Texas acts to preserve courthouses

Judge: Draft of Donley County master plan completed and submitted to THC

The Texas Historical Commission (THC) officially announced this week that the Texas Legislature and Governor George W. Bush have established the Texas Courthouse Preservation Program through House Bill 1341.

The program provides partial matching grants totaling $50 million to assist counties in restoring Texas courthouses that are at least 50 years old.

County Judge Jack Hall says everything is on track for the Donley County Courthouse to receive the assistance.

Hall says Donley County is ahead of the pack in terms of creating a master plan. The Texas Historical Commission will hold its first meeting on planning a master plan August 13 in Austin. But Donley County's plan is already well underway.

"The architect is still working on the master plan for the courthouse," Hall said, "and a draft of that plan has been sent to the Texas Historical Commission for approval."

Austin architects from Volz & Associates have been working on the plan for Donley's courthouse since June, and Hall said the final plan must be finished by October of this year. Still unknown to the county's architects is the composition of the original roof of the courthouse. Hall said any old photos that clearly show the roof of the building would greatly help with the creation of the master plan.

Built in 1890, the Donley County Courthouse is the oldest surviving courthouse in the Texas Panhandle.

Texas courthouses have been in the national spotlight since 1998, when the National Trust for Historic Preservation named them to its "America's 11 Most Endangered Historic Places" list. Many of these landmarks have fallen into disrepair due to inadequate funding for building care and maintenance, and the local courthouse is no exception.

The Texas Courthouse Preservation Program hopes to preserve these Texas treasures for future generations to enjoy and admire.

PPHM to host lecture on Battle of Adobe Walls

The Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon will present the third in a series of lectures commemorating the anniversary of the Red River War and the Second Battle of Adobe Walls. The lecture will be on Sunday, August 15, from 2:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the Hazlewood Lecture Hall at the Museum.

Billy Turpin, President of the Inter-tribal Indian Organization, and Jimmy Northcutt, member Company E, Fourth Cavalry Reenactment, will present an interpretive program on the 1870s Horse Soldiers.

Jimmy Northcutt will do a first person interpretation, discussing the daily activities, uniform, weapons, tack, and horsemanship of a Trooper during the 1870s. Billy Turpin will do a first person interpretation of the life of a Comanche Warrior of the 1870s. They will relate the "Point/Counterpoint" events of the Palo Duro Battle in September 1874 and describe the emotional and physical aspects from each perspective. The presentation concludes with both shaking hands in peace. There will be a question and answer period at the end of the program.

The lecture series will conclude on Saturday, August 21, with a lecture by T. Lindsey Baker and a bus trip to the Adobe Walls battle site in Hutchinson County on Sunday, August 22. Dr. Baker will speak on the realities versus the myths of the war in the Hazlewood Lecture Hall at the PPHM from 2:30 p.m. until 3:30 p.m. on Saturday and will identify and interpret the archeological remains at the battle site on Sunday.

"From There to Here... 125 Years

After the Red River War" is designed to improve public awareness about Texas Panhandle heritage, and to allow the Museum and the community to commemorate the 125th anniversary of the Red River War and the Second Battle of Adobe Walls. This project is made possible in part by a grant from the Texas Council for the Humanities, a state partner of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Thornberry praises DOE reorganization

WASHINGTON, DC - Saying it stays true to the recommendations set forth by the Rudman Commission, US Rep. Mac Thornberry praised recent agreement by house-senate conferees to establish a semi-autonomous agency within the Department of Energy to manage and oversee the nation's nuclear weapons complex.

"As someone who's been pushing management reforms at the Energy Department for over four years now," Thornberry said.

"I can tell you that the changes included in this bill are long overdue. Over the last ten years alone, there have been nearly 20 reports critical of the Department's management of the nuclear weapons complex. These reports showed that the problems at DOE are long-standing and systemic, going to the very heart of the way the Department is managed, structured, and organized.

"With this agreement, Congress is making the reforms that have long needed to be made, and restoring a sense of authority and accountability to the nuclear weapons complex."

Thornberry is one of the principal architects of the semi-autonomous agency proposal, having introduced legislation on June 7 - the week before the Rudman report was released - which would do exactly what the PFIAB recommended. As a member of the Conference Committee on the FY 2000 Defense Authorization Act, he also served, along with Committee Chairman Floyd Spence, as the lead House author and negotiator in reaching the recently agreement.

Thornberry serves as Vice Chairman of the Armed Services Committee's Subcommittee on Military Procurement, which has jurisdiction over the nuclear weapons complex. He has been pushing DOE management reforms for over four years. In 1996, he authored a reform plan that was approved as part of the FY 1997 Defense Authorization Act and resulted in the "120 Study" of the Department's management structure.

GOP tax cut doesn't amount to very much

Question: What do you call a $792 billion cut in federal taxes? Answer: Insignificant. The Republican tax cut bill squeaked by Congress last Thursday by a one-vote margin in the Senate and a 15-vote margin in the House of Representatives. If it became law, the bill would be the largest tax break since Ronald Reagan cut taxes back in 1981.

Highlights of the bill include: • A one percentage point reduction in income tax brackets (which won't take effect until about 2005). • A reduction in taxes on stock profits. • The so-called "death tax" would gradually be repealed for most people. • And a host of other goodies.

The total figure of $792 billion sounds like a lot, but really it's peanuts to the federal government when you look at the big picture.

The Republicans love to liken their plan to that of President Reagan's. Unfortunately, it is a far cry from what the Gipper passed. The GOP would cut taxes by $792 billion over ten years. Reagan cut taxes by $750 billion over five years.

Look at it another way. One estimate says that total revenues for the federal government over the next ten years will be on the order of $23 trillion. The tax cut would let Americans keep about 3.4% of that amount. Oh, wow. Happy days are here.

Impeached president Billy Jeff Clinton, who vows to veto the Republican bill, said this week that he might agree on a $250 billion tax cut for the middle class over the next ten years. That amounts to less than 1.2% of projected federal revenue that the people would get to keep. (Thanks, Billy. Was it good for you?)

Now, I would be willing to go along with no tax cuts or an insignificant tax cut if we could be assured that the remainder of the surplus would be used to pay down the national debt. However, any reasonable person knows that if Washington has the money, it's going to end up down the drain. It may be on Social Security, it may be on Medicare, it may be on cow flatulence studies, it will most likely be unconstitutional, but it will definitely get spent.

What America needs is significant tax reform. We do not need any more lip service about Social Security and Medicare. Taxes are too high, government is too big, and it's just that simple.

If the Republicans want to get serious about tax reform, they should set the goal of reducing the total federal tax levy to 10% of a person's income. Over the next ten years, payroll taxes should be abolished and the act of withholding income taxes out of an employee's check should be made illegal. Starting in 2010, each American would sit down on April 15 and write a check to the government in the amount 10% of their annual income.

That would be real tax reform. Anything else is just a handful of crumbs

Making them holler...

I always gauge how effective an editorial is by how loud people of the opposing view holler. When a touchy subject is hit, they really squeal. Typically, it is a few ardent supporters of the impeached president who make the biggest fuss every now and then.

But the ultimate way to tell when the truth has been told is when the anonymous letters come in. Judging by the unsigned remarks made by one local gutless pinko last week, I must be on a hot streak right now.

readers' letters To The Editor

Dear Editor, I wonder if there's something else we could do in order to receive God's fellowship and blessings, to spiritually be stronger? Could the faith of a mustard seed actually give the faith we need? It's very small! I tell you what, Dear Editor, at times in my life things go wrong and not according to God's will, I step back and I wonder what's going on! I am a child of God, I shouldn't be having this kind of problems! I call on the Lord and I tell him that his words just are not happening, that the faith of a mustard seed has been used up and there's mountains all around me. The Lord took me to his word after a few days of trial, he took me to Matthew Chapter 17 where it says that our brothers fasted and had faith and also to Acts 13 where our brothers fasted and the Holy Ghost said: "The Lord told me to go and ask for prayer from an elderly couple that are full of God's love and grace." I did and they prayed for me. Then the Lord said fast and pray so that you can allow the Holy Ghost to do his job. If you truly believe and have faith, that mustard seed faith, it can move mountains! So let's do it! Lets fast, lets pray, let's get the power of the Holy Ghost! God truly loves us. Lets do his will, as it is in heaven because we do have the power!

How to stop unwanted credit card offers

Lately, every time I open the mailbox another offer jumps out at me:

"Switch to Discover. You've been pre-approved for a $10,000 credit limit."

"With the new Visa card you can enjoy greater value and lower rates everyday."

The envelopes may all be different, but they all offer the same thing - credit cards.

I feel as if a small forest has been destroyed just so I can be sent so-called bigger and better credit card mailings.

The last thing I need, or want, is an additional credit card. I have one that is stashed in the wallet, somewhere between the grocery store receipts, photos, gum wrappers, and Post-It notes. It only sees daylight when there is an emergency: And buying a new pair of shoes is not considered an emergency.

A credit card is a powerful item. I learned that the hard way my sophomore year in college. With card in hand, I purchased airline tickets, clothes, and even rounds at the pub. As my balance grew, so did my sense of panic. In a pagan-like ceremony, my roommates and I cut up all our credit cards. Between the three of us, we had 20-something credit cards. They all met their demise, first with scissors

on the Mark with Christi Ross

then by fire. Our plastic buddies were no more.

The offers in the mail sound good until you read the fine print. They hook you with low APRs (annual percentage rates) and annual fees. But read the small type carefully. One card offer had a 3.9% rate that would automatically increase to 29.9% if you were late on one payment. Ouch!

One even offered me a credit line up to $100,000. I guess they didn't read my credit report very closely and see that I'm a stay-at-home mom.

As for credit reports, get a copy of yours and do it quick. I recently sent off for mine and was dumbstruck by the multitude of mistakes on my report. My name was misspelled, my date of birth was wrong, and that was just the tip of the iceberg.

Luckily, you can correct your file via a handwritten letter.

While I was busy with correcting my credit report, I read the really, really fine print. It said: "You have the right to prohibit information contained in your file with any consumer reporting agency from being used in connection with a credit transaction that you did not initiate."

What? Basically, it means that you can stop the selling of your name to other companies. They don't want you to know this, but I'm going to help you get off the mailing lists. Here's my good Samaritan deed of the day.

You have the right to prohibit the selling of your name and personal credit information. All you have to do is call 1-888-567-8688. Or you may write to: Trans Union Name Removal Opt-Out Request, PO Box 97328, Jackson, MS 39288; or Equifax Options, PO Box 740123, Atlanta, GA 30374; or Experian Information Solutions, Inc., PO Box 919, Allen, TX 75013.

Be patient because it will take some time to stop the junk mail, but it will happen, at least with the credit card offers.

Until then, keep throwing them in the trash. Just remember to tear, cut, or shred them first. Having others steal your personal identification and apply for unwanted cards is a whole other story.

Death tax may finally be laid to rest

One of the more frustrating things about taxes in this country is that they seem to punish people who are just trying to do the right thing.

Take the typical family farmer. He spends all his life taking risks, building up a business just so he can pass a better life along to his kids. But when he dies, instead of rewarding him for his life's work, the government comes in and levies a tax on his family for up to 55 percent of his net worth.

This inheritance tax - or death tax, as it's also called - is devastating to family farms. In fact, one-third of today's small business owners will have to sell all or part of their businesses in order to pay this unfair tax. More than 70 percent of family businesses do not survive the second generation, while 87 percent do not make it to the third.

But the inheritance tax doesn't just cost families their livelihoods. It also costs people their jobs. According to the National Federation of Independent Businesses, half of the businesses, which are forced to liquidate because they can't afford to pay the death tax, are also forced to eliminate 30 or more jobs.

I've been pushing to get rid of this tax for the past four years, and am happy to report Congress has passed a bill that does it. Under this plan, which was approved last week, the death tax will be phased out over the next decade.

And, after years of punishing people who have spent their lives working to achieve the American dream, one of the more crippling aspects of our nation's tax policy may finally be put to rest.

Don't be a sucker, avoid these Internet scams

Most of us have heard, "a sucker is born every minute," and most of us don't consider ourselves "that sucker." However, if you're not careful on the Internet, a wily huckster can easily fool you. Today, we'll talk about the most popular scams and hoaxes on the Net.

Scams and false offers are nothing new. Criminals have been committing fraud for many years. They started with postal mail, moved to telemarketing, and now are finding new victims in cyberspace. In fact, the schemes they use are exactly the same, just modified for the new communication medium. Let's start with the most common ploy: The Chain Letter Scheme

If you have an e-mail account, it is only a matter of time before you get one of these messages. It usually arrives with a subject heading of "Make Money Fast" or "No Risk Wealth" or some other drivel. Inside the message they ask you to send five dollars to the guy at the top of the list, add your name to the bottom of the list and forward the message to your ten best friends. Within a couple of weeks, you'll receive millions of dollars. Yeah, right. First off, despite the many promises and statements to the contrary within the message, this is a chain letter and chain letters involving money are illegal.

A very common telephone scam is for a person to pose as a reputable-sounding charity, like, "The Foundation for Disheveled Children." This same routine has made it to cyberspace. Check out any organization claiming to be nonprofit at the IRS's website, <http://www.irs.ustreas.gov>. If they aren't listed, they aren't legit.

As a sideline, I've noticed a few hoaxes relating to charities. The most popular one right now involves the American Cancer Society (<http://www.cancer.org>). An e-mail message is going around claiming that a little girl is dying of cancer. "Her last wish is that this message be forwarded to as many people as possible. In addition, some major companies will donate five cents for every message you forward to her cause." Remember, only you and your recipients know when you forward a message. The Cancer Society has publicly denounced this story as a hoax.

Just the other day, I received an offer from someone in the Philippines claiming that I can hide thousands of dollars in a special overseas trust. In addition, the IRS doesn't have to know, shielding my wealth from taxation. While this may sound great to anti-tax enthusiasts, it is very illegal. Most of these so-called trust companies don't exist and are just waiting for your bank draft before they disappear. In addition, the scammers that actually try to follow through on their promises often charge huge commissions. Twelve to fifteen thousand dollars is common. A great site to learn the truth behind these scams is the Tax Prophet (<http://www.taxprophet.com>). Online Sweepstakes Everyone wants to win something. But getting an unsolicited

e-mail message announcing you are the winner of some "Grand Prize" is not always what it is cracked up to be. Most legitimate contests will contact you via phone or mail to verify you as the winner. Also, they won't ask you for your credit card for "processing fees" in order to award you the prize.

What You Can Do First, if the offer is via e-mail, never reply. By replying, you are proving that your e-mail address is valid. Chances are, you would then get more of this type of trash. The easiest method is simply to delete the message without even reading them. After many years of seeing these kinds of schemes, I can easily go through my new e-mail messages and delete them based on the following criteria: • Subject in all uppercase. • Words "wealth", "rich", or "free" mentioned. • More than one exclamation point: "!!!!"

Many e-mail programs can even be set to automatically delete messages that match the above rules. If you feel like being a diligent netizen (Internet citizen), forward the offending message to the owners of the network. For instance, if the message came from scamartist@aol.com, forward the whole message to abuse@aol.com. All major networks have the "abuse" e-mail box for that purpose. A great website with more information about online scams is The National Fraud Information Center at <http://www.fraud.org>. Here, you'll find more than enough information to keep your money where it belongs, in your wallet. See you in Cyberspace!

TxDOT meeting discusses work on US 287 North

The Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT) hosted a pre-construction meeting on Tuesday, July 27, 1999, at 3:00 p.m. at the Childress TxDOT Maintenance Facility.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the upcoming project for the asphalt concrete pavement overlay from Armstrong County line southeast to the Clarendon city limits for a distance of 11.5 miles in the north bound lanes only.

The $1.5 million contract was awarded to Jordan Paving Company of Irving, Texas. Construction efforts began on July 27 and will be completed approximately the end of September 1999 for a total of 57 working days or four months.

"Safety is of the utmost importance to Jordan Paving. I hope everyone will carefully observe the construction signs throughout this project," said Leo Wallace, Jordan Paving Job Superintendent.

Danny Brown, Childress Area Engineer also encouraged safety during the work. "I encourage the public to be attentive to construction, traffic, and personnel working on this project. Safety will be our primary concern throughout this project," Brown said.

For more information, call Danny Brown at 940-937-7249 or Barbara Seal, TxDOT Public Information Officer at 940-937-7145.

THC to excavate Ft. St. Louis in January

VICTORIA - Texas Historical Commission (THC) archeologists will begin excavation of Fort St. Louis, the first European colony in Texas, in January 2000.

French explorer LaSalle established Fort St. Louis in 1685, but when he left for assistance two years later, Indians attacked and killed most of the settlers. When Spanish explorer Don Alonso de Leon discovered what remained of Ft. St. Louis in 1689, he burned the fort, buried the cannons and built a presidio to claim the territory for Spain. In 1996, more than 300 years later, THC archeologists ended centuries of debate about the location of the ill-fated colony when they confirmed the discovery of the buried cannons.

To prepare the site for excavation, the team used a magnetometer, a high-tech metal detector, to survey the land to identify metal artifacts and isolate areas where land use has altered the natural magnetism of the soil. The magnetometer successfully pinpointed the location of the Spanish presidio. In August, the THC will continue preliminary work on the site by compiling a topographic map and determining the underground distribution of the artifacts, which they anticipate will include the remains of the fort, a cemetery, thousands of French artifacts and the Spanish presidio. The team expects the excavation to last eight to 10 months.

"Voyage of Doom," a NOVA documentary about Fort St. Louis and La Salle's 311 year old ship the Belle, which THC archeologists excavated in 1996 and 1997, will air on PBS on November 23. For more information, contact Jim Bruseth, Archeology Division, Texas Historical Commission, 512/463-5863.

Fieldwork resumes at Red River War battle sites

The Texas Historical Commission (THC) recently resumed fieldwork at the Red River War battle sites in the Panhandle Plains region. Archeologists, expected to work on this project through September, will concentrate on completing an investigation at the Battle of Red River site.

The Battle of Red River on August 30, 1874, was the opening battle of the Red River War which brought an end to Native American control in the Southern Plains. Covering 20 square miles, the battle was the first location west of the Mississippi River where soldiers used a Gatling gun.

Archeologists also plan to locate and document the Price Engagement battle site in Wheeler County.

Investigations at the sites will include establishing site records, generating maps and nominating sites to the National Register of Historic Places. This phase of the Red River War Battle Sites Project will also include processing and curating artifacts, developing a heritage tourism plan, and writing a final report.

For more information, contact Jim Bruseth, Archeology Division, Texas Historical Commission, 512/463-5863.

Ranching good life, but windmill repair hard work

Mark and Tammy Brinson and Lindsey have returned from Ignacio, Colorado, where Lindsey competed in the barrel racing contest. Mark told me she finished just out of the money. Paula Clendennen was in town last week to take care of some business for her mother, Opal. Paula lives in Pampa, I think. She's a nurse.

Cecelia Lemons visited with her mother, Mildred Hoggard, early last week. I visited with her in the post office.

Dorine Conatser was in Red River during the weekend with her children, John and Dianne and their children. She told me it rained.

Jean Fallin of Lubbock and granddaughter, Shandi Wilks of Amarillo, visited Jean's parents, Boots and Eunice Ward, last week. Jean had picked Shandi up in Amarillo and was on her way home to Lubbock. I thought it was a little out of the way to come through Hedley.

Carroll and Marsha Favor had their children visiting over the weekend. B.J. and Jackie Pierce, Lacy, Clint, and Dillon of Pampa and Angie Pierce, Monica, Jeremy, and Christen of Amarillo enjoyed their visit.

Melinda Thomas, Bubba and Paige spent the weekend with their mother, Ellen Gilchrest. Wednesday, Ellen visited her mother, Lela and Tom Stump in Amarillo.

Deborah Flannery, Zachery and Katie spent the weekend with her parents, Connie Mahdeene Debord. They attended worship service at the Church of Christ Sunday.

Harley and Hope Simmons vacationed in Brownsville last week. They visited her mother, Mrs. Consolo Martinez, and celebrated her 96th birthday.

Wanda Clay joined some of her sisters on vacation to California recently. Bernice Lambert of Levelland, Patsy Salter of Lubbock, Anna Lyon of Bowie, and their niece Brenda Rice of Lewisville flew from Lubbock to Antioch, California, and visited aunts and uncles Curtis and Rita Haney, Reginald and Polly New, Naomi Harris, and Faye New.

Wanda told me that it was the first time since 1976 since that many of her

Watt's Happening

By Peggy Watt

family had been together, and they had a lot of talking to catch up on.

We've had some rain during the past week. At my house I've had approximately three inches since the first of the month. It usually doesn't rain in this part of the country in July and August. I can remember hauling water to the cows when the windmills didn't pump enough water to fill a teacup...and it seems like the cows drink twice as much water when there isn't much than they do when there's plenty.

Worse than not turning is when the windmill runs but pumps no water. I'd forgotten how hard windmill repairing was until Saturday when mine stopped pumping. I called Keith, and he came to fix it. Guess who got to help. Not that he asked me to, but it's a two-person job. Anyway, I only handed him tools or if he was in the top of the tower and said, "Throw me that wrench." I nearly knocked my brains out when he missed catching it. Of course, it didn't come within six feet of his hand. After about a dozen throws, I got it within his reach.

We pulled the sucker rods; and if you've never handled a wet sucker rod, I can tell you it's a messy job. Of course the leathers turned back as it came out of the working barrel, which made it twice as hard to pull, but we didn't break any sucker rods, just pulled the ends off a couple. He had to hunt up John Morrow and get some leathers and ends. He also hunted up Daniel Bolin to help him finish fixing it. I was never so glad to see anyone as I was to see Daniel. Anyway, by Sunday night I and the cows had water...and I had a much-needed bath!

Fred always said, "Ranching's a good life." It is. I wouldn't want to try living anywhere else. But the next time, I'm going to call John Morrow when my water works needs repairing.

There is a holiday for everything and everybody

I frequently use an Internet web site called Blue Mountain Cards. This site has all kinds of electronic greeting cards that you can send to family or friends who have access to Internet e-mail. While browsing the site recently, I noticed something very interesting.

In the month of August, there are 23 official holidays. I thought they were pulling my leg, but I found out differently. These holidays are for real. Some designated days sound reasonable, such as Coast Guard Day, Holy Transfiguration Day, Virgin Mary Day, and Senior Citizens Day.

There are special holidays for individual countries too. This month we have Bolivia Day, Ecuador Day, and Pakistan Day in the first few days, followed by India Day, South Korea Day, Indonesia Day, Afghanistan Day, Ukraine Day, and Malaysia Day later in the month. Oh yes, I almost forgot Hungary Day. There is also a Singapore Day. Is Singapore a country or a city? I'm confused. At any rate,

I wonder why there isn't an America Day? I suppose we are to consider the Fourth of July as our day.

August 11 is Sons and Daughters Day. I thought their day was the day they were born. That's the way we always celebrated it at my house, but I guess now we are going to have to rethink our position.

I found out too late that August 8 was Sneak Zucchini Day. (I am not making this up!) Now, just on the chance that I knew somewhere to go and sneak zucchini, why would I want to? But, if I did, why would I celebrate it? If I were sneaking zucchini, I most certainly wouldn't want anyone to know about it.

Aviation Day falls in this month, and I see no harm in giving aviators everywhere my support and encouragement - especially the aviator who might be flying the plane I am riding in.

August 12 is Left-Handers Day. This news will make my husband very happy. Of course, he really didn't need another holiday because he works for the State of Texas - and they have more official holidays than anybody I know. I've always suspected there is a special committee (paid for by our tax dollars at work) that researches reasons to have a state holiday - but I'm getting off the subject.

Blame Someone Else Day is August 13. Now, I could really get into that one and my kids have been celebrating it for a long time.

In case you should get into a fight on Blame Some Else Day, it is followed by Kiss and Make Up Day. Late in the month we can look forward to Be An Angel Day and Just Because Day. I think that last one is really pushing it, but who am I to judge?

After celebrating all of the August holidays, you will probably be

Former resident to celebrate 90th birthday

Most mornings, just after day-break, you'll find Pearlle Aduddell working in her garden. That's not unusual except that she will celebrate her 90th birthday on August 14.

Pearlie, better known as "Mom," has lived in Claude the past 52 years. She married Edd Aduddell in Clarendon in 1925, and they lived in the Clarendon-Chamberlain communities many years.

Edd and Pearlle were married 61 years before Edd's passing in 1986. They had 13 children, six boys and seven girls.

Born in Lakeview to Will and Nina Barber, Pearlle was the oldest girl of seven children. She has one remaining sister, Willie Crager, formerly of Clarendon.

Deceased brother, Frank Barbee, and deceased sister, Gertrude Reid, were also Clarendon residents. A deceased brother, Pete Barbee, lived at Hedley.

While raising her large family and working as a housekeeper for many area families, she always found time to visit the sick and the elderly, always taking one of her famous cakes along. While in her 80s, she would tell her children that she had been to visit the "old" folks at the rest home.

Still living alone on her little farm on the north edge of Claude, Pearlle still raises chickens, sharing her fresh eggs with anyone who drops by. She cans and freezes many fruits and vegetables each year and enjoys serving them at meals she still prepares for her large family. It's not unusual for her to have 20 or more at holiday meals because her home is still the congregating place for her children and grandchildren.

Besides her 13 children, Pearlle has 42 grandchildren and 71 great grandchildren.

Eleven of her 13 children are still living. They are Jerre Brethauer of Amarillo; Nita Short of Loveta, CO; Bob Aduddell of Amarillo; June Tucker of Walsenburg, CO; Joyce Cagle of Strasburg, CO; Rex Aduddell of Claude; Cinda Sharping of Stratford; Glenda Chenault of Canyon; Texas Aduddell of Matheson, CO; Dee Aduddell of Claude; and Marie Shipley of Aurora, CO. Their oldest and youngest children are deceased, Danny Aduddell of Amarillo and Bill Aduddell of Spearman.

Pearlie is truly a great example of the spirit of this area - exhibiting hard work, integrity, and perseverance in every area of her life.

'Cowboy Mystique' focus of KACV's August pledge drive

Cowboy poet Buck Ramsey once said "The cowboy epic is the one myth the United States has given the world." In The Cowboy Mystique: A Tribute to Buck Ramsey, KACV explores the continuing significance of the cowboy mystique to the region and the nation. The program, which premieres Tuesday, August 17, at 7:00 p.m., is the flagship special of the public television station's August pledge drive. In-depth, one-on-one interviews with cowboy performers Michael Martin Murphy and Red Steagall, as well as cowboy poet J. B. Allen were shot this summer for the program. Never before seen footage of Buck Ramsey is also included.

"If you have any pride in our Western heritage, this is a program you won't want to miss," said program producer and host Ellen Robertson Neal. "It not only gives insight into the cowboy mystique itself, but also into some of the people keeping that legend alive."

The Cowboy Mystique: A Tribute to Buck Ramsey, which was made possible through a grant from the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation, will air a total of five times during the KACV membership drive, August 17 through 22. In addition to the premiere broadcast, it will air Friday, August 20 at 10:00 p.m.; Saturday, August 21 at 2:00 p.m. and 9:00 p.m.; and Sunday, August 22 at 1:00 p.m.

Other KACV-TV produced history programs will also be featured during the drive. Route 66: A Journey Through Texas, another documentary made possible by the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation, visits some of the unusual people and places that can be found along Old Route 66. It premieres Tuesday, August 22 at 8:20 p.m.

Route 66: A Journey Through Texas includes sights in Vega, Shamrock, Glen Rio and more, and repeats Sunday, August 22 at 2:25 p.m.

Can't Stop Singing, a new performance documentary, highlights barbershop harmony singers like FRED (pictured), a comic quartet from Marietta, Georgia. The program airs on public television affiliate KACV-TV Friday, August 20 at 8:00 p.m. as part of the station's Last Summer of the Century celebration, August 17 through 22.

"Basically we just hopped in the truck and took off looking for anything people might like to see," said producer Robertson Neal. "We were really surprised to find how many things we'd never even known were there. I think viewers will be, too!"

Both airings will be followed by broadcasts of KACV's popular documentary Rick Husband: Man With a Mission, covering the final weeks of training that led to his piloting of the NASA's space shuttle Discovery launch this past May. The program also includes the shuttle launch itself, plus interviews with Husband's immediate family and friends. This production was made possible through special support from Battelle-Pantex and Southwest Airlines.

Other highlights of the membership drive include new music specials featuring 13-year-old classic soprano sensation Charlotte Church, stage stars Sarah Brightman and Bernadette Peters, Ray Charles and more. Questions about becoming a member can be answered by calling the KACV-TV Membership Office at 371-5479 or 1-800-999-9243, or by visiting the station Web site at www.kacvtv.org. Program information is also available at the site.

Broncos prepare for 1999 season

By Dean Stanzione

Approximately 40 Clarendon High School Broncos began two-a-day practices Wednesday, August 4. Drills and conditioning began their preparation toward improving on last year's 1-9 season.

Athletic Director and head football coach, Mark Howard, has really been pleased with the leadership and enthusiasm shown by the players.

"The attitude has been tremendous. We've had a lot more leadership from some guys we weren't really sure would step up and lead."

The coaches are really pleased with the progress shown during this year's two-a-days as compared to last year. Last year the Broncos were faced with adjusting to new coaches with new offensive and defensive strategies. This year, learning time will be used to refresh the players' memories.

The coaching staff will be stressing to the players to improve, excel, and be the best they can be. Coach Howard states this "will make the team the best it can be." The coaches will also be stressing unselfishness this year. They feel that the players have matured enough in the past year that it will make a lot of difference this season.

Clarendon welcomes two new coaches. Coach Seman has taught and coached at St. Andrew's Episcopal School in Amarillo. He will be teaching history in Jr. High. Coach Demar from South Dakota has a Master's Degree in Education, and he will be teaching history in high school.

The 1999 CHS football season will begin August 19 with a scrimmage in Valley. Currently, kick-off time has not been scheduled.

Meet the Broncos night set for next Monday

A Meet the Broncos and Lady Broncos Night will be held Monday, August 16, at 7:00 p.m. at the Bronco Stadium.

The high school and junior high football and cross country teams for this year will be introduced. Following the introduction of teams, there will be a watermelon supper for everyone provided by the Bronco Booster Club.

The Clarendon Broncos have been practicing for 1999 football season the past two weeks. The guys will scrimmage Valley next week. This will be an away game, and the time has not been set yet.

Blood drive to be held

The Coffee Memorial Blood Center will be in Clarendon Monday, August 16, for a Blood Drive at the Bairfield Activity Center from 2:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m.

Each week Coffee Memorial Blood Center needs to collect approximately 500 units of blood. This amount makes sure that all needs are met to the 22 area hospitals of the Texas Panhandle they service.

Surgery is one of those needs, whether it is elected or emergency surgery, they will still make sure blood is available. Other reasons vary from accidents, burn victims, newborns, and individuals that may be receiving chemotherapy or radiation treatments.

Whatever the needs of the citizens of the Texas Panhandle, they want to make sure that an adequate blood supply is available.

For more information, please call 1-800-658-6178.

Church, Patten win 4-H Bake Show

By Sue Church, County FCS Agent
4-H hosted its annual Bake Show Friday, August 6, with participants vying to represent Donley County at the Tri-State Fair's Bake Show. This show required 4-Hers to prepare a quick bread from scratch and present it along with the recipe for judging.

The Donley County winner for 1999 selected by a panel of judges is Trisha Church. Abby Patten will serve as alternate.

The purpose of the contest is to promote the Panhandle's major agricultural product - wheat. Participants learn the nutritional value of wheat products in the diet in addition to skills of planning, preparing, serving and evaluating these products. The contest at Tri-State Fair will take place Saturday, September 18, 1999.

Congratulations to all who participated in the local contest. There are a number of other baked goods categories, which they will be encouraged to enter at the Tri-State Fair.

Clothing construction opportunities for adults

By Sue Church, County FCS Agent
Opportunities for adults to learn basic sewing and brush-up construction techniques will be offered this fall dependent on interest expressed by individuals in the county.

One opportunity will be the Master Clothing Volunteer program, which involves a minimum of 32 hours of training. Each participant will be asked to provide 50 hours of payback time over 18 months. This may involve training others wishing to learn, writing news articles, preparing packets for trainings, etc.

The second opportunity will be basic construction techniques for the novice sewer. Simple projects will be completed during the course of these clinics.

To sign up for either program, Master Clothing Volunteers or Basic Sewing Techniques, call the Donley County Extension Office at 874-2141.

The Women's Center of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center and Baptist St. Anthony's Health System will conduct a Breast Cancer Screening Clinic at Clarendon Medical Center Nursing Home, Hwy. 70 North, on August 27, 1999.

Breast cancer affects one in eight women. The key to winning the battle against cancer is early detection by having an annual breast exam, mammogram, and performing a breast self-exam each month.

Participants will receive a low-cost screening mammogram. Each woman screened will receive a breast health risk appraisal and individual instruction by a registered nurse in breast self-examination.

Funding is available through the Texas Department of Health for Texas residents who qualify for assistance. All exams are by appointment only. To schedule an appointment or for more information, call 806-356-1905 or 1-800-377-4673.

Why Settle For Just A Picture When You Can Have 1000 Words As Well?

Words on paper. They will always be the most powerful tools human beings use to communicate. They place no limits on how much we can say, and the furthest reaches of the imagination are the only limits on what we can show. They have the power to make complex ideas simple, and simple ideas powerful. We do more than read them, we hold them. And, from the advertising we see in publications to the letters we receive in the mail, the things we hold in our hands have the quickest routes to our hearts.

Say It In Print.

Slow And Easy

Shelving in the Burton Memorial Library was re-positioned last week to make room for nine new shelving units. Workers were able to use hydraulic lifts to move the old shelves while they were still fully loaded.

Shown here are Kenny Sides of San Antonio, Randy Thomas of Oklahoma City, and George Shay of Clarendon. Librarian Carolyn Blackerby was helping push the shelf but out of camera range.

Plan now to participate in Ranch to Rail Program

AMARILLO — It's that time of the year again. The 1999 Texas A&M Ranch-to-Rail program will be taking cattle deliveries in October. But right now, producers need to begin the process of selecting and preparing their entries.

Ranch-to-Rail gives producers the opportunity to check feedlot performance and carcass traits of steer calves produced from their herds. Cattle are fed at the Hondo Creek Feedyard at Edroy near Corpus Christi, or Friona Industries yard near Amarillo, or both.

"Participation involves a three step process," said John McNeill, beef cattle program leader with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in College Station.

First, producers need to enroll their cattle. To sign up, contact your local county extension agent or McNeill at 409-845-3579. Enrollment forms must be submitted this month.

Next, producers should identify a minimum of five steer calves to enter.

"Only steers will be accepted and there's no age restriction. We recommend weights between 500 and 800 pounds," said McNeill. Individual identification will be maintained on each calf for the length of the program.

The last step may be the most important according to the beef expert, "calves will need to be prepared for the feeding program." Although a pre-conditioning regimen isn't required, it is highly recommended, McNeill said. "Ideally, the calves should be weaned a minimum 45 days before shipping."

"We like to see the animals vaccinated against viral and bacterial pathogens that can lead to illness once the calves leave the ranch," he added. While not required, these preparations will reduce the risk of health problems enroute to the feedyard.

The steers selected also need access to a complete mineral supplement, good quality grass hay or pasture, and a high protein supplement. Guidelines for preparing the calves, such as the Texas A&M VAC-45 and Tex-VAC, can be obtained from your local county extension agent, area livestock/beef specialist, or from McNeill.

"Now's the time to ready your animals," he said. If a 45-day regimen is chosen, then the steers should be weaned between mid-August and September 1. Even if calves are not weaned for that long, the schedule for administering some vaccinations may require producers to begin in late August.

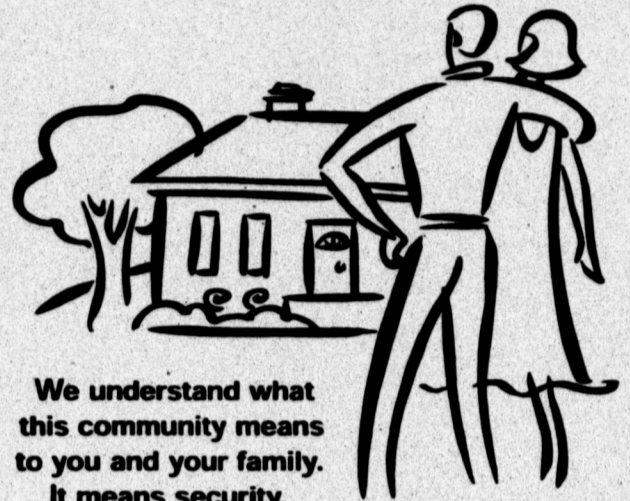

Whether now or later, today's beef producers must be knowledgeable about the product they market. Ranch-to-Rail offers the chance to learn more about their cattle and their industry to boot.

For assistance and information, call on your local county extension agent, area livestock/beef specialist, or McNeill 409-845-3579.
