- President Bush should use his victory to push his agenda forward.
- Academic All District students are named at Clarendon High School.
- The Owls fall in their final game of the 2004 football season.
- And the Broncos crush Claude in the season finale.

All this and much more as The Enterprise reports in this week's adventurous edition!

Services to honor local veterans

Several organizations in Donley County have slated services and programs to honor area veterans for Veterans' Day.

On Thursday, November 11, the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the US Memorial Post 7782 of Clarendon will hold memorial services at the Donley County War Memorial at 10 a.m. Although this is a private service, the public is invited and encouraged to attend.

The Adamson-Lane American Legion Post will hold their annual Veterans' Day program at 11:00 a.m. at the Rowe Cemetery in Hedley. Johnny Hoggatt will be the featured speaker for the ceremony.

Hoggatt is a 1996 graduate of Hedley High School. He joined the US Marine Corps after graduation and attended boot camp in San Diego, California. He attended the USMC Combat Engineer School at Camp LeJeune, North Carolina. He was then shipped to Okinawa, Japan, with the 3rd Marine Division Combat Assault Battalion. He has been deployed to Lithuania for Operation Baltic Castle and to Kabule, Afghanistan, during Operation Enduring Freedom to re-open the US Embassy there. He was deployed in February 2003 for Operation Iraq Freedom and the Iraq and Kuwait War.

Hoggatt was released from the US Marine Corps in January 2004 as a Staff Sergeant. He and his wife Jana and their two children live in Amarillo where he is currently employed as a security police officer at the Pantex Plant.

The Post will place flags on the 200 graves of veterans buried in Rowe Cemetery. The VFW Post will also place flags on the graves of veterans buried in Citizens Cemetery.

The students at Hedley School will hold a special program for the veterans beginning at noon. Veterans will enjoy a meal at the school cafeteria - (invited guests only, please).

Finally the day will end up at the VFW Hall in Clarendon at around 2 p.m. where all Donley County veterans will be treated to a free picnic sponsored by the VFW Post, their Ladies Auxiliary, American Legion Post 287, and the Friends of the Donley County Veterans.

Although the Veterans' meals are free, the VFW is asking for donations for the spouses, dependents, and guests.

VFW Post 7782 would also like to remind all veterans that Golden Corral in Amarillo will be giving away free meals on Monday, November 15, for all US Military veterans.

Also being held on Thursday in Amarillo, the newly completed Visitors Reflection Center will be dedicated at 11:00 a.m. at the War Memorial located at Veterans Park, next to the Randall County Annex on Georgia Street and I-27. The public is invited to the ceremony.

The center is to be available to veterans, their families, and to all visitors to come and reflect upon what they have seen at the memorial itself. It will also have a place for visitors to sign in and an exhibit area for war memorials.

The War Memorial consists of red granite monoliths, which give a brief history of all United States conflicts from the Spanish American War through Desert Storm. Afghanistan and Iraq will soon be added. Other monoliths are inscribed with the names of the 1,000 dead and missing in action from casualties from World War I through Desert Storm from the upper twenty-six counties of the See 'Veterans' on page 10.

PCS to begin annual Angel Tree Project

Panhandle Community Services is once again sponsoring their annual Angel Tree Project for Donley County residents starting November 15 through November 30.

They will be accepting applications for infants and children through fifth grade.

At the time of application, please have the child's age and their clothes and shoe size.

Then starting November 22 through December 15, interested citizens of Donley County may come in and choose their angel, or they may give a donation to help with the purchase of gifts. The gifts will need to be wrapped and back to Panhandle Community Services on or before December 17.

For more information, please call 874-2573.

Community groups plan Harvest Festival

Destination Donley County Tourism and Donley County Extension are teaming up to host a Harvest Festival on November 20 in the Clarendon Lions Club Hall located at 4th and Sully.

The event is unaffiliated with the Harvest Festival being held at Clarendon College this Sunday.

The Festival is seeking crafters in the Panhandle area to participate and help offer a variety of wares. The cost of the booth is $10 for a 10x10 booth. Some electricity is available on first come, first served basis. Vendors must supply all set up needs including tables and chairs. Booths can not sell main dish or meal items such as hotdogs, hamburgers, chili, etc.

The Festival will include an arts and crafts show from 9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. and a pumpkin food contest at 2:00 p.m.

For more information, please call Linda Gray at 874-2009 or Mary Ruth Bishop at 874-2141.

Skelton's book of local history still available

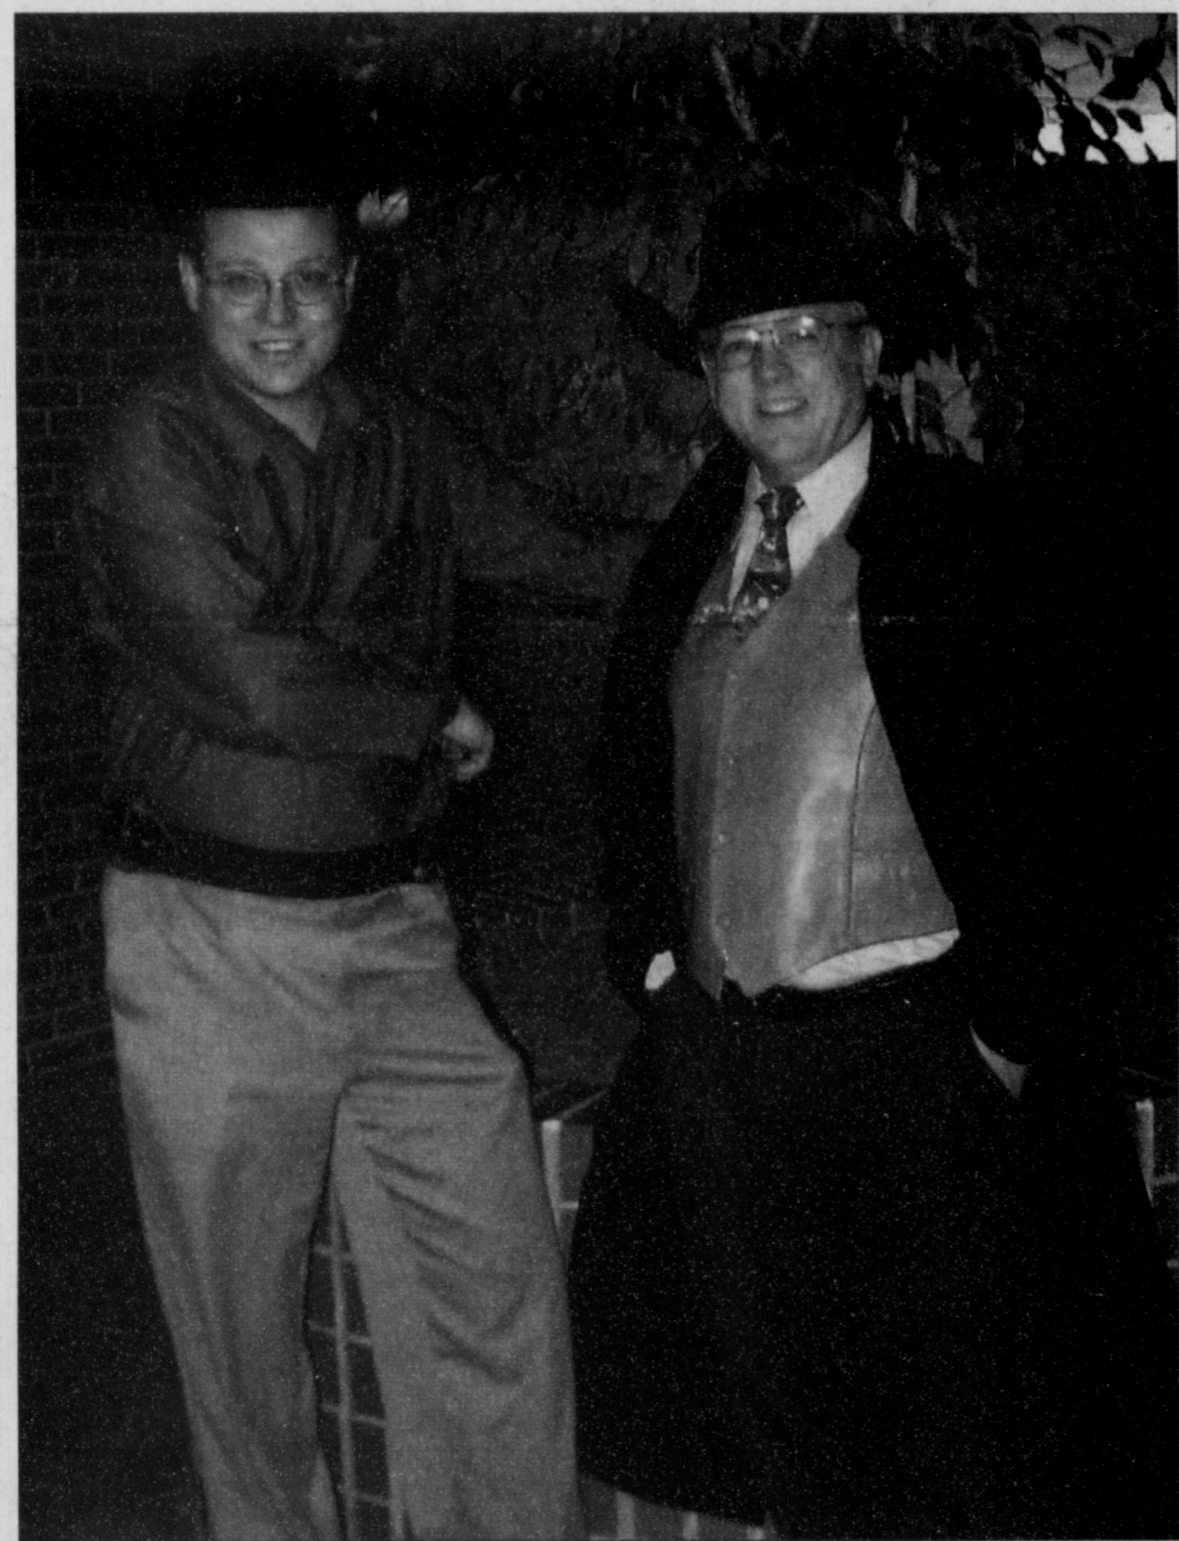

Limited copies of longtime resident Willard Skelton's book, A Little Bit of History, on the subjects of Clarendon and Donley County, are still available.

The book discusses the growth of the city and the coming of the railroad. A feature article focuses on the late James Owens and his friend, Wes Henson, and their efforts to make the Saints' Roost Museum what it is today.

A list of people who were town characters that may have otherwise been forgotten is also included. Skelton says that readers will get several good laughs and that the book makes a good Christmas gift.

The book is available at the Burton Memorial Library and the Saints' Roost Museum for $20.

Proceeds will benefit both the library and the museum.

At large

Tex Masterson and Doc Shelton (a.k.a. Tex Buckhaults and Myles Shelton) are just two members of the notorious Hole in the Hill Gang that will be taking part in a Pie Fight at the CC Corral when the Iota Phi Chapter of the Phi Theta Kappa honor society hosts its Harvest Festival at the Bairfield Activity Center this Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m.

Independent panel to review disputed county road map

The Donley County Commissioners' Court will appoint a five-person board to study a disputed road after a public hearing was held during their regular session Monday.

A protest regarding a proposed county road map was filed by attorneys representing Precinct 3 resident Terry Crofoot regarding an extension of what is currently labeled as County Road 18.

The protest says that the road, which crosses Crofoot's property, has never been maintained with public funds and that the road is a private ranch road with no dedication by the owner that it can be used for public purposes.

An affidavit attached to the protest and signed by J.B. Lane notes that in the past the property owners "have allowed Jack Craft, a neighbor, limited access to the ranch road" but further notes that no easement has been granted to Craft.

County Judge Jack Hall said the road is the only access Craft has to the property which includes his residence.

The court will appoint a five-member Jury of View to study the problem and make a final decision. The jury, which must consist of citizens with no interest in the situation, will be appointed during the court's next regular meeting on December 13, and their decision must be returned within 90 days from November 8.

County Attorney Pro Tem Kaye Messer said the jury's decision will be binding on the Commissioners' Court.

In other business, the court approved a resolution authorizing a "Helping America Vote Act" grant application to help offset the cost of new voting machines for all polling places in the county.

Judge Hall said a federal mandate is forcing Donley County to purchase the machines, which are primarily for the handicapped and could cost between $20,000 and $30,000 each. Ten such machines would be needed for the county.

"I can see having one machine that we use like early voting," Hall said. "But you have 15 or 16 voters in the north part of the county (voting box 402), and we have to do this?"

Hall said the federal mandate was a knee jerk reaction by Congress following the 2000 election, and while it may make sense for places like Houston, it's not good for small counties.

Ninety-five percent of the cost is supposed to be provided by the federal government, which hasn't happened yet, Hall said. And the remaining five percent is supposed to be funded by the state, where the Legislature hasn't budgeted those funds either, Hall said.

The machines must be in place by 2006.

Commissioners also approved a quarterly payment to the Donley Appraisal District and authorized a contract with the district to collect county taxes for 2005.

Permission was granted to the Girl Scouts to decorate the Courthouse Square for the holidays.

The county policy manual was changed to allow employees over the age of 70 to opt out of having retirement deducted from their paychecks.

And the court approved replacing the air-conditioning and heating system for the Courthouse Annex at a cost of $18,591.

Extension specialist offers tips to avoid flu without shot

COLLEGE STATION - Flu shots are in short supply this year. For those who usually protect themselves with flu shots but will be unable to this year, Texas Cooperative Extension experts offer some advice: Don't panic.

Dr. Carol Rice, Extension health specialist, and Andrew Crocker, Extension gerontology and health specialist, said these common-sense health tips could help this winter, even if flu shots are not an option:

- Wash hands as often as possible. Frequent use of soap and water can go a long way toward reducing instances of winter illnesses, Rice said.

"Most cold and flu germs are spread by direct contact," Crocker said. "If you were to sneeze into your hand and then touch a doorknob, the germs (from your sneeze, to your hand, to the doorknob) may stay on that doorknob for hours - even days." Washing hands will prevent germs from spreading from person to person this way.

- Cover sneezes and coughs. Keep tissues or a handkerchief handy to cover your nose and mouth if you have to sneeze or cough. That will keep germs from spreading into the air, where they can infect others, Crocker said. Covering your sneeze with your hand isn't very sanitary, he said, especially if you immediately touch someone or some thing.

"If you do cover a sneeze or cough with your hands, remember to wash your hands immediately." If a tissue or handkerchief isn't handy, he suggested turning away from others and coughing into the air.

- Get moving. Get regular exercise, such as walking for 30 minutes each day, Rice said. "Studies show this helps you avoid getting sick because your immune system is more effective."

- Eat a healthful diet. Be sure to choose a variety of foods, Rice advised.

"The food guide pyramid can help you make good choices."

- Keep stress to a minimum. Recent studies show individuals who have a positive attitude are less likely to catch colds than individuals whose attitude is more negative, Crocker said. Healthy and positive attitudes also promote healthy lifestyle habits, he said, which can also mean fewer illnesses.

- Sleep. Quality sleep helps the body recover from illness, Rice said. Getting enough sleep can also be an important step in preventing some illnesses in the first place, she said. The National Sleep Foundation (<http://www.sleepfoundation.org>) offered these tips:

- Keep a regular sleep schedule to help keep the body's natural rhythm in balance.

- Avoid caffeine, nicotine, and alcohol, which can all have negative effects on sleep.

- Don't go to bed on a full stomach.

- Finish exercise workouts at least three hours before bedtime.

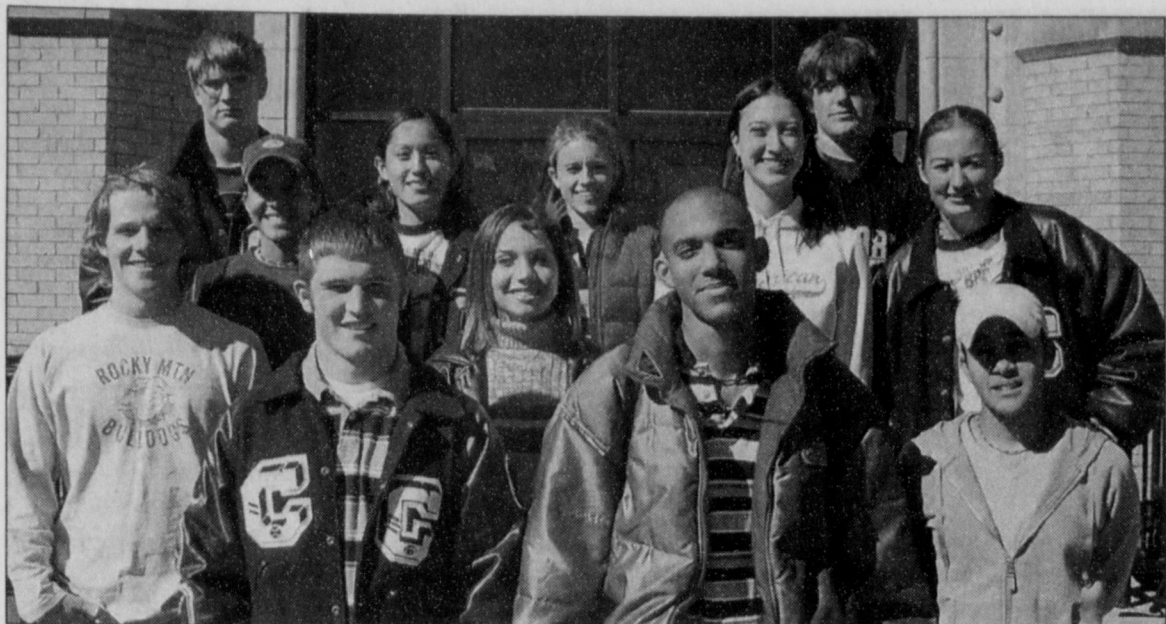

- Relax before bed. Try soaking in a warm bath, reading, or listening to soothing music.

- Sleep on a comfortable, supportive mattress and keep the room dark, quiet, cool, and comfortable.

- Daytime naps should be short and sweet - no more than 20 or 30 minutes.

If you do come down with the flu, experts from the Mayo Clinic advise getting rest, drinking fluids, avoiding alcohol and tobacco, and seeking medical advice.

Take antiviral medication if prescribed and above all, don't go to work, school, or anywhere else you might spread the disease to others.

USDA selects watersheds for '05 conservation sign-up

WASHINGTON - Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman today announced the watersheds eligible for the fiscal year 2005 Conservation Security Program (CSP) sign-up to be held this winter. Two hundred two watersheds have been selected representing nearly one-eighth or nearly 208,000 of the nation's potentially eligible farms and ranches covering more than 83 million acres in every state and the Caribbean area.

"This voluntary program supports ongoing stewardship of working agricultural lands by providing payments for maintaining and enhancing natural resources," Veneman said. "Resource conservation improves water, air, and soil quality, gives us healthier landscapes, and promotes wildlife habitat."

Authorized by the 2002 Farm Bill, the 2005 CSP will include a renewable energy component. Eligible farmers will receive compensation for converting to renewable energy fuels such as soy bio-diesel and ethanol, for recycling 100 percent of on-farm lubricants, and for implementing energy production, including wind, solar, geothermal, and methane production.

A sign-up announcement will be published along with the final rule that will detail specific program requirements in the watersheds. The program will be offered each year on a rotational basis in as many watersheds as funding allows.

The funds that will be dedicated to CSP are part of the $1.6 billion in mandatory funding that Veneman announced last week to help farmers and ranchers. USDA released these funds to help farmers and ranchers better plan their conservation efforts by knowing the initial mandatory program funding and technical assistance levels well before the next planting season begins, thus helping to connect their business decisions to protecting water, air, soil and wildlife.

Additional information on CSP, including a map of the fiscal year 2005 watersheds and eligibility requirements, is on the Web at <http://www.nrcs.usda.gov/programs/csp>.

4-H Spotlight

By Ashlyn Tubbs

This week's 4-H spotlight is on 11-year-old Annie Patten. Annie has been in 4-H for 4 years. She has participated in the following projects: clothing, food and nutrition, and arts and crafts.

Patten

Annie was voted 4-H Game Leader for this year and has done a very good job planning the games. At each meeting, Annie is in charge of planning some type of activity for the 4-H members to do after the meeting is over.

Annie says, "It is fun to plan activities and make them up so everyone has a jolly, happy time!"

Annie enjoys playing softball, basketball and competing in ULL. Annie's favorite 4-H project is clothing.

"I like it because I get to make my own clothes. It's awesome!" Annie says.

Annie has done a great job at being the 4-H Game Leader this year. The 4-H club members hope that Annie will continue to be an officer and plan games. They are proud of Annie.

Stay tuned for next week's 4-H spotlight!

The Clarendon Lions Club held their regular Tuesday noon meeting November 9, 2004, with Boss Lion Monty Hysinger in charge.

We had 16 members and one guest, Coach Wade Calloway, who presented our program.

The city has a new emergency warning siren that will be tested in the near future, and the cross country girls team finished ninth at regionals. The high school also finished with a winning football season.

Coach Calloway said his varsity Broncos basketball team played in summer league in Amarillo. They have some good height, and the team is picked to win district in one magazine. There will be another 32-team tournament over the Christmas holidays with 16 boys' teams and 16 girls' teams.

The Girl Scouts will have their Christmas program November 24 and will be back decorating at the Courthouse Square. They thanked us for the use of the Lions Club property the last few years.

We received a nice donation of cooking utensils from Lion Judy Burlin and the Saints' Roost Cottage. There being no further business, we were adjourned.

Broncos dominate Claude, finish third in District

By Sandy Anderberg

The fighting Broncos of the 2004 football season ended their ten-game schedule on a high note as they finished in third place in District 2-1A just behind Quanah and Wellington.

Their 45-20 topping of the Mustangs put them at 6-4 for the season, bettering their 2-8 record of 2003.

"We went from 2-8 to 6-4 and made great strides all year," head coach Gary Jack said. "We improved and got better as the year went on, and that's what you hope happens. We had a chance to get into the playoffs, and that's pretty special."

In gaining their sixth win of the season, the Broncos rushed and threw for over 350 yards and scored seven TD's from six different players including two linemen. Senior linemen Tyler Lewis busted through the defense to score on a two-yard run, and junior Ty White got all over a fumble in the end zone to put six on the board as well.

"It was a really neat thing to see these linemen score," Jack said. "Tyler (Lewis) continues to play extremely well on both sides of the ball. Scoring has got to be the highlight of a linemen's life."

Junior Will Betts got the Broncos on the board early in the first period on a five-yard run. He went on to grab an interception, as did receiving standout Chase Thornberry. Ben Smith caught an eight-yard pass from quarterback Quentin West for six, as did Michael Bruce when he scored on a 17-yard pass from West. And senior runner Tim Sanchez busted through the defense and scored on a four-yard and eight-yard run to help the Broncos to their win.

The defense made the big plays when they counted; and, according to Jack, the offense was able to move the ball at will.

"We controlled the game from the start," Jack said. "We substituted a lot of guys in and out, and they all did well. Our offensive line did a good job of blocking once again, and our secondary played well. Quentin (West) might have had his best passing game as he was 13-21 for 210 yards and kicked the extra points, too."

Jack was very pleased with his team's play, and made special note of the four seniors and their leadership throughout the season.

"Our hats are off to the four seniors," Jack said. "It was their last game and they all seemed to have really outstanding games. Sanchez scored twice and played well on defense. Tim Sears has been injured off and on all season but had one of the big hits and a big sack. He had a big game defensively and ended his high school career on a winning note. Jesse Gowdy played well on both sides of the ball and had a big game."

"All four teams that we lost to this season ended up in the playoffs," noted Jack. "Some of these teams were ranked during the season."

The Big Hit Awards for this week went to Tim Sears, Brad Sell, Chase Thornberry, and Jon Vaught.

The Broncos will take the experience gained this season into the 2005 season, and Jack is optimistic of their playoff chances next year.

"We ended on a winning note, and it will really pay off in the long run in off season and next year, too," Jack said. "It was a great way to go out. We hate to see it come to an end, and the guys hated it, too. That's a good sign that things are moving in the right direction and are looking good for next year. We turned the corner this season, and we are definitely heading in the right direction."

Jack was complimentary of his staff and the Bronco fans as well.

"It was a good night for the Bronco fans," Jack said. "It meant a lot to these young men for their fans to come onto the field after the game. We appreciate their support. I want to thank my coaching staff; they did a great job, and all of our hard work paid off. I would also like to thank our senior trainer, Laura Dziedzic. She did a great job. I'd also like to take the time to say congrats to the girl's cross-country team. They worked hard and competed well at the regional meet in Lubbock."

The Broncos did have a great year, and this sports writer would like to congratulate the coaches and players on their hard work. It is very apparent that the players enjoyed being out on the field this year, and it is obvious that better things are around the corner.

Thanks to Coach Jack and his staff for fighting hard and lifting the excitement level in Bronco Stadium. We hope the intensity remains high and every Bronco fan buys into the good things that are happening at CHS.

CC volleyball wraps up year

By Sandy Anderberg

The Lady Bulldogs completed their 2004 season November 5-6 with the West Sub-Regional Tournament at Frank Phillips College in Borger.

They went head-to-head with Midland College and fell short in their quest to continue post-season play. CC went four games in the best out of five with the scores of 31-33, 14-30, 30-23, and 27-30.

"We had our first winning season at Clarendon College," Coach Bo Pagliasotti said. "We finished 19-16."

Two Lady Bulldogs were selected to the All-Conference Team and to the All-Region team. Sophomores Megan Graham and Aleia Paden played well enough to be selected by the other participating coaches. Graham is from Pattonville, and Paden hails from Dallas.

Pagliasotti praised his team, who came close to knocking off Midland.

"All of the girls had good games against Midland," Pagliasotti said. "We just couldn't put together a string of points when we were down. We gave a great effort in the first game and stuck to our game plan. It was a great effort, but the majority of the points Midland got were from our little mistakes."

"The second game we jumped up to a lead and then just couldn't do anything right. Our serves were off, passes were off, and our hitting was off, and we didn't block well either."

The third game went better for the Lady Bulldogs, and they achieved the win.

"The third game we won by doing exactly the same things we did in the first game," Pagliasotti said. At one point we had them down 22-6 but let them back in the game."

The fourth game went back and forth with Midland finally coming out on top.

"Volleyball is such a game of momentum," Pagliasotti said. "Whoever has it usually wins. We took it away from Midland in the third and then let them have it back in the fourth when we needed it most. The girls played hard and left everything on the floor."

According to Pagliasotti, Midland went on to play Frank Phillips and was defeated.

"Four freshmen, Kasandra Gartner, Tennessee Brown, and Paula Harry were great at the net defensively as well as Amanda Ortega at the libero spot. All five sophomores, Megan Graham, Kristin King, Aleia Paden, Jentry Stephens, and Tara Haney, also did everything they could to keep the dream alive for at least one more match. My thanks to them for two great years of volleyball and leadership. They will be missed."

Pagliasotti and his Lady Bulldogs are thinking to next year.

"I am happy with the season and with all the girls on the team. We have come a long way over the last couple of years, and the best thing is that the girls are not satisfied, and they want to be the best. We start getting ready for next year right now."

USDA offering more assistance for some producers

Some Texas landowners are now eligible for additional cost share assistance using conservation programs contained in the 2002 Farm Bill.

The USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) has announced a statewide policy whereby designated Limited Resource Farmers and Ranchers (LRF/Rs) will have cost-share rates set at 90 percent. Funding will be from a separate statewide pool that will be allocated to each county.

LRF/Rs are defined as an individual who directly or indirectly have gross farm sales of not more than $100,000 and have a total household income at or below the national poverty level for a family of four, or has less than 50 percent of the county median household income in each of the previous two years.

In Donley County, the Program Development Group (PDG) will meet on Thursday, December 9, 2004, to discuss various natural resource concerns and set the local program agenda for fiscal year 2005. Landowners are invited to be at the local meeting. This will be your opportunity to listen and provide comments as to program direction in a particular county.

Landowners should contact the local NRCS office serving Donley County for the date and time of the PDG meeting.

Boarding school teaches ABC's of weight control

REEDLEY, Calif. (AP) — Required exercise at 7 a.m. sharp. No personal televisions or computers. A cafeteria bereft of potato chips and candy bars but full of good-for-you vegetables.

Mal Mahedy's new school has tons of rules that other teens would find intolerable. But Mal, 16, embraces the lengthy list of do's and don'ts. She hopes it will finally help her overcome the one problem she says has plagued her since she was 10—her weight.

The 5-foot-8, 285-pound teenager started her junior year this September at the Academy of the Sierras, a new yearlong therapeutic boarding school for overweight adolescents.

"This is definitely the last resort before surgery," Mal said.

The school combines a strict eating plan and a ramped-up activity schedule with counseling and college prep courses to attack students' problems from several angles. And, students say, it all happens in a supportive atmosphere, without the taunting and teasing that made life hard for them in other schools.

The academy, which has just a dozen students but expects 25 by year's end, is billing itself as the ultimate solution for teens like Mal, whose ranks have swollen in recent decades. A May report by The International Obesity Task Force estimated that 10 percent, or 155 million, of kids worldwide between 5 and 17 are too heavy. Almost 45 million of them are obese, which generally means 30 percent or more over ideal weight.

In the United States, about a third of young people are overweight or obese, and diabetes is on the rise, too. Experts say fat children face low self-esteem and are more likely to be targeted by bullies.

Private schools and summer camps are trying to offer healthier meals. The Sierras' founders say its first-of-a-kind, comprehensive program will reach beyond short-term weight loss to alter students' lifestyles.

"We're almost making them professors of successful weight loss," said Molly Carmel, the school's deputy clinical director.

A spokeswoman with the National Association of Independent Schools, an umbrella of 1,200 day and boarding schools, said she was not aware of any similar programs. Neither was the National Association of Therapeutic Schools and Programs, geared toward kids with emotional or behavioral problems.

Ryan Craig, the academy's chief, said the parent company, Aspen Education Group, has poured $5 million into renovating the 68-acre campus, a former psychiatric hospital near the Sierra Nevada. It has a staff of 25 and can handle 70 students.

Further renovation will make room for up to 150.

The school is designed for large students' special needs. Dorms have steel beds and solid chairs, toilets are attached to the walls and a digital scale can weigh up to 800 pounds.

Aimed primarily at 13- to 18-year-olds who are more than 30 pounds overweight, the school costs a hefty $5,500 a month. That can put the Sierras academy out of reach for many children who might need it most.

According to Gail Woodward-Lopez, associate director of U.C. Berkeley's Center for Weight and Health, many overweight kids are from low-income households and tend to be children of color.

Aware of the financial hurdle, Craig said the school hopes to offer scholarships in six months, and students can also apply for loans.

Mal's parents, who sent her to this town southeast of Fresno from Naples, Fla., are paying mostly out of pocket, with health insurance covering around a third of the cost.

"They just want me to lose the weight so I can have a better life," Mal said, taking a break recently from a daylong orientation held in the sweltering San Joaquin Valley heat.

The school's inaugural class has kids from across the country, ranging from 80 to 250 pounds overweight; among them is a boy who weighs about 500 pounds.

Wearing pedometers to help count their daily steps, seven students began the morning with a two-mile walk. After a short lecture, the recreation director told them it was time for another short walk to jolt them awake.

"Oh, God," groaned Terry Henry, already the class clown.

The rigorous schedule is designed to jumpstart a sedentary lifestyle that has turned kids into 3-year-olds when it comes to activity, said clinical director Daniel Kirschenbaum.

"At home, I just sit around and eat a lot," said Jamie Schleifer, 15, who had unsuccessfully tried Curves, a fitness center, and the Atkins diet to whittle her 5-foot-two, 207-pound frame.

Students' days are meticulously mapped out from 6:45 a.m. to 11 p.m., with activities in the morning and the evening. They get three meals and two snacks a day, and food options come in two categories: They can eat limited portions, up to 1,200 calories, of "controlled" foods, such as potato pancakes and smoked salmon. They can have their fill of "uncontrolled" foods as long they record them in their diaries.

The menu also favors diet soda over fruit juice — "We eat our calories, we don't drink our calories," said Craig. The diet is low on fat and high on protein.

Academics are also tied to weight loss. Electives include culinary arts and fundamentals of the body, and there's a greenhouse where students can grow vegetables, learning how food gets "from seed to table," Craig said.

There's no doubt that such a controlled program will make shedding weight inevitable, but the question looms as to what will happen when students return home, even though school officials say they plan extensive follow-up.

"Once they leave this structured environment, they are going to head back into the world that all of us live in," said Berkeley's Woodward-Lopez.

The school's first class reveled in being among like-bodied peers. During an icebreaking activity, a staff member playfully threw a succession of tennis balls to Terry Henry.

"I told you I wasn't coordinated," he said when he dropped one, using a well-worn tone intended to ward off barbs.

There weren't any barbs, and no one laughed. Another series of balls came his way, and this time, he caught them all.

Truth wizards truly are human lie detectors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The clues aren't as obvious as Pinocchio's nose, but there's a small group of individuals who can detect the subtle signs that people reveal when they lie. The vast majority of people don't notice those flickers of falsehood, but psychology professor Maureen O'Sullivan has found a few that can find the fibbers nearly every time.

Of 13,000 people tested for the ability to detect deception, "we found 31, who we call wizards, who are usually able to tell whether the person is lying, whether the lie is about an opinion, how someone is feeling or about a theft," she said.

O'Sullivan, who teaches at the University of San Francisco, discussed her findings Oct. 14 at the American Medical Association's 23rd Annual Science Reporters Conference. O'Sullivan conducts seminars for police officers and others on how to detect lying, and said observing the wizards helps researchers direct further study.

"We hope that by studying our wizards, we'll learn more about the kinds of behaviors and ways of thinking and talking that can betray a liar to an experienced interviewer," she said.

Asked if the wizards could be used in real-life situations, she said that has been suggested but there are no formal programs to use them currently. And, she cautioned that even the best of them is not 100 percent accurate.

There are two categories of clues to a lie, thinking clues and emotional ones, she explained.

"Basic emotions are hard to conceal completely," what O'Sullivan said. People may be afraid of being caught or happy that they are putting something over on another person, so some inappropriate emotion may flicker across their face.

O'Sullivan calls these microexpressions and the people best at catching liars are able to notice them.

The thinking clues occur because it's harder to lie than tell the truth, she said. To lie, people have to make something up. This can lead to hesitations in speech, slips of the tongue, lack of detail in what they are saying.

A group known as "superliars" is aware of those problems, she added, but may overcompensate by talking too fast.

"Anxiety by itself is not a sign of deception," she added, "there are other things you have to look for. Things that are inconsistent with what they're saying."

Look for shrugs: "is someone telling you something very positive and shrugs in the middle," she said. Watch body posture, hand gestures, eye flutters. So, who is good at detecting these various clues and sorting out the liars?

Men and women are about equal among the 31 wizards, she said, and they are scattered across the country.

The thing they have in common is "they are motivated and want to get it right," she said, they practice it, like athletes.

Some 20 percent to 30 percent reported some sort of childhood trauma, such as alcoholism in the family or a highly emotional mother, perhaps leading them to screen for emotional clues from childhood. A similar number didn't notice their ability until mid-life and then began working on it, she said.

All of the wizards are intelligent, but their education ranges from high school diplomas to doctorates. The elite group contains a number of attorneys and hunters, who have to be aware of clues in their environment.

O'Sullivan said FBI and CIA agents were only about average in lie-detecting ability, but a strong performing group was Secret Service agents who guard politicians and spend a lot of their time scanning crowds for nonverbal clues.

She does her research by showing subjects videotapes of people being questioned in a variety of situations.

Police officers tend to be above average in cases involving crimes but not in emotional situations, she said, while therapists were just the opposite.

HISD students pay tribute to veterans

The Hedley Public School paid a memorable tribute to local men and women who have served in the United States armed forces during services last Thursday.

Students in every grade participated in the Veterans' Day program, which began with a turkey and dressing dinner in the Hedley cafeteria with high school students waiting on the every need of the veterans and other guests.

The meal was followed by activities in the school library, beginning with the Pledge of Allegiance being led by a group of class leaders representing the first through 12th grades.

Marah Couch and Ben Shaw read essays offering tributes to American veterans. The Hedley Jr. High Choir performed a "Stars & Stripes" medley, and Andrea Musick gave an amazing performance of "God Bless the USA." Allison Hill and Sarah Bolin presented a memorable PowerPoint presentation, which featured then and now pictures of local veterans from World War II through Operation Iraqi Freedom with patriotic and uplifting music playing in the background.

The National Anthem was performed by Bryan Hill, Jon Leggett, Bruce Howard, and Mack Garrison, and Superintendent Hill gave closing remarks.

Also on Thursday, the Adamson-Lane Post of the American Legion held Veterans' Day services at the Hedley Lions Hall with former Marine staff sergeant Johnny Hoggatt delivering the keynote address.

Hoggatt graduated from Hedley High in 1996 and originally joined the service to have a good time. "I wanted a job that was fun, and fun to me was blowing stuff up," he said.

He went to work in explosive ordinance disposal and learned how to defuse bombs. In December 2001 he helped re-open the embassy in Kabul, Afghanistan, and on February 14, 2003, he arrived in Kuwait City in preparation for the liberation of Iraq. His unit faced daily attacks as American forces overthrew the regime of Saddam Hussein.

"I do believe we're doing the right thing over there," Hoggatt said. "I had a lot of interaction with Iraqis, and they told us horrific stories of how Saddam treated his people. He did need to be taken out."

Hoggatt, who now works at Local veterans pose before the ceremonies at the Hedley Public School last Thursday.

Patner, said it hits him in his heart when a soldier or Marine dies in Iraq, but he still thinks the war is just. "I'd leave my good job and go back if I had to."

Veterans' Day services in Clarendon were canceled by the local VFW Post following the untimely death of VFW District Commander Bill Holden.

Cotton crop looks good if weather cooperates

Last week, officials with the Donley County Gin in Lelia Lake were calling the 2004 cotton crop one of the best in decades; but several days of cold, wet weather could threaten that assessment.

The lack of freezing temperatures has kept the damage from being as bad as it could be, but producers now need a lot of dry weather to get the crop out of the fields. Folks at the gin say they are still optimistic about this season's prospects.

"This might be the best cotton crop in 36-plus years," gin manager Earl Shields said last week. "It looks good county-wide."

Shields said the cotton is grading good, and some has been sold for 59 cents, which he says is a good price.

"If the cotton will grade good, the farmers will get a good price," he said. "Of course, with $1.71 diesel it might not be good enough."

As of last Wednesday, 700 bales had been ginned already, and estimates were pointing to 10,000 to 12,000 bales for this season. Shields said some producers were pulling two bales per acre before the rain fell, which measured 1.5 inches through Sunday night and was still falling on Monday and Tuesday.

Farmers also have seen some changes at the former Paymaster Gin this year.

Parent company ADM got out of the ginning business and sold the facility to Shields and the Memphis Compress in August. The new owners say they want the business to become farmer-owned or a co-op gin at some future time.

"The gin is well repaired, and we're going to service the farm accounts of this area," Shields said.

Mackie Allen of the Memphis Compress said the gin appreciates the business of local farmers and hopes everything gets bigger and better in the future.

"We just need it to dry out," Allen said.

A typical Donley County cotton field looked like this one northwest of Clarendon last Thursday, and gin officials were predicting an excellent harvest. But the clouds gathering in the background brought more than 1.5 inches of rain and put the future of the crop in doubt.

Mackie Allen of Memphis Compress, producers Steve and Stone Schwertner, and gin manager Earl Shields stand beside the first bale of 2004 cotton. The Schwertners' bale was ginned for free at the Donley County Gin on October 22 and weighed 503 lbs. It brought $1 per pound from Consolidated Cotton, and Memphis Compress donated $200 for the bale.

Duckwall's loses lease, closes store

Duckwall's Variety Store closed here Monday after losing the lease on the building it had occupied for seven years.

"It is unfortunate that we have lost our lease; however, we are continuing to look at other options in Clarendon," said District Manager Karen Walker.

"We appreciate the support the community has shown and look forward to returning to Clarendon sometime in the future."

The closure of the Clarendon store has been common knowledge for several weeks, but parent company Duckwall-ALCO of Abilene, Kansas, only made the official announcement this week.

Although the sales floor was closed as of November 16, Duckwall's officials say customers can pick up their layaways and film developing pictures during normal business hours through this Friday, November 19.

Walker said store personnel will be offered positions at other Duckwall's or ALCO locations. Associates will be working in the Clarendon store for the next several weeks, packing merchandise and removing fixtures.

Mike Bowman, Vice President of the Duckwall Division, also expressed his gratitude to the many friends the store has served in Clarendon, and he wished the very best to the loyal employees who have served the company so well during this period of time.

Duckwall's operates a total of 79 stores in 10 states and has been in Clarendon since 1997. Customers are invited to shop the Duckwall's location in Florydada or ALCO stores in Tulsa and Canadian.

Lowe's supermarket, which earlier this year purchased the building previously occupied by Duckwall's, has not publicly announced what it intends to do with the space. A Lowe's official said an announcement would be made after the first of the year.

Aldermen order demolition of dilapidated house

The Board of Aldermen ordered a house in southwest Clarendon to be demolished last week after the owner failed to comply with directives to clean up the property.

During a public hearing before last Tuesday's board meeting, City Administrator Sean Pate said Fire Marshall Kelly Hill had declared the house at 820 S. Allen Street to be a fire hazard and a dangerous structure. The property owner had been given written notice to repair the structure but had failed to act.

The board voted unanimously to demolish the house.

In other city business, the board approved a lease agreement with Centramedia Online Services for space on the city's radio tower. The company plans to offer high-speed wireless Internet to local residents and businesses.

Aldermen reviewed the proposed contract with the Donley Appraisal District for property appraisals and collection of taxes.

Alderman Michael Tibbets reiterated his position that the appraisal district is an example of taxation without representation since only the school district and the county have enough weighted votes to have representation on the appraisal district board.

Alderman Bobbie Kidd said he thought the state legislature would correct that problem in the next session.

Alderman Janice Knorpy said she thought the district should do a better job of collecting back taxes. Tibbets did not feel like the contract should be approved.

"I think we should find one other entity and go together and not sign this," he said. The board tabled the contract.

Aldermen approved a resolution authorizing the submission of a regional solid waste grant application to purchase a new forklift for the recycling center.

George Howard, whose west Clarendon residence burned earlier this year, addressed the board concerning his desire to have a travel trailer enclosed by wood on his property for living purposes.

The zoning ordinance for the property prohibits trailer houses. This was not an agenda item, and no action was taken. Carl Draper addressed the board concerning alcoholic beverages being sold in the city limits at the VFW Hall. This was not an agenda item, and no action was taken.

City Administrator Sean Pate reported that the city employees are greatly appreciative of the new pickups the board approved purchasing. He said the City Superintendent reported that these are the first brand new trucks the city has purchased since 1984.

The sticker price for the trucks was $22,900 each, but the city got them for $13,000 each through a state buyboard system.
