Applications for heritage program in judge's office

The Family Land Heritage Program applications are now available at Judge Jack Hall's office in the Courthouse Annex.

Susan Combs, Commissioner of the Texas Department of Agriculture, explains this program is designed to honor those farm and ranches which have been in continuous agricultural production at the hands of one family for 100 years or more. Mere ownership of the land for the timeperiod will not qualify owners for the program. The Texas Department of Agriculture is seeking to honor those farms and ranches whose history of agricultural productivity in the same family has been continuous and uninterrupted for a century or more. The families will be given a certificate in the name of the land holder and listed in the Family Land Heritage Program.

New penalties await hunters, warden says

Stiffer penalties await sportsmen who violate hunting laws this year.

That's the word from Game Warden Gary Hunt who says hunters need to be aware of changes that have been made in the laws as dove season opens this month.

The following are now Class A misdemeanors, punishable by a fine of $500 - $4,000 and/or jail time up to one year for a first offense: 1) Hunting or fishing without the landowner's consent, 2) Hunting from a motor vehicle on a public road, 3) Hunting game animals, such as deer, turkey, dove, and quail, at night, and 4) Failure to retrieve game and keep it in an edible condition.

If the violation involves a white tail deer, mule deer, or pronged horn antelope, the penalties are even tougher, and the case will be treated as a state jail felony.

"In these cases the person can be punished with a fine of $1,500 to $10,000 and/or a jail sentence of between 180 days and two years," Hunt said. "Repeat offenders will be charged with a third degree felony, which carries a fine of $1,500 to $10,000 and/or a jail term of two to ten years."

Hunt says violators also face a one to five year lose of their hunting license, and any personal property used in committing the crime (excluding motor vehicles) can be confiscated by the warden.

If you have any questions about the new rules or you believe someone is hunting on your property without permission, contact Warden Gary Hunt at 874-2631. If there is no answer, then call the Donley County Sheriff's Office, and they can contact Hunt by radio for you.

Young citizens should watch out for rights

My perennial favorite presidential candidate is Alan Keyes, a former ambassador turned talk show host who is making his second bid for the Republican presidential nomination. Keyes has an oratory skill capable of speaking directly to the heart and soul of an American in a way that no one has done since Ronald Reagan was

Keyes made the papers recently when he won a straw poll in Alabama. But there is no way that he will

In the first place, the Alabama poll has no more real significance than did that whole hoopla in Iowa a couple of weeks ago. Secondly, Keyes gets virtually zero coverage in the media. The story in the Amarillo newspaper covering his first place win was accompanied not by a picture of Keyes but by a picture of second place winner Orrin Hatch. Oh, well: That's politics. Let's by us. take a look at the front runner

The nominee apparent of the Republican Party is Gov. George W. Bush. In general terms, I like the governor. He's done a good job for Texas, and he seemed like a nice guy when I met him in Lubbock. But something Gov. Bush said last week disturbs me greatly.

Speaking on the campaign trail, Bush said he supports raising the legal age for handgun possession from 18 to 21.

Why is it that America thinks its 18-year-olds are mature enough to vote but they are not mature enough to own a handgun or consume alcohol for that matter? The greatest freedom citizens of this country have is suffrage. With it comes the responsibility for choosing leaders at the local, state, and national level as well as indirectly selecting the leader of the free world every four years. If an 18-year-old can handle that responsibility, surely they are able to handle a can of Schlitz and certainly they ought to enjoy the freedoms of the Second

Now some will say that some young adults are more mature than others and can make those decisions, but by and large they aren't ready to deal with the responsibilities of handgun ownership. But there are immature adults of all ages. Some can't handle booze. Some use firearms improperly. Some abuse their freedom of speech. And some are so just plain stupid they should never be allowed near a voting booth.

America, however, does not resolve the problems associated with these people by denying freedom to the citizenry as a whole.

But when it comes to young Americans, there is a double standard. The people who vote in the 18- to 20year-old range are by no means a majority of Americans, and no politician has to worry about offending them. After all, it's not like those kids constitute the powerful AARP voting block. It is therefore easy to abridge their rights as citizens so that our politicians look as though they are "doing something."

"Doing something" should not include stripping a whole group of people of their rights just because a minority of that group is considered a societal ill.

The Republican Party ought to be a defender of individual rights and should not seek to erode personal liberties as the Democratic Party does.

The young voters of this country should be on guard when it comes to the protection of their rights. And no American should permit the government to limit the freedoms of a segment of our population based on age

Another weird e-mail

It's amazing how fast things happen in the Information Age. Regular readers will remember that last week's editorial covered the topic of strange e-mails and Internet rumors. No sooner had last week's ENTERPRISE rolled off the press than we had the e-mail to end all e-

The message we received was from someone calling himself "Richard Moss" on the CompuServe network. What he wrote makes one wonder about the sanity of some people on the Internet.

Apparently, the Earth is being overrun by extraterrestrials (ETs), and every organization from the government to the National Education Association is involved in covering up this invasion. These aliens are attracted to violence, and that supposedly explains why our society has become so destructive and immoral. It also explains the increase of UFO sightings since the end of World War II (which, as you may recall, was very violent).

The aliens are stealing infants from women's wombs and performing all sorts of weird experiments on captured humans. Captured infants are raised and altered so that they are supposedly the "little green men" that we have all heard about. True aliens, the sender says,

To top it all off, the aliens are some how connected with Hinduism and a guru in India. The only way to stop them is with through democracy.

Honestly, I don't know where people come up with this stuff. As long as I sit in the editor's chair, I suspect that I will never again see an article that ties together UFOs, aliens, the NEA, WWII, democracy, and Hindu-

Babies' power can touch people's lives

A year has passed since the birth of our first child, Katherine Ann. Our initial meeting was brief, but it scared me beyond words. I realized that I was responsible for this tiny person, who was staring at me with wide eyes.

We made it home from the hospital in one piece but a bundle of nerves. If anyone other than family touched Kate, I just knew they would drop her or give her cooties. It's a good thing I've lightened up and learned since that hot, August day.

Babies aren't as fragile as they seem. Our third week home made me realize this. After a middle of the night feeding, Kate fell asleep in my arms. We were sitting on the couch, and I must've dozed off. The next moment I remember, there was no baby in my arms. Instead, she was lying on top a stack of folded towels in the floor. Good thing I didn't have the energy to put away the laundry the day before!

Panic-stricken, I called my doctor, and he reassured me that babies are very pliable and that she was probably all right. At least that's what I think he said. I was crying so hard it's a wonder I heard anything.

Each week has brought new discoveries and changes. It has been so much fun watching her find her toes, learn to smile, crawl, and now walk. This year has sped

I'm constantly amazed by the power of babies. When Kate was five months old, we were entering a store when she started "talking" to this man. He was shabbily dressed and looked unkempt. Wanting to get away. I quickly pushed the cart down the aisle, and Kate began staring at this man and talking even louder. The closer he got to us, the more Kate smiled. The man began talking to Kate while she was motioning for him to pick her up. With a dirty, calloused hand, the man stroked Kate's cheek, and she laughed even louder. Those two were in a world of their own, oblivious to the happenings of the store. After a moment or two, the man turned to me with tears in his eyes and said, "Thank you for sharing your daugh-

That incident opened my eyes and my heart. Kate has helped me remember that the simple things are often the most important. Her innocent eyes saw past this man's unsightly appearance and concentrated on his inner person. Too often I determine one's value by their outward image instead of by their inner spirit. But now I take the time to know the "true

Kate. She loves to play outside, blow kisses, and ride horses with her Dad Whitten. She is also an accomplished spider catcher and, unfortunately, spider eater. Luckily, the spiders she catches among my flowers and tomatoes haven't

With her, I know that I'll be "paying for my raising," or so that's what my parents claim. Kate can be a little hellion, too. Her temper tantrums are horrible, and she has already tried to run off with the dogs into the pasture. She is a little Houdini, as well. On Sundays, Kate starts out in our pew, and by the second song she has crawled under the other pews undetected and is standing in the center aisle, clapping her hands and swaying to the music. She's the reason churches have nurseries! Our church doesn't have one, at least not yet.

This past year has been a roller coaster of emotions - fretting over her first cold, crying with her when she took a nosedive into the dining room table, and laughing as she chased soap bubble across the lawn. It's hard to believe that a year has already passed, and she's no longer a helpless infant but an adventurous toddler. I look forward to more milestones and escapades with our little heroine.

Happy Birthday, Kate. Mommy loves

OLD MOTHER CLINTON

Income tax cut small step in right direction

In recent years, efforts to provide tax relief have often meant targeted tax credits, where you may be rewarded if you do what the government wants you to do.

Many of these provisions come from good-intentions. For instance, the $500 per child tax credit passed by Congress two years ago has made a real difference in the lives of working parents struggling

Likewise, the tax relief bill approved by Congress earlier this month includes its share of tax credits, as well.

Again, most of these credits are well intentioned, like expanding the adoption tax credit to $10,000 for individuals who adopt children with special needs. Similarly, extending the research and experimentation tax credit for 10 years will help continue the high-tech expansion that's fueling our national economy.

But in the long run, I believe the best approach to cutting taxes is to let people keep more of what they earn, regardless of who they are, and regardless of what the government may want them to do. I believe people know better than government how to spend their tax dollars. Rather than basing our tax policy on a series of tax credits that provide relief to pockets of individuals, we should cut taxes on everyone. The good news is that the tax relief bill passed earlier in the month took us a step in that direction. In addition to providing a number of tax credits, it also cuts income tax rates by 1 percentage point. For example, if your income is currently being taxed at a rate of 15 percent, by the year 2003, you'll be taxed at a rate of 14 percent.

Needless to say, this is a small step at best. But it is a step toward letting people keep more of what they earn and, just as importantly, a step toward giving people not government - more say over how their tax dollars are being spent.

Internet sites can add to movie experience

By Eric Spellmann

When I was growing up, my parents would sometimes take my sister and me to the movies. It was always a special treat. We would first go out to eat, play a few video games (Space Invaders & Centipede), and then head to the cinema. Sis and I would always sit on the front row (three inches from the screen) and crane our necks to watch the flick. It didn't matter what was showing. The "experience" was everything.

The Internet has now made the "experience" better. You can find any piece of information on your favorite stars or their movies, play online trivia contests, view your local showtimes, and even view complete movies. Read on.

Let's start with a fact-finder resource. In fact, this site is my favorite online movie information source: The Internet Movie Database (http://us.imdb.com). One of the oldest sites on the Net, the IMDB has more information than you can imagine. For example, you'll notice in the left-hand column, at the top, a blank. Here, you can search for an actor or movie. Type in your favorite actor/ actress, choose the "Name" button below and click on "Go." As an example, type in John Wayne. Because of the comprehensiveness of the site, you will be presented with "four John Waynes" to choose from.

How many films do you think John r.e. Wayne was involved in? I leave that for you to discover. Each movie is listed as well as the part John played. What makes this site so incredible, though, is that each movie is also a hyperlink. In other words, you can click on the movie title and learn all about it. Each movie gives a synopsis, user ratings, and lists the credits. You might be amazed to learn that all the actors, actresses, directors, camera men, and even key grips (whatever they do) are Once you've learned all of the movie trivia, you might want to test your mettle at Cinema Bytes (http://www.cinemabytes.com). From the first page, you are asked a series of movie trivia questions. You continue to play until you miss three of them. High scores are listed in the Hallof-Fame and may result in prizes.

Cinema Bytes also has a link to Triva Bytes (http://www.triviabytes.com), a similar site that allows you to listen to certain sound bytes and then try to pick the originating movie. Very fun but difficult to play due to high-traffic.

Perhaps my most frequented movie stop on this virtual tour is Yahoo's Movie Page (http://movies.yahoo.com). I usually check this page every week or so, mainly to catch up on new movies coming out. You can easily see the top ten grossing films of the week and video releases. But, my favorite part about this site is that little blank at the top. Type your Zip Code and hit the <ENTER> key. You'll see a list of your local movie theatres along with movie times. Parenthesis denote bargain matinees. Clicking on the movie title will give you a brief description, rating, and reviews of the film.

So now you know how to learn more about movies and find their schedules, but what about actually watching them over the Internet? Believe it or not, you can watch full length movies over your Internet connection. To do this, you will need a plug-in, most likely the Real Player (http://real.com).

My two favorite "theaters" on the Net are Westerns.com (http://westerns.com) and Broadcast.com (http://broadcast.com). At Westerns.com you can actually watch over 67 full-length films from the 40's. 50's, and 60's. The resulting "TV" is small and the action is a little grainy. But the overall result is quite acceptable.

Broadcast.com has more of a selection. Everything from documentaries to children's cartoons are available for viewing. Of course, the faster your Internet connection, the better the resulting quality will be. They require a one-time signup for new users, but it is free and quick. Once signed in, you can choose from thousands of full-length movies.

Personally, even if they are able to make the quality perfect, I still will visit the local movie theaters. There's just something about dimming lights and the smell of popcorn you can't recreate on a computer screen.

See you in Cyberspace!

More readers sound off on evolution column

Dear Editor. I am not in the habit of writing newspaper articles or allowing myself to engage in debates; however, I do want to respond to the editor's article (8/19/99). First, my hat is off to Dear Editor, Truman Ledbetter. I am thankful that the Kansas Board of Education stood up and said enough monkey business! To say if one does not embrace evolution their education will be inadequate gives us a look into the mind of the one doing the talking. A person who says the Bible is outdated and needs to adapt to the times doesn't know what the Bible says. The Bible is hot off the press for those who are interested in what it says. I would like to remind the Mayor and Alderman that as elected officials, their first and only responsibility is to the people. Our federal and state governments were established "of the people, by the people, and for the people." So I'd like to pass on a friendly reminder to the elected officials of the City of Howardwick. Once you are office, you are not automatically transformed into the Czar and High Tribunal. Take a look around and see what the people want, and do so in the spirit of our Lord, as a helper, a teacher, a servant to the people, not with a "force my will on you" attitude.

Lewis urges support of MDA telethon

Dear Editor:

a safe manner?

As Labor Day approaches, I'd like to remind the people of Clarendon that the holiday weekend will be much more than a final vacation opportunity before the summer draws to a close. It will be the weekend when some 75 million Americans will tune in to support the Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon.

Tens of thousands more will participate in special Labor Day weekend events in Amarillo and around the country - all to help "my kids." I encourage readers of THE CLARENDON ENTERPRISE to participate in local MDA events orchestrated by dedicated volunteers, and to watch the Telethon on KFDA-TV, Channel 10.

With your support, MDA can continue to provide unparalleled help for kids with neuromuscular diseases. MDA will also be able to accelerate its research seeking treatments and cures for 40 neuromuscular disorders, including the world's first human gene therapy trials for a muscle-wasting disease.

Thank you so much for the letter you sent acknowledging my recent contribution to your campaign next year. It is nice to know that my support is appreciated.

America needs strong leadership in this day and age. I believe that with you in the Congress and George W. You have always done a good job for us, and you are a great representative of the people of this district.

Broncos to host Claude Friday

By Dean Stanzione

The Clarendon Broncos hosted the Wheeler Mustangs in their final scrimmage before the 1999 season begins. The Bronco coaching staff was really pleased with how well the guys performed.

Athletic Director and Head Football coach, Mark Howard, stated, "The guys accomplished the two goals we had hoped they would - come out aggressive and have no injuries. The guys left the scrimmage without injuries, but with some bruises. The guys came out really aggressive. They did a great job."

When asked about the offense. Howard commented, "The offense did a good job. Colt Floyd threw the ball well. I wasn't expecting us to throw the ball as much as we did. Throwing the ball did help us move the ball down the field when we needed it."

really impressed.

"The guys did an excellent job on defense. They came out really aggressive and did a great job tackling. I felt Wheeler thought they were going to come in and do what they wanted. but the guys really surprised them with their intensity and aggressiveness."

The Broncos will face another Mustang team in Claude this Friday night at 7:30 p.m. Please note a schedule change with the Junior Varsity team. The Bronco JV was scheduled to play Claude in Claude this Thursday, but due to the fact that Claude will not have a JV team, the Broncos will play White Deer in White Deer at 5:00 p.m.

With the upcoming game against Claude, Coach Howard is really looking for the guys to be mentally prepared.

Haywood earns 'Perfect' tort reform voting record

WICHITA FALLS - A bi-partisan statewide group of civil justice reformers, Texans for Lawsuit Reform (TLR), recently praised State Senator Tom Haywood (R-Wichita Falls) for earning a "perfect" tort reform voting record during the 76th Session of the Texas Legislature. The group singled out Haywood for special recognition.

'Sen. Haywood is what we call a 'one hundred percenter.' Every time an important civil justice reform issue came up on the floor of the Texas Senate, he stood up for the conscientious citizens of Senate District 30 and voted to eliminate abuses in our legal system," said Dick Weekley, TLR President.

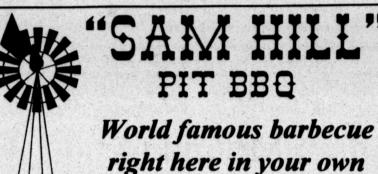

"Sen. Haywood faithfully responded to overwhelming public opinion that supports fair and balanced reforms that reduce lawsuit abuse while protecting consumer rights," said Weekley. "We are proud to recognize the contribution of Sen. Haywood in repairing the Texas civil justice system which has so long been the object of ridicule around the world."

Texans For Lawsuit Reform is statewide bipartisan coalition comprised of thousands of citizen volunteers. The organization has approximately 5,000 members in over 180 Texas cities, including Wichita Falls. TLR's broad-based membership consists of members from over 300 diverse occupations and businesses, ranging from accountants to zinc recyclers.

Local TLR Board member and Wichita Falls physician Dr. Samuel Waters also commented on Sen. Haywood's outstanding voting record and his legislative accomplishments.

"We are grateful for Tom's fine work on behalf of the residents of District 30," Waters said.

Hospital board making plans to remodel facility

The Donley County Hospital Board met on August 24, 1999, in the Dining Room of the Medical Center Nursing Home.

Hospital Administrator Alan Graham reported that the engineer and architect had been in the Medical Center for a room-toroom review of the facility.

A full set of plans is due the week of September 6, and the project will then be ready to advertise for bids.

Board Chairman J.D. Shanks inquired about the feasibility study with Baptist-St. Anthony's and Dr. John Howard regarding the relocation of the rural health clinic. BSA has advised Dr. Howard that they are withdrawing from the Rural Health Clinic operation effective December 31, 1999. Graham and Howard will be discussing alternative plans to be presented to the board at a later date.

Graham also reported that he has contacted the Amarillo Area Foundation for an application of grant monies that could be available for possible construction of a facility to house the Associated Ambulance Authority, the Texas Dept. of Health, Baptist Community Rehabilitation Services, and the Donley County Rural Health Clinic.

Application is also being made to the Bivins Foundation for grant monies that could aid in the remodeling of the Medical Center Nursing Home.

The board voted to draft letters of support for these grants.

Graham also expressed a desire to draft a mission statement with wording which will be drawn from the enabling legislation. This statement will reflect the hospital district's intent to provide medical services to the residents of Donley County. The board approved a motion to draft the mission statement.

The board voted to donate $300 to the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department for their dive team. The money will come from the tobacco settlement fund.

The board also voted to maintain the current tax rate at 0.18022 per $100 value.
