Funds still needed for VFD Dive Team

Funds are still needed to support the Dive Team being set up by the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department.

According to team member Kelly Hill, less than $500 has been received thus far in support of the team. More than $1,000 is still needed to be able to purchase equipment.

The dive team trained at Greenbelt Lake last Friday with a group from Panhandle Search and Rescue. Team members were in the water for about 1½ hours, working with rescue dogs.

It is hoped that a local dive team would be able to save lives and save taxpayer dollars on recovery missions. Currently, the only response to a drowning at Greenbelt Lake is through divers from Amarillo.

Anyone wishing to contribute to Clarendon VFD Dive Team is urged to contact Delbert or Patrick Robertson at 874-3515 or Kelly Hill at 874-3175.

Water crossing to be dedicated at Howardwick

A dedication of the new bridge on Carroll Creek will be held in Howardwick on September 1, 1999, at 10 a.m.

Other state elected officials have been invited but had not responded at press time.

Citizens of Howardwick and all of Donley County are invited to attend.

CHS earns highest ranking

Clarendon Junior High, Elementary and Hedley Schools receive high marks

Clarendon High School was among a record number of schools across Texas to receive the state's highest "Exemplary" rating last week, according to Commissioner of Education Mike Moses.

Clarendon Junior High, Clarendon Elementary, and the Hedley school system each earned the state's second highest rating or "Recognized" status.

Students and faculty of CHS celebrated this week by having a huge, school-wide photograph taken in Bronco Stadium.

"We've been working hard on [the rating] for a long time," said CHS Principal Larry Jeffers. "I want to brag on the faculty and the students. We had an outstanding class last year."

Jeffers said the credit for the Exemplary rating doesn't belong solely to the high school, noting the students' success begins at the lower grades.

"We have a good feeder program from the junior high and the elementary," Jeffers said.

Clarendon's junior high campus was just barely out of reach of the highest rating this year, according to Principal Marvin Elam.

"We were one student, one question away from being Exemplary," Elam said "We were above 90 percent in all areas."

"The staff here did a really good job, and I'm proud of all of them."

Clarendon Elementary also received a Recognized rating.

"I'm proud of the kids and the teachers," said Elementary Principal Mike Word. "They worked really hard to get those scores."

Word also credited the CISD Board of Trustees with the school's scores.

"The board has made a deep commitment to academic scores through participation in the Reading Renaissance / Accelerated Reader Program," Word said.

Accountability ratings are based on drop-out rates, attendance rates, and passing rates on the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills (TAAS), an examination given to students in grades 3-8 and 10, which measures writing, reading, and math skills.

Scores at CHS were 100 percent in both reading and writing and 98 percent in math. CJH scored 96.9 percent in math, 100 percent in writing, and 91.8 percent in reading. Clarendon Elementary scored 98 percent in math, 94.4 percent in writing, and 89.7 percent in reading.

District-wide, CISD was 97.5 percent in math, 98.3 percent in writing, and 92.5 percent in reading.

"I think the scores are something the whole community can be proud of," said CISD Superintendent Monty Hysinger. "We're still not satisfied, though. We want the district to be Exemplary."

The Hedley school system is considered to be one campus because of its size and therefore receives only one rating. This year Hedley received a recognized rating with scores of 88.6 percent in math, 87.6 in writing, and 86.1 percent in reading. The school hopes to raise that next year.

"We're trying to map out and set some goals to shoot for that Exemplary rating," said Superintendent Bryan Hill.

"The kids are learning a whole lot more than I learned at their age," Hill said, "so we must be getting better."

Hedley had a 98 percent attendance rate, but the drop out rate hurt the school this year. Hill said two students left Hedley and moved to New Mexico, but the HISD never received a request for their paper work. As a result, the students ended up on the drop out list even though they aren't really drop outs, Hill said.

Across the state, the schools and districts earned this high mark even though the ratings criteria became tougher and an additional 192,284 number of students were included in the accountability system.

"Texas students and educators lived up to the high expectations we set for them. We are very proud of their remarkably strong showing," Commissioner Moses said.

Individual schools can earn ratings of exemplary, recognized, acceptable, low performing or unacceptable. Districts can earn ratings of exemplary, recognized, academically acceptable, academically unacceptable, unacceptable, or special accreditation investigation.

Literate consumers can save thousands

Submitted by Sue Church, County FCS Agent

"Consumers who shop knowledgeably could easily save an average of more than $1,000 per household," according to Stephen Brobeck, chairman of the Consumer Literacy Consortium and executive director of the Consumer Federation of America.

Multiplying by the number of households across the state and nation, the impact is mega-sized.

In the fall of 1998, the Consumer Literacy Consortium released the results of a consumer literacy quiz administered nationwide by land-grant university educators in 31 states. Although the average score was 75 percent, consumers were the least knowledgeable about how they could save money on several key purchases.

Nearly three out of five (57 percent) of the respondents in the survey incorrectly believed that new car buyers have three days to change their mind about the purchase. In fact, there is no legal right of rescission on car purchases.

More than half (52 percent) thought that all real estate brokers working for homebuyers are legally obligated to represent their interests. In reality, many brokers, unless they are buyer agents, are subagents of the sellers, facilitators representing no one, or dual agents with divided loyalties.

Almost half (44 percent) incorrectly believed it is always wise to buy rental car insurance. In fact, this typically expensive coverage is often redundant.

A significant majority (56 percent) was unaware that local memorial societies are nonprofit associations that can arrange relatively inexpensive funerals.

Nearly one-third (32 percent) still believed that all savings and investment products sold by banks are federally insured. In fact, stocks, mutual funds, and cash value insurance policies sold by banks are not government insured.

CC seeking architect for ball field

Clarendon College is searching for an architect for the construction of a proposed baseball field, according to school officials.

The Board of Regents gave CC President Myles Shelton the go ahead to seek out an architect during their regular meeting last Thursday.

The college hopes to hire someone who has previous experience building baseball diamonds, Shelton said. "We want someone who can advise us on the best way to do this," he said.

The proposed site for the new field is west of the college's maintenance building. The facility would be cut back into the hill at that location.

Shelton said that Grayson College built their field back into a hill and that Clarendon College has an opportunity to use the hill to its advantage.

The CC Regents approved development of a collegiate baseball program last summer. Construction work on the proposed field will not begin until after the first of next year.

USDA crop report friendly news for cotton producers

LUBBOCK - Texas cotton producers received some "market friendly" news in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's recent Crop Report. The good news of a smaller-than-expected U.S. crop was tempered by large carryover stocks, said a Texas A&M University cotton marketing economist.

"USDA's first 1999 field survey of crop production pegged the cotton crop at an estimated 18.3 million bales (all types of cotton). That's 400,000 bales less than last month's estimate," said Dr. Carl Anderson of College Station, Texas Agricultural Extension Service cotton marketing economist. "Even so, the latest production estimate is 4.4 million bales larger than last year's 13.9-million bale crop. More importantly, private sector production estimates were running as high as 19 million bales before the Aug. 12 report."

USDA projected a 1999 average yield of 649 pounds, slightly higher than last year's below-average yield of 625 pounds but lower than 1997's 673-pound average yield.

Estimated domestic use dropped slightly to 10.5 million bales because of weak consumption. This is in line with 1998 usage but well below the 11.35 million bale mill use seen in 1997, Anderson said.

"USDA also reduced carryover stocks 300,000 bales to 5.7 million bales, but stocks are still too large to sustain a market rally," the economist said. "However, reduced stocks should help hold December futures above 50 cents per pound even though farm prices are likely to remain well below the loan rate.

"If a smaller U.S. crop and a 500,000-bale projected decline in China's crop causes the A Index to rise from around 51 cents, the adjusted world price (AWP) will rise and the loan deficiency payment (LDP) will shrink. Thus, the farm price plus the LDP - or equity payment - will preferably remain around 58 to 60 cents per pound."

The latest world cotton estimates point to lower production and carryover stocks than in July. Estimated world production of 87.9 million bales is 1.3 million bales below July's estimate, due to lower expectations for the Chinese, U.S., Uzbekistan and Argentine crops. At the same time, world carryover stocks remain very large at 42.3 million bales - only 1.1 million bales less than last month's tally.

"Carryover stocks totaled 35.7 million bales in 1995, when the A Index averaged 85.6 cents per pound. And USDA still expects this year's crop to exceed consumption by about 1 million bales," Anderson said. "Texas upland cotton producers are expected to bring in 5.3 million bales See 'Cotton' on page three.

CHS is tops

Cheerleaders have been telling us for years, and the State of Texas made it official last week - CHS is number one!

The students at Clarendon High School earned the state's highest ranking for their campus through their scores on the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills (TAAS) exam. One hundred percent of CHS kids passed the reading and writing portions of the test, and ninety-eight percent passed the math section.

That is an outstanding performance and worthy of the state "exemplary" rating. We can all be proud of the students and faculty at CHS and of the parents of those students.

Clarendon Junior High and Clarendon Elementary also performed well, earning "recognized" rankings from the state. Both of those campuses were very close to getting the highest rating.

The Hedley school system was also on the "recognized" list and is making plans to go for the top ranking the next time around.

We are very fortunate to have such good schools in Donley County, and we can rest assured that the boards of trustees at both CISD and HISD are providing local children with the best possible education.

Don't believe every e-mail

Recently some folks connected to the Internet received a worrisome message in their e-mail boxes.

The message outlines an "alarming" plan afoot within the federal government. Legislation, the message says, is being pushed through which would allow the US Postal Service to bilk e-mail users out of "alternative postal fees."

Supposedly the government will charge 5¢ per e-mail delivered by billing Internet Service Providers (ISPs). Internet users would then be charged a fee by their ISPs.

The evil mastermind behind this scheme is Congressman Tony Schnell, a Republican who has introduced Bill 602P. Schnell also supposedly has suggested a "twenty to forty dollar per month surcharge on all Internet service."

I see a lot of junk e-mail come through my office. Some of it is legitimate, but most of it is get-rich-quick schemes, dental insurance plans, and great vacation opportunities.

When this particular e-mail was brought to my attention by a local merchant, red flags started going up. There were too many odd things about the e-mail for it to be true I thought. But on the off chance that it was legitimate, I decided to look into it and called the Washington office of our own Rep. Mac Thornberry.

Communications Director Louis Zickar said I wasn't the first person to call. That was two weeks ago. During a visit to THE ENTERPRISE this week, Lou said Thornberry has received nearly 100 letters about the e-mail postal charge.

For the record, there is no such legislation in Congress to charge 5¢ per e-mail. Also, the only letters associated with bills in congress are used to designate which house the bill originated in. In other words, the bill - if it existed - would have to be named HR 602 or SR 602, but it would never be Bill 602P.

There's one other problem with e-mail message in question. The congressman behind this dastardly plan isn't a Republican. He's not a Democrat either. In fact, Tony Schnell isn't a member of Congress at all.

This is just one example of a hoax that has been floated about on the Internet. I remember about two years ago there was a story being spread via e-mail about people who were being attacked in their homes. They were pummeled unconscious only to wake up in the bathtub to find that one of their kidneys had been removed! The e-mail said that people were harvesting these organs to sell on the black market to people desperately needing transplants.

Any time you receive an e-mail with some alarming story, study it carefully before you believe it. Most of all, don't forward it to all of your friends and relatives on the Internet until you know it to be true. If the story in question is valid, chances are it will be covered by reliable news organizations.

What ever happened to common decency?

I just got home from the big Ranch Rodeo in Wichita Falls. As always, it was wonderful and hot.

So hot in fact that one young lady felt the need to air out. I would have never believe this happened if I hadn't seen it with my own two eyes. And it was a site I wished I hadn't seen.

A young woman decided to drop her pants and moon men, women, and children who thought they were attending a family event. Even worse, she returned a second time to show off her derriere. Two security guards/police officers standing nearby decided to take-in the performance instead of apprehending the rodeo exhibitionist.

I was stunned by the spectacle. What possessed this girl to show her naked self to hundreds, if not thousands, of bystanders? Why did the law watch this vulgar act instead of stopping it?

Has this country fallen so deep into the gutter that we can no longer see the curb?

Years ago, an incident like this would have shocked people. Plus, an arrest on the Mark with Christi Ross

would've been probably made. Instead, those who witnessed the event, pointed, and just turned away. Have we become so coarse that vulgar acts are now socially acceptable?

Just last night, a news story explained the most popular college class this semester in New York City. The class was entitled, "How to Break Into the Adult Entertainment Business." This class, if you can call it that, was full with 70 students and had a waiting list to boot. The teacher was a former porn star whose goal was to inform the class on how to become producers and actors.

How can this be called education or even a credit-earning class? Are school administrators so money hungry they would allow this smut to be added to their course schedules?

We are becoming a nation overflowing with filth. Nudity and offensive language dominate some cable stations, and the big networks aren't much better.

Radio morning shows are saturated with sexual innuendos. Billboards these days can cause you to close your eyes and gasp and then make you miss your exit.

I'm tired of being shocked and embarrassed. Not to mention, trying to cover little eyes and ears.

Now, I'm going to do something. I was shopping with my mother in the mall, when we witnessed two teens groping one another in the foyer. They were doing more than kissing, I'll say that.

I walked over to the two headed, one-body couple and explained that their behavior was not appropriate for public facilities. Plus, it didn't hurt when I said I had seen one of their moms shopping in JCPenny's. Of course, that was a little fib, but it worked.

Call me an old biddy, I don't care. I'm willing to stand up for decency. How about you?

Repealing penalty restores common sense

Over the past two weeks, I've talked about how our nation's tax policy too often stands in the way of things we otherwise would want to encourage.

The capital gains tax discourages savings and investment, while the inheritance tax penalizes those who want to pass a better life on to their kids. Believe it or not, the federal government's tax policy also penalizes working Americans when they decide to get married.

Under the so-called marriage tax penalty, a married couple where the man and the woman both work will often find themselves paying more in taxes because their joint incomes force them into a higher tax bracket. Nearly 42 million married Americans were forced into a higher bracket in 1996, resulting in an average marriage tax penalty of $1,400 per couple.

Congress took a step to reduce this penalty in the tax relief bill it approved earlier this month.

Under the plan, the standard deduction for joint returns will be doubled, benefiting married couples with an average benefit of around $243 a year.

Hopefully, at some point down the road, the marriage tax penalty will be eliminated altogether. But until that time, this is a step in the right direction.

It's also something that will help restore some common sense to our nation's tax policy and help make sure that the federal government is working for us and not the other way around.

Readers speak out on evolution column

Dear Editor, Your commentary, "Religion loses when it takes on science" (August 19), was thought provoking. Provoking, anyway. Your small print warning that it "might be harmful to people from Kansas, religious zealots, and others" was nothing less than cheap shots.

Those cheap shots didn't harm Kansas. A small town Texas newspaper editor isn't likely to upset the Kansas Board of Education. They have bigger battles to worry about.

My hat is off to the KBOE. I will be praying for them and also praying that Texas will be the second state to follow suit.

The battle is on, however. The American Civil Liberties Union is geared and ready with plenty of money and lots of experience. They are a Goliath in their field, and the Philistines are laughing. They laughed at David, too.

But if the battle is lost, it won't be because science has proved or disproved anything. It will be because of too little, too late.

I fear that two generations of Darwin, Freud, and Behavioral Science has a toe hold in our school systems, and with God taken out of the classrooms, young minds are vulnerable to almost anything. Not having been allowed another viewpoint other than the theory of evolution, then men's hypothesis of assumptions and suppositions sounds good enough for them.

It's hard to believe that the viewpoint of the theory of Creativity added to the curriculums would place a hardship on competitive education or inadequate education. I can see that it would place a hardship on the powers-that-be in continuing their efforts of producing politically correct young people.

In reference to your last paragraph, I believe that if God thought it important that we know every detail of His creation, He would have revealed more to us. He told us all we needed to know in the first two chapters of Genesis. God is more interested in the Spiritual, and our beliefs of Scripture are based on faith. People either believe it or they don't.

Naoma Spann

Dear Editor,

At risk of being included in your classification of "lower life forms," may I applaud the Kansas Board of Education for their courageous stand of voting 6-4 to "remove the theory of evolution from the state's required science curriculum."

I am really not interested in debating the issue of evolution as opposed to the biblical version of creation with you, because it appears, from the insulting way that you referred to the Kansas Board of Education, that your mind is closed on the subject. I would like to point out, however, that your example of Galileo Galilei is a far cry from proving your suggestion that when religion clashes with science and digs in its heels, it ultimately loses the battle. If you really want to see who wins the battle between science and religion, all you have to do is look at the way that God took a body that science considered to be dead and in an irreversible state of decay and gave it life again and brought it forth from the grave so that countless thousands of people could have the same victory over death that Jesus experienced.

Having observed the way you have attacked and insulted the Kansas Board of Education because you disagreed with them, I can't help but wonder what lies in store for those of us who happen to agree with the stand they have taken. I would suggest that if you insist on classing all of us who disagree with you as a lower life form of some kind, it will not be long until The Clarendon Enterprise itself will be history. You are entitled to your opinion about evolution. Likewise, without any denigration for our views whatsoever, are we entitled to believe in the biblical version of creation.

from 5 million harvested acres, with an average yield of about 509 pounds per acre. That's substantially higher than last year's drought reduced 3.6 million-bale Texas crop.

"Alabama, Arkansas, California, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Oklahoma and Tennessee also have good harvest prospects, compared to last season."

Anderson noted, however, that USDA's latest production estimates are based on Aug. 1 growing conditions. Hot, dry weather in several states since then could mean an even smaller crop, he said.

"If Congress approves Step 2 funds in September, cotton disappearance could increase. As a result, the big speculators who for a long time have been selling more futures than they have been buying may become less bearish," Anderson noted. "That could mean that the bottom in December futures has already occurred. Still, I believe the road to price recovery above 60 cents will be long and bumpy."

Only 5 percent of the U.S. crop had been forward contracted as of August 1, the smallest amount since the low-price year of 1992. That means the Commodity Credit Corp. (CCC) will continue to be an important marketing vehicle for producers, the economist said.

"If you decide to sell cotton and accept the loan deficiency payment, consider buying an out-of-the-money call at 2 to 3 cents per pound on the July, 2000 contract," Anderson said. "This will allow you to benefit from a significant market rally without paying storage costs and guard against even lower market prices."

TPW program expands dove hunting access

PAMPA - The search for a dove hunting lease just got a whole lot easier. Texas Parks and Wildlife (TPW) has leased 143 special dove hunting units covering 45,000 acres for public dove hunting in 1999.

Special dove hunting areas are open to any hunter with a valid Texas hunting license and a $40 Annual Public Hunting Permit (APHP).

The permit also gives hunters access to 1.4 million acres of land for many types of outdoor recreation, including hunting for deer, feral hog, turkey, quail, squirrel, and waterfowl. The APHP may be purchased wherever hunting licenses are sold and via credit card by calling 1-800-TX-LIC-4-U.

The special dove hunting units range in size from 160 acres to the 1,482-acre tract on the famous King Ranch. All lease sites have dove-attracting food sources, such as sunflower, rye, millet, and cotton, and provide roosting cover and/or watering areas that attract doves.

Each unit has an information station that features a map of the unit, general rules, and unit-specific restrictions. Each area also has a public entrance point and a designated vehicle parking area. Vehicle use on the interior portion of the units is restricted to ensure the least amount of disturbance possible.

In the Panhandle region, four dove hunting units have been leased for the 1999-hunting season. They are located in Collingsworth, Fisher, Gray, and Knox counties according to TPW Biologist Mike Miller.

"Primarily, they were selected based on location, size, ease of access, and the quality dove hunting opportunity that they present," stated Miller.

Miller also wants to point out that the map of Gray County Unit is incorrect due to the inclusion of several roads that do not exist.

"The Gray County Unit is located north of, but adjacent to FM 3134, approximately 4.5 miles south/south-east of McLean on FM 3143," says Miller.

In addition to the special dove hunting units, three TPW Wildlife Management Areas (WMA) continue to offer prime dove hunting opportunity in the Texas Panhandle. Gene Howe WMA, located six miles east of Canadian on FM 2266, consists of 5,824 acres of sand hills and bottom-land meadows along the north bank of the Canadian River.

Taylor Lakes WMA, located seven miles southeast of Clarendon on Highway 287, offers 530 acres of public dove hunting and features four shallow lakes.

Matador WMA, seven miles north of Paducah, consists of 28,183 acres of mixed grass prairie/mesquite uplands, juniper breaks, and bottom-land meadows of the Pease River.

Maps of the dove areas are available to individuals purchasing a APHP and may be picked up when purchasing the permit at a TPW law enforcement office.

If the permit is purchased at retail license outlet or through the 24-hour, toll free number, maps will be mailed within three to four days of the purchase.

The dove season for the North Zone is September 1, 1999, to October 30, 1999. Legal shooting hours are from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. The daily bag limit is 15 with a possession limit of 30.

For more information about the public dove lease program or other public hunting opportunities, call 1-800-792-1112.

Price for 'friendly' bank services adds up

The other day I had vision! Yep, it came to me while I was balancing my bank statement - one of those sudden thoughts that clarifies everything. I know why the federal government can't balance its budget! It's quite simple, and somebody should have thought of it a long time ago. The problem is not how much money the government is taking in, but how much is going out in bank fees.

You all know what I'm talking about here - those times when you go to the grocery store right before payday and write a check, knowing full well that you are $5.00 short of covering it in your account. But, you write it anyway, betting on the chance that your paycheck will beat the check (hot check, luke warm, whatever you want to call it) you just wrote, to the bank. You, of course, lose the bet because the check you wrote shows up just a teensy, tiny bit before your deposit does.

Now, you bank at a friendly bank, right? You bet. Those banks are the ones that have "Free Checking - with Overdraft Coverage!" Free - my Aunt Fanny! They pay your grocery store check all right, but come statement time, they charge you a little fee for being so nice to you. If you have more than one instance of them being nice to you, there will be a charge for each time they treated you so great. Pretty soon, the fees will amount to more than the checks you wrote. On and on it goes, and it doesn't take long for your paycheck to fall short of covering those fees. You see where I'm going with this? Our government is in the same boat we are.

Let's suppose that someone in the White House (By the way, who does write the checks to pay the national debt bills?) writes a check to the local grocery store there on Pennsylvania Avenue in good 'ole Washington, DC. The check writer knows full well that it's still two days until a deposit comes in, but they do it anyway. That check bounces right on into the bank, and bingo - the bank pays it. Well, of course they pay it - I mean what are they going to do, stamp a check written on 1600 Pennsylvania Ave "NSF"? (That's Non-Sufficient Funds for those of you perfect people out there.) Then some guy in the back room at the bank tacks on a little fee. Now, considering that the federal government has been in the red for as long as I can remember, that's a lot of fees!

And I wonder who gets in trouble for writing that check? I mean, when my bank statement shows up with a fee attached because I spent more than what was in there, I get in trouble. My husband wants to know why I did it. I always tell him the same answer - I don't know! I've tried a lot of other excuses. I've said that it must have been somebody else, the devil made me do it, I was temporarily insane from the heat, but he didn't buy into any of those. Who gets in trouble at the White House? I mean, is the President going to get mad at the First Lady for writing a check that bounced? I don't think so! If I were him, I wouldn't mess with her right now.

There is no way that the federal budget can be balanced, unless the bank suddenly decides to wipe the slate clean and let them start over. I mean, they stand about as much chance of that happening as you or I do - so you see what the chances are, right?

Don't get too discouraged, though, because I may have come up with a solution. What if on January 1, 2000, everyone got to start over? Rich, poor, government - everybody - started over at "0." This would only work if all debts were wiped out as well...but hey, I'm sure that merchants everywhere would be willing to join in the "Start Over Effort," right? Anyway, on January 1 we all begin again, fresh start and all that. Things are going to be in a big millennium mess anyway, so it would be the perfect time. And, not only would you and I benefit, but the federal government would have a balanced budget - for at least a day or so.

There is just one catch - we would all have to promise not to run up our credit cards, spend more than we can afford, buy anything we didn't absolutely need, or play any kind of Russian Roulette with our checkbooks. I think I could do it...maybe. On second thought, I better not make any rash promises.

explaining my Medicare benefits, (since I'm not sixty-five yet, I have no Medicare benefits); a catalog selling medical supplies and below cost medicine. I let Mike Butts take care of that for me. There was a letter offering me two months of 'free' long distance phone calls; a catalog selling livestock equipment and veterinary supplies, (Keith gets any livestock equipment we need at White's Feed and Seed and any vet supplies from Dr. Ellis); a catalog selling everything from singing clocks to ceramic yard ornaments; an auto parts circular; a bright green package informing me I'd probably already won 3.6 million dollars; a letter from Dick Clark and Ed McMahon (whoever they are) telling me I'd probably already won ten million dollars - all I have to do to get it is buy some magazines which I'd probably never read; a brochure announcing an auction of farm equipment; one selling steel siding, which I need, but can't afford; a letter offering me a good deal on storm windows, which I already have; a letter from a lawyer in Dallas offering to set up a plan whereby my estate would be to the persons I wanted it to, free; and a chain letter.

The credit cards and letter from the lawyer had first class postage on them, so I returned them to the senders. The chain letter had first class postage, but no return address and is against the law anyway. I guess I must have broken the chain already.

The rest had bulk rate postage and couldn't be returned.

I can use the stuff as biodegradable land fill in a canyon of the ranch, but what can town folk do with it? They can't burn it, and if they throw it away, it blows all over the place and piles up on the fences and along the roadside. If someone has a solution to this problem, I'd appreciate hearing from you.

Cliff and Melody Johnson have been enjoying a visit from her mother and sister, Marline Lemm and Marie Lemm of Wright, Minnesota. They returned home Friday.

Richard Shaw and his son, Cliff, of Kansas City, Missouri, spent a couple of nights with Richard's mother, Mildred and Bob Jewett. They probably visited with his sister and brother-in-law, Nancy and T. Mullins. They were enroute to Quitman.

Connie and Mahdeen DeBord had their daughters and families here during the weekend. They are Troy and Connie Lee Wilson and Brad and Deborah Flannery, Zack and Katie all of Amarillo.

Mike and Lori Wallendorff and all their kids were in Clovis Saturday. Something about a horse sale. I don't know if they were buying or selling.

Ronnie and Jannie Longan have moved their house to Howardwick. I guess they didn't like city living and moved to the suburbs.

I read in THE CLARENDON ENTERprise that the Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District was proposing a tax increase to make it rain. I thought God handled things like that. My grass is getting pretty dry, but I figure if I pray long enough, hard enough, God will take care of it. He always has.

I wonder if I'm the only person who is tired of the junk mail that fills my mailbox. I kept count of the pieces of unsolicited mail I received last week and it's unbelievable. I got two credit cards with an approved credit of $50,000 and $75,000 (I couldn't pay the interest on any purchases I made on a credit card, much less the principal.); three letters from insurance companies which guaranteed I could not be turned down for coverage, which is funny since every insurance company has refused me medical coverage since I developed a 'pre-existing' condition. My coverage was cancelled before congress passed a law prohibiting such cancellation.

I got two grocery circulars; a letter offering to send me information

Opportunities await residents at fair

In addition to livestock shows the Fair is making available a number of "non-critter" opportunities. These range from the traditional to a few new

Some of the returning competitions which Donley County residents have participated in the past include: amateur photography, art, a plethora of culinary categories and contests, textiles, and garden and vegetable shows. Some of these contests do have some generous rewards that are offered for top prizes.

For more specifics on how you might participate in the Tri-State Fair contact the Donley County Extension Service at 874-2141 or visit our offices at the Donley County Courthouse. Plan to share your talents with the greater Panhandle.

Howardwick board discusses ordinance enforcement

The Howardwick Board of Aldermen met in regular session August 10, 1999, at 7 p.m. in Howardwick City Hall.

Resolutions were adopted authorizing final payments to two contractors in relation to work done at the low water crossing.

Nancy Davis gave a report on the road grant the city applied for. The city did not receive funding at this time for roads as all funding went for water and sewer programs in other cities.

Davis also went over items the city will need to do to enforce ordinances and deed restrictions. After some discussion, it was decided to contact the sheriff to see if he would be able to serve warrants for a Municipal Judge before appointing one.

Clarendon Lions Club held their regular Tuesday noon meeting August 24 with Boss Lion Bobbie Thornberry conducting the meeting.

We had 19 members and four guests present. Our guests were Rev. James Ivey Edwards and Russell Estlack, guests of Lion Allen Estlack.

Our program today was given by Todd Baker and Jennifer Willison, band directors at the school. With 172 students in the high school, the Bronco Band has over 100 members. The decision has been made to go to state this year, and they have started preparation to get on the bus.

Broncos to host Mustangs

By Dean Stanzione
The Clarendon Broncos will host the Wheeler Mustangs Thursday, August 26, for their second and final scrimmage before the 1999 season begins. The scrimmage will begin at 6:00 p.m.

The Broncos scrimmaged the Valley Patriots this past Thursday in Valley. Head Football Coach, Mark Howard, was pleased with how well the guys did in the scrimmage. Overall, Howard was really impressed with the linemen.

"The most positive thing was that the offensive linemen played as well as they did. We got really good movement off the ball. We've gotten bigger, stronger, and quicker, and that has helped us out a bunch. I was really pleased with the linemen."

Coach Howard feels that improvement is still necessary.

"The guys did well, but were going to have to get better. We're going to have to work on alternating our running backs. We rotate our backs every few plays; and when we do that, we lose a little timing. That makes a difference and has an effect, but as we work at it more, it will take care of itself."

This year the CHS coaches are really putting an emphasis on defense. Howard was satisfied with the way the defense performed.

"Our kids are playing technique and trying to do things the way they are supposed to be done. We've got kids who can run and chase down the ball. They were being really aggressive. We were really pleased."

With the upcoming scrimmage against Wheeler, Coach Howard is looking for the Broncos to be aggressive.

"I want us to come out and be aggressive. We were intimidated last year, but we've gained a lot of confidence in the off season, and a lot of it showed Thursday against Valley. I think we'll have a lot more confidence going into the scrimmage against Wheeler."

"I'm looking for the physical presence of our guys this year. At this point in the year, I'm not looking for who scores how many times. That doesn't matter right now, because it's just a practice so we can get better. I just want us to be aggressive like we can be," comments Howard.

Coach Howard also says, "The scrimmages are for the guys to learn. I'd like for the guys to perform and be proud of their efforts."

CC begins volleyball

Clarendon College is serving up excitement as the new Lady Bulldog volleyball team opens their season at Vernon Regional Junior College on August 31 at 4 p.m.

Volleyball is the newest addition to the athletic program at Clarendon College.

"It's a good addition. These kids have the opportunity to be pioneers in the program," said Denise Reed, head coach. "They will be the ones to get things going."

According to Reed, among the pioneers are sophomores Shayla Weatherly of Canyon and Kristi Jacks of Lake Arthur, NM. Weatherly was a member of the 1998-99 Lady Bulldog basketball team. Freshman recruits include Kirsten Hohensee and Miranda Rollins both from Randall high School.

The Lady Bulldogs will face Frank Phillips College in their first home game on September 4 at 10:30 a.m.

Clarendon Trustees hold special meeting

The Board of Trustees of Clarendon CISD held a special meeting on August 17, 1999, at 7 p.m. in the Administration Building.

The board approved a motion by Lance Thornberry, seconded by Weldon Sears, to purchase a maintenance and grounds tractor for $5,500.

A Budget Workshop was conducted by Monty Hysinger and Wayne Hardin. No action was taken.

Cheering for CHS

The 1999-2000 Bronco Cheerleaders are ready to support the Broncos as the regular football season gets underway next week. Sponsor Jeanne Mondragon reports that each of this year's cheerleading squad will be doing 16 hours of community service. The group has already been busy raising funds and holding cheerleading camps for younger girls, and some of those young girls will be participating in a pep rally later this season. Members of this year's squad are America Santos, Jamee Sparks, Brandi Martindale, Carrie Helms, Christine Holden, Janey Addudell, Geri Butler, Lindsey Shelton, and mascot Erica Smith.
