaville's airfare expenses, and the Holden family also made a donation to help him. But Turvaville had to come up with the balance.

"The rest of the money I worked for and raised on my own, and my dad helped me out some," he said.

Once in Europe, Turvaville saw a lot of beautiful countryside, toured some historic places, and even performed in some of the same places where the legendary Von Trapp family sang more than half a century ago. (The story of the Von Trapps is depicted in the classic movie "The Sound of Music.") But looking back, he says he was most impressed by the people he met.

"We have our impression of them [Europeans]. Their water is not clean and everything," Turvaville said referring to stereotypes that depict Europeans as dirty.

"Texas' motto is 'Don't Mess with Texas,'" he said. "You don't mess with their land over there. There was hardly any trash on the side of the road. They take pride in their land."

The people were friendly, he said, and most of them spoke pretty good English.

Being one of only two Texans to make the trip set Turvaville apart.

"My nickname the whole time was 'Tex.' It was given to me by everybody who heard me talk."

Turvaville's 50-piece band performed in six concerts. Also making the trip was a choir and string ensemble, which brought the group's total number of people up to 108. While the airline searched for his lost baritone the first three days, Turvaville found himself singing with the choir.

"Everybody over there appreciates music," he said. "We had 200 - 300 turn out for every concert. We played in open-air auditoriums or just out on sidewalks where we set up chairs. We played one concert inside a church."

Turvaville said they performed all kinds of music from classical to American music.

"They loved the Sousa marches," he said. "We played 'The Thunder,' which is the hardest march of his I've ever played in my life."

The architecture he encountered also impressed Turvaville.

"It's just amazing. You see it in pictures; but when you see it up close and are actually there, it's even more amazing."

Other interesting sights Turvaville encountered included a miniature theater where the figures of actors are moved by water power and the world's largest pipe organ. The miniature theater in Austria has 103 movable pieces and was built in medieval times. He said the organ, located in Germany, has over 17,000 pipes. The highest and lowest notes on the organ are not played, he said, because doing so would shatter the windows in the building.

Among the students traveling with Turvaville where kids ranging in classification from a high school freshman to sophomores in college. The Clarendon teen became known as a prankster and a jokester, and he hung out with a group of kids known for making people laugh and buying crazy souvenirs.

"We had contests to see who could buy the stupidest stuff," Turvaville said. The hat to beat all hats was a fake keg, and lighters were also popular souvenir items. "I had the best lighter. It was a little alien butane lighter. Its eyes lit up red, and it played Mozart."

The friendships he made are lasting ones, he said.

"I keep in touch with them by e-mail, and some of them I talked to every day by Instant Messenger (an Internet messaging system)," he said. Currently, however, Turvaville's computer has crashed, and he is trying to get it back up and running so he doesn't lose contact with his friends.

CHS Band Director Todd Baker said the European trip was good for Turvaville.

"It helped him grow as a musician and as a student," Baker said. "I was really thrilled for him to be able to make that trip. It was a great musical and social experience."

Baker said eight or nine members of the Bronco Band were invited to join the International Bands of America, but Turvaville was the only one to take them up on it. He said Turvaville has become a leader in the band.

"[Bryan] holds the student conductor position," Baker said. "During concert season, he will have responsibilities for warming up the band and will have a leadership role similar to the drum major during marching season."

Turvaville would like to re-live his experience abroad, and he may just get that chance. The International Bands' director has told him that if no baritone players sign up for next year's trip, he will be invited to return.

"I'll go back if I can," he said.

Aldermen vote to pay judgment

The Clarendon Board of Aldermen voted Tuesday night to pay Roy Williams more than $88,000 in accordance with a judgment from District Judge David McCoy.

Judge McCoy signed the judgment on September 14, 1999, ordering the city to pay for work done by Williams during the rehabilitation of US Hwy 287. The city had maintained that the State of Texas should pay for the work.

At Tuesday night's regular city meeting, Mayor Tex Selvidge said paying the settlement does not mean the city was in the wrong.

"We're not admitting we were wrong. We had our day in court, and the court said we owed the money," Selvidge said. "The whole job was done improperly and was done wrong by all parties."

The city will not appeal, Selvidge said, nor will it ask for a new trial.

"We're not going to appeal the decision. We're just going to pay it in one lump sum and be through with it so we can get on with the business that's important to Clarendon."

editor's Commentary

American icon bites the dust

In the settlement of the American west, there were four great inventions that made it possible for civilization to seek out an existence on the Great Plains.

The development of the steel trunk plow allowed the tough prairie soil to be broken and cultivated. Barbed wire delineated the plants and kept cattle and other beasts fenced in or fenced out as the case sometimes was.

And the fourth invention tamed the West and was a source of justice and protection where the long arm of the law fell short. It helped conquer the natives and made early pioneers feel a little more secure in their new surroundings. That item was the Colt revolver.

One post-Civil War slogan said: "Abe Lincoln may have freed all men, but Sam Colt made them equal."

It's been more than a century and a half since Colt invented his six-shooter, but now Colt's Manufacturing is giving up the consumer handgun business that made it famous.

The company announced last week that it's pulling out of the handgun market because of the liability lawsuits now facing the gun industry.

Gun control advocates to doubt that a field day with Colt's announcement. They're probably still hung over from partying so hard.

This magazine correspondent Adam Cohen was quoted recently as saying, "This is a classic case of how the tort system is supposed to work: by restraining a company from doing something purely considerate inside - even if it's legal - by making it economically unviable."

If this really is how the system is supposed to work, then we have a seriously flawed system.

According to this model of the system, here is how American business works: First, invent or develop a widget - or any legal product - that a huge number of American citizens need or want. After effectively marketing your product, you may be able to earn several hundred million dollars. Be careful that you don't create a monopoly for yourself - or the appearance of one - or the federal government may dismantle your business.

Now, here's the kicker: If somebody uses your product to harm himself or somebody else, you can be held responsible. Your government may turn against you and try to outlaw your widget production or place oppressive restrictions on the sale of your widgets. If all else fails, the trial lawyers will be turned loose on you until you scream for mercy and swear never to make another widget.

What the devil is wrong with this country?

This is supposed to be a capitalist nation where the free market and individual rights and responsibilities are held in high esteem. Instead we live in a nation where corporations - engaged in legal activities - are blamed for everything from a smoker's lung cancer to the death of a murder victim. Today, every business owner - large or small - has to deal with the fear of lawsuits. By going about his daily business, a person can be sued for everything he's worth if he offends somebody or because someone does something offensive with one of his products.

Ultimately, the people are the biggest losers in cases like that of Colt.

If this litigation tactic is successful, you may technically have the right to own a gun, but you won't be able to purchase one because all the manufacturers will be out of business.

It's exactly the same kind of tactic being used by the federal government right now against the tobacco industry. The people won't support outlawing tobacco, but they will support regulating and using the tobacco industry until it gasps its last breath of air.

Likewise, repealing the Second Amendment to the Constitution is not possible politically (yet). But suing gun manufacturers and implementing restrictions on the sale of guns is politically popular.

Americans would do well to wake up to the abuses of the system all around them. And Congress would do well to enact tort reform to stop these runaway lawsuits, which are threatening our way of life and our freedoms.

Speaking of Congress...

While Colt was giving up the ghost last week, the United States Congress dealt another blow to the free market.

On a bipartisan vote, the House of Representatives passed a so-called "patients bill of rights."

For my money, if I don't like the coverage my health insurance provides, I'll go find another company. I don't see the need to sue over it. It's a free market. Shop around.

I wonder what will be next. If you don't like the choices an industry gives you, can you get Congress to pass a law forcing them to offer something else? Could someone force General Motors to put shag carpet in their new cars?

Oh, yes. The House's bill also allows people to sue their health maintenance organization in state or federal court.

That's just what this country needs - more lawsuits. Thanks, Congress.

A snake in a sack makes for a great present

For a decade, I have dreaded receiving an invitation to my ten-year high school reunion.

"Come relive the wonderful days of high school. An all-school reunion will be held..." was how the invitation began.

High school was terrific; however, I dreaded going back and getting a dose of my own medicine.

Growing up in a small town, high school kids had to be creative in finding ways to entertain themselves. It was 90 miles to the closest mall and an hour's drive to the nearest drive-in movie theater. Of course, we often entertained ourselves by planning and carrying out practical jokes. Some of the jokes were dirty, while others were true masterpieces.

One of the better ones was aimed at my friend, Phil. He was an all-around guy - an athlete, a good student, and a good citizen.

Although he was a model teen, Phil excelled at practical jokes.

Since Phil and I shared the same basketball jersey number, he thought it would be funny if I somehow forgot my uniform and had to wear his at an away game. Sure enough, he offered to carry my bags to the bus, but first he made a detour and deposited everything but my shoes into his vehicle. The joke was a success as I looked silly wearing a much too big

on the Mark

with Christi Ross

men's basketball uniform. However, it wasn't funny for me, as coach made me run bleachers for two practices because I wasn't responsible enough to remember my uniform.

All winter I plotted my revenge. Soon winter turned into spring and eventually summer. I could not come up with a practical joke that would top Phil's.

Finally, my joke came to me on a Friday morning in October. My sister and I had to do chores each morning before school, and I was trying hard to keep my cheerleading uniform clean as I fed grain to our show steers.

Underneath one of the metal troughs, I saw my practical joke staring back at me. A two-foot long rattlesnake was going to help me get Phil.

My sister and I killed the snake and stuck him in a small paper sack. We went even further by then decorating the sack with a large bow and attaching a birthday card with a ribbon. The bag was stapled shut so our present couldn't get out, just in case he wasn't dead.

Our school always had football pep rallies at noon so the whole town could come. That week, the cheerleaders had access to the men's locker room since we were going to be using old jerseys and helmets for a skirt.

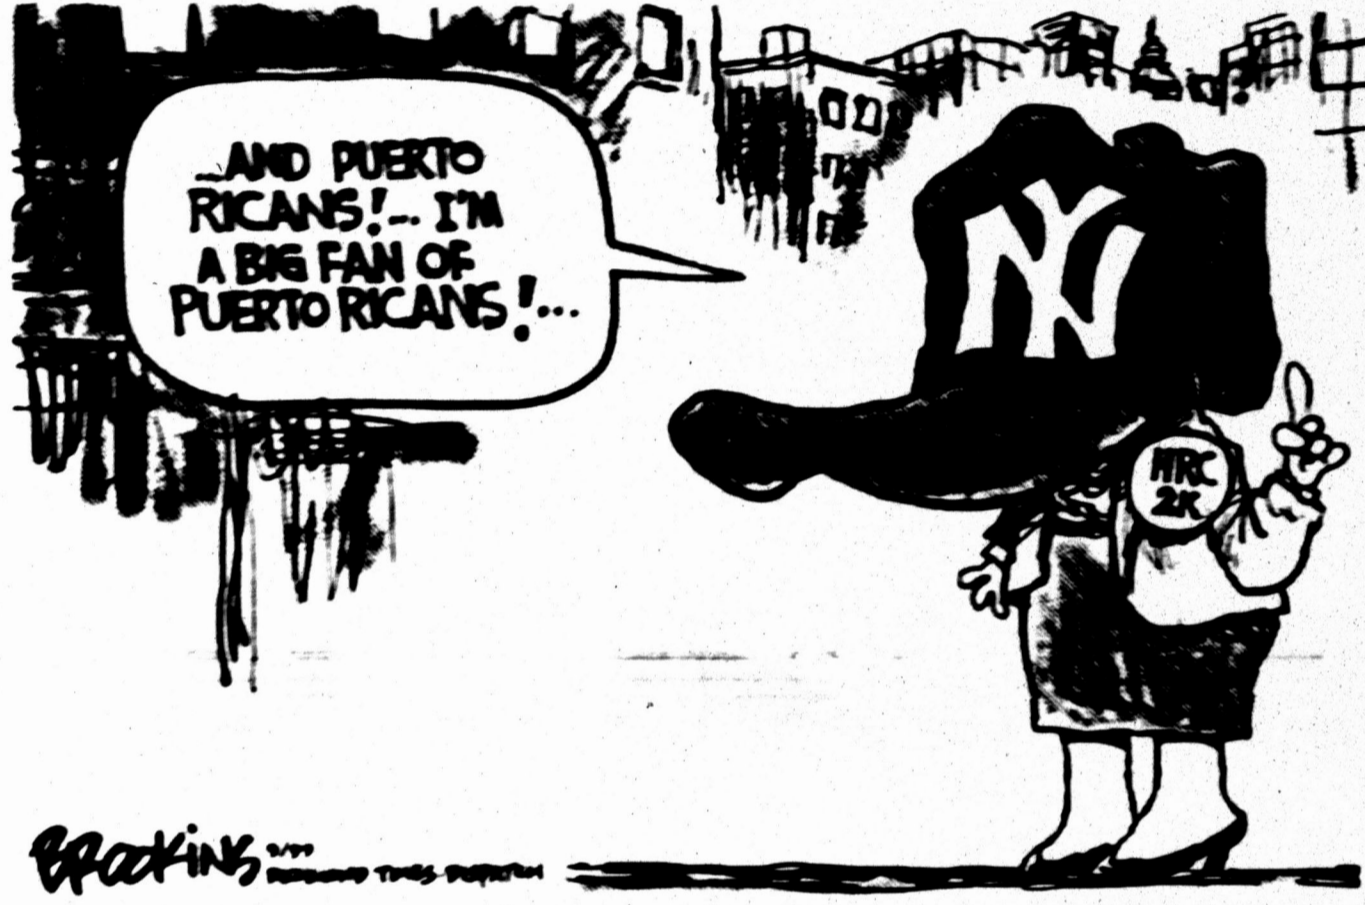

Thus, I just dropped off Phil's birthday present in his football locker. Just before the pep rally began, the team went and slipped on their jerseys and wanted to be called out. Standing outside the locker room, the scene unfolded like this: present was opened, present thrown, snake flies out, and entire sweat runs out of the locker room yelling, "Snake!"

I quickly ran and picked up my evidence and took the present outside.

The superintendent, principal, and coach all entered the locker room armed with shovels, a bat, and a broom to find the snake. Of course, nothing was ever found, and the team was told to quit goofing around.

Much later, Phil found out I was the one who gave him a snake for his birthday. He swore then that he would have the last laugh. I haven't seen him in several years, and I doubt he has forgotten about his promise of revenge.

This summer's reunion will be wonderful, but I really don't think he can top the snake in the sack joke. Or can he?

Coins shouldn't be the only place for God

Every high school football game starts with a coin toss, and on the back of every coin are the words "In God We Trust." If a federal judge has his way, that's the only time God will get mentioned on the field of play.

That's because earlier this year, the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans determined that saying a prayer before a football game or any other type of sporting event was unconstitutional.

Every school across our State has been affected by this ruling. Some schools have been affected more than others because the ACLU has gotten involved

issue Update

with Rep. Mac Thornberry

and is threatening to sue those school districts that don't comply. Needless to say, this is not what the Founding Fathers had in mind when they wrote the Bill of Rights.

The First Amendment clearly states that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof..."

The goal was to ensure our freedom of religion, not from religion. Some argue that the country has changed quite a bit over the past 220 years. While this may be true, the importance of recognizing the role of faith in our lives has not changed.

Make no mistake - religious beliefs should not be forced on anyone. But at a time when we're trying to do all we can to help young people find their way, the last thing a federal judge should be doing is erecting another barrier between students and the One who can help them do just that.

Texas school boards caught in bad situation

By George McShan, TASB President

Texas school board members are caught in a difficult situation. When we took office, we swore to uphold the laws of this state and nation. In many Texas communities, however, citizens disagree with a recent court ruling that eliminates prayer at football games and are encouraging local school boards to ignore the court's direction.

Last February the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in Doe v. Santa Fe Indep Sch Dist that school districts cannot allow student-led, student-initiated prayer over the loudspeaker at football games because it violates the Establishment Clause of the United States Constitution. The Fifth Circuit Court has jurisdiction over Texas, Louisiana, and Mississippi; therefore, the decision is binding on Texas school districts.

Although the court's decision has been appealed to the United States Supreme Court, school districts are responsible for complying with the Fifth Circuit Court's ruling unless the Supreme Court reverses the lower court's decision. Failure to comply with the court's ruling could result in liability to the district and to the board members, thereby diverting education resources (time, energy, and dollars) away from schoolchildren.

Texas school boards have shown their support for student-initiated, student-sponsored prayer and moments of silence at school events by approving resolution to the effect in the annual Texas Association of School Boards (TASB) Delegate Assembly every year since 1993. An identical resolution will be considered in the 1999 Delegate Assembly on October 9.

Additionally, the TASB Legal Assistance Fund (LAF) filed a brief to the Fifth Circuit in support of the Santa Fe ISD Motion for Rehearing - which was denied - and the LAF Board voted to fund an amicus curiae ("friend of the court") brief to the US Supreme Court in support of student prayer at football games, if the court agrees to hear this case.

The bottom line is this: Texas school boards and their association (TASB) must uphold the laws of this country. However, we are committed to finding a way to change the current laws concerning prayer at school events.

If you believe that student-initiated, student-sponsored prayer and moments of silence should be permitted at school events, please contact your state and national elected officials.

Cotton Festival workers did a good job

Well, the forty-eighth annual Hedley Cotton Festival is history, and I for one am glad. It's a lot of work for those who are responsible, and they did a good job and are to be commended. Rhonda Starw saw that we had a good parade, and LaMoss Lambert was an outstanding MC for the parade.

Kathy Spier oversaw the queen coronation and it was lovely. It didn't drag on so long that a person got tired of sitting on those hard bleachers in the gym.

Congratulations to Hollie Jo White and Katerinna Johnson. They are the 1999-2000 Cotton Festival Queen and Princess.

I talked to Cam Lindsey, and she told me that the four queen contestants and the four princess contestants made seven thousand plus dollars. She wasn't sure of the exact amount.

Dorothy Brinson won the bale of cotton. I offered to help her spend the money, but she told me she didn't need any help.

Tom Carson's son, Drake, won the quilt quilted by the residents of Medical Center Nursing Home. Judy Hodges of Clarendon won the quilt given by the Hedley Lionsess Club.

There were a lot of people at the Cotton Festival, some of whom belong in Hedley but due to circumstances beyond their control live elsewhere. I saw Elsie Shaw and her daughters, JoAnn and Wanda, Lois Moffitt, J.M.

Dickson, Alan Cope, and Lewis Stiles. I hadn't seen Lewis since we graduated from high school.

My brother William and Margie Mullins of Elkland, Missouri, spent a night with mother last week. They had been in Lubbock to visit her sister and stopped enroute home. They visited awhile with T. and Nancy. I saw them for a few minutes Wednesday morning before they left.

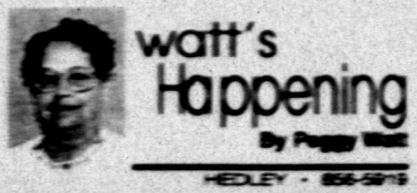

Leonard Mullins of Frinch came Saturday, but mother had gone to watch the parade and missed him. He did visit awhile with T. and Nancy.

Gary and Nina Graham, Stanley and Genie Bailey, and Jeannette Bailey and Giles visited with their mother, Mrs. Margie Bailey. Jeannette is Andy Bailey's wife, and their son is named Giles because Andy liked visiting here in Giles when he was a little boy. Andy is Stanley and Gemmie's son.

Todd and Melissa Bailey, Michael, Lindsey, and Evan and Kristi Bailey spent the weekend with their parents, Terry and JoAnn. Evan is Terry's grandson.

Tom and Paige Carson, Drake and Zack of Amarillo, Susan Cosby, Nancy and Carmen, and granddaughter Kendall of Tulsa enjoyed the Cotton Festival with their parents, Bill and Juanel Carson. Susan's husband, Stan, had to stay home and preach Sunday morning.

an old school mate. Lavelle Peters Casey of Farmers Branch and her brother, Jerral Peters, came for the Cotton Festival. Murdice said she'd not seen them in years and sure enjoyed the visit.

There were lots of full houses during the past few days. Harold and Mary Ruth White enjoyed having daughters Tanya Gibson, Tara and Tamers of Perryton, Renee Shields, Heather and Mickenna, and Landon of Lelia Lake, Travis Ford of White Deer, Mary Ruth's sister, Don Keith and Charlene Wells, Roy Don and their great grandson, Anthony from Amarillo, Granddaughter Mitch and Dana Ford of White were there.

Ricky Skaggs visited with J.D. and Marie and their girls along with Johnny and Kathy Woodard.

Ron and JoAnn Glover enjoyed visits with their girls, Cheryl McElroy and Collin and Kelsey and Carol Glover and Caedyn were here from Amarillo.

Henry and Nancy Stephens had Doyle and Judy Clendenn; Darren and Jodi Clendenn, Kenzie, Kaziah, and Channer, Brent and Misti Basen, Clay and Destry all of Pampa, Doyle and Sandra Baggett, Terry and Lori Baggett, Brandy and Brooklyn, Tammy and Jamie Wagner all of Claude, Brannon and Hope Stephens, Braddon and Alex of Lefors, Tracy and Kristi Barton of Purcell, Oklahoma, and Jerry and Sandra Finchem of Amarillo. The girl's mother, Mrs. Margaret Holland, joined them for the celebration.

Sandy Bevers enjoyed part of her family during the weekend. John and Johime Bevers, Matt and Becky of Amarillo, David Crain of Channing, Leon Bevers of Edmund, Oklahoma, Joe Neil Bevers and Sarah Phillips of Amarillo, and Lewis Bevers of Hedley were there.

Wilma Snelson had part of her kids here. They were Katrina Osborn of Amarillo, B.J. and Jackie Pierce, Lacy, Clint, and Dillon, and Angie Pierce, Monica, Jeremy, and Kristen were joined by Marsha Favor and Archie and Marlee Sharp, Archie and Alex of Hedley.

I'm sure I missed someone, and I'm sorry. I did see Wanda Hansard Richards and Curt, Kathy McPherson, Beverly McPherson, Nancy Saunders Stephens, Renee and Shauna White and Su-San who are all former queens. Except Curt Richards. I guess you'd call him a queen's consort. At least that's what they call Prince Phillip, so I guess that's what Curt is.

Dog story delayed to run casualty list

After all the activity last week, with Homecoming and everything, it seemed as if Clarendon took a collective sigh and leaned back to recuperate. I figured I'd be writing this week about Spot, the Dalmatian who lives at my house, and his pet turtles.

However, it seems this week's column is going to have to be a casualty list. People are breaking bones right and left, and they're not all football players, either.

Brandon Word started this broken-limb fest at the very first Bronco football game by breaking his leg just above the ankle. Then Chance McLaran broke his femur a week or so later.

Dusty Martindale was the next to join the injured roster by breaking his thumb. His mother reports that he went back to the doctor and got a new cast—one he can play football in. His mother is not thrilled.

I've read in the Bible that God used to strike a person down when they disobeyed him. Sometime they were turbed into a pillar of salt, sometimes they just dropped dead. The reason I bring this up is because I think I may have made God mad last week.

I wrote a column about men and how they can be a real pain when they are sick. I sort of poked fun at my husband, knowing it wouldn't hurt his feelings because he is used to me. I never dreamed I might be stepping out line with my jokes—at least not enough to anger The Almighty, but apparently I did. How do I know this?

Twenty-four hours after writing that column, I became sick—not just sort of sick, but the kind of sick you get when you think you would have to die to get better.

On Sunday night, I finished my column and sealed it in an envelope.

Before the eighth-grade game last Thursday, Otis Scribner was walking backward, fell down, and broke his arm. He's going to be out of the action for a while now, too.

Because of a concussion, junior varsity Bronco Michael Newhouse won't be playing the rest of this year either, for which his mother is grateful.

And of course, those who traveled to White Deer Friday night for the Bronco varsity game know that Cael Shields broke his right arm during the game. Arms are not supposed to zig-zag, but Cael's forearm did. It hurt to see it. I know it hurt Cael a whole lot more. He deserves all the sympathy he can get. (You hear, girls? Sympathy. He'll appreciate it.)

Spread the pampering around. All these battered Broncos (and Colts) need some, even those whose injuries are almost well.

I felt good. Monday I dropped if off at the newspaper office and went on my merry way. That afternoon I developed somewhat of a sore throat, but I chalked that up to my ability to talk so much.

On Tuesday morning my body felt achy and the sore throat was definitely worse. By that afternoon I was running a fever and coughing up a storm. Tuesday night I was in the recliner, wearing a flannel gown, heavy bathrobe, two pair of socks, and covered with a blanket. The temperature outside was 75.

Wednesday I went to see the doctor. When I left the doctor's office I made two stops—the pharmacy and the grocery store. Armed with two prescriptions and tomato soup, I managed to get myself home and crawled into bed. Boy was I sick!

Burton Library boasts a large reference section

When mentioning reference books, many of us possibly think "encyclopedias" and tend to leave it at that. The next time you examine Burton Memorial Library's reference section, you will delight with the large variety available for enjoyable reading as well as reference research.

Nature lovers will relish a large 435-page folio of Audubon's Birds of America compiled by Virginia Marie and Roger Tory Peterson. In 1820, John Jay Audubon, America's best-known ornithological pioneer, conceived the idea of publishing an American bird painting collection from their natural surroundings. In the folio, many of his beautiful paintings are reproduced in accurate, lovely color. According to World Book En- cyclopedia, "The National Audubon Society, named after John Audubon, is the oldest and largest national conservation organization in North America with about 300 branches and affiliated clubs. Its major purpose is to advance and publish understanding of the value and needs of soil, water, plants, and wildlife conservation, and to promote protection of birds."

Another eye-catching reference is David Alderton's Quails. The first 54 pages include wonderful details concerning care of quails, habits, species, and other descriptive information. This is followed by beautiful full-page color photographs of many types of quail.

Not only do the Audubon and Alderton books provide a wealth of

The Broncos are not the only ones coming up with broken bones. Just when Truman Ledbetter was on his way to full recovery after his run-in with the wild Winnebago, Jean Ledbetter tripped and fell last Thursday night. She hit her head, cracked her shoulder and broke her arm just below the shoulder joint. She just came home from the hospital Sunday night. We are glad things weren't worse. Now, y'all make sure Jean gets her share of TLC too.

You really have to watch out for those vicious garden hoses. They'll turn on you when you least expect it. Of course, I've personally been known just to fall over without tripping on anything. I fell once stepping on the back of my own shoe. Sprained my elbow, and couldn't feed myself for three days, because I couldn't bend my arm enough to reach my own mouth. This is why I know about garden hoses, and holes in the ground that reach out and snatch your foot into them. It's also how I know that these folks need lots and lots of pampering.

People, do not break anything else. I really would rather write about Spot's turtles.

But next week I get to write about the Clarendon College Intramural Rodeo. Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock, at the Rodeo Grounds. Be there. No rough stock, but they'll have steer saddling and calf dressing. I for one am looking forward to the opportunity to watch these college students wrestle a live, kicking, bawling calf into clothing. Y'all come.

When my husband came in from work he said, "You look sick."

"No—really—you think?"

On Thursday, the paper came out, and that's when I dawned on me. I had poked fun at men, and now I was the sick one.

For two more days I felt like ten miles of bad road. On Sunday afternoon—a full week from when I wrote the "sick men" column—I started feeling a little better. As I write this, I actually believe that I will live, and I might even take a breath without coughing again. Was it all just coincidence? Was it really just a virus that was going around? Would I be over-reacting to think that God decided to play a little joke of His own on me? Maybe. But I am not taking any chances.

I want to go on the record right here and now and apologize to men everywhere. I want you guys to know that I take it all back. I don't know what I was thinking. I have seen the error of my ways. Men are rough, rugged, and every other good thing I can think of. Without all of you fellows we women would be lost and the world would be a lousy place. I think each and every one of you deserves a medal for being so wonderful.

I promise never to make a joke about men again, for as long as I live...well, at least for a long, long time...or until the end of the week...for a solid 24 hours...really!

CHS Classes of '48, '49 hold reunion

Fantastic! That is how the Clarendon High School Class of 1949 described their 50th reunion, joined by the Class of 1948. They had such a great time at the Bar H Dude Ranch.

On planning the reunion, the committee had said, "This is the 50th. This is going to be the last. We are not doing it again. We are going to clean out our closets and throw away all the reunion stuff." But they had such a good time, they voted on Sunday morning at the late breakfast to do it again at the same place, at the same time only a week earlier next year.

It started Friday afternoon, September 24, 1999. After much happy greetings of old classmates, 37 people had Frank's good hamburgers. Then Margie Nell and Billy Mix Phillips led them in a sing along of those good old songs they used to sing in chapel. Remember Mr. Drennan and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart?" They heartily sang out on "Roll Out the Barrel," "The Old Lamplighter," "Slow Boat to China," "Mairzy Doats," and as the moon was rising above a cloud in the east, they sang "Shine on Harvest Moon" and "Moonlight Bay." Oh, yes, they had to sing "Jada." That was not Ira Jean Estlack Chunn's favorite. Singing those old songs was so good.

On Saturday morning, breakfast was fed to about 22, and they then went on to the Col. Charles Goodnight Chuckwagon Cookoff and visited the museum. Then at noon, the group was off to Virginia and Nelson Christie's home for a house full of friends and food.

On Saturday night, steaks were fed to 44 of them, as Nelson was MC. He makes a good MC with lots of laughs and good thoughts of school days with friends and family. Mae Morris Naylor gave a talk on "What Happened in 1949." A memorial to those no longer with us was also given.

Bay Morris of the class of '48 took the prize for traveling the farthest. Ira Jean presented him with a Jaguar - a little one - for his trip back to California.

Then Mae started off the "Funny Story" bit by reminding them of when some good old boys had lifted Miss Howren's car up and put watermelons under it, and how she had gotten in, put it in reverse, and gunned it going nowhere. Finally some student took heart and told her the reason. The watermelons were removed, and everybody got out of the way before she gunned it for real.

There were numerous watermelon stealing stories told (ask Chauncey and Ray) or attempted stealing. James Calcote told how he, Jack, and Joan May, George and Katherine Thompson, and a Shelly boy were walking home from school in elementary grades, and a black sandstorm came up. They could not see, and George Thompson, the oldest, had them get down in a bar ditch for cover. Finally, after several hours, the Shelly father found them and took them home. That was not a funny, but it brought back old memories.

Scharlene Pyeatt Smith got the "Clown" for the funniest story. Something about Fred Molesworth in his red convertible asked if she wanted to go for a ride out a little ways to pick up a fellow. She accepted and they picked up the guy. Then the boys tried to put a burro in the back seat of the convertible. After much unsatisfactory effort, a pickup came by and they loaded the burro in it and hauled the donkey away. Scharlene said she never got in the car with Fred again.

Fred was there and grinned.

Mae Naylor thought they should have some memento to take home. She wanted school bells with 50 painted on them. Somehow the mementoes looked a little like cowbells.

Sunday morning, the group had breakfast at the Bar H Dude Ranch and held a little meeting to decide to come back next year. The reunion ended on a high point when 13 of us went with Nelson and Virginia Christie to Martin Baptist Church.

A total of 51 people attended the reunion. There were 16 from the Class of '49 and 10 from the Class of '48 plus spouses and others from '50s and '40s. Coach Beryl Clinton and Tom Seay were not there, and they were missed immensely.

Those attending were VaLois Stafford Bell, Ladelle Cox Dilli, Inelle Cox Bagwell, Duane and Roberta Littlefield, Jeanine Waldrop Miller and Dale Miller, James Moore and Joann Montgomery Moore, Fred and Ann Molesworth, Ralph Nichols, Robert Talley, Margaret Ann Robertson Vines and Loyd Vines, Billy and Rae Waddell, Edward Sawyer, Scharlene Pyeatt Smith and Joe Smith, Ruth Drake Jackson, JoAnn May Britten and Art Britten, Douglas and Phyllis Shelton, James Calcote, Louva Hunt, Wayne and Tomi Lowe, Margie Nell Crofford Phillips and Billy Mix Phillips, Ray Morris, Russell and Betty Morris, Eva Lane Turner, Walter Warner, Sue Smith Dunagan, Doyle Ray and Cora Littlefield, Shirley Morris Bulman, and committee members - Mae Norris Naylor and Duane Naylor, Ira Jean Estlack Chunn and Winfred Chunn, Chauncey and Ann Thompson Hommel, Nelson and Virginia Christie, Mary Neal Davis Risley, and Maurice Risley.

4-H pays tribute to those who contribute to program

By Sue Church, County FCS Agent
Tribute was paid to 4-Her's, Leaders and Friends of 4-H at the annual 4-H Recognition Banquet, which was held Monday evening, October 4, at the First United Methodist Church. Emcee for the evening was Shannon Cooper, president of the Donley County 4-H Club.

The awards program began with the installation of the 1999-2000 Donley County 4-H Club officers. They are: President - Shannon Cooper, First Vice President - Trisha Church, Second Vice President - Chock Grady, Third Vice President - Paul Goetze, Secretary/Treasurer - Jacki Grady, Reporter - Abby Patten, Parliamentarian - Katie Askew and Historian - Shanna Shelton.

4-Her's received certificates for participation in project areas and were awarded pins if they participated at the district or state levels. Leaders presenting the awards were: Jennifer Tubbs - Clover Kids, Beverly Alexander - Something More After School program, Larry Goetze and Connie Powell - Donley County 4-H Club, and Jody Green - Horse Club.

Special recognition was given by Pearl Hermesmyer, 4-H Advisory Board member, to Shannon Cooper and Trisha Church for being this year's recipients of the Gold Star Award. It was noted that they will be further recognized at a district banquet which will be held in their honor at West Texas A&M University on Saturday, November 13.

Adults contributing much appreciated time to the county program also were presented certificates. Leaders receiving outstanding service awards for the year were Janet Cooper and Linda Rowland. These leaders were earlier honored at a luncheon in Amarillo at the District 4-H Fall Forum on September 11.

Each year individuals from the community who support the local program are recognized for the time and talents they have contributed to 4-H. The award is designated as the "Friend of 4-H" award. Recipients of the Friend of 4-H Award for 1999 are: Ruby Jewel Hardin, Pat Archuleta and James Ivey Edwards. These individuals contributed many hours to the construction of the 4-H Banner, which was showcased at the Tri-State Fair in September.

Judge Jack Hall presented Extension Agents Leon and Sue Church with a plaque for the county for their efforts in developing the local 4-H youth program. Shannon Cooper also presented gift certificates to the agents from the 4-H families.

The banquet was attractively decorated by Lori Howard. Virginia Patten and Naomi Green coordinated the cooking and brisket and beans, which complemented the potluck items provided by the families.

This banquet is traditionally held during National 4-H Week, which was October 3-9 this year. In addition to the banquet, 4-Her's distributed 4-H "thank you" cups during the week to businesses, organizations and individuals in the community who have supported the 4-H program. To wrap up the national observance, members of the 4-H club picked up litter along two miles of Highway 287 on Saturday, October 9.

This has been a year of growth and excitement for the Donley County 4-H program. For more information on how you might become involved in 4-H, contact the Donley County Extension Office at 874-2141.

Donley County 4-H Club installed its new officers for 1999-2000 at the Recognition Banquet on October 4. New Officers are: President: Shannon Cooper; First Vice President: Trisha Church; Second Vice President: Chock Grady; Third Vice President: Paul Goetze; Secretary: Jackie Grady; Reporter: Abbey Patton; Parliamentarian: Katie Askew and Historian: Shanna Shelton

Janet Cooper, a Donley County 4-H Leader, was recently honored as one of 32 Distinguished 4-H Leaders in the Panhandle. Janet was honored for her commitment and service to the county 4-H program. The Panhandle 4-H program reaches nearly 20, 000 youth each year. Also honored as a Distinguished Leader from Donley was Linda Rowland.

Donley County 4-H recently recognized three "Friends of 4-H." Those recognized at the recent recognition banquet were; Ruby Jewel Hardin, James Ivey Edwards, and Pat Archuleta. The recipients were recognized for the support of their 4-H program.

Lady Colt runners place second at Shamrock

The Clarendon Cross Country teams competed at the Shamrock Invitational held at the Shamrock Country Club on Saturday. The CJH Lady Colts put in a great effort and placed second overall in the team standings.

Eighth grader Lydia Hartman was the lone medalist for the Lady Colts as she finished fifth overall in a time of 14:46. Other Lady Colts competing were Laura Dzeidzic, 11th, 15:04; Brittney Hall, 16th, 15:42; Kayla Martindale, 17th, 15:45; Meghan Gribble, 18th, 15:47; Destiny Weatheron, 34th, 16:39; Jessie Anderberg, 37th, 16:45; Cierra Benavidez, 45th, 17:21; and Shanna Shelton, 48th, 17:29.

The varsity girls' team finished seventh overall despite having several members absent. April Bryley medaled for the Lady Broncos by completing the race 11th overall in a time of 13:39.

Other members of the team were Jamie Sawyer, 28th, 14:01; Cat Chamberlain, 33rd, 14:10; Geri Butler, 38th, 14:20; Carrie Helms, 42nd, 14:39; and Danielle Holden, 51st, 15:01.

"The high school girls had several individuals absent for various reasons, so our team effort was not up to par. But the individuals that were there ran well. We can see their shape getting better and better. With one more meet before District, we're feeling good about where we're at," said Coach Schmidt.

Bronco runner Junior Rodriguez placed ninth overall in 18:43 in the boys' three-mile race. Other boys' places and times were not reported.

The teams will compete this Saturday, October 16, at Lake Meredith. Junior High races begin at 8:30 am, JV at 9 am, and varsity competition begins at 9:30 am.

Cornell girls wrap up good show season

The Cornell girls, Holly and Jill, recently wrapped up a successful horse show season.
 Holly, age 11, showed her APHA gelding, Rackum Kita, to numerous blue ribbons in Showmanship, Western pleasure, Horsemanship, Trail, Hunt Seat Equitation, and Hunter Under Saddle. At her last show she was undefeated in Hunt Seat Equitation and Horsemanship, winning Reserve Overall High Point for the weekend. Holly also showed Bos Hard Copy, by Names Bocephus, in Youth Halter Geldings during the year earning eight APHA points.
 Jill, age 9, showed APHA mare Reds Melody and had a successful first year in the 11 and under age group. Jill and Melody took home their share of blue ribbons and were always in the top of their class.
 Holly will continue showing her gelding and will move up to the 13 and under age group.
 Holly and Jill are the daughters of Bill and Deanna Cornell of Clarendon.

Jill Cornell with APHA mare Reds Melody had a first year in the 11 and under age group. They took home their share of blue ribbons and were always in the top of their class.

Holly Cornell with APHA gelding, Rackum Kita, won numerous blue ribbons in several different categories and shows.

Girl Scouts to honor former girls, leaders

All past and present Girl Scouts and Girl Scout Leaders are invited to a tea honoring them on the birthday of their founder, Juliet Lowe.
 The tea will be held October 31 at 2:00 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church in Clarendon.
 Mrs. Caldwell will address those attending. They will also have a display table set up.
 The Girl Scouts have been blessed by two women who were instrumental in starting a strong Girl Scouting program here in Donley County, Mrs. T.M. Caldwell and Frances Deyhle in the 60s. From their belief in Girl Scouting came many leaders and Girl Scouts.

 Those young girls that were touched through scouting are now leaders through out Donley County. Some are on our school board, in government offices throughout the town and county, leaders in their churches, and Girl Scout leaders.
